HUGHES LIKELY TO HAVE ONLY DEMOCRATS WITH HIM IN STATE OFFICES

Republicans Probably Beaten for All Except Governorship.

Chanler Leading Bruce for Second Place by About 15,000.

Independence League Makes Open Charge of Gross Fraud.

New York, Nov. 8.—That Charles E. Hughes was the only Republican elected on the state ticket Tuesday and that he will have as his Lieutenant Governor Stuyvesant Chandler, Democrat and Independence league, and Democrats as all of his associates, is almost beyond question today.

With nearly complete returns from fifty-one of the sixty-one counties, Chanler, whose majority in Greater New York is 134,941, has a lead over M. Linn Bruce, Republican, of 20,657. The missing counties are Essex, Hamilton, Herkimer, Niagara, Ontario, Orange, Fulton, Monroe, Rockland and Yates. Estimated returns from Orange county give Bruce a plurality of 2,766, and an estimate from Monroe credits Bruce with a lead of 3,600. These figures, deducted from Chanler's whole plurality, leaves him with a lead of 14,291 with eight counties still to be heard from.

The returns are coming in extremely slow, and the count on the remainder of the state ticket is as far from being complete as is the total for lieutenant governor. In many instances the county clerks to whom the returns of county balloting are made have not yet opened the sealed envelopes in which the official reports are enclosed. Some of these probably will not be opened for several days, and the complete official vote will not be available until that is done.

Governor-elect Charles E. Hughes gave out the following statement last night: "It is a victory for sobriety and for decency in the administration of government. But the people will not tolerate indifference to public wrongs. They desire neither exaggeration nor inflammatory appeal on the one hand, nor moral or political obtuseness on the other hand.

"HONEST JOHN" BURKE.

HEAVY GUNS SHORT-LIVED

Gen. Crozier Gives 12-Inch Cannon Two Hours in Action.

New Rifles to be Issued to Whole Army Before Long.

Washington, Nov. 12.—That the 12-inch gun now in use at most of the coast fortifications of the United States would not last through an engagement of two hours, the period that would elapse from the time the leading vessel of a fleet would come within range until the last vessel would pass beyond the range of the guns, is the declaration of Brig. Gen. William Crozier, chief of ordance whose annual report was made public at the war department today.

General Crozier thinks that it is of the utmost importance that some method be devised whereby the necessary gun power can be secured with less expense than involved in using the very high velocities of projectiles now employed, with the accompanying rapid wearing away of the rifling in such a manner as to destroy the accuracy of the gun after a few rounds. The 12-inch guns will last for about sixty rounds, and as the gun is capable of firing for a considerable interval at the rate of forty-five rounds per hour, it can be seen that the limit of the life of this gun could be reached in less than an hour and a half.

Similar statements can be made with regard to guns of smaller calibers, says the report, although as the caliber diminished the admissible velocity increases. By lowering the velocity of the 12-inch projectile from 2,500 feet to 2,250 feet per second, the life of the gun is increased to 200 rounds, but the penetration of armour is reduced at 10,000 yards from about ten and a half inches to about nine inches, and the range at which its projectile would penetrate twelve inches of armor plate is reduced from about 8,000 yards to about 6,000 yards.

The chief of ordnance states that it appears that by using in the situations requiring the greatest power a 14-inch gun with 2,150 feet per second velocity of projectile, instead of the 12-inch gun, with 2,500 feet per second initial velocity, the army would secure a better gun and a gun which would last four times as long. He states that the department has decided to use this gun in place of the 12-inch gun in situations where the highest power is required and the 12-inch gun as a maximum caliber has been abandoned.

General Crozier says that plans and specifications are in preparation for the army smokeless powder factory, for which congress, at its last session appropriated $165,000, and work will be rushed when the site is selected.

Of small arms, the general states the magazine rifle, 1903 model, was supplied to the regulars for target practice and that the improved rifle of 1905 model, with knife bayonet and rear sights has been issued to the troops in the Philippine islands and will be issued to the troops in the states and the first issue recalled. As a result of tests during the year, some changes have been made in automatic loading magazine rifles, which may eventually render them satisfactory for service use. The manufacture of small arms ammunition is somewhat more expensive than formerly, due to the increase in the cost of brass and lead.

Among the changes made in the equipment issued to cavalry, infantry and artillery during the year, was that of the cup, formerly of steel, heavily tinned, and now of aluminum.

CUMMINS SAFE BY GOOD 20,000

Congressman Lacey Defeated for Re-election in Sixth Iowa District.

Des Moines, Iowa, Nov. 8.—Iowa's election is a question of the Republican plurality only. All indications point to about 20,000 for Governor Cummins with the chances that the rest of the state offices will run a little above that.

The Democrats made their biggest gains in the senate, where they elected their men in ten of the twenty-two districts where elections were held thus getting fourteen members in the senate, where at the last sesion they had but eight. They elected thirty-three members of the house, where last season they had twenty-two.

Final returns show that Congressman Lacey has been defeated for re-election in the Sixth district by D. W. Hamilton, Democrat. In the First and Second districts, also thought to be in doubt, the Republicans have elected their candidates.

STEARNS COUNTY

Gives Governor Johnson a Majority of 2,902 Over Cole.

St. Cloud, Minn., Nov. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Complete returns from Stearns county give Johnson 2,902 majority for governor, and Tifft 1,373 majority for congressman.

HAYNES MAJORITY

Over Jones for Mayor of Minneapolis is 3,582.

Minneapolis, Nov. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—With every precinct heard from, the unofficial majority of J. C. Haynes over D. P. Jones for mayor is 3,582, the total vote being: Haynes, 21,567 and Jones 17,985.

BURKE WINS BY FULL 3,000

North Dakota Elects Popular Democrat as Next Governor.

Judge Fisk's Plurality Over Knauf May Run to 10,000.

Republicans Hope Back Counties Will Save Rest of Ticket.

Fargo, N. D., Nov. 8.—"Honest John" Burke, Democrat, has been elected governor of North Dakota by a plurality conservatively estimated at 3,000, while the majority for Judge Charles J. Fisk, Democrat, over John Knauf for the supreme bench has increased to about 10,000.

It is acknowledged today by practically everyone that the statement last night of L. B. Hanna, chairman of the Republican state central committee, conceding the defeat of Governor Sarles by 2,000, fell at least 1,000 short of the actual mark and that he was probably 4,000 too "conservative" as to Judge Fisk.

Accurate figures have not been received from more than half the counties, and the advance report have come from county seats and villages. The votes from the back county districts have not yet been reported. Some estimators insist that there will favor Sarles and Knauf not enough to change results.

From such meager reports as have been received on the other places on the ticket it seems positive that all the other Republican nominees have pulled through. In most counties so far heard from, Sarles and Knauf have run from ten to twenty per cent behind the other Republican candidates. The Democrats here claim the election of Williams for lieutenant governor, Hegge for treasurer and McCoskey for railroad commissioner, but there seems little basis for it, unless Burke's majority should be double that now estimated.

The decisive defeat of Sarles in his home county, and his failure to make a better showing in the northwestern part of the state are the disappointments of the election. Of the forty counties Sarles is known to have car-

BONI PLAYS BOLD GAME OF PRETENDED LOVE TO TRY TO SAVE HIS SNAP

Count's Counsel Protests Love in Face of Exposures.

Charges American Lawyer With Stirring Up Trouble.

Offers to Take $30,000 a Year If He Cannot Keep Wife.

Paris, Nov. 8.—That Count Boni de Castellane proposes to play the role of repentant husband and loving mate in the face of the exposure of his brutalities to his wife, formerly Miss Anna Gould, and of his gross infidelity, in the hope of reconciliation and saving of his past income of $700,000 a year was made more evident than ever today.

Maitre Bonnet, of counsel for Count Boni de Castellane, consumed less than an hour in concluding his argument for the count. He continued his criticisms of Edmund Kelly, the American lawyer of the countess, and persisted in his demand for an examination of the witnesses in order, he said, to permit of the case being probed to the bottom.

Counsel argued that an inquiry was now imperative to give the count an opportunity to explode the flimsy evidence, according to which he had been pictured as a cruel brute. Count Boni's only fault, he declared, was his desire to have his wife realize her desire to become the queen of the French aristocracy, and in his efforts to this end he had compromised his own as well as her fortune. He also charged bribery of witnesses.

Counsel added that in the event of a divorce being granted, the count would ask for permission to see his children two days each week and a month in the summer, and that the countess would be enjoined from tak-

ROOSEVELT SENDS MESSAGE TO "NICK" AND LOVE TO ALICE.

Cincinnati, Nov. 8.—Congressman Nicholas Longworth, who was re-elected to congress, has received the following telegram:

"Hon. Nicholas Longworth, Cincinnati. Hearty congratulations. Love to Alice. We seem to have done pretty well all along the line.

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

TWO COLORED MEN ELECTED TO POSITIONS IN CHICAGO.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—Revised returns show that De Priest and Barnett, negroes who ran for county commissioner and municipal judge respectively, and who it was believed had been defeated, have been elected by small pluralities. The Republicans won every office in the county except three congressmen.

COUNT WITTE IS DOOMED TO DEATH BY RUSS LEAGUE.

Moscow, Nov. 8.—It is stated on excellent authority that the "league to combat the revolution," to which the murder of Deputy Herzenstein in Finland last summer has been ascribed, has sentenced the former premier, Count Witte, to death in the event of his return to Russia.

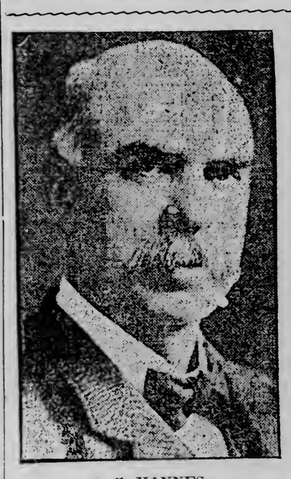

HEE HAW!

GOVERNOR JOHNSON RETURNS THANKS TO ST. LOUIS COUNTY

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 8.—To The Evening Herald: St. Louis County certainly did splendidly by me, and I am deeply grateful for the efforts of my good friends in Duluth and elsewhere in the county. Results exceed our most sanguine expectations. I wish I could thank you all personally at Duluth.

JOHN A. JOHNSON.

J. C. HAYNES.
Democrat Elected Mayor of Minneapolis, Once More Defeating Mayor D. P. Jones on the "Lid" Issue.

NEW HAMPSHIRE CLOSE.

Concord, N. H., Nov. 8.—Late returns from about eight of the missing towns of the state indicate the election of Charles N. Floyd, Republican, as governor by a majority over all of less than 100. This may save election by the legislature.

CHAIRMAN F. A. DAY.
Whose Campaign Management Contributed Materially to the Unexampled Majority Given to Governor Johnson.

MUCH DOUBT IN KANSAS

Both Parties Still Claim to Have Elected Governor.

Republicans Will Choose Next United States Senator.

Topeka, Kas., Nov. 8.—At 11 o'clock this morning both Republicans and Democrats were still claiming the election of their candidates for governor.

Chairman Crummer of the Republican committee, claimed the re-election of Governor Edward W. Hoch, over Ex-Senator W. A. Harris, Democrat, by over 4,179. He based his claim on his returns from all except nine of the 105 counties in the state which he asserted were verified. Two years ago the nine missing counties were all carrried by Hoch, giving him a plurality of 1,713. All are in the western part of the state and most of them sparsely settled.

Chairman Ryan of the Democrats, was equally as positive that Harris had been elected, claiming that the official returns would give him over 3,000 plurality.

Marion county, Hoch's home, was carried by Harris by a majority of 139, while Douglass county, Harris' home, was carried by Hoch by a majority of 130.

Aside from the head of the ticket, there is no question as to the election of the Republican state ticket. Big Democratic gains have been made in the lower house of the legislature, but that body will still be overwhelmingly Republican, and a member of the dominating party will be elected United States senator to succeed A. Q. Benson, who himself is a candidate for re-election. Other candidates are Congressman Charles Curtis of the Fifth district and Joseph L. Bristow, formerly fourth assistant postmaster general.

CZAR WANTS BOMB MAKERS.

Russia Seeks to Secure Treaties Covering Compounders of Explosives.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 8.—The Russian government, through the foreign office, has opened negotiations with other governments with the view of concluding supplementary extradition treaties covering fugitives accused of the preparation or appropriation of explosives for use in the manufacture of bombs. Several governments have refused to deliver up such offenders, on the ground that their offenses are political. The action of the Russian government is based upon the law of Feb. 22, subjecting such persons to the regular criminal procedure.

A POPULIST SENATOR.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Nov. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The indications are that Ole O. Sageny, Populist, has been elected to the state senate over H. F. Hille.

MAJORITY FOR JOHNSON CONTINUES TO INCREASE AS THE RETURNS ARRIVE

Now Over 55,000 and It Possibly Will Reach 60,000.

About 11,000 in Hennepin County and 7,000 in Ramsey.

St. Paul, Nov. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—As later returns on the state elections come in, the size of Governor Johnson's great popular majority increases. It is over 55,000 now, and it is possible that it will reach 60,000. The governor received a largely increased vote in every county in the state, while the Republican vote slumped everywhere, and the other Republican candidates on the Republican state ticket are elected by much reduced pluralities. A. O. Eberhardt, candidate for lieutenant governor, was harder hit than any other Republican state candidate, and it was thought at one time he was defeated.

Hennepin county on governor is going heavier than two years ago. With ninety-four precincts giving Johnson 7,829, the probabilities are that the other eighty will bring his plurality in the county up to 11,000 or more. In Ramsey county Johnson fairly buried Cole under an avalanche of votes, carrying the county with something like 7,000 to spare. The highest majority predicted for Johnson was 5,000 and the result is as much a surprise for the Democrats as the Republicans. Governor Johnson carried every ward in the city of St. Paul, even the Republican Seventh casting its fortunes with the Democratic candidate. The governor rolled up a mighty vote in the Republican First and Democratic Eighth. Rock-ribbed Goodhue county goes Democratic on governor for the first time in its history, and at present

CHINA MOVES FROM OLD RUT

Emperor Decrees Sweeping Changes in Ancient System.

Pekin, Nov. 8.—An imperial edict, issued yesterday, after referring to the previous command that the nation prepare for a constitution, outlines many changes in the administrative system, such as the consolidation of various boards, the creation and abolition of others, and the establishment of a political council, whose duty it shall be to gather public opinion.

The edict says these changes are made solely as the foundation for a constitution. If found not to be good, they will be changed again. It points out that the present situation in China is dangerous, if both high and low are not made to obey the laws, and it calls on the ministers to act together in order to improve conditions, warning them that if they disobey the imperial commands, thus frustrating the hopes of the people, they will be punished. It declares that the laws and regulations made by ancestors were good for that time, but that now the superfluous must be abolished.

Another edict orders the viceroys and governors of provinces to consider what steps shall be taken to prepare the general mass of people for local self-government.

IRON TRADE IS BOOMING

New Furnaces Bid Fair to Break Record of 1902.

All Plants Being Driven at an Unexampled Pacc.

Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 8.—The Iron Trade Review says: "The United States has entered upon a period of what promises to be a time of the most extensive construction of blast furnaces and open hearth steel plants in its history. The only year whose prosperity is comparable with that of 1906 is 1902, and while the actual number of plants being built is not so large as it was in the midsummer of 1902, the new construction authorized and certain to be carried out, unless there should be a totally unexpected slump in business, exceeds that of 1902, the increases being largest in furnaces making bessemer and basic pig iron.

"In July, 1902, there were thirty-four blast furnaces under construction, with an estimated annual capacity of 4,300,000 tons. The blast furnaces then being remodelled, enlarged or soon to be rebuilt, numbered twelve. The additional capacity thus provided was about 600,000 tons a year, and the total addition to the blast furnace capacity, all expected to be availble before the end of 1903, was estimated at 4,900,000 tons a year.

"There are now under construction in the United States twenty-one stacks, with a total annual capacity of 2,310,000 tons. Seven furnaces have been recently completed, with a capacity of 968,000 tons. The building of twenty-seven new furnaces, having an annual capacity of 2,965,000 tons, has been authorized. There are three old furnaces in Pennsylvania, and one in Michigan, Long Isle, with a capacity of 315,000 tons, which are soon to be blown in. This makes a grand total capacity of 6,588,000 tons for furnaces completed, under construction and authorized, the number being fifty-nine. The estimated cost is $50,000,000. There are ninety-eight new open hearth steel plants, with an estimated annual capacity of 2,740,000 tons. Their cost will be about $1,500,000."

New York, Nov. 8.—The Iron Age says: "Advices from Cleveland show that some of the ore interests have opened their order books for the coming season and have entered a very considerable tonnage at advanced prices. The position of furnace managers who must now contract for ore for consumption up to the spring of 1908 is not an enviable one.

"The pig iron markets are in an unsettled condition, with little doing in the Central West, where there is little available. On the coast and the territory tributary to it, foreign pig iron is playing an increasing role. The English trade papers talk of purchases of warrants for American account aggregating 250,000 tons. This, of course, is very much exaggerated. So far as we can learn, shipments so far arranged during the whole of this movement will foot up to about 17,000 tons, some of which has arrived and is afloat and the balance is to come forward during the next two months. This is certainly not an alarming quantity, and must be rather regarded as a welcome relief to embarrassed smelters.

"All our plants are being driven at top notch speed, which is reflected in the October records, which are now being published. The mills of the Steel corporation record the breaking of 121 records, of which seventy-one are to the credit of the Carnegie Steel company. The blast furnaces of the Steel corporation produced in October, 1,008,433 tons, as against 999,103 tons, the best previous record, in March, 1906. The steel plants made a record in October of 1,682,759 tons of ingots, as compared with 1,270,834 tons in March last.

"With the exception of structural steel, the value of orders keeps up at a tremendous rate and runs in excess of current capacity, great as that is. Shipbuilders have booked four additional lake vessels, which call for 40,000 tons of plates and shapes, which have not yet been placed.

"One of the leading Eastern makers of cast iron pipe has taken the largest order ever booked by this long established concern. In tubes, some very important oil lines are being figured on, and there has come to hand an inquiry for 275 miles of ten-inch pipe for Burmah."

DAIRY PRIZES IN MINNESOTA

Governor's Cups Are Awarded—Fine Record for Butter.

St. Paul, Nov. 8.—Allie Olson of Winsted has won the governor's cup in the whole milk butter class, with an average of 96.29 per cent, while Louis H. Flagel has taken the governor's cup in the hand separators class, with an average of 94.58 per cent. And the winner of the governor's cup in the cheese contest is G. N. Andrist of West Concord, with an average of 97.25 per cent.

This closes one of the most successful educational contests ever held in the state. The scores represent the average made over a period of six months.

The biennial report of the department, upon which the assistants are now at work, will show seventy new creameries, or a total in the state of about 900. The prize butter, which holds the world's record, is made from milk given by Minnesota herds, comprising some 800,000 cows, or nearly two cows to every man, woman and child in the state.

The record of 80,000,000 pounds of butter produced in Minnesota in 1905 will probably run up as high as 90,000,000 pounds in 1906. Its money value in 1905 was $20,000,000, and it is thought that the values will be increased materially this year, as butter has been higher. It is thought that the yield of milk marketed through the creameries will run up to 1,850,000 pounds, as against 1,350,000,000 pounds last year.

NEW INSTRUCTORS.

Wisconsin University Regents Make Additions to the Faculty.

Madison, Wis., No. 8.—The regents of the University of Wisconsin at their meeting this week made the following appointments: Special lecturer in economics, Professor Alvin S. Johnson of the University of Nebraska; instructor in chemistry, H. S. Woods, vice R. C. Benner, resigned; assistant in French, Fortune Richard Perrin; assistant in public speaking, J. Earl Baker; assistant in political science, H. U. Russell; herbarium assistant, Helen Sherman; instructor in dairying, Christ Schenk; assistant in agricultural library, William B. Walker.

CHILD WRAPS GLOBE

Of Electric Light in Blanket and Bad Fire Narrowly Averted.

Manitowoc, Wis., Nov. 8.—A lighted electric light globe wrapped in the bed clothing by the small son of the family, threatened with destruction the home of Halver Hansen, the house being saved by accident after the fire had burned a part of the bed clothing. The child had wrapped the electric light globe in the blanket and it had burned to the mattress which was badly scorched when discovered by Mrs. Hansen, who extinguished the flames.

MAN SHOOTS FALCON.

Dog Afraid of Big Bird Even After It is Dead.

Crookston, Minn., Nov. 8.—Edward Hagen of this city shot a falcon Monday evening while driving in the country about seven miles northeast of here. The bird is two feet long and four feet from the tip of one wing to the other. The largest claw measured one and one-quarter inches. The back of the bird is blue in color, while the breast is white, shading to gray.

A falcon never has been seen in this part of the country before, and it is a great curiosity. It is the only bird that can whip the eagle, and the dog that Mr. Hagen had with him was afraid to go near the bird even after it was dead.

Mr. Hagen says he shot the bird about 7 o'clock in the evening by starlight.

Witness is in Finland.

A continuance over the November term of the district court has been asked by the defendant in the personal injury case of Jacob Ojers against the Pitt Iron Mining company. The company asks moro time to get the deposition of one Randa, who has returned to Finland. It is claimed that the mining company made every effort to locate Randa on the ranges and even offered a reward for $25 for information of his whereabouts, finally learning that he had gone back to the old country.

Iron Men Are Here.

John C. Eden and Wayne Wills of Chicago, of the United Iron company and the Inland Steel company, were in Duluth yesterday, conferring with William Pearne of Hibbing, superintendent of mines for the two companies. These companies control the Winnifred, Brunt, LaRue, Nassau, Hobart and Croxton mines.

The Inland Steel company and the United Iron company are controlled by the same interests and A. W. Thompson, formerly president of the Republic Iron and Steel company, is prominently identified with them. These interests are said to be acquiring mines for independent iron and steel operations.

Fargo, N. D., Nov. 8.—Rev. F. M. Yiltum, D. D., of Grinnell, Iowa, has been elected president of the Fargo Congregational college. He will begin his duties here Jan. 1.

A CLEVER ANIMAL.

Mayor Tom L. Johnson of Cleveland has been pluckily fighting a law-infringing street railway. He tore up some of the railway's tracks, and injunction was served against him, and then he in his turn secured another injunction, says the Los Angeles Times.

"We are like the old lady and the dog, with our injunctions and mandamus and what not," said Mayor Johnson the other day.

"There was, you know, an old lady, who rented a furnished villa for the summer, and with the villa a large dog also went.

"In the sitting room of the villa there was a very comfortable armchair. The old lady liked this chair better than any other in the house. She always made for it the first thing.

"But, alas, she nearly always found the chair occupied by the large dog.

"Being afraid of the dog, she never dared bid it harshly to get out of the chair, as she feared that it might bite her; but instead she would go to the window and call 'Cats!'

"Then the dog would rush to the window and bark, and the old lady would slip into the vacant chair quietly.

"One day the dog entered the room and found the old lady in possession of the chair. He strolled over to the window, and, looking out, appeared very much excited, and set up a tremendous barking.

"The old lady rose and hastened to the window to see what was the matter, and the dog quietly climbed into the chair."

POISON IN THE FOOD

Wahpeton, N. D., Nov. 8.—One of the most terrible crimes in the history of the country has been committed in this city. Mary Lev, a domestic in the employ of Dr. and Mrs. Meckstroth, after committing several robberies, made an attempt to kill Mrs. Meckstroth and her family by poisoning. She was arrested Thursday, confessed the crimes and now lies in the county jail.

The girl began to work for the Meckstroth family in June of this year, and appeared to be an industrious girl. She was an excellent housekeeper, and Mrs. Meckstroth thought a great deal of her. In July a diamond stud belonging to Dr. Meckstroth was missed, and no clue to the thief could be found. About six weeks later a diamond was taken from a pin of Mrs. Meckstroth's, was missed, and the girl was then suspected, but she denied it so emphatically, and was such a clever actor, that she was believed. A few days later about $25 was taken from the cash drawer in the doctor's office, and Sept. 20 about $9 was taken from a pocketbook of Mrs. Meckstroth's. The girl was so skillful in covering up her tracks, and so clever in arranging things so that her mistress would think that some one had broken into the house, that she was hardly suspected. An imitation diamond was taken from a pin which Mrs. Meckstroth had placed on her dresser as a trap, and Oct. 18, the day after the doctor left for Europe, a drawer containing $12 was missed from a bedroom upstairs. It was on this day that the poisoning commenced.

In the morning after breakfast Mrs. Meckstroth became violently ill. Dr. Bates, who takes his meals with the Meckstroth family, was also taken sick after he got to his office. He did not eat any dinner or supper, and Mrs. Meckstroth ate nothing until evening, when she had the girl make some cream toast. Soon after eating this she again was taken violently ill, and from then until Sunday noon she ate practically nothing. Sunday noon she ate heartily of chicken broth, and soon after dinner became ill again. Up to this time the family had supposed that the sickness was from ptomaine poison, perhaps contained in canned fruit, but an investigation was begun. It was not known that the girl had had her little sister buy rat biscuit at the local drug store, and that she gave her mistress water and milk in which the poison had been soaked at least eight different times during the week.

Thursday Sheriff Robbins questioned the girl, and she confessed to everything, stealing, poisoning, and all.

The girl gave no reason for her awful crime; said she did not know why she did it, and said, too, that she would do it again if she had a chance. She made no demonstration until the sheriff and his deputy started to take her to the jail, when she began to scream and fight.

It is thought that the girl is insane and has been so for some time.

AMERICAN NEWS NOTES.

Fire in Chicago early today destroyed the moulding plant of Angus & Mackay, 794 West Madison street, the Rabey hotel, and several adjoining buildings, causing losses of $200,000.

The American bark James Nesmith, in ballast from San Francisco, being towed by two tugs at Fort Townsend, Wash., yesterday, collided with the United States gunboat Princeton, at anchor, and damaged it considerably.

Second Lieut. Noble J. Wiley of the Fifth infantry, who was taken from the transport Sumner at Havana last Saturday, suffering from yellow fever, has been pronounced out of danger.

Pabst Beer Most Popular

American People Appreciate Clean Wholesome Beverage.

With the increased consumption of beer, the public is becoming more and more discriminating. Once upon a time beer was beer, but now we are becoming very particular what we drink in the way of beer. Each brewer makes his own particular brand or brands, each with its own particular flavor, color and other marked characteristics. While the process of brewing is the same in general, it is not at all the same in particular.

In this it might be well to know that Pabst is recognized in this country and abroad as the pioneer in perfecting the cleanest process for making beer as well as being the leader in the science of brewing. It was Pabst who first recognized not alone the desirability, but the necessity of absolute cleanliness in brewing, cooling and aging beer. Today he leads in the cleanliness of his process. Pabst beer is not cooled in open rooms where men walk in and out, but in sealed coolers where only filtered air can reach it. Pabst beer is not aged in open vats, but in sealed tanks where it stays until science shows it perfect in age, purity and strength.

Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer is always exactly the same. The exquisite flavor never changes, because Pabst yeast with which Pabst beer is fermented is always grown from the original mother cell in Pasteur tubes and tanks, where there is not the slightest chance for outside contamination. It is always made from Pabst exclusive 8-day malt grown under the watchful eyes of trained scientists who make it just the same and just right every time. Only the choicest imported hops are used, thus it is rich in tonic properties. It never leaves the brewery until fully aged and perfect in purity and strength—the cleanest beer brewed.

Thus it is in these days of discrimination, Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer is the most popular beer with the doctors and the people who value its richness and its cleanliness.

The People Believe In Pe-ru-na

The People Rise to the Defense of Pe-ru-na in the Home

Pe-ru-na Is Used In Millions of Homes As the Most Reliable Medicine

East and West, North and South, Join In Defending Pe-ru-na.

A Home in Illinois.

Mrs. Lida Rowland, 2160 Grenshaw St., Chicago, Ill., writes:

"We think Peruna the greatest medicine on earth. A year ago last winter my little boy had a very severe cough. We had consulted the finest physicians of Chicago, and he got no better.

"One night he had a very severe spell of coughing. It seemed as if he would never stop. My husband bought a bottle of Peruna and the first dose stopped the coughing. We continued giving it to him until he was entirely cured. He is a strong, healthy boy now.

"Peruna saves me many doctor bills."

A Home in Texas.

Miss M. M. Johnson, Hitchcock, Tex., writes:

"Your great medicine, Peruna, has restored me to health once more. I am truly thankful to you, for your medicine is certainly a catarrh cure. My sisters are surprised at my improvement. My appetite is good now. I sleep well at night. I have no more pains, and no backache or headache.

"I will recommend Peruna to all suffering women. It is just what you claim it to be. When I began taking your treatment I was wretched. Peruna has cured me of all catarrhal trouble."

A Home in Washington.

Mrs. Minnie Lappenbusch, R. F. D. 1, Buckley, Wash., writes:

"I was sick and I thought perhaps Peruna would help me, and after using Peruna and Manalin, I am healthy. I have had two children since I was sick, and work in the house and outside also.

"I use Peruna for all kinds of ills and consider it an excellent medicine.

"I have seven children. I keep your medicine in the house almost all the time. I can do all my housework alone, which I was incapable of doing before.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

Man Who Was Bitten by Rattlesnake on Prairie.

The speaker was a sedate business man, who made a fortune in oil and copper, which he was heroically guarding and steadily enlarging through Chicago real estate investments, says the Chicago Inter-Ocean. At this moment he was reclining lazily in the smoking room of a Detroit hotel, after a satisfactory dinner, and idly following the conversation of a party of friends.

"Tell us a few good ones," a bald-headed stenographer suggested eagerly.

"Well," he said, meditatively, "about the closest shave I recall happened years ago when I was a young fellow just out of college and wooing fortune in the golden West. Accident and hard luck landed me on a big ranch in Nueces county, Tex., near the Duval line, an upland plain as dry as a covered bridge and as lonesome as a prohibition convention. It was miles from any place—nothing but sheep and cattle anywhere about. Oh, yes, the adobe plains were decorated with horned toads, tarantulas, scorpions, centipedes and an occasional rattlesnake which crept about in the chalky dust, too stupid and discouraged to get out of the way.

"I was dead broke and had a sore spot in one of my lungs from a too intimate encounter with a Kansas blizzard the previous winter, so I bluffed the good-natured ranchman for a job, and he gave me one immediately, tending the company store, a solitary frame building which stood absolutely alone on a small hill about a mile from the ranch inclosure, at the fork where the McMullen trail led off northwest from the Beeville, Lagarto and San Diego mail road. There wasn't a railroad in all that country except two streaks of rust and a right-of-way that ran from Corpus Christi out to San Diego and forgot where it was going, so it quit there.

"The store was pretty well patronized in the evening by the cowboys and small ranchers, but later in the night it was as still as a cemetery. I had a cot in one corner and slept there behind a pile of flour sacks. Up near the front window a postoffice had been rigged up out of dry goods boxes, and one of my duties was to sit up for the Star Route mail, which came through the Beville every night, dropped a sack and took one from me, almost without stopping, on its way to San Diego.

"One night, I reckon it was in July, and pretty hot, I waited till about 10 o'clock, but the mail wagon did not come, and as I was all in, as you young fellows say, I got my mail sack ready, took off my coat and shoes, and dropped down on my cot to rest a while.

"Along in the night I was awakened by the mail driver's horn and tumbled out, still half asleep, grabbed the mail sack and ran out with it to the middle of the dusty trail where the stage stopped. The driver had already tumbled his sack out in the dust, so I tossed mine into the stage, and he was off with a great flourish of his long whip, while I stooped over to pick up the mail sack he left. In doing this I planted my left foot square on the tail of one of those devilish prairie rattlesnakes, and as quickly he let drive, hitting me plumb on the ankle joint. The moon was shining and I could see him plainly where he clung to my foot, and in a furious rage I batted him a dozen times with the mail bag before it occurred to me to get busy if I wanted to roam the earth much longer, for of all known varieties the prairie rattler is the most deadly.

I ran into the store, grabbed a ball of heavy twine and began winding it tightly around my left leg above the ankle till I shut off the circulation. Then I lit a lamp and began to think, while I looked sharp for remedies. I was a novice then, but I had heard that whisky would drive out the poison. We had none in the store, but in one corner we had several cases of patent medicines which the cowboys often bought before they began to shoot up the landscape. I picked out three or four kinds that loked particularly alcoholic, knocked the top off on the counter and drank all I could hold. It all happened in a minute, and by that time my foot was as black as a coal mine on a dark night. I had sense enough left to tumble down on my cot, where I rolled up like a hoop and began to suck the poison from the wound in my ankle. I kept that up while consciousness remained, and when I awoke, some time the next day, the store was pretty well filled with ranchmen, and I—well, I was rather a promising subject for a jag asylum, but I was a long way from dead, though it took some weeks to pump all the stagnant blood out of my foot. After that I made it a rule to wear heavy shoes and to look before I leaped, which is pretty good advice in most cases. Let's have a fresh cigar."

WEALTH FROM JUNK.

Copper wire to the value of $500 was stolen from the Postal Telegraph company's former office about 12 o'clock Wednesday night, says the San Francisco Chronicle. A gang of five men carried fifteen coils of wire to a wagon which was driven by a member of the gang, and before the arrival of a patrol wagon loaded with policemen, under Detective Sergeant Ed Gibson, the thieves escaped with their booty.

Not only the telegraph companies, but the United Railroads, and the telephone company have been heavy losers from the depredations of a well-organized band of junk thieves, who discriminate in favor of the more valuable junk, such as copper wiro and brass findings.

A ready market is found for this loot, some junk dealers making no scruple about purchasing all that is brought to them. The wire is melted into crude ingots and sent to the Eastern smelters.

The method of the thieves in looting the ruins in the burned district are extremely simple. Several members of the gang search the ruins, and after selecting such pieces of junk as will command the highest price, cast it into the street. It is an easy matter for others to gather the junk without attracting attention.

Boys have been engaged by junk dealers to pick up bits of copper, and in this way have contributed largely to making the business of the junk men lucrative.

Great piles of junk of all descriptions are piled in the courtyard in the rear of the police headquarters at the Lowell high school. In the days immediately following the fire the police confiscated quantities of junk and made a great number of arrests. The men arraigned in the police court are fined a nominal sum, which is quickly paid.

A PLAYWRIGHT'S WIFE

Mrs. Frank Pixley, wife of the librettist, who is visiting Los Angeles, is a native of Canada and still clings to much of the vernacular of her mother tongue. Sauntering into a Broadway dry goods store the other afternoon, she desired to go to the second floor, says the Los Angeles Times.

"Will you kindly tell me where the lift is?" she inquired of a brusque floor walker.

"Sure, Miss," said he, with a majestic wave of the hand, "the lift is over there and the roight is opposite."

Frank Pixley has ever said that his wife is responsible for his "pennings of lyrics and humor." Upon their recent return from Japan, where Mr. Pixley has gathered material for a new play, Mrs. Pixley attempted to cross Market street, San Francisco, while viewing the fire ruins. A burly policeman grabbed her arm and started to assist her. Traffic was heavy; she became frightened, and suddenly broke away and ran back to the curb.

"What's the matter; don't you ever take any chances?" asked the copper gruffly.

"Sure I do; I'm married," said Mrs. Pixley as she started bravely forth again.

PICKED UP GUN BY THE MUZZLE

Fairmont Man is Frightfully Injured While Duck Hunting.

Mankato, Minn., Nov. 8.—Leo Moen and Harold Cross, of Fairmont were duck hunting at Lake Imogene Tuesday, when the former narrowly escaped death through the accidental discharge of his gun. They had just come to shore in a boat, when Moen picked up his gun and stepped out. The hammer caught on the edge of the boat and the gun was discharged. The front of his coat and cap were torn away and the force of the charge tore open his cheek, splintered the jawbone and made an ugly wound in spite of the fact that but two shot were found embedded in the flesh. He was taken to a neighbor's house and a doctor dressed the wound. Moen was able to ride home.

The Omaha road is about to inaugurate a change in its freight service that is expected to bring a dozen or fifteen more families to the city at once. The freight trains from the Elmore branch, that have been running to St James, will run to Mankato and tie up. The way freight trains from St. Paul, which have been run through to St. James, will stop in Mankato, and other trains will be put on to complete the runs between Mankato and St. James.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Constans, known to all commercial travelers in the Northwest, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage Sunday at Blue Earth.

The Carnegie library Tuesday received a gift of a $50 painting in water colors, "An Autumn River," by Forsyth, the painter from whom a $300 painting in oil, "Late Afternoon," was purchased last winter when the state art exhibit was held in this city. The citizens contributed toward the purchase of the oil painting, and at the time Forsyth promised a free gift of one of his water colors.

LOOK INTO PANAMA LABOR.

President Will Study Conditions as to Machinists and Others.

Washington, Nov. 8.—While on the Isthmus of Panama President Roosevelt will look into conditions affecting the employment of mechanics, data concerning which has been furnished by President Gompers and Vice President O'Connel, of the American Federation of Labor. The latter talked with the president today particularly about the machinists, about 400 of whom are now employed at the isthmus. Their arrangement into classes is different from that in vogue in the United States and this complicates matters.

The battleship Louisana and her convoy, the cruisers Washington and Tennessee, sailed today from Newport News for Pine Bluff in upper Chesapeake bay, where President Roosevelt and party will board the battleship from the Dolphin tonight. The pilots on the warship expect to pass out of the Capes bound for Panama about 2 o'clock tomorrow morning.

GREAT FIRE IN CANTON.

Five Hundred Houses in Chinese City Swept Away by Flames.

Hongkong, Nov. 8.—Over 500 houses have been destroyed on the Chinese riverside of Canton, opposite the island suburb of Shameon, inculding all the restaurants, brothels and gambling houses, and the fire is still burning fiercely. The window of a godown on the island of Shamoen became ignited, but the blaze was promptly extinguished and Shamoen is not now in peril.

Marines from the foreign vessels in the harbor have been landed and are combatting the flames. No lives have been lost, but the damage already exceeds $1,000,000. The cause of the fire is unknown.

IDAHO'S GOVERNOR WINS.

Gooding Selected by About 7,000 and Legislature Republican.

Boise, Idaho, Nov. 8.—Late returns assure the re-election of Governor Gooding, Republican, by a majority of somewhat more than 7,000. The rest of the state ticket has a majority of probably 5,000 more, with one exception, the candidate for secretary of state.

Definite returns show that the Republicans have thirteen of the twenty-one members of the state senate, and thirty-five of the fifty-one members of the house. This will give a majority of twenty-four on joint ballot.

SEEKS BACK LICENSE FEES.

Wisconsin's Attorney General After Three More Railroads.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Attorney General Sturdevant today announced that he would sue the Burlington, the Illinois Central and the Green Bay & Western railroads for back license fees. The suits are in line with suits prosecuted against other roads and the time extends back twenty years in cases.

CASHIER DISCHARGED.

Burlington, Iowa, Nov. 8.—A sensational development in the recent robbery of the United States Express company's office here occurred when L. M. Berry, the cashier who alleged that he had been slugged and robbed by a thief who then helped himself to a sack containing $360, was discharged by the company.

ALBENBERG'S

REBATERS INDICTED

Federal Grand Jury Returns True Bills Against Roads.

Grain Companies Also Said to Have Been Under Probe.

Minneapolis, Nov. 8.—(Special to the Herald.)—Indictments have been returned by the special federal grand jury which convened here Oct. 22 to investigate alleged freight rebates.

The minimum penalty for conviction in each case is $1,000 and the maximum $20,000.

None of the interested railroads expected that any indictments would be returned against them. Each company had disclaimed, with apparent sincerity, the possibility of any criminal act in their relations with the grain companies, concerning which their employes had testified.

It is believed that the grain companies and individuals connected with them had receved no inkling of the fact that they were being investigated by the grand jury. No member of any grain company was called to the stand, nor was any railroad man who testified before the grand jury indicted.

Although attention was constantly called to the fact that only men of clerical rank and of subordinate positions were being called to the witness stand, the higher officials failed to "tumble" to the probability that their own calling would be of a more serious nature. They laughed at the jury proceedings, although many entertained secret misgivings at the length of time taken by the jury in their probings and the fact that back of the investigation was H. B. Duncan, special agent of the department of justice, who had brought so many similar investigations in other places to an indictment stage.

In the fact that the jury broke all records in this district for the length of its sitting, and for the care in its examination of witnesses was conveyed a significance which was not thoroughly grasped by railroads and shippers generally. At last, however, it is borne in on them that possibly the present is only the beginning of other cases concerning which the government has been offered information.

INDICTMENTS ARE RETURNED

The Charges Include Grand Larceny, Assault and Forgery.

Four indictments were in the first return made in the district court this morning.

Edward Sarkall will be tried on two indictments, one charging grand larceny in the second degree and the other charging forgery in the second degree.

The information in his case is that he stole two checks of the amount of $50.50 and $58.56 each, from John Maki, at Aurora, Sept. 23. For indorsing the checks to obtain the money Sarkali is charged iwth forgery.

Dempsey Lewis is indicted for grand larcency in the second degree. It is charged that he stole a quantity of clothing from Birdie Thomas, at Duluth, Oct. 15. The clothing is valued at about $105.

Charles Hill is indicted for assault in the second degree. It is charged that he knifed one John Mitchell, at Duluth, Oct. 11, last.

JUDGES HEAR TALES OF WOE

Six Divorce Cases Heard and Four Decrees Granted.

Six divorce cases were heard by Judges Cant and Ensign this morning. Decrees were granted in four of the cases and in the other two Judge Cant reserved his decision.

In Judge Cant's room, Mary Boyd sought a separation from Arthur Boyd on the grounds of desertion; Susan E. Merritt sought a decree of divorce from Louis E. Merritt on the grounds of cruelty, and Eric Hanson asked to have the wedding ties dissolved with Louisa Hansen on the grounds of infidelity. The first two cases were taken under advisement and in the Hansen case the court granted the husband's petition.

In Judge Ensign's room, G. O. Black was granted a divorce from Mary Black, on the ground of desertion, Christina Olson was legally separated from Frank Olson on the ground of cruelty and Clara Anderson was divorced from William Anderson on the ground of desertion.

The judges expected to hear other divorces cases this afternoon.

Judge Dibell, the only bachelor judge on the bench of the district court is holding a term of court at Carlton.

BIG MASQUERADE

Friday evening, Nov. 9, at the Armory Hall. Prizes awarded. Admission 50c and 25c.

TWO MEN HAVE DISAPPEARED

Indiana Men, Who Were Hunting Near Grand Rapids, Missing.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Nov. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—On Friday night, Nov. 2, two men disappeared from this place—Ben F. Archer and Royal Cummings of Cromwell, Ind.

Archer is a man of about 30 years old, about six feet tall, wore a gray sweater, with a green stripe up and down, a dark suit, had a smooth face and sandy, wavy hair. When he walks he appears to be slightly lame.

Cummings is a man of about 20 or 21, of about five feet six or eight inches, has smooth face and dark hair, wore a dark suit and a black sweater.

They had come here for the express purpose of hunting. They had made one trip into the woods exploring, and had returned to the depot, where a friend works, telling the cashier that they would call in the evening. This was about 6 o'clock in the evening, and they have not been seen since.

DYNAMITE PLAYS HAVOC.

One Man Blown to Pieces and Eighteen Injured at Lunch.

Pittsburg, Nov. 8.—One foreigner was blown to pieces, two fatally injured and sixteen others seriously hurt in a dynamite explosion this afternoon, on Woodlawn avenue, Carrick borough, where a sewer is being constructed. They were seated about a fire, eating their lunch, when a dozen sticks of dynamite, placed near the fire to thaw, exploded.

CHICAGO COOPERS STRIKE.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—One thousand coopers went on strike today, asking for an increase in their pay of 3 cents per barrel.

STUDYING IN PARIS.

Los Angeles Times: Alexander Harrison, the famous painter of marine pieces has a studio in Brittany, and a young woman who met him there in the early summer said:

"Mr. Harrison's studio is in Concarneau, a little seaside town devoted to sardine fishing. His windows overlook the sea, and up and down pass continually, on the glittering water, the little sardine boats with their brown sails. Everywhere sardine nets hang drying—huge nets in weave as fine and frail as lace, in color a deep blue.

"I asked Mr. Harrison if he thought American art students did well to come abroad to study.

"He looked from his window at the picturesque scene, and he said that undoubtedly the atmosphere was more artistic in Europe than in America.

"He thought, though, that Paris, as a city to study and work in, was overrated. To illustrate his meaning, he said that a certain rich man's son, after three years in Paris, wrote home to his father in St. Joseph:

"'Dear father: I have made up my mind to set to work. Please let me know at your earliest convenience whether it was painting, architecture or music I came to Paris to study.'"

WAS A CORKER.

O. H. Kuhn, of the great banking firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., is a lover of fresh air, and when he crossed the Atlantic on La Provence during her recent record-breaking westward trip, he insisted on having all the public rooms well ventilated, says the Los Angeles Times.

To a Frenchman who complained that there was too many open windows and portholes, Mr. Kuhn said:

"You remind me, sir, of an old minister who used to preach, though he loved fresh air, in a small, crowded and ill-ventilated church.

"It happened that one Sunday, through some oversight or other, a window in the church was left partly open. The old minister actually began to preach in a fairly decent atmosphere. But in a minute or two, an aged deacon arose, clumped solemnly to the window, and closed it.

"The minister paused in his sermon to say bitterly:

"'Deacon Jones, if I were preaching in a bottle, I verily believe you'd put the cork in.'"

M. F. KELLIHER LAID AT REST

Superior Firemen Pay Last Respects to Their Former Chief.

The funeral of M. F. Kelliher of 405 East Sixth street was held this morning from the cathedral, under the auspices of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, of which Mr. Kelliher was an active member.

Representatives were also present from the A. O. U. W., of which Mr. Kelliher was also a member, and the Superior fire department was represented by Chief Olaf Johnson and four of his men, who brought over two carriages from the department to pay their last respects to the first chief of the West Superior fire fighters. They led the funeral procession to Calvary cemetery, where the body was interred.

Mr. Kelliher was at one time assistant chief of the St. Paul fire department, and was also connected for some time with the Duluth department as captain of one of the companies. He was acknowledged by all his associates to be one of the best fire fighters in this part of the country, and had a reputation that extended all over the Northwest, having won his spurs in many a hard battle with the flames in Superior, St. Paul and Duluth.

Mr. Kelliher leaves a wife and three children.

COLORADO ALL REPUBLICAN

Whole State Ticket Elected and Legislature Anti-Patterson.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 8.—Sufficient returns have been received to make certain the election of the entire Republican state ticket, headed by Chancellor Buchtel, and of 60 to 70 of the 100 members of the legislature, insuring the election of a Republican to succeed United States Senator Patterson. On revised returns pluralities in Denver appear to be about 10,000, and in the state 15,000 to 20,000.

Evidence in the second trial of Joseph Sheehy, the former pugilist and employment agent, who is charged with the malicious libel of Thomas McKeon, assistant city attorney, is being taken today before a jury in Judge Cutting's court room.

At the first trial of Sheehy, held about a month ago, the jury disagreed. Since that time Sheehy has also disagreed with his attorney, a Minneapolis lawyer, and has secured Judge Martin of Virginia to defend him.

The case will probably go to the jury this afternoon.

Rheumatism Cured in 24 Hours.

T. J. Blackmore, of Haller & Blackmore, Pittsburgh, Pa., says: "A short time since I procured a bottle of Mystic Cure. It got me out of the house in 24 hours. I took to my bed with Rheumatism nine months ago and the Mystic Cure is the only medicine that did me any good. I had five of the best physicians in the city, but I received very little relief from them. I know the Mystic Cure to be what it is represented and take pleasure in recommending it to other poor sufferers." Sold by all druggists.

A Delightful Concert.

French & Bassett gave another of their delightful concerts yesterday afternoon to an audience that taxed the capacity of the house. In fact, many were turned away unable to gain admittance.

The program was of unusual merit, the different numbers on the Victor Talking Machine being exceptionally good. The singing of Miss Hazel Harris made a decided hit, the young lady responding to several encores.

The violin playing of Charles Dexter Ostergren, with Knabe Angelus accompaniment was also generously applauded. The program:

"BAD MEN" QUAIL BEFORE SHERIFF

Single-Handed, Official in Montana Captures Two "Rustlers."

Livingston, Mont., Nov. 8.—Sheriff Robertson has begun a campaign against a band of alleged horse thieves who have been operating in the Upper Yellowstone, and so far has succeeded in capturing two alleged members of the gang and recovering ten horses said to have been stolen. The sheriff expects soon to recover fifteen horses that have been "cached" in the hills and also to capture three more members of the gang. The sheriff received word on Saturday that two of the men supposed to belong to the gang had been at Fridley, carousing and having a good time generally, and that they expected to start with a string of ten stolen horses for their cache near Radersburg, in Jefferson county. He had the men watched Sunday, and himself started down Trail creek, the route the men were expected to take, in order to head them off. While the men were at Fridley they heard that the sheriff was after them and vowed never to be taken alive. Monday, however, just as they reached the brow of a hill a few miles beyond Fridley, they were confronted by the sheriff, who, revolver in hand, called upon them to surrender. The men meekly gave up their guns and then were ordered to dismount. This also they did and the sheriff then compelled them to drive the band of horses back to the Maxey corral for safekeeping, after which he landed his prisoners in jail. It required considerable nerve on the part of the sheriff to go after the men single-handed as they have the reputation of being "bad" men and quick with their guns.

COUNTY DIVISON

Grand Rapids, Minn., Nov. 8.—County division seems to have carried the day in this part of the county by a decisive vote, the only precinct so far reported favoring division by 428 to 8. The returns are very slow to come, but this part of the county is believed to be practically solid for a separation and this town will in all probability continue as a county seat for this end of the territory. The proposition is to divide the county at township 62, range 26, and name the other county Koochiching.

JUDGE KILLS OLD FRIEND

Louisiana Congressman-Elect Commits Capital Crime.

Baton Rouge, La., Nov. 8.—Democratic Congressman-elect Judge George K. Favrot shot and instantly killed his life-long associate and former schoolmate, Dr. H. H. Aldrich, one of the best known citizens of Baton Rouge, yesterday evening while hundreds of persons were near, but none knew what happened between the two men.

Judge Favrot refused to talk beyond letting it be known that the matter was a private quarrel. He was arrested and put in a cell in the building where he had held court during the day.

Judge Favrot is 38 years old and is regarded as one of the most brilliant young men of Louisiana. In the recent Democratic primaries he defeated for the nomination S. M. Robertson, who had been a representative in congress for twenty years.

Dr. Aldrich's friends offer no explanation for his death and Judge Favrot after spending the night in jail said nothing to supplement his explanation made immediately after the shooting to the effect that he had "sufficient cause." It is reported that Dr. Aldrich had been warned that Judge Favrot would shoot on sight.

STABBED BY STRANGE MAN.

Californian Is Wounded Twice While In Billings Saloon.

Billings, Mont., Nov. 8.—John Hogan, who came here a short time ago from California, was stabbed twice in the back early Tuesday morning, and had not the blade of the knife glanced on a rib, one kidney would have been cut in two. As it is, the wounds are serious but not dangerous.

Hogan was in a saloon standing at the bar at the time, and his assailant ran into the place and made the attack on him and then ran out of the rear door. He was a stranger and has not been apprehended.

Before making the assault with the knife the stranger, who was somewhat intoxicated, tried to secure a revolver at a local hardware store. He was refused the weapon.

DID NOT LAST LONG.

Kendall, Wis., Nov. 8.—Fred Hoeff, so widely heralded a fortnight ago as the "man without a stomach," died at his home here Monday night. His stomach was removed at a La Crosse hospital because of a cancerous growth, and he was discharged as cured.

QUIET PROBE OF MUTUAL

Insurance Commissioner O'Brien Looks Up Company Methods.

Officers of Big Corporation Spending Their Money Freely.

St. Paul, Nov. 8.—Insurance Commissioner O'Brien has been investigating quietly through the attorney general's office, the practices of the administration of the Mutual Life of New York to secure the succes of the administration ticket under the present system of voting.

One of the assistant attorney generals was in New York recently and looked into the matter. He was unable to find instances where the company was directly spending money of the policyholders of the company for the election of the administration ticket, but he found that some of the officers were spending their money in attempting to secure their reelection and that all possible pressure was being brought to bear on the agents over the country to electioneer for the administration. His report was made to Commissioner O'Brien.

It is unlikely that any formal action will be taken until after the committee Chicagoof insurance commissioners on uniform legislation oshall meet in Chicago next Monday to formulate a final report on uniform legislation. The understanding is that the Mutual Life company will then submit some kind of a state ment and the matter will otherwise be discussed by the commissioners.

"There is no question," said Mr. O'Brien, but that the officers of the company have a perfect right to circulize the policyholders to a certain extent. An agent or manager for the purpose of explaining the administration ticket may solicit. The law compels them to designate thei rticket as the administration ticket and it is legitimate that they should be given a reasonable chance to set it before the policyholders. It would not be right to shut them off entirely. The law is violated, however, when the agents and managers use the funds of the company for electioneering purposes. It is rather delicate for the other commissioners to act for the reason that the New York officials have the matter under their direct authority."

The investigation was prompted by charges by the Fish committee that the company was using unfair means to defeat the opposition ticket; that the agents and managers were being coerced and dismissed when they refused to support the administration ticket; and that the money of the policyholders was actually beig used to elect the administration ticket.

HITCHCOCK TO RETIRE

James R. Garfield Will be Next Secretary of Interior.

Attorney General Moody is Appointed to Supreme Bench.

Washington, Nov. 8.—Secretary of the Interior Ethan Allen Hitchcock will retire from President Roosevelt's cabinet March 4 and James R. Garfield of Ohio, commissioner of corporations, will succeed him. Herbert Knox Smith, now assistant commissioner of corporations, will be appointed to Mr. Garfield's place. These changes and that of the retirement of Commissioner Richards of the general land office March 4 were announced in the following statement from the White House last night:

"The secretary of the interior, Mr. Hitchcock, has informed the president that he would be unable to stay after March 4. Mr. Hitchcock has for some time felt that the very exhausting work he has been engaged in for over eight years in the interior department was wearing on him so as to make it impossible for him much longer to remain.

"At the president's earnest request he consented to accept a reappointment on March 4, 1905, at the time of the president's inauguration. But he then stated that he could not say how long he could stay, and he feels now he must insist on being relieved after March 4. The president urged him to accept the ambassadorship to France, but Mr. Hitchcock feels that he is entitled to absolute rest, and was obliged to refuse the offer.

"The president went carefully over with Mr. Hitchcock the choice of a successor who could be depended upon to carry on with absolute fidelity the present policies of the department, and agreed with Mr. Hitchcock that the best man to carry on the exceedingly onerous, difficult and responsible work of the department was Mr. James R. Garfield, at present commissioner of corporations. Mr. Garfield has accordingly been notified that he will be appointed on March 4, when Mr. Hitchcock retires.

"Commissioner Richards has informed the president that in accordance with his intention, expressed to Secretary Hitchcock last May, he will resign, his resignation to be effective March 4. This will complete eight years of service in the land office, four years as assistant commissioner and four years as commissioner. His successor has not yet been determined upon. The assistant commissioner of corporations, Herbert Knox Smith, will succeed Mr. Garfield as commissioner of corporations."

The president also announced the appointment of Attorney General William Henry Moody of Massachusetts as justice of the supreme court of the United States, to succeed Justice Henry Billings Brown of Michigan, who retired some time ago. Mr. Moody has filled the office of attorney general since July 1, 1904. Previous to that time he served for more than two years as secretary of the navy. He also represented his state in the Fifty-fourth, Fifty-fifth, Fifty-sixth and Fifty-seventh congresses. It is generally expected that he will retire from the department of justice the latter part of December.

Walker Gets Judgment.

Judgment for $700, with interest on $500 of that amount from Feb. 14, 1906, and on the balance from April 4, 1906, has been ordered by Judge Ensign in favor of B. K. Walker, against James C. Doyle. The action was one in which Walker, who formed a partnership with Doyle under the name of the Northwestern Engineering company, demanded an accounting and dissolution of the partnership. Walker claimed that the partnership was not a satisfactory one, that Doyle misrepresented certain things to him when he put his money into the concern.

LABOR CHIEFS SEE PRESIDENT

Pearre Anti-Injunction Bill and Eight-Hour Law Discussed.

Washington, Nov. 8.—The Pearre anti-injunction bill was the subject of a conference yesterday between President Roosevelt and Samuel Gompers and other representatives of the American Federation of Labor. The bill has the indorsement of the federation, whose representatives are anxious that some recommendations along its lines shall be made by the president in his annual message.

The president promised to delegate four officials indentified with the government's legal work to meet a similar number of labor representatives with their attorney, to go over the whole matter and present their conclusions to him. The president, Mr. Gompers said, did not define his attitude or commit himself on the subject matter of the bill, but expressed himself as determined that absolute justice should be done.

Questions affecting the application of the eight-hour law to labor on the Panama canal and its general administration in government work in the United States, together with others affecting labor matters which the federation is anxious the president shall consider in his message to congress, also were talked over.

PIONEER PASTOR RESIGNS.

Rev. Wilbur Fisk Leaves Freeborn to Go to Porto Rico.

Mankato, Minn., Nov. 8.—Rev. Wilbur Fisk, one of the oldest Congregational clergymen in the state, has resigned the pastorate of the church at Freeborn, where he has remained continuously for more than thirty years, to go to Porto Rico to engage in missionary work under the auspices of the Seventh Day Adventists. His health has much to do with his making the change.

STUDENTS GO ON STRIKE.

Stabbing of President by Professor Results in General Revolt.

Jackson, La., Nov. 8.—The entire student body of about 500 of the Centennary college here, struck and went home yesterday. They left a signed statement that they were dissatisfied with the retention of Prof. Moncrieff, who two weeks ago stabbed the Rev. C. C. Miller, president of the college. The president is quite ill from his wounds. He and Prof. Moncrieff disputed over questions about serving food to the student mess, and Prof. Moncrieff claimed that he stabbed Mr. Miller in self defense.

LONDON VIEWS ON HEARST.

Big Papers Agree That New York Result Is Deeply Significant.

London, Nov. 8.—All the morning newspapers publish long editorial articles on the result of the election in New York state. With scarcely an exception they comment on the close vote as an indication of the popular discontent with enormous combinations of capital.

The Telegraph thinks the moral is that Americans, while "not quite ready to accept "Hearstism' in full" are "heartily sick of being robbed by trusts and corporations and are prepared to go a considerable way in that direction."

The News believes that, with 'wealth, culture and intelligence" against Mr. Hearst, his strength "is one particular portion of the world movement of unrest."

The Mail considers the result as an evidence of "growing exasperation against trusts and their tactics," while the Chronicle says "Americans, if they are wise, will read the true moral not in the majority against Mr. Hearst, but in the huge minority for him."

Several newspapers comment on the intervention of President Roosevelt through Secretary Root. The Standard considers the result a serious rebuff for the president, while the Mail says it is an "unquestionable victory for him." The Telegraph says the president "will find little cause for self congratulation," while the Post is of the opinion that he turned the scale at the critical moment in what it calls the "cause of decency."

The interview with Mr. Richard Croker also is credited with affecting the result, and the Chronicle voices the opinion of a majority of the press when it says: "Mr. Murphy has had the best of the deal."

CONTRACT FOR SUPERSTRUCTURE

George Lounsberry Will Erect Y. M. C. A. Building for $120,000.

The contract for the superstructure of the new Y. M. C. A., building was let at the meeting of the board of directors held last evening.

George H. Lounsberry was the lowest bidder, and his bid of $120,000 was accepted. The other bids ranged as high as $146,000.

The foundation has already been completed, and the contract let last evening calls for the superstructure complete, with the exception of the heating and plumbing.

WEATHER CHIEF REBUKED.

President Orders Reprimand for Transfer of Non-Union Printer.

Washington, Nov. 8. — President Roosevelt directed that a reprimand be administered to Willis L. Moore, chief of the weather bureau, because he transferred to New Orleans a printer, named Cooper, in his office, who had been expelled from the typographical union for not paying his strike assessments.

Moore is alleged to have urged Cooper on two occasions to pay his assessments, but the latter refused. The transfer to New Orleans followed. Cooper claimed that this was intended as punishment for not complying with the demands of the typographical union.

The matter was referred to the civil service commission which, without reporting on the question of whether or not Cooper's transfer was intended as a punishment, held that Moore's action in urging the payment of the assessment was improper and expressed the opinion that Cooper's transfer would not be for the good of the service as it would give the impression that it was intended as a punishment.

Cooper will he reinstated in his former position in the weather bureau here and the reprimand to Mr. Moore will at the direction of the president be administered by the secretary of agriculture.

PORTO RICO'S SURPRISES.

Republicans Beaten at All Points and Labor Vote is Small.

San Juan, P. R., Nov. 8.—The Unionist party scored an overwhelming victory at the polls yesterday, carrying all the seven districts of the island. The Republicans are left without representation in the next house of delegates. The Unionists won also in a majority of the municipalities, the Republicans barely saving San Juan.

The Arcibo district, where the Federation of Labor made a concentrated effort with the assistance of the American Federation of Labor, made a surprisingly insignificant showing, the vote cast amounting to practically nothing.

"BARLEY" KING IS DEAD.

H. J. O'Neill, Former Great Minnesota Grain Man, at Rest.

Winona, Minn., Nov. 8.—H. J. O'Neill, aged 59, known as the "barley king" of the world from 1890 to 1898, during which time he was at the head of the O'Neill Grain company, which had offices in the Chicago board of trade building at Chicago and also in this city is dead at Cedar Rapids, Iowa. The concern during these years controlled the barley market; it is said, and had under its direction the largest string of grain elevators in the world.

The life of the O'Neill company was begun in the early 70's and at one time Mr. O'Neill was reputed to be worth several million dollars. Family troubles cost him almost his entire fortune. At the time of his death he was in the employ of a brewing company of St. Louis as barley buyer, with headquarters at Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Death was due to heart disease.

BRIDE INTERPRETS

At Wedding and Says "I Do" for the Groom.

Kenosha, Wis., Nov. 8.—There was an unusual marriage in this city when Miss Pearl Johnson of Chicago and Oscar Nero of the same place were married by Judge R. H. Slosson. Miss Johnson gave her age as 42, and said the groom was 24 years old.

The bridegroom was handicapped by the fact that he could not speak a word of the English language, but the bride came to the front and insisted on acting as his interpreter. He was sworn, and while the judge read the marriage service the woman interpreted all of it, or at least such portions as she considered binding on the bridegroom, and made the responses for him. It is not of record that she interpreted to him the command to the wife to "obey" her husband.

Nero was evidently satisfied, however, for when it came time to put the ring on the finger of the bride, he did so in a manner to indicate that he was cognizant of its significance.

Madam, if you are not satisfied with your baking powder, you are politely invited to try Hunt's Perfect.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

Washington Lawyer Held in London for German Crime.

London, Nov. 8.—Karl Stau, alias Hau, described as a lawyer of Washington, was arraigned at the Bow street police court today for extradition to Germany on the charge of murdering his mother-in-law at Baden-Baden. He declared that the charge was due to a misunderstanding and asked the magistrate to send him to Germany immediately for trial. He was remanded pending the arrival of evidence. Stau's wife and child were with hi mat the Hotel Cecil here when he was arrested. The police found a loaded revolver and $1,400 on him.

GUARD POLAR RECORDS MADE BY AMUNDSEN.

New York, Nov. 8.—On the Scandinavian line steamship Helig Olva, which sailed today for Christiana are two zinc boxes guarded by four men. They contain the records of Capt. Raold Amundsen, who sailed from Christiania three years ago and located the magnetic pole. From a study of the records, which will take fully three years, he said that the exact location of the magnetic pole would be determined.

STAGG HAS NEW PLAYS

Seventy Distinct Combinations Are Prepared for Gophers.

Walter Steffen Invents Novel Scheme to Practice Dodging.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—Seventy distinct plays, many of them brand new, and the whole forming a repertoire for the Maroon offense, declared by Capt. Walter Eckersall to be the most dazzling and intricate he has met in his four years of gridiron starring, will compose Chicago's attack against Minnesota, next Saturday. Coach Stagg took an inventory, last night after practice at Marshall field, and counted up just three score and ten formations which his men will have in shape for the Gophers.

According to those who have been admitted to the sanctum sanctorum behind the big east bleachers of the Midway field, Coach Williams' team will be shown the choicest assortment of tricks that ever came from Stagg's storehouse of ideas. The coach has surpassed himself, declare the "insiders," who are hoping that the Chicago eleven will make use of the novelties Saturday. It is the opinion of Chicago supporters generally that the Maroons will have to bring out the majority of their seventy plays.

Coach Stagg has begun his final week of preparation for the Minnesota team. A large number of the new plays were used by the regulars in scrimmage against the freshmen, and they will be tried out every day for the rest of the week. The defense—Chicago's weakest spot—got something more than half Stagg's attention, and it will be the Midway director's biggest task for the next four days to bolster up his line. "If the line will hold we will win," is Stagg's prediction.

Only a few of the old Maroon players besides the squad know what the new plays are. But it is admitted by Stagg that they are more complicated than Chicago plays have ever been before. Last year, Stagg declared last night, the Maroons were practiced in 150 plays, but none of them were so intricate as the simpler of the 1906 wonders. "New" football is 100 per cent more of a tax on the mental capacity of the players than the old game, according to the Maroons' discovery.

It will be a tricky attack that meets the Gophers. Chicago's traditionally slippery game will be reenforced by tricks made especially for Eckersall and Steffen, and by innumerable combinations of the forward pass and other innovations in the new game.

There was a "creepy" minute at Marshall field during the practice. Eckersall was kicked in the small of the back and laid out for a short time. The kick took his breath completely away, and Stagg was not able to discover immediately whether or not the accident was serious. "Eckie" recovered after a few minutes and went on with the practice. The injury is not expected to prove at all serious.

The practice was characterized by Stagg as "only fair." The freshmen, using Minnesota plays picked up at Minneapolis Saturday, were effective against the varsity in the first part of the scrimmage, and scored a touchdown on straight football. "Jimmy" Meighs, right half back, took the ball over. Iddings and Finger scored for the regulars. The defense of the varsity was a big disappointment to Stagg.

Several of the "snubs" got into the lineup. Mefford was at right end instead of Walker, McCarthy at right guard and Kelley at right tackle instead of guard. Hewitt was played at right end, with Russell and Noll at left tackle and left guard and Anderson at center. Jones was tried for awhile at left guard and Harris at center. Parry, Walker, and Steffen were not used in the scrimmage. Templeton played at right half back, with the backfield otherwise intact.

Stagg has not decided definitely upon his lineup. Parry may play end, and if he does, there will be a shift, with a chance for Jones or McCarthy to make a line position.

Walter Steffen has a device to develop his dodging that has made a big hit. He plants a number of posts in the ground and practices running through the bunch of "wooden men" to get speed in judgement and swings. He used up most of his vacation period yesterday in working with this invention.

"The defense is still bothering me," declared Stagg. "That is our weakest spot. I am fairly well satisfied with our offense now. Of the seventy plays we have practiced, I think the men have at least two-thirds of them in first-class shape. It is the line now that has got to be braced up."

IS IN CLASS BY HIMSELF

Gans Says Jeffries Has No Rival for Heavyweight Title.

Kaufman, Victor Over Berger, is Not in the Running.

Cincinnati, Nov. 8.—Joe Gans, the lightweight champion, is a very close observer of all things pertaining to the boxing game. Gans hasn't got the business head of Jack O'Brien and other great fighters, but he keeps close tab on the work accomplished by all the fighters, and can put up an interesting argument in substantiating his views. Joe is a crank on heavyweights. He pays more attention to the big fellows than he does to any other class of boxers. He thinks Jim Jeffries is the wonder of the world and can whip any two men in the ring today without drawing a long breath. Before taking his departure for Cleveland, Gans related some interesting facts about the fighters of the past and present.

"The big fellows are the ones that interest me," said Joe. "I am a colored boy, but my color does not carry me away when it comes down to picking out the best fighters. I have heard hundreds of people express the opinion that Jack Johnson can whip Jim Jeffries. I don't think so. Does any man for a second think that Jack Johnson could have whipped Jim Corbett in his prime? No, never. Jeffries whipped Corbett on two different occasions and both defeats were decisive ones. Johnson is a hard man to beat, but he does not class with Jeff. Marvin Hart for a time made things hum in the heavyweight class, but in his present day form it is my opinion that he will never become a champion. Billy Delaney has Al Kauffmann in tow, and may boost him along with the poor material in the field at present, but if Jeff was ever to stick his head outdoors again such men as Kaufmann wouldn't have a look-in with him. The way Sam Berger was beaten by Kaufmann showed that he did not possess championship timber, and it seems that we haven't got one good man that could even make Jaff hustle for a few rounds, judging by the way the big fellows have shown up in their recent fights.

"Tommy Burns—there's another one that seeks and even claims championship honors. Well, wouldn't you like to go to Frisco from New York to see Jeffries fight Burns? Just think what folly that would be. Mike Schreck is one of the most popular fighters I ever heard of, but he is not in the same class with Jeffries. Let the sports stop to consider what Schreck has done and what Jeffries would do to Schreck should they ever meet, and I am sure they will agree with me in saying that he does not belong to Jeffries' class."

"Who do you think stands next to Jeff in the heavyweight class today?" Gans was asked.

"Jeff stands so far ahead of all the others that I could not tell the truth and say that any of the others stand near to him, but in my opinion Jack O'Brien is the next best all-round man that we have in sight today. O'Brien's weight is against him, and he could never hope to whip a man like Jeffries, but Jack is a good, heady fighter, and I think knows more about the game than any other man in the business today. Still, you would not bet a penny on O'Brien whipping Jeff, and that again proves my argument that there is no man good enough in this wide world to be called the equal of the great Jeffries, the most wonderful fighter that ever lived and the greatest I ever expect to see during my time on earth."

"Do you think that Jack Johnson could have whipped Peter Jackson in his prime?" Gans was asked.

"No, I do not. Johnson was unheard of when Jackson was at his best, but I am sure that he would have had no chance with him, because Jackson was a punisher and Johnson is not. The heavyweight championship is not in doubt. There is still a real champion because no one has ever beaten him, and that man is James J. Jeffries."

SHOWING OF TWO TEAMS

Against Army Gives Line on Harvard-Yale Game.

Harvard Claimed to be Stronger by New York Critic.

New York, Nov. 8.—Now that both Harvard and Yale have met the cadets in battle within a period of eight days, everybody is privileged to make comparisons, render opinions on the merits of new and old plays and in general to talk Harvard and Yale football.

Football was scheduled to go on trial during the Harvard and Yale games at West Point. Harvard's modified old attacks did not have a trial; Yale was not herself. Harvard stuck to her program and gave every spectator a basis for an opinion on the merits of Harvard's offensive methods, but Yale, instead of testing her radical football, went to pieces. Harvard played well at West Point, but the ten-yard rule kept the score down. Yale fell below just expectations. So the prospect of learning several things about the comparative values of Harvard and Yale offensive tactics, as they had seemed to shape themselves prior to these two Saturdays, became at best an exasperating prospect.

In fact, Yale during the first half was a conspicuous and altogether pitiable study in confusion, and Tad Jones, the pride of all New Haven devotees of the new wrinkles, was a little prep school quarterback in the throes of mental and physical helplessness. And so when Yale did try radical football—they had an occasional chance—they could not execute it. One great obstacle in their way was, of course, the speed and vigor of the cadets' defense; but another very striking obstacle was Yale's own temporary inefficiency. Tad Jones at West Point was only the outer semblance of Tad Jones trying to play football. His demoralization helped the vigorous West Point brand of football to throw the other members of the Yale team into confusion—and away flew the prospects of getting a satisfactory line on the respective merits of Harvard and Yale of the season of 1906. West Point was a very strong eleven both in old and in radical football, and, more than that, she was stronger by 30 or 40 per cent than she was one week earlier.

Yale, although outplayed decisively, conclusively, during the first half, was able to return to the field in the second half and win, not through superior physicial condition, but through superior football ability. In this result the punting of Paul Veeder played a most important part. Another individual whose brilliant work enabled Yale to stem the tide of defeat, was Knox. His skill in running with interferences, in catching and running in punts especially, helped Yale not only to regain her mental equilibrium, but to make some headway against the cadets.

By old standards, indeed, Harvard is apparently a much better eleven, offensively and defensively, and its capable individuals are more numerous. Its confidence is greater. It is hard to accept the theory that Harvard mlehs go to pieces as Yale broke up during the first half Saturday afternoon. Harvard's mental machine seems to be more firmly constructed for emergencies, such as, for instance, setbacks, including touchdowns by the opponents. Certainly at West Point, Harvard, despite its glaring ineffectiveness on the ends, played with all the confidence in the world. But, of course, failure to cover punts is by no means as heartbreaking as fumbles in your own territory. So far as native power goes Harvard is stronger than Yale.

Yet if ever there were a style of football in which startling events can occur, it is in this very brand which the reformers have given a suffering country.

A CORNER IN SPORTS

Chicago, Nov. 8.—(Special to A Corner in Sports.)—Coach Stagg this afternoon tried all new plays with Eckersall as the central figure. At a given signall Eckersall ran through Dearborn street at the crowded noon hour, from the canal to the Polk street depot, and scored a touchdown under the entrance to the station. He was given magnificent interference by one of the new electric cars.

Minneapolis, Nov. 8.—(Special to A Corner in Sports.)—Your detective this morning discovered a man who does not expect to go to Chicago next Saturday. He is an inmate of the county poor farm, and is stone blind in both eyes. When asked if the reports were true, he broke down and admitted the fact. "It is so," he said, weeping. "Alas I could not see if I did go, and I have no money. If the Gophers only break Eckersall's neck, I will die in peace. Now let me rest a while."

The Gopher line yesterday was given the most severe test of the season. Dr. Williams formed them in front of a Minneapolis & St. Louis freight train at the foot of a down grade. The engineer leaped in time and both he and the fireman were saved. The road will be cleared before night, according to the statement of the chief of the wrecking crew.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—(Special to A Corner in Sports.)—In chapel this morning it was announced to the university students that John D. Rockefeller had consented to present the university with a gold model of Walter Eckersall's big toe, to be placed on a pedestal at the entrance of the main building.

CHICAGO AFTER FIELDER LUMLEY

Cub Manager Offers Three Players for Brooklyn Star.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—According to a well-informed individual on the inside of Chicago baseball affairs, President Murphy of the Cubs recently offered Outfielders Hofman, Slagle and Pitcher Reulbach to the Brooklyn club for Lumley, the heavy-hitting right fielder of the Superbas. It is said the Cub president was so anxious to get Lumley that he offered the Brooklyns $7,000 in cash as an extra inducement to let the big slugger come to Chicago. But the proposition was turned down by the Brooklyn people.

The offer to trade three such well-known players at Hofman, Slagle and Reulbach for one outfielder will come as a surprise to local fans. Slagle played winning ball for the Cubs until late in the season, when he was injured. Hofman was a star while filling Slagle's shoes, especially in the world's series, and Reulbach won a big percentage of his games. However, the Cub management probably figured, as it did in the deal for Sheckard, when four good men were traded for one wonder—the one man was all that was needed to round out the team.

If there was any weak spot on the Cub team last year it was center field. While Slagle put up a strong game in fielding, he didn't hit as well as the rest of the regulars—Tinker being the sole exception. The little fellow fielded in brilliant style, and ran the bases cleverly, but he didn't slam out the two-baggers and homers the way Lumley did. Lumley hit more home runs than any man in the league, except his teammate, Jordan, and he stole thirty-five bases, a fine showing for a heavy player like him.

Reulbach, while a good pitcher, perhaps would not be seriously missed from the Cub staff, as six other good ones would be left. If Hofman is slated for Slagle's job in center, then it would be a case of trading only one regular for Lumley, and most managers would prefer Lumley to Hofman.

Why the Brooklyn team hesitated to make the deal is a mystery. The three men offered them, two of whom would be in the game all the time, and the other pitching twice a week, could surely do more for the Brooklyn team than one star like Lumley.

Nearly Kills Jockey.

New York, Nov. 8.—Jockey J. Hennessey had a narrow escape from death when his mount, Dr. Dix, fell, in the fifth race at Aqueduct, yesterday. Hennessey was knocked senseless, and was removed to the emergency hospital in the paddock, where he was revived. Dr. Dix broke his neck.

MAKES A LARGE DEAL IN LUMBER

Chicago Company Buys 1907 Output of Tower Sawmill.

The Edward Hines Lumber company has bought the entire season's cut of the Tower Lumber company for 1907. About 45,000,000 feet of lumber will be manufactured and the consideration involved is in the neighborhood of $1,000,000.

The Hines company had previously bought all the Norway lumber that the Tower Lumber company will saw this year. The lumber is being sawed at Tower and will be shipped by rail to Two Harbors, where it will be shipped down the lakes to Chicago.

It is reported that the Brooks-Scanlon company has sold a few million feet of lumber for 1907 sawing and delivery. A number of other negotiations have been had looking toward a purchase of lumber ahead of the saws, but the manufacturers are not much inclined to sell in advance.

A Good Liniment.

When you need a good, reliable liniment, try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It has no superior for sprains and swellings. A piece of flannel slightly dampened with Pain Balm is superior to a plaster for lame back or pains in the side or chest. It also relieves rheumatic pains and makes sleep and rest possible. For sale by all druggists.

KIDNAPED BY GYPSIES.

Chicago Man Finds Stolen Daughter After Year's Search.

Salem, Mass, Nov. 8.—John Adam of Chicago, applied in the district court yesterday for a warrant for the arrest of several gypsies in winter quarters at South Salem on the charge of having abducted his daughter, Rosie, 13 years old, from Chicago, a year ago. He and his wife joined a gypsy tribe which landed in Somerville recently, and a week ago he found his child with another band at South Salem. When he tried to take her away he alleges that the gypsies threatened to kill both him and his daughter. The police being informed of the case took the child from the camp pending an investigation.

BIG SUM TO CHARITIES.

Brooklyn Woman Leaves $400,000 to Various Institutions.

New York, Nov. 8.—Half a dozen charitable institutions in Brooklyn will benefit to the extent of nearly $400,000, by the will of Mrs. Caroline Herriman Polhemus, who died recently. The Polhemus memorial clinic, established by Mrs. Polhemus in memory of her husband will receive $250,000 outright, and an additional $50,000 for maintenance. The Brooklyn Children's Aid Society and the Herriman Home for Children get $25,000 and $10,000 additional for the maintenance of the seaside home for children at Coney Island. Ten thousand dollars is given to six other institutions.

HARRIMAN'S VAST ROAD

Illinois Central Completes Great Coast to Coast System.

Fish Makes Brave But Vain Fight Against Foes.

New York, Nov. 8.—By the election yesterday of J. T. Harahan as president of the Illinois Central Railroad company to succeed Stuyvesant Fish, E. H. Harriman has at last realized his long-cherished ambition to control a railroad system from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast, and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf. In this great plan the Illinois Central was the one link missing to complete a line of track from New York to San Francisco and Portland, Or., from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexica, and from the Gulf to the Pacific again, the Eastern terminals of the Harriman system having been at Kansas City, Omaha and New Orleans.

The first important step in the direction of securing the Atlantic seaboard outlet was taken several weeks ago when one of the railroads under his control secured the Baltimore & Ohio by the purchase of a block of 40,000 shares of that company, which was sold by the Pennsylvania Railroad company. This gave him a route from Chicago and St. Louis to Baltimore and New York.

To complete the ambitious proposition for a continuous line from ocean to ocean it was necessary only to connect the Western terminals of the Baltimore & Ohio with the Eastern terminals of the Southern Pacific and Union Pacific. For this purpose the Illinois Central serves amply. Its line from Omaha ties together the Union Pacific and Baltimore & Ohio, while the Illinois Central branch from Chicago to New Orleans gives the Southern Pacific entrance to Chicago and the seaboard.

Taken together, this system, if united, puts under one control more than 23,000 miles of track capitalized at more than $1,700,000,000.

The Illinois Central directors who voted for Mr. Harahan and against Mr. Fish were John Jacob Astor, John W. Auchincloss, Robert W. Goelet, James T. Harahan, E. H. Harriman, Walter Luttgen, Charles A. Peabody and Cornelius Vanderbilt. Stuyvesant Fish, Charles M. Bach, J. De Witt Cutting and Charles S. Deneen, governor of Illinois, who is ex officio a member of the board, refused to vote.

Shortly before the meeting the eight directors who voted for Mr. Harahan sent a letter to President Fish, giving their reasons for refusing to vote for his re-election. This declared that in June last, without consulting the other members of the board, Mr. Fish issued a circular to the stockholders requesting proxies for the annual election. At the next meeting of the board, it was declared, Mr. Peabody offered a resolution that a committee of directors, including Messrs. Astor, Auchincloss, Goelet, Luttgen and Vanderbilt, be appointed to request proxies from stockholders for the annual meeting. It was declared that Mr. Fish defeated such action by leaving the room and breaking a quorum. The board then adjourned, and during the following week, it was declared, Messrs. Fish, Peabody and Harriman signed an agreement that the successor to W. Morton Grinnell be selected by a majority of the directors; that Mr. Peabody's resolution be withdrawn and not revived, and that Mr. Harriman be asked that the Harriman-Kuhn-Loeb proxies be given to Mr. Fish. This agreement is said to have been made to secure peace, and provided that Mr. Fish was to vote all proxies.

President Fish opened the meeting by expressing the opinion that the general counsel of the company should be called to settle three points: First, whether it was legal to hold an election of general officers outside of Illinois; second, whether the charter did not provide that the committee on law and finance and on railroad should be elected at a regular meeting and not a special meeting; and third, if the constitution of the State of Illinois granting the company its charter does not provide that: "No railroad corporation shall consolidate its stock, property, or franchises with any other railroad corporation owning a parallel or competing line; and in no case shall any consolidation take place, except upon public notice given of at least sixty days, to all stockholders in such manner as may be provided by law."

Governor Deneen declined to vote on the questions raised until the attorney general of Illinois had given an opinion. No action was taken on the points raised by Mr. Fish. The election then took place.

After the meeting Mr. Harriman said: "This isn't my fight. It is a fight of the board of directors and Mr. Fish. I acceded to the July agreement regarding the election of directors at the annual meeting, only in deference to the wishes of the board. The July agreement was made primarily to quiet the public clamor which was being raised in the press and to silence the various remarks which were being made in the public prints, as an outcome of the contention which had arisen in the board of directors. Personally, I had not a word to say at today's meeting of the board. The board took no action whatever in regard to the appointment of any committee to take charge of the management of the road."

FILE ANSWERS IN TAX CASES

Corporations Claim Assessment Figures Are Too High.

Several answers of defendants in the proceedings started by the state to enforce the collection of the 1905 personal taxes were filed in the district court yesterday afternoon. The court intends to take up the tax cases after the jury trials.

The Pabst Brewing company which has been cited to appear for the nonpayment of some personal property taxes at Chisholm denies that it has any personal property in that village, except an old wagon, an old sleigh, and a small ice shed. The company claims the total assessable value of the property is not over $50.

The Boston & Duluth Farm Land company, claims that the $22.06 which it is taxed for logs is unfair for the reason that it does not own them. It is alleged that the logs were cut on the company's lands near Burnett by a person who had been given permission to do so.

The Duluth Wholesale Supply company denies that it owned any personal property in St. Louis county when the assessment was made against it last May.

The Northern Land & Lumber company claims that its assessment of $4,000 for manufactured articles in St. Louis county is arbitrary and unjust. The company alleges that after Dec. 20, 1904, it had no property in the county, that the amount assessed against it should have been assessed against another concern that owns the property taxed. The Northern Land & Lumber company says that the county board of equalization recommended an abatement of the tax to the state board, but that the latter refused to do so. The amount involved is $131.60.

The largest abatement asked was noted in the answer of the Scott-Graff Lumber company, filed yesterday morning. The company claims that the assessor's valuation of $54,060 was correct but that the county board of equalization arbitrarily raised the figures to $79,260.

EXODUS HAS COMMENCED

Hunters Are Leaving for the Northern Minnesota Woods.

Number is Expected to Exceed That of Last Year.

The exodus of the hunters to the woods of Northern Minnesota began yesterday.

With elections over, and the opening of the game season due on Saturday, there was nothing to keep the hunters from leaving, and already half a score of Duluth parties are on their way to their respective grounds.

The hunting licenses have been issued in increased numbers this year. They have been in great demand during the last few days and up to last night no less than 900 had been issued from the Duluth office alone. This number does not include all those that have been issued by the deputies on the range, and when all reports are in, the total is expected to greatly exceed last year's mark of 1,200. It wouldn't be surprising if there were 2,000 hunters in the woods of St. Louis county hunting deer by next Saturday.

Several parties left yesterday on the American for points along the north shore, and the range trains today carried many more.

Most of the hunters plan on getting into the woods for the opening of the season, and the majority of them leave a few days in advance in order to get their camps ready and all preparations made to begin shooting on the morning of Nov. 10.

"The getting out of doors is the greatest part of the journey," so put on you hat and go out and answer that Herald want ad. which aroused your interest today.

"SINCERITY" SUITS

The kind you should buy if you want a medium priced ($10 to $27) Suit that is properly finished with honest hand needle work and not doped into temporary shape by Old Dr. Goose, the Hot Flat Iron.

Many merchant tailors and the majority of makers of ready-to-wear clothes rely on Old Dr. Goose to hide their mistakes—for a time. The first damp day reveals them to the horror of the wearer, who finds that the beautiful shape of his coat was as temporary as a woman's curls, produced with a hot curling iron.

SOLD FOR OCEAN TRADE.

Cartagena Will Carry Coal Between Atlantic Coast Ports.

The wooden steamer, Cartagena of the Davidson fleet, which left the Duluth port yesterday with a load of grain for Buffalo, has been sold by her owner, Capt. James Davidson of Bay City to Chesbrough Bros., also of that city, and will be taken to the Atlantic coast. Her new owners will place her in the coal carrying trade and she will run between Norfolk, Philadelphia and Boston. This company already have three vessels running between these ports.

The Cartagena will be renamed the Keewadin. The other three vessels were taken from the lakes to the coast some years ago by Chesbrough Bros., they being the Kennebec, Madagasca and Keewenaw. The Cartagena was built by Capt. Davidson in 1901. She is of 1,532 gross tons, 241 feet long and 40 beam.

Steamers Have Mishaps.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Nov. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The whaleback steamer Colgate threw off its wheel in Mud lake, and will have to be towed to its destination. It was bound down with iron ore.

The steamer Dave Whitney returned this morning with with boilers leaking badly. It will be delayed four hours making temporary repairs.

After lightering 500 tons of iron ore, the wooden steamer Iroquois was released with no apparent injury, and left for its destination this afternoon.

Chicago Vessel Rates.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—The Britannic was placed yesterday for wheat to Detroit at 2 cents. Buffalo rates were steady at 1¾ cents on corn, with little doing.

Cargoes at Cleveland.

Cleveland, Nov. 8.—Offerings of ore tonnage are more liberal than for several weeks, but the demand is good and boats are having no trouble in getting cargoes. The grain trade is quiet and 2½ cents is being offered at Duluth for next week's loading. Coal is slow in coming forward and big cargoes are scarce. Most of the shippers are behind on their contracts.

W. H. Gilbert Released.

Cleveland, Nov. 8.—The steamer W. H. Gilbert was released from Avon point yesterday morning, after jettisoning about 800 tons of its coal cargo. The vessel was not damaged and continued its trip last night.

Steamer in Bad Shape.

Amherstburg, Ont., Nov. 8.—The steamer George Peavey, which is on Ballard's reef is reported in bad shape with a large hole in the forward compartment and other damage. No attempt has been made to remove the cargo as the only lighter avail is working on the steamer Fulton.

GOVERNOR WILL GO TO EVELETH

To Make Dedicatory Speech at Opening of Monitor Hall.

Eveleth, Minn., Nov. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The members of the committee in charge of the dedication of Monitor hall, which will occur some time in December, are congratulating themselves on having secured Governor Johnson to make the dedicatory speech.

The governor's consent was secured last Thursday in Duluth, the result of an interview with Mayor Charles Jessmore and Swan M. Anderson, president of the grand lodge S. H. and E. F. of A., which society owns the building.

When completed, Monitor hall, which is located on Grant avenue at the foot of Pierce street, will be the largest and best brick building in the city. It was hoped to dedicate the building Nov. but delay in its completion has necessiated the dedication being postponed until some time in December.

Great preparations are being made for that occasion, and besides Governor Johnson, the Skandinavian Glee club of Ironwood, Mich., and all the grand lodge officers will take part in the dedicatory exercises.

FARMER SHOT DOWN IN ROAD

Michigan Man's Corpse Found With Hole in Head.

Owosso, Mich., Nov. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—D. A. Edgar, a farmer, living fourteen miles north of here was found dead in the road near his home today with a bullet hole in his head. No weapon was found near the body and it is believed that he was murdered. He left home early yesterday evening to call on a neighbor. He is not known to have had any enemies.

N. F. HUGO TO OPEN HEADQUARTERS

Will Conduct His Campaign for Speakership From St. Paul.

N. F. Hugo, re-elected representative from the Fifty-first district, feels so sanguine over his chances for becoming speaker of the house that he will open headquarters at the Merchants hotel in St. Paul next week. These headquarters will be open every Wednesday and Thursday until the speakership contest is decided.

"I have been confident all along that I would win out in my campaign for the speakership," said Mr. Hugo today, "but since the election I feel even more sure than I did before over what the results will be. There is no longer any possible doubt but that I will be chosen speaker. The election lost me only three men who had pledged themselves to my support, and I now have plenty of assurances to guarantee me the position."

COURT DENIES INJUNCTION

Tea Company Cannot Prevent Discharged Driver Working for Competitor.

Judge Dibell has made an order denying the temporary injunction asked by the Sundby Tea company against Gust Johnson, a former driver-salesman, to restrain him from continuing in the employ of a competitor.

The tea company asked the injunction on the grounds that Johnson had violated his alleged contract which was that he should not enter the employ of a competitor for a period of six months after terminating his contract with the Sundby Tea company. It was charged that he left the employ of the Sundby Tea company some weeks ago, and that immediately thereafter he entered the employ of a competing tea and coffee concern.

The court holds, in his memorandum that the evidence tends to show Johnson was discharged by the tea company, and that such discharge was not rightful. The court says it is a general principle of law that an innocent party to a partially executed contract may, on its breach by the other party, renounce liability under it and refuse to perform the things that he may have stipulated.

ROOSEVELT SAYS HE IS "TRUMP"

President Pays Pithy Compliment to Herbert Parsons.

New York, Nov. 8.—Henry Clews, today gave out the following letter which he received from President Roosevelt in reply to a telegram of congratulation on the outcome of the election:

"Dear Mr. Clews: I have received your telegram. No man is to be more congratulated than your son-in-law, (Herbert Parsons, chairman of the Republican county committee). What a trump he is, and what a mixture of devotion to a high ideal and resolute, practical, commonsense efficiency he has displayed! Sincerely yours,

THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

DETROIT ROAD LOSES IN FIGHT

Mayor Codd Defeated and Proposed Franchise Buried.

Detroit, Nov. 8.—With but one precinct to hear from today, William B. Thompson, Democrat, has defeated Mayor George P. Codd for reelection by the majority of 3,341. The vote against the proposed new franchise for the Detroit United Railway, advocated by Mayor Codd and generally accredited with causing his defeat, was 28,823, with only 13,316 votes in favor of it.

Under the proposed franchise, the rates of fare would have been ten tickets for 25 cents, from 5 to 8 o'clock a. m., and 4:30 to 6:30 p. m., and six tickets for 25 cents the other hours.

To give the citizens an opportunity to test the proposed rates of faro, the company several weeks ago put them into effect on all lines. At midnight last night they were withdrawn.

M'CLEARY CONGRATULATES

Hammond and Says That He Fought for a Principle.

Mankato, Minn., Nov. 8.—Congressman McCleary last night conceded his defeat by W. S. Hammond of St. James, the Democratic candidate for congress in the Second district, and sent him the following message:

"Mankato, Minn., Nov. 7.—Hon. Winfield Scott Hammond, St. James, Minn.: The returns indicate your election to congress. As a personal friend, accept my congratulations.

"JAMES THOMPSON McCLEARY."

Congressman McCleary also gave out the following statement: "I made a fight for a principle that I believe to be right, a principle that in my judgment is of the utmost importance to the well-being of the people of the United States, and of especial importance to the people of this district."

DENIES NEW TRIAL.

W. G. Joerns is Refused New Trial In Gaspar Case.

The heirs of the estate of Charles Gasper, deceased, have been denied a new trial of the issues tried before a jury in the appeal from the probate court proceedings concerning the allowance of certain bills by Charles Peterson, who for a time acted as special administrator of the estate. The motion for the new trial was made before Judge Cant last Saturday, W. G. Joerns appearing for the heirs, and Reynolds & McClearn for Mr. Peterson. In his affidavit supporting the motion for a new trial Mr. Joerns made charges that Mr. Peterson while acting as special administrator had witheld certain personal property belonging to the Gasper estate.

JAPS PRESSING ON MANCHURIA

Russians See Menace to Vladivostok in Future Conflict.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 8.—According to advices received here from Vladivostok there is constant friction between the Russians and Japanese in Manchuria. The Japanese, according to the newspapers of Vladivostok, are continually pressing northward in Manchuria with the apparent intention of establishing themselves in the Hinterland of Vladivostok, where their presence would constitute a serious menace to the fortress in the event of the possibility of the resumption of hostilities. The charge that the Japanese are fortifying the island of Saghalin, in violation of the terms of the treaty at Portsmouth, is reiterated by the Ussur Zhisn.

CURZON MAY BE AMBASSADOR

Former Viceroy of India Talked of for Washington.

Washington, Nov. 8.—Lord Curzon, former viceroy of India, is mentioned in diplomatic circles as a possible successor to Sir Henry Mortimer Durand, the British ambassador to the United States, who is to retire from the British diplomatic service this winter. The fact that he announced that he will visit in this country for some time lends color to the rumor.

London, Nov. 8.—The retirement of Sir Mortimer Durand, British ambassador to the United States, will take place at the end of this year. He has been permitted to resign at his own urgent request and intends to permanently leave the diplomatic service for private life. The foreign office has not yet considered the question of Sir Mortimer's successor and it is expected that there will be an interim during which a new counsellor of the embassy, whose name will be announced shortly, will probably be appointed acting ambassador.

CHOKED TO DEATH BY A WINDMILL

Farmer's Coat Catches in Wheel and Wind Does Rest.

Newman Grove, Neb. Nov. 8.—Merritt B. Otis, a farmer near here, was choked to death by a windmill. He mounted the tower to shut off the mill. When he started there was no wind and apparently no danger. He had barely reached the platform fifty feet above the ground, when a breeze came, starting the wheel. The collar of his coat was caught in the machinery and he was drawn up. He shouted for assistance and his wife, responding to the call, mounted the tower, but was unable to extricate him. Descending she attempted to shut off the power. Failing, again she rushed to a telephone and summoned help. When neighbors reached the mill, Otis was dead.

OFFICIAL RETURNS

With Eleven Precincts Missing Johnson's Majority is About 1,448.

As is usual with a general election in this county, the returns of official returns have been slow in reaching the city. Up to noon five outside precincts had not been heard from, and six others had inclosed their unofficial returns with the official returns, and the figures were not available until the canvassing board had completed its work.

Several of the voting precincts in St. Louis county are such a distance from Duluth as to preclude the possibility of getting the returns to the county seat under two and some times three days.

The returns from the precincts not yet heard from are likely to slightly increase the vote for Mr. Cole. There are not many voters in either of the missing precincts, so that the general result cannot be changed very much.

Based on the returns already in, it is thought that Governor Johnson's majority in St. Louis county will be about 1,350 and it may run over 1,400. He will come very near carrying the county outside of the city. With eleven precincts to hear from, he leads by 1,448.

The county board of canvassers began work at 10 o'clock this morning and by noon had canvassed the vote for five wards of the city of Duluth. It was expected that the board would finish the canvass of the city vote andd possibly all the county vote outside the city, providing they get the returns from the missing precincts before this evening.

MAJORITY FOR JOHNSON

the only county which Cole appears to have carried is Houston, where he leads Johnson by 89 votes. Dunn carried Houston county in 1904 by 852 majority.

The outlook is that S. G. Iverson, for state auditor, has the largest majority of any candidate on the Republican ticket. Attorney General Young comes next, with C. C. Dinehart for state treasurer following. Julius Schmahl's majority for secretary of state is close to 50,000. Pidgeon and Staples follow close together, with Eberhardt last.

Chairman Frank A. Day of the Democratic state central committee, is being warmly congratulated on the results of the campaign which he conducted for Governor Johnson. He had a splendid organization and managed a clean and aggressive fight, leaving nothing to explain or apologize for.

Chairman A. B. Cole of the Republican state central committee has given out the following statement on the result of the election:

"The returns show a complete personal victory for Governor Johnson. It is a complete and emphatic endorsement of his administration by the people of the state, who, disregarding their party affiliations and breaking from their party lines, took occasion to pay a tribute to the man they wished to honor, unparalleled in the history of the state.

"It is no disgrace to be defeated by a man of Governor Johnson's caliber and if there must be a Democrat elected, I would prefer Governor Johnson to any other man in the state. He is a man I know well, respect and admire, and has well earned re-election and I congratulate him most heartily on his victory.

"While defeat is always unpleasant, we feel that we have nothing to regret or apologize for in the conduct of the campaign. We have resorted to no unfair tactics and have done no work of a doubtful kind and I can say the same of the Democratic state central committee. Our relations have been most cordial and I think that each and every member of both committee respects the other. As to our committee, especial credit it due Senator Thompson, Mr. Davison and Mr. Salmon. We have had an able corps of assistants, everything has been pleasant and harmonious, and we look forward to a great victory two years from now.

"I cannot attribute the defeat of the Republican candidate for governor to any want of loyalty on the part of his associates on the ticket, or lack of earnest and hearty support by party leaders. They have done everything that man could do in honor to secure a party victory and I now express my appreciation of the services they have rendered. The same thing is true of the Republican press of the state. No man could have received more earnest support than A. L. Cole, and that it has been ineffective is no fault of the newspaper men.

"However, this is not a Republican year and nothing that could have been done would have changed the results. We are beaten and that is all there is to it. We submit cheerfully to the will of the majority, confident that although we could not land the man of our choice in the governor's chair, the people of the state have put a gentleman there who will represent Minnesota on all occasions with dignity and honor. In other words, as the Democratic committee claims, 'he has made good.'"

The headquarters of the two state central committees will probably be kept open this week, and then closed for good. Yesterday and today Chairman Cole of the Republican committee was busy answering letters and paying of bills, and at the Democratic headquarters F. A. Day was doing similar duty.

Speculation is being indulged in as to what the campaign cost the two organizations this time. Lack of open corporation backing for either side, and the unwillingness of each to talk, makes any assertion merely guesswork, but it is safe to say that between the two nearly $60,000 was spent. The big increase in the St. Paul postoffice receipts for October was one of the effects. From the Republican headquarters were sent out more personal letters than ever were sent in the history of any campaign. Nearly 1,009,000 1 and 2-cent stamps were used by Chairman Cole and his associates; then there were hundreds of express packages containing printed matter. Besides this, there was an office expense of hundreds of dollars a week, not to speak of a score or more of speakers out in the field, whose railroad fare and traveling expenses had to be paid. Altogether it represented a tidy sum, and the candidates with Mr. Cole paid the bills.

At the Democratic headquarters close to 500,000 stamps were used. One lot of 70,000 letters alone, bearing the governor's signature, were sent out. A saving effected by Frank Day and his lieutenants was in the use of postal cards, on which, by an endless chain scheme, the recipients were made to pay the postage. The Democrats also used much printed matter, but not nearly in as large quantities as the Republicans.

In discussing the outlay, some have contended that the expenses of the two state committees will run close to $100,000, but there is nothing to bear that out. A figure of $60,000 is nearer he truth.

The election is a rebuke to demagogical methods, and it is also impressive in its demands for responsible leadership. I shall address myself to the task of squaring the administration with the interest of the people, confident that I may rely upon the support of all good citizens, not only those who voted for me, but also those who, in the intensity of their desire to end abuses, voted for my opponent. To the work of ensuring, to the extent of my power, the just administration of the government of this state I shall devote myself unreservedly. While perfectly well, I am very weary from the labors of the campaign, and I want a few days of perfect quiet. For this reason I am going to the mountains for a little outdoor life and undisturbed rest. When I return I shall close up my business affairs and at once prepare for the important duties to which the people have assigned me."

At the headquarters of the Independence league the following statement was issued last night: "Reports from upstate indicate not only that Mr. Hearst has cut down the Republican vote materially, but the Independence league vote for Mr. Hearst was not counted in many counties. These votes will be added to the announced result of Mr. Hearst's vote in order to give the correct Hearst figures in the state.

"Last night Capt. William Astor Chanler stated that his brother, Robert, who was running for sheriff in Dutchess county, had threatened to bring mandamus proceedings against several election boards before they consented to count the Independence league vote for Mr. Hearst. Today other reports were received indicating that Independence league votes for Mr. Hearst were not counted in Erie and Allegheny counties. Reports come in also showing that in districts in Clinton, Cattaraugus, Herkimer, Wayne, Albany, Onondaga and Washington counties there was a failure on the part of the election boards to count the vote for Mr. Hearst, which was cast under the scales.

"The facts developed today explain the great falling off of the total vote cast yesterday as compared with the total vote cast two years ago. There is no doubt that the votes represented by this falling off were the votes cast for Mr. Hearst and his associates under the emblem of the scales. In 1904 the total vote cast for governor was 1,625,907 votes. This year with sixty-three election districts missing, only 1,373,450 votes are accounted for, although the registration this year was unusually heavy and the weather conditions and the interest taken in the campaign all tended to bring out a full vote."

TWO "RHODY" DEMOCRATS WIN.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 8.—Not only was James H. Higgins, Democrat, the youngest of candidates, elected governor by a plurality of 1,238 over Governor George H. Utter, Republican, but Congressman D. L. B. Granger, Democrat, was re-elected by 727.

OVER-EATING

A Temptation That Many Succumb to. What to Do When You Have Eaten Too Heartily. Good Advice For Dyspeptics.

Too much food causes more illness and suffering than the lack of it. An overfed stomach is the beginning of many troublesome ailments that frequently end in serious complications.

While no one should starve himself, it is always wise to guard against burdening the stomach with food it cannot digest. For every time the stomach is overloaded, it is weakened, and if the practice is continued the general health is soon affected.

People who overeat are troubled with heartburn, waterbrash, flatulence, nausea, acute indigestion, bilious attacks and clogged bowels. Other symptoms follow when these warnings are neglected. Many cases of vertigo and serious illness have been traced to an overloaded stomach.

The remedy for the bad effects of over-eating is found in Beecham's Pills, a world-famed stomach medicine that has carried its message of good health for over fifty years.

When there is any distress in the stomach, a few doses of Beecham's Pills will bring relief. They are specially valuable for those who are troubled with acute indigestion or nervous dyspepsia. A short course of treatment with Beecham's Pills will do wonders for the digestion and make a decided improvement in the general health.

The price of Beecham's Pills brings this spendid remedy within reach of all.

Ten cents or 25 cents will buy a box at any drug store.

Fuller Returns Show Complete Success of the Republicans.

San Francisco, Nov. 8.—Fuller returns published today do not materially change the first showing of the result of Tuesday's election, and the indications are that the Republican party has elected its state ticket from top to bottom. Gillett is elected governor by a plurality exceeding 12,000. A solid Republican delegation has been elected to congress, the majorities in some cases equal to those of the Roosevelt year. The Republican candidates for justices of the supreme court are elected by big majorities.

TO WORK FOR FARMERS.

Successful Opponent of Congeessman Wadsworth Defines Policy.

Buffalo, Nov. 8.—Peter A. Porter, who defeated Representative James W. Wadsworth in the Thirty-fourth congrtssional district, is quoted in an interview today as disclaiming what he called "revolutionary" desires. His present desires, he said, were limited to putting into practice of the opinions which he had been placing before the people during the campaign.

"Welfare of the agricultural interests which I represent will be my chief aim," said he. "I have taken a stand in opposition to the oleomargarine interests, which I shall maintain, and any attempt to annul the legislation which imposed a tax upon the hog product will meet with my determined opposition.

"I am strongly in favor of the proposal to compel meat packers to stamp upon each can the date on which it was packed. This was embodied in a clause in the meat bill which was struck out by the committee of which Mr. Wadsworth was chairman. These were clear-cut issues of the campaign and it is my intention to carry out to the letter the opinions which I have expressed in connection therewith."

MISSOURI BACK IN LINE.

Democrats Sure of All But Supreme Judge and Four Congressmen.

St. Louis, Nov. 8.—Unofficial returns from 105 of the 114 counties in Missouri show that the Democratic state ticket has won by a majority of probably 6,000 and that twelve of the sixteen congressmen are Democrats. There is still some uncertainty as to the result of the contest for supreme judge for the long term of ten years. Kennish, Republican, has led his ticket in every county thus far heard from, whereas Woodson, Democrat, is slightly behind and it may necessitate full returns to decide.

Nineteen state senators were elected Tuesday. Of this number fourteen are Democrats and five are Republicans. As they serve for four years they will have a voice in the selection of a United States senator in 1909. In the next legislature the Democrats will have a majority of thirty on joint ballot.

Democratic State Chairman Evans expressed himself as greatly pleased with the general result of the election. "It looks as if the 'mysterious stranger' had departed from Missouri," he said, with a smile.

ASKS BIG DAMAGES.

Two Harbors, Minn., Nov. 8.—William T. Leonard, who was first mate of the steamer John B. Cowles, Sept. 17, 1904, is suing the Duluth & Iron Range railroad for injuries that he claims to have received at the company's Two Harbors docks on the date indicated and in his complaint he asks $17,500 damages. His claim is that a spout from an ore chute, with a defective brake, was inadvertently loosed just above the deck of the steamer Cowles on Sept. 17, 1904, as he was working at a hatchway nearby and that the chute struck the timbers on the hatch, which in turn struck and crushed Leonard's foot against the boat. His claim is that he was permanently disabled. His earning power before the accident he puts at $100 per month, which was the amount he is claimed to have earned in his capacity as second mate of the Cowles.

DON'T EXPERIMENT.

You Will Make No Mistake If You Follow This Duluth's Citizen's Advice.

Never neglect your kidneys.

If you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, it's time to act and no time to experiment. These are all symptoms of kidney trouble, and you should seek a remedy which is known to cure the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use. No need to experiment. It has cured many stubborn cases in Duluth. Follow the advice of a Duluth citizen and be cured yourself.

J. E. Watts, bricklayer, living at 915 Tenth avenue west, Duluth, Minn., says: "I have no reason to change the opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills which I expressed in a testimonial given in 1898. At that time it cure me of a bad attack of backache and lameness, which made me stop work. I was unable to stoop, and the pain was severe just over the kidneys and through the loins. Plasters and other remedies I used brought no radical benefit. Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me so strongly that I decided to try them. I soon found that they were just the remedy for my case. In a few days the pain left me, and the cure has been permanent."

ST. PETER ELATED.

Governor Johnson's Home Town Enthusiastic Over Election Results.

St. Peter, Minn., Nov. 8.—Enthusiasm over the election of Governor Johnson was unrestrained in St. Peter. His home city was beside itself with joy over the glad tidings, and when the returns began to indicate that an avalanche was sweeping him back into office, his townsmen did not attempt to confine their glee. Until long after midnight crowds thronged the down-town streets, and refused to be driven indoors by a drenching rain. With each jump of the plurality there was a newer and wilder demonstration. When it had reached 50,000, special illuminations were turned on. In the early hours of the morning a party of Johnson admirers secured ammunition and began firing a cannon. Its detonations awakened every one in the city, and the cannonade was kept up until a recoil shattered the tail of the piece, and it went out of commission.

St. Peter has elected four governors, but it never witnessed a demonstration that compared with the one Tuesday night. Preparations have already been begun for a ratification. Officers of the Commercial club will have charge and it will be held some time next week. Nicollet county remained loyal to its favorite son. His vote in his home town was as large as two years ago, and his plurality in the country compared with the total vote cast was greater.

Divorce, the count's counsel declared, would only mean financial ruin for the count. It was impossible for him to meet his outstanding obligations, amounting to $24,000 a year. The remainder of his ancestral inheritance would have to be sold. If his wife desired to present him in such a light before the world he had nothing more to say. Nevertheless it seemed only just the he should be reimbursed the $240,000 which he obtained by the sale of his share of the ancestral forest of Bueny, and which was contributed to the household expenses.

Counsel concluded with asserting that he was convinced that the countess, if free to obey the dictates of her conscience, would yet consent to a reconciliation, and solemnly assured the court of the count's respect, esteem and undying affection for his wife.

Maitre Cruppi, for the countess, in reply charged the count's lawyer with seeking to divert attention from the issue at the bar by making an unprecedented and baseless attack on Mr. Kelly, who, counsel declared, enjoyed a standing in the United States and France, which made his defense superfluous, he having been counsel for the American embassy in Paris for the past twenty years.

Maitre Cruppi read a letter from Mr. Kelly denying the charges made against him and saying that until the names of the persons mentioned were introduced by counsel for the count, he had never heard of those he was supposed to have bribed.

Maitre Cruppi then produced what he declared to be forged documents by which, he charged, the count in July last attempted to convince his wife that Mr. Kelly was concerned in a plot to accomplish his political ruin.

At the conclusion of the pleadings the case was adjourned for a week. In the course of the proceedings it developed that the count has asked the court to grant him $30,000 a year after having rejected his wife's offer of the same sum annually and $200,000 down.

The court, after hearing the conclusion of the prosecutor next week, will announce its decision, either for a divorce or for an examination of the witnesses.

The creditor's case, in which Count Boni, the Countess De Castellane and George J. Gould, as trustees, are made joint defendants, was called after recess today. This, brought by six creditors, involves $5,400,000. Maitre Millerand, of counsel for the creditors, did not finish his plea and the case was adjourned for a fortnight.

HOUSE REPUBLICAN BY 60.

Democrats Gained Thirty-One and Lost Three in Elections.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—The Republicans have elected 223 congressmen and the Democrats 163, giving the Republicans a majority of 60. The Democrats gained 31 congressmen, as follows: Illinois, 5; Indiana, 2; Iowa, 1; Maryland, 1; Minnesota, 1; Missouri, 6; Nebraska, 1; New Jersey, 3; New York, 1; North Carolina, 1; Ohio, 3; Pennsylvania, 5; Wisconsin, 1. Republicans gained one each in Maryland, Kentucky and West Virginia. This makes the Democratic net gain twenty-eight.

Jonas ("Con") Spurlock — Aged 57, president of the Consolidated Groceries Company, and stockholder and director in a dozen other trusts.

These are the correspondents in "Letters to Unsuccessful Men," our new series of razor-edge humor and rip-saw philosophy (to appear bi-weekly) by the author of "Letters from a Self-Made Merchant to His Son."

The first letter of the series appears in THE SATURDAY EVENING POST dated November 10. Jack, the prodigal, just expelled from Harvard, writes to his Uncle Bill about Monty the patriot, the boxing bear, and the songstress who had "a rush of grief to the feet"; and complains of his father who "is a fond parent all right, but it's money he's fond of."

At one time during the campaign The Herald had an article in these columns about advertising Minnesota, the burden of which was a plea to advertise the state in the best way by recognizing merit, and by giving John A. Johnson a second term as a fitting recognition of his splendid work in his first term.

Minnesota has tried that plan, and it will be worth while to watch for the advertising that will result.

In other words, watch the growth of Governor Johnson as a national figure.

He was something of a national figure when he entered the campaign, but he will be more so now.

Attention abroad was first attracted to him by his notable triumph of two years ago. Then, with President Roosevelt carrying the state by the unprecedented plurality of 161,000, he was elected by a plurality of over 8,000, one of the most complete upheavals in the history of the state. Then, his success was partially, even largely, due to the fact that there was a bad fight in the Republican ranks.

But the fact that he had won such a tremendous victory, and that his personal career was the outcome of individual merit, Governor Johnson having fought his way upward from poverty and obscurity by sheer force of individuality and positive character, attracted wide attention to him.

Then came the insurance scandals, and Governor Johnson took a leading part in that fight, being placed at the head of a large convention to act upon insurance evils, and being commended for his activity in a presidential message to congress.

And now comes a second victory, more notable and more revolutionary than the first. There was no party fight to help him this time. The Republican organization was united, and there was no dissension in the ranks. The victory was purely personal, and it was the greatest personal victory in the history of the state if not in the history of the nation.

In an overwhelmingly Republican state, with the Republican organization united harmoniously against him, he has been elected by one of the largest pluralities ever given any candidate for governor in this state. Only one election, that of Senator Nelson over George L. Becker in 1894, resulted in a larger plurality, and the full returns may show that even that plurality has been exceeded in this election.

Such tributes are only to be won by uncommon merit. The result cannot fail to attract general attention to Minnesota, to her independence, and especially to the man that was able to wrest such a victory almost single-handed, against all the senators and congressmen, all the Republican organization, every leading daily in the state except The Herald, and a united party.

Watch Governor Johnson's growth as a national figure.

GET TOGETHER.

Crookston Times: State development did not get to be much of an issue after all. It is hard to make an issue out of something that everybody is for.

State development was not much of an issue in the campaign just closed. It could not be made an issue unless Governor Johnson opposed it, and there was ample evidence that he was as much for it as anybody, and that before it was dreamed of as a state issue and before the Republican candidate had made his excellent record in promoting it, he had strongly urged in his message to the legislature prompt and vigorous action along that line.

If it had any effect at all upon the policy of state development to put it into politics, that effect was to delay it rather than to expedite it. If state development was an issue, with Mr. Cole for it and Governor Johnson against it, it now occupies the position of being hopelessly defeated. But it was not an issue, and it is not defeated. It is just as safe in Governor Johnson's hands as it would have been in Mr. Cole's care.

Governors, after all, can only recommend. They cannot pass laws. They cannot even go upon the floor of the legislative chamber and lobby for measures. It is the legislature that must develop Minnesota, and it is upon the legislature that pressure must be brought to bear to accomplish the things that Minnesota, and particularly Northern Minnesota, needs.

The senators and representatives from Northern Minnesota must go after what they want earnestly and systematically. They must get together and pool their common interests, and go upon the principle of "all for one and one for all."

It is not going to be so hard as many people imagine. Southern Minnesota is not going to appear in an attitude of hostility to Northern Minnesota. When the members from that part of the state thoroughly understand that the measures proposed for the aid of Northern Minnesota mean the development and increased prosperity of the entire state, it is reasonable to expect that they will join heartily in the movement.

But there is some misunderstanding now upon the subject, and that must be cleared away. There are people in Southern Minnesota that believe drainage to be a project to take state money for the benefit of private owners of property. Such mistaken ideas must be corrected, and that can best be done by a united effort on the part of the senators and representatives from Northern Minnesota.

INTERESTED CITIZENSHIP.

One fear that agitates the opponents of municipal ownership of public utilities is that the citizenship, which so often shows itself to be neglectful of public business, will continue to let public business suffer when it includes the operation of such industries.

That fear is met fully by a writer in Scribner's Magazine, who recently visited Glasgow to study the municipal ownership systems that have been so successful there. His idea is that if you give the citizens something to make them interested in their municipal governments, they will respond readily.

He found the citizens of Glasgow, rich and poor, high and low, keenly interested in the affairs of Glasgow. On every hand they were found constantly discussing public affairs. Seeking for a reason, he found it in this: It is because the city does so much for its citizens.

Talking with Dalrymple, manager of the city tramway system, he got this reply to a question:

> The opening of the trams in 1894 was coincident with, many people would say it was the cause of, the awakening of civic enthusiasm that has characterized the last ten years of the life of the city. Undoubtedly the more things the city does for the people, the more the people are interested in the city. Municipal ownership fosters interest in municipal affairs.

This seems reasonable, most reasonable. Take the average city without municipal enterprises. What does it mean to its citizens? The city government is a strange, faraway institution that makes him keep sober and honest and quiet, and that forces him to pay taxes, which he does more or less grumblingly, with a strong feeling that he is getting the worst of it. What is there to make him interested in the city's affairs?

Everything the city does for him gives him a deeper interest in its affairs.

When it makes handsome parks for him to enjoy himself in it brings him closer to that impalpable thing called the city. When it hires a band and gives him free concerts in those parks the bond is knit closer. When it begins to step in between him and the private corporations that are manipulating public utilities solely to get the utmost penny of profit out of them, and forces them to give him fair treatment, he begins to realize that the city is something of value to him. When it takes these utilities over, and operates them solely for his benefit, to give him the best service at the cheapest possible price, the city gains a place in his affections from which it cannot be driven out.

That is the way it worked in Glasgow, and there is no reason why it should not work that way in any American city. Glasgow is far advanced, for besides operating her own street railway, her own water, gas and electric plants and her own telephone system, she has a host of smaller enterprises that pay both her and all her citizens.

NORTH DAKOTA'S VICTORY.

Minnesota can shake hands with her sister state of North Dakota, which has just recorded another victory for the people in the election of "Honest John" Burke as governor and Judge Fisk as justice of the supreme court.

It was another case of an independent uprising of the people to secure their own best interests, impatiently brushing aside the limitations of party lines to do it.

North Dakota has been disgraced in the past by one of the most corrupt political machines in the country, the notorious McKenzie ring. A fight was made upon the machine in the state convention, but it was not successful, and the organization nominated its pets regardless of public sentiment. Either it was so confident of its own power that it cared nothing for public opinion, or it underestimated the strength of the popular revulsion against the rule of the ring.

At any rate, the machine carried its plans through with a high hand, nominating its candidate for governor, and placing on the ticket with him for supreme court judge a protege of the ring who was rejected by the bar of the state with indignation.

The Democrats had wit enough to profit by the mistakes of their political opponents, and nominated in John Burke and in Judge Fisk two of the strongest men in the party in North Dakota. The result was that while the remainder of the state ticket went Republican, Burke defeated Governor Sarles and Judge Fisk beat John Knauf by a still greater plurality.

It is to gain such ends that The Herald has preached independence. It is to defeat such wholesome results for the people that the bosses perpetually plead with the voters to "stand by the ticket" and "vote it straight." Never mind the men, they say; parties are greater than men; vote for the party, which stands for principles.

But the first thing the voters know, if they heed such advice, the party is standing, not for principles, but for a lot of unprincipled rascals that are seeking to fatten themselves at the public expense. That has been the result every time the voters have blindly voted the ticket straight too long.

And there is just one remedy for it, and that is the remedy that the voters of North Dakota applied last Tuesday; to exercise independence, and to rebuke the party when it fails in its duty. That is the only way to make the party realize that to continue to have the confidence of its members it must continue to deserve their confidence.

If it was said once in Duluth and in many other cities yesterday it was said thousands of times, that the day of the yellow dog in politics has passed. North Dakota certainly showed that it has passed there.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"The world's supply of high-grade peppermint oils and flavors comes from Northern Indiana, Southern Michigan and from Wayne county, New York," said F. T. Cole of Detroit, Mich., at the Lenox. "The low grade supply comes from Japan. The Indiana 1906 crop had just been harvested when I was down in the state a couple of weeks ago, and it is said to represent a little more than 50,000 pounds of the one-quarter million pounds national production. Probably a half of it will be exported to England and Germany, and some of that may even come back to the United States in the shape of oils and essences.

"The Indiana mint crop, which has just been put into oil, represents considerably more than $100,000 in value in ordinary markets. Three brothers, known as the Woodwards, own the biggest mint farm in the state. It comprises 320 acres in mint, and this year the crop ran more than 4,000 pounds. The greatest grower of mint in the world is a Kalamazoo, Mich., man. He generally has 600 to 800 acres in mint."

"I only recenly returned from the Pacific coast," said S. A. Treadwell of St. Paul, at the McKay. "In the state of Washington I was surprised to find that fruit costs just as much at the retail stands as it does anywhere here in the Middle West. Even in the districts immediately adjoining the great apple-raising districts, apples are to be had no cheaper than they can be procured back here in Minnesota. I don't know how it is if one buys the fruit by the barrel, but so far as the prices on small lots is concerned, a man pays just as much for his apples as he ever did.

"Many of the stores in Tacoma and Seattle apparently have no fronts to them. During the night a heavy wire screen shuts them from the sidewalk, after closing hours. During the day and evening the whole front of the store is open, making it very convenient for anyone who wants to look at the goods on display. Otherwise the cities have much the same appearance as the average American town. Tacoma and Seattle are built on hills, and look very much like Duluth in this respect. Seattle is the biggest and busiest of the two, but Tacoma is growing at a rapid rate. Everett is now coming to the front in good shape. It is forty or fifty miles farther down the sound from Seattle.

"I liked Spokane first rate. I had heard several speak of it as being a very attractive city, and was not at all disappointed in it, despite the flattering descriptions I had received. It is clean and neat, and the business district is bunched together, so a man doesn't have to wander all over creation to find the place he wants.

"Morally all of these towns appear to be on a much higher plane than they were ten years ago, when I made my first trip to the coast. In those days the gambling halls were wide open in all parts of town, and there was no attempt at concealment. Practically every saloon had a gambling layout, and some of the palaces built for the expensive pleasure of gamblers and others whose vices took on other forms were quite gorgeous. There were some of the queerest gambling layouts I ever saw, and some of the games were entirely new to me.

"Seattle was particularly tough, and all sorts of crimes were committed there. Then the reform element got in its work, and Tacoma, Seattle and Spokane all closed up at about the same time. I suppose some of the smaller towns are still hitting a merry pace in their sinful ways, but it will be a matter of only a short time before vice is stamped out in all of them."

The local hotels just now are enjoying a big patronage from hunters from outside points who are on their way to the game regions north of Duluth. Many of the parties consist of men from cities in the states farther south, but seevral are from Iowa, Illinois and states even farther away. Michigan and Wisconsin sportsmen hunt in their own states almost altogether, for there are still good game regions in Wisconsin and Michigan.

Many of those passing through Duluth are on their way to north shore points, and others are headed for the ranges. The moose hunting along the north shore proves an attraction not to be withstood by scores of sportsmen from outside points. The movement to the north woods began about a week ago, but it has been heaviest during the last day or two. The hunters seem anxious to be in the forests and ready for the hunt on the opening day of the season, which will be next Sunday. Some have been at their favorite hunting grounds for the past week, getting their camps ready and getting the game located.

"In July, 1905, Houston began her present system of government, an elective commission," said J. L. Tripper of Houston, Tex., at the Lenox. "A mayor and four aldermen, or as they are more commonly designated, commissioners, are elected to serve for a term of two years. Upon the shoulders of the mayor rests the success or failure of his administration. He is the head of affairs of the city, employing and discharging the men who fill the various departments. Even these departments are not fixed, it lying within the discretion of the mayor and commissioners to create such as are needed or to do away with those found unnecessary. Houston is operated in the same manner as a great business or private corporation.

"The commission system was not resorted to until after serious debate and consideration, and was decided upon for the purpose of divorcing the city from mercenary politics and guaranteeing a business administration of city affairs. The practical test given the system has demonstrated that the new methods are entirely satisfactory from the standpoint of the tax-paying citizen."

THE WEATHER.

A fog so thick that it almost seemed to take some force to push one's way through it had settled down over the city this morning, and after it had risen the sky was discovered to be cloudy and dull. Still it was not cold. Last night's lowest temperature was 38 degs. and yesterday it got up to 52 degs. The weather man says it will be colder tonight, and that there may be some snow flurries, but that it will be fair and colder tomorrow.

The sun sets at 4:41 this afternoon and rises at 7:03 tomorrow morning, to be followed by 9 hours and 38 minutes of daylight, two minutes less than today had.

A year ago today it was cloudy and unsettled, with a little rain.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The Alberta disturbance has moved its center to Manitoba. It caused light fall of rain in the lake region and Mississippi valley and rain or snow in Western Canada, Montana, Oregon and Washington during Wednesday or last night, and higher temperature last night in the Dakotas, Wyoming and Colorado. A high pressure area in the Western Plateau region is attended by colder and freezing temperature there and in Alberta. The pressure conditions to the westward favor falling temperature in this locality tonight and Friday with probably snow flurries tonight."

LINES TO A LAUGH.

Chicago Record-Herald: "What," she asked, "is your idea of a womanly woman?"

"One," he replied, "who takes the comb out of her back hair every little while and gives it two or three upward scrapes and then jabs it in again."

Houston Post: "I presume you spend all you make?"

"No; I don't spend a tenth of it."

"Then you must have a nice little balance in the bank?"

"Nope, not a cent."

"Shake, old chap; I'm married myself."

Harper's Weekly: The sultan received his guest most graciously. After a few moment's conversation the young American said: "I would especially like to see your collection of jades."

"Certainly," responded his majesty. "The harem is the first door to the right."

Puck: Chuggerton—How's your new chauffeur?

Carr—Had to fire him; he used to be a motorman.

Chuggerton—Too reckless, eh?

Carr—Reckless nothing! Why, I couldn't break him of the habit of slowing up at crossings.

Philadelphia Standard: "That board of yours," said the merchant, "is getting very long and ugly."

"Yes, sir," replied Adam Upp, his bookkeeper: "I'd like to shave it off."

"Well, why don't you?"

"Well, you see, I made a vow some years ago that I wouldn't shave until I got a raise in salary."

Washington Star: "Everybody is telling exactly what you will do if you are elected to office."

"Yes," answered the candidate.

"Well, what will you do?"

"I don't know yet."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Here's something about the Dutch stealing one of the Philippine Islands. I wonder what Uncle Sam will do about it?"

"Well, it would serve them right if he refused to take it back."

Baltimore American: The infuriated youth was gloomy.

"Is it true," he said, "that you have had twelve husbands?"

The great actress smiled.

"Yes," she mourned, coming nearer, "but, dear, I'm not a bit superstitious!"

The Losers.

Patient, plodding, hale and true,
Day by day and year by year;
Hoping, trusting, striving, too,
Against the shadow of the tear;
Brave and bright and high and sweet,
Turning, when they lose, to go
Face to face with grim defeat
Forward in the way they know—
Hail the losers in the strife,
Soldiers of the golden life!

Some are cast by fate to win,
Some have touched the holy charm;
Bold of heart and strong of arm;
Little wonder that they smile.
Little wonder that they sing,
Rayed with roses every mile,
All their journey bright with spring—
Hail the losers who laugh, too,
Rising, hopeful, trusting, true!

Merry hearts have those that lead
In the hurly-burly sweet,
Crowned with wealth of golden deed.
Shod with wings of winning feet;
But the smile that wreathes the soul
Of the losers in the race,
And the songs that round them roll,
And the light upon their face—
Hail the losers, every one,
Meeting loss with smile and sun!

Hail the losers—hearts of steel,
Comrades of the common road,
Struggling, striving, though they reel
With the unrelenting load;
When they come with smile and song,
When they rise from cross and caré,
God! how beautiful and strong;
God! how wonderful and fair!
Hail the losers in the strife,
Soldiers of the golden life!

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

St. Louis county cast 4,738 votes at this year's election.

Miss Ina M. Lafans, well-known school teacher of the Hermantown district, spent yesterday in Duluth.

Attorney W. W. Sanford has returned from a hunting trip on the south shore and brought back a 300-pound deer.

George F. Fagan returned last evening from Port Arthur, where he was an important witness in a lawsuit.

At a meeting of the school board last evening, Janitor Bowers of the Washington school was clothed with the power of truant officer without change in his salary. Edward Bardon was appointed janitor of Jackson school at a salary of $50 per month. Allusion was made to the danger encountered by the pupils of Madison school in crossing the railroad tracks at Rice's Point, and Superintendent Denfeld was instructed to secure a safer location for the building with a view to its removal.

Albert H. Truax, of the firm of J. S. Wolf & Co., now building the Duluth & Iron Range extension, has been re-elected to the state senate in the Hastings, Minn., district, by a majority of one. Mr. Truax is a Republican, while the usual Democratic majority is from 800 to 1,200 votes, yet this is his third successive term in the senate.

Editor Stevens of the Brainerd Journal will occupy a seat in the lower house of the next legislature.

Capt. S. P. Snider of Minneapolis, is the most prominent man mentioned as speaker for the next house.

Michael Doran's successor in the state senate is a Republican. He is the postmaster whom Mr. Doran had deposed for offensive partisanship. Doran himself was not a candidate, but the man whom he selected on the ticket was beaten.

The receipts of the social recently given by the German Emtracht society were $136.75.

H. L. Wiard and Miss May Smith were married at Superior last week. They will reside in Duluth.

William H. Mitchell of Duluth, and Miss Annie Mamie McKendrick of Hancock, Mich., were married last week.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Le Sueur Center Leader: However brutal football may be, it still has the advantage over automobile racing, that we never hear of any of the spectators being killed.

Sleepy Eye Dispatch: The country needs voters who will think, voters who will see men and issues as they are, voters "who can stand before a demagogue and damn his treacherous flatteries without winking;" voters who can decide questions for themselves and decide them right and then stand by their decisions.

Hibbing Tribune: "Reform" football, instead of being humane, is even more brutal than the old style—a game fit only for prize fighters and they have too much sense to tackle it.

Cannon Falls Beacon: When the men, who for many years have voted the Republican ticket, wake up and take the management of the party, the making of platforms, and naming candidates out of the hands of the federal machine and its dependents, and instruct its senators and representatives and governors as to what they are to do, they will find the party again entitled to and enjoying the confidence of the public; it will be no longer necessary to learn wisdom through defeat, or to apologize for its candidates, nor will such a candidate as Mr. Cole find it necessary to assume an apologetic attitude for the character of some of his support, nor will he find himself hampered by the pernicious activity of some office holders.

St. Peter Herald: Commenting on a statement of an attorney for Mr. Rockefeller that he believes "that government best that governs least," the Cannon Falls Beacon says every law breaker and infernal scoundrel in the country is with him on that proposition.

Mankato Free Press: Burbank has produced an apple that is red and sweet on one side and yellow and sour on the other. Just like the home and company manners of some people.

Crookston Times: Rival editors at Eveleth have already had two fistic encounters. Why not have a finish fight under the usual prize ring rules, the victor to have the city printing and all the spectators for subscribers? If the thing were properly worked up both newspapers could make a mighty good thing out of it.

Breckenridge Gazette: Down in Ohio the Standard Oil company was fined $5,000. This is a good deal like shooting an elephant with a pop gun, but it will probably be used as an excuse for raising the price of oil again.

Eveleth Star: Unless all signs fail there will be some things doing in the forthcoming session of the legislature, and the citizens will give particular attention to the stand of their members. All other states are unearthing grafts and there seems to be no reason why Minnesota should not do the same. The insurance companies and the railroads will come in for their share of tribulations, and are sure to make a fight against radical legislation affecting their interests.

Deer River News: Senator Platt of New York may be the greatest political boss in the Union, but when it came to bossing a little woman he was out of his class.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: A splendid way to get engaged to a girl is to have her set out to catch you.

If a man was asked to drink because it was the right thing to do, he'd want to vote some party out of power.

The thing that makes a woman respect a burglar in spite of his morals is the way he will go into a dark closet where there might be a mouse.

The only thing that makes you madder than to have some man in business say you are too young to be trusted is to have some girl say you are too old not to be.

The costliest thing about an automobile is the way you get charged for your meat and groceries because people think if you will stand the automobile expenses you will stand anything.

A Long Root.

Success: An Irishman, with one jaw very much swollen from a tooth that he wished to have pulled, entered the office of a Washington dentist.

When the suffering Celt was put into the chair and saw the gleaming forceps approaching his face, he positively refused to open his mouth. Being a man of resource, the dentist quietly instructed his assistant to push a pin into the patient's leg, so that when the Irishman opened his mouth to yell the dentist could get at the refractory molar.

When all was over, the dentist smilingly asked:

"It didn't hurt as much as you expected, did it?"

"Well, no," reluctantly admitted the patient. "But," he added, as he ran his hand over the place into which the assistant had inserted the pin, "little did I think them roots wint that far down!"

The Odor That Clings.

You may shake into tatters
Your coat, if you will;
But the scent of the moth balls
Will cling to it still.

HAPPENINGS IN THE DAKOTAS

Hired Man is Alleged to Have Shot Cando Farmer.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Cando—Intense excitement was caused here when a telephone message reported that Albert Fogerty, a well-known farmer living near here, had been shot by his hired man, P. O. Gill, and that the latter had escaped. Several persons in automobiles immediately started in pursuit and succeeded in overtaking Gill between here and Maza. He made no attempt at resistance and was brought here, where he now is under arrest.

A dispute is said to have arisen between the two men as to the amount of money due Gill for work done, and Gill finally, it is alleged, drew a revolver and shot Fogerty. Fogerty is said to have seized a shotgun and started after Gill, but the latter was too far away for the shot to do him harm.

Fogerty was brought here for treatment, and the seriousness of his wound has not as yet been determined, as the bullet cannot be located.

Sawyer—Going to his barn in a semi-somnambulistic state to look after his stock, which he dreamed was out in a blizzard, Charles Prine, a farmer, living nine miles southwest of here, was assaulted and knocked unconscious by a blow over the head dealt by a man who was attempting to steal his horses.

Prine says that he was about half awake when he reached the barn, and seeing a man standing there, thought it was the hired man. He spoke to him, and receiving no response, took a step toward him. The stranger immediately dealt him a stunning blow over the head with a club. Prine says he does not know how long he lay unconscious, but finally he recovered strength enough to crawl back to the house, where he again lapsed into unconsciousness. It is not believed that he is fatally hurt.

Prine before losing consciousness stated that it was his belief that the dream had saved him from losing one or more of his horses.

Grand Forks—Archie McIntyre, aged 12 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. McIntyre, living near the city, is dead from eating popcorn. Several days ago the lad ate some popcorn, and it appears that one of the hard kernels lodged. Tuesday it was decided that an operation was necessary, but the little fellow did not rally from the shock and died yesterday. Mr. McIntyre is manager of the Senator Bacon farm adjoining the city limits.

Miss Nellie Bodan, Lincoln, Neb., has asked Chief of Police Lowe for some information regarding the whereabouts of her brother, Will Bodan, who was last heard from in this city, having written home that he had been injured in a threshing-machine accident. The police so far have been able to find no trace of the young man.

The annual dinner of the Grand Forks Commercial club will be given in the club rooms tomorrow evening. The dinner is overdue several weeks, but it was thought best to delay it until after the election.

William H. Martell, colored, who was convicted three years ago of murder in the first degree for the killing of Alfred Nally, also colored, has made application to the board of pardons for his release.

Towner—L. P. Stanton, representing a music house, was found dead in the Metropole hotel yesterday morning. Heart failure was the cause. His body will be sent to Fargo.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Wakpala—Peter Brasse, a cook in a railroad camp here, had a quarrel with a railroad contractor named Scrivener; he waited until Scrivener went into the cookteni to get his supper. He then threw a kettle of boiling water square in Scrivener's face. Scrivener was frightfully scalded and is totally blind. In his awful agony he got a revolver and shot in all directions, imagining the cook was around. Brasse fled immediately into the darkness. He has not yet been apprehended. Last spring Scrivener had trouble with some of his negro help and one of them fired six shots at him without effect.

Bonesteel—After taking his children to school, Charles B. Cornell, a homesteader, near Gregory, this county, was frozen to death in a blizzard. En route home the whiffletrees of his wagon broke, and while he was attempting to repair them he was kicked by a horse. A searching party found him lying dead under his horses, which had stood all day and night in the storm.

While residing on his homestead claim in the ceded portion of the Rosebud Indian reservation near here, Chester Slaughter, a well known resident of this part of the state met with rather a serious adventure. He had sent his family to town intending to follow them the next day.

That night he was aroused from sleep by a noise which he believed was made by some one attempting to break into the house. Creeping downstairs, with a loaded shotgun in his hands, he heard some one apparently fumbling at the door-knob. Instantly Slaughter raised his shotgun and fired through the door. He heard a cry as of pain, but not caring to investigate any further that night, he securely fastened the door and waited until morning.

When day dawned Slaughter went out of doors, confidently expecting to find the dead body of a fellow man. He was agreably surprised, however, at not making such a grewsome discovery. Continuing his search he went to a shed and there found a pet mule, grievously wounded by the load of bird shot which had been fired through the door.

The mule had been running at large in the barn yard and had backed up against the door in an endeavor to gain shelter from the storm. The mule will live.

POWDER KILLS ONE MAN.

Explosion of Magazine Near Chicago Felt for Three Miles.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—A powder magazine of the E. I. Dupont company, at Tinley Park, about thirty miles from this city, exploded today with such terrific force that windows were broken in the Midlothian club, three miles distant. One man who was employed to watch the magazine was killed, but no other lives were lost. The magazine contained a comparatively small amount of blasting powder. The cause of the explosion is not known.

BUILDING BIG DAM.

Montana Concern at Work on Spokane Reclamation Project.

Billings, Mont., Nov. 8.—According to Willam A. Selvidge of the Billings Construction company, who returned home yesterday form a business trip to Spokane, on a reclamation project, where the company is engaged in building a big diverting dam, the work is moving along satisfactorily and will be completed during the month of March next. The dam is being projected across the Spokane river, and its entire length is nearly 1,900 feet. Half of this will be composed of steel and concrete, and for the construction of the latter nearly 30,000 sacks of cement will be consumed, and about ten carloads of steel. Sixty men now are employed on the dam alone. The only difficulty being experienced in carrying on the work is the fact that the coal supply is not adequate. The Spokane project is the largest of its kind, and when completed next season, thousands of acres of land will be reclaimed.

WEST DULUTH

REV. OBERG IS CALLED

Third Swedish Baptist Church Chooses a New Pastor.

Resignation of Rev. Aldeen Will Take Effect January 1.

Out of a list of seven candidates who had been selected by the committee, the congregation of the Third Swedish Baptist church has extended a call to Rev. C. E. Oberg of Worthington, Minn., to take the place of Rev. C. A. Aldeen, whose resignation will be effective Jan. 1.

The resignation of Rev. Aldeen was handed in about two weeks ago and a committee was appointed to select the names of pastors who would be able to come to West Duluth. Rev. Aldeen will take the position of financial secretary of a Swedish institute in Minneapolis.

After some discussion, the call to Rev. Oberg was made unanimous and it is expected that he will accept it, as this is considered one of the best pastorates in the state. Mr. Oberg has a church at Worthington which is about the same size as the one in West Duluth, but the field there is smaller, and the people here expect he will be anxious to take charge of this church.

WILL HOLD SPECIAL SERVICES

Missionary Meetings by Rev. Mooney at Holy Apostle's Church.

At the special missionary services which will be held at the Holy Apostle's Episcopal church, corner Elinor street and Fifty-seventh avenue west, during the week commencing Nov. 18 and continuing until Sunday, Nov. 25, Rev. R. J. Mooney, the rector, will be assisted by Rev. A. W. Ryan of St. John's Episcopal church and his assistant, Rev. Reed. Rev. A. H. Wurtele, Rev. A. B. Cordick of Superior, Rev. Mr. Parker of Lakeside and Rev. Albert Carswell will also take part. Each evening during the week an effort will be made to have a special musical program.

West Duluth Briefs.

Mrs. W. A. Capener, who has been visiting at the home of her son, R. C. Hendricks, 124 Fifty-third avenue, returned yesterday to her home at Baraboo, Wis.

Thomas Spelen of Seattle, who is employed by the Northern Pacific railway, is visiting his family in West Duluth.

Arthur Darmody, who has been employed at Barrows, Saskatchewan, for the last six months, has returned to West Duluth.

A masquerade dancing party will be given by the Apollo club at Wade's hall this evening.

Frank Bushener will leave tomorrow morning for Knife River to prepare his camp for the opening of the big game season Saturday.

John Maloney of Ashland is visiting old friends in West Duluth.

Otto Haller left for the Twin Cities this morning for a few days' visit with friends.

One candidate received the first degree last evening at the meeting of Euclid lodge No. 198, A. F. A. M., at the Masonic hall.

Mrs. Chas. Caya of Fifty-second avenue, pleasantly entertained a number of ladies yesterday afternoon in honor of Mrs. W. A. Capener of Baraboo, Wis. These present were, Mrs. W. A. Capener, Mrs. R. C. Hendricks, Mrs. H. Hill, Mrs. S. Trumblo, Mrs. C. D. Morpeth and Miss G. Caya.

Mrs. W. J. Smart was again pleasantly surprised at the home of her son, C. J. Smart, 616, North Fifty-ninth avenue, a few nights ago. Among those present were, Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Hanson, Mrs. Berin, Mrs. Rud, Mrs. Caren, Mrs. Armstrong, Mrs. Walworth and Mrs. Shanks. Refreshments were served.

The funeral of Raymond Gauthier, the 3-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gauthier, 4012 Halifax street, who died yesterday morning of pneumonia, will be held this afternoon and interment will be made at Calvary cemetery.

Plans for the musical entertainment which will be held at Great Eastern hall on Nov. 22, were discussed at the meeting of the Ladies' Aid society of the Asbury M. E. church yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Dass, 5917 Nicollet street. The musical will be under the direction of Miss Grayce Frances Turner.

A very successful bazaar was held last evening by the Ladies' Aid society of the Third Swedish Baptist church and a fine musical program was given. The musical numbers of Prof. C. O. Larson of Chicago were the feature of the evening.

About fifty couple attended the dancing party given by the Royal league last evening and the affair was one of the most successful of the season. Brewett's orchestra rendered music and refreshments were served. This is the second party given by this club this season and the third will probably be held Dec. 5.

EVELETH'S CITY HALL COMPLETED

And Most of City Officials in Their New Quarters.

Eveleth, Minn., Nov. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—After many delays Eveleth's new city hall has finally been completed and most of the city officials are in their new quarters.

The new building is located on the north side of Pierce street, between Monroe and Grant avenues, and was built at a cost of approximately $15,000. The material used for the structure is Roman brick, and its outside appearance justifies the city in being proud of its architecture.

The lower floor is occupied by the fire department which is being equipped with the latest improved apparatus, and when reorganized as planned, the city will have the most efficient fire-fighting system on the range. In the rear of the fire department's rooms, the cells for the jail have been constructed, a few of which are expressly for female prisoners.

On the second floor are rooms for the city council, the mayor, the city clerk, and the municipal court. Municipal Judge Prince moved into his new quarters Monday night, and the other officials will do likewise, as soon as the furniture arrives. The fire department moved into its rooms last week.

I Can Cure Cancer

At Home Without Pain, Plaster Or Operation and I Tell You How, Free.

I Have Proven Cancer Can be Cured at Home. No Pain, No Plaster, No Knife.—Dr. Wells.

I have discovered a new and seemingly unfailing cure for the deadly cancer. I have made some most astonishing cures. I believe every person with cancer should know of this marvelous medicine and its wonderful cures, and I will be glad to give full information free to all who write me and tell me about their case.

Peter Keagan, Galesburg, Ill., had cancer of the mouth and throat. Doctors said, "no hope." Mr. Keagan wrote: "It's only a question of a short time—I must die." Today his cancer is healed up and he is well. My marvelous radiatized fluid did it. It has other just such cures to its credit. It is saving people every day and restoring them to health and strength. If you have cancer or any lump or sore that you believe is cancer, write today and learn how others have been cured quickly and safely and at very small expense. No matter what your condition may be, do not hesitate to write and tell me about it. I will answer your letter promptly, giving you, absolutely free, full information and proof of many remarkable cures. Address, Dr. Rupert Wells, 1850 Radol Building, St. Louis, Mo.

HONOR MEDAL TO LIFE SAVER

President Roosevelt Pays Tribute to Daring Conductor.

Washington, Nov. 8.—President Roosevelt has awarded a medal of honor—the fourth under the new law—to Edward Murray, a conductor on the Pennsylvania railroad, who risked his own life to save the lives of two children, Robert and Margaret Lewis, in Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 22 last, and who has also received a Carnegie medal.

The two children, aged 2 and 4 years, were on the track before an engine running backward with a string of cars. Murray, who was riding on the footboard of the tender, sprang forward, grasped the children in his arms and regained the footboard in safety.

WILL WRITE OF NORTHLAND.

Representatives of Iowa Agricultural Paper Looking Over the Country.

John Wallace of Des Moines, Iowa, business manager of Wallace's Farmer, and F. A. Ball of Minneapolis, Minnesota representative of that publication, are in Duluth today and will spend several days in the Head of the Lakes country, preparing an article on the possibilities and advantages of Northern Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Their articles will include considerable mention of Duluth and Superior, the market places for the surrounding country which will be thick with profitable farms within a few years.

Yesterday, the agricultural journalists spent in Superior and today they are spending in Duluth. Tomorrow they begin their work of looking over St. Louis county, Minnesota, and Douglas county, Wisconsin.

Both of them are familiar with this country and the Wallace Farmer is very favorably disposed toward it.

EPIDEMIC CONFINED

Practically No Diphtheria Outside Central Hill District.

The efforts of the health department to get control of the diphtheria epidemic in the hill district above Sixth street and between Fourth avenue east and Second avenue west, resulted in another arrest for the breaking of quarantine regulations this morning.

In the district mentioned, there are twelve houses under quarantine at the present time, and this constitutes about all the diphtheria there is in the city. In all the rest of the city there are but five cases at the present time, and two of these are so far on the road toward recovery that the quarantine will be removed either this afternoon or tomorrow.

The disease is therefore confined to the district mentioned and the health department is making every effort to stamp it out.

It gained headway because of the fact that the first person afflicted in the district was not treated by a physician. No doctor was called in, and before the health department got wind of it the disease was carried into the parish school, which was later closed on account of it.

The health department has had great difficulty in enforcing the quarantine regulations, and no less than four arrests have been made, three resulting in convictions and fines.

Anton Niczgocke was the last prisoner brought before the municipal court, being arraigned this morning. He entered a plea of guilty and was fined $10 and costs.

Dr. Murray stated this morning that he had been given material assistance by the priest of the Polish parish, who had aided him in every way possible to enforce the quarantine regulations. The priest is himself a physician and the school will probably be opened next week under his direct supervision, the pupils being examined for suspicious sore throats.

A small audience at the Lyceum last evening enjoyed the presentation of Richard III as given them by John Griffith. The play is almost as entirely a one man piece as any modern start would have built for him and unlike many of the unsatisfactory one man performances of this day, is if well presented always satisfactory. The hours given over to an adequate portrayal of the wonderful, wily Richard as Shakespeare with poetical mastery shows him never leaves a sense of simply the individual attainment of one actor.

From his first speech in the first act wherein he announces from the bitterness of his heart that if he cannot be a lover and command the attention of people in one way he will in another, to his pitiful death in the end Mr. Griffith in his acting of Richard was splendidly satisfactory. He made the thrilling intellectuality and command of the man the forceful thing and although one horror plied upon another, his ceaseless and active reaching for a recognition to himself of awe and attention from the people around him in spite of his physical deformity was the feeling of every auditor.

The support of Richard III must usually be of a quiet and unobtrusive sort as scene after scene is but a setting for this one immense character. Last evening conforms to every movement of the body without chafing or hurting, and costs less than many ordinary trusses. I have put the price so low that any person, rich or poor, can buy, and I absolutely guarantee it. I make it to your order—send it to you—you wear it, and if it doesn't satisfy you, send it back to me and I will refund your money. That is the fairest proposition ever made by a rupture specialist. The banks or any responsible citizen in Marshall will tell you that is the way I do business—always absolutely on the square.

Here is what Mr. Jas. Britton, a prominent manufacturer of Bethlehem, Pa., writes:

"C. E. Brooks Esq. Dear Sir:—I have been ruptured six years and have always had trouble with it till I got your appliance. It is very easy to wear, fits neat and snug, and is not in the way at any time, day or night. In fact, at times I did not know I had it on. It just adapted itself to the shape of the body and clung to the spot, no matter what position I was in. It would be a veritable godsend to the unfortunate who suffer from rupture, if all could procure the Brooks Rupture Appliance and wear it. They certainly would never regret it. My rupture is all healed up, and nothing ever did it but your appliance. Jas. Britton."

If you have tried most everything else, come to me. Where others fail is where I have my greatest success. Write me today and I will send you my book on Rupture and its Cure, showing my appliance and giving you prices and names of people who have tried it and been cured. It is instant relief when all others fail. Remember I use no salves, no harness, no lies. Just a straight business deal at a reasonable price.

ROGERS BROTHERS.

"The Rogers Brothers in Ireland," the greatest musical comedy success of last season, is announced for presentation in the Lyceum Friday and Saturday. The production was given for more than 200 nights in New York City, and has since achieved flattering success in Boston, Chicago and Philadelphia. Something more than the average attractiveness must account for so pronounced a success, and the fame of the Rogers Brothers assures play-goers of its manifold merits. The Rogers brothers, the stars of the organization, are assisted by Marion Stanley, Bessie De Vole, an exceedingly clever company of comedians, and a remarkable aggregation of pretty girls.

CONCERNING WOMEN

They sat in a cross seat of the street car. The person back of them was not especially curious, nor especially interested, but the scenery was too, too familiar and their voices did not suggest the third line below the musical staff, so the following dialogue was heard without any straining of ears and it was quite interesting.

"Isn't he the nicest man" sighed the girl as a tall self-possessed creature passed them with a grandiloquent "How do you do" and an all sweeping lift of his hat.

"Well, I don't know" said the young matron in a judicial manner and anybody could see she had a standard with which to compare all men and they must all fall short of it. "I had him out to dinner one night about six weeks ago and he has never troubled to make a dinner call."

"But he is so nice!' Do you know I can't think of anything to say to him when I'm talking or trying to talk to him, he is so nice!"

"H'm" said the young matron.

"And then," said the grandiloquent person's supporter "he is invited out so much that I suppose he forgets."

"That's it," said the young matron, "The Duluth men are spoiled, they are invited out so much. How many hostesses do you think ever receive the courtesy of a dinner call or a party call after extending hospitality to these young persons who are being pursued by too many sensible women. If they don't know that the proper thing to do is answer an invitation before, or by their unexpected presence upon the evening, they are not the sort of person, one wants especially to invite. Not that I would not invite and enjoy entertaining a man who does not know all the niceties of social life, for some men are too busy to keep up with them, but when you take the fellows who are known as 'society men' and are treated a sauch, I expect something more, and I have taken to having as my dinner guests, jolly, entertaining, charming girls who no matter what the stress of a hurried life may be, manage to give me the courteous replies and calls than my due.

"I am not the only person who entertains in town who is sublimely and condescendingly ignored by the too much invited young man after he has partaken of my hospitality and the remedy lies with you girls if you'd only wake up and stop inviting them for a while and above all stop telephoning to them and let them do a little hustling for recognition."

"Didn't you ever telephone to John, before you were married," said the girl who was not planning to change her tactics in the least.

"Oh, well! John!" said the absurdly young matron. "He was different."

BOSTON CRITIC

Admires Delicacy and Appeal of Rena Vivienne's Butterfly.

Another Boston criticism of the interpretation of Mme. Butterfly, by Rena Vivienne, will be of interest here. One of the Boston papers says:

"The part of Butterfly herself fell to Miss Vivienne, a newcomer to our stage and a pupil of so rare a singing-actor as Victor Murel. Her voice is light, her aspect girlish; and too stout or too deep emotion lays overmuch strain on her tones and her acting. Wisely, therefore, she kept Butterfly a child to the end—a wistful child sorely smitten by circumstances that she can hardly understand, that she struggles, child-like, to disbelieve and to avoid. Her girlish and innocent archness of voice and action through the first act suited such a notion of the part. To the second she brought, not the passion that has ripened swiftly under woe, but a wistfulness of longing, and a tenderness of affection that were often very piteous in their suggestion. Often, too, in her acting and in the light coloring of her tones were delicate details and a directness of simple feeling that indicated an imaginative and responsive temperament, and that hinted of the master under whom she has studied. The audience gave her and Puccini's music through the second act the fine reward of tears."

Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Women's Council of this city will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at the club room of the library. The yearly report of the officers of the Council will be given, and the election of officers for the ensuing year will take place. A large attendance of the members is desired.

Reception.

The ladies of the Lester Park M. E. church will entertain tomorrow evening at a reception in honor of the new pastor and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. Geer. The affair will be given in the church parlors, and plans have been made for a delightful evening. The pastors and their wives of the various Methodist churches of th city have been invited, and also the pastors and congregations of the other churches of Lester Park.

Bridge Reception.

Mrs. George H. Crosby was hostess yesterday afternoon at the first of two afternoons at bridge at her home, 2029 East Superior street. The rooms were prettily decorated in chrysanthemums and the game was played at seven tables. The favors were won by Mrs. J. H. Dight, Mrs. G. A. St Clair, and Mrs. James Wanless. Mrs. Crosby entertained again this afternoon.

Informal Party.

Miss Anna Waugh, of 129 West Fourth street entertained informally yesterday afternoon at her home, 129 West Fourth street in honor of Mrs. Harry S. Burnham. About fifteen guests were entertained. Mr. and Mrs. Burnham will leave soon for the East where they will make their home.

Bridge Party.

Mrs. Jack McLaren entertained at the second of a series of bridge parties yesterday afternoon at her home, 201 South Sixteenth avenue east. The game was played at six tables, and the favors were won by Mrs. Herbert Warren, Mrs. W. G. Hegardt and Mrs. C. H. Bagley. Mrs. McLaren will entertain again Wednesday of next week.

Church Meetings.

The Ladies' Missionary society of the First Christian church will meet tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock with Mrs. Baxter Waters of 403 West Third street.

The Missionary Society of the Endion Methodist church will meet tomorrow afternoon with Mrs. T. J. McKeon of 213 South Seventeenth avenue east. A large attendance is desired as this is the first meeting of the fiscal year.

Personal Mention.

Mrs. S. H. Rothermel has returned from a three-months' visit in Philadelphia. She accompanied her daughter, Miss Eleanor Rothermel, to school in the latter city, where she is in attendance at the Horace Mann school.

Stamped Gauze Makes Pretty Debutante's Gown

By A. T. ASHMORE.

Among the new materials now on view the first place is held by the attractively stamped gauzes and chiffons. These chiffons are sold by the yard, but in dress lengths only, so that they might really come under the head of robe dresses, save what they are being used for wraps and matinees, as well as for dinner and ball gowns. In many there is only a wide border of bright colored chrysanthemums or roses, with a trellis design in blacq and white stripes, while in other patterns there is a deep border above the hem of black and white stripes, while above this agin large bow knots of blue, pink or mauve are scattered over the chiffon. In this last design there may also be a band of flowers above the black and white border.

Naturally this material requires but little trimming, so that while the chiffon is in itself expensive the gown need not be impossible. One gown for a debutante of this year was most charmingly made up. The skirt was long and just full enough over its inner skirts of silk and chiffon, and the design was like the one described above, with large blue bow knots scattered over it apparently at random, there were small bows of pale blue satin seeming to hold in place a deep lace flounce. The waist was trimmed about the decolletage with a deep lace bertha, on which were fastened here and there small clusters of little pink roses, and the sleeves were caught up to the shoulder with the flowers, below which falls a soft ruffle of lace. The wide girdle was blue satin, with long sash ends, to which were sewed here and there single or double rosebuds.

For a tea gown or matinee this figured chiffon is charming, and it may be used in one of two ways—either with skirt of lace and plain chiffon, over which falls the long loose figured chiffon mantle, or in the skirt itself with the over part of lace. Both models are effective, but if an allover pattern is chosen then it will show to better advantage in the mantle, while if to be used in the skirt a wide border of chrysanthemums or roses is best. Silk or any sort of artificial flowers to correspond with the floral design may be used to trim the gown. Large satin flowers seem to be most popular this season, the small chiffon roses that were so fashionable being rather out of date just now.

Chiffon evening wraps in white and all the soft pale shades have been fashionable now for some little time, for trimmed with lace and fur they are exquisite, pretty and in practically all cases becoming. This year the figured chiffons are already—although of such recent discovery—extremely smart for all manner of evening wraps, both in the allover patterns and the plainer material, with only a deep flowered border. Although there are a few sleeveless capes to be seen this year, a short loose sleeve is still preferred, as it is thought most graceful and is unquestionably warmer than the looser cape. The sleeve must be cut so as to have a band of the border at the cuff, but the majority of the borders are sufficiently wide to form the entire sleeve.

There are many new dotted and striped chiffons and exquisite colorings that all make up charmingly, but they are used more for reception and dinner gowns than for opera or theater costumes.

Smart Mourning Modes

BONNET AND VEIL FOR DEEPEST MOURNING PHOTOS BY JOEL FEDER

Mourning even when first donned is as formerly, for hats and bonnets, not so severe in effect this season, and while indicative of grief, are quite smart looking. In chapeaux for young matrons and girls this is particularly the case, for while sombre they are not so depressingly funereal as styles formerly in vogue.

Even heavy widow's weeds are less startling in their severity, for the veils reach only to the waist and the broad hem, which decorates that portion thrown back from the face, obviates much of its austerity.

For second mourning, a round hat in the sailor variety, made of uncut velvet and trimmed with black wings, is attractive. Worn with a plain net veil, bordered with several bands of grosgrain ribbon, it is quite as appropriate as a more severe and conservative pattern of headgear.

With a black bird of Paradise and rosettes of velvet ribbon prettily arranged on a chenille hat, third mourning differs slightly from prevailing fashions.

What Retail Markets Offer

Mushrooms, 85 cents a lb.
Hot house tomatoes, 25 cents a lb.
Florida green peppers, 50 cents a dozen.
Cranberries, 12½ cents a qt.
Clams, 20 cents a doz.
Blue Points, 25 cents a doz.
Oysters, 50 and 60 cents a qt.
Ox tails, two for 15 cents.

It is kind of fun to watch the market in the price of mushrooms. In season and out of season, mushrooms almost invariably remain 60 cents a pound, but all at once the price gaily and irresponsibly rises 15 cents a pound, and unlike the watchers of copper stock quotations, those interested in mushrooms don't go about with their faces wreathed in smiles. For the great, happy, unfettered common people it doesn't make the teenest bit of difference. Who cares for mushrooms, when pun'kins are only 15 cents for one?

Oysters are the most appetizing thing to make their appearance at table. Delicate little blue points, or stews, or soups, or raw, or almost anyway. Nice fat ones for frying, or smaller ones for other things are to he had.

The EVENING STORY.

MARY'S BARGAINS

By Helen Jane Bayler.

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

"We can't afford it, John,"

"We can, Mary."

"No; John, you are too free with your money. We must look out for the rainy day."

The man shrugged his shoulders. "You're always harping on that rainy day, which is in the future, and always will be."

"We cannot be too sure; and there are the children."

"You make them burdens too heavy to be borne" the man grumbled.

Mary and John Sherman are a couple who heard their wedding bells peal out ten years ago. Then he was a young man of good character, with an excellent position, and a heart full of love for his bride. She was a young woman, thrifty, a good manager and devoted to her husband. Today they stand as far apart as though the world divided them. Why?

Perhaps neither could tell exactly; yet the little scene just given is a good example of all their conversations. Two fine children, a boy and a girl, have been added to their lives. The parents are wildly fond of them, and yet they cannot agree about them.

The father is now a partner in the business and producing an income sufficient not only to give his wife and children advantages and a pleasant life, but enough to add to his property, and he feels that this is the time to enjoy prosperity.

The mother, her thrift developed into niggardliness, grudges almost every cent which is spent upon anything except bare necessities. Her very virtues, developed too much on one side, have grown into obsessions.

Jack came home one evening with a sore throat. His mother gave him some quinine, wrapped up his neck in the stocking from his left foot and put him to bed. This stocking remedy was a favorite one with her. Occupied with other duties she said nothing to the father about the child's ailment.

Next day Jack looked very feverish, but as she wished the house clear, to clean it thoroughly, she sent the boy off.

As he went out the door the little fellow said plaintively: "Mamma, I don't feel well, truly."

"Come, come, son, don't be a baby. If you cold is no better mother'll make you some lard and molasses when you come home," and with the seeds of disease already sown, he was sent out into the cold.

Mary worked and slaved, exposing herself in washing windows, saving a few cents, but wearing out her flesh and nerves, and depriving a very deserving woman, who needed the work, and was accustomed to it, of the little money the tasks would have earned.

At noon, sneezing herself, Mary sent her two children back to school. Little Marie was not sick, but about half-after-two she returned, leading Jack, who was in a raging fever. The house was damp and cold, and the furnace fire out.

"It seems as if all worries come at once," Mary complained, angry at fate.

"Let me telephone for papa," Marie suggested.

The mother rejoined with asperity: "You must think your father is made of money. I wonder what would become of us if I wasn't always looking out for the pennies. We'd be badly off when the rainy day arrives," and subdued by the threat of that awful day of retribution which had fallen upon her ears since babyhood, Marie wrapped up her little brother and tried to amuse him, while the mother built the furnace fire, wasting much more in trying to ignite the dead coals than if she had dumped the grate and begun afresh, and thus she tried to dry the damp house.

So interested did she become in this work that she thoroughly forgot her sick child, her own wet clothing, and the terrible cold which was settling upon her, and so it was that John found no dinner when he returned; a shivery house; his wife almost unable to speak, and his son so ill that he trembled all his way to the doctor's, fearing he could not get a physician to the house in time to be of assistance.

For the following two weeks, three trained nurses managed affairs, while a servant looked after the kitchen; one, and at times two, skilled physicians fought to save the lives of the children and the mother. When all three were recovered, Mary had only to say:

"Dear me! it is wonderful how little I am appreciated. Just see what it was to have a little laid by for a rainy day."

John, being human, could not help answering: "But, my dear, if you had not been foolish and niggardly about little things, we would have had no such rainy day."

Nevertheless, Mary kept on thinking: "I am never appreciated."

In time a new baby came to the household, and the four were delighted over it. No one loved it more truly and fondly than Mary, and yet she almost caused its death.

Desiring a new crib for the infant, instead of buying a new one, she hunted about in second-hand stores until she found one, a beautiful little nest, at an absurdly low price.

Triumphantly she had it sent home and put her dainty little baby right into it, rejoicing over the small amount she had saved. Mysteriously the baby sickened with scarlet fever, the other children were sent to relatives, and for a weary period the mother fought with the terrible scourge. In time she learned that her bargain purchase had been previously occupied by a baby who had died of the disease her child contracted.

At another time the family was nearly poisoned with canned goods. Mary habitually purchased her groceries where she could get the most goods for the least expenditure of money, and never stopped to think whether the food was wholesome. The cans were battered, the paper soiled, and in some cases missing, but she imagined that the contents would be all right, and then they were such a bargain! The goods were inferior, or they would not have been placed at a low price.

"I have such a bargain," is the expression John shivers to hear, for he knows what it means. So once he endeavored to teach her a good lesson.

He came home early in the evening, and before they went to dinner said sternly: "We all need a dose of medicine."

"Indeed we do not," Mary responded, for she did not approve of medicine except in extreme cases.

"We'll have to take it," John responded, "because I got it cheap."

Then followed a very disagreeable time, while all were dosed with an extremely bad tasting but in reality very harmless remedy.

"Oh, yes, you do. I bought these tickets because I got them at 60 per cent off." They attended the lecture and yawned through the entire evening.

Within a week, he brought home four strange men, business acquaintances of his, saying, when his wife objected: "It's so much cheaper to entertain them at home than at a restaurant." But now he has ceased, since she appeared to profit very little by his instructions, for right in the midst of his lessons she proclaimed: "I have bought the best thing, and saved at least $10."

John meekly asked: "What is it this time?"

"The children have wanted a pet. We have so much rubbish which I cannot make up my mind to throw away—and then milk is so expensive—and I have found out how to solve three questions?"

"Well, how?" inquired John, a premonition of coming trouble stealing over him.

"I have provided the children with a nice pet; I have obtained something which will do away with the rubbish problem, and which will also provide milk for us all, and at such a low price! I know it was best to buy it!" Proudly she led the way to the laundry, where, tied to the leg of the stationary washtubs, was a well-bearded old billy goat, munching away at a pair of patent leather shoes.

John, with a grim face, looked at his wife's new plan for saving towards the rainy day. Then he burst into a perfect roar of laughter, and as soon as he could find his voice, he said, gaspingly:

"Well, Mary, I guess you've found something that will eat us out of house and home all right, and perhaps the children can stand the odor, and won't mind being tossed all over the yard. But the world's got to come to an end before you'll be able to provide this family with milk from an old billy goat."

What Women Talk About

By KATHLEEN MONICA NICHOLSON.

What women talk about is a subject of more than passing interest to the Other Woman. For the Other Woman is apt to hit it in a shrewd guess seven times out of ten that she herself is the subject under discussion and she trembles accordingly.

Still, all women do not talk all the time about the Other Woman. Sometimes they discuss their homes, husbands, children, and hobbies, and sometimes they talk about the Other Woman's homes, husbands, children, or hobbies. As to whether the other subjects discussed by women differ very generally from those talked of by others, is a disputed question which this column does not presume to settle.

There being women and women, it follows—Woman being as various as she is numerous—that there will be almost as many topics of conversation as there are women to discuss them. But some topics there are as general to women as are business and politics to men.

It is quite probable that the Fiji women at their weaving bees and cocoanut luncheons discuss the absent sisters of the braiding circle as skillfully, if not as covertly as any organized organization nearer home. But this line of talk is seldom malicious. This line of talk which made the sewing circle and the church society famous has blunted the keenness of its edge to conform to the better, broader spirit of the day which discourage that sort of thing.

Of course, the woman who discusses her pet ailments conscientiously, continuously, and piously is not yet a memory of the past. It will require a stronger hand than that of the Cheer Up committee of the Mental Suggestion Cure association to put her down for once and all.

Still, when women actually get down to the business of talking, after having aired their homes, husbands, children and hobbies, they generally set about on an introspective hunt for real solid food for thought. And the point of it is, that though they may discuss exhaustively and lucidly the mysteries pertaining to the occult, which is quite the rage as a topic among some women—or opera, or the latest play may be their theme. Or be it the Monday lace sale, the art exhibit, the newest book—no matter how interesting, perplexing or abstruse the subject of their various and combined remarks—there is no topic imaginable which will not permit of a reversion to the universal favorite—the Other Woman.

And though woman's tongue has lost some of its tang, it has stood for ages proverbial that it is a special gift endowed with superhuman power as a weapon of offense or of defense. Certain it is that she can at times do stunts with it that will make the world wonder.

A woman with the sweetest disposition in the world can turn the tail of her tongue—at times—in an arrow barbed with covert ridicule in a way that will simply exhaust one's adjectives expressive of surprise.

A woman may be by nature as harmless as the dove in the region of the tongue, but let her come "not in war, but in peace," to where she is at the mercy of the merciless and she may or she may not, develop the power of using her own, but certain it is, she can if she cares to. For that is human nature—more particularly, woman nature.

With an occasional individual type, remaining, however, it is quite safe to assume that the evil minded, mischief making, insinuating busy body woman, whose business was her own and included that of everybody on her list, has become a mere tradition. Society frowns on her, the Woman's club knows her not, the business woman has no time for her.

And her passing arouses no regret, And that it is so is just as well!

RUNAWAY WIFE ARRESTED.

Nebraska Woman and Young Man Are Caught at Billings, Mont.

Billings, Mont., Nov. 8.—After leaving her husband, formerly a well known saloonman of Lincoln, Neb., Mrs. Minnie Lathrop and Hart Calloway, a boy of 19, were arrested in this city yesterday morning, as they were alighting from a train. Mrs. Lathrop is a young woman of prepossessing appearance, and, although she left her husband, she denies that she was running away with Calloway. Lathrop, it is stated, had traced his runaway spouse to Sheridan, Wyo., and Sheriff Smith of that place, who was in Billings, took Mrs. Lathrop back to Sheridan with him. Calloway was allowed to go free.

The Story of the White Heart

One woman says: When I prepared my first breakfast of

PILLSBURY'S BEST Cereal

VITOS, I did not notice the directions and consequently had enough food for the whole neighborhood. I am amazed at its great economy and delighted with its rich creamy flavor.

FOR BREAKFAST-- Stir slowly one half cup into two and one half cups of boiling water, salt to taste and boil 15 minutes. If too thick add boiling water. Serve hot with cream and sugar. When cold it makes a delicious luncheon dish, fried and served with syrup. Numerous dainty dinner deserts can be prepared with fruit and jelly.

RAILROADS

MOVEMENT VERY HEAVY

Homeseekers' Rates Will Be Discontinued on November 30.

Homeseekers' rates to Western points will be discontinued Nov. 30. The movement under this class of tickets has been the heaviest in history this year, but during the last few days it has slackened off somewhat, probably because of the near approach of winter.

The rates have been in effect daily all during the fall. In previous years they were on sale only the first and third Tuesday of each month during a certain period, but this year the roads decided to put them on daily. On this account the movement has been scattering and there has not been the congestion which prevailed in former years.

Early in the season the feasibility of continuing the rates through December was discussed because the movement was so heavy, but from present indications the roads will pull out the cheap rates at the end of the present month.

MANY WILL SEE GAME.

Football Special Will be Run From Twin Cities to Chicago.

"There will be a tremendous movement of football enthusiasts to Chicago on account of the big game next Saturday," said H. L. Wyand of St. Paul, traveling passenger agent of the Chicago Great Western road, who is in the city today.

"All the lines leading from the Twin Cities to Chicago will run special trains, and the indications are that they will be crowded to capacity. The question with the roads is not how to get the business, but how to handle the crowds that go without any special solicitation on the part of the roads."

The Omaha out of Duluth is preparing for a heavy movement to Chicago, and practically all of the berths in the extra sleepers provided have been engaged.

Rebuilding San Francisco.

The more conservative citizens of San Francisco have set ten years as the time necessary to rebuild their city and estimate the cost at about $4,000,000. If you are trying to build up your system, that has become weakened as a result of imperfect digestion and constipated bowels, we would urge you to commence taking Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. You'll find it a wonderful help, as it will restore the digestive organs to their normal condition, and aid nature in extracting all the health-giving and sustaining qualities from your food. Thus it cures headache, dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness, constipation, general debility, heartburn, poor appetite, flatulency, chills, colds, female ills or malaria, fever and ague. Be sure to try it at once, but insist on getting Hostetter's. "Something else" won't do in its place.

DRINKERS' LOGIC.

Russell Sage was very much opposed to drinking. He would often rail with homely and humorous wisdom against drink, says the Los Angeles Times.

"Men drink," he said one day to a broker, "because they are happy, because they are sad,, because they are too warm, because they are too cold. Is there any logic in that?

"When I see men drinking, I think of a little boy at the seashore.

"This little boy, at play with his bucket and shovel in the sand, suddenly run to the edge of an advancing wave, and, scooping up a handful of salt water and foam, drank it greedily.

"'Oh, don't drink that!" said his nurse. "It will make you thirsty.'

"'What if it does?' said he. 'There's plenty more.'"

COWBOYS PLAYED BALL.

Every Man Had His Colt's 45 at His Belt.

The Hon. Bill Sanger, sheriff of Arnim, Tex., wiped his mouth carefully on his coat sleeve, turned his glass upside down with considerable reluctance, and sighed, says the Chicago Inter Ocean.

"I observe by this paper," he remarked discursively, "that the baseball season has hit the trail."

"Baseball," he remarked reminiscently, "is a plumb grand game. If I was young and frivolous and sort of careless-like about my person, I don't know anything I'd rather do than trifle with this here baseball proposition. But being some middle aged and settled, I just puts in my time chasing greasers and such, and reading about this here baseball mix-up in the papers. Which is some safer.

"I don't know as I mentioned it previous and explaining, but this here town once had a real, bang-up baseball team, the same being called a nine from the number which performs on a side. I'm admitting free and sincere that it don't sound reasonable to say that a lot of cowpunchers which don't run around much except on a cayuse could put up a fancy article of this here national sport. But I'm talking straight, and I don't hear no protests. This here team I'm mentioning—the same being composed of cow gentlemen from these parts—was real champions. They wasn't never beaten. It came about this way:

"We wasn't none of us plumb familiar with this here game. I'm fair to say some of the boys never heard of it, and those that had wasn't rightly familiar with the way it was done. But one day the mayor and me and some of the boys, not including a lunger named Norton, which had come to Arnim to pass out, was sitting in Sam's place liquoring when the mayor he pulls a paper out of his pocket.

"'I'm right puzzled about something, he says, tasting his liquor critical and observing—the same being plumb unusual with him—'and I'd like to have some light shed on it. I picked up this here paper this morning—the same being about a year old—and I finds in it something about baseball. This is the way this here piece lopes along:

"'"The Nationals lashed the Yanks to the mast yesterday afternoon and skinned them alive to the tune of 10 to 1. Smith was in the box for the home team, and his corkscrews made the Yanks swat the ambient until their teeth chattered. Brown was handy with the ash, getting a couple of bingles into right garden, a grass cutter through the short, and a pop-up that, if Jones hadn't died at the plate, would have been the goods."

"'There's more to it,' said the mayor, drawing a long breath, 'but that's a medium sample. I'm fair to say that I'm familiar with considerable language, common and fancy, but that there line of conversation ain't known in these parts. But it sounds good to me. There must be lots of action in that there baseball proposition. I'm for it. Lead me to it. I want to die at swat the ambient. I'm pining to die at the plate. I'm yearning to skin 'em alive.'

"Well, sir, there wasn't anybody speaks up except Norton—which was grinning some prominent—and he translates the language.

"'And,' he says, or words to that effect, 'you boys can learn all about this baseball proposition, because the team from where I live is coming down here to train. I thought it would liven things up to have 'em come here. They got to go South, and they might as well land in Arnim.'

"Gentlemen, prance! Gentlemen, hush! We was all fair pleased to death and we makes preparations.

"'We'll show 'em,' says the Mayor, some liquored and enthusiastic, 'that there ain't nothing about baseball we don't know. We'll demonstrate a few. We'll skin 'em alive.'

"And so we makes the Mayor Captain of the team and gets to practicing. We came near giving it up after the first day. We was mighty near letting it slide. It sure was a plumb undignified exhibition. It wore us out fearful. It busted our hands up some.

"But Norton, he told us how to do it and we kept at it. The Mayor got so he could stop a ball which was rolling along the ground some swift, and the rest of the nine wasn't much behind him. A couple of times the boys stopped balls before they hit the ground. We was plumb expert.

"'Then this here team come, and when we seen 'em play we was plumb discouraged. They loped around loose and general and they caught balls casual and regular. They knew how.

"'And just as we was getting plum discouraged the Mayor calls a meeting of the team.

"'Gentlemen,' he says, arguing and perssasive, 'these shorthorns look good, don't they? It seems as if they was about to rub it in. We ain't in it, are we? Shucks!!'

"'Meaning what?' asks one of the boys.

"'Meaning,' says the Mayor, closing his left eye swift and indicating, 'that we just got to prance. We got to skin 'em alive. We got to fan the ambient and we got to die at the plate. The meaning of all which I don't know; but it sounds good. It sounds like action. And that's what there's going to be.'

"Gentlemen, snort! Gentlemen, rave! It came the day of the game. It came to the game itself. And things looked good. Because there wasn't no umpire, and old man Sanderson he volunteered. He didn't know the game, but he was willing. He didn't know a base on balls from a fly, but he was plum willing to learn. And when these here visitors they kicked we just overruled 'em. It was done calm and judicious. There wasn't no hardware used.

"Gentlemen, hush! Gentlemen, weep! Gentlemen—but it was exciting. The Mayor, which was pitching, he never let 'em hit it. He never threw the ball near enough. He kept it away from 'em a-purpose. And when the visitors got mad old man Sanderson, the same that was umpire, he quieted them down.

"'I've been reading the rules, he says, calm and persuasive, displaying his armament prominent and ready, and I observe that the umpire runs things. What he says goes. I'm the umpire, and if I'm inclined to mention that most of these efforts which the Mayor is making is strikes, why, I ain't intending to be contradicted. Besides, he ain't never done it before, and we got to make allowances.' which he did.

Well, sir, the game loped along brisk and undoying until it came to the ninth inning and the score was a tie. There wasn't anybody had made anything. The Mayor never threw no balls that the other fellows could reach, and the pitcher for the Shorthorns he threw them corkscrews which was mentioned in the article about baseball. But then there comes a time when the Mayor was careless he threw the ball near the man which had the stick. And he hit it. He socked it fearful. It went about a mile. And Frisky Wilson, which was out in right field, he chases it. But his cayuse ain't handy, and we was all despairing and frantic when old man Sanderson, which was umpiring, he yells out:

"'Only two bases on that hit,' he says, loud and raciousspjl½nlso0rt hrdlu rdlulu loud and raucous.

"What's that for?' asked one of the Shorthorns.

"'I've been reading the regulations,' says old man Sanderson, 'and I observe that a hit into the crowd only counts two bases. Them is known as the ground rules, and they goes.'

"'But,' says this here visiting Shorthorn, 'there ain't no crowd. There ain't nobody out in the direction took by the ball except two greasers and a cayuse.'

"'When two greasers and a cayuse congregates in this here town,' says old man Sanderson, 'the vicinity is plumb crowded. Play ball!'

"ell, sir, the visitors didn't like it much, but they goes ahead. And in a minute the Mayor, which was sweating free and continuous, pitching, he lets another ball come too near, and the Shorthorns hits it plumb free and enjoying.

"Gentlemen, but he was sad! Gentlemen, there was excitement! The ball had hit the trail for other parts, and there was a man running home. Old man Sanderson he was stumped and he didn't know what to do. But just as this here Shorthorn which was on second come near third, running swift and undignified, Baldy Smith, which was standing there for our side, he lugged out his Colt and begun to spin the cylinder.

"Gentlemen, it was remarkable! Gentlemen, it was strange! This here Shorthorn which was running some, he pretty near stopped. He slowed down some marked and noticing. And when he got to third he acted tired. Seemed to have wore himself out. Looked like he was out of breath. And Baldy he slides his Colt back in his pants and smiles kind and agreeable.

"'Sort of thought the dust might have clogged her up,' he says, amiable and discoursing, to the Shorthorn which had stopped. 'Just occurred to me to look her over. Guess she's all right.' And the game went on.

"Well, sir, it come again. The mayor, which had liquored regular and efficient between innings, he began to get wild and he got the ball too near again. And the Shorthorn he hit it brisk and earnest. And it went about two miles. And the Shorthorn on third he looked sort of pleading at Baldy Smith and started to run.

"Gentlemen, there was a riot! Gentlemen, it sounded like the Fourth of July! Gentlemen, it was exciting! You couldn't have told whether it was a ball game or a round-up.

"The mayor, being some heated with red eye, he started first, and in a minute everybody on our side was fanning his gun. They was earnest and sincere. They was enthusiastic. They wanted to win the game. But the Shorthorn which was running for home, he didn't understand. He wasn't used to baseball in these parts. And after he'd got half way to home he changed direction and started north. He moved swift. He had done some fancy running. And the boys, just to show they liked it, they loaded up and fanned him some more. They was playful and conscientious, and they wanted to win the game.

"Gentlemen, there ain't much more to tell. Old man Sanderson, which, as I've indicated, was umpiring some fair and impartial, he looked things over.

"'I observe,' he says, after we had liquored silent and mediating, 'that there ain't no home plate, and I'm complimenting some cow gentleman on fanning his hardware swift and accurate. And I'm also mentioning that the Shorthorn which was on third, he ain't showed up yet, and as he was heading south and humping some the last time I looked I judged he's left for other parts. And so, not wishing to be hard on this Shorthorn bunch, but aiming to be fair and impartial, I hereby declare this here game forfeited, and these here cow gentlemen from Arnim the champions.' Which we was."

The sheriff paused and rolled a cigarette.

"Did you ever play again?" asked Jim Hicks of the Bar Circle.

"Not at no time," replied Mr. Sanger. "We was willing, but we couldn't get nobody to play. We was too scientific for these here Shorthorn nines."

TRACING A LETTER.

A young English woman visiting in Paris received a note from a friend saying that tickets had been sent by an earlier post for a concert to take place that afternoon, but by error a wrong street number was written on the envelope, says the Youth's Companion. This, said her correspondent, might make a delay in the arrival of the letter, and it would be well to make inquiries at once at the post of the nearest division.

Arriving at the postoffice of our quarter I made known my errand to three young gentlemen in succession. The last young gentleman took out a long paper and demanded peremptorily my name, age, address and birthplace. He was then proceeding to that of my father and mother when I suggested that all this information, although doubtless of thrilling interest to the postoffice, could scarcely assist in restoring my lost letter, which contained tickets I must positively have before 1 o'clock of that day.

"Ha, it is then of a letter lost!" he cried, as though suddenly illuminated.

"Well, misdirected, as I have already explained to three persons here."

"But it is not here where one brings the letters which find themselves badly directed. Those letters are united in another department of the great post. This document here," he pointed to my biography, "the chief of my department will despatch to the great post. One will make communication to you as soon as traces if the letter are discovered."

It was half past 11 when I reached the great post, and I was sent to five different departments before arriving at the one for misdirected letters. Feeling both snubbed and ill used, I inquired whether before we proceeded to fill in more forms this monsieur would kindly tell me whether there was the remotest chance of recovering the letter than day before 2 o'clock.

"Today! This day itself!" he cried, in shrill indignation. "Parbleu, but you imagine to yourself, then, madam, that the post conducts itself like an automobile!"

"I hoped that since my letter is here—actually here in this department—that one could place the hand on it in the course of two hours. In England," I continued, with a fine outburst of patriotism, "we have such a perfectly organized system that I should have the letter I required in ten minutes."

"Remind yourself that England is, after all, but an island. Here we are in France"—he threw back his head proudly—"and here things march not to quickly. It will, perhaps, be fifteen days before your case comes up. Each must proceed in turn."

"Then it is useless to go into the matter," I answered, and in deep depression turned away.

"He that wants a good deal must not ask for a little," nor must he that wants a thing very badly be content to ask for it but once—unless, as does usually happen, one publication of a Herald want ad. "does the business." print"—he can let the types do that.

EXCLUSION AGITATION

Against Japanese Now Reaching Central Stage on the Coast.

Some Reasons for Alleged Feeling Against the Mikado's Subjects.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 8.—Agitation against the Japanese is becoming more general and intense on this coast. It has its center in San Francisco, where the Japanese congregate and where the labor unions are strongest. Public opinion here seems to be united in the conviction that the Japanese must be excluded, perhaps as rigorously as the Chinese, if a race war is to be averted. The leaders of the movement to exclude the Japanese are the labor unionists, but the feeling against the Orientals is by no means confined to those who feel the effects of their competition.

The chief point of friction thus far developed between the whites and the Japs is the use of the public schools. Unlike the Chinese, the Japs are quick to seize upon every opportunity to acquire English. Most of them are young men, even boys, and they have entered the schools here in great numbers, crowding out white children in some cases. Parents object to the association of half-grown or even fully grown Orientals with their children, and cases are cited with more or less evidence to prove that vicious habits have been acquired by American youth through this contact.

On account of the protest that went up, Japanese scholars have been forced by the school authorities to take a back seat, and it is possible that they will be excluded entirely from the schools. The immediate result of this action has been to raise a counter protest in Japan, where the leading newspapers are discussing the incident with the sealing case and others as proof of the growing anti-Japanese feeling in this country.

The young Japanese, who are using the American schools as a means of acquiring English, maintain themselves by waiting on table, scullery work, and as valets, etc. Few of them are able at first to do any work which comes into direct competition with American labor. The rough laborer, the railroad digger, is another kind of Jap, and there are some of these on this coast, but they are not numerous. Gangs of them are employed in Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Utah and Nevada, but the Jap who comes to California is a different sort. He is a daper, acute, oily chap, who knows exactly what he wants and how to get it quickly. He joins a Gospel society, and by the artifice of trying to study the white man's God and doing the white mans chores he manages to obtain an English education without cost. The white people who rejoice when a heathen soul is redeemed are only too glad to aid one of these young fellows. They feed him on sacred literature and patiently assist him in his studies. A little later, when he has obtained what he wanted, they are grieved to find him just as devout a Buddhist or Shintoist as ever.

The want columns of San Francisco were full until recently of applications for work for young Japs. They read like this:

The day has gone by when the people of this coast admired the Japanese. At first they welcomed them, after an unpleasant experience with the Chinese. Now, old as it may seem, the Chinese are not as unpopular as the Japs. Neither Oriental is a favorite, but if Californians were compelled to choose between them, they would prefer the Chinaman. The Chinaman flocks by himself, and never butts in where he is not wanted. His vices affect himself, but the white is rarely contaminated. He is usually a man of his word, and after making a hard bargain he will keep it. He does not quarrel with outsiders. His hatchet and pistol are exercised almost exclusively in his own highbinder scraps, which concern the whites not at all.

The Jap, as he is found and developed on this coast is often a trickster, quarrelsome, totally unreliable, and otherwise offensive. Perhaps the stories of immorality which are current here should be taken with a pinch of salt, but there is no doubt that the Jap in an American community is far from being the quaint, cleanly, honest, smiling little fellow he is pictured to be at home. There is enough of the Malay in him to keep him at cross purposes with the white man at all times. The less said of the Japanese women who infest San Francisco the better.

The immigration reports show that over 11,000 Japanese entered the United States in 1905, and the number arriving in 1906 will greatly exceed that figure. More than half of the Japs came under the flag at Hawaii. As no account is kept of passengers arriving from Hawaii, it is impossible to tell what proportion of the 6,600 Japanese arriving at Hawaii last year continued their journey to California. The number was very large. This year the Japanese entries by the way of Hawaii have been larger than ever before. Every steamer from the island brings its contingent of the brown men, sometimes several hundreds at a time.

The time has not arrived when hostile demonstrations are made against the Japanese, but it is sure to come, in the opinion of people on this coast, if the immigration is not lessened. Mutterings against the Japs resemble those which preceded the outbreak against the Chinese years ago. The greatest resentment is expressed by laboring men and those representing them. These people pay no attention to international comity and treaty obligations. If they think a foreigner, and particularly an Oriental, is working for less wages than themselves, they are likely to try to remedy the situation by the most convincing argument known to them, which is corporal punishment and threats of death. Possibly the feeling is most intense in those laboring people who are themselves recently from foreign lands.

The Japanese government has repeatedly declared that it is not anxious to see an increase of emigration to the United States. It stated this position before the war with Russia, and has stated it since more emphatically, pointing out that the development of Korea and Manchuria requires the presence of Japanese and gives sufficient outlet to the surplus population of the empire.

Nevertheless, there is little doubt that the system of assisting emigrants still exists in Japan, with the cognizance, if not the support, of the government. This system was in full swing five years ago, and nothing has occurred to cause its discontinuance or lessen its profits. There were twelve emigration companies in Japan five years ago, with an aggregate capital stock of 558,999 yen, all operating under the laws called "Imin Toriatsukinin" and practically under government patronage, as are nearly all large Japanese enterprises. The officers and stockholders of these companies are among the leading business men and politicians of Japan. The industry of assisting emigrants is acknowledged to be very profitable.

The keystone of this system is the theory of perpetual allegiance to the sovereign. Loyalty to the fatherland was manifested to a remarkable degree by the Japanese during the recent war. They rarely, if ever, renounce their allegiance to the emperor. Like the Chinese, the Japanese come to the United States for the purpose of acquiring money, and returning home as soon as possible. Unlike the Chinese, the Japanese does his best to learn American methods, in order to apply them at home.

In a report to the commissioner general of immigration, a special commissioner dispatched to Japan to investigate the immigration, explained why the Japanese prefer to come to the United States rather than to go to the new countries nearer home.

"The Japanese lives in the present; he is not, and never will be, an independent pioneer; he wants immediate profits, or wages; hence he desires to emigrate to civilized countries, where he can earn good wages, and, as he expresses it, 'learn English,' and how to farm and do other things, as the more favored nations do, and, after he has achieved these results and made money, place himself in a position to return to his native land in from three to five years; hence, it is an easy matter for the agents of the emigration companies to persuade large numbers to come to the West.

"They are beguiled with rosy stories of high wages and immediate employment. The Pacific coast is a favored locality with them, not only on account of the wages paid, but because of the climate, which is very similar to that in the neighborhood of Nagasaki, Kobe and Yokohama; consequently there is a strong immigration movement. At present immigrants, aside from those who come to the United States and Canada, are going to Mexico, Peru, Brazil, Hawaii, Korea and indeed to every country where contract laborers may be placed; but it requires much persuasion to induce them to go to Mexico, Peru and Brailz."

The commissioner throws this further light upon the situation:

"I was informed by Mr. ———— that Mr. ————, a leading member of parliament from the province of Kyushu, told him that his province (Kyushu) was annually producing 1,600 more laborers than they could find employment for at home. At the time this conversation occurred this Japanese member of parliament was on his way to one of the southern islands to see if arrangements could not be made to take laborers there. This member of parliament, in his conversation with Mr. ———— spoke of the situation as one which gave them great concern.

"The question naturally occurrs, how do they raise sufficient money to emigrate? As I intimated in my report of the 24th ultimo, the emigration companies in certain instances furnish them money, sending a Banto along with the emigrants to look after their interest. I found, by inquiring among the people, that it requires from fie to ten years for a Japanese farmer to save 200 yen. Some undoubtedly do this, but the majority secure money by selling their holdings and by borrowing from the emigration companies—friends and relatives, upon whom they are more or less dependent, going their security. The laws are very strict in Japan concerning the collection of debts. There are no exemptions, and hence, in view of the fact that every emigrant to the United States is able to send money home, this is a safe business. Besides, the pickings of the emigration companies enable them to get back a large part of the funds loaned the emigrant before he sails, I cannot, of course, prove this state of facts, but all the circumstances concur in supporting this view."

The agitation for the exclusion of the Japanese is led by the Japanese and Korean Exclusion league, which is composed largely of union labor representatives. Memorials have been sent to congress, and the California delegation in congress has made some stir toward discussion of the Japanese immigration question. The best informed people here perceive that the East is not ready at this time to consider Japanese exclusion, but they are convinced that the time is rapidly approaching when something must be done to protect this coast from the demoralizing influences of the Japanese. If exclusion is impossible, they will demand restriction, at least. If this is not forthcoming, they believe the answer will be an uprising against the Japanese.

STATE PAPERS BOLDLY STOLEN

Austro-Hungarian Premier Loses Document of Vast Value.

London, Nov. 8.—According to the Vienna correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, a valise containing documents belonging to the Hungarian premier, Dr. Wekerle, including two protocols of sittings of the ministerial council and other important state papers, has disappeared in Budapest. In political circles there is a suspicion of criminal manipulation, as one of the documents was the original text of the much discussed "pactum" between the emperor-king and the members of the Hungarian coalition party concerning the military system.

The loss of the valise was reported by a servant, who had been charged to carry it to the railroad station at Budapest. It is surmised, however, that it was either stolen from the carriage or that the servant was bribed.

PIPE-SMOKING RACE.

Novel Event for the Smoking Championship of England.

London, Nov. 8.—Pipe-smoking as an art was exemplified by a most novel competition held at the Brewers' & Allied Trades' exhibition at Islington last week.

Although such competitions have been held in Germany, this is the first in England. The brewers believe the art has been long enough obscured by music, painting and literature, and so will give it in future a place on the ladder of fame. It is contended that a man who can keep his pipe going for half an hour with one lighting is an artist. He is usually an Irish laborer, a stolid German or an English navvy.

The prizes were nine in number. The conditions were as follows:

Bring your own pipes. Lady smokers will not be barred. Tobacco—one tighth of an ounce of Virginia—will be provided.

Pipes will be inspected by the judges before filling.

Pipes must be filled once only.

Forty seconds will be allowed for lighting.

No relighting permitted.

The smoker who makes his tobacco last the longest will be the champion pipe smoker of England.

Weingott, a well-known pipemaker of England, interviewed, offered this advice to the competitors:

"The man who wants to win must have a large briar pipe of respectable age. The inside dimensions of the bowl should be 1¾ inches in depth by seven-eighths of an inch in diameter. This will hold comfortably the amount of tobacco allowed, and any expert pipe-smoker would be able to keep it alight for at least half an hour."

The world's record is held by a sausage manufacturer in Berlin, who last summer kept his pipe going in the national pipe race for a few minutes over an hour.

The county has practically completed negotiations for the purchase of a fractional lot just east of the postoffice, having a frontage of twenty feet on West First street, to be used in connection with the remaining eastern portion of the block purchased for the new courthouse and jail.

The deal has been made by a committee comprised of County Commissioners J. M. Sundeen and F. W. Kugler and Assistant County Attorney W. G. Crosby. The purchase price is $9,500. The deeds are now in the hands of the heirs of the Fowler estate to be executed.

When the county acquire the east half of the postoffice block for the new courthouse location, through condemnation proceedings, it failed to get a twenty-foot fractional lot which formed a portion of the 70-foot property, adjoining the government property, and owned by the Fowler estate. Recognizing the desirability of having this small piece of land, to prevent its future use in some way which might endanger the safety of the new courthouse, even though it might not be used as part of the actual building site, the county board authorized a committee to confer with the owners and get the lot by direct purchase, if it could be had at a reasonable price, without condemnation proceedings. The county offered $9,500 for the property, the same amount that the Fowler heirs were about to sell it for some time ago, before the county selected the courthouse site, and the offer was accepted.

Under the condemnation proceedings the county bought the east half of the block for $136,900. With the additional $9,500 for the 20-foot lot, the aggregate cost of the new courthouse site is $146,400.

By resolution of Commissioner Sundeen, the county board, yesterday afternoon, authorized the purchase of the lot, the same to be approved by the courthouse commission, and the title to be passed on by the county attorney.

Because the first attempt at a school meeting to organize new school district No. 62, in Lakewood, broke up in a row with no results accomplished, the county board has set another date for a school meeting. It will be held Saturday, Nov. 24, at 2 p. m., at the Spring Garden schoolhouse. A set of officers for the new district will be elected.

It is understood that the first meeting was attended by one or more persons in an intoxicated condition, and that one personal encounter occurred during which one of the woman voters in district struck one of the men in the face. Following the trouble, the meeting broke up and everybody went home.

Alice Pierce, owner of the northern quarter of the southwest quarter of section 4, 50-51, notified the board that she wished a settlement with the county for some gravel taken from her land for road purposes. A committee was appointed to investigate the claim. The gravel pit is said to be the only one available on the Swan Lake road, and the county may purchase the gravel rights.

A CRAZY NEWSPAPER.

Inmates of Austrian Insane Asylum Issue Their Own Paper.

Vienna, Nov. 8.—Peculiarly happy was thought of the management of the Mauer-Ochlinger insane asylum in starting a newspaper written and published by the inmates. The paper is called the M-O Asylum News. The first number has just been published and has achieved a great success. It is to be a monthly.

The asylum, which is the biggest in the world, is situated just outside Vienna. Among the inmates are several newspaper men and authors, printers, pressmen and plenty of poets.

When the herr director of the asylum proposed the scheme, it was hailed with delight by the newspaper coterie of inmates and they all went frantically to work. A printing plant was already in existence in the asylum. In his opening address the editor details all this and then says: "What then is lacking? Workers? A program? We need not shrink from these." He concludes with "And now forward! Every contribution will be received with pleasure by the editor and carefully examined as to suitability. No remuneration, it is true, can be given to successful authors, as the management is, alas, poor and has no funds. But to be printed in the M-O News is something."

One of the interesting articles is headed "The System of Healing by Work—Opinions of Patients on the Value of Occupation." An artist inmate writes: "In my judgment one may say, and with perfect truth, that work is life and the spice of life. The history of civilization proves it." Another patient says he was suffering from depression, He was put to playing tennis, billiards, reading and so on. But these did not interest him. The herr director then advised him to try carving toys out of wood. He laughed at the suggestion as he was most awkward with his fingers. However, he tried it. Practice made him skillful. He became interested and is now practically cured of melancholia. There are a dozen such statements.

Two or three columns of the paper are devoted to hygiene, advice and suggestions of treatment. There is a puzzle page with three prizes of 75 cents, 50 cents and 25 cents.

Critical essays, reviews of books and publications with a scattering of jokes and a dramatic critic's column make up the rest of this highly original four-page paper, which, as its motto says, is "For the Mad, by the Mad."

The dramatic critic writes of a negro minstrel show at the asylum. He ends his notice by saying: "Particularly charming was the little nigger, 4 years old, who joined in the cakewalk right merrily! The artistic results arrived at, however, were on the whole more original than high class."

So is the M-O News.

SAYS GAME IS SCARCE.

Meadowlands Man Declares None is to be Found in Neighborhood.

"Game of all kinds is scarce in the Meadowlands country, along the Alborn branch of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern," said Axel Anderson, a settler in that neighborhood, who was in Duluth today.

"Oridinarily at this time of year, one sees all kinds of game in the woods there, but they seem to have cut the district out now. Perhaps it is because that the country is getting gradually filled up with settlers.

"I have not seen a single deer in Meadowlands this fall. That is saying a good deal, when you consider that usually the settlers are pestered to death with them before the season opens. Usually before the season opens and you can't shoot any deer, they are as thick as thieves, but they are mighty scarce this year."

THIS RACE ISSUE NEW

Italian Immigration a Very Live Political Issue in Mississippi.

Seven Candidates Have Started In a Seventeen-Month Campaign.

New York, Nov. 8.—A New Orleans special to the Sun says: The campaign for governor in Mississippi, now under way, seems likely to turn upon a race issue, but a race issue in which the negro is little concerned. The Italian quarter has suddenly come to the front as the principal issue discussed.

The negro has so far been barely mentioned in the campaign speeches, and the general sentiment is that the race question, as far as the negro is concerned, is settled. Governor Vardaman is about the only man of prominence who thinks otherwise. His announcement that he intends to make the campaign for United States senator against John Sharp Williams on the negro issue and the repeal of the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments has not called forth a ripple of response.

Campaigning in Mississippi is peculiar. By the primary law the nominations are left entirely to the voters, no political convention of any kind being allowed. The candidates have therefore to go directly before the voters.

The last campaign lasted two years, that time being required to enable the candidates to visit every one of the seventy-six counties. The present campaign has been shortened to seventeen months, the candidates having announced themselves in July, 1906, and the election being held in November, 1907.

Seven candidates came out for governor and the campaigning was opened —this would have been impossible in any state except Mississippi—at a small county fair at Philadelphia, a village of a few hundred people, miles from a railroad. Here all seven candidates spoke, each giving his views on various questions.

As they were all Democrats there was no great variety in their views. Then in the last few weeks the Italian has suddenly bobbed up as a new race question for Mississippi to solve.

The introduction of this issue is attributed to Charles Scott of Rosedale, who is generally regarded as the strongest candidate in the field. Mr. Scott is a resident of the Yazoo, delta, where the population is overwhelmingly negro. He is a man of wealth, education and refinement.

In the delta the great question is that of labor. There is not and has never been enough labor. The negroes are leaving the cotton plantations, and it has been impossible to get other labor in their stead.

Mr. Scott suggested that Italian labor be employed as in the adjacent states of Louisiana and Arkansas, and he has thus brought before the voters the question, Do you want the Italian in preference to or as a supplement to the negro And if he is brought in, what will be his social and political status? This issue has presented itself more vigorously as the campaign has progressed and it looks now as though the election of 1907 in Mississippi would be a referendum as to whether the Italian is wanted or not.

Mr Smith is the chief advocate of Italian immigration. Judge Truly and Mr Brewer argue vigorously against "the low-browed Italian." The other candidates are apparently investigating the subject before committing themselves. Two have come to New Orleans to look into the Italian situation and found it very satisfactory. Indeed it is labor which has made Mr. Scott so eager to adopt the same labor for his own state.

There are probably 60,000 Italians in Louisiana, and all are doing well. When the duke of Aosta on his recent visit to New Orleans gave $5,000 to the Italian poor of the city, the money was returned to him by the Italian consul and the Italian societies, with the information that there was not an Italian in New Orleans who needed assistance.

The Italian can get work the day he lands here, and he begins saving money the first week. At their arrival Italians usually go to work on sugar plantations, where they are rapidly displacing the negroes, proving more efficient in every respect.

In eight or ten years they have saved enough to go into business or to buy a farm. For miles around New Orleans they are going into the truck-farming business and are prospering. In New Orleans they have crowded into nearly every line of industry, and into every profession.

In the cane fields the Italian had shown himself a good worker. A tradition comes from slavery days that the negro hand is more apprehensive than that of the whites and is better suited for cotton picking, and also that there is some bond of sympathy between the negro and the mule, which enables the negro to handle a mule beter than a white man can. The Italian has disproved that tradition.

For the last few years the Italians have been pouring into the cotton country and into Mississippi through the Yazoo delta. Shall this immigration be continued, discouraged and extended, is the question which the voters of Mississippi will be asked to pass on.

Mr. Scott strongly advocates this immigration, pointing to the success of Louisiana, formerly a negro state, but now with a white majority which is growing larger every day. The Italian will supply the deficiency of labor in Mississippi and enable it to develop its resources. He will take the place of the departing or degenerating negro, and he will help to solve the race problem by getting rid of the negro majority and making Mississippi a white state.

The arguments on the other side are mainly those of prejudice. The white population of Mississippi is probably the most purely Anglo-Saxon in this country and there prevails something of the old Know Nothing prejudice against this heretofore unknown Latin race.

There are several specific complaints. The Italian in 1905 aroused much prejudice against himself as being the chief means of transporting yellow fever through Louisiana and Mississippi. Again, it has been argued that the Italian, because he is a competitor of the negro, working by his side in the fields, on terms of equality may fraternize with the blacks and that there may arise a race of Latin negroes or mulatto negroes, introducing a new and dangerous element into the already troublesome race problem. But such fears have proved groundless. The Italian soon adopts the prevailing Southern sentiment on the race question.

The Italian issue came up in a concrete form in Bolivar county, the blackest county in the state, a few days ago, when the school board complained to the superintendent of public education that a number of Italian children were attending the white school. This, it was announced, was objected to by the parents of the white children.

The board asked Supt. Whitfield whether it would be justified under the law in establishing separate schools for the Italians, dividing the school children into three races, white or Caucasion, Italians and negroes—it will be seen that rural sentiment of Mississippi rules the Italian out of the Caucasian race. The superintendent replied that the state constitution recognized only separate white and negro schools, and declared that the Italian must be regarded as a white man.

In the meanwhile, the gubernatorial candidates are collecting all the information obtainable on the subject. The anti-Italian candidates are making up scrapbooks of black hand stories. One of them sent a photographer to New Orleans to take pictures of the Italians arriving on the steamer from Palermo last week, presumably in the hope of showing what desperate characters, brigands, etc., they were.

With twelve months of campaign yet to run, however, the Italian issue in Mississippi is likely to take on many new forms. The indications are that the people of Mississippi will reach the conclusion that the Italians will make good citizens and should be encouraged to come.

The movement has the good will of the Italian government, which sees that it is to the interest of the Italian immigrants, who are mainly small farmers, peasants and agricultural laborers, that they should find work on farms in America rather than be crowded into the big cities.

THROWN IN.

John Philip Sousa, the noted composer, was talking about musical bores, says the Los Angeles Times.

"I must confess," he said, "that a musical bore once got the better of me.

"It was at a Wagner opera, and the bore sat on my left. He had a book of the score opened on his knee, and he hummed every passage—every single passage.

NUMBER IS INCREASING

Corridor at the Federal Building Full of Land Applicants.

The authorities in charge of the Duluth federal building are beginning to wonder what to do with the throngs which are gathering about the entrance to the United States land office on the second floor of the building. At the present rate at which the number is increasing, the corridor will soon be packed to its utmost.

During the last three days as many as seventy-five persons have taken positions in the line waiting for the opening of the three townships next week and there is now a total of over a hundred applicants in the hallway. The corridor can not accommodate more than half a hundred more and what will be done with the others who are expected is the the question which is worrying the custodians of the building.

Such a crowd waiting for the opening so many days prior to the first day breaks the record of the local Federal building. Big crowds have gathered at other openings but this one will be the biggest at the present rate of increase. At other openings, the applicants would rarely assemble more than a couple of days before the date set and would then come in a bunch. Another hundred is expected at the opening next week and a lively time is looked for during the last two days.

There are all kinds of people in the line at present, from the hardened woodsman to the city-bred business man. The favorite occupation among them seems to be that of reading, although a number spend the time talking among themselves or sleeping away the long hours. There are about half a dozen women, sprinkled through the crowd, seated in chairs with sofa pillows and magazines scattered among them. Each individual brings his own chair, bench or swing as the case may be.

"Yes, I was up there looking over the three towns last week," said one of those in line when asked for his opinion as to the character of the land to be opened.

"From what I saw of the land, I should say there are some very good tracts there, and then there are some, too, that are not so good. I went over a good portion of the whole three districts and know about what is there. There are some large tracts of land which are heavily timbered and there are others which are very sparsely timbered.

"There is a good deal of swampy land and on the whole none of it looks very good from an agricultural standpoint. There is lots of small timber and stumpage and all this can be made to bring in good returns for the settler."

A couple of surveyors who were working on the land a few days ago, have returned to Duluth and say that there are numerus men holding down claims on the three towns and several contests are looked for after the opening. The surveyors stated that they even saw one party located on some of the swamp land which of course will go to the state.

The three towns to be opened are situated near Beaver Creek, about eighty miles from Duluth, and the first will be thrown open on Tuesday of next week and the other two on Wednesday and Thursday.

Sometimes it may be as important to one man to find a quick purchaser for a second-hand desk as it is for another man to find a purchaser for a carload of perishable freight. In either case it usually happens that a Herald want ad. is "the best broker."

WHEAT HAS A DECLINE

American Markets Have a Weak Tone Throughout the Day.

Flax Very Active and Advances Here Despite Weakness Abroad.

Duluth Board of Trade, Nov. 8.—Wheat closed lower in all of the American markets today. Prices were weak at the opening on heavier receipts in the Northwest and little strength was developed during the day. No export business in wheat was done in Duluth. The foreign markets closed lower. Berlin closed ⅝c lower and Budapest ½c lower.

Broomhall estimates the Argentine shipments of wheat this week at 800,000 bus. The actual shipments last week were 968,000 bus, and those of the corresponding week a year ago 984,000 bus.

The December option closed ½c lower in Duluth and Chicago, ⅝c in Minneapolis, ⅜c in New York and Winnipeg, ¼-¼c in St. Louis and ¼c in Kansas City. The May option closed ⅜c lower in Duluth, Chicago and New York, ⅜-½c in Minneapolis, ⅛-¼c in St. Louis and ¼c in Kansas City.

December corn closed ⅜c lower in Chicago and oats were a shade higher.

Primary receipts of wheat were 921,000 bushels, last year 330,000 bushels. Shipments 545,000 bushels, last year 497,000 bushels. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 327,000 bushels.

Primary receipts of wheat were 387,000 bushels, last year 450,000 bushels. Shipments 535,000 bushels, last year 257,000 bushels. Clearances of corn were 107,600 bushels.

Wheat was quiet during the first hour of trading in the Duluth market, but became more active toward the close. December wheat opened ¼c lower at 74¾c, advanced to 74⅞c by 9:05, declined to 74½c by 11:46, rallied to 74¾c by 12:30 and closed at 74½c, a loss of ½c from yesterday. May wheat opened ¼c lower at 77⅝c, advanced to 78c, declined to 77¾c, rallied to 77⅞c and closed at 77⅝c, a loss of ⅜c from yesterday.

Durum wheat closed ½c lower for November and unchanged for the December option. Cash spring wheat advanced ¼c, selling on a basis of 2¾c over December for No. 1 northern.

Flax opened with a good flurry and the activity kept up through the session. The foreign markets were weaker, but prices advanced here, with a good buying demand. Antwerp closed 2⅝c lower and London 1¾c lower. November flax opened ½c lower at $1.16, advanced to $1.16¾, declined to $1.16½, rallied to $1.17, declined to $1.16⅞ and closed at that price, a gain of ¼c over yesterday. May flax opened ½c lower at $1.17, advanced to $1.17¾, declined to $1.17½, rallied to $1.18, fell off to $1.17¾, rallied to $1.18, declined to $1.17⅞ and closed at that price, a gain of ⅜c over yesterday.

Rye was marked off 1c and the other coarse grains closed unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opens Easier on Heavier Northwest Receipts and Some Selling.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—The wheat market today opened easier on selling of the December option by cash houses. The receipts in the Northwest were larger than for the same time last year, and this had a depressing effect. Cables were also reported easier. December opened ⅛@¼c lower at 72⅝c to 73c, sold at 72¾@73c and then advanced to 72⅝@73c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 1,041 cars against 589 cars last week and 971 cars one year ago.

The market became weaker later on in liquidation sales, December selling off to 72½@72⅝c. The close was weak with December off ½c at 72⅝c.

The corn market was steady on moderate buying of the May option by commission houses. Trading was very quiet. December opened unchanged to ⅛c lower at 42⅝@½c and sold at 42½@⅝c. Local receipts were 307 cars, with 107 of contract grade.

Prices became easier in sympathy with the weaker tone of the wheat market. The close was weak with December down ⅜c at 42½c.

The oats market was steady but very quiet. The December option opened unchanged at 34¼c, and for some time remained at that figure. Local receipts, 288 cars.

The provisions market was firm on a good market for live hogs. The demand was scattered and offerings were light. January pork was 12½c higher at $14.10. Lard was up 5c at $8.47½. Ribs were 2½c higher at $7.60.

Close: Wheat—December, 72⅝c; May, 77⅝c. Corn—December, 42½c; May, 43½@43⅝c. Oats—December, 34¼@34⅝c; May, 35⅝c. Pork—January, $14.07½; May, $14.15. Lard—January, $8.47½; May, $8.42½. Copper Gossip.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Heavy selling of Greene was the feature of the market today. Hayden Stone sold 5,000 shares between 26 and 25. The buying was excellent and we look for higher prices in the stock. All the rest of the market was quiet and greatly sagged. Utah, North Butte, Range and Old Dominion lost about a point each. Don't be afraid to buy the coppers on any soft spots, as they will sell much higher. Tight money is the only cloud now and no one ever made money selling stocks short on a tight, dull money market.

Gay & Sturgis: Arizona mining interests are greatly pleased at the outcome of Tuesday's election as touching upon the statehood bill. New Mexico taxation rate is over 7 per cent and behind the overtures for joint admission is seen the desire to shoulder a portion of the burden on the Arizona mining enterprises. Bisbee is jubilant over the result and its persistent buying accounts for yesterday's advance in Calumet & Arizona. The new smelter at the latter has not as yet been started.

Paine, Webber & Co.: Duey says: Denn-Arizona property looking well and ore is expected in next few days. Gay & Stuart, a representative of one of the large metal selling houses says: Sales of copper in the United States during October were approximately 120,000,000 pounds, or about one-half the volume sold in the previous month, September, the record month. Gay & Sturgis: The feature of the market was Calumet & Arizona which sold at 159, a new record on this movement. The rest of the list was inclined to be heavy and buying orders were few. Greene broke to 25 on selling by Hayden. The action of this stock is hard to fathom. Osceola was heavy on authoritative announcement that the next dividend would be $6 only. North Butte was under some pressure at times on dividend talk. Utah was heavy on action of Utah courts respecting smelting in Bingham Valley. There is a noticeable lessening of bullish feeling here. It seems to me a sagging market is likely.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Nov. 8.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 5@6 points, in response to better cables than looked for and a resulting covering. Trading was not more than moderately active during the early session, and there seemed to be little buying, notyithstanding the continued firm cables from Liverpool. Prices advanced 8@9 points after the closing figures of yesterday right after the call, and the market ruled quiet and steady around that level at midday. Receipts yere smaller, but the weather continued good.

At midday the market was firm and 10@11 points higher on covering and moderate bull support. Spot cotton quiet; middling uplands, 10.20; middling gulf, 10.45.

Futures closed very steady. Closing bids: November, 9.82; December, 9.85; January, 9.90; February, 9.97; March, 10.03; April, 10.12; May, 10.20; June, 10.27; July, 10.28. Spot closed quiet, 10 points advance; middling uplands, 10.30; middling gulf, 10.55. Sales, 558 bales.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, Nov. 8.—Barrett & Zimmerman's report: The election has kept many buyers at home the past two or three days, and the market has been les brisk on that account. Today's sales have been made to city buyers largely. Lumbermen are beginning to show more interest in market conditions.

New York Money.

New York, Nov. 8.—Money on call, firm, 6@10 per cent; ruling rate, 6½ per cent; closing bid, 6 per cent; offered at 7 per cent. Time loans, 60 days, 90 days, 7 per cent; six months, 6@6½ per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 6@7½ per cent. Sterling exchange easier, with actual business in banners' bills at $4.85.80@4.85.85 for demand, and at $4.80.60@4.80.65 for 60-day bills; posted rates, $4.86½; commercial bills, $4.80¾. Bar silver, 71¼c. Mexican dollars, 54⅞c. Government bonds, firm. Railroad bonds, heavy.

DULLNESS IN STOCKS

Market Opened Steady But Turned Weak in the Afternoon.

Selling Was Quite Heavy and the Close Was Easy.

New York, Nov. 8.—The volume of business was small at the opening today, and the resulting movement of prices was narrow and undecided. The Harriman and Hill stocks and a few others were higher. Three thousand shares of Northern Pacific were sold at 221½ and 221, compared with 220¾ last night. Baltimore & Ohio, Missouri Pacific and St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred declined substantial fractions.

The list was moving upwards soon after the opening, despite the heaviness of Northern Pacific. The buying was large in St. Paul, Union Pacific and Reading, but did not attract much attention in other portions of the list. The improvement in the general market brought some support to Northern Pacific and it wiped out its loss of a point and recovered to the best. Pullman gained 2, Great Northern preferred 1½ and St. Paul, Union Pacific, Northwestern, Reading and Cleveland, Cincinati, Chicago & St. Louis 1 each. Brooklyn Rapid Transit became weak and lost a point, and Colorado & Southern first preferred declined 1¾.

The market after 11 o'clock became nearly stagnant at a level of prices slightly under the highest. The trading presented no special features. Bonds were steady.

Active stocks were neglected, the only change of consequence occurring in Reading, which sold off a point from the highest. A number of less important stocks moved quite widely in either direction. Pullman jumped 5½; Wabash preferred, 1¼, and St. Paul preferred and Rock Island preferred, 1. Hide & Leather preferred gave way a point and St. Louis Southwestern preferred 2.

There was so little demand for stocks in the hour after midday that prices fell from neglect. The heaviness of Reading and the firmness of money effectually discouraged attempts to put up any other stocks. Northern Pacific got down again to ½ below yesterday's close. Chicago & Alton more than lost yesterday's gain, the price yielding 3¼. Delaware & Hudson moved up to 2½.

The market closed weak and dull. There was further depression of the price level, but the movement was scarcely appreciable except in the most active stocks. Northern Pacific fell 2¾ below last night; Brooklyn Rapid Transit, 1¾; Great Northern preferred, 1¼; Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg preferred, 1½, and St. Paul, Chesapeake & Ohio, Baltimore & Ohio, Louisville & Nashville, Reading, Smelting, Interborough Metropolitan preferred, 1 each. American Woolen broke 3⅜.

To Stockholders:

Recent developments on the Bullfrog Rush property are such that we do not feel justified in further disposing of treasury stock at the original promotion price.

The values reported in the Winze, on which the early great hopes of this splendidly located property were based, have not held out at depth, and in the present working the assays abtained are so unsatisfactory that we cannot at this time further recommend the purchase of the stock.

To all who have purchased Bullfrog Rush Mining Company shares from the L. M. Sullivan Trust Company we make the following proposition:

Return the stock to us and select from our new promotions any other stock you like before it is listed. We will credit you with the amount you paid for Bullfrog Rush shares against any subscription you make to our new companies.

This offer is good until January 1, 1907.

Bullfrog Rush Mining Co.

Goldfield, Nev., Nov. 6th, 1906.

To the Public:

We desire to state that the use of our names in the advertisement of the so-called Union Securities Company of Nevada as directors of the Bullfrog Rush Mining Company, in which it is stated that six million dollars' worth of ore is already blocked out in this property, is unauthorized, and that according to our best information the statement is absolutely and unqualifiedly false.

The property is unquestionably a splendid prospect, and during the course of its early development held out great hopes of becoming a great mine, but at this time the best average assays obtained in the lower workings are from sixty cents to one dollar per ton. There is a large quantity of ore that has been opened up in the Winze and Upper Tunnels, which gives assays of from fifteen to thirty-five dollars per ton, but this in itself, after deducting the cost of mining and milling does not establish for this property a valuation of $825,000, which on a capitalization of 1,500,000 shares, at the par value of one dollar, offered at fifty-five cents per share, would be the case.

We retain our positions on the directorate of the Bullfrog Rush Mining company for the present in order to protect important interests, but we warn anybody who intends investing in the stock of the Bullfrog Rush Mining company that if he does so it is at his own risk, nor do we in any way indorse any other venture of the Union Securities company of Nevada, of whose responsibility we know nothing.

[Signed] JOHN SPARKS,
Governor of Nevada, Director of the Bullfrog Rush Mining Company.

L. M. SULLIVAN,
President of the L. M. Sullivan Trust Company, Treasurer and Director of the Bullfrog Rush Mining Company.

LATE DOINGS IN UPPER MICHIGAN

Button Defeated by Gordon for Legislature in First District.

Marquette—John R. Gordon was re-elected to the legislature from the First district by a majority over C. F. Button of a little over a hundred, as against 843 which he had over Wells two years ago.

Houghton—The principal interest Tuesday centered in the fight in the First legislative district. Galbraith was re-elected by a majority of fifty votes and a plurality of 203 over his closest competitor. The vote was: Galbraith, 1,152; Kinsman, Prohibitionist, 859; Hosking, Independent, 130; Wiggins, Democrat, 113. Edwards was elected over Dube, Democrat, in the Second district, and Abrams triumphed over Keppler in the Third district.

Calumet—John McKelvie has received the appointment as mail clerk on the new mail service to be inaugurated between Calumet and Mass City. Mr. McKelvie is at present one of the local mail carriers and likewise has been acting as substitute mail clerk at various points on runs in the upper peninsula. His appointment comes as a result of his excellent standing in the examinations given for railway mail clerk. Just when the run will be established between Calumet and Mass City is impossible to state, but it is understood that it will be quite likely to begin about the latter part of the month. The service will be over the Copper Range railroad line, and will touch all intermediate points between Calumet and Mass City.

Menominee—A howl of complaint is going up all over the upper peninsula over the great destruction and annoyance that is being caused in many localities by beavers. The building of the beaver dams has destroyed the spawning beds of the brook trout so that whereas a few years ago hundreds of the fish could be caught in a few hours in large numbers of streams it is now almost impossible to catch any, and old fishermen state that unless something is done at once the streams will be entirely depleted within three years. The beavers also destroy a great deal of timber in building their dams. Besides what they actually use their dams flood the banks and many trees are ruined. Some lumbermen blow up the dams with dynamite, but they are speedily rebuilt and the work goes on. It is then necessary to cut the timber at once to save it. The law forbids the killing of any beavers for four years yet. Meantime they are multiplying very rapidly.

Hubbell—Early Tuesday morning Mrs. Margaret J. Holman of Hubbell died at her home at that village. She was 55 years of age and had been ailing for the past three years. Her husband died three years ago and since that time Mrs. Holman has not been well. Mrs. Holman was born in Cornwall, England, and came to this country thirty-three years ago. She is survived by six grown children, four daughters and two sons. The children are Mrs. George Francis of Hancock, Mrs. John Trevarrow of Baltic, John B. Holman of Houghton, Mrs. Julius Radtuchel of Point Mills and William and Florence Hilda, both at home.

Marquette—Miss Marian Kaufman and Dr. E. J. Hudson, both prominent in social circles of this city, were married at the Kaufman home here last night by Episcopal Bishop G. Mott Williams in the presence of relatives and a large company of friends, including ex-Secretary Paul Morton and wife of New York.

BURGLARS FIGHT POLICE.

They Resist Arrest in Eau Claire Saloon, But Are Overpowered.

Eau Claire, Wis., Nov. 8.—A bold attempt was made at an early hour Tuesday morning by two burglars to rob H. M. Sponhelm's saloon. The men were discovered about 1:30 o'clock by a woman who heard a noise in the building. When two policemen were notified and entered the building to capture the robbers they were brutally assaulted. Officer Dick Ryan was struck over the head with a hammer and the other officer was confronted with a revolver which he struck from his assailant's hand. The men were finally overpowered and imprisoned.

One of them was found to be James Davenport, who was just released from jail the day before, where he had been locked up three months for robbing a saloon in the same block as Sponheim's. His accomplice was Jack Labbe. Both are now promising candidates for long terms in the state penitentiary.

FOUND POCKET OF NUGGETS

Former Iowa Man Makes an Interesting Find Near Nome.

Webster City, Iowa, Nov. 8.—William Mundt, son of Mrs. Mundt of this city, has just made one of the most sensational finds of gold near Nome, Alaska, recorded the past year. Within an hour he took from a pocket he found upon his claim solid gold nuggets to the value of $1,350. The interesting part of the find lies in the fact that one small pocket contained so much pure gold.

Mr. Mundt's cabin and claim are about sixty miles from the city of Nome. He resides in the cabin when he can work the claim and puts in his whole time digging gold.

He left the cabin with pick and shovel merely to go over the claim prospecting for traces of the golden metal. While scraping away on the surface of the ground he uncovered a pocket and almost before he could realize it, there lay before his eyes a goodly lot of gold nuggets of various sizes. He gathered them up, took them to the cabin and weighed them up. They reached the value of $1,350 and he had not been away from his cabin more than an hour.

SURGEON ON THE TABLE.

Dr. Bierring, Prominent at Iowa City, Loses His Right Leg.

Iowa City, Iowa, Nov. 8.—Dr. W. L. Bierring, one of the foremost surgeons in Iowa, and a member of the faculty of the college of medicine of the state university, is in the hospital here, his right leg having been amputated above the knee. For several years a peculiar type of degeneration of tissues has afflicted him, and an earlier operation cost part of the same leg. It is believed he will recover his health.

HELD FOR BRUTAL ATTACK.

Wisconsin Man Arrested for Throwing Woman Over Fence.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 8.— (Special to The Herald.)—Thomas Balf, who is charged with throwing Mrs. Edward Frank over a fence, at Spring Green, and who was arrested here last night, was taken today back to Spring Green for preliminary hearing. He will then be rushed to Baraboo jail for fear of mob violence.

Mrs. Frank was seized by Balf and was thrown over a fence. Being so badly hurt that she could not walk, she crawled a mile to a neighbor's house. She will recover.

SCANDAL IS UNCOVERED

Captain John Trezona Sues Capt. Arthur Penna for $10,000.

Claims Alienation of Wife's Affections--Startling Charges.

One of the most sensational scandals from a range town, one that is likely to shake the social foundations of the city of Eveleth, and which will uncover a ghastly family skelton, is made public in a suit in the district court that John T. Trezona, a well known mining captain of that pace, has started against Arthur S. Penna, another mining captain, for $10,000 damages, for the alleged alienation of Mrs. Trezona's affections. Not only does Capt. Trezona claim damages for the alleged loss of his wife's affections, but he charges Capt. Penna with debauching her, with ruining the Trezona home and with bringing great disgrace and humiliation to the plaintiff.

The suit was filed last August, but the complaint and answers were not filed until yesterday, when the parties, through their attorneys, appeared in court to argue a motion by Capt. Penna to amend his answer.

In his original answer, Capt. Penna entered a general denial to the charges, but in the amended answer, he admits having comitted adultery, but denies that there was any seduction, or that Mrs. Trezona was a virtuous woman when Capt. Trezona married her. He claims that Capt. Trezona was aware of that alleged fact when he married her.

In his complaint Capt. Trezona alleges that he married Ida Agnes Kaiser at Eveleth, June 18, 1903, that she was a virtuous woman and that their home life was what it should be until about Nov. 25, 1905, when Capt. Penna, who is a mining captain at some point in Wisconsin, and who has a wife residing at Eveleth, according to the complaint, began paying attentions to Mrs. Trezona. Capt. Trezona says it is his information and belief that about the date mentioned, Capt. Penna embraced and kissed Mrs. Trezona, and offered her money, but she at that time refused it.

It is claimed by Capt. Trezona that about the time Capt. Penna began paying his alleged attentions to Mrs. Trezona she objected to them, and threatened to tell her husband, but that Capt. Penna threatened to kill her and herself if she did so. Capt. Penna is said to have professed great love and affection for Mrs. Trezona, and by "such seductive means and threats prevented tho plaintiff's wife from telling him of the defendant's conduct."

It is further alleged by Capt. Trezona that Capt. Penna lavished money and affection on Mrs. Trezona with the purpose of alienating her affections from her husband. It is alleged that for the past two months Capt. Penna has furnished and given her large sums of money for traveling expenses, and to pay for her board and lodging since she left her husband's home in Eveleth, July 16 last. Mrs. Trezona is said to have since been making her residence at Dorchester, Wis., and at St. Paul.

In the amendment Capt. Penna proposes to make to his answer he claims that Capt. Trezona has led a dissipated and immoral life; that it is common knowledge at Eveleth that he gets drunk and consorts with bad women. He claims that such conduct has destroyed Mrs. Trezona's love and affection for him.

Capt. Penna also charges in his propsed amended answer that Trezona neglected his wife and kept her in reduced and destitute circumstances.

Capt. Penna claims he never made threats to Mrs. Trezona and claims that if there were any improper or illicit relations between them both are equally responsible and guilty.

Capt. Trezona is represented by Davis & Hollister and Capt. Penna is represented by Porter J. Neff. The case is known as No. 49 on the calendar, and will be tried by a jury during the present term of court.

Special Counsel Ordered to Begin Action in St. Louis Shortage.

Washington, Nov. 8.—The department of justice has issued instructions to S. J. Lehman, special counsel, to begin proceedings against the person or persons believed to be implicated in the recent embezzlement of $61,500 from the sub-treasury at St. Louis. It is not thought that the name of any one supposed to be guilty of the theft has been mentioned in the instructions to Mr. Lehman.

CRUELLY ASSAULTED.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 8.—A special from Spring Green says Mrs. Edward Frank was terribly assaulted in a pasture last night by an unknown man. She dragged herself to the home of a neighbor, and may recover. Citizens are aroused and threaten a lynching if the assailant can be found.

DROVE SLEEP AWAY

L. B. MARSH.
A well-known citizen of La Crosse, Wis.

D. D. D. Company, Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:—Used five bottles of D. D. D. for Eczematous eruption. Suffered intense pain. Consulted physicians without avail. Could not sleep nights. After one application of D. D. D. I rested fine. I have used five bottles and am now entirely cured.

I will cheerfully recommend D. D. D. to anyone suffering from skin disease.

(Signed) L. B. MARSH,
529 Case St., La Crosse, Wis.

These are the words of a busy business man who gladly takes time voluntarily to inform the public of a great cure for all kinds of skin diseases.

WHAT MORE NEED WE SAY? So many astonishing cures have been affected by D. D. D. Prescription—right among the people we personally know, your own neighbors, perhaps—that it is astonishing that anyone should continue to suffer with Eczema, Psoriasis or any other Skin Disease. Call at our store and we will give you the names of chronic sufferers now cured, and show you hundreds and hundreds of letters.

If all sufferers only knew how D. D. D. cures Skin Diseases, how it gives relief from that agonizing itch the instant the remedy strikes the injured skin; if you only knew you would be glad to spend $1 00 at once for a bottle of D. D. D. Prescription and get that wonderful, refreshing relief.

But to overcome all doubts first we have arranged with the D. D. D. Co. for this great offer of a first bottle as a free sample.

FREE A Large Sample Bottle

of D. D. D. Prescription sent free to any sufferer from skin diseases, whether afflicted with pimples, blotches, or the terrible Eczema. Free to all who have never used this remedy

INSTANT RELIEF from that awful, agonizing itch. D. D. D. is a harmless vegetable liquid, used externally, and the instant it strikes the injured skin you feel soothed and refreshed. Drop a postal stating that you never used D. D. D., tell what disease you have and how long you have been afflicted and the free sample bottle will be sent free, prepaid, by return mail. RUSS TERRORISTS RAID TRAIN ON BUGLE CALLS AND MARCH WITH LOOT

Hundred Revolutionists Carry Out Robbery Like Soldiers.

Treasure of $650,000 Loaded on Wagons Amid Song Singing.

Rogow, Russian Poland, Nov. 9.—The Vienna-Warsaw train was raided last night by 100 revolutionist, who derailed the mail car with bombs, killed five and wounded eleven soldier guards, looted the car of $650,000, put the seized treasure in two wagons and marched off in military formation, singing revolutionary songs.

The revolutionist train robbers hid in the neighboring forest until the train came into sight. Then they gathered quickly on bugle calls from their leader, and as the train stopped, they shot dead the gendarms standing in front of the station.

Then the revolutionists placed sentinels at all the aproaches, and cut the telegraph wires. While some of them overpowered the trainmen, others attacked the escorts of the mail car. Three bombs were thrown, two of which exploded with terrific force, blowing the car into matchwood, killing five soldiers and mortally wounding eleven others.

The revolutionists then ransacked the mail, transferred the bank notes, gold and silver to their own bags and unfolding the red flag, formed up in military order, marched out of the station, entered wagons which were in waiting in the forest and dove off.

It was not until three hours later that a detachment of Cossacks, hurriedly sent for, appeared on the scene and started in pursuit of the revolutionists. Up to a late hour they had not found a trace of the bandits. Rogow is now occupied by troops.

James M. James of New York, who is studying trade unionism in Russia, was arrested yesterday during a police raid on trade union bureau, and was held in a police station for five hours. He was released on threatening to appeal to the American counsel. The bureau was closed on the ground that it was a center for revolutionary agitation.

DARK CRIME FOR MONEY

American Lawyer Accused of Murdering German Widow.

Mother of Wife Inveigled to Postoffice and Shot Down.

Baden-Baden, Germany, Nov. 9.—Karl Hau, alias Stau, the lawyer of Washington, D. C., arrested in London yesterday and held for extradition is wanted by the local police on the charge of murdering his wife's mother, Frau Molitor. The motive appears to have been insane greed of money. Frau Molitor, who was wealthy, having refused many times to comply with Hau's demands.

When Hau married Lena Molitor, six years ago she was 25 years old, and he a student, was 19. Immediately after their marriage the couple went to America and Hau attained a good position in Washington as a lawyer. Hau, his wife and their daughter, three years old, came to Germany last summer to visit Frau Molitor. A fortnight ago Hau left ostensibly to return to America. Later he sent a message from Paris, trying to inveigle Frau Molitor there.

Tuesday evening, Frau Molitor received a telephone message at her home asking her to go to the postoffice and get a parcel. Accompanied by her younger daughter, she started at once, and was passing through a quiet street when she was shot through the heart from behind.

The man who committed the murder was described as being of medium height and seemingly under 40 years of age. He wore a beard, but it is stated that it was a false one. Police inquiry shows that Hau, after leaving Baden-Baden, sent his wife and child to London and stopped at Frankfort, where he attracted attention, owing to a long beard which he wore. This, however, is now asserted to have been purchased from a hair dresser at Frankfort. The day of the murder Hau left Frankfort at 11 in the morning on the Maden train and returned to Frankfort at 10 o'clock the same evening.

It is asserted that Frau Molitor had long been threatened and that she was aware that deep-laid plots had been made against her life.

HOME RULE FOR IRELAND

Council Planned by Liberals for Limited Government.

Police and Judiciary to Remain Under Imperial Control.

Dublin, Nov. 9.—The Evening Herald declared yesterday that it had reliable information that at a recent conference attended by James Bryce, chief secretary for Ireland, John Redmond, leader of the Irish party in the house of commons, John Dillon, member of parliament for East Mayo and Sir Antony MacDonnell, under secretary to the earl of Aberdeen, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, Sir Anthony read the draft of a plan for the reorganization of the government of Ireland.

The draft provided for the establishment of a central and castle board, an educational department and a department of agriculture, and for the transfer of land. It creates an Irish council with between two-thirds and three-fourths of its members elected on the existing parliamentary franchise, and the remainder on a restricted franchise, or nominated. Clergymen of all denominations are eligible for membership in the council. Ireland is to retain her present representative in parliament and the police are to remain under imperial control, but the force will be reduced numerically. The judiciary will remain unaffected.

Mr. Redmond and Mr. Dillon strongly opposed the police and the judiciary clauses, but it was pointed out to them that certain members of the cabinet were obdurate on these questions. The proposed measure is not yet complete, but the essential features have been settled definitly, and the entire cabinet is agreed thereon.

DIPLOMATIC CHANGES MANY Important Announcements Certain on President's Return.

Washington, Nov. 9.—Diplomats who are watching with great interest the prospective changes in the American diplomatic service, must wait until after the president's return from Panama and Porto Rico to have their curiosity gratified, as Secretary Root has announced that the state department will not take any action during Mr. Roosevelt's absence.

Since the announcement of the purpose to appoint to a cabinet position Mr. Meyer, and the selection of Lloyd Griscom, now at Rio Janeiro, to fill Mr. Meyer's place at St. Petersburg, there have been many predictions as to Mr. Griscom's successor in Rio Janeiro. Charles Page Bryan, minister to Portugal, who formerly served as minister to Rio Janeiro, is frequently mentioned as the most likely candidate for the Brazilian post.

It is generally conceded that Minister Barrett, now in this country, will not return to Bogota, and Leslie I. Combs, American minister to Guatemala and Honduras, is mentioned for a post.

At the last session of congress provision was made for a secretary to the American mission in Santo Domingo, but no appointment to this place has been made. There is also a vacancy in the secretaryship to the American mission at La Paz, Bolivia. Many changes in the secretaryships at European missions are also contemplated.

New York, Nov. 9.—Five incendiary fires in three hours early this morning in two blocks bounded by Sixtieth and Sixty-first streets and Columbus and West End avenues, caused the death of Mrs. Caroline Swain, aged 70 years, the fatal burning of Adrian Tompkins on a red hot fire escape, the flight in panics of 2,000 occupants of the various structures, scores of rescues by firemen and losses of $26,000, and created a veritable reign of terror all through that section of the city.

New York Democratic Candidate Leads Now by Only 671.

New York, Nov. 9.—Latest returns from all sections of the state indicate that the official count will be necessary to determine whether M. Linn Bruce, Republican, or Lewis S. Chanler, Democrat and Independence league candidate was elected lieutenat governor last Tuesday.

With incomplete and partially estimated returns from every county in the state, Chanler's possible plurality has been cut down to 671. The incompleteness of the figures upon which this calculation is based make it possible that the official returns will show a wide variance in either direction.

HANGING CAUSES SUICIDE.

Johnstown, Pa., Nov. 9.—Jacob Hauser, Sr., father of Jacob Hauser, Jr., who was hanged last February for the murder of his wife and mother-in-law, was today found hanging to a tree in the backyard of his home, having escaped from the house and committed suicide during the night. He had, of late, been worrying greatly over his son's fate.

MURDER AND SUICIDE IN A CHICAGO PARK.

Chicago, Nov. 9.—F. C. Gray fatally shot Mary Ray, a domestic, and then killed himself, in Lincoln Park, last night. Jealousy or rejected attentions is believed to have been the cause. The woman died in half an hour. She came here from a small town near Watertown, Wis.

STANDARD OIL RAISES PAY OF ALL REFINERY WORKMEN.

Lima, Ohio, Nov. 9.—A 5 and 10 per cent advance in the wages of all employes of the refining branch of the Standard Oil company was announced here today. This affects immediately 900 employes of the Solar Refinery here, and hundreds of men at Welker, Oil City, Pa., Whiting, Ind., Bayonne, N. J., Denver, and Charlestown, S. C. Advances in other branches are expected.

JUDGE PARKER SENDS MESSAGE TO JOHNSON.

St. Paul, Nov. 9.—Judge Alton B. Parker, former candidate for the presidency of the United States, has sent the following congratulatory message to Governor Johnson:

"Your services to the people of your state entitle you to this vote of confidence and appreciation and I congratulate both you and the voters.

"Signed, ALTON B. PARKER."

SMALL BOYS SHOT TO DEATH UNDER DRUMHEAD SENTENCE.

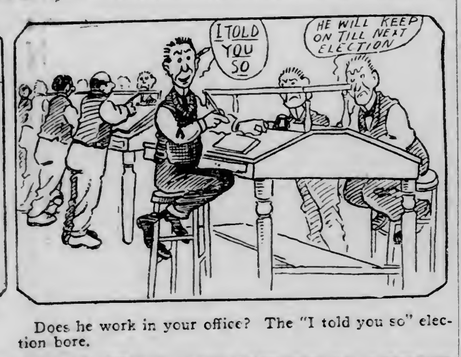

St. Petersburg, Nov. 9.—Three small boys who had been condemned by a court martial for robbery, and four men, were shot to death at Riga yesterday. The firing party was completely unnerved at the sight of mere children before them for execution and fired wildly, and it was only after several volleys that all the condemned were killed.

Seven Nationalist workmen were shot down at Lodz yesterday by Socialists. The situation there is most serious.

SEVENTY THOUSAND IS PHENOMENAL MAJORITY OF JOHNSON OVER COLE

SIR WILLIAM P. TRELOAR,
Installed as the New Lord Mayor of London with the Usual Ceremonies.

Probable That Full Returns Will Increase These Figures.

Indications He Has Carried Hennepin County by 13,000.

Rock-Ribbed Republican Counties Give Majorities for Johnson.

St. Paul, Nov. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor Johnson's majority is now figured at close to 70,000 and it may exceed those figures when all the returns are in. The more complete the returns are ,the higher his majority mounts. Hennepin county with twenty-six precicts to hear from gives Cole 11,645; Johnson 23,023. It is practically two to one, and the remaining precincts will probably run the plurality in that county up to 13,000. It makes those Democrats who were claiming 4,000 in Hennepin wonder if they really know anything about politics, while the Republicans who claimed the county for Cole can only blush with shame. The Ninth district is all one-sided, with close to 2,000 in Otter Tail, and every other county in the district lining up strong. The Third district counties are all Johnson, and seven Democratic senators are elected on the Johnson wave i nthat district, against two Republicans. Nicollet county went almost as strong for Johnson as two years ago, and the others much stronger. In the First district Houston seems the only county left in the Republican column, and even old Fillmore gives Johnson a lead on partial returns. Faribault county seems on Cole's side by a small margin, but otherwise the Second district is Johnson. The Sixth

BANDIT IN A PULLMAN

Lone Robber Forces California Passengers to Disgorge.

Conductor, Flagman and Porter Forced to Aid in Loot.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 9.—A lone robber, heavily masked and armed, boarded the rear sleeper on the eastbound California Limited train on the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, known as No. 44, between Slater and Glasgow, Mo., at 1:58 last night, robbed the passengers and escaped in the darkness. According to the local officers of the Pulman company, the robber secured only $65. Among the men forced by the robber to disgorge was E. R. Slagle, of Kansas City, assistant superintendent of the Pullman company.

The train was the through fast passenger from California, which, between Kansas City and Chicago, uses the Chicago & Alton tracks. It left Kansas City last night at 9 o'clock and was due in Chicago at 8 this morning.

The robber, who is described as being tall and wearing a long black overcoat and a mask, boarded the rear sleeper at Slater. When the train had gained headway he entered the sleeper, an observation car. He encountered L. S. Searson, Pullman conductor, C. W. Roller, flagman, and R. Wood, a negro porter, all of Chicago. Levelling two revolvers at the trio of trainmen, he forced them to go ahead of him and wake up the passengers. As his command was carried out, he secured what booty he could.

When he had reached the front end of the car, the bandit started for the second Pullman. The porter, however, had managed to get far enough ahead of the others to make a dash for the second car and slammend and locked the door in the face of the robber. The train then was about one mile east of Glasgow. Realizing that he could proceed no further with his work, the robber pulled the air rope. While the train was slackening its speed, he jumped off and disappeared in the darkness.

Early this morning officers were started from Glasgow, Slater, and Kansas City, and other nearby places to trace the robber. The territory in which he worked is thickly settled, and it will be difficult for him to escape.

F. G. WINSTON WILL RESIGN

As Surveyor of Logs for the Minneapolis District.

St. Paul, Nov. 9.—The story is current that F. G. Winston, surveyor general of logs and lumber for the Minneapolis district, is about to tender his resignation to the governor. Mr. Winston is anxious to retire altogether from politics, in order to devote all his time to his large private business. Mike Breslauer is now performing the duties of surveyor general under Mr. Winston's direction.

MINERS GET HIGHER PAY.

Bisbee, Ariz., Nov. 9.—All the miners employed by mining companies at Bisbee and Tombstone have received notice of a raise in wages of 25 cents a day all around, to date from Nov. 1. Miners now receive $3.75 a day, shaftmen $4.25, and first hoisting engineers $5.25. The new scale means the payment of $500,000 more each year by mining companies.

QUIBBLE IN OIL BATTLE

Eastern Railroads Seek to Escape on Technical Pleas.

St. Louis Grand Jury to Begin Probing of Trust.

Buffalo, Nov. 9.—In the argument in the United States court on the demurrers of various railroads to the indictment charging them with collusion with the Standard Oil company in the shipment of oil from Olean, N. Y., to Rutland, Vt., counsel for the New York Central contended that, in carrying the oil from Rochester to its terminal at Norwood, it was doing an intra-state and not an interstate business and had not therefore violated the interstate commerce law. The ultimate destination of the shipment of the point from which it started had nothing to do with the case. He said that the law did not require and could not require that in the intra-state shipments the railroad should file a schedule of rates with the interstate commerce commision. He said that there was nothing to show that an agreement had been entered into with the Pennsylvania or other railroads in carrying oil from Olean to Rutland via the Norwood route.

In reply, the federal counsel argued that shipments from one state to another constituted interstate commerce and that, in carrying such a shipment, even if its share was wholly in one state, the New York Central was doing an interstate business. He also said that the indictments alleged facts to show that the oil company and the railroads were in collusion.

Counsel for the Pennsylvania said that, simmered down, the proposition would be that a railroad company could not join in making different rates over different lines between the same terminal.

"My point," said United States Attorney Brown, in reply, "is that you cannot publish a certain rate between the two points and carry the same product over different routes between the same points at different rates."

St. Louis, Nov. 9.—The federal grand jury, which will meet next Wednesday will investigate the St. Louis end of the alleged oil combine, with a view to the institution of criminal proceedings against persons involved. Members of the interstate commerce commission and representatives of the office of Commissioner of Corporations Garfield have been served with subpoenas compelling their presence when the grand jury convenes.

The hearing of the depositions for the defense in the ouster suit of the state of Missouri against the Standard, Waters-Pierce, and Republic Oil companies was resumed today, with C. L. Ackert, general manager, on the witness stand.

Weather Forecast: Fair weather tonight and Saturday. Colder tonight with lower temperature. Northwesterly winds.

is all Johnson, except Cass and probably Hubbard, with Stearns throwing in 3,000. In the Eighth Itasca may go to Cole, but returns are meager. The Jacobson territory went almost 2 to 1 for Johnson.

There is no danger of the Republicans losing anything else on the state ticket. Eberhardt, for lieutenant governor, suffered most by coming so near the governor, and will go through by a much lower plurality than expected. He seems to have carried the normal Republican counties right along, however, and his plurality is probably 20,000. The Democratic candidates for clerk of the supreme court and railroad commissioner received a good many Republican votes, and will make a good showing. Julius Schmahl for secretary of state was also cut considerably, but is probably elected by 50,000.

The table accompanying gives county returns as accurately as possible, with estimates everywhere based on partial returns. Where only one figure is given, it is the plurality. Those counties from which complete returns have been given are marked by an asterisk.

HAMMOND BY 1,336.

Second District Result Not as Close as First Supposed.

St. Paul, Nov. 9.—Winfield S. Hammond is elected to congress from the Second district by 1,336 unofficial plurality. The more complete returns have increased his margin instead of reducing it, indicating that Hammond ran strong in the back precincts, which are late in reporting. The figures by counties are as follows, a plurality being indicated where only one column is filled:

MIX-UP ON AMENDMENTS.

Tally Sheets Gave Them In Different Order From Ballot.

St. Paul, Nov. 9.—Four counties have reported their vote on the wide-open tax amendment, and it has received a majority in each one. If the rest of the state holds up to this ratio the amendment will have a comfortable margin. The good roads and peddling amendments run higher in some places and lower in others, so their outcome is doubtful.

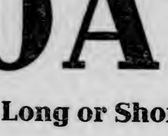

The amendments must have a majority of all votes cast at the election. The four counties reporting give the following as their total vote, and as the vote for the tax amendment:

	Total Vote.	Yes.
Chisago	1,684	948
Isanti	1,77	941
Kanabec	747	499
Redwood	1,292	775
Totals	5,430	3,163

Great confusion has probably resulted from an error in the tally sheets sent out from the secretary of state's office. On the ballot the good roads amendment to Article 16 of the constitution came first, and the tax amendment to Article 9 was second. The tally sheets on which judges and clerks of election made their returns have reversed this order, and call first for a return on the amendment to Article 16. The peddling amendment is last in both places. Evidently most election judges would not note the transposition at all, and would return the vote on the amendments in the same order that they came on the ballot. Therefore, the vote would be reversed on the tally sheet in many cases, and the returns will probably be found all mixed up.

Unless both amendments are found to have a majority on the returns, it may be necessary to provide for the expense of a recount of the whole state.

weather observer at the cape was unable to distinguish because of the great amount of smoke from the funnels of the vessels. Neither of the warships made any stop, and all soon passed out of sight to the southeast of Cape Henry.

The transfer last night of the presidential party in Upper Chesapeake bay from the Mayflower to the Louisiana was without special incident so far as known here. The weather at sea today is charming, and the conditions for a delightful trip by the president and his party could not be more promising than at present. Wireless telegraph messages are expected from the president along the coast. The Louisiana will not leave the coast shore for any great distance, and will be in touch by wireless almost during the entire trip.

"Good-bye, I am going down to see how the ditch is getting along," shouted the president, as he stood on the after starboard deck of the yacht Mayflower, at the Washington navy yard, when he left for his Panama trip, yesterday afternoon, with Mrs. Roosevelt and her maid, Surgeon General Rixey of the navy, and M. C. Latta, one of the assistant secretaries.

When President and Mrs. Roosevelt arrived at the navy yard, a company of marines and a detachment of sailors were drawn up about the wharf and a welcome was sounded from the bugler aboard the ship and from a drummer in the marine ranks. Then as the band aboard the ship played the Star Spangled Banner, and the bugle sounded another welcome, they walked down the gangplank aboard the vessel. Here had gathered Postmaster General and Mrs. Cortleyou, Ambassador Jusserand and Madame Jusserand, who carried a large bunch of flowers for Mrs. Roosevelt, and James R. Garfield, the commissioner of corporations. They remained with the president for about fifteen minutes until the order was given to start. Then a United States flag was run up the vessels's gaff, the gang plank was taken in, the ship loosened from her moorings and the trip to Panama was begun. As the vessel started President Roosevelt appeared on deck and shouted a goodbye to the crowd, which had assembled.

The president will spend four days on the Isthmus, arriving at Colon next Thursday, where he is to be greeted by President Amador of Panama and Mrs. Amador, Chairman Shonts and other officials of the canal commission. A trip across the isthmus that day will be followed by a banquet by Panama's president at Ancon. Sunday will be spent quietly. That evening the presidential party will leave for San Juan, Porto Rico, where there will be a stop of a day. The return to Washington will be Nov. 27.

SHEEHY IS CONVICTED

Jury Finds Him Guilty of Issuing Libelous Circulars.

Judge Cutting Gives Him Stiff Sentence—Appeal Taken.

Guilty was the verdict returned by the jury in Judge Cutting's courtroom, after a few minutes deliberation, yesterday afternoon, on the case of Joseph Sheehy, the former pugilist and employment agent, who was charged with issuing libelous circulars against T. J. McKeon, the assistant city attorney.

The jury in the former trial disagreed, standing, it is understood eleven to one for conviction.

Judge Cutting promptly sentenced Sheehy to ninety days in jail at hard labor without the option of a fine.

Sheehy's attorney, Judge Martin of Virginia, asked for a stay of sentence, pending an appeal, and the bail was fixed at $300, which was furnished.

The conviction of Sheehy marks the end of a long series of petty annoyances which the public officials have had to suffer at Sheehy's hands. Every person who opposed him in any way, was made the victim of a savage attack, and the aldermen, police and city attorney have all suffered from them.

The climax came when he distributed a number of circulars intimating that the city attorney was guilty of grafting, and cited a case in which it was claimed he got $2.50. The charge was utterly groundless and simply showed Sheehy's ignorance of the manner in which the municipal business was transacted. To any person familiar with the manner in which the municipal affairs are conducted, the charge would have been seen to be baseless, but Mr. McKeon felt that there were many people who would argue that where there was so much smoke there would be some fire, and that the charge would stick in the minds of many who were not familiar with the circumstances. He therefore had a warrant sworn out for Sheehy's arrest. Sheehy left the city and remained away for nearly a year. The warrant was served on his return, and yesterday's verdict is the result.

terrifying rumors spread through the neighborhood, with the constant appearance and re-appearance of the fire engines, and the big squad of police raised the people throughout the vicinity to a high pitch of excitement which did not lessen until daylight brought a measure of assurance that the incendiarism was stopped for a while. The excitment spread even on Broadway and in the Marie Antoinette, Ansonia, Empire and other big hotels in the neighborhood of Lincoln square, the guests were aroused by the commotion. In the St. Paul hotel, at the southeast corner of Sixty-first street, both close to the fires, all guests were aroused, and few slept any more.

All the houses where the fires occurred were appartment buildings—three of them occupied by white and two by negroes. Most of the tenants were in bed when the fires broke out, and escaped to the street in the scantiest clothing.

The first fire was in a five-story tenement house at 105 West Sixtieth street, occupied by five families, all of whom escaped. Mrs. Caroline Swain, the woman who lost her life lived in the adjoining house and had been taken by her daughter to a window in preparation for flight from the house, when she collapsed and died.

The firemen were still busy fighting that fire when the second blaze began at 137 West Sixtieth street, in a lot of rubbish in the basement. All the tenants escaped.

At the third fire at 215 West Sixtieth street there were several narrow escapes and daring rescues of the tenants. William Murray, who lived on the third floor, carried out five of his children, and James Smith, spectator, went into the house, brought the sixth Murray child to the second floor window and jumped with it in his arms to the sidewalk. Another spectator caught them both. The child was unhurt. An aged negro was carried out by other spectators.

An hour later the fourth fire was discovered a block north at 249 West Sixty-first street. It was quickly extinguished.

The fifth and worst of the fires was discovered at 110 West Sixty-first street at 3 a. m., while the street was still thronged with frightened and excited people. There were twenty apartments in the building and the escape of the occupants of the upper floors was cut off by a blaze in the lower hall. The tenants were so dazed that they were in danger of losing their lives, when policemen and firemen went up on the fire escapes and brought them down. Adrian Tompkins who lived on the top floor lingered so long that he was fatally burned while climbing down the fire escape.

Frank Morris of Boston, a vaudeville performer was arrested on suspicion of setting the fires. The police allege that in each of the fires, tenants reported that when they fled from their apartments Morris was the first person they met.

MAY COUNT EITHER OUT

on which yesterday's figures were based show a gain of 682 votes in favor of the Republican candidate and additional returns received reduce Chanler's plurality to the figure given.

All of the other Democratic candidates are elected by small pluralities.

District Attorney Jerome yesterday made the following comments on the election: "If Hearst had not undertaken to sandbag the Democratic party into accepting him and had made himself an integral part of the Democratic party the result, in my opinion, would have been a sweeping Democratic victory. He would have a powerful and important position in it. He did not take that course, however, and I don't see how he can become a candidate of the Democratic party again. The American people are always willing to forget and forgive. Hearst can do much good yet. His papers have a powerful influence and if he handles himself with good poise and judgment in matters generally he can accomplish much good. He must abandon the wholesale abuse of everybody and everything, and must confine himself to attacking in a clean way the abuses which he wants to assail. His past offenses will then be forgotten and forgiven. He could be of service to the organization. He must decide his course, however."

London, Nov. 9.—The Dublin correspondent of the Standard, telepraphs an interview with Richard Croker on the result of the election in New York State as follows:

"I think the election will prove a considerable education to Mr. Hearst, and I am sure he will profit by it, although defeated. In my opinion, Mr. Hearst is bound to be a factor in politics. If he could have held his own vote, and if he had had the support of independent laboring men, I believe he would have been elected by 100,000 plurality. He has made a remarkably good fight and he has reason to be proud of it."

SEES END OF MORMONISM.

Idaho Republican Chairman Comments on Result of Election.

Boise, Idaho, Nov. 9.—Chairman B. H. Brady, of the Republican state committee issued the following statement upon tee issued the following statement upon

"We have now received sufficient returns from every county in the state to enable us to say that the Republicans will have 16 out of 21 members of the senate and 44 out of 51 members of the house. Governor Gooding is elected by over 9,000 majority and the balance of the state ticket from 15,000 to 22,000 majority. We have vindicated the good name of Idaho. Mr. Borah will receive at least 57 votes out of 72 for United States senator and Senator Dubois will never again attempt to ride to victory on his hobby of Mormonism. I think it is only fair to state at this time that a large majority of the leading Democrats do not now nor have they approved of the Dubois course in this matter and in the next campaign I expect to see the political battle fought on strict party lines."

PROHIBITION PROGRESSING.

Chicago, Nov. 9.—Charles P. Jones, chairman of the National Prohibition committee, said last night that the total vote of the party in the different states would exceed 325,000, whereas the total vote for Swallow for president in 1904 was 257,419. He added:

"In New York Francis E. Gates, Prohibitionist and Independent candidate, was elected state senator, and in Washing, George T. Cotterell, National Grand Chief Templar, was elected state senator on the Democratic ticket, backed by the Prohibitionists and Independents in the district that gave Roosevelt 1,900 majority in 1904.

"In Illinois, the Prohibitionists broke all records, their candidate for state treasurer, Allin, receiving 35,000 votes and carrying over a dozen counties. At least six Prohibitionists are reported elected to the legislature. In Massachusetts the Prohibitionists are credited with 30,000 votes for Moran, who carried twenty-eight cities, despite his defeat for governor.

"The Prohibitionist party holds a balance of power vote in at least seven states—New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Pennsylvania, New York, Illinois, Iowa and Kansas."

CUMMINS RE-ELECTED BY PLURALITY OF 22,456.

Des Moines, Iowa, Nov. 9.—Complete returns from the Iowa election show that Governor Cummins, Republican is re-elected by a plurality of 22,456. He received 196,822 votes, and Porter, his Democratic opponent, 174,366.

GAMBLE'S RE-ELECTION SURE.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Nov. 9.—Complete returns on the legislative vote of Tuesday show that the Republicans elected thirty-six members of the state senate, while the Independent Republicans and Democrats chose 7. The house stands Republicans, 81; Democrats, 8. This insures the re-election of United States Senator Gamble.

SPEAKER CANNON'S PLURALITY.

Danville, Ill., Nov. 9.—Official returns from all the counties in the Eighteenth district give Joseph G. Cannon, speaker of the national house of representatives, a plurality of 10,088, 2,000 larger than his plurality four years ago, but 3,000 less than that of 1904.

SOME GASOLINE DON'TS.

How Not to Blow Up Your House and Family.

H. D. Davis, who is the state fire marshal of Ohio, and who has prepared some very unpleasant statistics in regard to gasoline stoves, has prepared also the following "don'ts" for gasoline consumers, says the New York Sun.

Don't fill the stove's reservoir while the burner is alight. Vapor of gasoline, being heavier than air, will reach the flame and the flash will so frighten the filler that more gasoline will be spilled, and the room instantly filled with flame.

Don't fill the can quite full, for gasoline expands much more than water when it becomes warm and is likely to force open a seam in the reservoir.

Don't fail to turn the burner shut before filling the reservoir, for the fluid leaking through it will make a vapor which will set on fire one who strikes a match to light the stove.

Don't allow too much fluid into the burner or fail to close it tight when putting the fire out.

Don't pour gasoline from one vessel to another in a room in which there is a fire or light, because the invisible vapor of gasolene will be drawn to any nearby fire, lamp, candle or gas jet.

Don't fail to watch closely for leaks in reservoir or burner, because gasoline, being but two-thirds as dense as water, will exude through a smaller hole. Remember, too, that when the leak is small there is no drop or damp spot anywhere to show its existence, because the gasoline vaporizes as fast as it exudes.

Don't slop the stuff, for it is more dangerous than powder. Three-fourths of the stove accidents occur while filling the reservoir.

Don't keep gasoline in any jug or in a can larger than two gallons, because it is difficult to pour the thin stuff from either without spilling it.

Don't get your gasoline and kerosene cans mixed. That error cost two lives in Ohio last year.

Don't leave any gasoline can open, because currents of air draw out the vapor. The reservoir of every gasoline stove should be outside the building, the feed pipe passing through the wall. If so placed, heat from the stove cannot burn it, a leak is harmless and vapor cannot ignite while it is being filled. The stove should be fixed to a permanent foundation so that it cannot be set against any inflammable material.

All gasoline stoves should have bottom and three sides closed to prevent combustible material from reaching the flame, and the main burner grates should be two feet from the floor. Finally, don't hunt the source of an odor of gasoline with a light. The result of finding it is always instantaneous and disastrous.

Cascasweet is a harmless compound of vegetable extracts that is wonderful in its beneficial effects on the stomachs of babies and children. Recommended and sold by all druggists.

A DECEITFUL BROKER.

Walter S. Ufford of Baltimore, the noted administrator of charities, told a reporter, at the Congress of Charities in Philadelphia, a number of odd stories about profesional beggars, says the Los Angeles Times.

"So that chap was caught," said Mr. Ufford, concluding an anecdote, "caught neatly, like the deceitful Baltimore broker.

"This broker, getting home rather early one evening, said to his wife:

"'Is there a telegram for me?'

"'Why, are you expecting one?' the lady asked.

"The broker frowned impatiently.

"'Of course I'm expecting one,' he said. 'I wouldn't have asked that question if I had not been expecting one, would I?'

"'Well,' said she, 'what would you think if I said a telegram had come for you this afternoon?'

"The broker's contenance cleared. Then, recollecting himself, he frowned and said gloomily:

"'From Hick, eh? Well, that means a night of hard work, sure. And dear knows I'm tired enough as it is. Come,' he went on impatiently, 'where is that telegram? Did you open it?'

"'Yes, dear.'

"'Well, Hicks says to meet him tonight, doesn't he?'

"'Yes, dear.'

"'I thought so. We're to straighten out that grain account of Phillip's. It will take us till the small hours.' He rubbed his hand delightedly. 'I must hurry upstairs and dress.'

"The broker's wife smiled.

"'But don't you want to see the telegram?' she asked.

"'No,' said he. 'What's the use? You opened it.'

"She sighed. 'I shall be very lonely.'

"'Sorry,' said the man. 'But business is business.' His eyes shone with satisfaction, and he rubbed his hands again. 'I'll have a stupid enough time myself over those difficult accounts.'

"'But there was one thing in the telegram,' said the lady, 'that I forgot to tell you.'

"The broker frowned.

"'Oh, there was?' he said. 'Well, what was it?'

"'He says,' she murmured, smiling sweetly, 'that he has succeeded in getting front row seats.'"

RAILROADS

THEY WILL NOT ASSIST

Firemen Refuse to Help Locomotive Engineers Win Fight.

Will Take Places of Engineers If Strike is Called.

In connection with the threatened strike of railroad switchmen, there has been talk of the members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers making demands for higher wages, shorter hours and better working conditions. The chances for winning out in this fight are said to have been greatly lessened this week, when an officer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen announced in Cleveland that the members of that organization were ready and willing to fill the places of all engineers if the brotherhood should declare a strike.

"The firemen have presented no requests to any road as yet," said a local fireman, discussing the general situation. "We may do so before long, but not until settlements have been made with other employes. According to this Cleveland report, if the engineers win their fight they will have to do so without any help from the firemen. In case of a strike, the members of the firemen's organization will not only refuse to quit work with them, but they will take the places of the striking engineers, if the Western members agree with those of the East, and I guess they do.

"Our organization has a total membership of about 60,000, of which number we have about 15,000 members who have successfully passed the examination for engineers and are only waiting for a vacancy to be placed in charge of engines. The brotherhood has at least 35,000 members who are competent locomotive engineers, and I see this Cleveland report says the majority are willing to take the place of engineers if they strike.

"The firemen take this stand because as soon as a fireman is made an engineer, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers make an effort to prevail upon him to join that body and if he does so he is given ninety days in which to withdraw from the firemen's brotherhood and all other labor organizations, if he refuses to do so he is expelled from the brotherhood. The firemen's organization has one of the best insurance benefits for railroad men in the world, and naturally many of our members wish to retain that benefit even after becoming engineers, and for that reason many who have become engineers have refused to join the engineers' brotherhood."

The engineers admit that members of their organization are compelled to desert other labor organizations of which they may be members, but say it is necessary that this should be done because the brotherhood has contracts with 172 railroads in this country, and it would be impossible to fulfill those contracts if members belonged to other labor unions also, because the other organization might become involved in a controversy and order a strike.

Minnesota alumni living in Duluth have arranged an informal reception for President Northrop to be given at the Spalding tomorrow evening.

The reception will be of a very informal nature, and all alumni, undergraduates, and other friends of the university in the city, are invited to be present and meet President Northrop.

KING EDWARD'S BIRTHDAY.

England's Monarch Celebrates Quietly at Sandringham and Gets Presents.

London, Nov. 9.—King Edward is today celebrating his sixty-fifth birthday quietly at Sandringham, surrounded by his family. He is in excellent health. Many congratulatory messages reached him during the day and many valuable presents were received from the sovereigns of Europe and personal friends. The customary salutes were fired by the warships at the naval centers.

BOMB READY FOR JUDGES.

Russian Prisoner, to be Tried Today, Had Explosive in Cell.

Kiev, Russia, Nov. 9.—A powerful bomb was found last night in the mattress of the cell of a man named Rudenko, accused of attempting to kill Col. Spiridovitch, chief of the secret police, whose trial was to begin today. It was to have been thrown at the judges during the trial.

CONGO'S FUTURE SETTLED.

Brussels, Nov. 9—Prince Albert of Flanders, nephew of King Leopold, was today officially declared the successor of the king as sovereig of the Congo Independent State. This puts an end to the controversy over the political status of the Independent State in the event that Belgium does not annex it.

CONSCIENTIOUS HEIRS.

People Who Have Refused to Accept Fortunes Left Them.

It is safe to assume, notwithstanding the fact that human nature is probably less black than generally painted, that the world contains very few men who would refuse the bequest of a fortune for conscience sake—fewer by far than men who have turned away from wealth in order to espouse women of their own choice.

Herr J. Brengwin, a young German bank clerk, is one of the few who have set conscience before cash in this manner, says the London Tit-Bits. For some years Herr Brengwin has been employed at a modest salary in a branch bank in Berlin, and recently he became entitled to a fortune of very nearly £100,000, under the will of an uncle of whom he had scarcely ever heard, and who had made him his sole heir.

Naturally enough, the young man was delighted by his unexpected stroke of good luck, and, resigning his clerkship, he repaired to Vienna, where his uncle had lived and died, to take over the estate, the bulk of which was personal property. Becoming aware that his uncle had amassed his fortune by usury and that his name had become a byword in Austria, the conscientious heir absolutely refused to accept a penny of the estate, resolutely returning to Berlin and getting himself reinstated on his old stool at the bank.

What was perhaps the largest fortune ever refused for conscience sake was that from which Frederick N. Charrington, the famous temperance advocate and religious worker in the East end of London, turned aside. Mr. Charrington was entitled to a share in his father's great brewery business—one of the largest in London; and it is estimated that the share he refused was worth £1,250,000 when he made up his mind that he would not accept it.

The story is told of how he was led to make his momentous resolve. He chanced to be standing outside a public house in the East end, when he saw a drunken man shot through the doors into the arms of a wretched-looking woman, who was patiently awaiting him. The drunkard struck the woman and heaped the vilest abuse on her without any apparent provocation; and as they slouched away Mr. Charrington, chancing to glance up, saw his own name in large gilt letters on the public house sign. It was one of the brewery's tied houses.

Such was the impression left by the incident upon Mr. Charrington's mind that he vowed henceforth to have no share in the trade which was productive of such results, but instead to devote himself to the cause of temperance and rescuing the outcasts of East London, a work he has at the utmost self-sacrifice steadily pursued ever since.

"How much do they pay you for wearing that bit of blue ribbon?" sneeringly inquired an impertinent young man of Mr. Charrington on one occasion.

"As nearly as I can make out," answered the reformer, with a bland smile, "it costs me £20,000 a year."

Some eight or nine years ago a well-known West end physician died, leaving a fortune of rather more than £40,000. The whole of this amount was bequeathed to a nephew, with contingent remainder to certain charities should the beneficiary refuse the bequest, the object of the testator being to deprive a daughter, who had married contrary to his wishes, of his estate.

The nephew, however, although the fortune must have been a sore temptation to him, objected to being made an instrument of his uncle's posthumous spite, and announced his intention of refusing the fortune directly he was made aware of the terms of the will. Upon it being pointed out to him that his refusal would only create the contingency provided for and not benefit him or his cousin, he formally accepted the fortune and then transferred it by deed of gift to the young lady who had been so unfairly dealt with by her father.

Unhappily, her husband more than justified the deceased physician's prejudice against him, and promptly gave up his practice and began to dissipate the fortune. He died, however, before he had made away with half the estate, and in due course his widow married the cousin who had so conscientiously refused the fortune for her sake.

BABIES ON CARS.

When travelling with a baby in a sleeping car, says Good Housekeeping, insure a good night's rest for yourself and the baby, not to mention your fellow travellers, by putting him to sleep in the little hammock which is to be found in the berth.

This procedure is practicable for all infants under one year of age and is the only absolutely safe sleeping place for them.

Provide yourself in advance with a piece of cotton rope two feet in length. With this one end of the hammock is to be made fast to the lower end of the chain or cable by which the upper berth is suspended; the other end of the hammock is left on the hook from which it usually hangs.

The hammock is thus suspended diagonally across the berth; now put in two pillows end to end. These serve the double purpose of spreader and bedding. If the hammock is strung tightly it will swing clear of the person sleeping below and the rougher the road, the more the hammock swings, and the sounder the baby sleeps.

CAUGHT TRAINS IN VAIN.

Toronto Mail and Empire: The International Women's Congress, sitting in Paris, recently witnessed a ludicrous scene. The ladies were in solemn conclave when suddenly there appeared a pair of trousers on the scene. For a moment the ladies were too perturbed to identify the spectre, but after a moment of benumbing silence, the president rallied, and in an icy tone identified it as a "man."

Then the apparition relieved the tension by explaining that it was the mortal presence of M. Legendre of Sens, an ardent feminist. "I stood," he said, "as feminist candidate at the last elections, and I have today taken eleven trains to appear among you. I am happy to enjoy this opportunity of supporting your cause."

Alas for enthusiasm when it is of the male persuasion and relates to matters feminine!

The president arose, and after explaining to M. Legendre, in tones of cold, calm severity, that the taking of eleven trains at a stretch did not confer the right of entry to that assemblage, had him expelled.

AN ASTUTE BOY.

The late Alfred Beit, the famous diamond magnate, had a small, handsome house on a huge lot in Park Lane, London's most fashionable street, and here he gave occasionally very elegant dinners, says the Los Angeles Times.

An American, at one of Mr. Beit's dinners, asked the millionaire what quality he considered most essential to success.

"Astuteness, provided that industry goes with it," Mr. Beit replied. "The power to see quickly and to seize every advantage, large and small alike, is the quality that above all others insures success.

"Mr. Carnegie," Mr. Beit went on, "tells about a little Scotch boy who had this quality of astuteness highly developed.

"The boy's grandmother was packing his lunch for him to take to school one morning. Suddenly, looking up in the old lady's face, he said:

"'Grandmother, does yer specs magnify?'

"'A little, my child,' she answered.

"'Aweel, then,' said the boy, 'I wad juist like it if ye wad tak' them off when ye're packin' my loonch.'"

REBATERS IN THE NET

Two Duluth Grain Companies and Four Railroads Indicted.

Eleven Men Also Concered But Names Are Withheld.

Minneapolis, Nov. 9.—Eleven indictments were handed to Judge Loehren in the United States district court at 4:10 p. m. yesterday, covering the giving of rebates by four railroads and the receiving of them by grain firms and individuals. The list of corporations against which the indictments were returned as given out by Assistant District Attorneys Ewart and Dickie, who have had charge of the cases, were as follows:

Wisconsin Central railway, one indictment, seventeen counts.

Minneapolis & St. Louis railway, one indictment and five counts.

W. P. Devereaux company of Minneapolis.

McCaull-Dinsmore company of Minneapolis.

Ames-Brooks company of Duluth.

Duluth Milling company.

Some of the specific charges contained in the indictments were.

Against the Great Northern railway, two indictments for giving rebates to the Spencer Grain company; one for giving rebates to the McCaull-Dinsmore company and one for giving rebates to the Spencer Grain company.

The grain companies for receiving repates.

Besides the corporations, indictments were returned against eleven individuals, officials of the railroads named, but United States District Attorney Houpt said he would not consent to the names being given out for publication owing to the fact that no service had yet been obtained upon them.

The general offense alleged in the railroad indictments is the absorption of grain elevator charges.

After the bunch of indictments had been given to the court the jurors were excused for the term and told to convene again in St. Paul. That a further and more searching investigation into the rebate question will be made is not denied by Assistant United States District Attorney Ewart, and further revelations are expected to be made at the next sitting of the grand jury.

Perhaps the most surprised people of all were the railroads, for none of those interested expected indictments. Each company had made its best endeavors to disclaim and criminality in its relations with the grain companies.

THE TRUTH ABOUT MRS. EDDY STATED

Refutation of Story About Leader of Christian Science Church.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Periodically during the past ten years the press throughout this entire country has been deceived by the report, deliberately invented and systematically circulated, that Rev. Mary Baker Eddy, the discoverer, founder and leader of the Christian Science denomination, is dying, or is dead, or having long been dead has been fraudulently impersonated by some other person. In every instance these reports, after having been widely spread and almost universally accepted as true, have been conclusively proved not only to be false but also to have been fabricated without the slightest evidence or foundation. An inquiry at her home would always receive courteous consideration and an answer that could be relied upon as absolutely true. I ask self-respecting newspapers in the future to verify all the reports about Mrs. Eddy before publishing them. Mrs. Eddy is not a millionaire. She personally manages her own business, which has no connection with that of the mother church in Boston, the latter being managed by its board of directors. Except one payment of $5,000 for special service, Mrs. Eddy has never received any money or property from the mother church, but she has from time to time presented to the mother church money and property of great value. To the cause of Christian Science and to public charities and private sae has always given generously. She presented to the Christian Science church in Concord, N. H., $100,000 towards the erection of its new church home. She has never cared for money except to do good. As a matter of fact, in spite of her age, Mrs. Eddy has always been and now is keen of intellect and strong of body and, bearing heavy responsibilities, has labored unremittingly more hours every day than most industrious business men in the prime of life. In the name of justice, let us not add to the necessarily heavy burdens of one who is faithfully endeavoring to do her duty.

For many years Mrs. Eddy has been living near the home of her childhood, in Concord, N. H., where she is personally well known and where it would therefore be practically impossible for anybody who attempted fraudulently to impersonate her to drive daily through the public streets and to meet personally in the transaction of business and otherwise acquaintances, friends and business associates and representatives, to say nothing of Christian Science church officials who have to be constantly in close communication with the head of the denomination.

In the Concord Evening Monitor of Oct. 29, 1906, which any person may see and read by calling at my office, 33 South Tenth street, Minneapolis, is a long article, covering over a page, with the following heading: "CRUEL FALSEHOODS PROMPTLY REFUTED —Concord Citizens Come Forward With Alacrity to Speak for Mrs. Eddy—Mayor Corning Tells of Interview With Christian Science Leader Sunday Afternoon—General Streeter Was Present Also—Both Say That Mrs. Eddy Was in Good Health and Fine Spirits—New York Newspaper's Sensationalism Fervently Condemned by Concord People Who Know the Facts."

The above named article in the Monitor contains the affidavits of Calvin A. Frye, of Lewis C. Stang, and of Mrs. Pamelia J. Leonard (Mrs. Leonard being the person falsely accused of fraudulently impersonating Mrs. Eddy), denying the sensational stories of the New York World in toto. These affidavits are long and go into minute detail, each covering the period of the affiant's residence as a member of Mrs. Eddy's household, being in the case of Mr. Frye continuously for twenty-four years, of Mr. Stang for nine months continuously, and of Mrs. Leonard off and on for eight years and continuously since Feb. 19, 1906. The affidavit of Mrs. Leonard denies that she ever impersonated Mrs. Eddy or even entered Mrs. Eddy's carriage, denies the presence in Mrs. Eddy's house of stimulants or of a galvanic battery, denies the attendance of a physician from Boston, or from anywhere, denies that Mrs. Eddy has palsy of the hand or any other disease, stating that she is and has been in daily contact with Mrs. Eddy, seeing her many times each day. The affidavit of Mr. Frye states: "My position in Mrs. Eddy's household is simply that of a paid employe. She conducts her own affairs, financial and otherwise, today as she always has, and the statement that Mrs. Eddy is dominated or controlled by any sort of a "cabinet" or combination is positively false—absurdly so to any one who is acquainted with Mrs. Eddy's extraordinary ability as an executive. The affidavit of Mr. Stag states: "Since the middle of March, 1906, one of my duties has been to hand Mrs. Eddy into her carriage daily and adjust the carriage robes about her. Since the middle of March she has failed but one day personally to go on her drive. She did not go one day on account of the roads breaking up in the early spring." The affidavits of Mr. Frye and Mr. Stang make the same denials as Mrs. Leonard's affidavit, extending the period of time to cover the term of their respective service, and state that Mrs. Eddy is in her usual good health, in fact, that she is in unusual good health for a woman of her years, that she is active, about the house more or less daily, that she goes up and down stairs at least once a day, and usually more, and that nobody has ever impersonated her.

The above named article in the Concord Evening Monitor contains a statement by the mayor of Concord, Charles R. Corning, after a personal interview with her of nearly half an hour, declaring: "Mrs. Eddy is keen of intellect—and strong in memory. She is a surprising illustration of longevity; bright eyes, emphatic expression, and an alertness rarely to be encountered in so venerable a person."

The Monitor's article also contains a long statement of Gen. Frank S. Streeter, declaring among other things: "I have been counselor for Mrs. Eddy at various times during the last twelve or fifteen years and have known her well. I think the last time I saw her at her home before today was in June of last year. * * * After a very interesting half hour's talk with Mrs. Eddy we returned. I can emphatically say that Mrs. Eddy, in spite of her advanced years, is a remarkably well preserved woman. Her health and appearance is substantially the same as when I last talked with her, some over a year ago. Her mind is not only unimpaired, but she exhibits the same clearness, strength, alertness and vigor, which have so long distinguished her."

The Monitor's article also contains a statement by M. Meehan, editor Daily Patriot, declaring (concerning the World's sensational story), "To every such a statement or even insinuation, I am one who knows. It is not true in whole or in part, but, on the contrary, is unqualifiedly false."

The Monitor's article also contains a statement by George H. Moses, editor Evening Monitor, declaring among other things as follows: "While it would be futile to assert that Mrs. Eddy is wholly without critics or opponents in Concord, it is entirely within the bounds of accuracy to say that by the vast majority of all our people, and most emphatically by those who by their position in the community are most entitled to represent that intangible spirit which we call public opinion, is regarded easily as our foremost citizen. Her numerous good works, her constant and consistent charities here, her keen interest in all that makes for the betterment of the community, and her blameless, laborious and useful life among us, all contribute to make her beloved and respected by the people of Concord, and we all hope that she may live long in her present full possession of physical, mental and spiritual power to continue her good work among us."

The Monitor's article also contains a statement by J. E. Fernald, president National State Capital bank, who, after mentioning his personal acquaintance and business relations with Mrs. Eddy, continuing ever since she came to Concord up to the present time, and the fact of his meeting her every few days driving, says: "I can state from personal knowledge that it is Mrs. Eddy and no other person whom I see riding in her carriage. I will also state that she stands high in this community. I do not find those who speak evil of her in this her home city, and believe those who come here with evil reports come with malicious intentions. I am not a follower of the Christian Science faith, but make this statement as a citizen of Concord who wishes to see things that are true, the things that are honest, and the things that are just, prevail."

The Monitor's article also contains a statement by Fred N. Ladd, treasurer Loan & Trust Savings bank, who, after describing a long conversation which he had with two representatives of the New York World, who made to him their sensational statements about Mrs. Eddy, say: "Of course, I denied all these statements and said that they were false and also stated that my mother had played with Mrs. Eddy as a child and had been associated with her and had been near her for more than forty years, but they were determined not to believe any reasonable statments. Perhaps it would be well to state that I am not a member of a Christian Science church, but feel it my duty to contradict such false rumors. I have had the honor of being in the presence of Mrs. Eddy several times a year, and most emphatically say that she is in every way capable of conducting her business affairs."

The Monitor's article contains statements of other people in behalf of Mrs. Eddy, reaffirming the above facts and stating among other things that Mrs. Eddy is not and never has been a millionaire, but that she has proved herself to be a wise dispenser of money, who seems to care nothing for it, except to do good with it.

The above named issue of the Concord Evening Monitor also contains an editorial of nearly a column in hearty defense of Mrs. Eddy, stating among other things: "Just now it seems to be the function of the New York World to put forth * * * a most amazing tissue of falsehods. * * * No honest investigator could have stayed here even so short a time as a single day without learning from indisputable sources that Mrs. Eddy is alive—and very keenly alive—to all that takes place in the world, and that she is constantly alert and thoughtful to do good to everybody, especially to the city of Concord. For more than fifteen years Mrs. Eddy has made her home among us, and she leads a simple and well-ordered life. * * * That she finds time for other good works, for charity, for helpfulness and for public-spirited co-operation in the affairs of the community where her home is fixed, thousands of Concord people are ready cheerfully to attest. And they have come forward with glad alacrity to refute the falsehoods of the New York World. * * * Within a very short time the editor of this paper has seen Mrs. Eddy and with her taken counsel upon public affairs in Concord. She was then in a strength of spirit, mind and body far beyond what anyone would have a right to expect from a woman of her age. * * * When anybody tells Concord that Mrs. Eddy is not one of our busiest, most helpful and most beloved and respected citizens, in full possession of her illustrious faculties of mind and in bodily strength far beyond what her years warrant, Concord has a prompt and impregnable answer: We all know better."

The affidavits and statements above referred to and quoted in only a small part of their overwhelmingly unanimous declarations, I submit to the impartial verdict of a fair-minded public.

COMING ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Monday, "The Vanderbilt Cup."

LEONCAVALLO.

Pleasing Concert at the Lyceum---Costs Manager Marshall Heavily.

It cost Manager Marshall of the Lyceum about $1,000 to hear Leoncavallo and his musicians last evening. When he expressed the opinion a few months ago that Duluth would support him in an endeavor to bring here the best things to be had in the musical line, he was warned that he would pay a pretty stiff price for the effort, but he determined to do it. With three more to come he is not especially jubilant.

Leoncavallo's appearance as he stands before his orchestra is that of a stolid, phlegmatic individual, heavy in person and in manner, with absolutely nothing to suggest that in him is the composer of some of the most passionate, tragic and emotional of music. He directs his orchestra with an entire lack of fervor to all appearances and bows his acknowledgments to the audience with a bored air, his whole attitude in fact is that of being compelled to do all this and not at all because it is of his liking. Yet he was sufficiently gracious in granting encores, and seems to get the effects he desires from his musicians. There is about these La Scala musicians less of the severe discipline apparent than characterizes American symphony orchestras, this extending even to their dress, for every man seems to wear what he pleases, but they are nevertheless to be responsive to the moods of their leader. The music was all from compositions of Leoncavallo's, but there was a variety about it that made the concert free from monotony. The "Pagliacci" numbers were, of course, all familiar, but most of those on the program were new.

The singers were all delightful. Mme. Ferrabini, a tall, dark and handsome Italian woman, was perhaps the favorite, although Mme. Rizzini divided the honors with her closely. Mme. Ferrabini did not give much suggestion of warmth or vivacity at first but livened up wonderfully in her final number, Mimi's song from "La Boheme." Her voice is a rich mezzo soprano of splendid quality and very expressive. Mme. Rizzini has a lyric of soprano with liquid tones that ripple and flow forth without an effort. Mons. Perya has a tenor of much strength and dramatic quality and was heard to advantage in a solo number and a quartet. That Mons. Barbaini's field is the opera where he can act and give full expression to his feelings was plainly evidenced by his "Pagliacci" solo number rendered with all of the passion and fire the number calls for Mme. Calvi sang an "Ave Marie" dedicated to Pope Pius X, and exhibited a voice of much beauty and feeling.

The performance closed with "Vivi L'-America," a composition dedicated to President Roosevelt and which contains as its leading strains "Yankee Doodle" and "Dixie."

ROGERS BROTHERS.

The famous Rogers Brothers will be at the Lyceum this evening and tomorrow afternoon and evening presenting "The Rogers Brothers in Ireland." These clever entertainers have changed their geographical situation each season for years, creating a great deal of interest with each change they have made, but the present scene of their activity, the Emerald Isle, has proven far more interesting than any they have selected in the past.

THREE MORE PERFORMANCES.

The Tiger Lilies will give three more performances at the Metropolitan, one this evening and two tomorrow. The musical numbers introduced during the action of the two burlesques and during the olio are not a small portion of the excellence in the production of "The Tiger Lilies." Among the most popular numbers are "On the Old Farm," "Mexico," "Cupid is Captain of the Army" and "The Shane Garten House."

"THE VANDERBILT CUP."

The offering at the Lyceum Monday will be "The Vanderbilt Cup," the much talked of automobile racing play, which ran for eight months at the Broadway theatre, New York, and for three months in Chicago at the Colonial. It is said to be put on in all its entirety, including Barney Oldfield's famous racing cars which come on for a hotly contested race. Many catchy songs and novel dances are promised.

A few thoughts of the time just

Before the Holidays

Nearly two months before Christmas—but Thanksgiving isn't far away—and it's none too soon to again remind you particularly of the "shopping conveniences" of Duluth's big store.

The management assures you there shall be plenty of salespeople to wait upon you; quick and accurate service in bundling and change-making; increased and efficient delivery service to meet all demands.

The store offers you the service of two big electric passenger elevators—in the center of the store—and wide stairways to every floor.

The complete postoffice (main floor) facilitates the purchasing of "out-of-town" holiday gifts.

The women's rest and retiring rooms and waiting parlor are free and you are cordially invited to use them.

Shopping a Pleasure Here.

At $19.50

52-inch tight-fitting Coats of rich broadcloths. Plain tailored? Yes,—but how perfectly! Half-lined with finest satin. We're willing to have them compared with any others' $25 coats.

At $25.00

52 to 54-inch tight-fitting coats of such high grade that $30 would not buy their equals in any other store in the city. We make the statement without fear of contradiction. We know.

Fine broadcloths and kerseys, half and full lined, plain tailored and strap or braid trimmed.

A half dozen different styles—all sizes—are just in.

Note Well!

This is the finest lot of coats in these styles you'll find in the city.—We've investigated and know whereof we speak.

At $6.50

50-inch box coats for $6.50—but who would guess they were less than $10 coats? Plain and mixed cloths, velvet collars, patch pockets, cuffs, double breasted, fancy button trimmings,—ladies' and misses' sizes.

At $12.50

50-inch box coats. A splendid big lot just in at this price. Finely tailored—but the excellent weight and the variety of materials are the "taking points."

There are rich dark browns and grays in over-plaids and checks, and dozens of fancy weaves of lighter shades.

At $14.50

50 and 52-inch Black Box Coats of broadcloth and kersey, fancy trimmed or plainly made—half or full lined. Actual $19.00 values.

Not simplified spelling—but

Simplified Shopping

From inside the store it's simple as can be—and can be from your viewpoint, too, when you realize that shopping here may be done

By Telephone—Branch 'phones (both lines) give you connection with all departments.

PANTON & WHITE COMPANY
THE BIG GLASS BLOCK STORE — WHERE QUALITY IS PARAMOUNT

Beauty of Fall Hats

Is best exemplified in this immense and popular millinery store. Larger preparations have produced larger results—more confidence and greater popularity.

At $3.95

50 trimmed hats tomorrow, finest effects in black, brown, navy, green and garnet—the $6 kinds in many stores.

$3.95 to $8.00

Not elaborately trimmed are these—small, close shapes—but neat and dressy beyond a doubt—with just a wing, ribbon, ornament, etc. They'll be wanted greatly when colder weather happens along. Best bought now when full lines are shown.

Specially Interesting to Cap Wearers!

100 dozen Stocking Caps, all colors and combinations of colors—long and short ones. A lot at 25c each, are worth 35c each; a lot at 50c each, usually sell at 75c each.

ANGORA TAMS.

Girls always want them in cold days. These are white, navy, brown, gray and red, both round and square; values to 75c. Tomorrow 48c

BABY BONNETS.

Silk, velvet, bearskin—white, red, brown, navy and blue; pay any price you care to—for they're here at all prices from 25c, 35c, and 50c to $5.50 each.

Good Furs—Little Money

At $7.50 and $9.98

Large double fur boas, of either opossum or fox, with large bush or cluster tails—with fancy ornaments, cord fastenings—serviceable and dressy—plenty heavy and warm.

Small Pieces $4.98

Throws, ties and cluster scarfs, of rich beautiful, natural and blended squirrel, opossum, imitation ermine and nearseal-fur and heavy satin linings. Values that will delight you.

Children's Winter Coats

Coats such as are found in any high class wearable store, but not matchable at such prices as are found here—there's the difference. Made, too, by leading children's tailors.

For tots of 2 to 6—Bearskin and astrakhan cloths, velvets and novelty materials, plain or with muffs, fancy hoods, etc., any style for any tot—any price for any mother, $2.98 to $10.00.

SPECIAL $2.50—Choice of blue and red astrakhan coats for little tots—ages 2 to 6. Warm and well made.

Styles for Older Girls, 6 to 14

Are much more varied. In fact, these lines vie in both variety and smart style with the full lines for women. There are broadcloths, kerseys, cheviots, fancy novelty mixtures, astrakhans, velvets, etc.,—plain and fancy models. Girls will be delighted, and mothers no less so, with the high quality of workmanship displayed in these coats. And there'll be some occasion for pleasure when price tickets are seen and you learn how cheap they are.

Duluth's Best Furniture Store.

"Best" doesn't always mean largest—size don't count for much if values are not what they should be. "It's value" that makes this store "best." It's "value" that has actually doubled the volume of business during the past few months, as compared with corresponding months in 1905. "Double" means twice as many customers—or the same number buying twice as much furniture. Either way you read it—it speaks volumes for this furniture store's methods. Value is winning here—value will continue to win.

Make General Comparison on the Basis of These Few Items. It's Safe to Do So.

Oak Morris Chair—$6.95.

Quarter-sawed oak frame in golden or weathered oak finish, improved steel spring construction, reversible hair filled, velour cushions, rachet reclining adjustment.

Priced at $10 in installment houses, here—

Only $6.95

Oak Dresser $8.75

Finely made, curved front top, bevel plate mirror 22x18, two large and two half drawers—carved mirror arms, very finely polished finish. Installment stores actually ask $10.75 for dressers of equal value—our price is an actual and positive saving of $2. Prove it for yourself.

Mission Oak Rocker

A solid oak rocker (like cut), of finest construction, upholstered in Boston Spanish leather, finished in weathered oak. A good sized chair—comfortable, rich looking, serviceable, durable—priced at $9 or $10 in installment houses—our price is

$7.75

Sofa Bed Davenport.

A splendid big, roomy sofa davenport, with golden oak or mahogany frame, heavy velour upholstering. Has a large, roomy drawer beneath for bed clothing. In installment stores the price is $35 at least—our price $25.75

GIVES HIM THE LIMIT

Judge Cant Sentences Charles Harris for Five Years.

Previous Criminal Record Offered No Mitigating Circumstances.

Pleading guilty to the charge of assault in the second degree, Charles Harris, who was being held to the grand jury, has been sentenced by Judge Cant to a term of five years in the state penitentiary on information furnished the court by the county attorney and at his own request.

The sentence he received is the maximum punishment for the offense with which he was charged, so that while Harris has fared no better than he possibly could had a jury convicted him, the county has been saved the expense of a trial.

Harris is the man who attempted to shoot Deputy Sheriff Michael Horgan in a Lake avenue saloon Oct. 1 last. Mr. Horigan had a warrant for a man named Harris, wanted in St. Paul on a statutory charge and, learning that a Charles Harris frequented the saloon, he stepped inside and called out the name, asking if Harris was present. Charles Harris, the defendant, who was in the room, started up, declared his name, at the same time pulling a revolver which he placed with the muzzle against Mr. Horgan. The deputy immediatel grappled and threw Harris to the floor before he could carry carry out his evident intention of shoting the officer.

Suspecting from his desperate actions that Harris was either wanted at some other place or had the reputation of a "bad man," the authorities investigated and found in the rogues' galery his picture and Bertillion measurements that established his identity beyond all doubt.

Although not the man wanted by the St. Paul authorities, it was found that Harris had a prison record; that he had served two terms in the North Dakota penitentiary and one term in the Minnesota penitentiary. His record knows that he escaped from the North Dakota prison, but was recaptured.

SENATOR'S BROTHER IN DEADLY PISTOL FIGHT.

Carrollton, Miss., Nov. 9.—At Money, a small town in Leflore county, a pistol fight occurred yesterday between J. D. Money, a brother of United States Senator Money, and L, J. Henderson, a prominent planter. Henderson was instantly killed and Money wounded slightly.

Accidents will happen, but the best-regulated families keep Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil for such contingencies. It subdues the pain and heals the hurts.

PAPAL CONSISTORY WILL BE HELD IN DECEMBER.

Rome, Nov. 9.—The pope will hold a consistory about the middle of December, but it has not been decided whether cardinals will then be created or not. According to some, this consistory will be held chiefly for the purpose of transferring the archbishop of Seville to another see, and to appoint several French bishops. According to others, cardinals will be created, including one Belgian and one Frenchman.

PHILIP BEAUPRE DEAD.

One of the Pioneers of Stearns County Has Passed Away.

St. Cloud, Minn., Nov. 9.—Philip Beaupre, one of the pioneers of Stearns county, died at his home in Sauk Rapids yesterday morning after a lingering illness brought on by old age. Mr. Beaupre was a native of Lower Canada and was born July 6, 1823. He came to the United States in 1840 and was employed in Chicago for several years.

In 1894 he established a trading post in Morrison county and after a year he came to Sauk Rapids, where he preempted some land. In the fall of 1869, he was elected sheriff of Stearns county. He held the office of county commissioner of Benton county and was justice of the peace of Sauk Rapids for many years.

He leaves a wife and thirteen living children who are: Wm. P. Beaupre, Inaway, N. W. T.; Louis, Sauk Rapids; Emma Ellie, Sauk Rapids; Henry, Mrs. John Rohman, Eulalie; Choteau, Mont.; Mrs. A. J. Nile, Butte, Mont.; Mrs. H. N. Nelson, Great Falls; Frank B., Minneapolis; John P., Philipsberg, Mont.; Mrs. A. F. Dorch, Great Falls, Mont.; and Alphonzo L. of Butte, Mont.

WISCONSIN MOB FOILED.

Spring Green, Wis., Nov. 9.—prompt and decisive action by the local authorities yesterday prevented the lynching of Thomas Balf, accused of throwing Mrs. Edward Frank over a fence, injuring her terribly.

Balf, who was captured at Madison, was brought here at noon yesterday for his hearing. The train with the officials and prisoner was met by an enraged mob which only needed a leader to carry out a lynching. Balf spent most of the afternoon in jail, and during much of the time there was a crowd about the jail yelling, "Hang him."

When it was time to catch the 4:30 train, the officers braved a mob, and though they were forced to run from the would-be lynchers, the constables and Balf reached the train safely.

BIGAMY IS THE CHARGE

Which New Yorker Makes Against Wife Suing for Divorce.

Claims That She Has a Husband Living in Mexico.

New York, Nov. 9.—"Your honor, no man with a spark of decency could live with this woman. She deceived this defendant into marrying her while she has another husband living. She is guilty of bigamy!"

This was the sensational statement made by Lawyer David M. Neuberger in opposing the motion for alimony and counsel fees made before Justice Keogh in special term of the supreme court by Lawyer P. Smith, on behalf of Martha Wegener, in her suit for separation against her husband, Charles F. Wegener.

Lawyer Neuberger then summed up the contents of the affidavit of the defendant to the action, saying: "The defendant's wife died about a year ago, leaving him with three small children, girls. Shortly after his bereavement he heard from this woman to whom he is now married, and who is bringing this action, and who had been his friend of fifteen years ago. She told him of learning of the death of his wife, and offered her sympathy. She invited him to call and they renewed their friendship.

"She often spoke of her sorrow for his three motherless little ones, and he in his sorrow believed her and married her. She operated a lodging house at 207 Clinton street, where she also carried on a dressmaking establishment.

"She said that she had a good income and that she had a couple of thousand dollars in the bank. He fell a victim to the spell of the woman, and married her on April 26 last. Before marrying her he knew her as the widow of a man named Cole, and married her as such.

"He was in the saloon business, and she said that with her income all that he would have to do was to provide $15 a week for the support of the children. Shortly after they were married this woman began to entertain a man whose name I won't mention publicly, but which is in the affidavits.

"Leaving the three children to themselves she went out with this man and drank with him. She often entertained this man at her home, and, if your honor will take one of the little daughters into private examination, your honor will learn enough to refuse alimony to this woman."

An affidavit by Wegener said that he spent all his ready money on a six week's trip which he, with his wife, made to Europe on Aug. 2, and that where he formerly owned a saloon in Manhatan, he is now working for wages of $20 a week.

On the return of the couple from Europe on Sept. 25 the action for separation was begun by Mrs. Wegener, who charges cruel and inhuman treatment. He continues that for the welfare of his children he was compelled to remove them from the environments in which he had placed them by marriage.

The affidavit continues that since his marriage Wegener has been informed that at the time of his marriage to Mrs. Wegener, she had a husband named Wright living, who is now in Mexico. The affidavit named Charles Diller as the man entertained by Mrs. Wegener, and says that her marriage to the defendant was a conspiracy between Diller and Mrs. Wegener, the latter concealing her marriage to Wright so that she might entrap Wegener and continue her relations with Diller.

Lawyer Neuberger told the court that he had to start to the Southwest at once and asked for an adjournment. Justice Keough granted three weeks and ordered that alimony of $12 a week and $100 counsel fees be paid in the meantime.

When asked outside the courtroom Neuberger denied that the object of his visit to the Southwest was to look up Wright.

GOATSKINS IN DEMAND.

Washington, Nov. 9.—Goatskins to the value of $32,000,000 were imported in the fiscal year 1906, against $10,000,000 worth a decade earlier. The only important article of manufacturers' materials showing a more rapid gain in importations is pig tin.

IRISH EXILE HOME.

Parnell's Sister is Staying With Friends in Dublin.

Dublin, Nov. 9.—After almost fifteen years of exile, Miss Anna Parnell, sister of Charles Stewart Parnell, is at present in Ireland, and is staying with friends in one of the Dublin suburbs. Miss Anna Parnell is, intellectually closer to her brother, Charles, than any member of her family. Her sister, Miss Fanny Parnell, was a more enthusiastic Nationalist, and no one can ever forget her wonderful poem about "The Destiny of Ireland," when she anticipated, only too soon, her own early death, and asked:

Shall mine eyes behold thy glory.
Oh, my country?

Miss Anna Parnell had not so continuously identified herself with the National movement as her younger sister; but that she felt the same indignation of Swift about the misgovernment of Ireland by England was fairly well known when, as a young girl, she took hold of the bridle of Lord Spencer's horse in Westmoreland street, and asked him why he allowed poor peasants in the West to be thrown on the roadside.

The incident, at the time, created a tremendous sensation. It was almost as if a bomb had exploded in the vaults of Dublin castle, or as if a new Titus Oates' conspiracy had been discovered. Since that dramatic incident Miss Parnell has not taken any kind of prominent part in connection with Irish politics, but a letter which she wrote a few years ago in connection with the visit of Queen Victoria showed that she still held the opinions of early '80s, when she was one of the most energetic members of the Ladies' Land League.

Miss Parnell visited Glasnevin three months after the death of her brother, in order to see his grave, and since then she has not been in this country. "There is a tradition among the survivors of the literary staff of the Irish People newspaper," says T. P. O'Connor, in his "Parnell Movement," of a young lady, heavily veiled, coming with a contribution to the office of the journal during its troubled career. This was Miss Fanny Parnell. There was not a member of the family, from the mother to the youngest daughter, who had not this intense love of their country.

The average young woman of today is busy and has no time to devote to anything but health and beauty. It comes to ninety-nine out of every hundred who take Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea. Tea or Tablets, 35 cents. Ask your druggist.

THE LAND OF BURNS

Guns From the Spanish Armada and Treasure Chest Found.

Glasgow, Nov. 9.—Since the opening of the autumn season at the beginning of last month salmon anglers on the Scottish rivers have suffered greatly from the effects of the long spell of dry weather which has been experienced in the North country. Many of the streams are far below summer level, and fish cannot be induced to leave the river mouth, where they are lying in large numbers waiting the advent of a flood to take them up to the spawning beds.

The prince of Wales has been enjoying a day or two's angling on the Spey, and has procured fair sport on the duke of Richmond and Gordon's stretches of that river. Prince Albert of Schleswig-Holstein, who has been the guest of C. B. Balfour of Newton Don, was angling recently on the earl of Home's Birgham reach of the River Tweed, a little below Kelso, and has had fine sport.

The duke of Roxburghe is retaining the Edrom house casts, which have generally been let, in his own hands this season, and with a view to bettering the conditions of angling, has carried out improvements in the bed of the stream.

The statistics relating to the number of visitors to the birthplace of Burns at Alloway show that a fresh record has been established. For the year ending Sept. 30 the total number of persons who paid the 7 pence charge for admission to the cottage was 66,968, as compared with 56,369 in the previous year, an increase of 659, or 2,814 more than in 1903, which previous to last year held the record. The busiest week was the Glasgow fair week, when no fewer than 9,850 passed the turnstiles. At the monument the number of visitors for the year was 63,011, being an increase of 963. The number for the fair week was 10,683, and for the fair Monday 3,371. A feature of the year was the large number of American visitors.

Robert Paterson of Messrs. Paterson and Newlands, Glasgow, who is acting as secretary to and is a member of the syndicate which is carrying out the exploration at the wreck of the Spanish Armada treasure ships, has received an encouraging telegram from Tobermory. It states that eight guns, presumably bronze, have been located, also a chest. The sea being calm and the weather fine the work is still being carried on vigorously. So far no portion of the wrecked ship has been located. The chief difficulty which the explorers have to overcome is the presence of the large quantity of sand and slimy mud which has been silted up during the three centuries by the burn which flows into the bay at the point where the vessel was blown up, and the area, some 200 yards which has to be probed. The syndicate is, however, quite satisfied with the progress of the operations so far and are hopeful that they will yet discover the poop of the vessel, in which, it is believed, not only the treasure, but the captain's valuable gold plate will be found.

Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Campbell Polloksheilds were signally honored on the occasion of the seventieth anniversary of their marriage the other day. Earl Howe, lord chamberlain to Queen Alexandra, forwarded, through the secretary for Scotland, the following telegram to the lord provost:

"I am commanded by the queen to ask you to be good enough to convey to Mr. and Mrs. Campbell her majesty's warm congratulations upon the most interesting and probably unique celebration, and express to them her best wishes for their happiness."

The lord provost also sent his congratulations. Mr. Campbell is a native of Alexandria, and was a partner of the old firm Campbell & Dunn, grain merchants, Union street, which was formed in the first half of last century.

STABBED BEFORE SCHOOL.

Italian Made Victim of Murderous New York Robbers.

New York, Nov. 9.—John Batiste Gelsomino, an Italian of Westfield, Conn., was stabbed in the back and his watch and $150 in bills taken from him opposite Public School No. 8 in the Bronx, this afternoon in sight of scores of children.

The wounded man said he came to this city Wednesday night from his home in Westfield and went to an Italian bank somewhere on the East Side to get the banker, whose name he said he did not know, to exchange $150 in American money for Italian money in order that he might send it home to Italy. He said the banker introduced him to another man whose name he did not remember and the two robbed him and then stabbed him.

FUTURE QUEEN MAKES A HOBBY OF MEDICINE.

Brussels, Nov. 9.—The future queen of the Belgians, Princess Elizabeth, has made a hobby of medicine, and has studied the science so thoroughly that she holds the degree of M. D. Recently she established the Albert and Elizabeth dispensary in Brussels, a charitable institution for tuberculosis patients. She visits the dispensary every day and gives practical help in treating the poor patients.

Princess Elizabeth, who is the wife of Prince Albert, the heir apparent, commenced her medical studies at the age of 16, taking here degree seven years afterward at Leipzig. It was from her father, Duke Charles Theodore of Bavaria, who is a famous oculist, that she inherited her love of the healing art.

Medicine, however, is not the only branch of learning the princess has taken up. She has written a number of books on various subjects, the largest of which perhaps is a collection of anecdotes about animals. In this volume she tells some amusing stories of her own horses and dogs, of which she is passionately fond.

Practical automobilism is another of the versatile princess' hobbies. As a "chauffeuse" she had nothing to learn. Prince Albert and his wife, who are fond of motoring together without a professional driver, were stopped on one of these spins by a punctured tire, but together they were able to patch it up without having recourse to a repair depot. The princess has even been known to use her auto in the hunting field.

The home life of the princess and her husband is one of domestic simplicity, which should be an example to their uncle, the king. They occupy the palace of the Marquis d'Assche, which was the American legation when Bellamy Storer was United States minister to Belgium. Rising at 8 o'clock the princess spends her mornings in literary work and takes a motor drive with Prince Albert before lunch if the weather is favorable. State business occupies the royal couple after lunch and then the princess spends an hour with her two little sons, Prince Leopold, the heir presumptive, and Prince Charles.

After 5 o'clock the princess is at home until 7. Dinner, to which guests eminent in diplomacy, literature and science are invited, is served at 8. The prince and princess are fond of a game of chess when alone together.

Princess Elizabeth is one of the four royal ladies who have been decorated with the papal order of the Golden Rose, the others being the queen of Portugal, the queen of Spain and the late empress of Austria.

WARNER'S SAFE CURE

IS THE ONLY ABSOLUTE CURE FOR ALL FORMS OF KIDNEY DISEASE. A TRIAL BOTTLE WILL BE SENT ABSOLUTELY FREE TO EVERY READER OF THE HERALD.

MRS. F. E. ARGLYE.

Mrs. F. F. Argyle, of Denver, Colorado, President of Knights and Ladies of Golden Precept, thanks Warner's Safe Cure for her restoration to health, after a siege of pains in the back caused by diseased kidneys.

"About a year ago my health was completely run down, nerves shattered, had frequently dizzy spells, backache, and had to pass my water frequently and with great irritation. The doctor pronounced it kidney and bladder trouble, and I was under his care for two months. Failing of results, resolved to try Warner's Safe Cure, which had come to me very highly recommended. The first bottle helped me considerably, and at the end of three months I was a well woman, without a sign of any of the many aches and pains that had heretofore been my lot. I feel much better than I have in years and certainly feel grateful to your medicine." MRS. F. E. ARGYLE, 1446 Stout street, Denver, Colo., Pres. of Knights and Ladies of Golden Precept.

EXPERT GIVES TESTIMONY

Division Engineer for Railroad Talks About Tunnel Blasting.

John Krey, division engineer for the Wisconsin Central Railway company, testified before the appraisers yesterday concerning the extent of the blasting that would be done in opening a tunnel under Michigan street from Twelfth to Eighth avenues west. Mr. Krey said he believed the safest way would be for the railway company to do the blasting work without letting it to contractors.

Mr. Krey was engineer in charge of the New York Central at New York when the subway was constructed and had ample opportunity to investigate the effects of the blasting. He says that excavation was made within a foot of the foundation to the Lincoln National bank, but that not a jar was felt in the building while the subway work was under way.

That the nature of the rock to be encountered would have a bearing on the difficulty in the work was admitted by Mr. Krey, who believes that it is mostly of granite formation. He said the company would probably not go more than two feet out of its line with the blasting and that the tunnel would be lined more strongly at the points where there is the least solid rock.

Mr. Krey has had considerable experience in blasting rock cuts on the range for the Duluth & Iron Range road. He also attended to the blowing up of the old steamer Winnipeg.

FIRE WIPES OUT FAMILY.

New York Woman and Her Four Children Suffocated in Tenement.

New York, Nov. 9.—In a fire in an East side five-story tenement house on Madison street last night Mrs. Ginsberg and her five children living on an upper floor were cut off by the smoke and flames in the lower part of the building. After the firemen had rescued fifty women and children, they found the bodies of three of the Ginsberg children on the stairs, where they had been overcome by the smoke. In one of the flats on that floor they also found the bodies of the woman and the fourth child, who also had been suffocated.

Grape-Nuts

"There's a Reason," experience proves.

1st. This food is toothsome and delicious.

2nd. It is wonderfully easy of digestion, the starchy part having been predigested in the process of manufacture.

3rd. Predigested Grape-Nuts supplies the body with carbo-hydrates in such form that the blood quickly assimilates and deposists these elements in the tissues all over the body, there to lie dormant until exertion releases the kinetic energy.

That energy is there if Grape-Nuts has been the food.

4th. This food contains delicate particles of Phosphate of Potash obtained in natural form from field grains.

This element thus highly specialized by Mother Nature, has an affinity for and will unite with albumen and water in the human body.

This combination produces the soft gray matter, filling the Brain and Nerve Cells all over the body. That keeps the

WEST DULUTH

WRESTLERS PREPARING

Preliminaries Have Been Announced for Big Match Next Week.

Kreidler and Rosene Said to Have Plenty of Backers.

The athletic element in West Duluth is taking great interest in the big wrestling match which will be pulled off at Great Eastern hall next Thursday evening, and there will undoubtedly be a good bunch of sports to witness the affair. The main match will be between Frank Kreidler and Arthur Rosene, both of West Duluth, and these two are training hard, so as to be in the best of condition next week.

Preliminary to the Kreidler-Rosene match there will be two other wrestling events, and one three-round sparring exhibition, all participated in by well known West Duluth and Duluth athletes. Dick Johnson and Billy Little will be the first wrestlers on the program, and they will be followed by an event between Dave Smith and Bill Lapanta. These men are all very fast, and about evenly matched, so that some good, clean, fast matches are promised. The other preliminary affair will be the sparring match between P. H. Holliday and W. Milton.

Kreidler and Rosene are said to be about evenly matched, and it is very hard to pick the winner. They both have considerable fame throughout the city, and there will be plenty of backers for each. The winner will have the best two falls out of three to his credit, and the match will be pulled off under the Police Gazette rules.

The Athletic association out here has been reorganized this fall, and a number of new members secured, so that there are about fifty who now belong. Joseph DeChambeau is president this year, and Richard Johnson vice president.

The fact that the West Duluth ladies are going to attend the coming match goes to show what an interest is being taken in the affair. Several women have signified theer intention of witnessing the wrestling, and a good attendance is looked for.

FRACTURES COLLAR BONE.

George Frank is Injured While Playing With Companion.

While playing about his home, on Sixtieth avenue, yesterday, with a number of his boy companions, George Frank, 12 years old, in some way fell and broke his collar bone. He was attended by a physician, and no serious injury will result.

Alfred Moe of Midway, who was brought to the Duluth hospital at West Duluth yesterday and operated upon for appendicitis, is in a very precarious condition today. The doctors say that he has merely a fighting chance of pulling through. Complications had set in which made the operation much more difficult, and the result less sure.

WILL CLOSE PERMANENTLY

Merrill & Ring Company Will Saw No More Timber Here.

Having completed cutting the timber for the Split Rock Lumber company, the Merrill & Ring saw mill closed down yesterday afternoon, after running steadily since last April. During that time about 175 men were employed at the mill. All the timber that the Merrill & Ring company owned in this section, has been exhausted, and the company will not take any more contracts for sawing for other concerns, but will retire from the business here. The West Duluth mill has been run by this company for the past seventeen years, and hundreds of men have been employed there each season from spring late into the fall.

Enlarging Curling Rink.

A "moving bee" was held this morning by a number of the members of the West Duluth curling club at their rink. One of the walls of the rink was picked up and moved to one side, about eighteen feet, making room for one more sheet of ice to be used during the coming season. The increase in membership in the club is continuing steadily, and over fifty new members have been added during the last few weeks.

Services at Asbury Church.

It has been decided by the Ministerial association of the West Duluth pastors that the annual Thanksgiving services this year shall be held at the Asbury M. E. church and Rev. W. J. Lowrie of the Westminister Presbyterian church, will deliver the sermon. The pastors have not yet fully completed the plans for the service, but upon the return of Rev. Hoag of the Baptist church and Rev. Lowrie, who are now on a hunting expedition, they will be arranged.

West Duluth Briefs.

A boy was born yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Rakowskie, 611 Fifty-eighth avenue north.

The old Murry & Jones saw mill at Oneota is being torn down. It is thought that the property has been purchased by the Rainy Lake railroad.

Mrs. C. Brewer of Twenty-first avenue west, has gone to Virginia for a few weeks' visit with relatives and friends.

E. J. Ketcham left for Cloquet dam this morning where he will establish a camp and go after deer tomorrow. He was accompanied by Dr. Spengler of Duluth.

The masquerade dancing party given at Wade's hall last evening was well attended, and a pleasant evening was enjoyed.

A delegation of West Duluth ladies attended the meeting of the Womens' Council of Duluth at the public library this morning.

Several of the West Duluth football enthusiasts left for Chicago today to see the great contest between Minnesota and Chicago tomorrow.

N. D. Roll was called to Farmersdale, Ohio, yesterday on account of the sudden death of his mother.

John Curo has returned from Becker county, where he has been working on his farm.

J. D. Rowe leaves today to locate some land for several parties in the northern part of Wisconsin.

The remains of William E. Shipley were buried at Oneota cemetery yesterday afternoon, the funeral being held from the undertaking rooms of H. R. Patterson.

Mrs. John Curo, 122 Sixty-third avenue west, who has been visiting relatives at Frazee, Minn., for the past three months, has returned.

We Are Overstocked

Copyright 1906 by Hart Schaffner & Marx

SIX months ago we backed our belief in Duluth by giving Hart, Schaffner & Marx the largest order for Suits and Overcoats that they had ever received in Minnesota, with one exception. We expected our store would have the liveliest trade in its history this fall, but all has been changed by the long continued warm weather and we now have stocks thousands of dollars in excess of what we should have at this season. Only one course is left to us and that is to unload and do so quickly, no matter how great the loss will be.

Tomorrow morning we will inaugurate the greatest ten-day cut price sale of clothing Duluth has ever known.

JUDGE KEEPS SELF IN JAIL

No Magistrate to Release Jurist Who Killed Doctor.

Baton Rouge, La., Nov. 9.—An unusual legal situation has followed the killing by Congressman-elect George V. Favrot of Dr. R. H. Aldrich, the result of which will be that he will be kept in jail for sixty days without hope of bail.

Favrot was judge of the district court before which his case should legally come for consideration. His resignation from this office yeterday left this court without a judge and it will be sixty days after notice of a new special election is served before his successor can be chosen. The state constitution makes no provision for appointing a successor. He cannot secure bail until his case goes before the court.

It was reported that Mr. Favrot might issue a statement today clearing up the cause for the shooting.

Busy Gidding Store.

Gidding's will undoubtedly be a busy store tomorrow, for with the sale of a hundred suits, ones and twos, from their regular stocks, which they now have on sale at half their former prices, and splendid lines of long black broadcloth and Kersey tight or loose fitting coats at $19.50 and $25, and large lines of long Kersey coats at $15, together with their special values in fur neck scarfs, muffs, fur coats and fur lined garments, and additional values in misses' and children's suits, it would seem that there was plenty to interest almost every member of the family. Last Saturday was the largest day's business for the Gidding firm this season, and they have made preparations to surpass last Saturday's record tomorrow.

SARJA WINS CATTLE CASE.

St. Louis County Farmer's Judgment Against Great Northern Upheld.

St. Paul, Nov. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state supreme court today affirmed the St. Louis county court in the case of Felix Sarja against the Great Northern railroad. A freight train killed two of Sarja's cattle, which had gone on to an unfenced portion of the railroad track. The court held that because Sarja had allowed his cattle to run at large unlawfully that was not contributory negligence. Sarja got a verdict for $116 below.

The supreme court reversed the order of the McLeod county court in the case of the state against E. Burton Strait, who was indicted and convicted below of receiving a deposit of $90 in a bank, knowing it was insolvent.

MEXICANS WAR UPON RANGERS

Texas Troops Investigating Murder Engaged in Battle.

Brownsville, Texas, Nov. 9.—A detachment of Texas rangers enroute to Rio Grande city to investigate the assassination of Judge Welch Monday night, were attacked by a body of armed Mexicans and a fight resulted, in which one Mexican was killed and many wounded.

Governor Lanham is rushing troops to the scene and the situation is regarded as critical. More fighting is expected before the troops arrive.

The Mexicans are said to be aroused over the opposition to their voting in the recent election.

GAS HEATER DEADLY TO TWO.

JAM BLOCKS AIRSHIP.

Paris Bois Guardians Refuse to Let Santos-Dumont Fly.

Paris, Nov. 9.—Such an enormous crowd collected in the Bois De Boulogne today to witness M. Santos-Dumont's attempts to win the grand Deutsche-Archdeacon prize, which requires the flight of more than a kilometer in a machine heavier than the air, that the guardians of the Bois insisted on a postponement of the attempt until better police protection could be arranged at a later date.

HOCH IN LEAD BY 25,000.

Official Count Will Determine Kansas Result Finally.

Topeka, Kan., Nov. 9.—At noon today Republican State Chairman Crummer claimed the re-election of Governor Hoch by a plurality of 2,500. Returns from 100 counties out of the 105 in the state received by the Republican headquarters, show a plurality of 3,531 for Hoch. The official canvass was begun today. It probably will not be finished till tomorrow.

RUN OVER BY A CAR.

Clear Lake, Wis., Nov. 9.—With his family stricken with scarlet fever, Charles Koen, aged 40, was the victim of a railway accident yesterday afternoon.

While a freight train was switching on the Omaha sidetrack near the stockyards, Koen, a section hand, was accidentally run over by a moving car. The car passed over his thighs. He was immediately taken to Dr. Wells' office, where he died from internal hemorrhages. He is survived by his wife and five children.

SAYS INTEREST WAS USURIOUS

Clifford Hall Brings Suit Against Salary Loan Agency.

Claiming that interest to the amount of $27 on a principal of $49 for six months, might come under the head of usury, Clifford Hall has brought suit against D. H. Tolman to recover what he alleges is in excess of the legal interest.

Hall claims that he borrowed the $49 from Tolman, who conducts a salary loan agency, and that he returned the amount, together with $27 interest.

The case is being tried before Judge Cutting, in the municipal court. Arguments on a motion to dismiss were heard this morning, and the court has taken the matter under consideration.

Sincerity Suit Specials!

All the newest styles will be included in this offering.

Tomorrow will be a great suit day at the sincerity store. We have just received a special and somewhat belated shipment of which we expected to place on our tables several weeks ago. In every other store they would be called $18 and $20 suits.

Now that the big shipment is here and all ready for business, we want to say that it is one of the finest assortments that has ever been placed before the discriminating buyers of this city, and for this reason we anticipate such a run on this lot of new styles as has not been experienced in many a day.

The sizes run from 34 to 42, and the fabrics embrace all the desirable woolens of the best American looms.

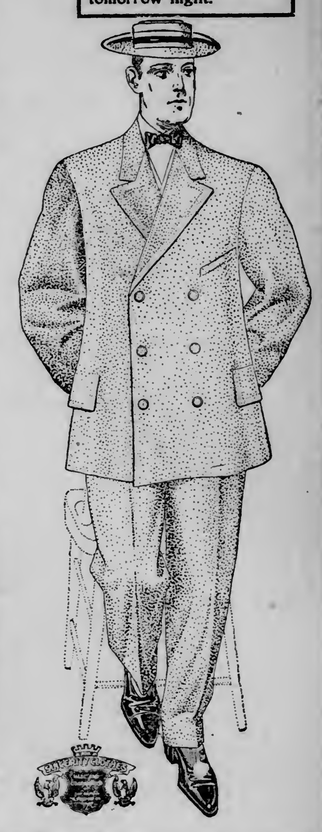

We have others—Stein-Bloch Suits among them—still more classy in fabrics and prices, but we think that this special offering will interest a great majority of men.

200 Sincerity Suits in black and in fancy colors, single & double breasted styles $15

SUCCESSOR TO JACKSON

Change Likely to be Made in Office of Assessor.

The Present Incumbent's Term Expired Nearly a Month Ago.

Rumor has it that a change is pending in the office of the city assessor.

The term of W. L. Jackson expired on Tuesday, Sept. 11. He was appointed by Mayor Cullum in September, 1904, for a term of two years, and since the expiration of his term no reappointment has been made. Under the provisions of the charter he holds office until his term expires, or until a successor is appointed. It is now nearly a month since his term expired, but Mayor Cullum has not yet named anyone for the place.

Considerable opposition is understood to have been raised to the reappointment of Mr. Jackson, and the mayor is evidently investigating the complaints before announcing his decision.

It is understood on good authority, however, that a change will be made, and that Mr. Jackson will be superceded. Who his successor will be is a matter for conjecture, as no person has yet openly appeared as a candidate for the office.

ONE MAN KILLED

And Two Injured by Premature Blast at the Tesora Mine.

Virginia, Minn., Nov. 9.—John Klonowski was killed at a late hour Thursday night at the Tesora mine. Two other men were hurt, but will recover. The accident was due to a premature blast.

Klonowski was well known in Virginia, having been a resident of the town for the last ten years. He was 25 years of age and married. His wife was at Hibbing when the accident happened. He is also survived by a father, two brothers and a sister, all of whom live in Virginia.

The large warehouse of Siegel Brothers, the furniture men, was completely destroyed by fire Thursday night at 10 o'clock. The origin of the fire is unknown. The loss will total $2,000, fully covered by insurance.

ARE LOOKING FOR FIGHT

Disgruntled Land Seekers Trying to Start Trouble in Line.

Want to Have Settlers Thrown Out by the Police.

Disgruntled land seekers are claimed to be trying to start a row in the corridor of the Federal building for the purpose of having all the occupants thrown out by the police and a new line formed.

Last night a land looker, several of whose clients failed to get a chance to file on the land he located for them, is claimed to have walked along the rows of sleeping men, stepping on their feet and trying to provoke a fight.

The same man is claimed to have met one of the more fortunate settlers outside of the building last evening, and to have struck him a blow on the jaw.

The victim appeared at the office of the assistant city attorney this morning, seeking a warrant, which will be issued, and the man probably be placed under arrest before night.

"All they are trying to do is to start a fight so that we will be thrown in jail, or so the line will be broken up," said the victim of the assault this morning. "We are ahead of them in the line and have first chance on the claims they want, and the only way they see out of it, is to start some kind of trouble so that the line will be broken up, or the whole crowd thrown out of the building by the police.

"We have been trying to avoid any trouble in every way possible, but it looks as if he was determined to make us fight, and we have got to have some police protection."

BONI LIKELY TO LOSE FIGHT

Court Expected to Refuse to Allow Divorce Examination.

Paris, Nov. 9—Counsel for the Countess De Castellane in her suit for divorce against her husband, Count Boni, are confident that the application of the count's attorneys for an examination of the witnesses will be denied by the court next Wednesday. It is also regarded as measurably certain that the public prosecutor will not avail himself of his right to be heard in the interests of the general public. Nevertheless, it is known that the creditors are using every influence to prevent the granting of a divorce until after their case is disposed of.

STAR LECTURE COURSE.

Reservation of Seats Saturday Afternoon at M. E. Church.

Tomorrow afternoon the reservation of seats for the Star lecture course will take place at the lecture room of the First Methodist church. The hour is 1:30. A departure from the usual thing has been made this year, in that reserved seats will cost nothing extra. The price of the course ticket entitles one to his selection of seats where he will.

The course is one of the very finest ever offered by the Star management. Senator La Follette, Rev. Russell H. Conwell and Frank Dixon, will commend themselves to everyone as a great trio of platform speakers.

In the line of music there is the Rostonla Sextet, one of the finest organizations in Boston, from which city some of the very finest of musicians hail, and assisting will be Shanna Cumming, one of the first of Chicago's singers. This attraction will open the course Nov. 21. The Lenora Jackson company and the Dunbar quartet will also provide musical numbers.

Gillilan, the inimitable humorist, and Isabel Carghill Beecher in interpretative readings, complete the course.

ONE KILLED BY FALL FROM DOCK

Wheelman on Steamer Sahara Meets Death at Two Harbors.

Word comes from Two Harbors to the effect that Wheelman Stringer of the steamer Sahara was killed and a man named Kelly, an oiler on the steamer Ceralia, seriously injured by falling from one of the Duluth & Iron Range ore docks at that place late last night.

The men had been up town and were returning to their boats when they met with the accident. The night was very dark and they missed their footing on the narrow walk and fell off.

Stringer fell squarely on one of the large buckets filled with stone which are used as ballast for the spouts of the dock. He was almost instantly killed. Kelly sustained a broken collar bone and other injuries, but his chances for recovery are good.

WORRIED AN ACTRESS.

New York, Nov. 9.—Alfred Freund, a young man from St. Louis, who was arrested on Oct. 12 last, charged with annoying Miss Margaret Anglin, the actress, has been adjudged insane by a sheriff's jury, and a committee will be appointed to take charge of his estate and person.

You will get the knack of finding chances and opportunities through reading the Herald want ads., and then you will not worry about it even if your friends insist that you are simply "lucky."

WIFE'S LOSS IS AVENGED

Noted Philadelphian Shot in City Hall by Fireman.

Scandal and Not Politics Cause of the Tragedy.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 9.—Frederick Schaffhauser, a civil engineer in the bureau of water supply of this city, and a star witness in the conspiracy case against John W. Hill, former head of the filtration bureau, was shot and probably fatally wounded while at work on the seventh floor of the city hall, today, by Frederick Hornberger, a fireman at one of the city pumping stations.

At first it was believed that the shooting was the result of politics, but later it developed that it was caused by domestic affairs.

Schaffhauser was called from his office to the corridor of the seventh floor on the pretence that a friend wished to see him. He was met by Hornberger, who shouted: "You have killed my wife, and I am going to kill—" He had not finished the sentence when he began firing. He shot five times, two of the bullets taking effect.

The victim fell and Hornberger started to walk away, but was intercepted and held by eye witnesses until placed under arrest.

At the Central police station Hornberger told the police that Schaffhauser had been intimate with his wife, and that her relations with him resulted in her death recently.

Schaffhauser was removed to a hospital, where his condition was found to be so critical that the physicians sent for a magistrate to take his antemortem statement.

The shooting caused considerable excitement in and about the city hall, and political leaders and others interested in the reform movement in Philadelphia hurried to the building when they heard of the shooting, expecting to hear of some political developments.

RAISING BLUE FOXES.

But one litter is born each year, and that in May. The number of cubs ranges from four to as high as eleven, says Forest and Stream. The average number that reach maturity is about two or three to the female. The fox lives and brings forth its young in a burrow or den about like that of a red fox, except that the blue fox is very fond of digging under the buildings on the islands. If there is a floor they are sure to have one or two dens under it if permitted to do so. They will also den under suitable piles of old lumber, logs or trash of any kind that will keep the water off.

They are very suspicious of any person or things coming near their burrows. If they are at all disturbed while their pups are young, they are said to move their young to another burrow. This is one reason why it is a bad plan to keep cattle on the same island with or on that part of the island frequented by the foxes and used for burrows. They are not quarrelsome or vicious like other foxes. In close confinement they will kill and eat one of their own kind that is injured or weak and I suppose if starved to it would eat each other.

It is difficult to learn very much about their habits where they are running loose on an island. They now and then have "scraps." Let a fox go where he does not belong and you will soon hear a great racket. You will think a fox is being killed, and if in sight will soon see one getting away as fast as possible, yelping like a whipped dog.

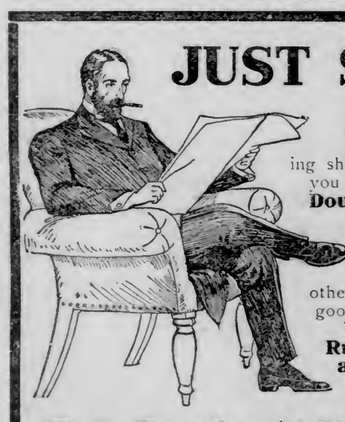

REVIVAL OF NEEDLEWORK.

Of late years quite a little army has sprung up of fashionable women who make "stitchery" a prime interest of their leisure hours, who study old designs reproduce all sorts and kinds of ancient needlework, reviving old uses for the same and finding new occasions to use the work of their fingers, says the London Tribune.

The school of art needlework has, doubtless, done much to develop the actual executive ability of dainty women's fingers, but it is a rather amusing anomaly that this restless age should have been the one to see such a tremendous revival in the interests of beautiful needlework, for many women with "hereditary possessions" spend hours over the intricacies of old lace stitches, the means by which the old tints can be reproduced with modern silks, the reviving of old ribbon broiderles, and a dozen other old-fashioned employments with the needle, the art of which is quite lost to modern fingers and is revived by the enthusiasts.

THIEF RIVER FALLS

Expects to Bring County Seat Fight to Early Finish.

Thief River Falls, Minn., Nov. 9.—The election resulted in a victory for Thief River Falls and the North end men, and means that the county seat fight between this city and Red Lake Falls will soon be brought to a finish. Several of the outlying districts have not yet sent in their returns, but it is not expected that the vote will be materially changed.

The closest contest and the one that causes the most conjecture is for county attorney, and though E. M. Stanton has a fair lead, some are yet dubious as to the result.

BANKERS IN AUTO WRECK.

Ass'stant Cashier Killed and Cashier Probably Fatally Hurt.

Des Moines, Nov. 9.—Henry DeWitt, assistant cashier of the Bank of Sully, was instantly killed, and Frank Herman, cashier, will probably die, from an automobile accident today. The driver lost control of the machine, which was going at a high rate of speed, and it plunged into a ditch, pinning the men underneath.

FOUND HIS MOTHER DEAD.

Sioux City, Iowa, Nov. 9.—When her son returned from a hunting trip on Wednesday, Mrs. J. B. Ryan was found dead in bed, having committed suicide by inhaling illuminating gas from one end of a tube attached to a gas jet. She had been in ill health and was despondent over the death of her husband, which occurred a year ago.

HAPPENINGS IN THE DAKOTAS

Devils Lake Laborer Probably Stabbed to Death by Companions.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Devils Lake—John Gens, aged 35, a laboring man, was found dead near the racetrack southwest of town Wednesday and is believed to have been murdered. There are several stab wounds in the body, apparently made with a long, keen-bladed hunting knife.

It is not apparent whether Gens was killed where the body was found or that the crime was committed elsewhere and the body hidden in a clump of bushes. He was seen alive Monday night when he was in company with three strangers.

As he had no great amount of money, it is not believed robbery was a motive for the crime, but that perhaps the men had a drunken quarrel and that the murder was the result. No trace of the strange men has been found as yet.

The dead body was found by a woman residing in that section, who was taking a short cut to a neighbor's house and stumbled over the corpse.

Grand Foks—Nels J. Nelson was arrested in East Grand Forks, while acting as host at a champagne supper. He is charged with robbing Peter Peterson of $250. Peterson came from Michigan City, this state, where he is engaged in farming. Nelson had been employed on the Peterson farm as a carpnter, and after his departure it was found that $250 in a bureau drawer had been stolen. Nelson made a confession and agreed to return to this state without requisition proceedings.

The supreme court has denied the application for a rehearing in the case of the state against R. C. Hicks, sentenced two years ago to eight and a half years in the penitentiary on a charge of robbing a passenger on the Great Northern of $25. C. H. Foster was sentenced to seven and a half years and R. H. Bradford to nine and a half years on the same charge. Foster, who lives in Minneapolis, asked for a new trial and a rehearing, and both were denied by the higher court. All three men are well known to the police of the larger cities.

Jamestown.—John Welker is dead as the result of injuries received in a fall while he was putting on storm windows. He had just about completed his task and was putting the last screw into a sash on a dormer window when he missed his footing and fell to the ground. He was unconscious until he died. He leaves a young wife and three children.

Valley City.—Miss Maud Fraser, critic teacher for the third and fourth grades of the state normal practice school, was called to Ypsilanti, Mich., a week ago by the death of her father and since then has sent in her resignation.

The state normal school in this city is more largely attended than it has been at any other fall term in its history, 345 being enrolled. There are also 185 children in the grades of the practice school.

Trolly—Fire destroyed Patterson's bakery, loss, $3,000; Larson & Jenkins' meat market, loss, $2,000; and the Lyle millinery store, with a loss of $1,000.

McVille.—Fred Randolph, 17 years old, was found dead in Stony coulee, near Toluca, Wednesday. He left town with a wagon load of goods to be delivered to a merchant at Tolnica. In the coulee he apparently had some trouble with the team, as a portion of the merchandise was scattered along the road for some distance, and farther on his body was found. The team was found farther up the coulee, where it had evidently stood all night.

Fargo.—Rev. E. M. Vittum, D.D., of Grinnell, Iowa, has been elected president of Fargo Congregational college and will assume his duties Jan. 1. He is a Dartmouth man, taught mathematics in Constantinople, Turkey, is an extensive traveler and has preached at Guilford, Conn., Cedar Rapids and Grinnell.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Murdo—Joe Le Marsh and White Mott, cowboys, terrorized the residents of this village by flourishing guns on the street and shooting at passersby who attempted to interfere. Le Marsh, riding up to a corral, where a bunch of mules owned by railroad graders was confined, amused himself by shooting at the ears of the brutes. The animals were nearly stampeded, and when a rancliman named Corbett objected, Le Marsh fired at him at close range, narrowly missing him. Mott, Le Marsh's companion, disarmed the latter.

Deadwood—The serious car shortage on the Burlington road has at last come to an end. For two weeks or over the railroad has had ninety cars tied up at Edgemont, unable to move them. This condition was caused by lack of sufficient number of engines, by an unusual amount of freight being in transit to the Black Hills, and also by trouble with water on the Sheridan division. The only available water on that division is alkali water, and that soon puts an engine out of commission by ruining the boiler.

Miller—While he was standing on a threshing machine a man named Bower was killed by lightning. The four other men of the threshing crew were shocked by the stroke. Bower's clothes were torn from his body except the soles of his shoes, which were where they stood when the lightning came.

LATE DOINGS IN UPPER MICHIGAN

Michael Sheridan Accused of Murder in a Lumber Camp.

Marquette—Michael Sheridan was brought in by a deputy sheriff Wednesday night from Fitzgerald's lumber camp, near Northland, in Wells township, and was lodged in the county jail on a charge of murder.

The alleged victim was a Finnish laborer by the name of Victor, and the details as to the manner and time of the killing are lacking. It appears fairly certain that Monday night a number of the men at the camp went to Northland to celebrate and incidentally to fill up on whisky. The result, as is often the case under like circumstances, was a general drunken row, resulting in the killing of a man, and it is very difficult under such circumstances to get at the truth in the matter.

The prisoner is an elderly man, and he gives his age as 56. He is peaceful appearing and seems to be sufficiently harmless, while the story he tells of the crime and his knowledge of it sound quite plausible. However, the sheriff thinks that there must be sufficient reasons for his arrest, and he will start in at once to gather such evidence as is obtainabe.

Calumet—Capt Thomas Maslin, head mining captain of the Tamarack mine, has resigned after thirty years' service with the Bigelow syndicate, which controls the Tamarack and other local properties. He is one of the pioneer miners of Michigan. His successor has not been appointed.

There were no sensational developments in the investigation of the affairs of Bohemia township, Ontonagon county, where it was alleged that graft existed and an investigation was ordered by Governor Warner. The taking of testimony before Circuit Court Commissioner John Jones has been completed. It will be several weeks before the case will be submitted to Governor Warner. Mr. Jones will have to prepare his opinion after the evidence is transcribed, and Prosecuting Attorney W. G. Van Slyck likewise will have to prepare an opinion.

Ishpeming—The officers of the Young Men's Christian asosciation recently decided to defer the building of the foundation for the proposed new block, corner of Division and Pine streets, until spring. The contract for the work was awarded some six weeks ago to William Trebilcock.

NOVEMBER THUNDERSTORM.

Parker's Prairie, Minn., Nov. 9.—During a thunderstorm Wednesday afternoon the home of Mrs. J. N. Nelson was struck by lightning. The electricity tore the chimneys from the house, scorched the wallpaper, took pictures from their hangings and brought down plaster in every room. The members of the family were away and knew nothing of the damage done until they drove home late in the evening and found the yard scattered with bricks from the fallen chimneys.

BANK CLERK'S MISTAKE.

Hands a Large Sum to Wrong Man, Who Skips Out.

Milwaukee, Nov. 9.—Through a mistake an unknown man Wednesday secured the sum of $1,121 from the National Exchange bank and disappeared with the money.

The error was caused partly through an unusual rush at the noon hour. A clerk from a large business establishment proffered a check for $1,121 to one of the tellers to be cashed. While the teller was counting the money the clerk left for a momnt to spk with a frind. Meanwhile the teller completed his task and handed out the cash. A youth, who meanwhile had taken the clerk's place, accepted the money and hastened away.

PECULIAR ELECTION.

Sheriff Wins Over Opponents, Though Name Was Not on Ticket.

Hawley, Minn., Nov. 9.—The election of sheriff of Clay county is without parallel. Archie Whaley of Hawley, whose name was not on the ticket, he having lost the Republican nomination for sheriff after a stubbornly fought contest suit, in which the court gave the nomination to John M. Bayer of Moorhead, by 3.96 votes, was elected over the regular Republican nominee by about 50 majority. Whaley's name had to be written in on the blank line on the ballot, and few, if any, dreamed that it would be possible to elect anybody this way, the Moorhead interest making the boast openly that the farmers were too ignorant to do this. Whaley's supporters in his home town made an aggressive educational campaign, and the result is very gratifying, and shows the farmers of the county to be a very intelligent class of people.

NEW LORD MAYOR IN OLD LONDON

Sir William Trelvar Installed With Historic Pageant.

London, Nov. 9.—Sir William Purdie Trelvar was inaugurated as lord mayor of London today, with the time-honored pageant, but the usual gaudy, symbolical cars were elliminated from the procession, which was representative of the history of London for the seven centuries, each figure being represented by a figure depicting the most famous lord mayor of the period, surrounded by his retinue, garbed in the dress of the period. The streets as usual were gally decorated.

FATAL FALL FROM BLUFF.

Lindstrom, Minn., Man Meets Death From St. Paul Heights.

St. Paul, Nov. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—A man, believed to be Otto Larson of Lindstrom, Minn., was killed today by falling or diving over the river bluff at Cedar street, while walking about the rear of some buildings overlooking the bluff. He struck near the railroad tracks below, and his skull was fractured and both legs broken.

Letters, all from Denmark, were found on him, addressed to Otto Larson, Box 4, Lindstrom, Minn. He was about 23 years old, six feet in height, with a black moustache and clean shaven.

DEMOCRATS MAKE GAINS

Nineteen Senators and Fifteen Members of the House.

Results of the Elections in the Legislative Districts.

St. Paul, Nov. 9.—The Republicans will lose eight members of the next state senate and five or six members of the house. The Republicans will probably have all except nineteen of the senators and all except sixteen of the representatives. Last year there were eleven Democratic senators. This year there will probably be eighteen Democrats and one Populist. Last year the Democrats had eleven representatives; this year it looks as if they would have fourteen and the Prohibitionists two.

The election of so many Democratic senators was somewhat of a surprise, and had they elected a couple more they would have been in a position to block Republican party measures, as the Republicans would need forty-two votes in the senate to pass a bill over the governor's veto.

The Democratic senators will be P. Fitzpatrick in the Second; H. H. Witherstine, Fourth; T. E. Cashman, Eighth; J. Moonan, Tenth; S. D. Works, Eleventh; A. A. Pohler, Twenty-first; C. R. Donaldson, Twenty-fourth; F. E. Du Toit, Twenty-fifth; J. A. Coller, Twenty-sixth; H. F. Wais, Twenty-seventh; E. L. Glotzbach, Twenty-eighth; Albert Schaller, Thirtieth; H. C. McColl, Thirty-fourth; J. C. Hardy, Thirty-fifth; J. T. McGowan, Thirty-eighth; J. E. C. Robinson, Forty-seventh; J. J. Ahman, Fifty-fourth; R. G. Farrington, Fifty-sixth. Ole Sageng was elected by the Populists over H. T. Hille in the Fifty-ninth.

Several Republican senators were defeated for re-election, including A. B. Kelly, C. A. Benson, G. W. Peachey and E. B. Collester.

The Democrats elected representatives in the Second, Thirteenth, Twenty-first, Twenty-fourth, Twenty-fifth, Twenty-sixth, Thirtieth, three in the Thirty-fourth, Thirty-fifth, Thirty-sixth, Thirty-eighth and Fifty-fourth districts. The Prohibitionists elected representatives in the Ninth and Forty-fourth districts.

The following will be the membership of the next legislature, with possibly one or two changes. Those marked * are re-elected:

FUTURES UPHELD BY HIGH COURT

Decision of Importance to Grain Traders in Cleage Case.

St. Paul, Nov. 9.—The United States circuit court of appeals rendered a decision yesterday upholding the validity of contracts for the purchase and sale of grain for future delivery, as practiced by the Chicago board of trade and Merchants' exchange of St. Louis.

The case was that of Thomas A. Cleage, Jr., appellee, against W. H. Laidley and others. Cleage, Jr., dealt in about 14,000,000 bushels of grain, and less than 2 per cent of it was delivered. He testified that he did not intend to deliver or to receive any grain under his contracts, unless forced to do so in order to prevent his contracts being closed out under the rules of the board or the exchange. The brokers to whom he became indebted filed a creditor's petition in bankruptcy, upon which Cleage was adjudged to be a bankrupt. The adjudication in bankruptcy was assailed, on the ground that Cleage was not legally indebted to any of the alleged creditors, for the reason that their claims against him were founded on wager agreements and, therefore, were void.

The court of appeals holds that the evidence did not disclose a purpose to settle the obligation of his contracts by paying to or receiving from the other parties thereto the difference between the contract prices and the market prices at the time of delivery, and did not make the transactions wagers and void.

DEATH OF DR. FLOWER RECALLS LOCKHART CASE.

Pittsburg, Nov. 9.—Dr. James Oliver Flower, 64 years of age, a prominent dentist died yesterday of tuberculosis after an illness of four years. He was the father of Dr. W. S. Flower, who eloped with a daughter of Charles Lockhart, the Standard Oil magnate, who disinherited her, dividing a fortune estimated at $100,000,000, among five children, but giving her only a life interest in $300,000. In a will contest the matter was settled out of court, the woman getting $1,600,000. Recently Dr. James Flower entered a suit against the Lockhart estate for $30,000 for professional services.

HARRIMAN'S HUGE ORDERS.

Twenty-One Million Dollars Worth of Freight Cars Called for.

Chicago, Nov. 9.—The Tribune says: "Prompted by the congestion of traffic and the car shortage for this year the Harriman lines are making purchases of freight equipments for 1907 on a grand scale. It was announced yesterday that they now have orders in for $21,000,000 worth of refrigerator, box, flat and gondola cars, all of which, it is expected, will be delivered before the season of heavy traffic next year. The total number of freight cars ordered by them, but not yet delivered, is 16,600. Of these 6,600 are refrigerator cars. When all have been received, the Harriman lines will own a total of 7,560 refrigerator cars."

HAS PROBABLY CARRIED.

County Division in Itasca Has Lead of 400 Votes.

St. Paul, Nov. 9.—The proposition to divide Itasca county has probably been carried. W. W. Stanton of International Falls, who came in from Grand Rapids last night, said that while all the returns were not in, the returns from all the larger precincts gave the county division a lead of at least 400 votes. He believes that there is no doubt that the proposition will be carried. A proposition to divide a county requires only a majority of the votes cast on the proposition, not of the total votes.

International Falls will be the county seat of the new county, and the county is named Koochiching. This division will settle for some time the question regarding the county seat.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORTS

MOVING ON WINDY CITY

Host of Minnesota Rooters is Headed for Chicago.

Outlook for the Gophers Has Very Rosy Hue.

With brass bands, co-eds, streamng banners, tooting horns and all kinds of money to bet, Minnesota rooters are moving down on Chicago today about 5,000 strong.

The cheap rates from the Twin Cities have attracted enormous crowds, and the trains yesterday and today were crowded to their capacity. The team left last evening for Chicago and will have a day's rest before the big game.

Duluth rooters will leave this afternoon at 5:30 over the Omaha. It is impossible to estimate the number that will attend the game, but judging from the number of tickets already sold, at least 250 or 300 Duluthians will witness the contest.

DR. H. L. WILLIAMS,

The betting on the game is about even with Chicago ruling the favorite by a slight margin. It is generally conceded by the sporting critics that the game will be a test of Minnesota's formidable line against the speedy and tricky Chicago backs.

Chicago can hardly hope to make headway against the Gopher defense on straight, old-fashioned football, and the plays made possible under the new rules will be used to the limit. Stagg, in fact, has been spending most of his time constructing new plays about Eckersall and Steffens, his two wonderful backs, and these the Gophers must solve and solve quickly or it means certain defeat. Once a ten-second man like Eckersall or Steffens gets away, it means a touchdown, for there is not a man on the Minnesota team that could catch either of them.

It must not be supposed, however, that Dr. Williams has been idle while Stagg has been busy with his new formations. The Gopher coach has not been saying much, but he has been attending strictly to business, and he is something of a "wizard" himself when it comes to working out new formations.

Marhall, the wonderful right end, who was conceded a place on the all-American team last year, will undoubtedly give the Maroons cause for worry. He has developed into a drop kicker second only to Eckersall, and is a speedy, tricky player who must be watched every minute of the time.

The formidable Gopher line showed itself able to make even the ten yards against the Nebraska team, and it is just possible that it can gain consistently by straight football against the Maroons. But this does not have to be counted upon.

The Minnesota backs are no weaklings, even though they have been overshadowed by the wanderful defense, and with such a line the backs can be counted upon to do their share.

Taken as a whole the situation looks very rosy from a Minnesota standpoint, and the 5,000 rooters who will take the trip to Chicago today will probably have every opportunity to show their ability.

GOOD BOUTS AT HIBBING

Mill Scheduled for Monday Evening at Power Theater.

Duluth and Superior Sports Are Planning to Attend.

Boxing shows promise of undergoing a revival in Duluth and the vicinity this winter.

Already one good bout has been pulled off in Duluth and more are promised in the near future.

Hibbing has also taken up the game and Monday evening some good mills are scheduled at the Power theatre.

Ben Trimble, the St. Paul heavyweight who put it all over a local fighter on election night here, will go against James Barry of Chicago, who is said to be a speedy boxer with a good wallop. If he is a fair match for Trimble the bout should be a good one.

The second bout will be a 10-round go between Young Cohen and Eddie McCann, two lightweights from Superior, who have gained quite a reputation for themselves around the Head of the Lakes.

Quite a number of Duluth and Superior sports are planning to take the trip to Hibbing on Monday and if enough can be secured a special train may be run.

ROCHE WINS AT CALUMET

Knocks Out Dick Fitzgerald in the Second Round.

Houghton, Mich., Nov. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Billy Roche and Dick Fitzgerald came together last evening before the Houghton County Athletic club at Calumet, for the lightweight championship of the Northwest.

The bout went only two rounds, when Roche sent his opponent to the floor with a right to the jaw and a left to the stomach. Fitzgerald took the count.

CHALLENGE IS ISSUED

High School Team Sends Defi to Twin City Elevens.

Offers to Meet Any of Them in Either City.

Despairing of securing a game in any way from the Twin City high schools, Manager Will Hicken of the Duluth high school team, last evening sent a challenge to all of the Twin City papers, setting forth the claims of Duluth to the state championship, and asking for a game with any high school team in St. Paul or Minneapolis.

The Duluth boys agree to pay half of their expenses if necessary.

Following is the communication:

"Believing that in accordance with the spirit of fairness our record for this fall entitles us to consideration in settling of the high school championship of this state, and as our efforts to get games with the principal aspirants for that honor have been in vain we issue the following challenge:

"We, the Duluth Central high school challenge any high school in St. Paul or Minneapolis (St. Paul Central, winner of the Twin City Championship, preferred) to play us for the championship either in Duluth or the Twin Cities; the game to be played in Duluth on November 10 or in the Twin Cities on November 10, 16 or 29. If necessary we will pay half of the expenses we incur in making the trip to the Twin Cities.

"We have been endeavoring to arrange a game with St. Paul Central for November 10 and have just received a refusal, and as Central has an open date on that day we can see no weighty reason for their not accepting, in view of our generous offer. They offered us November 16 earlier in the season, but as Minneapolis Central has agreed to play us on that date we could not accept St. Paul's offer. Minneapolis Central later canceled the date with us and now St. Paul claims that as we did not accept their challenge there is no need of playing us now. We wish to differ from their claim and hold that we must be beaten by them before they have a clear title to the championship.

"We have also endeavored to arrange games with all of the Minneapolis schools and have met with the same poor success. We believe that the spirit shown by the two Centrals especially is that of very poor sportsmen. We have for the past several seasons taken our beatings from them without a murmur, and now that we have a fair chance of success they refuse to meet us. If this challenge is not answered by games we believe that we hold the right to the state championship.

"WIL HICKEN, Manager."

The only game that could be secured for Saturday was with the Eveleth team. Eveleth is not to be scorned, however, as the team scored against Blaine earlier in the season and since that time has been greatly strengthened.

BREAKS AUTO RECORDS.

Fast Time Made Between Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 9.—All automobile records between San Francisco and Los Angeles have been broken by Ferdinando Nelson of San Francisco, who covered the distance of 504 miles in 18 hours and 13 minutes, three hours better than any previous record.

Nelson left San Francisco at 10 o'clock Wednesday night and arrived at Los Angeles at 4:13 yesterday afternoon. The time of the Southern Pacific passenger train scheduled over the coast route is sixteen hours.

BASEBALL IN PANAMA

Great American Game Has Taken Firm Hold on Isthmus.

Judges, Engineers and Governors Are All Taking Part.

Washington, Nov. 9.—Baseball has taken Panama by storm since the arrival on the canal zone of large numbers of enthusiastic American fans. The love of the sport has spread from the marines, clerks and other employes of the isthmus canal, and the commission and the social leaders of Panama have placed their stamp of approval upon the great American game.

Not content with watching others play baseball, Chief Engineer John F. Stevens, Judge Gudger of the canal zone supreme court, Governor Melendez and a score of other prominent men recently organized their rival teams known as "Old Timers" and "New Comers," and played a game at Cocoa Grove, near the city of Panama, for the benefit of the isthmian charities.

According to announcements of the game received by members of the commission in this city, it was a great financial and social success. Before the game Governor Melendez and several members of the competing teams protested Judge Dunne, an old-time editor in Panama, on the ground that he was a professional, and an agreement was entered into that practice would be done away with entirely, on the ground that it would be tiresome.

The game was an event of international character and brought the army, navy and marine corps of the United States into competition with the representatives of many foreign powers. C. C. Mallett, British consul general, was a member of the "Old Timers." Arnold Shanklin, the American consul general at Panama; Harry D. Reed, the executive secretary of the canal zone, and a number of other prominent Americans assisted Mr. Stevens' team of "New Comers."

ON COLLEGE GRIDIRONS

Badgers and Illini Should Have Close Game at Madison.

Minnesota Rooters Hope to See Carlisle Down Harvard.

WEST.
Minnesota vs. Chicago.
Illinois vs. Wisconsin.
EAST.
Harvard vs. Carlisle.
Yale vs. Brown.
Princeton vs. West Point.
Dartmouth vs. Amherst.
Pennsylvania vs. Lafayette.

Aside from the Minnesota-Chicago game, no contests of special interest are scheduled in the West tomorrow.

Illinois and Wisconsin clash at Madison, and the game should be close with the outcome very much in doubt. The Badgers have been coming to the front rapidly after a very disastrous beginning, and they are counting on a victory of the Illini. Owing to the nature of their schedules, neither of these teams are in the running this year for championship honors.

In the East, interest centers on the Harvard-Carlisle game. Since the decisive defeat of Pennsylvania by the Indians, Harvard supporters have been plainly nervous regarding the outcome of the approaching battle, and there is little doubt but that the Indians will give the Crimson a hard run for the money. Minnesota supporters are anxious to see a victory for the Indians, as Harvard is one of the three undefeated colleges in the East, and, with Yale and Princeton, is entered in a three-cornered fight for the championship. Should Carlisle get away with the game, the Indians could come out to Minneapolis with a first class claim on the Eastern championship, especially if Princeton should go down to defeat before the cadets tomorrow afternoon, which is far from being unlikely.

West Point undoubtedly has the hardest schedule of any of the Eastern teams, having played Yale and Harvard on successive Saturdays, and now is preparing to meet the Tigers. The Cadets gave both Yale and Harvard a bad scare, and the Tigers will have their hands full tomorrow afternoon.

Yale is scheduled to meet the heavy Brown college team, and Pennsylvania will line up against Lafayette.

A CORNER IN SPORTS

The high school boys are certainly entitled to recognition from the Twin City schools in their claims to the state championship.

Duluth has gone through the season without being scored on, and has piled up overwhelming scores against all opposing teams. There is not a breath of suspicion regarding the eligibility of any player on the team, and every man is up in his studies.

Figuring on the dope, Duluth has a better claim on the championship than any of the Twin City schools, having made a much larger score against Mechanic Arts than any of them.

On the merits of the team, therefore, there is no reason why Duluth should not be recognized as a claimant for the championship, and certainly St. Paul Central cannot claim it until Duluth has been disposed of.

The only reason the Twin City players give for a refusal to meet the local eleven is a shortage of cash. Duluth offers everything in reason to help the St. Paul boys out. The Duluth boys will pay half of their own expenses to go to St. Paul, or will bring the St. Paul boys here and pay all of their expenses.

The only thing St. Paul can do and maintain a reputation for good sportsmanship is to accept the challenge.

One week from tonight the first of the indoor gymnasium meets will be held at the Y. M. C. A.

The meets are for the purpose of establishing "old building" records, which will be kept posted in the new building after it is completed.

The winner of the greatest number of points will be awarded a medal.

FINDING NO BOOTY ROBBER STEALS KISS.

Oakland, Cal., Nov. 9.—The experience undergone by Mrs. N. J. Williams of 574 Seventeenth street, was not altogether unpleasant, although it was not one she would care to go through again. It was an adventure with a highwayman who, finding that the sum of money she had was not worth taking, chucked her under the chin—but let her tell her own story.

"The robber," said Mrs. Willams, who is a pretty blonde, "seemed to take the whole affair as a joke, laughing when he found I possessed no valuables, and departing after a stolen kiss, with a cheery 'Good night, girlie.'

"I was awfully frightened, but I remember noticing almost the first thing that he was jolly, and it flashed upon me that it might be some friend playing a practical joke.

"He had his slouch hat pulled down over his eyes, and his coat collar turned up over his chin, so that little of his face was visible. He was a very large man, at least six feet tall and weighing probably 200 pounds, but his outlines sugested nobody I knew.

"I handed over my purse, and he opened it. A quaker was all there was in it, and he asked me if I had any more. I said 'No.'

"At that he burst out laughing, saying, 'Well, then, I don't want it,' and handed back the purse. Then he asked me if I had any rings. I told him 'No,' and he laughed boisterously, as if it was a good joke. Then he took hold of me and turned the side of my head to the light to see if I had any earrings.

"I was almost ready to faint, and thought of screaming, but was afraid he would kill me. When he satisfied himself that I had no more valuables he threw one arm about my neck and bent me backward. I thought he was going to throw me down and I commenced to fight back, but he hugged me tightly about the head and neck and pressed his lips against mine.

"Then he laughed again, and with a 'Good night, girlie,' walked off in the direction of three men who had crossed Seventeenth street on Broadway. Then I ran all the way home."

SNIVELY WOMAN IS RELEASED

Grand Larceny Charge Against Her Will Not be Pushed.

Three persons who were held to the grand jury on various charges, were released yesterday afternoon, no true bills being returned against them by the grand jury. These was Hattie Snively, the woman who was accused of taking a roll of about $200 from a St. Paul traveling man in a local resort and who was caught at Nebagamon while attempting to get away undetected.

Chris Connors, another person released, was charged with kidnaping. It was claimed that Connors, a character delineator in a show that played at Hibbing recently, induced a young girl of that place infatuated with the show business, to leave her home and go on with the show to Chisholm.

Thomas Kent, the third person released, was arrested on a warrant sworn out by a saloonkeepor of Hibbing, who claimed that Kent had robbed his slot machine.

INSURANCE HEARING ON

New York Life's Alleged Attempt to Rule Election in Court.

Agents and Officials Deny Use of Company Funds.

New York, Nov. 9.—Justice Dowling of the New York city supreme court, board yesterday arguments of counsel for the International Policyholders' committee and the New York Life Insurance company in an attempt by Stephen Farrelly, a policyholder, to prevent the trustees of the company expending its funds in conducting a campaign to elect the administration ticket of trustees, and for an accounting of funds alleged to have been expended. It was charged that 800,000 special ballots were sent out to agents who were paid thousands of dollars to secure their filling out and return.

Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the International policyholders' committee, said that the trustees of the New York Life Insurance company were taking advantage of the loopholes in the new insurance laws to defeat the object for which the law was passed. He charged that the work of transcribing the number of policies was done by officials of the company at the expense of the policyholders, and that it was done to steal the election. He displayed twenty-six of the ballots of which he complained, and said that tens of thousands of policyholders had appealed to the committee to ask the courts to prevent the misuse of their funds.

James H. McIntosh, attorney for the New York Life Insurance company, said the electioneering campaign was perfectly fair. The agent informed each policyholder that there were two tickets in the field and asked him to vote the administration ticket. Mr. McIntosh submitted affidavits from President A. E. Orr, and Vice President Kingsley denying that the directors had interfered in any way with the election of a ticket by the policyholders. The affidavit of Mr. Kingsley admitted that 800,000 official statements and return envelopes had been printed and forwarded to the company's agents, but merely for the use of such policyholders as might desire them, and to facilitate their voting.

An affidavit from the comptroller of the New York Life, from which counsel read extracts, declared that no portion of the expense of sending out tickets and envelopes complained of, was borne by the company.

Agency Inspector Dussell, in an affidavit, said he had spent between $700 and $800 in endeavoring to get the administration ticket elected, but it was out of his own pocket. Affidavits of the cashiers in the different offices throughout the country declared that they were all working in support of the administration ticket because they believed in it and that no company money had been paid out by them.

District Attorney Jerome yesterday asked Justice Greenbaum, of the criminal branch of the supreme court to fix a date for the trial of Frederick A. Burnham, president of the Mutual Reserve Life Insurance company, his brother, George Burnham, and George Eldredge, vice president of the company, on charges of forgery and grand larceny. Mr. Jerome said that he hoped to proceed with the insurance cases in a few weeks.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 9.—Investigation was resumed here yesterday before State Insurance Commissioner Folk into allegations of activity of agents of the Mutual Life of New York and the New York Life Insurance companies in furtherance of the interests of candidates on the administration tickets in the election for trustees, now in progress. E. R. Perkins, vice president and general manager of domestic agencies of the New York Life, testified that he had heard of letters sent out by the agents in the interest of the administration ticket, but these agents personally bore the expense.

Mutual Life agents admitted having worked for the administration ticket, but with one exception denied having spent any company funds. The exception was Thomas C. Hindman, manager for the Mutual Life in Tennessee. He testified that he employed agents on salary to solicit both business and votes, and said that he had acted on his understanding of instructions.

SUPPORTED BY REDMOND

Irish Leader Refers to Triumph of Policy of Conciliation.

National Unity Spirit Grows—Country Developing Resources.

Dublin, Nov. 9.—There are many significant signs of the growth of the spirit of national unity in Ireland and the triumph of the policy of conciliation. Nothing more strikingly illustrates this than the character of the monster meeting which John E. Redmond addressed at Coalisland, Ulster, the other day, and the tone of the speech delivered by the Irish leader. Every county in the province was represented, which naturally elicited from Mr. Redmond a vigorous repudiation of the calumny that Ulster is opposed to home rule. The people of the other three provinces are practically unanimous. In Ulster alone is there any division on the subject. But the substantial majority, even in Ulster, is in accord with the demand for national self-government. Referring to the minority which is still hostile to it, Mr. Redmond said:

"Now, over those men I say, if I can avoid it, I want no party triumph. But I want to influence their intelligence, I want to dissipate also their suspicions, and I want to soften their hearts, and, therefore, so long as it is possible for me to do so even against hope, I will preach to them the doctrine of conciliation. There is, thank God, a movement today amongst these men. We see it in Belfast, and we see it in all the agricultural constituencies almost in Ulster, a movement which shows that the sentiment of Protestant Ulster is no longer properly represented by the ignorant intolerance which so long has spoken for Ulster, and that a spirit of toleration and of independence is spreading. Let us Nationalists respond to that spirit. I say here today there was no lengths short of the abandonment of the principles which you and I hold, to which I would not go to win the confidence of these men and not have them lost to Ireland. There are no safeguards which I would object to in a home rule bill tomorrow, to satisfy the fears which these men entertain about their religious interests, and I say he is the best Irishman who does his best today, by preaching toleration an conciliation to these men, to bring all the sons of galant Ulster into line in the battle for Ireland."

After that it will no longer be possible to represent the Irish leader as an opponent of the policy of conciliation. Commenting on the speech, there appears a significant declaration in the London Tribune, which claims to be a reliable government organ, that the battle for home rule is virtually won:

"Mr. Redmond struck a generous and statesmanlike note yesterday when he preached a policy of tolerance and conciliation toward the province which he described as 'gallant Ulster.' So long as the majority in Ireland was busied in fighting a long and up-hill battle, often against all human hope, for the ideal of self-government, they were compelled to carry on the feud with the minority, which had the sympathies of the governing classes in England. Today Ireland has in effect won her battle, and she can pause to remind the minority that it, too, will profit by self-government."

According to many experienced business men, the time has arrived when a beet sugar factory might be established in Ireland with prospects of success. The troubles in Cuba and the prospects of a sugar combine in the United States are viewed with some alarm in Ireland, as it is felt that the price of sugar would enormously increase. If cane sugar goes up beet sugar is bound to follow. Col. Everard, who was the first to see the possibilities of tobacco culture in Ireland and demonstrate its practicability, is equally as enthusiastic with regard to the growth of beets in Ireland. He points out that Ireland imports as much as 135,000 tons of sugar annually, most of which he believes might be produced at home. The colonel maintains that the beet grown in Ireland is quite as good as, if not superior, to that raised in Germany, which has 400 beet factories, producing 2,0000,000 tons of sugar annually. When his attention was called to the fact that Germany has protection, he replied, "True Germany has protection and France feeds her beet sugar industry, but a patriotic preference might be as efficacious in Ireland, especially if the price of imported sugar rises appreciably." The colonel is endeavoring to get some of the wealthy men interested in the industrial development movement to examine his beet-growing scheme.

Some indication of the growth and development of native industries in Ireland may be gathered from a government return just issued. It is recorded that there are twenty-four coal mines employing on an average 750 hands, fourteen iron mines employing 350 and twenty-five other mines employing about 400. There are 537 quarries giving employment to about 5,000. What is considered as most remarkable is that only five fatalities have occurred during the last twelve months in connection with these industries. John P. Boland, M. P., for Kerry, who is an enthusiast in the promotion of native industries, says: "If it were not for extortionate railway rates we could double the output of coal, marble and granite in the next twelve months. Great things are expected from the commission of inquiry on Irish railways, which is now sitting in Dublin, but I personally have very little hope of any thing practical arising out of it. Until we have an Irish parliament the present railway system in Ireland will never undergo any substantial alteration."

One of the strangest wills of modern times has just been proved in the probate courts in Dublin and discloses religious enthusiasm of a singular order. An Irish Catholic woman connected with one of the oldest families in the west of Ireland has just died, leaving a substantial fortune. She bequeaths no less a sum that $25,000 to various Roman Catholic priests in Dublin and other parts of Ireland for the purpose of having masses said for the repose of her soul. From inquiries made in official Roman Catholic quarters this is the largest sum that has ever been left in this or any other country for a similar purpose. Considering that a dollar or two is the usual offering to a clergyman for saying a mass for such a purpose, it will be interesting to know whether many of these Roman Catholic priests, who are now mostly old men, will ever accomplish the task of exhausting the fund which this pious lady has committed to their charge. While she has acted in such a generous spirit in the interests of her soul she has only left $1,250 for the poor of her native place. Probate of the will has just been taken out by her brother, Sir Charles Grattan Bellew of Mount Bellew, County Galway.

Bullfrog Rush Mining Co.

Goldfield, Nev., Nov. 6th, 1906.

To the Public:

We desire to state that the use of our names in the advertisement of the so-called Union Securities Company of Nevada as directors of the Bullfrog Rush Mining Company, in which it is stated that six million dollars' worth of ore is already blocked out in this property, is unauthorized, and that according to our best information the statement is absolutely and unqualifiedly false.

The property is unquestionably a splendid prospect, and during the course of its early development held out great hopes of becoming a great mine, but at this time the best average assays obtained in the lower workings are from sixty cents to one dollar per ton. There is a large quantity of ore that has been opened up in the Winze and Upper Tunnels, which gives assays of from fifteen to thirty-five dollars per ton, but this in itself, after deducting the cost of mining and milling does not establish for this property a valuation of $825,000, which on a capitalization of 1,500,000 shares, at the par value of one dollar, offered at fifty-five cents per share, would be the case.

We retain our positions on the directorate of the Bullfrog Rush Mining company for the present in order to protect important interests, but we warn anybody who intends investing in the stock of the Bullfrog Rush Mining company that if he does so it is at his own risk, nor do we in any way indorse any other venture of the Union Securities company of Nevada, of whose responsibility we know nothing.

[Signed] JOHN SPARKS,
Governor of Nevada, Director of the Bullfrog Rush Mining Company.

L. M. SULLIVAN,
President of the L. M. Sullivan Trust Company, Treasurer and Director of the Bullfrog Rush Mining Company.

JOHN D. CAMPBELL,
Consulting Engineer, Director of the Bullfrog Rush Mining Co.

IMPORTATIONS OF GOATSKINS

Into United States in Year Reached $32,000,000 Worth.

Washington, Nov. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thirty-two million dollars' worth of goatskins were imported into the United States in the fiscal year 1906, against $10,000,000 worth in 1896, only a decade earlier. These are, of course, round figures, the exact figures of the bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor being, for 1906, $31,773,909, and for 1896, $10,304,335; but a statement that the value of goatskins imported in 1906 is more than three times as great as that of 1896 would be accurate and perhaps interesting.

Very few articles repulred for use in manufacturing show so rapid a growth in importations as goatskins, and few show so large a value. Hides and skins, for example which were valued at $84,000,000 in 1906, were in 1896 valued at $31,000,000; and when goatskins are deducted from this the growth in other hides and skins has been much less rapid proportionately than in goatskins. In India rubber, for which the demand has grown enormously under the stimulus of bicycle and automobile manufacturing, the value of importations has grown from $16,500,000 in 1896 to $45,000,000 in 1906, the percentage of gain having been thus less than that of goatskins. This is also true of raw silk, of which the imports in 1896 were $27,000,000, and in 1906 $54,000,000, having barely doubled in the value of importations. Wood importations have grown in the ten-year period from $22,000,000 and in 1906 $39,000,000; tobacco importations have grown from $16,000,000 in 1896 to $22,000,000 in 1906, having thus increased less than 40 per cent in the period in which goatskins were trebling in the value of their importations.

The only important article of manufacturers' materials showing a more rapid gain than goatskins in importations is a pig tin, of which the value imported has grown from a little less than $7,000,000 in 1896 to practically $31,000,000 in 1906, having thus more than quadrupled. The total value of goatskins imported into the United States since the beginning of the fiscal year in 1896 in a crude form (omitting those imported in the form of leather or kid gloves) is $24,000,000, and practically every year shows an increase over the figures of the preceding year, both as to quantity and value.

India is the largest contributor of this important article of our imports. The value of goatskins imported into the United States from India has grown from less than $2,000,000 in 1896 to $11,000,000 in 1906, and forms the largest item in our imports from India with the single exception of "jute bagging, burlaps, and other articles manufactured from fibers." China, Brazil, Mexico, Russia, France, and the United Kingdom are also considerable contributors of the $32,000,000 worth of goatskins entering the commerce of the point at the southern extremity of Arabia, also supplies to the United States over $1,000,000 worth of goatskins annually, drawing this product in part from Arabia and in part from the shores of East Africa, which are readily accessible just across Strait of Babel-Mandeb.

A very large proportion of the $32,000,000 worth of goatskins imported into the United States comes from tropical or subtropical countries. India, Southern China, Aden, Arabia, Brazil, Argentina, Mexico, Southern Russia, and Turkey are large contributors of this article to the imports of the United States, while a large proportion of the more than $2,000,000 worth brought from France is supplied by her colonies of Algeria and other points in Africa, India, and the Eastern coast of Asia.

FRIGHTENED AT BLACK BEAR

Girl Hides in a Cave, the Door of Which Locks.

Galeton, Pa., Nov. 9.—Fifteen-year-old Sadie MacMickan of the Kettle Creek section became frightened at the sight of a black bear in the woods, and sought refuge in a dug-out, or cave, the door of which became fastened by the heavy wooden latch on the outside and made her a prisoner.

Her presence in the cave stirred up a colony of bats, which repeatedly struck the girl's face and hands with their ugly bodies. She also feared the presence of copperheads or rattlesnakes in the cave, and at the end of four hours, when a party of searchers were attracted to the cave by the girl's screams, they found her in a condition bordering on hysteria.

She had gone out at 5 o'clock to the maple grove, a mile from the house, to bring the cows. In the grove were two under-sized heifers. At the edge of a deep wood that runs for miles back into the Kettle Creek region, the girl heard the wether cow's bell and started across the woods to intercept her.

She had gotten into the deep timber, when she saw what she thought was one of the little black heifers browsing in a laurel thicket.

She had gotten within a few yards of it when the animal, hearing her for the first time, turned and faced her. She then found that it was not a heifer, but a black bear. She ran for refuge to the dug-out used for the storage of camp kettles and other sugar-making accoutrements, which was close at hand.

The door of the cave had a latch only on the outside. She raised it, slipped into the cave and jerked the door shut, the heavy wooden latch dropping into the catch again and making her a prisoner.

Peering through a knot-hole in the door, she saw the bear scampering away through the woods. When she found that she was a prisoner she shouted, but her voice hardly penetrated the cave itself.

She was compelled to be a companion of the bats and mice for four hours.

HONORED BY ROYALTY.

Daughter of Marshall Field and Husband Are Envied.

Edinburgh, Nov. 9.—The usual attentions paid to the daughter of the late Marshall Field and her husband, Capt. Beatty, by King Edward and Queen Alexandra, during their majesties' stay in Scotland, have caused them to be regarded with envious eyes by all American aspirants for English social recognition.

Mrs. Beatty was Mrs. Arthur Lee when she married the captain and Mrs. Beatty had the coveted honor of dining with their majesties at Balmoral castle and forming part of the royal party that attended the annual ball for the tenants, gillies and work people on the Balmoral, Abergeldi and Birkhall estates, which was given at Balmoral castle.

To be a guest at either Balmoral or Sandringham is the highest compliment that the king and queen can pay socially. At Buckingham palace or Windsor the guests of their majesties are, in a sense official ones, but at Sandringham and Balmoral the king and queen transform themselves into private host and hostess, and only those whom they regard in the light of personal friends are ever asked to dinner.

Americans seeking for royal favor in England would give years of their lives to become one of the family parties which their majesties give at Sandringham and Balmoral.

Mrs. Marshall Field, Jr., has taken a house at Ashton, St. Leger, near Rugby, on a long lease. She found life in a fashionable hotel was not suitable for her children and for their sake she secured a magnificient place in a beautiful county where the children can get plenty of pure air and good exercise.

GIVES BACK WEDDING LICENSE TO OFFICIALS.

Emaus, Pa., Nov. 9.—John Hottenstein, the Lehigh mountain gold miner, who procured a license as a means of proposal to wed Minnie Hoerst, daughter of Herman Hoerst of Salisbury township has returned the license to the officials at the county seat to file away for the present.

The father of the prospective bride was charged with assault and battery, on oath of Hottenstein.

It is said he had been paying attentions to Minnie, the daughter of the defendant, for the last two years, and recently procured a marriage license to be used as a proposal.

He gave the girl two weeks' time in which to decide whether she would marry him, but when the time elapsed and he went to claim his bride, she had gone to New Jersey.

He visited the parents of the girl to get some explanation, but he met with their stern refusal. Hoerst than demanded that they either give him back the money which he had expended on her during this courtship or give up the girl.

The irate parents getting tired of his actions, prosecuted him. Hoerst is 63 years of age, while Miss Hottenstein is but 21.

GOLD THEFTS REACH TWO MILLIONS A YEAR.

Sydney, Nov. 9.—The evidence of the royal commission appointed to investigate the gold stealing at the Kalgoorlie mines reveals great and systematic thefts.

Though the defects do not reach, as was at first stated, an annual total of $5,000,000, they are estimated to vary from $1,500,000 to $3,000,000 every year.

BABY'S TORTURING SKIN HUMOR

Ears Looked as if They Would Drop Off—Body Entirely Covered—Face Mass of Sores—Three Doctors Could Not Cure—Child Grew Worse—Face and Body Now Clear

CURED BY CUTICURA IN TWO WEEKS FOR 75c.

Mrs. George J. Steese, of 701 Coburn St., Akron, Ohio, tells in the following letter of another of those remarkable cures of torturing, disfiguring skin humors daily made by Cuticura Soap, assisted by Cuticura Ointment, after physicians, and all else had failed: "I feel it my duty to parents of other poor suffering babies to tell you what Cuticura has done for my little daughter.

She broke out all over her body with a humor, and we used everything recommended, but without results. I called in three doctors, they all claimed they could help her, but she continued to grow worse. Her body was a mass of sores, and her little face was being eaten away; her ears looked as if they would drop off. Neighbors advised me to get Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and before I had used half of the cake of Soap and box of Ointment the sores had all healed, and my little one's face and body were as clear as a new-born babe's. I would not be without it again if it cost five dollars, instead of seventy-five cents, which is all it cost us to cure our baby, after spending many dollars on doctors and medicines without any benefit whatever."

Complete External and Internal Treatment for every Humor, from Pimples to Scrofula, from Infancy to Age, consisting of Cuticura Soap, 25c., Ointment, 50c., Resolvent, 50c. (In form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60), may be had of all druggists. A single set often cures the most distressing cases, when all other remedies, and even the best physicians fail. DIVORCES WIFE FOR REFUSING TO SPEAK.

Reading, Pa., Nov. 9.—Benjamin F. E. Baucher, in an application for a divorce filed here, deplores an unusual condition of affairs. Since May 30, 1899, he alleges that his wife, Ellen, has refused to speak to him.

They were married in Norristown, Oct. 19, 1871, coming to Reading, where they have since resided.

Nine years ago, he says, her treatment forced him to leave her, and two years later she forgot that she ever knew him, having treated him since as a total stranger.

The best treatment for indigestion and troubles of the stomach is to rest the stomach. Kodol puts the stomach in shape to satisfactorily perform its functions. Good for indigestion, sour stomach, flatulence, palpitation of the heart and dyspepsia. Kodol is made in strict conformity with the National Pure Food and Drug Law. Sold by all druggists.

NORTH YAKIMA MAN FALLS INTO RIVER

Spent Hours in Ice Cold Water Before Aid Arrived.

North Yakima, Wash., Nov. 9.—An experience like that which befel old man Mock of South Kittitas avenue, who spent several hours in the ice cold water of the Yakima river recently, would probably have resulted seriously with any other person than this sturdy German of three score years and ten.

He slipped down the embankment of the railroad, north of Hillside, about two miles, and being injred in the fall, he stood for several hours in the water up to his waist before he was rescued by the night watchman in the canyon at this point.

Adam Mock is an old German who came to the United States forty years ago. He said he left the old country because he could get only $20 a year and his board for laboring in his native land. He had taken a contract with a stage driver in that country to drive a stage for him twelve years at that price, and as soon as his contract expired he came to America and settled in New York state.

He came to the state of Washington twelve years ago and settled in Kittitas county. He brought his family, a wife and four boys, with him. The old man is past 70 years of age.

Some time ago he sold his place in Kittitas county to his sons for $2,000. This is far below the real value of the property, but because his sons were the purchasers, he let them have it cheaper than anyone else could have got the property. They only paid him $60 down, and gave their notes for the balance. He gave to his wife her share of the notes and kept the other half. The sons are supposed to pay interest on these notes, and it seems that the interest of $88 coming to him is past due.

One morning his wife announced her intention, so the old man said, of going to Ellensburg. His story is in substance that he feared his wife and sons were trying to beat him out of the money coming to him, and that was the reason he wanted to go to Ellensburg at this time.

It so happened, however, that Mrs. Mock missed the train that morning, and had intended to leave the next morning for Ellensburg. The old man decided to walk up to the 'burg, although he had $40 in gold on his person. He has made the trip many times in a day, but he was younger than he is now.

Accordingly, he left here some time in the forenoon, and had gotten along about seventeen miles from town when darkness overtook him. While trudging slowly in the darkness along the path on the outside of the track he stumbled on a rock and fell down the embankment.

It is in the deepest gorge of the Yakima canyon, and the river runs close to the track, but the water's edge is possibly twelve feet below the track level. In the fall the old man injured himself, and when the cold water struck him he became numb and could not move. His face was bruised and his nose badly scarred.

He does not know exactly how long he remained in the water, but it was probably three hours before the night watchman on the railroad at that point heard the groans of the old man and rescued him.

He was taken to the section house at Selah and cared for. The sheriff's office was notified, and Sheriff Grant sent Lew Buckholtz after the unfortunate man.

As a matter of fact the old man is perhaps a little childish, and the authorities are of the opinion that probably his belief that his wife and sons are trying to beat him out of his money is a fancied injury. They will, however, investigate the matter.

CHINA NOW WAKING UP

Progressives Control the Army and Can Enforce Reforms.

No Attempt to Improve Condition of Foreign Office.

Pekin, Nov. 9.—The conferences on the constitution continue and are still eagerly discussed outside. All indications point to a sharp division between the party of moderate progress, represented by the Viceroy Yuan Shih-kai and the conservative older statesmen, many of whom are Manchus, whose prerogatives are threatened. The situation is full of interest because of the position of the Viceroy Yuan Shih-kai, who controls the only effective army, and who, wielding a power rarely attained by a Chinese official, has for the first time in history entrusted many of the most lucrative and responsible posts in the metropolitan province to Cantonese attached to his staff. In view of the remarkable clanishness and cohesion of the Cantonese, the question naturally arises to what extent are Yuan Shih-kai's proteges to be identified with the political activities of their fellow provincials in Singapore, America, Japan and elsewhere abroad, whose avowed policy is the expulsion of the Manchus and the exclusion of foreign influence.

While these important conferences are continuing, and while the outspoken press is clamoring for every conceivable reform from compulsory education, the establishment of a parliament, and the abolition of racial distinctions to the suppression of domestic slavery and eunuchs and even to the alteration of dress, no attempt is being made to improve the condition of the Wai-wu-pu, the Chinese foreign office. Broadly speaking, every infernal change called for by the press is in the right direction, but the methods are crude and the achievement so far is inconsiderable. Most satisfactory is the continued extension of western education, for ignorance is the chief danger in China. Greater knowledge must bring greater security for the foreigner and a greater demand for foreign things. Thus every power is willing to assist the spread of education, yet every power is confronted with the difficulty of dealing with China in the present condition of the Wai-wa-pu. The removal of Prince Ching from the post of president is a pressing necessity. The prince never attends the office, but dwelling on a higher plane, grants rare audiences to foreign ministers at his private residence, ignores dispatches and is absorbed in amassing wealth.

To any one who has witnessed and studied the rise of Chinese journalism, the remarkable talent and enterprise displayed by the Chinese in editing and conducting their vernacular press cannot fail to convey a sense of admiration. Similarly to their general capacity for handling the latest inventions of a mechanical age, such as the motor in all its forms, and emulating many of the methods of modern civilization, they have acquired the art of journalism in the most natural way. With no inherited qualification or experience to guide them, handicapped as they have been till recently by an ignorant and meagre clientele and by the hostility of the official classes of all degrees, the fact that they have succeeded in producing organs which are having an enormous influence on the evolution of the New China, is another proof of the untiring patience, perseverance and industry of the Chinese. When one remembers that only ten years ago there was hardly a Chinese newspaper in China, and that the one or two trumpery sheets which then did exist had a circulation of a few hundreds only, it is of a truth wonderful to know that there are now organs whose circulation runs into hundreds of thousands, and whose status is such that not only do the local foreign papers quote largely from them, but foreigners of standing contribute to them and read them. It is equally of interest to remember that this remarkable progress is in a great measure due to the comprehensive liberty of the subject or individual which is afforded by the treaty ports that at present form such a prominent factor in the relations existing between the foreigner and the Chinese. Under the British flag in Canton and Hongkong, in the International settlement of Shanghai and the cosmopolitan concession of Tientsin, to say nothing of extra-territorial communities scattered along the seaboard of the Celestial empire, the writ of the Chinese government does not run.

One of the most significant out of the numberless indications of the great quiescent upheaval and revolution that is going on all round in China is furnished by the postoffice. In the year 1901 there were 196 postoffices and agencies scattered throughout the country, and they handled 10,500,000 articles. At the end of 1905 there were 1,625 postoffices open in China, and during that year they handled 26,000,000 articles.

NORTHROP WILL TALK

University President Will Address Y. M. C. A. Men's Meeting.

"Twentieth Century Religion" to be His Topic Sunday.

What will probably be one of the finest lectures of the whole course which the Young Men's Christian Association has arranged for this winter, will be given at the Lyceum theater, at the big mass meeting for men Sunday afternoon, when Dr. Cyrus Northrop, president of the University of Minnesota, will address the men of Duluth. The subject of the address will be "Twentieth Century Religion" and judging from the title it will undoubtedly be interesting as well as instructive.

President Northrop is recognized all over the country as a national figure in educational circles, and his lectures also have become popular. He knows how to handle a subject in a way which interests his hearers who pay strict attention while he is talking. Mr. Northrop has often talked to young men at Y. M. C. A. meetings and knows what will appeal to them in the best manner.

The day on which President Northrop will lecture is also the beginning of the Week of Prayer. This week is set aside by the Young Men's Christian Association throughout the world for special thought and prayer in behalf of young men, and will be observed by the Duluth association. A prayer service will be held at the noon hour each day at the association building. Secretary Lippold of the religious department of the association has received a letter from Mr. Northrop, in which the latter asserts that he will remember the special feature of the Week of Prayer while preparing his lecture.

As there are many members of the University Alumni association at the Head of the Lakes, a special effort will be made to get a good number of these out to the big meeting to listen to their former instructor. The association officials have sent invitations to a portion of the alumni members, but desire that all others attend the meeting whether they have been personally invited or not, as it is impossible to reach each one.

Special music at the meeting will be rendered by the usual orchestra and by the Orpheus Singing club, consisting of seventeen voices. The lecture will be free of charge, although no persons will be admitted without a ticket. These tickets can be procured at the Y. M. C. A. building, Smith & Smith's drug store, and at the Lyceum box office.

A bulletin has been sent out by the association telling of the big meeting and the largest attendance, which has yet turned out to any of the lectures, is expected to flock to the Lyceum Sunday afternoon.

COIN MULTILATOR IS AT WORK IN SEATTLE.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 9.—Scores on scores of $5 and $10 gold pieces are being mutilated in this city by some industrious criminal, who is apparently trying to follow in the footsteps of George W. Hess, who recently completed a term of imprisonment here for a similar offense.

It is estimated by Capt. B. W. Bell of the United States secret service bureau that the coin mutilator is making on an average of 50 cents on each $5 piece that he tampers with, and about $1 from the $10 gold pieces.

The work is apparently being done by a skilled machinist, and is so well done that many banks are now known to have in their cash drawers specimens of the coins that have gone through the hands of the unknown criminal, but which the cashiers have not detected.

Apparently the man has a lathe in which he sets the coins that are to be "shaved." A knife, running around the outside rim of the coin shaves off tiny circles of the gold from the edges outside of the milling. The machine is so accurate that the work is done smoothly. The edges of the coin are made a trifle thinner than the body of the gold piece. The only way the fraud can be discovered with certainty is by weighing the coin.

The system pursued by George W. Hess was to shave all around the rim of the coin, destroying the milling and rendering it necessary to make new milling. The man now operating, however, is careful not to so mutilate the money, and his work is of a far more dangerous character.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

The annual meeting of the Women's Council was held this morning at the club room of the library, with Mrs. E. W. Matter presiding, in the absence of the president, Mrs. J. L. Washburn, who, through illness, was unable to be present. The principle work of the session was the election of officers for the ensuing year, and the officers who will serve the organization are: President, Mrs. James D. Merrison; vice president, Mrs. E. W. Matter; secretary, Miss Ensign, and treasurer, Mrs. E. W. Markell. The members of the Council are much pleased at securing Mrs. Morrison for the executive officer for the year, as during her active service in the Council she has been most helpful in suggestions and valuable work.

The reports of the officers were given, and of the various committees, namely, cooking school, school gardens, seed, arts and craft, playgrounds, smoke nuisance and preservation of natural beauty, by the chairmen. The work of these committees is familiar in great part to those interested in the work of the Council.

One of the most interesting features of the meeting was a communication from Miss Mary Statham, read by her, urging the members of the Council to form in Duluth a women's club, which would include all the numerous women's organizations of the city, that they may become a greater power for good in the community. It was moved that the Council members report the project to the various clubs which they represent and great approval was expressed in the informal discussion which followed.

The secretary was also directed to extend to the retiring president a most hearty vote of thanks for her work during the past four years, and also to Miss Poirier and her assistants at the library for their help in the spring in the distribution of seeds.

On motion of Mrs. A. W. Bradley, it was decided that the Council provide a box for offerings toward the help of strange girls coming into the city, who need a little assistance, and which has been often extended by the depot matron in the past. A committee was also appointed, consisting of Mrs. A. W. Bradley and Mrs. W. S. Woodbridge, to look into the possibility of securing a police matron.

Mrs. Washburn's annual address, which was read at the meeting, is of interest to so large a number of the Duluth club women that it is given in full:

"The council's work for the year just closed is most satisfactory. The summer cooking school committee, under the efficient chairmanship of Mrs. A. H. Comstock, has done even more than that committee did last year, in that it has practically financed the work undertaken by it. Moreover the fund raised by the committee is a permanent fund, coming in regularly each year. This assures the success and permanency of the vacation cooking school. Forty more girls were given lessons this year than were accomodated last year, each girl having two lessons a week. The equipment also has been very much improved this season. I am going somewhat in detail as to the work of this committee, as I know that its chairman has no report.

"I want to call special attention to the good work of the seed committee and particularly to commend the chairman for the way in which she keeps at her work. The busy time of this committee is early in the season, when the seeds for the different schools ar distributed. It would not be strange of the committee should feel after this arduous labor that it could rest on its oars and let the boat run itself. But no, when school opens in the fall, there is Miss Anderson, arranging for exhibits, judges and prizes. This makes the children feel that some one is interested in their little gardens, and anxious for their success. I am glad of the arrangement by which different clubs assume the responsibility for prizes at the various school buildings where exhibits are held. It is good for the club, good for the council, and good for the little gardeners.

"The question as to the school garden arises again this year as it did last. Are we getting good value for the money, time and effort expended? We don't seem to be able to get near enough to the boys and get them to do anything regularly and systematically. It is not the fault of the committee; they have labored diligently and introduced the new features of last spring of having different people address the school in the vicinity of the garden on the subject. If we had a regular teacher who could hold the boys to regular class room work for one-half day a week, from which class room they would go out to their gardens to make application of what they had learned. I am sure we could make a success of school gardens here, as well as in other places where it has been tried. I have been wondering if one of the science teachers of the high school might not like to undertake this work.

We could ask him to give from one to three half days a week, according to the number of gardens undertaken. He would not be expected to do the work which a gardener does, but he could make the boys do it. I am inclined to think that this might be done with no greater expense than under the present plan.

"I am hoping much from the arts and crafts committee. In my mind's eye I already see a fine trade school here or a Mechnaic Arts high school like the splendid one in St. Paul. Be ready to give that committee a helping hand whenever needed, for it promises something worth while for the city.

'We need an industrial committee in our Council. That would cover a multitude of cases where our help is wanted.

More than three years I have been president of this organization, years of happy, profitable labor. During this time I have seen it grow from a tiny plant to the goodly tree in whose shade we sometimes sit and felicitate ourselves upon its beauty and usefulness. We have told the story of its growth of leaf and flowers and fruit many times over, but here at the close of my connection with it as president, I can not forbear to recapitulate briefly:

"Picture for the library paid for; domestic science department established at the normal school; summer cooking school established at the Adams school and maintained for two seasons; school gardens maintained for two summers; thousands upon thousands of packages of flower and vegetable seeds and pansy plants distributed to the school children of the city for their home gardens; the district federation entertained twice; also two midwinter Head of the Lakes luncheons held.

"The work is very dear to me. The council is my favorite child. I yield its care to others with reluctance. But I know that it is right that I should give it up now. The responsibility of this and the federation are too much and I am very, very tired. My decision is irrevocable and I hope that no one will be so unkind as to urge me to reconsider, for it would do no good and would merely waste time and energy. A friend trying to change my decision, said: "But you know the council work will stop if you leave the presidency." That is folly, even if I could have the sublime conceit to believe it. No work that is worth doing will cease because of the removal from active service of any personality, and I think we all believe the council work to be worth doing sometimes in an organization, if one person has carried the whole burden and responsibility, and if she drops out it takes a little time for the body to readjust itself and go on independently. But that is not true of the council. Each committee has been responsible for its own work and has done it at the proper time. It is a splendidly organized body of fine women and my successor will find her work pleasant and not too difficult. I hope that she will not decline the office, even though at first it may seem impossible. Let her consider the long years of faithful service given by our secretary and ask herself if she is not willing to take the helm for a year at least.

"To those who have so faithfully co-operated in the plans and purposes of the president, and who have been fertile in suggesting and aiding to carry out others, I can but say 'Thank you.'

"I shall be just as much interested in the work of the council as ever though for a little time without any responsibility. And so we say,

"The queen is dead
Long live the queen."

TO MAKE REPORTS.

Club Delegates Will Tell of Recent Meeting.

Tomorrow afternoon the club women of the city will be the guests of the members of the Saturday club, at a meeting at the club rooms of the library, to hear reports of the local delegates to the annual state federation meeting, which was held last month at Winona. The meeting will be held at 2:30 o'clock, and the club women of Superior have been invited to be present. Any woman interested in the meeting is invited to attend. The program for the afternoon is as follows:

TWO COUNTS FOR HEIBERG

Assault and Owning Filthy Literature Charged.

John Regan, Who Shot Andrew Miller, is Released.

Lars Heiberg, who was arrested some weeks ago, on the charge of indecent assault on his little eleven-year old daughter, Elnora Heiberg, has been indicted by the grand jury on two counts. One indictment covers the same charge for which he was bound over to the grand jury, and the other indictment charges Heiberg with showing an obscene, indecent writing, Sept. 23. The information on which the last indictment is based, charges that on the date in question, when Heiberg was examined in the municipal court, he produced a book that he had written in the Norwegian language, that contained reading of the most vulgar and filthy nature. The sentiments expressed were of such nature as to greatly shock the court and attendants.

Thomas Browning is held for trial on three indictments returned this morning. Two indictments charge grand larceny in the second degree and the other charges assault in the second degree.

Under the assault charge it is claimed that Browning used a revolver on Charles Gronberg, at Virginia, Oct. 18. Under the indictments for larceny, Browning is accused of stealing a quantity of jewelry from John Sjoquist, and some clothing and a rifle from William Laughlin, at Leander, in township 62-17, in October last.

Chester Armstrong, who was arrested for running away with a Greath Northern freight train from the yards at Hibbing, the evening of Oct. 13 last, and with sending it crashing into a passenger train bound for the opposite direction, causing a train wreck, has been indicted for obstructing an engine and railway carriage and endangering the safety of people riding thereon. Among the people whose safety Armstrong is said to have endangered are, A. T. Stewart, Frank Redman, and Fred Eastman.

Martin Startz has been indicted for running a blind pig in the town of Stuntz. It is claimed that Startz, without a liquor license, sold Joe Germ five bottles of beer, Oct. 28, last.

Nicholas Bohn has been indicted for assault in the second degree. It is claimed that he used a knife on Fred Hamm, at Duluth, Oct. 31, last.

John Regan, the Bear River homesteader, who shot and fatally wounded Andrew Miller, in mistake for a deer, several weeks ago, has been released by order of the court, the grand jury returning no indictment against him. Miller, it will be remembered, was shot through the body with buckshot in two places, but lived for several days after being brought to a local hospital. It was thought at one time that he would recover, but he was taken worse and died. It was reported from Hibbing, that both settlers were out shining deer, when the accident happened, a proceeding that is in violation of the present game laws of the state.

Charles Abrahamson who was sent down from a range town on the charge of taking indecent liberties with a child was also released, no true bill being returned in his case.

FINISHES TABULATING

County Board of Canvassers Begins Figuring Up Totals.

Town of Lavell is Last to Send Election Returns.

At noon today the county board of canvassers had finished the official canvass of the vote at the recent general election and, with an adding machine, were making up the totals.

As this requires considerable time, on account of the large amount of figures involved, it is not expected that the total count will be known until tomorrow. At a late hour this afternoon the canvassing board was still adding up the figures on the city vote and had just about reached the county ticket.

Figuring on the unofficial returns, Governor Johnson's majority in the county is 1,413. On the official returns his majority in the city is 1,496.

The vote from the town of Fredenberg was thrown out by the canvassing board for the reason that the returns both official and unofficial, were not certified. This blunder is considered almost inexcusable on the part of the election board for the reason that the directions sent with the voting supplies were very explicit. If the vote from this precinct had been counted it would have added a few to Governor Johnson's majority, as the vote was ten for Johnson and four for Cole.

No return was sent in from the town of Fern. Election supplies were forwarded to the clerk of the town, but as nothing has been heard for that official, it is surmised that no election was held. Some time ago the clerk wrote to the county auditor and suggested the advisability of passing over the election in the town as there were only a few votes, and the town did not care to go to the expense of holding an election.

The town of Lavell was about the last to get its election returns to the county auditor. These came in this morning. Lavell gave Johnson eleven, and Cole ten votes. It gave Bates for sheriff, sixteen votes, against four for Brady.

Appetizing Display.

Those who pass the Duluth Public Market tomorrow will be rewarded by seeing an unusually and appetizing display of meats. The firm prides itself on the cleanliness and general excellence of this department, and its window displays are always enticing.

FIGHT FOR CHILDREN

Katie and Walter Keenan Both Ask for Divorces.

Claims and Counter-Claims of Desertion Are Made.

Four divorce actions were heard by Judge Ensign this morning. The court took one under advisement, held two open for further evidence and the fourth case, the only one in which there is a contest, was still on trial when the noon adjournment was taken.

Claiming desertion and non-support of herself and family since July 4, 1904, Katie Keenan, of this city, is making a hard fight for a decree of divorce from Walter W. Keenan, a deputy state boiler inspector, and the custody of their three children who have been cared for at the Children's Home in this city for the past two years.

Keenan is opposing his wife's attempt to get the divorce. He has made answer to the complaint, denying that he deserted his wife and claiming that she deserted him. On this counter claim Keenan asks for a divorce and the custody of the children.

Mrs. Keenan, who was on the witness stand under cross-examination when the court adjourned this noon, testified that she is 29 years old and her husband is 43 years old, that they were married at Preston, Minn., thirteen years ago. Since that date they have resided in Winona, Minneapolis, Allouez Bay and Duluth.

Mrs. Keenan said that the three children, whose ages are 9, 11 and 12 years, respectively, were sent to the Children's home over two years ago and that she and Keenan at that time occupied furnished rooms at Third avenue west and Fifth street. She said that she was at the time sick, nearing confinement, and was unable to go out much or to work, and that her husband was employed at the blast furnace in West Duluth, at which part of the city he boarded, coming home nights to sleep. Mrs. Keenan claimed that all she got to eat was a piece of meat, a potato and a piece of bread that Keenan would bring home in his pocket every night, stuff that he told her he took from the table where he boarded in West Duluth. The wife claimed that Keenan said he was earning $3 per day, but that he refused to give her money with which to buy food and once told her that if she did not like the way he was supporting her she could get out.

Further along in her story of alleged bad treatment by her husband Mrs. Keenan said that he told her one day, that she must find work and earn enough to pay for the room rent and her board and, upon her refusal to go out cooking and washing dishes, because of her physical condition, he carried out his threat to leave her. She claims that she remained at the rooms five days, during which time Keenan did not return or send any means of support. She says that Mrs. Robinson, a woman she had formerly worked for, gave her a dinner every day and that was all that kept her from starving.

Mrs. Keenan testified that she finally went to Minneapolis in search of employment and found a place with an old friend of her father's family, where she did housework until her baby was born. The child lived but one month. She claimed that Keenan sent her $15 to help defray her expenses at the hospital, but that a friend paid the rest of the expenses, also the burial expenses of the infant. Since that time, Mrs. Keenan claimed, her husband has not contributed a cent to her support, nor to that of the children.

Mrs. Keenan said that after she returned to Duluth she worked out as a seamstress, a cook, and has been employed at times at restaurants. She claims that her father is a well-to-do farmer of Fillmore county, Minn., and has offered to take care of herself and the children if they will go to him.

Mrs. Keenan is represented at the trial by H. H. Hawkins, and her husband by H. S. Lord. Mrs. Keenan was attended by two of her women friends, while Keenan sat alone until called by his attorney for consultation over the cross-examination of his wife.

Cruel and abusive treatment were the grounds on which Victoria King asked a divorce from John King. Mrs. King keeps boarders and takes in washing at Virginia for a living. She supports herself and two children aged 8 and 10 years respectively. Marie Antoinette, the oldest daughter, was a witness for her mother. The court heard the testimony and took the case under advisement.

Edward F. Thomas of Hibbing asked for a legal separation from Nellie Thomas, his grounds being drunkenness and desertion. Thomas, who is a bartender, testified that when he formerly ran a saloon of his own his wife would get liquor to drink when he left her in charge of the bar, and that at other times she would send out and buy it elsewhere. He claimed he never gave her any liquor. The court held the case open for additional evidence.

A similar disposition was made of the case of Marie Phillips against David Phillips. Mrs. Phillips claims she was deserted. She resides at Hibbing, where she has been employed as a waitress in a restaurant.

CANDIDATES FOR SPEAKER

Of House Numerous and Many After Legislative Plums.

St. Paul, Nov. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—With the state election out of the way, and the successful aspirants known, the interest here centers on the speaker of the next house, not to speak of the secretaryship of the senate, and a score or more of nice plums that both house and senate will have the distribution of.

The known and expected candidates for the speaker of the coming house of representatives are: Ambrose Tighe, St. Paul; L. H. Johnson, Minneapolis; A. J. Rockne, Zumbrota; N. F. Hugo, Duluth; Elmer Adams, Fergus Falls; R. J. Wells, Breckenridge; W. A. Nolan, Grand Meadow, and Burdette Thayer of Spring Valley. There are others to come.

Ramsey county has a candidate in Ambrose Tighe, and the local delegation will undoubtedly back him to the end. N. F. Hugo of Duluth, is making claims, and if some of his backers are to be taken at their word, he has the place cinched. Larry Johnson of Minneapolis, however, is as active as any of them, and Hugo will have to look to his laurels.

For the secretary of the senate, Sam Langum of Preston will undoubtedly land. He is about the only candidate in the field.

For chief clerk of the house there are any number of candidates.

AVOID LUNG TROUBLE.

Take one-half ounce Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), two ounces of Glycerine and eight ounces of good Whisky. Shake well and take in teaspoonful doses every four hours. It is said to break up a cold in 24 hours, and cure any cough that is curable.

An eminent authority on lung trouble says if this simple and effective formula was known and generally used, throat, lung and bronchial affections would seldom reach an acute stage. Care should be used in selecting pure ingredients, and to avoid substitution it is best that they be purchased separately and mixed in your own home.

The Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) should be purchased in the original half-ounce vials put up expressly for druggists to dispense. Each vial is securely sealed in a round wooden case, with engraved wrapper with the name—"Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure)"—plainly written thereon. Only the cheaper oils are sold in bulk, but these produce nausea and never effect the desired result.

SWITCHMEN NOT SURE OF RAISE

Hitch in Chicago and St. Paul Men Growing Restive.

St. Paul, Nov. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The members of the general adjustment committee of the Switchmen's Union of North America, meeting at the Foley hotel today, expressed no little disappointment that this morning's advices failed to bring news of an agreement between the union and the railroads.

"Yesterday afternoon," said Chairmen R. J. Martin, "we all felt reasonably certain that the railroads and the union were on the eve of a solution of the wages difficulty. We were informed from Chicago that our proposition of at least 4 cents an hour increase, with the exact amount to be settled by arbitration, would be adopted. Now I have been informed that no settlement has yet been reached, and that a hitch has occurred in the negotiations between the railroads themselves. It seems that three line east of Buffalo, N. Y., have balked on the 3-cent rate. If this is true it throws the situation into chaos.

"Our men are getting so impatient that the officers of the adjustment committee hardly dare go down into the yards. We have been doing our best to smooth matters over and to keep our men in line, but they are eager to throw down their work at a moment's notice."

BOARD MEETS.

The board of water and light commissioners held a meeting yesterday afternoon and transacted the usual routine business of the department. A petition was received from a number of residents for the extension of the water main on Regent street, from Forty-third to Forty-fifth avenue east.

The board opened bids for material to be used in the installation of the new electric pump at the Lakewood station. The National Iron company was the lowest bidder for the special casting required, its bid being 5 cents per pound. The United States Cast Iron & Foundry company was the lowest bidder for the extra pipe needed.

THE HERALD'S PART IN IT.

The Herald is pleased to acknowledge with thanks the receipt of many pleasant compliments, of which the following, from a prominent local citizen who is a Republican in national politics, is a specimen:

> Please permit me to most heartily congratulate you on the manly and dignified campaign of The Herald for the success of the people's candidate, Governor Johnson. It is only by such means that right prevails, and it is pleasing to independent citizens of the great state of Minnesota.

The Herald endeavored, in the campaign that has resulted so happily for the people, to make an appeal to reason and judgment, and not to passion, prejudice or political superstition.

It has had nothing unkind to say of Albert L. Cole as an individual. It has had and still has the greatest respect for him as a man. It has given him full credit for his accomplishments as a member of the last house, and it has regretted that he is not to be a member of and a prominent factor in the next one. Northern Minnesota needs such men in the legislature, and it is to be deeply regretted that the fluctuations of political fortune will deprive her of his help.

The Herald has had little to say against Mr. Cole, but it has had much to say in favor of Governor Johnson. In as calm a manner as the warmth of the campaign permitted, it has tried to place before the voters of this state his excellences as a man and his splendid record as a public official. It has not tried to gain votes for him in any other manner than in the presentation of reasonable arguments and candid discussion of the real issues.

It has tried, and it will always try, to strip away from the issues the confusing impediments of mere partisanship. It said early in the campaign that the issue was just this and nothing else: Do the people believe that John A. Johnson will make a better governor than A. L. Cole? Its campaign has been made consistently throughout upon that basis.

While, in view of the obvious fact that the result was a phenomenal personal victory for Governor Johnson, it cannot claim full credit for the result, The Herald does claim to have done its modest share in accomplishing this victory of the people over the politicians, of personal merit over partisanship humbug, and of the best interests of the state and its people over the interests of a political machine.

It is proud of the fact that it is the only leading daily newspaper in the state that has been behind the governor throughout his first term and throughout the campaign that has given him a second term. The Herald is the organ of no party, and no interest, but it is the organ of the people and an exponent of the people's interests. And this has been a victory of the people, by the people and for the people.

OMINOUS SIGNS.

It is said that President Roosevelt does not intend to put anything about tariff revision into his forthcoming message to congress. Evidently he has determined that if anything is to be done with the tariff it must be taken up by the next congress, and that there is no time to do anything with it at this winter's short session.

But if he scrutinizes the election returns carefully he will see ample evidence of a revolt against standpatism that bodes ill for his party if it does not shortly take up the tariff in good faith and attempt a revision that will put it in harmony with prevailing industrial conditions.

In practically every district where a standpatter was running for re-election, he was either beaten or scared half to death. In Minnesota McCleary was defeated, and the news tinkled pleasantly in the ears of all who favor tariff revision, Republicans and Democrats alike. In Wisconsin Babcock went down to defeat, and this fall, too, made a merry noise in the ears of the people. Dalzell, greater than McCleary as a standpatter and friend of the trusts, won out, but he had a hard fight, and vast sums of money had to be poured into his district to save him. In New York Wadsworth, the man that stood by the beef trust in the congressional action on meat inspection, was defeated. Fred Landis of Indiana, the man that got up in congress last winter and admitted that American-made goods were sold abroad cheaper than at home, owing to the tariff, and gloried in it, shared the fate of McCleary, Wadsworth and Babcock.

The Republicans still have a majority in congress, something less than half of the majority in the present congress, but the battle-scarred victors who gather in the next congress will have learned something. They will have learned that the people want tariff revision, and that they have little patience with the McClearys that try to make themselves greater than their constituencies and oppose the will of the people.

It is significant, too, that the Republican orators who started preaching standpatism early in the campaign had to abandon it in a panic before it was over. Tariff revision has undoubtedly gained very much in the past few months, and its growth has reached a stage where it becomes foolhardiness for the Republican party to ignore it. Secretary Taft's speech in favor of revision had much to do with strengthening this tendency. Many Republicans who hestitated to fly in the face of authority by coming out for revision have been encouraged by the knowledge that so great a man in the party councils as Taft is not afraid to declare himself.

MIGHTY POOR ADVICE.

It is characteristic of Secretary Shaw's attitude toward public affairs that he should have said, in a speech at St. Louis recently: "I advise young men to vote for parties and not men, for parties stand for principles and men do not always do so."

This is about the view of it that Speaker Cannon would take, that Standpat McCleary would take, that Standpat Dalzell would take, and that every survivor of another day in politics would take who still places partyism above patriotism, who loves his party more than he does his country, and who makes all other interests subordinate to the "good of the party."

But the advice given by Secretary Shaw is antediluvian, absurd, unpatriotic.

It is the voting for parties rather than for men that has placed our large cities in the grip of corrupt machines. It is voting for parties rather than for men that has made congress so subservient to the "large interests" that only an irresistible exhibition of public sentiment could force it to half-heartedly adopt some halfway reform measures.

When men surrender the precious privilege of the ballot to the managers of a party, whatever that party may be, reserving to themselves not even the right of judicious discrimination, they become vassals of the corrupt machine such unlimited power is certain to create. They are no longer freemen; they are slaves. They vote, it is true, but they vote for candidates selected for them by party managers, and they have no voice in their selection themselves. They may think they have a voice; they vote to send delegates to the conventions that make the nominations, but under the convention system the delegates are selected by the bosses, and their votes dictated by them.

When the ticket is complete the kind of a party man that Secretary Shaw approves votes that ticket straight and boasts that he swallowed it whole. He asks nothing further than the knowledge that the candidates bear his party's stamp; that they call themselves Democrats or Republicans. Knowing so much, he asks no more. He does not ask if they are rascals, or if they are puttybrained, backboneless figureheads that rascals manipulate. They bear the party stamp, and that is enough.

Those who follow Secretary Shaw's advice put good government, equality of opportunity, and the protection of the masses from the aggressions of overgrown capital out of consideration. Bad government, the destruction of opportunity and the encouragement of wholesale plundering of the people are produced by following his counsel. Much better to follow what another Republican, Senator Beveridge, said the other day:

> The only question before the American voters in this campaign is good government. There are no issues of policy dividing political parties—no conflict of principle to take the people's minds from practical process of running the government. The individual and not the party at this moment dominates our political life

THE PULLMAN HOTEL.

Washington Post: The Pullman company insists that it is not engaged in the transportation business, but simply operates a number of hotels. Still, a Pullman hotel without wheels would not get very far with a bid for patronage.

There is more than a joke in that paragraph.

The Pullman company seeks to evade the new interstate commerce law by proving that it is not a common carrier, but a hotel keeper.

There is one marked difference between the Pullman hotels, admitting them to be such for the sake of argument, and ordinary hotels, and that is in the choice offered to patrons.

When a traveler enters a strange town where he has to pass the night, he is not limited to one hostelry, but he may pick his lodging place with reference to his taste and to the capacity of his purse.

When a traveler is upon a railroad train, and night falls, he has no choice, except that between patronizing a Pullman hotel and trying to catch a few winks of sleep sitting up in a day coach. If he would go to bed, he must take what the Pullman company gives him, and pay what the Pullman company asks him to pay. Also, he must pay the wages of the colored functionary who insists upon blacking his boots and brushing him off at his journey's end.

This is difference enough between a Pullman hotel and an ordinary hotel to dispose of the Pullman company's claim that it should not be regulated by the interstate commerce law.

So far as the traveler is concerned, the Pullman company has a monopoly, and unless the government steps in and compels that monopoly to be administered mercifully, the traveler has no relief at all.

If he is patronizing a hotel that has no wheels, but is stuck fast in a town here it cannot get away, the traveler is in a position of complete independence. If one hotel does not suit his tastes, he can seek another that does. If one hotel charges prices too altitudinous for his modest purse to stand, he can seek one whose prices are nearer the ground, and also nearer the capacity of his pocketbook.

With the Pullman "hotel" he can take what he is given and pay what is demanded, or he can sit up all night and curse the railroad company for exposing him to the merciless exactions of a monopoly.

Since the Pullmans are virtually a monopoly, they must be controlled, for an uncontrolled monopoly is as certain to become a public nuisance as day is to turn into night. If the Pullman company is able to uphold its contention that it is immune from federal control, there is ample remedy at hand.

That is to compel the railroads, which are admittedly subject to government control, to furnish the service they now let the Pullman company provide.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"Most of the island of Cuba is exceedingly fertile," said F. L. Frick of Detroit, Mich., who returned from Cuba a few week ago, to the St. Louis. "There are great opportunities for a wonderful development, but what is needed is outside capital, and, with quiet and peace restored and assured, foreign capital will undoubtedly flow into the island in large amounts.

"There are plenty of opportunities for the profitable investment of American capital. In fact most of the merchants and financiers of the island are very anxious that not only the United States should either annex or establish a protectorate over the island, but that American capital should also seek investment there.

"Nearly every one with whom I conversed on this matter was of the same opinion, that there was no question of a great development of the varied resources of the island, if capital be supplied and peace and quiet be assured. And the only way they seemed to think that could be assured was by the United States intervening and taking charge of affairs. Financial interests at present are largely in the hands of foreigners, especially Canadians. Two or three Canadian banks have established branches in Havana. The only public bank of any size is the National Bank of Cuba, which has headquarters in Havana with branches in many of the principal cities of the island.

"While I was there business was practically at a standstill, owing to the unsettled political situation then existing, and which was most interesting to an American. There are two parties on the island, Moderates and Liberals. The Liberals claim that the Moderates were elected by fraud and that they were taking advantage of their power to line their pockets through various forms of graft.

"Whatever may be the facts in the case, it is odd to find the defeated party resorting to an insurrection to gain its end. The whole insurrection was nothing but a political demonstration, but it was certainly managed in a very clever manner by the leaders of the Liberal party. Insurgents in the field evidently acting entirely upon instructions received from headquarters.

"There was practically no fighting, and very little damage was done to any property outside of the blowing up of a few culverts on the Cuban Central railway, the destruction of two or three locomotives and some freight and passenger cars on the road. This, I was told by an insurgent himself, was done in order to bring about American intervention.

"I was fortunate enough to be in a position to see a good deal of the actions of the insurgents. About 95 per cent of those in the field were negroes. They were very quiet, and did little damage other than taking horses and cattle from the various plantations, as well as any supplies they might need from different country stores. They had complete control of the country, the rural or government guards being confined to the several cities. These rural guards made a great display in patrolling the streets of the cities, but as far as any fighting was concerned in the section of the country where I was, I heard of only one skirmish, and, in fact, assisted in bringing into one of the small towns near where I was about nine of the wounded. It evidently had been quite a sharp fight, but I understood no one was killed.

"The population of Cuba is between 1,600,000 and 1,800,000 at the present time, and there is no question that immigration from the Southern countries of Europe should be encouraged by the Cuban government. There are large areas in Cuba which are still absolutely virgin land, and which are rich, not only in soil for agricultural purposes but also in forests of mahogany, cedar and ebony and many other hardwoods, as well as large mineral deposits."

THE WEATHER.

The expected snow turned out to be rain when it came last night. It did not last long, and early in the evening the clouds vanished, and the stars appeared. This morning it was cloudy again and warm. Yesterday's highest temperature was 46 degs. and last night's lowest was 34 degs. The weather man says it will be colder tonight, dropping to about 25 degs., and fair tomorrow.

The sun set at 4:41 this afternoon, and rises at 7:04 tomorrow morning, when there will be nine hours and thirty-six minutes of day.

A year ago today it was cloudy and threatening.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The center of the Manitoba disturbance has advanced to the region immediately north of Lake Superior. The easterly movement of this disturbance was attended by light rain or snow in Northern border states during Thursday and last night. The far Western high pressure area has advanced to the eastward and now overlies the Rocky mountains and Eastern slopes. It is attended by somewhat colder temperatures in those districts and Western Canada, the coldest reported being at 4 degs. at Edmonton, while throughout the Northwest freezing weather is the rule this morning. Another disturbance is developing off the Oregon coast. The slow easterly movement of the high pressure areas in the West and Southwest will cause generally fair weather in this section tonight and Saturday."

Following were last night's lowest temperatures, as recorded by the weather bureau:

MERRY JINGLES.

Philadelphia Press: Tess—Miss de Muir is such a guileless creature, isn't she? Jess—Yes; you believe it. Guy-less? Why, she has more guys chasing around her than any other girl I know.

Washington Star: "Do you believe in the survival of the fittest?"

"Well," answered Senator Sorghum, "I suppose I am like most people in that respect. My opinion depends a good deal on how fit I happen to be feeling myself."

Chicago Tribune: Rivers (in the newspaper line)—Would you write it "under the circumstances" or "in the circumstances?"

Brooks (ditto)—Neither one. Make it "considering the circumstances." You work on space, don't you?

Philadelphia Press: "Well," said the tiresome fellow, "there's no doubt about the truth of that old saying, 'The more we get, the more we want.'"

"Yes," replied Sharp, "but it also works the other way. The more we want the less we get."

Baltimore American: "I think barbers, as a rule, ought to be preferred to men of other professions as ward executives."

"And, pray, why barbers?"

Washington Star: "Was your expedition a success?"

"Entirely so," answered the Arctic explorer.

"But you didn't reach the north pole."

"No; but I reached the editors and the readers."

Chicago Tribune: Lawyer—In regard to the merits of this case, is your mind entirely free from prejudice or bias?

Talesman—Huh?

Lawyer—We'll accept this juror, your honor.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "They tell me there are several interesting romances connected with that skyscraper over there."

"I'm not surprised. It seems to be full of stories."

Washington Star: "Day say contentment is better dan riches," said Uncle Eben; "but I mus' own up dat I'd kind o' like to try both an' decide foh myself."

He Appreciates "Ma."

Oklahoma News-Republican: The editor of the News-Republican is going to tog up a little this evening. Going to change collars and put on a pair of cuffs, if he can find any. Going to get shaved, and going to get our shoes shined and the pegs cut out, so we can walk right pertly. Ma's a-coming down to see us. You know who ma is. Ma is our only ma, and she's a good one, too—one of the old Ohio Quaker sort, you know. Ma lives in Kingfisher. She was our ma when we were born; she was our ma out in Western Kansas when we hunted prairie coal; she was our ma when we drank parched corn coffee in old Oklahoma in '89 and she's our ma now. She's the best ma we ever knew. If you see us tomorrow walking down the street with a little woman with a smile on her face, you'll know that's ma. If you never had a ma, you should get one—and one like our ma, too.

A Bargain.

Lippincott's: The busy shopper paused at the fruit vender's stand. "How much are your pineapples?" she asked.

"Eight cent' a piece, lady."

"Well, I declare, that's too good to be missed. I'll take eight of them," she said.

The dealer placed them in a bag and said: "Eight eights—eighty-eight. You take dem along for eight-five."

The lady's eyes sparkled at the bargain price, and she departed in a happy frame of mind—happy until her husband told her to brush up on the multiplication table.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1886.

S. F. Boyce expects to close out his drug store and move to Omaha, Neb., about the first of January.

The three new elevators to be built in Duluth and ready for the crop of 1887 will have a capacity of 3,000,000 bushels.

The receipts of wheat at this port for the past week amounted to 1,950 cars. Shipments were 1,290,000 bushels. Remaining in store, 1,225,000 bushels.

The property of the Y. M. C. A. of Duluth warrants the directors in stating that they hope in a very short time to purchase the building now occupied by them.

Henry Truelsen's term as alderman of the First ward expires just in time for him to take the office of sheriff. He says the people have sentenced him to jail for two years, and he will accept the consequences and do the best he can.

If this weather continues, the New Year's excursion to Two Harbors, which was inaugurated last season, can be repeated this winter.

A gentleman came down from Grand Marais yesterday with several splendid specimens of iron ore found in that locality. He intends to give his friends a chance to locate with him and reap the benefits of the find.

Arrangements have been made to hold a grand union temperance meeting at the Grand opera house on Nov 21. Mrs. Budley, an English worker for the cause, will deliver an address.

Ed Maine, a nephew of Edward Maine, who is in business at Rice's Point, returned yesterday from the Cascade mountains and brought some valuable specimens of silver ore from his claim.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Hibbing Tribune: "Lids" that fit tightly is the prevailing style in millinery for Minnesota municipalities. Even from Hibbing the tin horns have been started down the pike.

Red Wing Republican: The whirlwind campaign has been followed by a shower of votes, and the country is continuing business at the old stand just as if nothing had happened.

New Ulm Review: For three months or more there has been an abundance of political matter in most of the papers of the state. It will be refreshing to the readers of the papers, now that the election is over, to have something different.

Lake Crystal Union: The dissolution of trusts is one of the knottiest problems that the government has ever undertaken to solve.—Princeton Union.

Wherever there is a will there is a way. The "problem" can be solved all right. Elect new members to congress. If they won't act, keep turning the rascals out. The reform will come in time.

Crookston Times: Now it is up to the legislature.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: Governor Johnson certainly made a remarkable campaign, regardless of the story told by the votes.

Virginia Enterprise: People admire a man who travels under his own hat; who has a mind of his own and is capable of knowing what is is without asking the hand that feeds him; whose judgment is tempered with principle rather than policy.

Northfield News: In political campaigns a process of elimination always goes on by which extraneous and negligible questions are left for the one supreme issue which they find the people are most keenly interested in and which gets the best response. The people are quick to separate essentials from non-essentials. The politicians soon learn what thoughts are uppermost in the people's minds. The central thought in the minds of the people is the way in which their desires for needed reforms are respected.

Crookston Times: The next two months is a good time to talk about drainage some more.

Northfield News: It might be an easy matter to read Senator La Follette out of the party if it were not for the conviction that the party needs men like La Follette in its business just now.

Crookston Times: Competition is a tonic to business—but any tonic may be taken in injurious doses.

Austin Register: The open season for the shooting of men in Minnesota begins next week along about the 10th of the month. Some call it the deer season.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: The Republican papers about the state that are just now landing one Jacobson to the very skies will have a different story to tell about the time the Lac qui Parle kicker shies his castor into the senatorial ring.

He Saved Money.

Until a few short years ago
No bank account I carried;
But just about that time, you know,
I thought of getting married.

To marry would be very rash—
No fellow in his senses
Would do it without ready cash
Laid by to pay expenses.

My salary was small and shy,
And so it's not surprising
That, to put by some money, I Began economizing.

So I shut off on dainty whets
For appetites, was chary
Of flowers and candied violets,
Both quite unnecessary.

Our weekly tickets to the play
I thought no more of buying,
But tucked my little wad away,
Bare wants alone supplying.

My hoard it grew and grew and grew,
Some time, indeed, it took me,
I got enough to wed, it's true,
But then—the lady shook me.

More Brotherhood Needed.

Lincoln State Journal: Socialism sets an example of international comity in the case of Humanite, the French Socialist paper which was recently threatened with bankruptcy. Hearing of the embarrassment of the paper, Herr Bebel, the German Socialist leader, wrote to M. Juares, the French leader, offering in the name of the German Socialists to donate $5,000 to help keep Humanite on its feet. The offer was accepted. If anti-Socialistic parties and governments could reach a similar plane of international brotherliness there would be fewer Socialists.

Governors of New York.

New York World: The governor of New York elected today will be the thirty-ninth incumbent of that exalted office since George Clinton in 1777 was elected to succeed William Tryon, the last of the colonial governors.

He will be—if he is Mr. Hughes—the sixth Republican governor since the election of Levi P. Morton in 1894 ended the twelve years' Democratic tenure begun by Cleveland in 1883.

Of New York's governors three became presidents, two were the presidential nominees of party conventions and seven either received electoral votes or were voted for in convention. One became vice president, one chief Justice of the United States supreme court and ten were chosen United States senators.

The total vote for president in New York state in 1904 was 1,617,770. This is a larger number than Pierce received for the presidency in 1852 and more than the total vote for all candidates in 1836, the year of Van Buren's election. It is ten times greater than the vote for Andrew Jackson in 1824. It is nearly as great as the vote in the entire nation that elected Lincoln in 1860.

Heroism.

Ruby wine is drunk by knaves,
Sugar spends to fatten slaves,
Rose and vine-leaf deck buffoons;
Thunder-clouds are Jove's festoons,
Dropping oft in wreaths of dread
Lightning-knotted round his head.
The hero is not fed on sweets;
Daily his own heart he eats;
Chambers of the great are jails,
And head winds right for royal sails.

The Course of Love.

There was a lass in our town,
Shur, tight her lovely eyes,
And jumped into a bramble bush,*
And when, to her surprise,
She saw what she was up against,
She merely cried: "Oh, bother!"
And shut her lovely eyes once more,
And jumped into another.

HOW SHOP GIRLS LIVE

That Means 50 Cents a Day to Spend for Food.

New York, Nov. 9.—It was on a late subway train and the car was nearly empty. Among the passengers were a little party of shop girls bound for the Bronx.

"But a girl can't live on 50 cents a day for food—not in New York," the girl with the red hat was saying.

"But I say she can," rejoined the one with the green pompon, "and I've done it."

"For how long?" asked the red hat, skeptically.

"Well, for one whole year."

"Oh, how did you do it? Please tell us how you managed," cried the others.

"And may I hear, too?" begged a timid little stranger from the other side of the car.

"Well, it is a great deal simpler if you like doll mattresses," began the green pompon.

"Doll mattresses?" the timid little stranger.

"Oh, I know!" exclaimed one of the other girls. "She means those little excelsior biscuits."

"They're very filling," continued the first speaker, "and they are only 11 cents a box. Then there is a kind of coffee you can get for 18 cents a pound. Don't interrupt. I didn't guarantee Java and Mocha on 50 cents a day.

"If you drink two cups a day it lasts a week. One pound of sugar, at 6 cents, lasts a week, and so does a can of condensed milk for 10 cents. Count 15 cents a week for bread—of course, you can toast it—and 14 cents for half a pound of butter and 15 cents a week for fruit, and it will average about 11 cents a day for breakfast.

"For lunch you could have a couple of good sandwiches and tea or cocoa, which is better, for about 14 cents. You can get a good slice of cooked meat at the delicatessen store for 5 cents.

"That leaves you 25 cents for dinner, and it has to be a good hot one if you are going to live a year on 50 cents a day. You've got to cut out chocolate eclairs and all the sweet things that taste good, and you've got to be so firm about it that you hate yourself. You have to think up all the things that make good bone and muscle. Spinach is fine.

"You will have to invest a little money to start with at the 5 and 10-cent store for dishes and get a little burner that fastens on the gas jet, only don't let the landlady find it out. If she does you'll have to get an alcohol lamp and eat a 20-cent dinner to average it up on account of the alcohol.

"Room rent—for half a room, of course—can be had for $1.50, if you don't mind stairs or neighborhood. And, of course, you can't mind, at least until your salary is raised. Then car fare is at least 80 cents a week.

"And laundry—well, you'll have to do it yourself in the bathtub. But you will have to keep the landlady from finding out, too, and that is hard to do if you dry your handkerchiefs on the window pane and the mirror.

"That makes $5.80 a week, not counting soap and postage stamps."

"Or clothes," said the girl with the red hat.

"And there are thousands and thousands of shop girls in New York who get only $6 a week," said one girl.

The timid little stranger got up and took her old place again across the car.

"I only get $5 a week," she said.

PAINTS SINS OF SOCIETY

London's Smart Set Eager to See Its Frailties Pictured.

Nobleman Depicts Upon Canvas Subjects Suggested by Vaughan.

London, Nov. 9.—Baron Arpad de Paszthory, who has just painted one striking picture of Smart Set sin, and who is going to paint several more at the suggestion of society's pulpit castigator, Father Bernard Vaughan, says he now expects to finish the complete series some time before Christmas. This will consist of six representations of aristocratic depravity, and judging by their titles and the single example of the baron's power of depicting fashionable frailty, which is now on exhibition here, the comple cycle cannot fail to make a small sensation.

Meanwhile Baron de Paszthory's original Smart Set picture, "The Tempter," in his beautiful golden haired wife. She is German and was formerly an opera singer. She was quite a stage favorite in Vienna, when the baron met her. He was a young painter of distinguished Hungarian ancestry, studying in the Austrian capital. It was love at first sight, but his marriage with an actress angered the baron's family and hurt him socially. So he and his bride tried their luck in that promised land, America.

There the painter had a fair share of success, but he soon realized that he needed the stamp of society before he could make a fortune painting portraits for millionaires of New York, Chicago, Pittsburg and elsewhere. His best known picture in the United States is "The Water Nymphs." He painted Melba's portrait and on her advice went to Australia. There he was advised to make London his Mecca.

The baron and his wife reached London in time to notice the agitation in society over the lashings of Father Vaughan. They attended the remainder of the sermons. The baron was inspired. He sought Father Vaughan and then he began his first picture.

The baron says that "The Tempter," which is life size, was directly inspired by the following paragraph in one of Father Vaughan's sermons.

"The doctor and the family lawyer can tell you better than I can the number of innocent and beautiful English girls who have been ruined at the card table—ruined and brought to the verge of the grave. And a girl with this curse on her—what can she do? She must pay her debts. Does she ask her mother or father? No; she is too ashamed. She runs from one to another—she knows not whither—until at last some devil in human form, who had laid the trap, makes his bargain. He gives her money, and the debt is paid; but the poor girl feels she can never be herself again. And this is going on every day."

"The Tempter" tells the story with vivid force. It is a strong, marvelously lifelike painting, and is creating even more of a sensation than did the Hon. John Collier's famous Academy picture of "The Cheat," nor it is not merely the representation of an incident, but of a hideous tragedy.

Leaning her arms on a deserted bridge table sits a woman, terror and utter despair in her face. She is staring, frozen with horror, entranced at the awful revealing of her future. Cards sprawl at her elbow. Behind her, with the light from a tall piano lamp streaming on his face, is a middle-aged man. His eyes gloat on the woman. The smile of possession is already curving his lips. In the far background are men and women, laughing and chatting, totally unconcerned at the tragedy of a woman's soul being enacted a few feet away.

Father Vaughan is delighted with the picture. "It will do a great deal of good," he said. "It is because of the sense that men fall and only through the senses can they be appealed to."

Father Vaughan has drawn up on paper suggestions for the series of pictures which the baron is now painting. Here they are:

"The Debutante"—fresh, innocent and lovely, before she has been caught in the whirlpool of so-called "smart society."

"The World"—The girl at the end of the season—tired and jaded with the weariness and uselessness of an idle, butterfly flutter through life.

"The Flesh"—Her marriage for money to a man she does not love.

"The Devil"—Events leading to the separation of husband and wife.

"The Deserted Child"—Pathetic human study.

"Death"—Two pictures—one the suicide of the poor little butterfly and the other the deathbed of the man with no friend near him.

When the pictures are all finished—and the baron is working furiously at them—society will flock to see themselves depicted a la Father Bernard Vaughan.

The baron has already gained success in London, for now everybody wants him to paint their portraits. He may now have other models for his society sinners besides his beautiful wife.

WEST INDIAN BUG IS FOUND IN COLORADO.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 9.—Winging a blundering flight afar from the tropical shelter of its native West Indian coconut palm, a rhinoceros beetle, one of the rarest of insects, found a friend haven in a snowbank at Corona one day last week. There it was found by two Denver young women, Mrs. Bernice Fenn of No. 1114 Sixteenth street, and Miss Pearl B. Lee, No. 825 Thirteenth street, just as it was dying, chilled by the harsh cold of the north.

The head of the insect is a replica in miniature of that of its namesake, the rhinoceros. Two horny projections like the elongated ears of this beast arise from either side of the beetle's head, while just in the middle of the head, corresponding to the horny of the rhino, rises a sharp, horny projection.

The two young women discovered the insect at the edge of a snowbank back of the station of Corona last Sunday. Its weird appearance alarmed them, but after watching it for a time they picked it up. The insect was alive but died within a few moments.

The strange find was taken to Curator Ferrill at the capitol building, who, though he has many strange-looking bugs in his collection, had never met with one quite like the rhinoceros beetle of the West Indies, a very rare insect indeed and one that is unknown outside the island. How it came to be on the icy heights of Corona is a mystery.

The insect will probably be added to the collection at the capitol.

SIMPLON TUNNEL IN DANGER OF COLLAPSE.

Geneva, Nov. 9.—The great Simplon tunnel, twelve miles long, which was only completed two months ago, is already in danger of collapse.

Part of the roof of the secondary tunnel has fallen in under the pressure of a 6,000-foot mountain above it and the principal tunnel is endangered. It is feared that a landslide may occur in the second tunnel, which would cause the side of the principal tunnel to cave in.

Other drawbacks to the success of the undertaking are the existence of boiling springs with unbearable heat, and the fact that the 15-inch steel rafters were used to support the vaulting, instead of 20-inch rafters, which are now considered necessary.

If these difficulties are not overcome, fifteen years of labor and millions of dollars will have been wasted in the attempt to shorten the railroad journey between France and Italy.

TITLED WOMAN BUYS AND RUNS A RANCH.

Ottawa, Nov. 9.—A titled young lady, the daughter of an English nobleman, shipping horses upon a trans-Atlantic steamer, and herself personally superintending the work, was an interesting spectacle such as was never before witnessed in this country. This occurred a few days ago, when the steamship Montcalm of the Canadian Pacific line sailed from Montreal for England.

The young lady, Lady Ernestine Hunt, eldest daughter of the marquis of Allesbury, has started a ranch at Calgary, in the new province of Alberta, on a stretch of land between 30,000 and 40,000 acres in extent. She arrived at Ottawa dressed in real cowboy fashion. She is a brunette and about 35 years of age. She wore a sombrero hat, a black waist, khaki-colored skirt reaching to the knees, leather leggins and hoes, and had her hair cut short.

Lady Ernestine was proud of the fact that she was to be the woman to take live stock across the Atlantic by herself, and paid tribute to the cattlemen, whom she believed to be a much maligned class. During the course of an interview she gave a brief sketch of her romantic life.

"Since I was 20 years old," she said, "I have been fighting my way through the world. As long as I can remember I have had a roving disposition, and have been exceptionally fond of two things—horses and the sea. Before I was 24 years of age I had been round the Horn, and had also been on the night staff of nurses at Krugersdorp during the time of the Jameson raid.

"A few months after this I made the trip to Australia and returned in a sailing vessel. I then went to Liverpool, where I applied for a master's certificate but because I was a woman I was refused permission to take the examination. I next went to Ireland, where I remained for two years, and then sailed with my husband, who was a mate in the merchant service, to Nagasaki.

"We cruised in Japanese waters for a period of five months and visited many places never before trodden by Europeans. After returning home I was again a nurse at Liverpool and at the Dudley Guest hospital, Worcestershire.

"For the last three or four years I have been living in Ireland, training a few steeplechasers. Four months ago I came to Canada, with the vague idea of starting a ranch. I have done so, but, of course, the whole affair is in its infancy, an I hope that I will be able soon to arrange matters on a much bigger scale."

To Get More Strength from Your Food.

WHEN the Bowels are filled with undigested food we may be a great deal worse off than if we were half starved.

Because food that stays too long in the Bowels decays there, just as if it stayed too long in the open air.

Well, when food decays in the Bowels, through delayed and overdue action, what happens?

The millions of little Suction Pumps that line the Bowels and Intestines then draw Poison from the decayed Food, instead of the Nourishment they were intended to draw.

This Poison gets into the blood and, in time, spreads all over the body, unless the Cause of Constipation is promptly removed.

That cause of Constipation is Weak, or Lazy Bowel Muscles.

When your Bowel-Muscles grow flabby they need Exercise to strengthen them, not "Physic" to pamper them.

Its name is "CASCARETS," and its price is Ten Cents a box.

So, if you want the same natural action that a six mile walk in the country would give you, (without the weariness) take one Cascaret at a time, with intervals between, till you reach the exact condition you desire.

One Cascaret at a time will properly cleanse a foul Breath, or Coated Tongue.

Don't fail to carry the Vest Pocket Cascaret Box with you constantly.

All Druggists sell them—over ten million boxes a year.

Be very careful to get the genuine, made only by the Sterling Remedy Company and never sold in bulk. Every tablet stamped "CCC." 741

CROKER IS AT HEAD OF WINNING OWNERS.

Dublin, Nov. 9.—The end of the Irish flat-racing season sees Richard Croker heading the list of winning owners, both in the number of races won and the amount of winnings. Twenty-six victories are placed to the credit of Mr. Croker's stable, and these add in stakes just under $200,000.

Mr. Croker's success on the Irish turf is approved by all classes of Irishmen. In the two years Mr. Croker has been at Sandy Ford he has won a warm place in the affections of the Irish people, and whenever one of his horses passes under the wire first there are cheers and applause for the owner.

After carefully looking over the available talent in Ireland, Mr. Croker has now secured a successor to Parkinson, his late trainer, with whom he could not agree. The new trainer has adopted the racing name of "Mr. Rock," which to racegoers is an idle attempt to conceal the identity of Dr. McCabe, a prominent turfman and a well-known owner of race horses.

Mr. Rock has a five-years' agreement with Mr. Croker. Tim Maguire was Mr. Croker's first choice, but Mr. Maguire's insistence that every point of his agreement should be reduced to writing caused the negotiations to fall through.

Mr. Croker is now turning his attention to horse breeding in a serious fashion. He proposes to greatly extend his efforts in this direction, and is now trying to buy the well known Killaleigh, sire of Killeagh, and other successful thoroughbreds. The price asked is $20,500, but it is thought certain that Mr. Croker will secure the horse for about $10,000. Killaleigh is to replace Lesterbin, the valuable sire that perished some months ago.

RUSSIANS DRIVE TRAIN OVER MAN TIED TO RAIL.

Copenhagen, Nov. 9.—It is reported from Riga that the revolutionary parties' blood-rule continues, and that assaults and assassinations in the streets are general. The train for Moscow was delayed the other day en route. A masked man was tied onto the rails and the train ran over him and killed him. The murderers are unknown. The ladies left the train because of the occurrence. A car was passing along Alexander street in Riga when a shell on the road was luckily discovered by an engineer, who removed it in time to prevent an explosion.

BODIES LIE UNBURIED; NATAL FACES FAMINE.

Durban, Nov. 9.—A missionary who has traveled through the greater part of the territory covered by the rebellion, reports that the bodies of the natives slain in the operations, are still unburied, in accordance with the gruesome and offensive native superstition against touching the dead.

The regions visited are described as desolate. The chief corps have gone, and food is so scarce that some of the people are gathering edible leaves. The gardens cannot yield any supplies for five months. Many of the men and boys, who, but for the rebellion, would by earning a subsistence for their families, have been killed or imprisoned.

Happiness in a Tablet.

Perfect Health for Every One Procured at Small Cost.

How many times have you sat down at your meals absolutely disgusted at the thought or sight of anything to eat?

How many times have you sat down at your meals without the trace of an appetite, but just because it was "time to eat?"

How many times have you felt a gnawing, unsatisfied "still-hungry" feeling in your stomach, even after you were through eating?

How many times have you felt that "lump of lead" on your stomach after eating, whether your meal was well cooked or not?

And how many times have you suffered a whole lot of other things from you stomach that you couldn't explain, but that made you grouchy, miserable, out-o'-sorts and generally sour on everybody and everything?

It is safe to say you couldn't tell You don't keep track of those things, of course, but you know you've suffered them. You probably have had them for so long that they've become a habit with you, and you have come to the conclusion that your fate is to suffer them indefinitely and perhaps forever.

And so men, much like horses, standing unhitched at the hitching post, think they're tied, and so their habit makes them prisoners.

But no one need have dyspepsia, nor indigestion, nor loss of appetite, brash, irritation, burning sensations, heartburn, nausea, eructations, bad memory, loss of vim and vigor and the happiness that comes from a healthy stomach and a good appetite if he will only leave his old hitching post and tie himself to a new one, one that will hold him to health, joy, ambition and a clear mind and memory, and the sunshine that goes with them.

That indeed is Heaven. And you can get it in a little tablet already prepared for the purpose, in Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, those little cherubs of health and delight found in thousands of homes today. Listen—one ingredient of one of these precious little tablets will digest for you 3,000 grains of food.

This relieves your stomach of the work of digesting until your stomach can get strong and healthy again. Your stomach has been overworked, and abused. It's fagged out. It needs a rest.

Let Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do the work of your stomach. You will be surprised how fine you'll feel after eating, and how lusciously good everything will taste to you. That's because the Tablets are thoroughly digesting the food which your stomach couldn't digest before.

Have these tablets on your dining table, and take one or two after every meal without fail. Then you will realize as never before that the human stomach decides for every man whether he will go forward or backward—and besides, you'll forget you ever had a stomach to torment you.

AMERICAN NEWS NOTES.

Edward R. Campbell of Streeter, Ill., and Frank Moran of Shannon City, Iowa, were found dead in bed in a hotel in Des Moines, Iowa yesterday morning, the room filled with gas. They had left a jet open by mistake.

Viscount Aoki, Japanese ambassador, called at the state department yesterday and had a conference with Secretary Root. He said there was no change in the San Francisco trouble.

In response to a petition, John F. Stevens, chief engineer of the Panama canal, granted today a day off to the British canal and railroad employes to let them celebrate the birthday of King Edward.

Official returns from the Porto Rico election give Tulio Larringa, Unionist candidate for commissioner to the United States congress, a majority of 4,000 votes. The Federation of Labor polled approximately 1,500 votes.

T. A. Caldwell, United States secret service agent, was found dead beside the railroad track at Algodones, N. M., yesterday with his skull crushed and one arm broken.

The Ute Indians, who have been causing trouble in Wyoming and Montana, are on their way to Fort Meade overland, in charge of eight troops of cavalry, and are expected to arrive there about Wednesday next.

The suits instituted by the federal government to recover thousands of acres of coal lands now held by the Utah Fuel and the Pleasant Valley Coal companies, Gould corporations, came up yesterday before Judge John A. Marshall, in the United States district court at Salt Lake City.

Robert L. Henry, chairman of the Democratic caucus of congress, has issued a bill for a meeting of the Democratic members in the house of representatives Dec. 1, to fill vacancies on committees and transact other business.

Growing dissatisfaction among Cuban Liberals because of lack of success of their efforts to induce Governor Magoon to dismiss Moderates from important posts crystallized last night in a secret meeting of the Liberal committee on appointments at which a committee was named to protest to Governor Magoon.

The Panama national assembly has unanimously approved a bill prohibiting gambling in the republic.

A movement designed "to maintain a profitable price for cotton against the conspiracies of Wall street" was inaugurated at Atlanta, Ga., last night at a meeting of the executive committee of the Southern Cotton association.

James O'Donnell, a Milwaukee contractor, who went to Bainbridge, Ga., to bid on a projected sewerage system, died suddenly of heart failure while at supper there last night.

It is probable that the Democrats will have 100 delegates in the Oklahoma constitutional convention which will convene Tuesday, Nov. 20.

COUNTERFEIT BILLS

Made in Cleveland Cause Trouble for an Austrian.

Cleveland, Nov. 9.—Federal authorities last week received word from the town of Clill, Austria, that a man named Martin Gren had been arrested for attempting to pass counterfeit money made in Cleveland.

Secret Service Operative P. C. Dick at once commenced making an investigation locally and discovered that the money was part of a big batch made by Joseph Drugovitch and his companions, all of whom are now serving terms in the penitentiary at Columbus.

Gren had succeeded, it is said, in passing four of the 20-kronan notes, each one of which is worth $4.10, and said to be an excellent counterfeit of the real bills. When the man was searched, thirty more notes were found in his clothing, and seventy were unearthed in a trunk at his lodgings, making in all 105, the officials claim. Letters, with Cleveland addresses were also found.

Dick found that the addresses were those of relatives in this city. Gren is said to have claimed that he secured the notes from the relatives, but this the latter deny. Gren has never been in this country, but secured the counterfeit money from persons who went from this city to Austria with it.

The relatives in Cleveland denied to Dick that they had ever handled any or the counterfeit money. Dick has produced information as to the parties who are said to have sent the notes to Austria. More arrests are expected in a short time.

Great excitement was created among the Austrians of Cleveland, two years ago, when a big counterfeiting scheme was exposed by secret service officers, headed by Dick. Many dies and plates were captured and a quantity of money confiscated. Two or three men were sent to prison as a result. About a month ago additional plates were found in a house in which one of the counterfeiters lived before being sentenced to jail.

S.S.S. CURES CATARRH

Catarrh cannot be washed away with sprays, inhalations and such treatment, nor can it be smoked out with medicated tobacco, cigarettes, etc. When you attempt to cure Catarrh with such things you are wasting time and allowing the impurities and poisons in the blood, which produce the disease, to get so firmly rooted as to become not only a disgusting trouble, but a very dangerous one. The annoying symptoms of ringing noises in the ears, "hawking and spitting," headaches, mucus dropping back into the throat, impairment to the senses of taste and smell, and a feeling of general debility, prove that there is a deep-seated cause for Catarrh. This cause is a polluted and unhealthy condition of the blood, and the disease cannot be cured until this is removed. The only way to get rid of Catarrh permanently is to purify the blood, and S. S. S. is the ideal remedy for this purpose. It soon clears the system of all impurities, purges the blood of all catarrhal matter and poisons, and effectually checks the progress of this disgusting and far-reaching disease. S. S. S. puts the blood in perfect order, and as this pure, healthy blood goes to every nook and corner of the body Catarrh is permanently cured. Lard prices have established a new high mark for themselves this fall.

The price has soared as high as 10¾ cents, whereas in former years 9 cents was thought a high price for lard, and the usual run of prices was between 7 and 8 cents.

The increased cost of lard is attributed partly to the new law, which forbids the packing houses using any beef tallow in the lard. The law prescribes that the lard shall be absolutely pure and the inspectors are said to be enforcing this provision.

The packers say that the beef tallow did not make the lard any less pure, and that it tended to cheapen the cost of it.

Whatever the cause may be, the fact remains that lard prices are moving on a higher level than they did six months or a year ago, and the price appears destined to move between 10 and 11 cents, instead of between 7 and 8 cents or even 8 and 9 cents.

Another condition which may tend to stiffen the price of lard at the present time, is the high price of pork.

The market has settled down to a winter basis as far as fresh fruit is concerned, and there will be little change in conditions until strawberries begin to come in next spring.

Apples, oranges, bananas, barrel pears, Tokay and Malaga grapes, lemons, figs and dates about comprise the list.

The last of the Concord grapes were cleaned up this week and no more will be received this year. The only grapes left on the market are the Tokays and Malagas.

The apple situation remains unchanged. The foreign demand is heavy, and the dealers do not expect any lower prices than now exist. It is only a question of time, they say, until the prices advance, and they are advising their customers to buy their winter supplies now where it is possible to do so.

The Florida oranges are now coming in quite freely, and they are of good quality.

The banana market is firmer, and the price ranges from $2 to $2.25 per bunch.

Lemon prices have been declining with the end of the hot weather and the arrival of the new foreign crop. They are now quoted at about $7 per case.

Cranberries still continue their erratic course upward, and are now selling at $9 per barrel, with prospects of still higher prices before Thanksgiving.

York state Keifer pears are on the marketand are selling at $3.50 per barrel.

Little or no change is reported in the vegetable market during the week. Like the fruits, vegetables are now getting down to a winter basis, and the staple varieties are practically the only ones left.

Prices are about the same as last week. Potatoes are a trifle lower, much to the satisfaction of the average housewife who feared that the winter was to see some high prices for the tubers.

Live poultry continues to be very plentiful and the prices are very reasonable.

• • •

Fresh fish have been out of the market during the week, owing to the fact that it is the closed season for fishing on Lake Superior. Some trout and Lake Superior whitefish have been offered for sale, but they are frozen stock.

The market is being supplied at the present time by importations from Winnipeg and the coast.

ASKS $20,000 BALM FROM RICH EASTERNER.

Pittsburg, Nov. 9.—Charles H. Langhurst, an engineer on the Pittsburg & Lake Erie railroad, running between here and Cleveland, Ohio, entered suit for $20,000 damages against William A. Weller, one of the wealthy men of McKees Rocks.

It is alleged by Langhurst that Weller taking advantage of his numerous trips to Cleveland on his locomotive, made love to Mrs. Langhurst, who had lately left her husband's home.

The husband further alleges that Weller gave Mrs. Langhurst many costly presents to win her affections, presents which he, as an engineer, could not afford to give his wife.

Other charges of a nature more serious are made, and a capias is asked for the arrest of the defendant.

Weller, who is prominent socially as well as financially, declares the whole thing is a case of blackmail.

CASES OF INTEREST

SEPARATION OF WHITE AND COLORED PASSENGERS.—Considerable light is thrown upon the constitutional requirement as to legislation relative to the separation of the races in public conveyances by three cases recently decided in Florida. In the first case (State v. Patterson, 39 Southern Reporter, 398) the court holds that a statute requiring street car companies to provide separate compartment for the races, and prohibiting persons of either race from occupying the compartment set apart for the other race, but providing that the act shall not apply to colored nurses having the care of white children or sick white persons, is void for discrimination. In the subsequent cases of Crooms v. Schad, 40 Southern Reporter, 497, and Patterson v. Taylor, 40 Southern Reporter, 493, two city ordinances containing much the same provision, one of which, however, excepted all nurses from its provision, while the other contained no exception whatever, were upheld.

MUNICIPAL CONSTRUCTION OF AUDITORIUM—In view of the apparently growing inclination of cities to give municipal aid to the erection of structures designed for auditorium purposes, we call attention to the recent holding of the supreme court of Colorado in the city and county of Denver v. Hallett, 83 Pacific Reporter, 1066. The court there declares that Colorado constitution, 120, granting home rule to the city of Denver, and providing that the people in the city shall always have the exclusive power of making, altering, revising, or amending their charter, bestowed upon the people all the power possessed by the legislature, so that they were authorized to provide by charter for the erection of an auditorium, to purchase a sit therefor, and to issue bonds to discharge the indebtedness arising from its construction.

EASEMENT IN PARTY-WALL.—A decision which conforms to the principles which govern the holdings concerning party-walls, although the facts are a trifle peculiar, is contained in Jackson v. Bruns, 106 Northwestern Reporter, 1. In this case it is held that the owner of the second story of a building has no equitable right to compel the owner of the first story to keep the foundation and walls of the first story in repair for the purpose of furnishing continuing support to the second story in the absence of any express or implied contract on the part of the owner of the first floor to do so.

APPLICATION OF GAME LAWS.—A very far reaching holding concerning the effect and application of the game laws is contained in People ex rel. Hill v. Hesterberger, 76 Northeastern Reporter, 1032, where it is in effect held that New York laws, prohibiting the possession of certain game birds during the closed season, apply to game birds which are not of the same variety as those known by the same name in New York, and which were in fact imported from foreign countries.

PRIMARY ELECTION STATUTES.—Various provisions of the Illinois primary election law are declared to be unconstitutional in People v. Board of Commissioners of Chicago, 77 Northeastern Reporter, 321. A provision that in a senatorial district, consisting of two counties, not more than two persons of the same political party, that is, one candidate for senator and one for representative, shall be nominated from any one county, is held in conflict with the constitutional provision merely requiring that senators and representatives shall be residents of the district. Other provisions to the effect that in Cook county no party may hold a primary election, unless it cast 20 per cent of the vote at the last election for president, while outside that county a party which cast 10 per cent may hold a primary election, and that outside of Cook county a person may vote at the primaries by stating his present party affiliations, while in Cook county he cannot so vote if he has voted at the primary election of another party withing two years, are declared to be void because special legislation and interfering with the freedom of voters.

SALE OF PLEDGED STOCK—Content v. Banner, 76 Northeastern Reporter, 913, the New York Court of Appeals, reversing both the trial court and the appelate division, holds that, where a stockbroker advances all the money and buys securities for a customer, a written notice to the customer to take up the securities so bought or supply margins for carrying them, and stating that unless he does so before a certain date the broker will sell the stock for his account and hold him responsible for the amount, is defective, where it contains no statement as to the time or place of sale, and that, in the absence of any agreement dispensing with notice, a sale on the "curb" constitutes a conversion though the customer has failed to respond on the date stated.

CONSTRUCTION OF ANTI-TRUST STATUTE—The anti-trust statute of Texas, requiring every railroad to furnish reasonable and equal facilities for all corporations engaged in the express business, and defining a trust as a combination of capital, skill, or acts of two or more persons to create or carry out restrictions in the free pursuit of any business, is construed in State v. M., K. & T. Ry Co. of Texas, 91 Southwestern Reporter, 214, as prohibiting a contract between a railroad company and an express company whereby the latter was given exclusive privileges, and the farmer bound itself not to contract with others to do an express business on the road, and agreed that in case privileges should be accorded others by legislation or judicial proceedings the express company in question should have credit for the sums paid by other companies.

RIGHT OF MURDERER TO INHERIt FROM VICTIM—The Supreme Court of Kansas declares in McAllister v. Fair, 84 Pacific Reporter, 112, that under a statute of Kansas, providing in clear language that a husband shall inherit from his deceased wife, and making no exception to the rule, the court is not justified in reading into the statute a clause disinheriting a husband because he feloniously killed his intestate wife for the purpose of acquiring her property.

REGULATION OF BILL-BOARDS—The popular movement looking towards the abolition, or at least regulation of bill-boards, meets with some local discouragement in the case of City of Passaic v. Paterson Bill-Posting, Advertising & Sign Painting Co., 62 Atlantic Reporter, where an ordinance requiring that sign-boards shall be constructed not less than ten feet from the street line, and that no sign or bill-board shall be at any point more than eight feet above the surface of the ground, is held to be a regulation not reasonably necessary for the public safety, and not justified as an exercise of the police power.

VAGRANCY AS CAUSE FOR DIVORCE—The St. Louis Court of Appeals delivers a very comforting decision in Gallemore v. Gallemore, 91 Southwestern Reporter, 406. A provision of the Missouri statutes declaring that every able bodied man who shall neglect or refuse to support his family shall be deemed a vagrant, and that when the husband shall be guilty of such conduct as to constitute him a vagrant the wife shall be entitled to a divorce, is construed, and it is held where a physician of good habits endeavored to establish a practice, maintained an office where he waited for patients, and attended to such calls as he had, contributing his entire income from his practice to the support of his wife and himself, he was not a vagrant within the meaning of the statute, though he did not succeed in earning enough to support his wife and himself, and she was compelled to contribute to their support from her separate means.

EXAMINATION OF NON-RESIDENT CORPORATE OFFICERS—The provision of the Missouri statutes that when the attorney general, in proceedings against a corporation under the anti-trust law, files a statement giving the names of the non-resident officers of the corporation, whose testimony he desires, the court shall issue a notice to the attorney of record for the corporation notifying him that the testimony of the persons named is desired, and requiring him to have them present at the time and place fixed for their examination, is upheld in State v. Standard Oil company of Indiana, 91 Southwestern Reporter, 1062, and it is also maintained that foreign corporations are to be regarded as being bound by the provisions of the statute on the principle that, by coming into the state to do business pursuant to the terms prescribed by the legislature, a contract requiring them to conform to the existing laws is to be implied.

CONTEMPT—LABOR ORGANIZATION—PUNISHMENT OF INDIVIDUAL MEMBERS.—The opinion of the superior court of Pennsylvania in Patterson v. Wyoming Valley District Counsel is of unusual importance. The court holds that where the decree of a court enjoining a labor organization and its members from maintaining a boycott has been disobeyed, the officers may be compelled to produce the books and records in contempt proceedings, and that such proceedings are civil in their nature, and not criminal, within the meaning of the federal and state constitutions. The court further holds that the individual members of an unincorporated labor organization are in much the same position as the members of a business partnership, and may be punished for a contempt committed by the organization.

EVIDENCE OF EXPERIMENTS.—An exceedingly interesting holding on the question of the admissibility of evidence of experiments is contained in Tackman v. Brotherhood of American Yeomen, 106 Northwestern Reporter, 350. The action was on a mutual benefit certificate, and the association defended on the ground that insured had committed suicide. The only facts shown were that deceased went to his barn to get his team, and in about an hour was found dead, suspended by the neck from a tie strap attached to a bridle hanging on a peg where deceased usually hung his harness. At the trial a witness testified that he had hung a bridle with a tie strap attached on the peg, throwing the tie strap over the peg in the usual manner, so as to leave it hanging down, and by a series of experiments found that, if he walked towards the bridle and stumbled and fell with his head in a loop formed by the strap, it was drawn around his neck in such a way that it caught or drew over itself, and would have choked him had he not regained his balance. The witness was a man of about the same weight and height as deceased, and a number of experiments showed that the result mentioned ensued about three times out of four. This evidence was held to be admissible as throwing light upon the manner in which the death might have occurred.

CARRIERS—LOSS OF MSS.—MEASURE OF DAMAGES.—The interesting question arose in Southern Express Co. v. Owens, 41 Southern Reporter, 752, as to how damages were to be determined for the loss of a manuscript in the absence of evidence of a market value. The manuscript was a school book history on a subject on which there was no test-book, and the supreme court of Alabama determined that it was proper to permit the plaintiff to testify as to the amount of time he had spent in the preparation of the manuscript, and what he considered it worth, the court adding that where an article is so unusual in character that the market value cannot be determined, damages must be ascertained in some rational way.

TRADE-MARKS AND TRADE-NAMES.—The supreme court of Michigan in Warren Bros. v. Barber Asphalt Paving Co., 108 Northwestern Reporter, 652, holds that where a city calls for proposals for the construction of "Bitulithic" pavement, and requires the pavement to be made according to certain specifications, a company might be awarded the contract for the work, although another company has habitually used the word "bitulithic" as a name for the particular pavement made by them, and had had this trade-name registered, and also filed for record as a trade-name in the office of the secretary of the state of Michigan. The court says that the injunction must be denied because a trade-name does not give one the exclusive right to make or sell a given kind of goods, the trade-name being simply to point out the origin or ownership of the article to which it is affixed for the protection of the consumer, and that in cases where the rights to the use of a trade-name are invaded the wrong consists in the sale of goods of one manufacturer under the false representation that they are the goods of another.

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY

AUSTRALIAN PEST BEING TURNED TO GOOD ACCOUNT

Ottawa, Nov. 9.—According to the statements of R. J. Godfrey, an Australian, who passed through here on his way to Europe, having come by way of the Pacific coast, the rabbits, which so long have been the scourge of Australia, are now becoming a prolific source of revenue to the farmers there.

The rabbit, Mr. Godfrey states, has become a valuable commercial asset, and it has been estimated that this little animal brings fully $10,000,000 a year to the commonwealth. The rabbit industry, however, is yet in its infancy, and judging from the developments of the past two or three years, is capable of great expansion.

The rabbit carcasses are put in cold storage and shipped to England and points in the Far East. Thousands of crates of these carcasses are turned out every day. But this is only a part of the whole profit. There is good money in canned rabbits as well, but the greatest returns of all are derived from the skins.

Last year the value of the exported skins exceeded that of the carcasses. Every week about 150 tons of the skins are sold in Sydney and fully ten tons more in Melbourne. The price also of the skins has advanced 50 per cent since last January. So profitable, indeed, has become this part of the industry that many trappers are devoting themselves to it entirely, discarding the carcasses and retaining only the skins.

KANSAS MAY PASS LAW AGAINST WHISKERS.

Topeka, Kan., Nov. 9.—Before another year has passed the world may be treated to the amazing spectacle of Kansas making of war on whiskers.

The recent action of the Southern California Veterinary Association of Los Angeles in resolving that all dairy men should dispense with all hirsute adornments of the face has struck a responsive chord among the health experts of the Sunflower state.

They are talking of taking it up. If they do they may propose even more radical reforms than those suggested by their California brethern. The Kansans hold that no one wearing a beard should be allowed to assist in the preparation of any food. Whiskers are declared to be repositories of germs, some of which may slip into anything the bearded ones handle.

The smooth shave is the key to the sanitary condition and, if the wise doctors have their way, half of the men of Kansas will be made unrecognizable.

It will be a memorable day in Kansas history when all its citizens part with their beards. The air will be filled with flying hair, for their are more whiskers in Kansas than any other state can boast. Heretofore they have been sources of much pride to their owners. There are some beards that have not been clipped in fifty years and not even their owners suspect what they may harbor. But not even these venerable specimens will be permitted to escape the sanitary razor. No man may be prosecuted for his religious or political belief, but the Populists will not be allowed to escape under this protecting aegis of the constitution.

WEST END

GIRL TRIES A NEW GAME

Gains Entrance to Houses as Lodger, Then Robs Them.

Beware of Little Blonde Lady—Other West End News.

This world is full of maids
Of different kinds and shades,
Who seem to be perfection
When first they meet your eye!
But they're not upon the square,
So you may as well beware
Of the innocent young maiden
With the smile so shy.
—Chorus of popular song.

People with rooms to rent, in the West end and out of it, are loath to accept female roomers when the male variety can be secured, and so the way of the room-seeking female has been made very hard in the West end, but the singular conduct of one of them has made it much harder.

Yes, she had honest blue eyes and golden hair of the kind most approved by the writers of fiction. But her fingers were exceedingly light, and when she quitted her comfortable quarters at the residence of David Adams, 319 North Twenty-eighth avenue west, she took with her several rings and valuable trinkets belonging to Mrs. Adams, and several dresses, also the property of that lady. When she left she must have been carrying a large bundle.

All of this happened about a week ago, but great secrecy was maintained concerning the defection of the little blonde lady in order to better bring about her capture. But she has not been overtaken as yet, although the proper authorities and several amateur sleuths in the West end have been on the lookout for her for some time.

The police are convinced that it is the regular "game" of this young woman to secure lodgings at a likely-looking house, for the purpose of robbing it of whatever valuables she is able to get her hands on.

The same young woman has applied for rooms at several nice homes in the West end, but so far as is known the Adams residence is the only one wherein she succeeded in doing the Raffles act.

The Adams house is rather a large one, so Mr. and Mrs. Adams decided to rent one or two rooms. Mrs. Adams opened the door when the little blonde lady with the light fingers applied for a room. Mrs. Adams frankly admitted to the girl that she and her husband much preferred male roomers, for the reason that they are popularly supposed to be less bother.

But the girl pleaded eloquently for the room, saying she was willing to pay almost any price for it. She complained that many people held the same views as Mrs. Adams regarding women as roomers, and that she had been searching all over the West end for a suitable room. She declared that she must have one in that section, as she was employed nights in a restaurant not far from Superior street and Twentieth avenue west. She did not give the name of the restaurant, however.

Mrs. Adams was touched with the appeal in the girl's voice, and she asked her to call again, saying that she would confer with her husband about the matter. Mr. Adams was willing, and it was decided to allow the girl to have the room.

As she worked nights, she slept day times. Three days she remained and all was well. On the third day, however, the family was away, and when they returned, the young restaurant person was among the missing, together with jewelry and clothing.

So beware of the night-working young person with the eyes of blue, if you have rooms for rent.

COMPLAINS OF POLICEMAN.

West End Resident Accuses Mounted Officer of Bad Conduct.

Following is a communication addressed to the editor of The Herald:

"Speaking for all the people living in the vicinity of West Third street, who pay their taxes regularly and pay for the services of two full-grown mounted policemen to protect their property and their children, I want to say that when these men are cold-blooded and cowardly enough to ride into groups of little children, slashing them with their whips and swearing at them, it is time to call a halt.

"Instead of quietly telling them to disperse to their homes, this man I speak of curses and swears at them, calling them the vilest names he can think of. People are almost afraid to let their children out of their houses for fear that they will be trampled to death under the hoofs of this reckless policeman's horse.

"Several times people have seen him charge a group of little children, often chasing them for half a block, riding along the sidewalk. He has a right to keep the children off the street, but he has no right to curse at and abuse them the way that he does. It is time that a stop was put to this, as it has been going on ever since the last two police were in charge of the West end.

"All we ask is that this matter be looked into immediately, for you see the people of the West end want to be treated like human beings. When a private citizen has to say this it doesn't speak very well for the aldermen.

"A CITIZEN OF THE WEST END."

Interesting Debate.

An interesting literary meeting was held by the Young People's society of Bethany Lutheran church in the parlors of the church last evening. Rev. C. G. Olson, the new pastor, was present and he greeted the members of the organization.

A debate was held on the question, "Resolved, That the present age is better than the past." The affirmative side, led by Frank Swanstrom, won. The negative side was led by B. E. Wellberg.

The advisability to giving a course of lectures this winter was discussed, but action deferred.

LAND FEVER POSSESSES CROWD AT LAND OFFICE

Desire to Own Homestead Makes Settlers Face Privations.

Organization Formed for Mutual Protection of Those in Line.

It is land fever that has the dishevelled, weary crowd at the land office in its grasp.

It is that mad, unreasoning, desire to own a piece of land, to get possession of a part of the earth's surface, which drives settlers out into the wilderness ahead of the railroads and face all manner of hardships and privations.

The fever is not confined to any one class of people or to any one race nor is it peculiar to either sex. It is liable to show itself at any time in any man or woman.

Land speculators count upon it as an asset. It is this fever, however, that is filling the Canadian Northwest with settlers, and boosting the prices of wild wheat lands from $1 and $2 an acre to $20 and $25 an acre.

It is this fever that is stretching railroads far into the Great Peace River valley in what was once considered the frozen north.

It is this fever that is filling up the stretches of wild land in Northern Minnesota with prosperous settlers, and that is dotting the wilderness with little clearings, and settlers' cabins, and barns.

And it is the same old fever that has the eighty or ninety odd weary souls, waiting patiently in the upper corridors in the Federal building, in its grasp.

Outwardly placid and unconcerned, every person in that long corridor is inwardly consumed with a nervous fear that he will in some way be beaten out of his claim, and that he will fail to get possession of the land on which he has his mind set.

It is a restless crowd, and there is an undertone of excitement discernible. Each member of it is wondering what will happen when the doors of the land office are opened next Tuesday morning.

Will there be a mad rush in which people are trampled, and the weak pushed aside to give place to the strong?

Will the order be maintained and every person pass into the office in the order in which he took his place in line?

Order will be maintained if the police department can enforce it, for officers will be on hand to see that there is no mad rush.

During the long, wearisome wait there is no effort made to encroach upon the rights of others. The waiters have banded themselves into a little social organization of their own, each person feeling the need of protecting his own rights. They recognize the necessity of leaving their posts for a time, and any member of the crowd feels safe in walking down to Superior street for half an hour, to get his meal, knowing that his place will be waiting for him when he returns.

There are some women up there, probably a dozen of them, and they are on equal footing with the men. They have their places in the line, and those places are safe as long as the holders observe the laws of this little community.

The women sit erect, rocking placidly and reading, while the men, for the most part, lounge in their chairs or stride restlessly about the hall smoking.

They all smoke but the women, and smoke rapidly and almost continuously.

"We smoke too much," said one of the men, puffing a corn cob pipe. "It's the only thing we have to do, and it quiets your nerves."

It is too dark in the corridor to read, except directly under the lights and near the windows, and not a great deal of reading is done. The daily papers are consumed to the last advertisement, but few of the settlers having brought books. Some of the women are seen reading novels.

Cards are one form of recreation, and occasionally games of "smear" or "pinochle" or "solitaire" are seen in progress.

The desire to be as comfortable as possible is evident. Most of the settlers have brought in large, comfortable rocking chairs, on which thick blankets are spread. These form the beds for the weary waiters.

And there are from three to five more days of this waiting. Some of them have been there since Sunday, and most of them will have spent a week in the corridor before the land is finally opened for filing.

NORMAN COUNTY VOTES IN FAVOR OF DIVISION.

Mahnomen, Minn., Nov. 9.—At Tuesday's election the question of dividing Norman county was voted upon and carried by a majority of 500 or 600. The White Earth Indian reservation portion of Norman county, consisting of sixteen townships, will constitute the new county to be known as Mahnomen county, with the village of Mahnomen as the county seat.

HAS NOTHING TO GIVE.

St. Paul, Nov. 9.—With Governor Johnson's election comes a flood of demands for nice fat jobs under the administration, but the applicants are likely to be disappointed. There is nothing left to fill.

The jobs that the governor will have will not be available until March, when the capitol will pass into the control of the executive. Then there will be about fifty positions to fill unless the legislature decides otherwise.

ORDER TO EXAMINE ACCOUNTS, ETC.

State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis, —ss.

In Probate Court, Special Term, Nov. 7, 1906.

On reading and filing the petition of Herbert L. Pratt, administrator of the estate of Elizabeth P. Pratt (formerly and otherwise known as Elizabeth A. Pickering), deceased, representing, among other things, that he has fully administered said estate, and praying that a time and place be fixed for examining, settling and allowing the final account of his administration, and for the assignment of the residue of said estate to the parties entitled thereto by law, and for the discharge of the administrator and the sureties on his bond.

It is Ordered, That said account be examined, and petition heard by this Court on Monday, the 3rd day of December A. D. 1906, at ten o'clock A. M., at the Probate Office, in the Court House, in the City of Duluth, in said County.

And it is Further Ordered, That notice thereof be given to all persons interested, by publishing a copy of this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in The Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper printed and published at Duluth, in said County.

Dated at Duluth, Minn., the 7th day of November, A. D. 1906.

TWENTY-FIVE WORKMEN KILLED BY FALL OF NEW CALIFORNIA HOTEL.

Long Beach, Cal., Nov. 9.—Probably twenty-five were killed and a score injured by the collapse of the new Bixby hotel, being erected of reinforced concrete, on the beach, here. Weak construction is blamed.

The whole structure caved in without warning, from the basement to the fourth floor, leaving but one wing standing. Great confusion reigns and it is impossible to obtain an accurate report of the number of workmen buried.

The injured were taken from the ruins as fast as they could be extricated. Hundreds of persons flocked to the scene, and dozens were pressed into service to aid in the work of rescue. So far nearly a dozen injured, many of them believed to be fatally, have been removed from the wreckage. Others imprisoned beneath the concrete and steel girders are heard crying for help. As many as a dozen dead are still buried in the ruins.

CITY BRIEFS

The Gidding Store
Offers tomorrow exceptional values in long black tight-fitting or loose coats and also have on sale 100 stylish suits, formerly $19.50 to $37.50, at exactly half price.

Football Rooters, Attention.
The course of the ball on Marshall field will be followed in the Columbia Clothing company's window tomorrow afternoon. Direct bulletins will be received from Chicago telling the progress of the game between Minnesota and Chicago, and rooters are invited to watch the contest in front of this store.

Reservoir Nearly Done.
Good progress is being made on the West Duluth reservoir, and if the weather continues favorable the work will probably be completed by Nov. 20.

Break Not Serious.
The break in the water mains under the canal is not as serious as was at first expected, and the diver is expected to be able to repair the damage in a few days, so that water can be turned into the pipes.

Sues Railroad Company.
Joseph Ryan has brought suit against the Northern Pacific Railway company for damages amounting to about $300, for injuries claimed to have been sustained while unloading rails from a car owned by the company. The case is being heard before Judge Windom in the municipal court.

Saloon Man Arrested.
Thomas J. Madden was arraigned in the municipal court yesterday afternoon on the charge of selling liquor on Sunday. He entered a plea of not guilty, and the case was set over a week. The warrant was sworn out by Bert N. Wheeler and C. C. Bartholomew, and it is understood to be a step in the campaign which is to started to put the lid on the city.

Recruits for Marine Corps.
Peter Francis Kearney and Lawrence Larson were enlisted at the marine recruiting office yesterday. They will be sent to Mare Island, Cal., probably within a day or two.

Realty Company Incorporates.
The James Realty company, incorporated by J. J. McDonald, Carrie McDonald and Celia Halverson, has filed articles with the register of deeds. The company purposes to do a general real estate business, and its capital stock is $10,000.

New Grain Company Formed.
Articles of incorporation of the Grain Producers' Elevator company were filed with the register of deeds yesterday afternoon. The company is capitalized at $200,000 and the incorporators are Charles Barto, Superior; W. C. Fairbanks, Robert J. Gardiner, George W. Groves and J. M. Martin, Lakota, N. D.; Ferdinand Schindle, Dinsmore, N. D., and Edward F. Kenefic, Duluth. The new company will deal exclusively in grain and expects to have its offices open in Duluth after Nov. 10.

Young Wife Is Insane.
Mrs. Sophia Erickson, wife of a farmer at Buhl, was adjudged insane at an examination conducted before the probate court yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Erickson, who is a young woman, recently had typhoid fever, and the attack left her mind in a weakened condition. Although irrational on nearly every subject, it is believed that with proper care at the asylum she will recover.

Dies of Bloodpoisoning.
Frank P. Digle, the 26-year-old son of Edward Digle, trainmaster of the Omaha road at Itasca, Superior, died yesterday of blood-poisoning following the accidental gunshot wound he received Oct. 14 last. Digle's gun was discharged as he was removing it from the carriage, the charge entering his arm. He is survived by a widow, his parents, two sisters and a brother.

Overstocked.
Such is the condition Kenney & Anker find themselves in, and to reduce stock as quickly as possible, tomorrow commence a sacrifice sale of suits and overcoats.

PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Johnson returned this morning from their wedding trip, and will be at home in the West end.

LOST BOY FOUND.

Was Headed for Lumber Camps of Upper Michigan.

The 14-year-old son of A. O. Smith, who has been missing from home since Tuesday, has been found at Hines, Wis.

Mr. Smith received a letter today from Hines, stating that the boy had been located there and was being held until sent for. Mr. Smith will go after him this afternoon.

The boy stated that he was headed for the Michigan lumber woods, where he was planning to go to work in one of the camps.

There may be someone advertising for employment today who would be worth to you as much as any two of your present employees.

AFTER LAW BREAKERS

Trouble Ahead for Non-Residents Hunting on Resident Licenses.

Fullerton on Their Trail —Deputy Green Arrests Violater.

S. F. Fullerton, executive agent of the state game and fish commission, is in the city today on the trail of non-residents, who are hunting on a resident license, obtained by friends, under their own names, and later transferred. Deputy Warden Green of Duluth, according to Mr. Fullerton, yesterday caught one such violater at Hibbing, and took his resident license away from him, making him dig down in his pocket for $25 to pay for a non-resident license. He was from Kansas, and his name is withheld from publication, so the commission will have less trouble in bringing about the arrest of the man who got the license for him.

"We have known in past seasons that violations of this sort were taking place, but it is a very difficult matter to single out the offenders from the thousands of hunters," said Mr. Fullerton, this morning. "We have a clear case against the Kansas man, however, and against the man whose name was on the license which the offender was carrying. I am going to swear out a warrant of arrest for the resident who procured the license, and he will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. A heavy fine is provided for in cases of this kind, and hereafter every possible effort will be exerted to punish non-residents hunting on resident licenses.

"I am in Duluth to catch two or three men whose names have been given me as lawbreakers in this respect, and think I shall be able to land them, although I understand they have already left the city for north shore points. They are comparatively few violations of this game law reported in cases of this kind. Many of the settlers [illegible] privilege we do not pretend to prosecute. The game has had much to do with the settlement of Minnesota, and many a settler would not be able to live comfortably if he were not allowed to supply his table with meat from the forests.

"From all reports, there will be good hunting this year. The fact that the sale of game is now prohibited, has been doing much toward preserving the game supply. The logging camps are not shooting so much game out of season now as they formally did, either. One clause in the game laws that meets with my disapproval, but which must be enforced because it is in the laws, is that relating to the shipment of moose by non-residents. This clause reads that no nonresident shall be allowed to take moose beyond the borders of Minnesota, which means that even if he does kill a moose, after paying $25 for the privilege of doing so, he can take none of the meat home with him. That doesn't seem hardly right. It is allowable for him to take the head and horns, but the carcass must be left in the woods, or else given to friends."

LYNCH NEGRO IN FLORIDA.

Hundreds of Whites Take Black Brute From Jail and Kill Him.

Valdosta, Ga., Nov. 9.—A mob of several hundred white citizens from the northern part of Madison county, Fla., went to Madison, the county seat, last night, and after disarming the jailer, secured a negro prisoner, charged with assault on Miss Crambling, a young white woman, near Hanson, took him a short distance from the jail, hanged him to a tree and riddled his body with bullets. The negro had been identified and confessed.

Hears Packing Company.

Before the appraisers in the Wisconsin Central Railway company"s condemnation proceedings this morning on the questions of values to be paid for a right of way through the lands of the Elliott Packing company in Oneota was being heard. The right of way contemplates a strip 300 feet long and 12 feet wide through the packing company's sheep pasture between the street railway tracks and the bay front. The packing company claims if this ground is taken, it will be put to an expense of over $400 to build a plank roadway and bridge by which teams can reach the packing plant from Oneota street.

ANIMALS IN COURT.

Modern Instances in Which Brutes Were Sentenced and Punished.

A trial which carries us back to the Middle Ages has just been concluded at Delemont, in the canton of Soleure, Switzerland. Last January a house was broken into and robbed, and its owner, a rich man named Merger, murdered. Suspicion fell upon a certain Scherer and his son, who, on being arrested, while confessing to the crime, averred that Merger was first attacked by their boarhound, which pulled him down and killed him before they plunged their knives into his breathless body, says the London Tid Bits. This line of defense resulted in the arrest of the hound, which was placed in the dock beside its masters. The jury having found the three prisoners guilty, the judge sentenced the two Scherers to imprisonment for life and the dog to be shot.

At Oak Orchard, New York, Carlo, an 8-months-old St. Benard dog, was, a few months since, tried before Justice W. H. Bentley, in his office, for the murder of a flock of thirteen sheep. Carlo was defended by an able lawyer in the person of Frederick Hewer, while the prosecution was intrusted to J. C. Banstone, another legal luminary. The defense resolved itself into an attempt to prove an alibi, but, despite Mr. Hewer's passionate and telling oratory, the case was only too clear against the prisoner, who, after an impartial trial, was brought in guilty. No doubt the supreme penalty could have been inflicted, but Justice Bentley, having regard perhaps to the prisoner's youth, was inclined to mercy, and contented himself with passing a sentence of confinement for life.

In 1849, at the time when Hungary rose in revolt against the dominion of Austria, a dog belonging to a Magyar patriot chanced to bark at an Austrian officer. This harmless demonstration was construed into a treasonable act, and in default of the dog's owner, who could not be found, the animal itself was arrested and tried by courtmartial. Fortunately for the prisoner, it by chance displayed a marked liking for the presiding officer, on whom it fawned affectionately, and who, considering its present conduct a sufficient indication of regret for its erstwhile disloyalty, ordered its acquittal.

An amusing trial took place at Breslau in 1835, when a pig was haled before the magistrates charged with a savage assault upon the burgomaster, whom it had chased through the town and bitten in the leg. The lawyer, who was retained for the animal's defense, pleaded that his client had mistaken the civic magnate for one against whom it owed a grudge, and was ready to offer full apology for its misdeed. The presiding magistrate thereupon remarked with much solemnity that the prisoner's correct attitude had undoubtedly saved its life, and that a fine would meet the merits of the case. This was duly inflicted, and paid by the pig's owner, who was then permitted to lead the delinquent out of court.

Mhow, in Central India, was the scene of a courtmartial on an elephant accused of having killed its native keeper. With its neck encircled by a chain firmly attached to the collars of two other elephants, the culprit was lead between a double file, consisting of all the elephants of the station, to the place of trial. When it had been firmly secured, the brigade major and staff rode along the line, halting within a few yards of the prisoner. Then, having produced several sheets of foolscap, the brigade major proceeded to read the charges, with the evidence for and against the culprit, who was ultimately found guilty, and sentenced to forty-eight lashes with a chain and to drag about for three months a log attached to its leg. The first part of the sentence was carried out by a powerful elephant, who, wielding the chain with its trunk, belabored its fellow pachyderm most unmercifully.

Although it can scarcely be called recent, the case of a gardener's ass, which in 1768 was tried at Nimes on a charge of sacrilege, may be here cited. Its master having left it for a few minutes, the animal strolled into a church, the door of which was open, and seeing a basin of holy water, took a drink. Caught in the very act, it was called upon to answer for its iniquity. Counsel was appointed for its defense, but so irrefutable was the evidence that a verdict of "guilty" was a foregone conclusion. The ass was sentenced to be hanged and afterwards burnt, while the gardener was mulcted of the costs of the trial.

DANGERS OF BABY BIRD.

So many dangers beset young birds between the time they are hatched and the time when they are able to take care of themselves it is a wonder that so many of them reach maturity, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. That any of them do so is probably due to the fact that this period of helplessness is comparatively short, averaging, perhaps, three weeks with the majority of our perching birds.

During the period of incubation the nest is comparatively safe; as a rule it is inconspicuous, often carefully hidden, and the sitting bird is usually silent.

As soon as the tender chicks break through the shells of the eggs it becomes a difficult matter indeed for the parents to keep their secret from a hundred enemies, more pitiless than any storm, and whose eyes, ears and noses are ever ready to detect the presence of such dainty and available morsels as nestling birds.

The feeding of the little ones, and the cleaning of the nest, necessitates scores of visits daily on the part of the old birds, and, quietly as the work is usually done, so much passing back and forth to a given point is very often apt to attract undesirable attention. Then the young birds themselves seem very indiscreet, and frequently make so much ado when their parents arrive with food, that they seem to invite every enemy within sight or hearing.

The young of birds which build on the ground are, perhaps, the ones which are subject to the greatest number of dangers. Fortunate it is for them that they know no evil—that their inborn fear is latent and does not develop until such time as it shall profit them to be afraid, until they are able to fly and thus escape the dangers they are afraid of.

White footed mice in all probability destroy young birds occasionally, since they are fond of animal food. Personally I have never seen a gray squirrel injure a bird's nest, but I think there is enough good evidence forthcoming to convict him of at least occasionally eating both eggs and nestlings. Red squirrels and chipmunks have been caught in the act so often that they may be regarded as habitual criminals.

In proportion to their numbers, however, it is doubtful if squirrels do anywhere near the damage that is wrought by the domestic cat. The latter is larger, and requires much more food, and it is also more apt to kill merely for sport. The cat problem is a serious one with bird lovers, the more so because of the strong hold pussy has on thousands of good people.

There are thousands who imagine that tennis and lawn tennis are identical, says Fry's Magazine. In America tennis, the mother game, is always known as "court tennis," whereas lawn tennis is generally known as "tennis." The games are in many respects very different.

The court, which in lawn tennis is open, in tennis is closed at the back and sides by the walls, and almost invariably above by a roof. There is a considerable amount of play off the back and side walls. The balls are harder than lawn tennis balls, being, in fact, of the consistency of cricket balls. Hence the rackets are heavier and the gut is thicker.

Sealshipt Oysters

Pure Food.

The only absolutely fresh, wholesome, appetizing oysters ever sold in bulk. They are practically shell oysters as they are merely slipped from their own shells into a porcelain-lined case, which is SEALED, thus forming a shell on a large scale.

This case is imbedded in ice in a Patent Sealshipt Carrier, not opened till it reaches the dealer.

All the piquant "half-shell" flavor, the delicate tang given by the salt-water, the smooth firmness, the nourishing quality, the natural color, are fully retained. No preservatives are ever used.

CASE FOR CLEVERNESS.

Los Angeles Times: Herbert Knox Smith, the brilliant deputy of the bureau of corporations, said in Washington, apropos of certain illegal acts::

"These acts are illegal. But the question is, can the law get at the perpetrators?

"I am afraid it can't. For these men are poor, and momentary punishment is the only one the law can take. The law, I am afraid, is in the position of a certain housewife I heard about the other day.

"This housewife, a strict woman, said to a new maid:

"'I forgot to tell you, Maude, that if you break anything, I'll have to take it out of your wages.

"But Maude, whom two days had sickened of her berth, replied with a merry laugh:

"'Do it, ma'am; do it. I've just broken the $100 vase in the parlor, and if you can take that out of $4.00—for I'm leavin' at the end of the week—why, you'll be mighty clever.'"

"He that wants a good deal must not ask for a little," nor must he that wants a thing very badly be content to ask for it but once—unless, as does usually happen, one publication of a Herald want ad. "does the business."

WHEAT HAS ADVANCES

Prices Higher in the American Markets, Particularly Northwest.

Flax Has Good Tone in Duluth Market and Abroad.

Duluth Board of Trade, Nov. 9.—Wheat advanced in the American markets today and prices were higher at the close everywhere. Light receipts in the Northwest and light Argentine shipments were among the bullish factors. Duluth and Minneapolis were the strongest. The foreign markets were lower. Liverpool closed ¼d to ⅝d lower, Berlin ¼c lower and Budapest ½c higher.

The Modern Miller says: "The weather conditions have been favorable for growing winter wheat and the crop is reported generally satisfactory in most localities."

The December option closed ½c higher in Duluth, ⅝c in Chicago, New York and St. Louis, ⅝-¾c in Minneapolis, and ¾c in Kansas City and Winnipeg. The May option closed ½c higher in Duluth and Minneapolis, ¼c in Chicago and New York, ⅛-¼c in St. Louis and c in Winnipeg.

Corn was stronger in Chicago, the December option closing ¼c higher. It closed ¼d to ½d lower in Liverpool. December oats closed ¼c higher in Chicago.

Car receipts at Duluth were 237 against 375 last year, and at Minneapolis 312 against 521 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 649 against 896 last year. Chicago received 21 against 169 last year. Winnipeg received 250 against 569 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 961,000 bus, last year 1,321,000 bus. Shipments 336,000 bus, last year 673,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 215,000 bus.

Argentine shipments of wheat were 504,000 bus against 552,000 bus last week and 2,320,000 bus a year ago.

Primary receipts of wheat were 655,000 bus, last year 514,000 bus. Shipments 383,000 bus, last year 273,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 22,720 bus.

Argentine shipments of corn were 4,040,000 bus, against 2,163,000 bus last year and 2,202,000 bus a year ago.

Wheat trading was steady during the session of the Duluth market. December wheat opened unchanged at 74½c, advanced to 75¼-⅜c by 11:25, declined to 74⅞c by 12:20, rallied to 75⅛c by 1 and closed at 75c, a gain of ⅛c over yesterday. May wheat opened ⅜c higher at 77⅛c, advanced to 78⅜c, declined to 78c, rallied to 78¼c and closed at 78⅛c, a gain of ⅛c over yesterday. It is expected that the stock of wheat in store at Duluth will increase 160,000 bus this week. Durum wheat closed ⅛c lower for November and ½c higher for No. 2 December, and cash spring wheat continued selling on a basis of 2⅜c over December No. 1 northern.

Flax had a strong tone on higher cables and trading was steady during the day in the local market. Argentine shipments of flax were 368,000 bushels against 336,000 bushels last week and 592,000 bushels a year ago. It is expected that the stock of flax in store at Duluth will increase 265,000 bushels this week. The foreign flax market closed ⅜c higher. November flax opened ⅜c higher at $1.17¼, advanced to $1.17⅝, declined to $1.17⅜, rallied to $1.18⅛ and closed at $1.17⅝, a gain of ⅜c over yesterday.

December flax opened ¼@⅜c higher at $1.14⅜, advanced to $1.14⅝, declined to $1.14¼, rallied to $1.15 and closed at $1.14⅞, a gain of ⅝c over yesterday. May flax opened ½c higher at $1.18⅛, advanced to $1.18¾, declined to $1.18⅛ and rallied at the close to $1.18¾, a gain of ⅝c over yesterday.

Oats to arrive closed ¼c higher and the other course grains unchanged.

THE WHEAT MARKET.

Wheat Opens Steady and Grows Firm on Small Northwest Receipts.

Chicago, Nov. 9.—The wheat market opened steady today, but soon became firm on a good demand for the May option. There was considerable profit-taking in December. The small receipts in the Northwest were the main source of strength to the market. December wheat opened unchanged to a shade lower at 72½@⅝c to 72⅝c and sold at 72¾@⅞c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 672 cars against 565 cars last week and 1,031 cars one year ago.

The market became more firm in the last half of the session on covering by shorts. The high covering for December was 73¾c. The close was firm with December up ⅝c at 73c.

The corn market was steady on good buying of May by commission houses and in sympathy with wheat. December opened unchanged to ⅛c lower at 42c to 42⅛c and sold at 42¼c. Local receipts were 240 cars, with 30 of contract grade.

Although prices did not advance maeerially, the market was firmer at the close, December closing at 42⅜c, at ¼c higher than the close of yesterday.

The oats market was firm on a good demand by shorts. Offerings, however, were light. December opened unchanged to a shade higher at 34½@⅝c to 34⅝c and sold at 34½c. Local receipts were 119 cars.

The provisions market was steady and quiet. The market for live hogs was weak, and this offset a fair buying movement in lard and ribs. January pork was 2½c lower at $14.05. Lard was unchanged at $8.47½. Ribs were down 2½@5c at $7.57½@7.60.

Close: Wheat December 73c; May 77⅞c. Corn—December 42⅜c; May 43⅝c. Oats—December 34½@⅝c; May 35½@⅝c. Pork—January $14.15; May $14.25. Lard—January $8.50; May $8.45. Ribs—January $7.26½; May $7.75. Rye—Cash 62c@64c. Barley—Cash 46c@56c. Flax, clover and timothy nothing doing. Cash Wheat No. 2 red 74½c; No. 3 red 72½@74c; No. 2 hard 73¾@76c; No. 3 hard 71c@74c; No. 1 Northern 79c@83c; No. 2 Northern 76c@81c; No. 3 Spring 72c@80c . Corn—No. 2 41½c@42c; No. 3 new 41½c@42c. Minneapolis Flour.

Minneapolis, Nov. 9.—Flour market firmer. The better tone to wheat prices caused firmer quotations by millers. Cash wheat prices were a little easier and the conditions surrounding the flour market were conducive to a little better business. Shipments were moderate. Shipments, 48,832 barrels. Grain Gossip.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—There is no doubt but what local traders late yesterday and early this morning sold themselves into something of a hole. It was quite the thing with the majority of the trade to play for a further break, on the theory that the continued liquidation of December would force prices lower. The liquidation was not felt as expected and there was a general scramble to get around to the buying side of the market, cover shorts and get in line with improved feeling. This was not the result of the bullish news as the cables were weak. Argentine shipments larger than expected and the Modern Miller bearish. There are some indications that bear leaders are trimming their sails and giving up the short side of the market. It is doubtful it the situation warrants buying on a swell, but any return of the over-sold conditions in the local trade will justify believers in wheat in taking hold promptly.

Corn—About everything in sight for the trade is bearish. Weather is fine country offering new crop freely, cash market weak, cables lower, export shipments very small, primary receipts light. That the market did not weaken was largely due to wheat and oats strength. Until conditions change would look for prompt reaction from any hard spot.

Oats—Strong people in the cash and elevator trade were on the buying side. Reports from the Northwest indicate that contract oats will be very scarce. Think this market is headed higher, but it certainly starts very slowly.

Chicago Inter Ocean: "There is a bullish situation in wheat in the Northwest and the trade is beginning to realize it," said a Chicago man who spent the greater part of the last five days in Minneapolis. "Leaders are covering; the majority of them have closed their December spreads. Some have bought in their short wheat; others are selling 'puts' each night getting the wheat on the declines. The government report gives the three states in the Northwest 175,000,000 bushels; this includes macaroni. The trade figures that there are 125,000,000 bushels of regular spring wheat, and 50,000,000 bushels of wheat last year. Seed requirements are 20,000,000 bushels. Duluth has shipped 10,000,000 bushels so you can easily see that they have a phenomenally strong position in sprisg wheat and one that will take care of itself. Minneapolis mills are in some instances mixing macaroni wheat with the regular wheat, but have not made a success of it. As soon as the December liquidation is out of the way I would not be surprised to see a good advance. The best posted men in the Northwest, those who are closest to the cash situation, do not anticipate that there will be as heavy a run of directs at the terminal points for more than a day or two at a time for the balance of the season."

Chicago Tribune: "Conditions of supply and demand, both important and prospective, mark prices, look healthy and future values higher," said a local man. "At the moment, however, the bugaboo of December liquidation hangs over the market. It encourages the bears and makes buyers hold off. Trade plenty of good people who are bulls on wheat and who expect to buy it when the December wheat has been placed. In the meantime, we think the scattered long interest in December is small and the short interest considerable. The large holders of it are perfectly able to take care of themselves. Holders must have patience."

Chicago Record-Herald: The new crop report will be issued at 2 p. m. Saturday, Washington time. The report will give the estimated yield per acre of corn, buckwheat, flaxseed, Irish and sweet spuds, hay, tobacco and rye. The quality of all these crops except rye will also be given. The stock of old corn on hand, in the shape of a percentage of the crop of 1905, will be included in the report.

STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR

General Liquidation Early Due to High Money Rate.

Became Firm Late in the Day But Closed Heavy.

New York, Nov. 9.—Early dealings in stocks today were on a small scale and at lower prices than last night. Pullman was a notable exception, and was lifted 5⅛ by the report of the plan for the distribution of the surplus stock to stockholders. American Woolen broke 2¾ on account of the intended increase in the preferred stock. G. N. preferred declined 1½ and N. P., National Lead and Sugar substantial fractions.

The pressure at the outset was relaxed and the market recovered fully. The higher prices, however, prompted fresh selling, and there was a general decline again to below the opening level. Liberal offerings of Reading and Brooklyn Rapid Transit and an eight per cent money rate put a damper on bullish activity. Reading, Brooklyn Transit, Sugar and American Ice Securities yielded a point each. Virginia Iron 2, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie 3. Pullman lost all of its opening gain.

Reading was forced down 1½ and Union Pacific 1⅛ before a rally occurred. Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha lost 6; Northwestern and American Ice 7; Wisconsin Central preferred, American Locomotive preferred and North American 1½ each; and National Lead 1. A rise of 2⅜ in Northern Pacific was the principal force in a moderate rally, which was followed by semi-stagnation. Bonds were heavy.

The transactions in stocks shrank concurrently with the rise in call money. Twelve per cent was bid for loans at 1 o'clock. The stock market nevertheless had a better undertone, Reading rallying to a fraction over yesterday's closing.

By the time some of the Western railroad stocks had rallied a point from the lowest, the market began to show signs of weakness again and prices fell back. Reading went off about a point, but subsequently rose anew to 146¼, an overnight advance of a point. Louisville & Nashville and Baltimore & Ohio preferred made a similar rise and the entire list stiffened fractionally. Rock Island preferred fell a point and Delaware & Hudson 1¾.

The market closed heavy and lifeless. Prices yielded slightly on very dull trading, but came up again. St. Paul rose nearly a point and Colorado & Southern first preferred 1¼. Pullman fell heavily from its early high level to 3 below yesterday. Illinois Central, General Electric and Westinghouse Electric fell 1. National Railroad of Mexico preferred, Great Northern preferred 1¼ to 1½. International Pump 2¼ and United States Express 6.

Copper Gossip.

Gay & Sturgis: Money rates went up to 15 per cent today in New York. Money is tightening and will bother for two months. In face of these conditions it does not seems likely the market can go up much. Conservative people are worrying a great deal concerning large amounts of money taken out of the market by questionable curb flotations in New York. It is conservatively estimated at $75,000,000. A banking effort to check this may react disadvantageously on meritious copper stocks as the average banker is not clearly aware of the difference. Hayden Stone & Co. are again large sellers of Greene. This interest is apparently getting out. The local market was steady except for Greene and Utah. The latter declined further but seemed to find a bottom between $62 and $63. We see no reason to expect any different sort of market for some little time to come.

Gay & Sturgis: The News Bureau says: A well informed copper selling agent in New York says: "Within the past week or ten days there has been increased inquiry for copper on the part of domestic consumers. The Calumet & Hecla company was fortunate in securing such a good price for the large amount of copper which it recently sold, furthermore, I believe that the 22½-cent level will do much towards maintaining the stability of the market. I understand that the United Metals company has sold a substantial block of the metal for delivery in the first quarter of 1907 at 21½ cents a pound, a leading United States manufacturer being the purchaser."

Gay & Sturgis: Exports for copper for the week ended, Nov. 8, were 3,599 tons.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: It is evident that there is something going on in Greene. Hayden, Stone & Co. sold 5,000 shares today between 25½ and 27. The strength of the market in the face of heavy selling is certainly remarkable, and would seem to indicate the accumulation of the stock by some large interest. Good buying of Copper Range still continues, and that stock was one of the strongest today. The Smelter troubles in Utah were responsible for the 3-point break in Utah Consolidated, and unless the difficulty is soon settled we shall see lower proces for the stock.

Gay & Sturgis: The Old Dominion company is now operating four furnaces and making a large output. A prominent man, after going through the Old Dominion mine, pronounces the sulphide strike on the thirteenth level of far greater importance than is generally appreciated. Of the ore on the thirteenth level, twenty feet goes 10½ per cent copper and 27½ per cent sulphur; fifteen feet goes 3 per cent copper and 31 per cent sulphur. It is estimated that the fourteenth level will strike this rich ore shortly in less than 100 feet.

BULLFROG RUSH MINING CO.

To Stockholders:

Recent developments on the Bullfrog Rush property are such that we do not feel justified in further disposing of treasury stock at the original promotion price.

The values reported in the Winze, on which the early great hopes of this splendidly located property were based, have not held out at depth, and in the present working the assays abtained are so unsatisfactory that we cannot at this time further recommend the purchase of the stock.

To all who have purchased Bullfrog Rush Mining Company shares from the L. M. Sullivan Trust Company we make the following proposition:

Return the stock to us and select from our new promotions any other stock you like before it is listed. We will credit you with the amount you paid for Bullfrog Rush shares against any subscription you make to our new companies.

This offer is good until January 1, 1907.

Sheep—Estimated receipts, 8,000; market, steady; sheep, $3.75@5.60; lambs, $4.75@7.60.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Nov. 9.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 7@11 points in response to higher cables and continued covering by shorts who were disappointed in the showing of the census report. At the advance there was a good deal of selling, but offerings were well absorbed and the market ruled steady during the early session, although after selling at 10c for January, or 10 points net higher there was a reaction of 5 or 6 points from the top under increased realizing through commission houses.

Futures closed easy, closing bids: November, 9.54; December, 9.55; January, 9.59; February, 9.63; March, 9.78; April, 9.83; May, 9.89; June, 9.96; July, 9.98. Spot closed quiet 20 points decline; middling uplands, 10.10; middling gulf, 10.35. Sales, 101 bales.

THE PRODUCE MARKET.

The following prices, with the exception of those on hay, feed and meats, are the official quotations of the Duluth Produce exchange, and shippers can rely upon them as being correct. The list is corrected daily by the secretary, and it shows accurately the market condition up to 12 o'clock on the date of issue. The weekly market letter, published on Fridays, is not an official statement of the exchange, but the information is gathered personally from the different dealers:

A Proven Mine For the Price of a Prospect!

On the South, adjoins the now famous GOLD BAR PROPERTY, whose shares were first issued at 17c and have since sold at $2.05 (now $1.27).
On the East, adjoins the GOLD KING GROUP, whose shares were first issued at 15c, since sold at 40c; now 34c.
On the North, adjoins the CARNATION GROUP, whose shares were first issued at 25c; now 75c.
On the West, adjoins the GOLD BAR ANNEX GROUP, whose shares were first issued at 12c, now 32c.
Within 600 feet West of the HOMESTAKE, (has the same vein), whose shares were first issued at 75c; now $1.27.
Within 1,500 feet of the DAISY (has the same vein), whose shares were first issued at 15c; now 45c.

The Surest Thing in Mining:
That the Original Gold Bar Will Greatly Advance Over the Present Issue Price

Eight distinct veins have been discovered so far on this property, four running to the North and South and an equal number to the East and West.

The entire Gold Bar Mountain is heavily mineralized, and further development will undoubtedly prove the existence of veins other than those already mentioned. As these veins, without exception, extend into the adjoining properties, where they have been opened to a considerable depth, and there show big values, it is practically certain that the same values will be found on this ground as depth is gained: and the delay in opening this property has been due solely to the fact that the development of the adjoining properties would determine the value of the ground, as the veins are identically the same.

The veins extending in the Gold King Group on the East at a depth of 160 feet, shows shipping values of $200 per ton; while on the Homestake Group, 600 feet to the east, at the 300-foot level, the vein is 160 feet wide and will ALL average better than $30 per ton.

Three of the veins running North and South enter into the GOLD BAR PROPERTY. The main GOLD BAR vein is the largest in the District, being 178 feet wide, with an average value of $12 per ton for the whole vein, while small parts show shipping values of $1,600 to the ton.

In our opinion a purchase of the ORIGINAL GOLD BAR stock at the issue price of 20c per share, is equivalent to BUYING A DOLLAR FOR FIFTY CENTS; and we believe the stock will show a premium over the issue price of a HUNDRED PER CENT WITHIN SIXTY DAYS!

The value of the veins having been proven by the developments in the adjoining properties, which completely surround this group, takes this property out of the prospect class and at once makes it a MINE.

As such we commend it as the most desirable among the many Bullfrog properties on the market today.

Reservations should be made by telegraph, to insure consideration, and remittance in full, by bank draft or certified check, must be forwarded immediately after allotment is made.

"By telegraph—Since the above advertisement was written, a sensational new strike has been made on The Gold Bar in North Shaft—ore running $3,178 to the ton—the richest ever found in the Bullfrog district. This strike is only two hundred feet from the original Gold Bar property which has the same vein."

BIG COAL DOCKS BURN WITH 50,000 TONS OF ANTHRACITE ALL ABLAZE

Lehigh Valley Company's Property in Chicago Is Destroyed.

Over Three Quarters of Million Dollars Loss Inflicted.

Blocks in Scranton, Pa., Swept Away by Early Blaze.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—The docks of the Lehigh Valley Coal company at 100th street and Commercial avenue were destroyed by fire today, causing a loss, as estimated by the officers of the company, of $757,000.

The fire originated from some unknown cause in the engine room in the basement of a coal house in which 50,000 tons of hard coal were stored, and spread so rapidly that the employes were forced to run for their lives without being able to send word of the conflagration to the downtown offices of the company.

The coal is steadily burning and it is expected that it will be several days before the fire is entirely extinguished. The company's loss in hoisting machinery is estimated at about $200,000. This amount is however, included in the total of $757,000.

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 10.—Fire of unknown origin early today destroyed the Carter & Kennedy six story building, occupied by the Foote & Shear Hardware company, and the J. Scott Inglis Carpet & Furniture company, and the large two story building of J. D. Williams Bros. company, dealers in confectionery, toys and house furnishings, causing a loss of $500,000.

The Connell building an eight story office structure adjoining, was damaged on the upper floors. Only its fire-proof construction and thick fire walls separating it from the Carter & Kennedy building, saved it from destruction, and the city from a conflagration, as the destroyed building was in the part of the city where large business blocks and office structures are centered.

An 80 per cent insurance was carried by all the sufferers.

Seven firemen were injured, one of them, Joseph Jay, seriously.

Republican Whose Chances of Being Lieutenant Governor of New York Are Still in the Balance.

FEAR NEGRO OUTBREAK

Disgraced Soldiers May Make Trouble After Discharge.

White Troops Rushed to Fort Reno as a Precaution.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Nov. 10.—Four companies of white United States troops from San Antonio, Texas, are being rushed to Fort Reno as a precautionary measure, because of the fear that the four companies of negro troops ordered dismissed by President Roosevelt for concealing murder at Brownsville, Texas, will make trouble when formally dismissed.

The Texas troops come, it is stated, as a matter of protection to the citizens. Since their arrival at El Reno, which is two miles distant from Fort Reno the negro troops have been placed under the strictest discipline, being subjected to a roll call every two hours.

The formal order for the discharge of the disgraced troops was issued at Washington yesterday. The date of actual dismissal is not known here.

BOSTON BLOCK SET AFIRE.

Five Story Building Ruined and Eight Firemen Imperilled.

Boston, Nov. 10.—An incendiary fire early today practically ruined a large five-story brick building on Beverly street in the North end, causing a loss estimated at about $100,000, distributed among several manufacturing concerns. Two firemen were overcome by the dense smoke from the Fire Stone Tire & Rubber company, but later recovered. Six other firemen had narrow escapes from being carried down by a falling roof.

BIG FRAUDS IN ELECTION

Two Thousand Illegal Votes in One Pennsylvania Town.

Board and Several Judges Ordered Placed Under Arrest.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Nov. 10.—During the official election count, yesterday, testimony was given showing that more than 2,000 fraudulent votes were returned in seven districts of Foster and Hazel townships. As a result, some of the candidates who, on the face of the returns, seemed practically sure of election find themselves in a doubtful position.

The election board of the Ninth district of Hazel township were ordered arrested, charged with fraud, forgery and misdemeanor as election officers.

Bench warrants were issued for the arrest of the judges of three election districts in Foster township, one in Butler and one in Hanover township, for contempt.

GIRL MAKES BRAVE FIGHT

Menominee Frenchmen Threaten to Lynch Brutal Man.

Menominee, Mich., Nov. 10.—(Special to The Herald)—As John Vallee, a young Frenchman, was escorting a girl home last night, he made an attack on her in a dark alley in a secluded section. She fought him bravely and her cries brought a crowd of Frenchmen from "Frenchtown," Vallee was followed for some distance with threats with lynching, but escaped in the gloom. Two men were lynched some years ago in the same neighborhood for a murder. The police have the district quiet today and are searching for Vallee.

KILLS WIFE IN MARKET.

Pennsylvania Boilermaker Commits Murder Before Big Crowd.

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 10.—Jacob Stehman, a boilermaker, employed at the Pennsylvania Steel works at Steilton, near here, shot and killed his wife in the crowded Broad street market, today. The woman had been employed as housekeeper for a York county trucker, and Stehman tried to persuade her to return to his home. When he failed, he shot her four times.

ACADEMY STUDENT SHOT.

Andover, Mass., Nov. 10.—Charles E. Riggs, a Phillips-Andover academy student, accidentally shot and killed John J. Tracy, a schoolmate, today.

OVER FALLS AND ALIVE

Three Wisconsin Young Men Have Thrilling Experience.

One Barely Rescued When Life Had Almost Departed.

Marinette, Wis., Nov. 10.—Three Marinette county young men, Albert Mersh, Warren Hale and James Forbes, who were cruising in the vicinity of the Eagle Falls on the Peshtigo river, tried to cross the river yesterday. Suddenly the boat upset and the men and craft went over Eagle Falls.

The falls are eight to ten feet high and full of jagged rocks, while the foot is a swirling mass of water with whirlpools and eddies.

Hale is a good swimmer and was able to make the shore. Mersh was carried through the rapids and deposited on a sand bar in an unconscious condition and was rescued by friends and has recovered.

Forbes was carried through the rapids and was in the water several minutes. At times parts of his body could be seen. Friends on the shore put out in a boat and finally succeeded in catching him. His almost lifeless body was taken ashore and after all the methods used to restore life in similar cases had been employed, he was finally resuscitated.

PLACE KICK BY MARSHALL WINS

Gopher Punter Proves Superior to "Mighty" Eckersall.

Chicago's Only Tally Made on a Safety Touch-Down.

MINNESOTA	4
CHICAGO	2

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Football in the Middle West reached its climax today, when the elevens of Minnesota and Chicago universities lined up on Marshall field. With neither eleven having a game scheduled with Michigan or Wisconsin, no championship claims were possible from the result, but the prospect of seeing "reformed" football in its highest development by the swift back field of Chicago and the tremendously heavy line of Minnesota drew a record-breaking crowd to the field.

Minnesota had an enormous advantage in weight. Her linesmen averaged 194 pounds to 182 for Chicago, while in the back field the advantage was still more pronounced, Minnesota's back field averaging 177½ pounds to 156 for Chicago. But this advantage, which would have been overwhelming under the old rules, Chicago was confident of more than overcoming by superior speed, and from Eckersall and Steffen especially at least two touchdowns and a drop kick were looked for. In practice during the last three days, Eckersall had been making 75 per cent of his tries at field goals, and if the Chicago line held sufficiently to protect him, the little quarterback was figured by the Maroon adherents as sure to bring victory to his team, with his kicking, if touchdowns could not be made through the Minnesota wall.

PLAY IN COLD RAIN.

Cold drizzling rain prevailed when time was called. The field, however, had been protected by canvas and was in splendid shape, but a slippery ball was inevitable after the first few minutes play. The line-up announced just before the game began was as follows:

Minnesota.	Position.	Chicago.
Marshall	re	Hewitt
Case	rt	Parry
Smith	rg	Kelly
V. Banderlin	c	Anderson
Vita	lg	Noll
Ittner	lt	Russell
Snyder	le	Walker
Larkin	qb	Eckersall
Robertson	rhb	Steffen
Shuckneicht	lhb	Iddings
Current	fb	Finger

The betting just before the game was $100 to $75 in favor of Chicago.

ECKERSALL AT WORK EARLY.

Minnesota won the toss and chose the north goal. There was but little wind to give advantage. Parry kicked off at 2:15 p. m. to Minnesota's 5-yard line, Ittner returning ten yards. He was hurt, but resumed. Current made five yards, but Minnesota was penalized five yards, and Larkin kicked to the center of the field. Finger made three yards. Eckersall kicked over Minnesota's goal line. Larkin kicked to Eckersall, on Chicago's 43-yard line, Eckersall returning to Minnesota's 40-yard line.

Eckersall tried a drop kick from the 44-yard line, but it went wide. Larkin punted to Chicago's 40-yard line, Eckersall returning fifteen yards. Eckersall failed on a quarterback run, and punted to Minnesota's 40-yard line. Minnesota was penalized fifteen yards for holding in the line. Larkin punted to Eckersall on Minnesota's 35-yard line. Eckersall fumbled it, then tackled, and Minnesota got it. Current made five yards through the line. Marshall tried a place kick from the 40-yard line, but failed, and Eckersall returned the ball.

MINNESOTA GETS DROP KICK.

Eckersall failed to gain on a fake kick. Then he punted to Minnesota's 50 yard line. Shuckneicht made 5 yards through tackle and repeated for 3 more. Current made it first down. A forward pass failed, and the ball went to Chicago, Eckersall immediately punting to Minnesota's 25 yard line. Robertson went through a tackle for 10 yards, Ittner opening a big hole. Larkin kicked to Chicago's 50 yard line, Eckersall returning to Minnesota's 10 yard line. Larkin kicked to Chicago's 40 yard line. Eckersall kicked to Minnesota's 30. Larkin returning 10 yards. Minnesota was penalized 15 yards for holding.

Chicago gained 8 yards on crossing of punts. Minnesota gained 12 on the next crossing. Chicago was penalized 5 yards for offside play. Shuckneicht broke through left tackle for 5 yards. Larkin punted to Chicago's 10 yard line, Marshall downing Eckersall in his tracks. Eckersall fumbled, but recovering Robertson, got around Parry for 26 yards, Eckersall downing him. Marshall tried a place kick from the 40 yard line and made it, the ball going squarely between the posts. Score: Minnesota, 4; Chicago, 0.

FIRST HALF IS FINISHED.

Eckersall kicked off to Shuckneicht on the 5-yard line. Shuckneicht returned 20 yards. Larkin punted to Eckersall on Chicago's 40-yard line, Eckersall returning 17 yards. Minnesota was penalized 15 yards for holding in the line. Steffen fumbled a double pass and Minnesota got the ball on her 30-yard line. Larkin kicked to Chicago's 35-yard line. Eckersall punted to Minnesota's 35-yard line. Larkin punted to Chicago's 15-yard line. Chicago was penalized 15 yards for holding and under his goal posts. Eckersall kicked to Chicago's 50-yard line. Larkin kicked to the Chicago 25-yard line and Eckersall, aided by beautiful interference, carried the ball back to Minnesota's 43-yard line. On a fake, Eckersall made 10 yards. Time was called with the ball in Chicago's possession on Minnesota's 32-yard line. Score: First half—Minnesota, 4; Chicago, 0.

SECOND HALF IS OPENED.

In the second half, Marshall kicked to Chicago's 10-yard line. Steffen made 8 yards on a double pass and Finger plunged through right tackle for 10 more; Eckersall kicked to Minnesota's 15-yard line, Larkin returning 20 yards. Chicago stopped two line plays and Larkin punted poorly to Chicago's 50-yard line. Finger broke through left tackle for 9 yards. Eckersall punted to Minnesota's 22-yard line. On a forward pass Marshall made 10 yards.

Larkin kicked to Chicago's 40-yard line, the Minnesota's ends downing Eckersall in his tracks. On a fake mass play and a delayed run, Finger got around right end for 15 yards, Marshall being drawn in on the play. Eckersall punted to Minnesota's 15-yard line, Larkin returning 10 yards. Parry was hurt but resumed. Shuckneicht broke through left tackle for 7 yards and Larkin kicked to Chicago's 25-yard line, Eckersall returning 10 yards.

HARD WORK; NO SCORE.

Eckersall punted to Minnesota's 25-yard line. Larkin fumbled but recovered. Larkin punted poorly, Chicago getting the ball at the center. Eckersall punted to Minnesota's 15-yard line and Larkin made a fair catch and punted to the center. Two tries at Minnesota's line failed to gain, and Chicago was penalized 5 yards for holding. Eckersall punted to Minnesota's 35-yard line. Current on a mass on right guard tore through for 10 yards. Chicago then held and Larkin punted to Chicago's 30-yard line, Steffen slipping down but holding the ball.

Eckersall punted to Minnesota's 40-yard line, and Larkin returned the ball twenty yards. Minnesota found Chicago's line impregnable, and Larkin kicked to Chicago's 5-yard line. Eckersall tried a fake kick, but Marshall nailed him. He then kicked to Chicago's 35-yard line, and Current returned it ten yards. Marshall tried a place kick from the 36-yard line but it went wide, and Eckersall returned the ball to Chicago's 33-yard line.

SAFETY FOR CHICAGO.

Eckersall punted to Minnesota's 25-yard line, one of the longest kicks of the game. Minnesota was penalized five yards for delaying the game. Larkin kicked to Minnesota's 50-yard line. Eckersall punted to Larkin on Minnesota's 2-yard line. The latter, instead of trying to advance the ball, took it behind his own goal line and touched. Referee Hackett promptly declared it a safety, amid the wild cheering of the Maroon adherents. Score—Minnesota, 4; Chicago, 2.

Eckersall kicked to Minnesota's 25-yard line. Larkin kicked to Chicago's 50-yard line. Eckersall made 8 yards on a fake kick. Eckersall kicked to Minnesota's 25-yard line. Shuckneicht made 15 yards through tackle and was downed from behind by Parry. Larkin kicked to Eckersall on Chicago's 20-yard line and three Minnesota men smothered him.

Time was called with the final score: Minnesota, 4; Chicago, 2.

MEMORIAL TABLET STOLEN FROM CEMETERY IN BROOKLYN.

New York, Nov. 10.—The $450 bronze tablet on the monument in the Lutheran cemetery on the outskirts of Brooklyn, to the memory of the victims of the burning of the steamer General Slocum, was stolen last night, being pried off with crowbars. An unsuccessful attempt also was made to remove a tablet from the back of the monument.

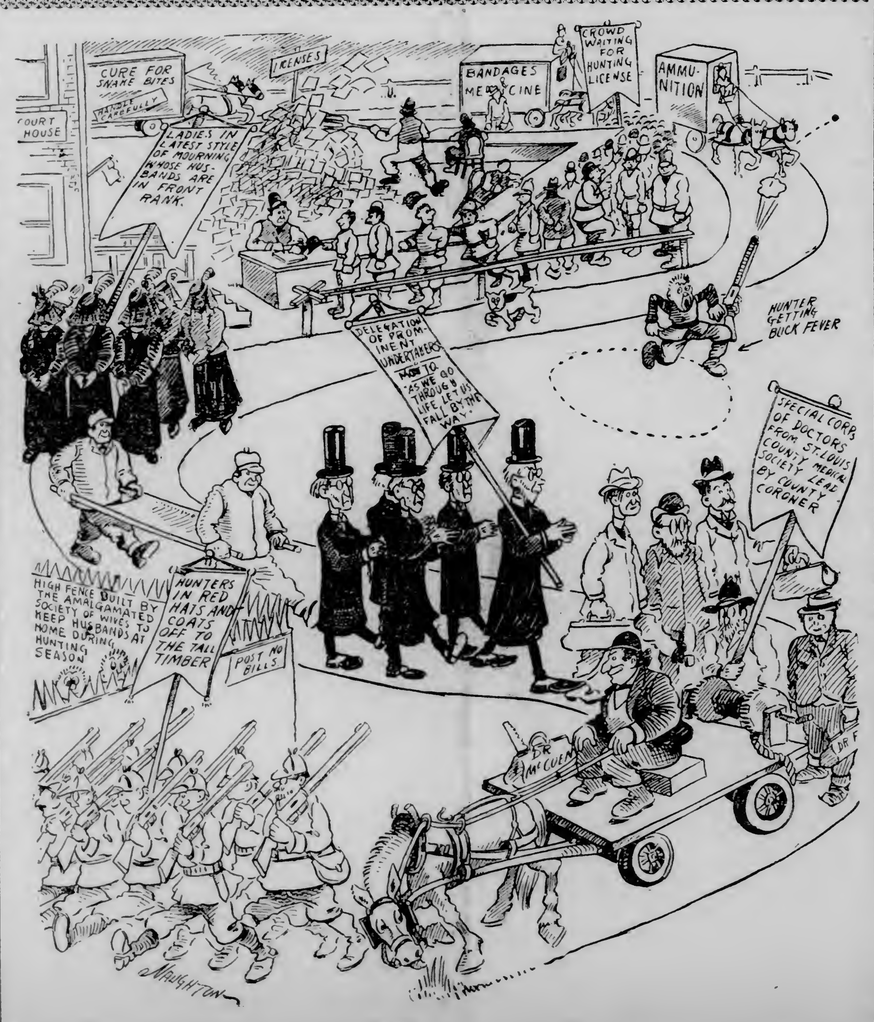

POLISH CHILDREN IN REVOLT AGAINST GERMAN AT SCHOOL.

Berlin, Nov. 10.—All Prussian Poland is astir over attempts of the German government to enforce religious instruction in the public schools in Germany, and 50,000 Polish children persist in refusing to respond in the German language to such instruction. The Prussian government continues to apply measures designed to convince the children and their parents that their resistance will be of no avail, but the feeling is daily growing more intense.

SHAW WILL NOT GIVE AID TO WALL STREET AT PRESENT.

Washington, Nov. 10.—Secretary Shaw today authorized the statement that he will not buy bonds, refunds or increase deposits in national banks unless present conditions materially change. This action of the secretary is the result of pressure from New York, following the bear movement in stocks and the recent high rate of money there.

OFF TO THE HAPPY HUNTING GROUNDS. DEER SEASON OPENS TODAY

INDIANA VS. NOTRE DAME.

Ten Thousand People See Contest for State Championship.

Indianapolis, Nov. 10.—The new football rules were introduced to nearly 10,000 people today at the Indiana University-Notre Dame contest for the championship of the state. Notre Dame weighed heavier by five pounds per man, while Indiana depended largely upon Capt. Hare's kicking.

First half—Indiana university, 0; Notre Dame, 0.

WISCONSIN VS. ILLINOIS.

Both Teams Confident But Sucker Team is Much Heavier.

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 10.—Today's Wisconsin-Illinois football game promised to be one of the best ever played on Illinois field. Excursions on all railroads brought hundreds of people. The Wisconsin team arrived this morning, followed by 200 rooters. Both the opposing teams were confident of victory, but expected a hard battle. Illinois' average weight is 180, Wisconsin's 171, while Illinois line averages sixteen pounds more than that of Wisconsin, but Wisconsin's back field outweighs that of Illinois by three pounds. The lineup:

Illinois.	Position	Wisconsin.
McKay	le	Rogers
Burroughs	lt	Dittman
Long	lg	Beyer
Green	c	Stiehur
Van Hook	rg	Gebberch
Raisback	rt	Messer
Monnihan	re	Frank
Brooks	qb	Springer
Gardner	lhb	Clark
Pettigrew	rhb	Ziesler
Pickney	fb	Miller

Referee—Wrenn, Harvard. Umpire—McCormick, Dartmouth.

First half—Wisconsin, 6; Illinois, 0.

HARVARD VS. CARLISLE.

Both Sides Confident But Neither Certain of the Victory.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 10.—In the expectation of seeing a spectacular exposition of the new rules a crowd that is generally exceeded only on the day of a Harvard-Yale contest, assembled today for the football battle between Harvard and the Carlisle Indians. The game was expected to be Harvard's hardest of the year outside the Yale contest, two weeks from today.

Harvard was in good condition for the battle and confident of winning. Carlisle also had high hopes and Coach Bemus Pierce expressed his belief that his men would defeat Harvard. Carlisle's hopes were in her speed and the kicking of Mount Pleasant, the backfield being composed of men said to be capable of sprinting 100 yards in close to ten seconds. Harvard as usual was the heavier. The lineup as announced just before the game follows:

Harvard	Position	Carlisle
MacDonald	le	Gardiner
Osborne	lt	Wanseka
Burr	lg	Dillon
Parker	center	Hunt
Kersburg	rg	Laroque
Pierce	rt	Lube
Starr	re	Exendine
Newhall	qb	Libby
Foster	lhb	Mount Pleasant
Lincoln	rhb	Hendricks
Wendell	fb	Littleboy

First half—Harvard, 0; Carlisle, 0.

Final score—Harvard, 5; Carlisle Indians, 0.

CADETS VS. PRINCETON.

Military Academy Boys Hoped to Score on Tigers Again.

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 10.—This afternoon the Military Academy Cadets confronted the Princeton university eleven. Interest in the contest was enhanced by the fact that a week ago West Point broke Yale's run of shut outs by scoring a touchdown and goal in the first half. The lineup was:

West Point.	Position	Princeton.
Hanlon	le	Wister
Weeks	lt	Phillips
Erwin	lg	H. Dillon
Sutton	c	Herring
Christy	rg	Stannard
Pullen	rt	Cooney
Stearns	re	Hoagland
Johnson	qb	E. Dillon
Mountford	lhb	Harlan
Hill	rhb	Rulon-Miller
Smith	fb	McCormick

Harlan kicked two field goals in the first half. Score, first half—Princeton, 8; West Point, 0.

Final score—Princeton, 8; West Point, 0.

Yale 5; Brown 0.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 10.—Yale scored one touchdown only in the second half of the game with Brown this afternoon. The final score was: Yale, 5; Brown, 0.

Pennsylvania Meets Match.

CONFESSES TO MURDER.

Wisconsin Man Shot Down Neighbor to Satisfy a Grudge.

Rhinelander, Wis., Nov. 10.—William Stove, arrested at Three Lakes for killing William Bierbauer on the afternoon of election day, admits that he fired the shots that ended the life of his neighbor as he was on his way home in a gasoline launch. Three shots from a rifle were fired from the shore of the lake.

Both men are past 60 years of age. Ill feeling had existed between them for some time. They were living on homestead land near Three Lakes.

It is thought that the murderer will go before Judge Silverton, who will hold court here next week, and plead guilty. He seems unconcerned and shows no signs of remorse over his crime.

DIETZ LOSES BY FORTY.

His Candidate for District Attorney Runs Close to His Opponent.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Nov. 10.—The result of the election on Tuesday last in Sawyer county was ascertained last night, and Dietz's candidate for district attorney, Sam J. Williams, is defeated by his opponent, the present district attorney, Frank L. McNamara, by forty votes. Dietz won at the primaries and McNamara was the main issue in Sawyer county.

ORDERLY AND QUIET

Sensational Article About "Land Mob" Unjust and Unwarranted.

No Land Rush Ever Conducted in More Orderly Manner.

Indignation describes but poorly the feeling that existed in the federal building this morning over the article in the News Tribune of this morning, headed, "Land Mob Awaits Opening." The feeling of resentment was not confined to the persons who are participating in the land rush either, for the officials who have offices in the building all pronounced it most unjust and unwarranted.

One of the leading government officials called up The Herald and remarked upon "the hypocrisy of a newspaper that speaks with abhorrence of Hearst and his methods, and then tries to outdo him in its own news columns."

Every individual about the federal building says that while this is the longest, the largest, and one of the most interesting of all of the land "rushes" the Duluth land office has ever seen, there has never been one conducted in a more orderly or a quieter manner. There is entire accord among all of those engaged in it, and as each new person has come in, he has taken his place in the line upon learning the situation.

Yet with this condition prevailing ever since it began, and fully known to everyone about the building, here are some of the things the people of Duluth were told this morning:

"They are so weary and restless that the smallest new discomfort provokes anger, and a number of threatened disturbances have been averted only by the prompt arrival of the police."

"In their mad desire to get the first chance for a piece of land, the would-be settlers pull and trample upon one another to get nearest the door of the land office. This continues all day and all night."

"The settlers are of the lower type of foreigners, and are land mad. In their unreasoning desire to secure a home, coupled with the hardships experienced during the last week many are on the verge of nervous prostration and total collapse."

"In all parts of the second floor, lying in groups, are men, women and even little children, who have not inhaled a breath of fresh air for almost a week for fear of losing their positions in line."

The whole article seems to have been inspired by the fact that yesterday one man came up there and started to make trouble. The others says he was intoxicated, at any rate the police took care of him.

As to the women, they go home at night, if they choose, and, when they come back in the morning find their places in the line reserved and again take them. The men have determined that this shall be done. There are no children camped there. At times some have come in to see their parents and have played around for a time, but none of them stay there through the vigil.

The statement that "the settlers are the lower type of foreigners" is absolutely untrue. In fact it is somewhat singular that most of them are American born and all speak English, and are intelligent and respectable people to all appearances. Four of them, by the way, are ball players of the Northern-Copper Country league, O'Dea, Fagin, Schurch and Treadway. About half the entire number are citizens of Duluth.

At times in such a gathering there will often appear an individual who does not realize that he must recognize law and order and so there have been one or two in this crowd, but the men have very quickly shown them their duty and they have observed it.

Tomorrow morning they will separate themselves into three lines, those who wish to enter in the town opening Tuesday taking the first, those for the town opening Wednesday the second, and those for the town opening Thursday the third.

Any one visiting the building will find a quiet orderly lot of people conducting themselves as men and women should, and people undeserving of the notoriety that they have been given.

SOCIETY OF ARTS AND CRAFTS

Duluth Women Organize to Promote Them in Duluth.

Duluth now boasts a Society of Arts and Crafts, and though it is but an infant, it appears to be sturdy and healthy, and is expected to develop to well-rounded dimensions as the years advance. This society has been established for the furtherance of the arts and crafts in Duluth. This city, having so large a foreign element in its population, it was surmised by some far-sighted women that there must be many persons among the different nationalities who had learned in their fatherland some of the arts and crafts so well understood among the workers of the countries of Europe, such as artistic work in metals, leather, wood, bookbinding, illuminating, modeling in clay, weaving, lace making, etc. It is hoped that this society may be the means of bringing to light much of this work, now unknown and unappreciated, and inciting in those acquainted with it a desire to do better and more efficient work, by creating a demand for it, and thus affording a market for the productions of these workers.

The first meeting was held about the last of September, at the home of Mrs. Henry C. Marshall, when the forming of such a society was discussed, and committees were appointed to ascertain the address and ability of some of these crafts men and women.

On the afternoon of Nov. 8 a second meeting was held in the club room of the library, Mrs. Henry C. Marshall presiding, to discuss the work done, and to organize a society. The following ladies were appointed as committees for the different branches of the work: Metals, Miss Carey; leather work, Miss Bainbridge; laces, Miss Everett; wood carving, Miss Bainbridge and Miss Jean Poirier; pottery, Miss Jennie Thompson; bookbinding and book plates, Miss Lydia Poirier; weaving, Mrs. T. J. Davis, Miss May Shannon and Miss Ella Roe; illuminating, Mrs. Weston; and designing, Mrs. Robert Seymour.

Mrs. J. R. Giffert was appointed as chairman, and Mrs. A. B. Sievert as secretary.

It had been proposed to have an exhibit including a loan collection for sale before Christmas, but many of the workers found it difficult to get articles ready in that short time, and it was decided to postpone the exhibit until the week after Easter, to be held Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of that week. A room has been secured in the library, where articles may be sent, and kept safely under lock and key, and the exhibit will be held in the club room of the library. Mr. Bradley has very kindly offered to do the necessary printing, and Mr. Silberstein to furnish and place the show cases.

Anyone who does work in any kind of these crafts, and wishes to exhibit will refer to the committee having charge of the craft. Any information desired may be obtained by applying to Miss Lydia Porier at the public library, corner of Second avenue west and Second street.

It was decided to levy a tax of 5 per cent on each sale, in order to help meet the expenses of the exhibit. It is hoped that an interest may be awakened in this movement, and that American born children may learn to appreciate the worth of the craft learned by their parents in the old country, and study such work; and that they may be proud to learn it, is one object of this society; that these arts and crafts may not fall unused and forgotten, but that they may be fostered. It will be necessary to have judges of the merit of the work brought in, and for this work, Miss Carey, Mrs. Robert Seymour, Miss Poirier, and Mrs. Weston were appointed. The society will try to keep in touch with the national society, and will doubtless become a part of that organization.

GRAND JURY IS DISCHARGED

Completes It's Work With the Return of Several Indictments.

The grand jury completed its work for the present term of the district court by returning several indictments, this morning. Only four of these are made public, the parties accused being in custody. The court thanked the grand jurors for the prompt service, and discharged them from further attendance for the term.

Joseph Ubald Riopel was indicted for forgery in the second degree. It is charged that he passed a check for $120 on John H. Dight, Oct. 27, which had the counterfeit signature of J. S. Thomas.

Joseph Sokolowski was indicted for grand larceny in the second degree. It is claimed that he stole $260 from Ignatz Novorski in the Northern Lumber Company's camp, No. 3, about seven miles from Brookston.

Lawrence Keenan was indicted on two counts, for grand larceny, second degree. Keenan is charged with stealing the overcoat of W. C. Sargent from his office in the Providence building, and of David Hood, from his office in the Mesaba building. The theft is alleged to have taken place Oct. 25.

HILL TO "CUT THE MELON"

Expected to Distribute Ore Deal Fruits Next Month.

New York, Nov. 10.—James J. Hill, accompanied by several members of his family, left for St. Paul yesterday. He will return to New York Dec. 1, when it is expected he will "cut a melon" for the benefit of Great Northern and Northern Pacific stockholders.

The great ore deal is to be financed and it is supposed in Wall street that a new holding company will be formed, the shares of which will be distributed as a bonus to the stockholders of the Hill companies.

RESCUED FROM OPEN BOAT.

Captain and Crew of British Bark Forced to Abandon Ship.

Halifax, N. S., Nov. 10.—Rescued at sea after they had abandoned their vessel, which sprang a leak during heavy weather, the captain and crew of the British bark, Marion C., arrived here today on the Norwegian steamer Farnand. The crew worked at the pumps until the vessel was full of water. Then they abandoned her and embarked in an open boat. They managed to keep afloat until they were sighted by the Farmand and rescued.

BREAKING OF AN EMPRESS

At last the Russian terror has broken down the steel nerves and the iron constitution of one who has been described as the most high spirited and calmly courageous woman that the present generation has seen. This is the dowager empress of Russia, sister to the kings of Denmark and Greece and the queen of England and mother of Czar Nicholas II. Her husband was the late Alexander III, one of the few Russian emperors who have been allowed to die decently in bed.

While the empress is 69, and has lived since she was a girl in the health destroying Russian court, she was, until two years ago, a person of remarkably youthful appearance, slim figure nd buoyantly hopeful disposiiton. She even rivaled her sister, Alexandra of England, who is only three years her senior, in the exquisite preservation of all her charms.

Though never at any time has she boasted the beauty of the English queen, she has always rejoiced in the possession of an intellectual vivacity that was inherited from her mother, Queen Louise of Denmark, and like old Queen Louise, Dagmar, as she has always been called in spite of her change of name on entering the Russian church, was deeply and determinedly ambitious. Moreover, she was her shrewd mother's favorite daughter, and to her marriage the consort of the good and mild old King Christian devoted the great diplomatic skill she possessed. Nothing, indeed, in all her long and successful life gave Queen Louise the satisfaction that she derived from the union of her second daughter, in 1866, with the then czarevitch of Russia, who later became Emperor Alexander III.

Fortunately the mother-in-law of Europe, as Queen Louise was sometimes called, died before troubles thick and fast began to fall in the path of her child. For all gossip to the contrary, and in spite of the severe etiquette of the Russian court, as well as the very gloomy temperament of Emperor Alexander, and the daily peril in which Russian rulers have lived since the rise of nihilism, Dagmar was for years one of the happiest women on thrones in Europe.

Some of the old viking spirit of her ancestors was in the blood of tall, slim Dagmar; it shone in her big, brilliant sea blue eyes, and it is declared by those who helped to guard her and were with her in moments of surprise and danger that she never seemed to understand the meaning of the word fear. Not once or twice, but frequently in her career as wife of the heir, and then of the occupant of the Russian throne did she look death in the face as it threatened herself, her husband and her children, and never once was she known to blanch or shiver or lose her presence of mind. She knew that poison, the knife, a bullet or a bomb might at any instant hurl her into eternity, or snatch one of her loved ones from her, always her giant husband brooded over the possibility of a quick and terrible end, but she kept ever a light and confident heart.

The greater the danger through which she passed the more dauntless she became, and no warnings could induce her at first to take any special care of herself.

All through those brilliant but menaced days of her early married life she was stimulated to what appeared to be foolhardy exposure. She professed a superstitious belief in a charm resting on her life. Until recently she never faltered in the faith that she was not fated to fall by an assassin's hand.

"Neither is the emperor," she once serenely asserted to a friend who congratulated her on an escape from murder; and then she told the story of a gypsy prophecy made in her youth.

A Romany lass, it seems, promised Dagmar, when she was only 10, and when her father was a seemingly obscure and certainly poverty-stricken king, that she would ultimately marry the greatest king on earth, that he would die before her, and that she would live to a great age and enjoy a quiet and conventional end.

The first part of the gypsy's promise having come true, the empress undoubtedly for years believed fully in the rest. She lived surrounded by soldiers, in palaces filled with watchers and spies, fitted with sounding boards and mirrors to reflect every whisper and every form, with trap doors and secret passages to afford easy means of escape, but she preserved her light heartedness, her contempt of fear, and it was not until after an all but successful effort was made on the life of her son, Michael, while he was an infant in arms, that she yielded to her husband's entreaties and learned how to wear, concealed, a small dagger and a tiny pistol, after the fashion of most royal Russian ladies.

Yet even in the attempts upon herself and her child the fearless Dagmar showed herself a good deal of a heroine. In this woman—it happened years ago—it was a woman, a nihilist, who got into the palace and into the imperial apartments. She had come dressed as one of the royal nurses and she found the empress alone with the baby grand duke in her arms.

At a flash in the very opening of the door the quick witted Dagmar saw that there had been treachery, and before the bogus nurse could lift her arms to strike or fire, the young mother, with a smile seemingly of relief at the sight of the nurse, hastily stepped forward as if to lay the child in the woman's arms. As she did so she pretended to stumble and, grasping the would-be assassin around the arms, gave a loud cry.

In an instant, of course, the room was filled with guards, and the intruder was caught and carried away, but the empress sat down in an arm chair to laugh heartily at her own quickness of action and to comfort her baby boy. Never had any Russian empress been more esteemed than she in the earlier years of her married life. It was plain to even the common folk and peasants that she not only loved her husband dearly, but exerted a softening influence upon him. She had learned with amazing quickness to speak the Russian language, she accepted the Russian religion and her Russian name, Marie Feodorovna, with honest enthusiasm, and the Russian court etiquette and national customs were adopted by her with seeming delight.

Her superb health and the zest with which she could endure the severest round not only of exhausting court entertainments, but still more exhausting religious ceremonies, were also recommendations to popularity. How much the empress prized her popularity and the authority that came from it is indicated by the grief she now suffers because it has vanished and she has been hunted out of the country in which once she was so esteemed.

But how much that popularity rested on the good advice and affectionate control exercised by her husband can only be measured by the fact that from the moment of his death it began to wane.

Twenty-eight years of lofty position as the wife of the most powerful monarch in the world had not fitted the still youthful Dagmar for dowagerhood, which in Russia is usually no position at all so far as influence is concerned. She was only 46 when Alexander died, and, immediately after his death the Russian people fairly wept like children at her knees.

They knew the story of those heavy months when she had tenderly and with her two strong white hands nursed her husband; they saw her go through the ordeal of his funeral without flinching or excusing herself from one of the duties of it, and they were not at all inclined to like the new empress.

Some good people just at this time drew a pretty picture of the dowager in retirement and cultivating the art of being a grandmother, but the vigorous Dagmar had no notion at all of doing that. Though as a wife and mother she had been a thorough success, as a mother-in-law she made haste to display another side of her character and, seeing that Nicholas was no such man as his father and thinking his wife, pretty Alix of Hesse, a weakling, too, she decided to remain in Russia and take a strong hand in directing big affairs.

Though her husband, doting in many things as he had been, had never shared with her his state cares, Dagmar was ever a good friend of most of his brothers and his uncles, and the grand dukes courted her aid and influence in managing Nicholas II. It was thus indeed and unfortunately that this woman was brought into the snares of politics and quickly down to her ruin.

She hated to give up her crown to her daughter-in-law, to get out of her rooms in the palaces; and though Alexander had left her tremendously rich in money and jewels, she passionately resented giving up the use of the great regalia and the lesser crown gems that only an empress consort is privileged to wear. Notorious at the time was the struggle that went on for months between daughter and mother-in-law over a certain set of marvelous pearls that the dowager all but refused to resign. And so, from bad to worse, went the domestic situation until the contest between the two women was extended from the question of pearls to the right to influence the son and husband.

For some years, the dowager held her power over her son. It is probable that she advised him to follow his father's policy and she still held one of the trump cards in her game with her daughter-in-law, because lacking the birth of a son to Nicholas the Grand Duke George was heir to the throne.

But somehow with the death of her husband Dagmar's long run of luck came to an abrupt end. Grand Duke George died miserably of lung trouble and at his death his mother not only suffered, but the loss seemed to harden her. At court she formed a party devoted to her interests, she invested great sums of money in vague mismanaged Manchurian enterprises, she dabbled in dangerous politics, and so from being the most loved she came to be the most detested woman in Eastern Europe.

Violent accusations of extravagance, of keeping in her pay an army of spies, whose business it was to ferret out the names of the plotters against her life and that of the grand duke Michael, the only son save Nicholas now left, were brought against her by her enemies. They even went further and accused her of advising the grand duke Sergius to some of his worst acts of oppression, of counseling Nicholas to wholesale murder of his subjects.

In the present inflammable state of the Russian people a word of the revolutionists against the dowager empress was enough to incite the unkindest beliefs, and two years ago her name appeared in the list of individuals to be exterminated by the terrorists. Not only was her name included on the list, but formal warning, as is usual, was sent her.

At first she refused to believe it. She even laughed at it as she had been wont to laugh years ago when death came near her. Nevertheless, her children, the chief among them the czar, urged her to place herself beyond the reach of her enemies. Whispers blew about to the effect that the czar would give into his mother's hand his heir and only son, and that with the child she would retire to Denmark to wait for fairer skies to shine on troubled Russia.

Then, indeed, she might have done so, for the terrorists in their manifesto expressed a willingness to erase her name from the list of the condemned provided she would leave the empire never to return.

But the empress, thus put upon her mettle, refused to flee, and she also refused to leave the neighborhood of the czar. For months she stayed by her son, who is devoted to her, and not a little did she succeed, they say, in strengthening him by her calm courage and by skillfully nursing the czarevitch back to health at a time when no nurse or physician was sufficiently trusted for the task. Then a truce was declared between the mother and the daughter-in-law, for common danger has drawn the royal Russians very close together.

Last spring in the palace at Tsarskoe-Selo an attempt was again made on the dowager's life. One rumor says that the abortive effort was made by Mlle. Konopliannoko, who recently suffered for the murder of Gen. Minn, but another rumor is that it was an old and trusted servant friend of the dowager who tried to execute the orders of the terrorists.

However that may be, no one doubts the main fact that the empress' taking off was very neatly accomplished and by poison. From the effects of whatever drug was used Dagmar, despite her powerful constitution, was slow in making recovery, while she emerged from the trial with diminished courage and her nerves shattered.

What become of the would-be assassin or who he or she may have been no one seems to know outside that mysterious circle of royal Russians who still have their police and bodyguard to protect their tragical secrets. But it is certain that as soon as she was able to drag herself out of bed the panic stricken dowager decided to flee for her life.

The way of escape was still open to her, but the threat was made by the revolutionary societies that it no longer matters to which country she goes or how obscurely and harmlessly in the future she lives; the determination yet remains to take her life. Now no promise of the Vehmgericht in the fourteenth or fifteenth centuries ever carried with it more certainty of death than this warning for not once but many times has it been proved that the terrorists seek to live up to their vows.

The death of Trepoff, who was officially only the victim of heart trouble, a recent murder in Lausanne and the fall of Gen. Minn, who was followed for months before the fatal blow was struck, were all cases in point that determined the czar's mother to begin a strange fight for her life.

Though many courts in various parts of Europe were thrown open to the fugitive she was in a way not free to accept any of her many invitations. The expedient she hit upon was of quite another sort.

Last May in an obscure Swedish port a big black yacht cast anchor and was boarded by two or three persons in the plainest clothes. Nobody was allowed near the boat, no name was upon her bow or stern; in the night she disappeared and about the same time it leaked out that the dowager empress and her son, the grand duke Michael, had with a few trusted friends and servants left Russia.

Since that afternoon late in May the former empress of all the Russias has rarely or never set her foot on shore. She has made her home with her son on the yacht, voluntarily exiled herself to no land, but has gone wandering forth, a hunted, proscribed creature, heart and health broken to escape on the face of the waters the assassin's hand.

There, at least, on the sea she feels herself safe, or comparatively so, and the white Pole Star is the only home to which she may now lay claim. This swift pleasure boat is large and luxurious, and was equipped at a German port with every modern appliance to insure comfort and safety. It carries wireless apparatus, a crew of picked men highly paid and scarcely ever allowed shore leave and on board there are such sinews of war stowed as would make the capture of the Pole Star a trying and difficult task.

And in roomy quarters the Dowager Dagmar has settled down to live through a sad period of waiting for the end of Romanoff rule or for the dawning of a Richter day. But since the shattering of her nerves her former indifference to danger has gone.

Her hair in the last year has turned as white as bleached linen, a harassed, worried look has replaced the old brave glint in her Norse blue eyes and she keeps a heavy guard close about her.

Her greatest confidence is placed in her dumb protectors—her stately canine companions—who never leave her side. One of these dogs is a magnificent brute, more powerful than a man, from the Bernese Oberland and the other is a famous Borzois called Sandringham-Moscow.

The Russian hound, a very prince of his intelligent race, was born in Queen Alexandria's kennels, and since his puppyhood has been the empress' pet and companion. Sandringham sleeps with William Tell, the Bernese dog, beside his mistress' bed.

More keen than her anxiety for herself is the dowager's daily fear for her son, Michael, who lives with her. Should the very worst be realized in Russia, as it was realized more than a century ago by royalty in France, at least she has preserved a true son of the royal line, who may yet live to ascend the throne of a new Russia, or his sons may. But for herself in the future, it is plain that the cowed dowager expects little.

The greatest part of the time she steams and lingers about the shores of Denmark or anchors off Copenhagen and receives her own family—her sisters, Alexandria and Thyra, the Duchess of Cumberland and King Frederick. With them she feel herself safe, but save secretly, perhaps at night, she dares not go to Charlotten lund, to old Bernstoff manor house, where she and her husband used to visit and enjoy themselves in simple wise in the days of King Christian's life, and she has refused her brother's many offers of a quiet home in one of his pleasant and smaller country houses.

So strict indeed is her retirement that, save for one visit on board the royal English yacht in which Queen Alexandra travels, she has scarcely left the white decks of her own boat for another habitation afloat or shore. To tell the truth, she dares not; the horror of assassination is upon her, and although she has plans for sharing the Villa Hvidoere, near Copenhagen, which Queen Alexandria has bought as a sort of holiday lodge for herself and her children, she can not find courage to come on shore to look at the progress of its decoration.

By wireless telegraph and through her people in Denmark, she receives daily news of the progress of anarchy in Russia, trembling to hear what has befallen her children, who are still there, and at last she has lost faith even in the promises of the Gypsy prophecies. As was the case with her husband, she is now possessed by a belief that she will not die comfortably in her bed.

PACKING TRUST CASES LAID OVER FOR MONTH.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—The trial of the charges against the various packing companies under indictments alleging a combination in restraint of trade and commerce was today postponed until Dec. 10, neither the counsel for the government nor the packing companies being ready to proceed.

REMARKS—The market has been dull and listless with slight declines for the ending of the week, and though the prices are firm, it is hard to get buyers and sellers together. The only disturbing element against an advance is the tight money market, and until that is relieved, nothing much can be expected. We hear particular good news on Mexico Consolidated, which has just declared its second dividend, and will give further particulars about this property within the coming week.

If you wish, we shall be much pleased to execute your orders either way, and as it is to our interest to do the very best for you, we shall be very glad to do business for you, as we have the very best of connections both in the New York and Boston markets; and where your orders are requested forwarded to Boston or New York for execution, you will not be called upon for payment until the stock is here, which will give you ample time to meet payments between the receipt of confirmation and delivery of the stock. Try us; it may be to your interest to do so.

TRAINED WHALES.

New York Sun: "Whales," said Skipper Bill Spinks of the little schooner Gussie, which is lying in the stream off Liberty Island, "whales is curious fish.

"There is folks as will tell you that whales ain't fish at all, but I happens to know better than that. Haven't they got tails and don't they swim in the water just like any oeher fish? Then, says I, fish they is. Mammals you may call them, and cetaceans, and you may call the old girl whale cows, and the old fellows bulls, but to my way o' thinking they is fish.

"Fished for 'em myself many's the time, and some I harpooned, but of course not in the Gussie. No, the Gussie ain't big enough for that, and she ain't got more'n enough room for half a whaleboat's crew, but fished for 'em I did, along with my father, sailing out of New Bedford in the days when there warn't no coal oil, and folks used to burn sperm, if they could buy it.

"What I wants to tell about is the school that we seen off the Jersey coast this last trip. Biggest school ever I see—so big I guess I almost ought to call it a university, and I would, only folks generally says school, which is just one more proof that whales is fish.

"There they was swimmin' about us 'most all the time south of the Delaware Breakwater and this side o' the Frying Pan shoals. Sometimes they was close aboard, and then they would haul away to the nor'ard and we wouldn't see 'em for a day or so; but they always come back, and we brought 'em with us clean up to the Hook.

"I tried mighty hard to get one or two of 'em to come along inside, so's I could send one to the fish circus at the Battery, where Jenny Lind used to sing, and get another to go down to Coney, so's folks could see for themselves that whales is fish.

"But I didn't have no luck this time. Soon as I can get this cargo o' logwood out the Gussie, back I am going off the Jersey shore an' make a deal to get that whole blamed school near some summer hotel. Guess it will pay better'n hauling logwood, an' the Gussie's too darned slow to go after bananas. They'd get ripe and rot in her hold before she could make Tybee light.

"Think I am talkin' through this old hat o' mine, do you? Well, I ain't, and there ain't nobody what knows better what to do than I does. That school is trained and I can do pretty much what I please with it. Couldn't get it to come inside the Hook, of course, because it was afraid that I might turn it into whalebone and stuff; but since they has seen that I am straitlaced and won't do no mean tricks, I can get it to play around a summer hotel as easy as fallin' off a bowsprit in a gale of wind. You'll see that I can tell the truth.

"There ain't many critters likeller than what whales is. They got to be that, else one of 'em couldn't swallow a mon whole and carry him about for weeks at a time.

"That fellow's name was Jonah and they would have named me after him if they had known what kind o' luck I was goin' to have all the time. I'll be that if I could trace back far enough I could skin some of these aristocrats to death. Talk about landin' with William the Conqueror—why, I am just as certain as I am that I am livin' that that Jonah was a direct ancestor.

"Them whales out there seems to think so too, by the way they followed the Gussie, and I guess that if ever the crew took the notion in their heads to chuck me overboard there would be one of them whales right there to bring me back to little old Manhattan.

"I was sittling on the taffrail the other night, smoking my pipe after supper, when one o' that school swims up alongside and cocks his eye up at me as much as to say that he would like to make friends. The fellow at the wheel was keeping his eye on the peak of the foresail, steering by the wind, and didn't see it, else I could prove it; but that whale certainly did wink and what is more he said 'Hello!'

"Now that's a whole lot for some whales to do, but this fellow did, and I answered him back as good as I could, though I can't speak much whale talk. However, we fixed it all up and he's boing to get the rest of the bunch to go into the business of showing theirselves off hotels. There is a lot of money to be made out of it, and the whales won't have to go off up north in the winter time to be hunted to death by whalers. All they will have to do will be to go down to Florida and the West Indies and swim about while I goes ashore and collects from the proprietors of the hotels.

"By and by we can extend our business to whales in all parts of the world. I think that I'll go up in Wall street and see if I can't get the company capitalized. Seems to me it would be a good way to float bonds and then folks couldn't make no nasty remarks about watering stocks and about sharks. Whales is what they would be dealing in, and of course the whales couldn't be without the water. Which is another proof that they is fish and not mammals.

"The more I think this over the bigger it all seems and sometimes it seems that thre ain't no end to the possibilities. Remarks about whaling big proposition and all that we don't want."

The skipper paused, refilled his pipe and smoked for a time in silence. Then a great light came into his eyes.

"Young fellow," said he, "I have been lying to you all this time. I own that school of whales. The business is on a paying basis and I came here on the Gussie to charter a 1,500-ton steam yacht. I won't let anybody have any stock in the company. At present I am only showing the whales off hotels; but we have agreed to kill so many of the old whales each year and cut them up for the blubber and bone, to say nothing of the ambergris and such like. It's one of the younger whales that saw into that end of the business. We are going to have refineries and a system of submarine pipe lines to carry the oil into all the big cities. It will be so cheap that persons will use it instead of gas and electricity.

"Have you got a cigar about you? All the whalebone we have produced lately we sold to a corset factory, and as it is a tight squeeze for them to get money just now I am short. Thanks.

"But don't you let any one tell you that whales ain't fish—they is suckers and suckers of the biggest kind, else I never could have got 'em in the combine."

PAVING IS DISCUSSED

Commercial Club Members Take Up Street Improvements.

Another Light Attendance at Meeting—No Important Business.

The attendance at the meeting of the Commercial club was not very much improved last evening over that of a week ago, but the members are hoping that more interest may be worked up after a few weeks. Several matters of importance were discussed at the meeting, which was held in the club rooms over the Western State bank, but nothing definite was decided in any of the cases.

The paving proposition, which has been before the people of West Duluth for several weeks now since the petition concerning Ramsey street was sent to the Swingle store, was discussed among the members, and various plans were taken to further the matter. It was the sentiment of the members that Central avenue should receive some consideration, as well as Ramsey street, and its improvement will probably be agitated at the same time that an attempt is made to have the latter street paved. The matter of extending Ramsey across the railroad tracks was considered an excellent plan.

One of the members suggested that the slaughter house which is situated on Oneota street should not be allowed to remain in such a central part of West Duluth, but the club took no action in the matter. The meeting was presided over by President M. M. Clark.

NEARLY LOSES HIS EAR.

An Italian Is Slightly Injured In Accident at Red Cliff Mill.

A painful, although not a serious injury, was sustained yesterday by an Italian, Dominic Frazio, while he was working at the Red Cliff Lumber company's mill. Frazio could not give a very good account of the accident, but stated that something had been caught in the machinery, and had then struck him on the head. His ear was almost completely severed, and Frazio would have lost it, probably, if he had not hung on to it with his hand. He was taken to the Duluth hospital, where a physician attended him. A few stitches were taken and the ear placed in position. It is not thought that the man will have any serious trouble on account of the injury.

WILL BE MISSION MEETINGS.

Those at Holy Apostles Church Are to Promote Interest.

Rev. Roderick J. Mooney of the Holy Apostles Episcopal church wishes it understood that the special services which are to be held in a few days are not missionary meetings, but are mission meetings, held to promote interest in the church and the work which it is doing. The meetings will be the first of a series to be held at various churches throughout the city.

The members of the Young Ladies' Guild of the Holy Apostles church will hold a "Martha Washington" skating party at the Lincoln park roller rink, Thursday evening of next week. The young ladies will be attired in costumes of the Martha Washington or colonial styles.

Royal League Will Meet.

The regular meeting of the Royal League will be held next Tuesday evening at their lodge rooms, over the Western State bank. At the last regular meeting the club decided to purchase a piano, but did not decide where or the kind to purchase. At the coming meeting the committee will again report, and the members will decide definitely what piano to install. The club members are considering having a card party at their lodge rooms some time this month, and the entertainment committee will probably take the matter up and make the preparations.

HURLED AROUND WHEEL.

Farmer's Clothing is Caught In Portable Mill Machinery.

Brainerd, Minn., Nov. 10.—Caught in the shafting of a portable saw mill, John Chilleen, living near Garrison, was hurled violently around the drum wheel and was so badly injured that fear is expressed for his recovery. The mill had just been erected, and was being given a trial run. As the engine was started, Chilleen's clothing got caught in the machinery, and before steam could be turned off he had been whirled several times around the shaft.

WILL PROBE BIG SYSTEM

Commerce Commission Plans to Look Into Harriman Merger.

Combine Like That of Northern Securities is Charged.

Washington, Nov. 10.—A general investigation of what is known as the Harriman system of railroads, has been discussed by the interstate commerce commission, but because of the pressure of work now before the commission and the great amount of labor and time involved in such an undertaking, no decision has been reached as to when the proposed inquiry shall begin or the methods to be followed in securing the information desired.

"We have been informed," a member of the commission said last night, "that this system in some of its features is not unlike the Northern Securities company, which was dissolved through the interposition of the attorney general of the United States."

Any steps which may be taken by the commission, will be, it is said, in accordance with the general powers conferred by law and not because of any immediate specific complaint of a violation of the statutes.

In January, if time permits, the commission will take up the complaint of the municipality of Spokane against the Northern Pacific, the Great Northern, the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, the Union Pacific, and the Oregon Short Line railroads, involving alleged discrimination in charging a higher rate for a shorter than for a longer haul. This was the first filed with the commission under the amended interstate commerce act. It is regarded as of considerable importance, as its disposition will logically have a bearing on the whole question of transportation in the West from the Canadian border to Mexico and Chicago and St. Louis to the Pacific coast. It is also of importance with the proposed investigation of the Harriman system, whose territory and connecting lines cover a large portion of the West.

COMMITTEE ON ARRANGEMENTS.

NOTHING DOING ON LOUISIANA

The President's Wireless Operator Reports All Well During Trip.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 10.—The wireless station at Cape Henry at 9 a. m., was in touch with the battleship Louisiana bearing President Roosevelt and party to the Isthmus of Panama. The operator reported "nothing doing," meaning that all was well on the ship, and that President Roosevelt had no message to send at that time. The operator did not give the exact location of the Louisiana.

WRECKED BY BROKEN RAIL.

Illinois Central Train off Track and Fifteen Persons Injured.

Bloomington, Ill., Nov. 10.—The Nashville special, on the Illinois Central railroad, north bound, was wrecked today at Buckley, the whole train leaving the track. None of the coaches turned over. Fifteen of the passengers and train crew were more or less injured, none fatally. The baggageman was badly bruised and the cook in the dining car was precipitated against the cooking range by the shock and severely burned. The accident was caused by a broken rail.

GREAT SALE OF TICKETS

Reported That Twin Cities Have Sold Their Allotment.

The city ticket offices of the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Omaha roads in Duluth are besieged with demands for tickets to the Minnesota-Carlisle football game, to be played on Northrop field next Saturday. It is reported that all the tickets are already disposed of in the Twin Cities, and that Duluth is about the only place in the state where they are to be obtained.

All three offices have a block of seats either on the way or already here. The Northern Pacific ordered 100 in the first place, which arrived yesterday, but the demand for them has been so heavy that another 100 has been ordered. Up to 10 o'clock this morning, fifty had been disposed of, and the indications were that the whole 200 would be snapped up by Monday night. Telephone requests have been received in Duluth from Minneapolis asking that some of the seats be returned, which shows how heavy the demand must be down below.

Probably a bigger crowd of rooters from Duluth will attend the game than ever before on a similar occasion. Extra cars will be run on trains out of Duluth the day and night preceding the game, but the service between the Head of the Lakes and the Twin Cities is so very good that it is not likely it will be found necessary to run special trains, although this may be resorted to. When the batch of tickets now here is disposed of, with those on the way, it is hardly possible that any more will be secured for Duluth, so it behooves all enthusiasts who intend going to the game to get their applications in early.

The railroads betwen the Twin Cities and Chicago were scarcely able to handle the football business yesterday and last night. Several thousand people took advantage of the low rates to go to the Windy City, and most of them will see the big game today between Chicago and Minnesota. Two hundred or 300 people went out of Duluth alone. The Omaha got most of the business, as being the most direct line.

BOERS START AN OUTBREAK

Band From German Colony Makes Raid on Cape Police.

Capetown, Cape Colony, Nov. 10.—In the northwestern part of Cape Colony, a party of Boers led by a man named Ferreira, recently employed in German Southwest Africa, surprised a police camp in the vicinity of Witkop, wounded two troopers, seized their arms and ammunition and subsequently captured a corporal of police.

At Abiquasaar, Fererria, a Transvaal Colony Boer, gained some recruits and marched to Swert Medder, about twenty-five miles from the frontier, where he is reported to be compelling the farmers to join his forces, asserting that an uprising in the Transvaal is imminent.

The colonial government has adopted measures to suppress the disorder.

GORED BY A BULL.

John Bragnight Seriously Injured on His Farm Near Eveleth.

Eveleth, Minn., Nov. 10.—John Bragnight, a farmer living near this city, was gored by a bull yesterday afternoon and so serious are his wounds, that chances for his recovery are thought by the attending physician to be against him. At the time of the accident, Bragnight was crossing the field in which the animal was feeding. No thought of danger entered his mind until he heard the bull snorting and running at his back. He sidestepped in time to avoid the first rush of the infuriated beast, and then took for the nearest fence. Before he could get to the fence the bull caught him on his horns and hurled him into the air, landing him in an adjoining field. He was found last evening by some of the hired men and taken to his home.

BUYS BIG TIMBER TRACTS.

More Than $1,000,000 Is Paid by Purchasing Company.

International Falls, Minn., Nov. 10.—Deeds conveying some large timber tracts to the Rainy Lake company have been filed with the register of deeds. The total consideration named is $1,422,792. The largest amount paid for a single tract was that purchased from Alexander Stewart and Walter Alexander, where the consideration named is $689,500. The other conveyances run from Louis Levy, for $240,000; M. S. Stein and Henry Turrish, $230,000; R. C. Parcher and others, $124,425; Alexander J. and Thomas B. Keith, $100,000; Alexander Stewart and others, $61,075.

COPPER WAS TOO CLOSE

Dan Owen Says Police Did Not Give Him a Chance.

Tells Court How His Enemy Made Treacherous Attack.

With his head bruised and eye blacked from contact with a fist and the sidewalk curb, Dan Owen, at least that is the name assumed for the time to be the right one, stood undaunted in the municipal court, this morning and took his medicine in the way of a fine for disorderly conduct.

"Yer see, yer honor, it was just like this," and Dan started to give his version of the trouble. "I was standing at the corner of Lake aveney and Superior street wid me bundle under me arm when George Anderson hove in sight. Him and me have a grudge uf long sandin' and, of course there was a chewin' match started. I invited him up in the alley to have it out but, nixie, George wasn't that kind of a feller. He refused to go, but when I turned me back on him, he up and hits me behind the ear and I goes to the ground. I guess I struck me eye on the curb.

"Of course yer honer sees I got the worst of it. That was just de foist round, but if the copper hadn't butted in and stopped de game just as I was getting in shape to de me work in de second round there would have been a diffrunt story to tell. That's de way of de ting anyway, when you want a cop dey is never around, but when dey is not wanted they are altogeder too previous. Dey stopped the fun and pinched us both before things even got started.

"Dat's de way it happened yer honer. I know it was in a very exposed part of the city, but if I had my way we would have settled it in the alley where nobody would have been disturbed, and de copper could have been referee.

"On the dead, jedge, dis is the foist time I have ever clapped me eyes on the interior of yer palatial palace, and I tink you ought to give me a little credit for showing up. I didn't have any money wid me when they pinched me, but the police let me go on me promise to be here this morning."

Judge Windom decided that so long as Anderson had put up $12 bail and forfeited it, that Owen should be given about $2 the best of the deal by reason of his keeping his promise to appear in the court, so the fine was fixed at $8 and costs making the total $10. Owen again urged to the court the "credit" he should be given by reason of his appearance, and his eloquence finally won a concession, the court reducing the fine to $5 and costs, or a total of $7. This amount Owen paid, and left the court room with a smile over his damaged countenance, as he thought how he got the best of the deal over Anderson, anyway.

Fred Goss, who pleaded to a charge of assault, was given the option of a fine of $3.50 or three days in the county jail. Four men, registered as common drunks, were fined small amounts with the alternative of becoming Sheriff Bates' boarders for a few days.

LICENSES GO LIKE HOT CAKES

County Auditor Has Big Run on Hunting Permits.

Applicants for hunting licenses were so numerous at the county auditor's office this morning that they were standing about awaiting their turn to make affidavit, pay the fee of one dollar and receive the license which will permit them to slay big game between the present date and Nov. 30.

Up to this noon 1,195 hunting licenses had been issued by the county auditor, which is nearly the number that were issued for the whole county last year. The demand for licenses has been a record breaker this year, and it is possible that the total number issued, when that occurs, will be in the neighborhood of 1,500, possibly more.

Among those who obtained licenses this morning was Robert M. Stitt, who returned yesterday from one of his camps. Mr. Stitt says that his party has killed enough ducks and partridges to last them until next spring, and that they have enough deer located to fill the full quota allowed each man under the law. The exact figures that Mr. Stitt mentioned are witheld for fear his friends might embarrass him with expression of unbelief.

CUTTING DOWN HOCH'S VOTE

Officials Returns Make Kansas Governorship Decidedly Close.

Topeka, Kan., Nov. 10.—Official returns came in more rapidly today and the general effect was to cut down Governor Hoch's plurality, as shown by the unofficial reports. With forty-three counties received, this plurality was cut to 2,729. He gained three in Rocks and twenty-five in Osage counties, while Harris made a gain of 126 in Sedgwick county.

COUGHS UP FALSE TEETH

And Grocer Given Up for Dead Now Has Health.

Cincinnati, Nov. 10.—F. H. Bemis, a grocer of this city, was dying by inches. He had the word of three physicians and innumerable friends for that.

One medical man informed him that the great white plague was going to carry him to an untimely grave. Bemis alternated between pills, powders and coughs. He could not eat or sleep.

Yesterday he was attacked by an unusually severe coughing spell, which resulted in his expelling from somewhere inside of him a set of false teeth, which he had missed since last June. He had fallen asleep with them in his mouth, and swallowed them. He now shows no symptoms of consumption or other disease.

INSANE MAN

Makes Murderous Attack on His Mother With Butcher Knife.

Appleton, Wis., Nov. 10.—George Horner, proprietor of a butcher shop, yesterday went violently insane and attacked his mother. It is feared she cannot live, being cut from head to foot by the murderous hand of her son, who used a butcher knife.

Horner went to the chicken coop and killed thirty prize hens and when his mother, not knowing he was insane, attempted to make him stop, he attacked her with the knife. He is in the padded cell of the police station after being overpowered in a desperate fight.

KANSAS RAILROAD WINS CONTEST FOR THOUSANDS OF ACRES OF LAND

Topeka, Kas., Nov. 10.—Thousands of acres of the most valuable farm land in Kansas, together with a large amount of land in towns and cities of the state is given to the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railroad, by a decision rendered today, by the Kansas supreme court in the case of that railroad against one Watson.

In July, 1866, congress granted to the Union Pacific railroad, Southern branch, now the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railroad, a right of way 200 feet wide to the South line of the state, a distance of about 150 miles. Afterward patents were issued to private persons for land through which the road runs, without excepting the right of way. The persons holding these patents have treated the right of way as being only 100 feet wide and in some cases, valuable improvements have been made on the outer fifty feet on each side of the tracks and they have occupied the land without disturbance for many years.

The railroad company brought suit to oust these occupants, and the court now decided in its favor.

The land affected by the decision lies in Morse, Linn, Coffey, Woodson, Allen, Neosho and Labette counties, in one of the most fertile portions of the state. Among the larger places touched are White City, Council Grove, Emporia, Burlington, Chanute, Parsons, Oswego and Chatopa.

A CASE OF NERVES

If You Have a Dread of Crossing Open Spaces the Doctors Call It Agoraphobia---Then There is Phobiaphobia, the Fear That You Will be Afraid.

New York, Nov. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Accounts of a disease called agoraphobia, reported to have been discovered in London, and said to manifest itself in a fear of broad open spaces have recently appeared in the press. According to the published account the victims of agoraphobia have an unreasoning fear for the first time even of crossing a city square and are never so happy as when nestling close to the side of a modern skyscraper, even going to and from their places of business through narrow alleys and thickly built up streets.

"Agoraphobia isn't a new disease," said a specialist in nervous diseases connected with the Post Graduate hospital in New York, commenting upon this alleged discovery, "its very, very old, and, furthermore, it isn't a disease at all, but one of the numberless symptoms of the great American affliction, neurasthenia. Why, I know a man right here in New York who has this phase of nervousness in a highly developed form. He is perfectly sane and an excellent business man, yet he has a mortal dread of any wide, open space. He became aware of his fear while driving around Union square in this city. Glancing out of the window, he became suddenly pale stricken, with but one idea uppermost, to get out and run home. This he did, keeping up a hot pace until the doors of his house closed upon him. Now he goes to and from his office in a closed carriage with the shades drawn and his wife accompanies him to add to his sense of security.

"Agoraphobia," continued the specialist, "is the only one of a number of 'phobias coming under the general term neurasthenia. Take, for instance, the opposite of this fear of wide places. It is known as claustrophobia and means a fear of enclosed or cramped quarters. One man afflicted with this fear is obliged by physical weakness to drive to my office in a carriage. Although he makes this concession to his inability to walk, he compels his coachman to drive near the curb in order that he may easily escape from the narrow confines of his conveyance should any congestion of traffic occur in the street. Once in the office he begins to manifest his uneasiness by pulling at his collar and fidgeting upon his chair. Finally, with a hurried 'I must be going,' he makes his way as rapidly as possible to the street.

"Another fear is that of being alone and is called monophobia. Not only in a deserted house, or in a lonely place of any sort, but even in a crowd does this fear grip its victim. One of my patients, a woman, has monophobia in so acute a form that she keeps a companion with her constantly. One day, while she was shopping in a big department store, her friend left her just long enough to go to the other end of the counter. The victim of monophobia, becoming conscious of this desertion, and unable to catch sight of her friend because of the crowd, promptly fainted although closely surrounded by a score of shoppers who gave her no sense of security because they were strangers.

"Still another fear, which we call mipophobia, is that of filth and contamination. People so afflicted are continually taking baths or changing their clothes and are constantly in terror lest they contract some disease. The queerest illustration of this fear within my knowledge is a horror of undertaker's shops and wagons. The woman who harbors this particular dread is forced by it to hurry home and change her dress after inadvertently passing an undertaker's establishment or if passed on the street by one of the familiar black wagons used by those who perform the last offices for the dead. She believes that in some way she has been contaminated.

"These fears have been given characteristic names because they are well known symptoms of neurasthenia and the same may be said of such terrors as are caused by darkness, crowds, storms and certain localities. There is phobiaphobia, which means a fear of having a fear. In addition to these recognized symptoms victims of the disease exhibit original hallucinations, individual rather than typical of a class.

"One man imagined that the clock talked to him. I went to see him one night, and after greeting me he said that the clock in his room persisted in making unpleasant suggestions.

"'Is it talking to you now?' I said.

"'Yes,' he replied, 'it's saying: "Go kill yourself, go kill yourself," over and over.'

"He wanted to know how it could be stopped, so I told him the easiest way was to stop the clock. Another patient told me in a hushed voice, though with more interest than fear, that the walls of his room were covered with campaign buttons and umbrellas. Still another refused to stay in his room because the walls were covered with bloody hands and luxuriantly sprouting vegetables of all descriptions. Delusions of this kind are not indications of insanity, which is something altogether different and far more serious. They are the results of nervous exhaustion and often disappear through treatment. You see, in neurasthenia, illusions are recognized as such by the victim even though he cannot dispel them.

"It is ordinarily the case with these fears and illusions that the sufferer from them refrains from talking of his trouble as long as possible. When worry eventually drives him to a physician he must, of course, tell the doctor, but is just as silent as ever where his friends are concerned. To the doctor the story is an old one, only one of the many curious things that he meets in his daily practice. In the hospitals especially we encounter many of these strange illusions, and the victims come from all walks and occupations of life. There are business men who have been overworking, who have used too much alcohol, others who have had trouble and sorrow to combat; in short, the ranks are recruited from among those who have in one way or another overtaxed the nerve force which each has in varying degree.

"The old method of treating neurasthenia, or nervous breakdown—nervous prostration' it is sometimes called—was by the administration of strong tonics. In most instances these tonics are not only useless but positively harmful. In the hospital the treatment prescribed is rest and a proper diet, few drugs being given. Sometimes the patient is merely required to stay in bed a certain length of time and to remain as quiet as possible, in the effort to obtain complete rest, his food even being given him by a nurse. In other instances only partial rest is required, a change of occupation, or perhaps a vacation of several weeks spent in complete idleness. Even after an improvement has been effected in the condition of the patient it is possible to undo all the good by the old method of dosing him with tonics.

"Neurasthenia in its milder forms might almost be said to be a household disease. It is an effection which does not limit itself to any part of the nervous system, but affects it as a whole—brain, spinal cord, and peripheral nervous system, or that part of the nervous system leading from the spinal cord to the outer parts of the body. The headway it has gained in our great, noisy cities is what gives rise to the belief that neurasthenia is a new disease, created by modern conditions. In point of fact, it exists in quiet country villages as well as in congested centers, and was known as early as the sixteenth century when trolley cars, factory whistles, clanging bells and the myriad noises of a later day had not begun to add to the turmoil of existence. In olden times it was known simply as nervousness and was so vaguely described by Robert Whyte, of Edinburgh, in 1676. The first use of the term neurasthenia was in 1869 in Dunglieson's Medical dictionary. In this country Dr. E. H. Van Dusen, of Kalamazoo, Mich., originally made use of the word in his 'Biennial Report to the Michigan Asylum' of 1867.

"Thousands of people experience symptoms of neurasthenia, but do not recognize them as such. For instance, a dull headache at the back of the head, above the brow, or over the eyes, which comes on during severe mental exercise and disappears with relaxation from work, is one indication of the disease. Insomnia is another and very important signal from the overworked nervous system. The fact that one wakes in the morning totally unrefreshed by the night's sleep is sufficient cause for apprehension. Some patients sleep heavily, others lightly, they tell me, but in either case the complaint is the same, 'I get no rest from my sleep and am just as tired in the morning as when I went to bed.' Most of this class of sufferers are extremely irritable, qualities which a healthy person would scarcely notice causing them to lose control of themselves.

"In short, when one feels depressed, enervated, and not up to his usual condition a careful consideration of the cause will frequently save much future trouble. The symptoms may be mental, or as we say psychic, or they may be purely physical, but in either case unless the cause is otherwise self evident it's likely to be a case of nerves."

CLAIMS LOSS FOR CHANLER

Kings County Republican Declares Democrats Made Mistake.

New York, Nov. 10.—J. E. Smith, secretary of the Kings county Republican campaign committee, said today, that about 5,000 additional votes had been discovered for M. Linn Bruce, Republican candidate for lieutenant governor. He said:

"We have received returns from practically every election district in the county. We have tabulated them and have discovered that the Democratic claims made on election day that Chanler had a plurality of 34,000 in Kings county has been exaggerated. Our figures show that he received a plurality of less than 30,000. These figures will be verified by the board of canvassers which will meet Wednesday."

GEN. SHAFTER VERY ILL.

Pneumonia Threatens Life of Soldier and Doctors Worry.

Bakersfield, Cal., Nov. 10.—The condition of Major General Shafter, who is lying critical ill with pneumonia at his ranch near this city, was unchanged this morning. During the entire night physicians were in constant attendance. It was announced on their return from the ranch early this morning that a decided change for the better must be apparent today or life would be despaired of.

SOO TRAFFIC IS RECORD-BREAKER

Certain to Exceed Fifty Million Net Tons This Season.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Nov. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—That the traffic through the St. Mary's canals will exceed 50,000,000 net tons this season is already an assured fact. The opening of the present month saw the movement up to that time to have attained a record-breaking total of 44,404,689 tons, or better by upwards of 100,000 tons than the traffic for the entire season of 1905, and it is expected that the November business alone will be sufficient for the canals to round the fifty million mark.

The traffic during October was the greatest for any month in the history of inter-lake nagivation, footing up 7,201,078 net tons, compared with 6,046,187 net tons during the corresponding period a year ago. Of the October traffic, the eastbound freight amounted to 5,848,392 tons, and that bound west to 1,352,686 tons. There were shipped through the United States canal a total of 6,061,706 tons, and via the Canadian water way 1,139,372 tons. Iron ore made up nearly three-fifths of the traffic. The vessel passages numbered 2,859 of which only 738 were recorded at the locks on the British side of the river. The registered tonnage of the vessels was 5,830,637. Traffic figures for the month follow:

EASTBOUND.

Copper, net tons	11,606
Grain, bushels	1,741,657
Building stone, net tons	1,750
Flour, barrels	1,031,963
Iron ore, net tons	4,821,933
Iron, pig, net tons	1,568
Lumber, M. feet B. M.	112,012
Wheat, bushels	17,211,814
General merchandise, net tons	16,298
Passengers, number	1,360

WESTBOUND.

Coal, hard, net tons	161,927
Coal, soft, net tons	1,012,142
Manufactured iron, net tons	42,607
Salt, barrels	106,803
General merchandise, net tons	120,187
Passengers, number	919
Freight
East bound, net tons	5,848,392
West bound, net tons	1,352,686
Total freight, net tons	7,201,078

Figured on a basis of 20 cents a pound, the 11,606 tons of copper shipped last month, all of which came from Michigan mines, was worth $4,642,400.

One Chicago Grain Charter.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—The Vulcan was placed for rye to Buffalo at 1¾ cents yesterday. Other vessels on the market were sent for iron ore.

Cleveland Demand Light.

Cleveland, Nov. 10.—The freight market is without change all around and aside from the ore trade, chartering is light. The falling off in the demand for grain carriers has increased the offerings of ore tonnage, but all boats on the market are placed without trouble.

Detroit, Nov. 10.—The water at Lime Kilns crossing was low yesterday and registers but 18 feet 3 inches last night. A number of large vessels are held up.

Vessels Being Laid Up.

Buffalo, Nov. 10.—Many vessel owners are already laying their craft up at the Tonawandas as the result of the refusal of underwriters to place insurance after Nov. 1 on lumber tows of more than two barges and after Nov. 15 on tows containing two barges Among the vessels already out of commission are the barges Jenness, Holland, Woolson and Goshawk.

Steamer Iowa Aground.

Sturgeon Bay, Wis., Nov. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer Iowa of the Goodrich line stranded at Hills point last night in a fog. It was bound for Menominee with passengers and freight. Since then, the water has been lowered by the northwest wind and the cargo must be lightened before it can be floated. The Arctic has been ordered to the wreck from Manitowoc.

Released Steamer Disabled.

Amherstburg, Nov. 10. —(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer George Peavey, which was released from Bar Point yesterday, swung around on the rocks, and carried away its shoe. The steamer is now at anchor, awaiting assistance.

Steamer Wyoming Stranded.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Nov. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer Wyoming bound down with grain is stranded at the dyke and will have to be lightened. The mishap is due to snow squalls.

BUYS SITE FOR FLAT BUILDING

T. W. Wahl Purchases Corner on Second Street, East End.

T. W. Wahl, of the firm of T. W. Wahl & Co., has purchased from the Upham estate and Senator F. B. Daugherty, the southwest corner of Second street and Fifteenth avenue east for $4,500. The property has a frontage of 100 feet on Second street and is 140 feet deep. Mr. Wahl is erecting thereon a modern flat building, which is to be completed by next spring.

T. W. Wahl & Co., have sold Mrs. Grace Upham Spear a property with thirty-three feet frontage in the upper side of First street, between Sixth and Seventh avenues east. The consideration is not yet made public. The same firm has closed the sale of a corner in the West end to Arthur W. Kloeppel, who will erect a house on the property within a short time.

ANSWERS THE DEATH SUMMONS

Mrs. Rebecca Fleischman of Lakeside Dies in Hospital.

Mrs. Rebecca Fleischman, aged 34 years, wife of Frank Fleischman, who was with I. Freimuth for a number of years, died at St. Luke's hospital last evening, following an operation. Mrs. Fleischman is survived by her husband, two daughters and a son, at the family residence, 4705 Regent street, Lakeside; five sisters and one brother. The sisters are Mrs. H. C. Kendall, Mrs. A. B. Reed and Miss Jessie Balmer of Duluth, Mrs. Hasbruck of Pillsbury, Minn., and Mrs. J. C. Clark of Big Rapids, Mich. The brother is John Balmer of Eighteenth avenue east, Duluth.

Mrs. Fleischman, who has lived practically all her life in Duluth, had a wide circle of friends and acquaintances who mourn her demise. The funeral services will be held from the Lakeside Presbyterian church, Monday at 10 a. m., Rev. Mr. Sutherland, the pastor, officiating. The interment will take place at Forest Hill cemetery.

CREDITORS SUE ADMINISTRATOR

C. A. Peterson Claims Charles Gasper Owed Him Money.

Two suits by creditors of the estate of Charles Gasper, deceased, were started in the district court this morning against W. G. Joerns, administrator of the estate.

Charles A. Peterson, former special administrator of the estate, has started suit to recover $170 alleged to be the balance due on a promissory note of $190 executed by Gasper, Oct. 11, 1905, and payable in sixty days. Mr. Peterson claims that only $20 was ever paid on the note.

This development in the affairs of the estate is of some interest, in view of the affidavit recently made by Mr. Joerns in which he said he had a witness to the alleged fact that previous to his death, Gasper held a promissory note for $500 executed by Mr. Peterson.

The other suit involves a claim of $80.40, and was started by the Ron-Fernandez Cigar company. The company claims an assignment from J. L. Seymour.

DELMONICO CAFE

HERALD'S FIGURES EXACT.

Johnson Has Majority of 1,413 in St. Louis County.

The county board of canvassers has not yet completed the totalling of the votes on the official returns from St. Louis county. The total is completed for the county on the governorship vote, however, and the official returns show that Governor John A. Johnson received a majority of 1,413. This is exactly the figure given in the unofficial returns published by the Herald last evening.

HOSPITAL IN DESERT.

St. Louis Philanthropist Founded a Unique Retreat for Consumptives.

To found a charity out on the Great American desert for persons in that stage of health where it is to be supposed they should want to go anywhere else than on the sun baked plains to live, is the novel fad of a St. Louis philanthropist, N. O. Nelson, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. Not alone that, but it was his original idea to make this desert charity self-supporting, fitting it with ranches where alfafa and barley and cantaloupes and the like could be raised, and while the tenants paid but a nominal dollar a week for tents, or $3 where board was included, the farm should make up the remainder.

The story of his going into what is almost like Death Valley for health is interesting. The site of the place is Indio, Cal., a mere hamlet, given over almost exclusively to railway employes and fugitives from the great white plague—consumption.

On what was the bed of a primitive ocean, the sand still made up of millions of marine clam shells and other tiny spiral conches, and supporting no cacti, but only a low brush, the Nelson philanthropy purchased 114 acres of land at an average of $100 an acre. The outdoor camp for consumptives was then opened and put in charge of a general foreman, who was to supervise the ranches for raising the crops indicated.

At first things went well, but it soon became apparent that sick men can't work well and that it would be exceedingly difficult to keep up the farming. As a result that side of the venture has been dropped and the place is supported almost entirely by the St. Louis man. At the same time it is not made absolutely free, but where persons cannot pay the nominal $1 or $3, means are found to let them work off their board.

Obviously the desert camp does not cure. It does, however, cause wonderful rallying. Men have been brought here on stretchers, and under influence of sleeping powders, and they have been brought to almost perfect health.

The camp itself consists of about thirty tents, set in a hollow square about a field of very long dry grass. Each of these tents rests on a wooden flooring, and facing the center, where there os an open summer house, with books and magazines and a flagstaff. At one end of the plaza the adobe cottage of the superintendent is located. Inside the area the inmates drag away time as they can, the women at quilting, the men in lounging or fixing their guns. Now and then they go hunting out in the desert for hare or quail or ducks.

At each tent there burns a gasoline lamp at night. Inside there is a shelf for the little cup used by the sick, a double iron bedstead, whitened over, a small iron cot ,and a table resting on a rug. These tables have their oilcloth covers, a lamp and books and papers. Old soap boxes beneath serve for stowing away other objects.

The tents are practically all the same size, 12x14 feet. To them the charity furnishes bed and bedding, chairs, stove and washing utensils.

The charity is open to any one. The day's work at the camp is most simple. Patients breakfast at 7:30 o'clock on mush and milk, eggs and coffee. At noon there is soup, a little meat and potatoes, but no dessert. In the evening at 5 o'clock supper is served. Sunday meals are the same.

There are now some twenty-five persons in the camp. Those who do not do their own cooking or eat at the general mess tent, board themselves at the hotel.

The idea of the cure, however, out in the blistering desert for health is unique. Something like 1,377 miles from New Orleans, Indio lies twenty-five feet below the sea level. Its nonhumidity is the wonder of the medical world. Complete saturation of the air by water is marked by 100 per cent; absolutely vaporless air is set at zero. Ten per cent is rare even in arid Arabia. In fact, the average humidity of the north Atlantic is 80 per cent. Here in Indio they have registered 9 per cent; the average is 15. As a result, there is not much water for the benefit of the thirsty pulmonary tubercle, and without moisture he cannot incubate. Hence the value of the site for the charity.

SPLITTING ROCK WITH AIR.

The expansive force of compressed air is employed in a very interesting way by a North Carolina granite company, says the Youth's Companion. On a sloping hillside, composed of granite which shows no bed planes, but splits readily in any direction when started, a three-inch bore is sunk about eight feet deep, and the bottom is enlarged by exploding half a stick of dynamite.

A small charge of powder is fired in this hole, which starts a horizontal crack of cleavage. Charges increasing in size are exploded until the cleavage has extended over a radius of seventy-five or a hundred feet. Then a pipe is cemented into the bore, and air is forced in, under a pressure o ffrom eighty to a hundred pounds.

The expansion of the air extends the cleavage until it comes out at the surface on the slope of the hill. A sheet of granite several acres in extent may thus be separated.

CAR NEEDS HURT TRADE

Industries Handicapped by Traffic Delays and Labor Troubles.

Steel is in Fine Shape But Cotton and Grains Are Lower.

New York, Nov. 10.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: "Business experienced the customary interruption during election week, but a more permanent retarding influence was the inadequate supply of freight cars and labor. Many industries are severely handicapped by traffic delays. In other cases there is idle machinery because hands cannot be secured, despite the high wages offered. This difficulty threatens to reduce the lumber cut materially. Several strikes are threatened and one railway system alone has advanced wages to the extent of $1,000,000 monthly. Retail trade is well maintained by lower temperature in some sections of the country and the full employment of labor at all points, while wholesale business in holiday goods is very heavy.

"New lake vessels have been ordered, which means more business in plates, although the mills are already booked beyond the first quarter of next year. Standard steel rails have again advanced. Several large pipe contracts are pending, including one for India, yet the mills have so much business on hand that there is not the customary sharp competition to get new business. More advances have occurred in pig iron and the new ore season has opened with a rise of from 50 to 75 cents per ton.

Less interest is shown in the primary market for cotton goods, although there is a fair volume of business in progress.

"Leather is very firm, especially sole, and efforts to force reduction from the recent advance have proved unsuccessful. Yet quotations are so high that shoe manufacturers are indisposed to operate beyond immediate requirements.

"Interrupted movement of grain to primary markets and the consequent restriction of foreign business as well as activity of Northwestern flour mills checked the upward tendency of quotations and caused some reaction. Western receipts of 6,339,675 bushels of wheat for the week compare with 6,644,123 bushels in the corresponding week last year, while exports from all ports of the United States, flour included, amounted to 2,885,573 bushels, against 1,900,052 a year ago.

"Phenomenally heavy port receipts of cotton carried prices still lower, although there was the support of exports well above last year's. Speculative interest diminished as the time for publication of the ginning report approached, most estimations promising a large increase over last year's figures, despite the fact that a loss was shown by the statement two weeks earlier.

"Liabilities of commercial failures thus far reported for November, amounted to $1,221,132, of which $537,780 was in manufacturing, $672,537 in trading and $10,815 in other commercial lines."

DENIES PART IN SWINDLE.

Franklin Stone, of Storey Cotton Notoriety, Evades Arrest.

Cincinnati, Nov. 10.—Franklin Stone, formerly of Philadelphia and now giving Paris as his home, wanted by the government on an indictment charging misuse of the mails in the Storey cotton swindles in Pennsylvania, involving the loss of $6,000,000, was in Cincinnati yesterday, but disappeared before the officials could apprehend him. Before he disappeared he said:

"I have never been arrested yet. More Americans in Paris know me better than they know the American ambassador. I am not trying to hide. I am not wanted by the federal officers, if ever I was wanted by them. I send more broken down Americans home with first-class tickets than any other American in Europe. I sailed abroad a week before the Storey Cotton company went into bankruptcy. Uncle Sam has no case against me. I was not connected with that concern at all. I knew nothing of being indicted until I arrived on the other side.

"I am charged with misuse of the mails. This is not an extraditable offense and consequently Uncle Sam has never bothered me, and I believe that all charges have been withdrawn, as far as I am concerned, although I really believe I was never considered as involved more than as a possible witness."

"The newspapers have charged President Storey and yourself with getting away with about $8,000,000. How about that?"

"Oh, that is exaggeration. The Philadelphia North American caused a run on the Storey company and after it had paid out about a million and a half dollars to depositors, representing two million and a half dollars, it had to close up doors for want of ready cash. I have no idea where the money went. I got none of it. Storey is living in London."

HANDSOME NEW SCHOOL BUILDING

NEW ELY SCHOOL AT WEST DULUTH.

The new Ely building, which will soon be ready for occupancy in West Duluth, is one of the handsomest school buildings in the city. It is situated at Fifty-fifth avenue and Sixth street north, West Duluth, and workmen have been engaged upon its construction since last April.

Excavation for the building was commenced just prior to May 1, and since that time the work has been progressing steadily until at the present, the exterior is practically complete, and the finishing touches and decorations are being placed on the interior. Architect A. Terryberry planned the building and the general contract for its erection was awarded by the school board to Emil Zauft of West Duluth. He, in turn, gave the brickwork contract to Ramstad & Todd, the plastering to Robert Freeman, the installation of the heating apparatus to L. R. Helbling & Co., and the plumbing to Stack Bros.

The walls of the basement are constructed of brown range rock and the superstructure of the building is of Wrenshall sand mold brick of a cream colored shade. The cornice is of metal colored to match the brick. The roof is covered with Bangor slate of a very durable quality. The interior woodwork is of a yellow Georgia pine, while the ceilings and walls are of plain white and plain material. The stairways, connecting the lower and upper floors are of concrete, with iron treads.

The building is two stories in height, with four class rooms on the first floor, and six on the second, each having a capacity of about fifty scholars. The class rooms are each 30 by 25 feet in size, and there is a central corridor, the dimensions of which are 28 by 50 feet. On the first floor, besides the class rooms, there is a spacious principal's room and several cloak rooms and storerooms. Each room has two individual cloak rooms and closets.

The heating plant is situated in a separate building, directly in the rear of the main building. The plan of heating is that of the fan-hot air method, the hot air being forced into the rooms by a current created by large fans. This plan has been tried in numerous big buildings and has been found to be the best and especially for this class of buildings. The best of ventilation is obtained and the air, which is forced into the rooms is pure and fresh.

The building, which will cost when completed $50,000, will probably not be occupied until the first of the year at the earliest, although it will probably be completed by the end of November.

BRYAN SEES 1908 VICTORY

Congratulates Hearst on Heroic Fight and Raps Roosevelt.

Thinks Democracy is in Fine Trim for Next Campaign.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 10.—While finding much satisfaction in the results of Tuesday's election from a Democratic standpoint, W. J. Bryan regrets the defeat of W. R. Hearst in New York. He cannot see however, wherein President Roosevelt can find any comfort in the vote of the Empire state. He says the president's personal attack on Mr. Hearst was in very bad taste and insists that the attack did not favorably impress the public.

"The election of 1906," says Mr. Bryan, "indicates a trend in favor of the Democratic party. It proves that the Democratic party is growing stronger as Republican policies are developed. In New York the party has won a signal victory in spite of the tremendous efforts put forth in behalf of the administration. The Republicans had all the money they wanted; they had the support of all the great corporations; and at the close they had whatever influence the administration could lend. The fact that the Democrats elected every state officer excepting the governor shows that in the Empire state the Republican party has been repudiated.

"The defeat of Mr. Hearst, while a great disappointment to his friends and to the party, is explained by facts which rob Mr. Hughes' victory of both glory and political significance. Mr. McCarren, whom Mr. Hughes denounced as a boss, threw his influence to Hughes and cut down Mr. Hearst's vote in Brooklyn. Mayor McClellan used his influence for Mr. Hughes and cut down the Hearst vote in New York. Mr. Jerome, the prosecuting attorney of New York, who had also been attacked by Mr. Hearst, supported the Republican ticket, and his influence was felt in Greater New York. Mr. Croker, during the last days of the campaign, made an attack upon Mr. Hearst, which doubtless weakened the Democratic candidate among the Tammanyites. Mr. Murphy, head of Tammany, while supporting the ticket, could not put much enthusiasm into the campaign owing to the personal controversies which he had had with Mr. Hearst. It is evident, therefore, that Mr. Hughes owes his victory, not to Republican votes, but to Democratic votes brought to him by the very men whom he and the Republican leaders have been denouncing for years.

"President Roosevelt cannot find very much cause for rejoicing in the New York returns. To have his own state go Democratic cannot be gratifying to him and to find his personal attack upon Mr. Hearst had little influence on the result compared with the influence exerted by McCarren, Murphy and Croker will not gladden his Thanksgiving day. The president's personal attack on Mr. Hearst was in bad taste to say the least and the failure of that attack to favorably impress the public ought to be a warning for the future.

"Mr. Hearst is, of course, disappointed, and, yet, when all the facts are known, he has much to congratulate himself upon. He made a tremenduous fight against great odds, and while he, himself, failed of election, his heroic struggle brought victory to the rest of the ticket. As the rest of the ticket stood for the same principles for which he contended, it is evident that he had been vindicated on the position taken and this must be more gratifying to him than any personal victory could be. His personal enemies have contributed to his defeat, but the triumph of his ideas still leaves him in a position to continue the fight for the protection of the public against the encroachments of predatory wealth.

"If the trend toward democracy continues as strong for the next two years, New York can be counted as among the Democratic states in 1908 and Mr. Hearst is in a position to do valiant work in securing a national triumph for progressive, Democratic ideas.

"The Democratic gains in congress have not been as great as the party expected, but they have been sufficient to make it probable that the Democrats will control the congress to be elected in 1908. In Iowa, Kansas and California the Democrats made a splendid fight for their gubernatorial ticket. The reduction of Governor Cummins' majority from more than 70,000 to about 20,000 puts Iowa in the doubtful states for two years hence. Kansas and California can no longer be claimed as certainly Republican. The fight made by Mr. Harris in the former state and by Mr. Bell in the latter give more than a reasonable hope of success two years hence.

"The victory in Missouri will bring joy to every Democratic heart. Her return to the Democratic ranks is greeted with widespread rejoicing. Oklahoma, the new state, comes in with a rousing Democratic majority. The constitution will be written by Democrats and she will send two senators to fight in the interest of the wealth producers. Democracy welcomes Oklahoma to a seat near the head of the table.

"In Nebraska the Democrats hoped, with the aid of the Populists, to elect their state ticket and their candidate for United States senator. In this they rallied, but they made substantial gains throughout the state, as shown by the vote on congressmen and the legislative ticket, as well as by the state ticket. They have gained one congressman and came within less than 200 votes of gaining another. In two other districts the Republican majorities have been so much reduced that we can reasonably count on four Democratic congressmen two years from now.

"The Republicans have had an effective campaign cry in 'standing by the president.' While the record showed that the Democrats in the senate and house stood by the president better than the Republicans, the admirers of the president very naturally gave weight to his appeal for a Republican congress, although in making his appeal, the president put the personal victory above the reforms which he has been advocating. Two years from now that appeal will be of no avail, for the president will not be in office after March 4, 1909. Even if he were a candidate—which no friend of his can assume after his repeated declarations—he would have to confront the third term issue, and who would say that that issue alone would not lose the president enough votes to make his race hopeless? The popular vote, as indicated by the congressional elections, shows that the Republicans even now have a narrow margin to go on, and that margin will be quickly wiped out if the president allows himself to be drawn into a race for a third term."

SHERMAN FEELS JUBILANT.

Republican Successes In Congressional Fight Causes Rejoicing.

New York, Nov. 10.—The Republican congressional campaign committee closed its headquarters here yesterday. Before Mr. Sherman left for his home in Utica, he said: "The result of the congressional campaign throughout the country is exceedingly gratifying to this committee. The sixtieth congress will be Republican by fifty-eight majority. These figures correspond exactly with the prediction given out by the committee on the Thursday before election. Of the districts throughout the United States which the committee marked as certainly Republican we failed in carrying but four. Of those that we marked doubtful, we have carried more than we marked as probably Republican. The result shows that the people emphatically endorse the administration of President Roosevelt, and approve the work of the first session of the fifty-ninth congress. It shows that the people desire a continuance of prosperity and shows their belief that the prosperity can be depended upon under the Republican administration, and the belief that it would disappear under Democratic rule.

"It is true that our majority in the sixtieth congress is not so great as in the present congress. This may be accounted for by the fact that many districts normally Democratic, which came to using the monstrous Roosevelt wave of 1904 have settled back into the Democratic column. In a few districts normally Republican we met with individual reverses, but this can be ascribed in nearly every, if not every, instance to local conditions and issues so potent as to completely overshadow, for the time being, national issues, and the feeling upon the part of the voters in those districts that a working Republican majority was assured without the election of the Republicans in those districts. These losses I believe to be temporary and I have not the slightest doubt that these districts will be found in the Republican column after the election of 1908."

BOILER FRAUDS ARE CHARGED

Three Pennsylvanians Indicted for Battleship Crookedness.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 10.—Indictments were returned by the federal grand jury here yesterday against J. Day Dunn, Charles T. Close and Frank T. Emmett, officials and employes of the Shelby Steel Tube company, charging them with conspiracy to defraud the government in connection with the boiler tubes furnished for a number of battleships.

There are thirty counts against the men and it is alleged the conspiracy was in operation from 1892 to Jan. 1, 1905; that the defective tubes were placed in boilers used on twelve war vessels, among them being the Louisiana, on which President Roosevelt is now making his trip to Panama, the Maine, Pennsylvania, Georgia, Colorado, Vermont, Maryland, Tennessee, Washington, Minnesota, Nebraska and Charleston; that Dunn, now superintendent of all the seamless tube mills of the Shelby Tube company, was the superintendent of the Greenville mills, where the boiler tubes were made.

The indictments are the outcome of an investigation started a month or more ago upon information furnished by Emmett. Judge Ewing issued bench warrants for the three men.

Rebuilding San Francisco.

The more conservative citizens of San Francisco have set ten years as the time necessary to rebuild their city, and estimate the cost at about $4,000,000. If you are trying to build up your system, that has become weakened as a result of imperfect digestion and constipated bowels, we would urge you to commence taking Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. You'll find it a wonderful help, as it will restore the digestive organs to their normal condition, and aid nature in extracting all the health-giving and sustaining qualities from your food. Thus it cures headache, dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness, constipation, general debility, heartburn, poor appetite, flatulency, chills, colds, female ills or malaria, fever and ague. Be sure to try it at once, but insist on getting Hostetter's. "Something else" won't do in its place.

AUTOS BEAT BALLOONS.

Two Machines Travel Over Ground Faster Than Airships.

North Adams, Mass., Nov. 10. — Cortland Field Bishop, president of the Aero Club of America, won the Allan R. Hawley cup in the balloon pursuit race by automobiles yesterday, arriving at the point of descent of the balloon L'Orient in this city with his 35-horse power car, not only within the time limit fixed by the racing committee but in time to assist in dragging the balloon to the ground. He was favored by the fact that the wind was light and shifty, so that the balloon traveled slowly.

Another automobile driven by N. M. Laporte of Pittsfield, reached the point of descent ten seconds after the balloon landed, and before its occupants, Allan R. Hawley, and J. C. McCoy, had time to leap from the car. The two other automobiles which entered the race, failed to finish within the time limit.

Insurance Commissioner O'Brien Against Policy of Company.

Kentucky Official Denounces Methods of Present Managers.

St. Paul, Nov. 10.—T. D. O'Brien, state insurance commissioner, has gone to Chicago, where the final meeting of the committee on uniform legislation, appointed at a conference some time ago of governors, attorney generals, and insurance commissioners, will be held Monday.

Mr. O'Brien, who is chairman of the committee, stated that a final report would be promulgated and forwarded to the commissioners of the various states to be submitted through them to the legislatures.

One of the important matters to come up is the election of a new directorate of the Mutual Life of New York. It is likely that the commissioners will take some action on this. From certain hints let drop the majority of them favor the opposition ticket, and may advise the policyholders to vote against the administration ticket. Governor Hanly of Indiana, has already addressed an appeal to the policyholders in his state advising them to vote for the opposition ticket. Mr. O'Brien also favors the opposition ticket. Other governors and commissioners may take similar action.

Sentiment in favor of the opposition ticket is growing and many of the commissioners have, when asked, advised the policyholders to support this ticket. They are, however, in a delicate position as the New York insurance officials have the matter under their jurisdiction.

Louisville, Nov. 10.—In a statement yesterday afternoon in support of his action revoking the license of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, to do business in Kentucky, Commissioner Prewitt, said that the position of the present management of that company, in endeavoring to elect the administration candidates for trustees was "oppressive, dictatorial and unlawful," and a company thus managed should not be permitted to further insure the lives of the people of this state. He adds:

"In my opinion, the agents of the company are required to be loyal first to the policyholder, and if they believe and have grounds for belief that the present management of the company is not wise, nor for the best interests of the policyholders, it is not only the privilege, but the duty of such agent to say so to the policyholders. It is a mistaken notion that the agents owe personal allegiance to the present board of trustees, or to any board of trustees, their allegiance is under the law of the company.

"I regard the plan of procedure of Mr. Peabody and of his colleagues as being destructive of the essential features of the mutuality, as tending to prevent a full, fair and free presentation of the policyholders' rights to them by those who are best in the position to know who the policyholders are and what their interests are; that such action is contrary to the spirit of the charter of the company, and if tolearted would destroy absolutely the mutual feature.

"After a full and careful consideration of the charges made against the management of the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York, I have reached the conclusion that the company should not be permitted to continue to insure the lives of the citizens of this state. The present policyholders of the company can in no way be affected by my action. A continuation of the authority heretofore granted the company would be an endorsement of the acts of the present and past managements of this company."

HAPPENINGS IN THE DAKOTAS

Maj. Murphy Again on Trial at Fargo for Forgery.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—The case of Maj. J. S. Murphy of Minot is again the center of attraction here. The prosecution has decided to take up the same case on which the former jury disagreed—that of the warrant of William Crowder, despite the fact that there are other alleged forgeries.

The work of selecting the jury is on and there seems to be a tendency on the part of the veniremen to escape service if possible, for the trial will probably continue three or four weeeks. Large delegations are here from Ward county to attend the trial, and the general disposition is to sympathize with the defendant.

Without shoes or hat, Andrew Mock was found wanering north of Fargo, by a farmer. He is about 80 years old, is on his way to the home of a daughter in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, after a visit with his son at Yakima, Wash. He was supplied with a ticket to his destination and also had a draft for $60 The long trip seems to have caused temporary derangement.

Minot—Albert Erfendahl of Tolley, N. D., who testified before Judge Davis yesterday that he went into business of spotting blindpiggers at $50 each, thinking there was more money in this than in threshing, said that he has changed his mind.

"I didn't know I had to go into court and convict the piggers, or I would have stuck to threshing," said he.

Erfendahl is the complaining witness in several cases from Tolley, where the officials made a raid recently. S. C. Stillson, one of the defendants, was convicted today.

Kathyrn—Albert Hammer, 22 years old, son of a farmer in the northern part of Ranson county, met death in a peculiar manner. He and a companion imbibed freely of liquor, and when they endeavored to reach the threshing rig where they were employed, Hammer fell prostrate in the road. His companion continued his journey, and next morning when he went to look for Hammer, found him dead. The young fellow fell on his face and was suffocated by the loose sand which he drew into his mouth and nostrils.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Pierre—Mayor Albright yesterday received a telegram from the Cheyenne River agency saying that the body of an unknown man had been found at the mouth of the Cheyenne river. He was suppoced to have been one of three men coming down the river by boat, and officers here are requested to look out for the others of the party.

Huron—Negro laborers on a southbound Milwaukee train yesterday morning quarreled over a game of cards. Rev. John Phelan, a Catholic priest of Sibley, Iowa, who formerly lived in Sioux City, tried to quite them when one of the negroes drew a revolver and fired, one shot taking effect in the right side of the priest's head. He was taken to a hospital in Mitchell. The wound is not regarded as serious. Eight of the negroes were taken into custody at Wolsey. The priest will prosecute them.

Belle Fourche—Bill McKay, a bartender, lies at the point of death from an attack alleged to have been made on him by a negro named Ferguson, who was doing his first day's work as cook at the hotel. McKay and Ferguson had some words, the former being drunk.

Ferguson was in the hotel kitchen and McKay outside, when, it is alleged, the negro became infuriated and threw a meat cleaver through the window screen, catching McKay directly in the side of the head. He is not expected to live.

Posses were organized to seek McKay's assailant, and after a short hunt found him at Robinson & Cheney's camp at the diverting dam. He surrendered without resistance and is now in jail.

Ipswich—Some of the cattle "rustlers" who for years made their homes in the region between the Missouri river and the Black Hills, in Western South Dakota, appear to have transferred their field of operations to this immediate vicinity. Recently a number of cattle have been stolen in this neighborhood. The thieves are unusually bold, among the cattle taken having been several belonging to Deputy Sheriff Jones, which were stolen from the stock yards. The authorities are striving to apprehend the thieves.

LATE DOINGS IN UPPER MICHIGAN

Miss Newett of Ishpeming Weds Terribly Afflicted Affianced.

Ishpeming—Miss Edna Newett, daughter of George A. Newett, editor of Iron Ore, was married Tuesday to George E. Nelson, a mining student, who was completely blinded and lost both arms by the explosion of a box of dynamite caps while temporarily employed in a mine at Bisbee, Ariz. His affianced went to him at once and nursed him through the consequent long illness, during which his life often was despaired of. When he recovered, he offered to release her from her engagement, but she refused and marriage followed. She leads her husband about and waits on him devotedly. Mr. Newett formerly was state commissioner of mineral statistics, and has made a fortune in copper stocks.

Plans in detail are fast maturing for the new town and factory site of the Jones & Laughlin Steel company, operator of the Lake Angeline mine here and, under the name of the Interstate Mining company, a string of mines on the Mesaba range. This latest project of the big steelmaking concern included the purchase of about 800 acres, the location being twenty miles below Pittsburg on the south side of the Ohio river. The construction will include four big blast furnaces each having a daily capacity of 500 tons. There will be six Talbot open hearth furnaces of the latest design. Each of the furnaces will have a daily output of 200 tons. A large blooming mill, sufficient to meet all the demands of the present, will be an important feature. There will be coke ovens within a few hundred yards of the blast furnaces, which will make sufficient fuel for the entire plant. The officials are debating the advisability of adding more finishing mills, but it is stated that no plans for these have been decided on.

Marquette—Admitting that he killed the man, Michael Sheridan, a woodsman, arrested for the murder of Victor Erickson in Wells township, last night made a full confession to Sheriff Rough. The crime followed a drunken row and was premeditated, Sheridan procuring a gun and deliberately shooting Erickson in cold blood.

J. R. Flynn and A. D. Gilles have returned to the Soo from a trip about forty miles northwest of Sudbury, Ont., where they had been for over two weeks with a gang of men uncovering and testing an iron ore deposit. They report a very large showing of high grade magnetite and hematite of Bessemer quality, and the samples they brought with them tend to bear out their claims. The deposit is only four miles from the main line of the Canadian Pacific railway, and some idea of its apparent magnitude of the claim may be judged when it is stated that the outcropping, where it enters a large beaver meadow, is over 450 feet wide, the whole of which is now exposed by means of test pits and a small tunnel, the ore in all of which cuttings shows the same grade.

Ewen—Something unique in lumbering operations—logging by trolley—is to be tried this season by the Trout Creek Manufacturing company of Trout Creek. At a point seven miles north of town cables are being installed for the purpose of conveying the logs across the river, and thus doing away with the disadvantage offered by the steep grades on both sides of the stream. The span will be nearly 1,000 feet and it is estimated that 2,000 feet of logs will be covered from one bank to the other at a single trip. An engine and steam plant of ample power for the work assigned will be in readiness for operation shortly.

Menominee—Joseph Saronus was crushed to death by a falling tree in the woods north of this city. He was but 21 years of age and had just commenced work a few hours before the accident.

In an election fight at Northland, Mich., Oscar Erickson was shot and killed by Mike Sherin. Both men are woodsmen. Sherin has been locked up on a charge of murder.

Crystal Falls—Edward Nelson, foreman of the Chicago & Northwestern steel gang at Watersmeet, was accidentally shot by John Vantwood, an enginner, and for a time it was feared he had been mortally wounded. Vantwood was shooting at a mark on an old ice house and did not see Nelson, who was walking along an old spur track in the rear of the building, when one of the bullets went through the building, striking him in the abdomen. The wounded man was taken by special train to Bessemer where the bullet was removed, having only passed through the skin and muscles, causing a painful but not dangerous wound.

Ontonagon—Rev. S. D. Eva, of Hermansville, Menominee county, is journeying across the Atlantic to claim a bride—the culmination of a romance of several years standing. He is on route to Launceston, England, where he will be married to Miss Ethel M. Luxton, principal of the school at that place and a charming and accomplished young woman. The clergyman has been granted a five weeks' leave of absence by his congregation, and after the tieing of the nuptial knot the time will be spent by the bride and groom in visiting points of interest in and around London. Mr. Eva is an Englishman by birth and grew to manhood and entered the ministry in his native land. After spending a few years in slum work he came to this country some three or four years ago, and during the past two years, up to the time of his assignment to Hermansville, was pastor of the M. E. church at Ontonagon.

FORTUNES FOR ALL WHO INVEST NOW

SAVES $9,711,655 A YEAR

Unusual Opportunity Now Offered the Man of Small Means to Become Independently Rich.

Every great electrical invention has made fortunes for its original stockholders. The American Bell Telephone Company has paid $20,000 for each $100 invested in its stock at its organization. Solicitors went from door to door in several cities begging people to buy the stock, but many laughed at the idea of there ever being a need for the telephone. It was hard to make investors see the possibilities of the business. Those who did are among the world's richest people.

Such chances are not often offered the small investor. The first such opportunity in a great many years, that gives every promise of duplicating the telephone in profits and universal demand is the Electric Signagraph and Semaphore.

Some of the best known railroad experts in America declare these instruments will prevent railroad collisions, of which there is an average of 500 a month in the United States. With these instruments the train dispatcher has constant control over every train on his division. The Signagraph also gives privacy to party telephones and permits the sending of private telegrams to any one of 100 or more telegraph offices without the knowledge of other operators and without in any way interfering with the regular telegraph circuit.

RAILROAD APPROVES SYSTEM.

No extra wires are required. The cost is so small and the advantages are so great that it is predicted by some of the best experts in America that all railroads will adopt the system. One Signagraph is required for each telephone. There are over 13,000,000 telephones in use and at a monthly rental of 25 cents each—the amount offered—300,000 instruments will earn $900,000 a year.

There are 369,000 miles of railroad in the United States, and less than 10 per cent is equipped with a signal service because of the inefficient systems heretofore used and their great cost. If only one-twentieth of this mileage were equipped with the Signagraph and Semaphore the stockholders would earn $600,000 a year —25 per cent on the present selling price of the stock in addition to the revenue from the telephone company.

50,000 LIVES LOST.

More than $9,000,000 were lost last year in property destroyed by railroad collisions and 50,000 persons were killed or injured. This amount would cover the entire cost of the Signagraph and Semaphore system over every mile of railroad in the United States for two years and make the horrors of railroad collisions unknown.

Experts admit the necessity for these instruments. President Roosevelt has referred to the necessity for safety devices in two of his messages and $75,000 was appropriated by Congress to be used in enforcing the safety appliance law. Forty railroads have been indicted by the United States Attorney General for violations of this law, and far-sighted investors are putting their money into the company.

Every statement made herein will be verified to the letter. A limited amount of the capital stock is now for sale. No one will be asked to invest a cent until he has thoroughly satisfied himself of the merits of the proposition. All who can are urged to come and see these instruments in operation. Those who can not and want to know the full details of the company, its organization, its patents, and what experts say of it should write at once for full particulars.

Stock is now rapidly selling at 45 cents a share, par value $1.00, fully paid, and nonassessible. The price will be advanced to 50 cents a share as soon as the present block of 50,000 shares is disposed of. The right is reserved to advance the price without notice. Those who care to take this stock before the price advances may send their remittances with the distinct understanding that the entire remittance will be returned at any time within ten days of date of the order if they are not thoroughly satisfied with the proposition. In order to insure securing stock at the present price remittance should be sent at once. Payments are accepted in cash or installments of one-fourth down and one-fourth monthly until paid for. No subscription of less than 100 shares will be accepted. A discount of 5 per cent will be allowed on all subscriptions accompanied by remittance in full.

GREAT WAGE INCREASES BY RAILROAD AND OTHER BIG CORPORATIONS SURE

Millions on Millions to be Added to Pay of Workers.

Pennsylvania's and Oil Trust's Leads Will be Followed.

Result of Elections Forces Managements to Liberality.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Increases of wages amounting to millions on millions of dollars have either been granted or will soon be announced by practically all of the great railroad and industrial corporations of the country.

It is almost certain that the action of the Pennsylvania system in advancing the pay of its army of 165,000 employes nearly $12,000,000 a year will soon be followed generally by transportation companies.

The Philadelphia & Reading, the New York Central, the Lackawanna and other Eastern roads either have been requested to advance the wages of the employes or have taken some steps to do so.

Exact reports concerning the amount of the increases on the Western roads cannot be learned, but it appears to be a settled policy, judging from statements made by leading Western railroad officials, that compromises will be made which will be satisfactory to the workmen. Railroads which are expected to take such action are the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, the Rock Island, St. Louis & San Francisco system, and the North-Western. In some other railroads terminating in Chicago it is expected that advances will be given to special departments of labor.

The Standard Oil company has taken the lead among the industrial corporations by adding considerably to the remuneration of its 60,000 men.

Information comes from Montana that the Amalgamated Copper company, which employs near 15,000 men in the mines of that state, already has made a proposal to its employes increasing their wages 10 per cent.

The United States Steel corporation, which granted an advance to 175,000 employes in March, 1905, without solicitation from the men, also is considering the question of another increase.

One reason for the general tendency to give more pay was brought out yesterday by Dun's trade agency, which reported that the cost of living was the highest in twenty years. Another reason given by financiers is that the industrial corporations are all in a highly prosperous condition and the scores of plants are being worked to their full capacity and under high pressure. Under these conditions, it is said to be the desire of the managements of the larger corporations to have their workmen participate in this prosperity.

Men of prominence in the financial world see in the concerted action of the great corporations a desire to checkmate the growing tide of antagonism to corporations, such as was brought out in the recent election. The discontent among the laboring element, the higher cost of living, the lowered purchasing power of the dollar and the effect of the disclosures of corporate abuses, it is generally admitted, have forced the corporations to adopt a more liberal policy toward the workingmen and thereby conciliate the active antagonism which was reflected in the election.

TERRORISTS STEAL GUN

St. Petersburg Revolutionists Cap Chimax of Robberies.

Machine Cannon and Ammunition Stolen From Arsenal.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 10.—The most recent exploit of the St. Petersburg revolutionists is the theft of a machine gun of the latest model and a large supply of cartridges. It is presumed that an expert gunner is involved, because all the necessary accessories were simultaneously abstracted from the armory. The prefect of police has issued an order specially emphasizing the necessity of recapturing the gun.

The man named Schekter, who threw the bomb at Police Captain Samsonoff of Bialystok, one of the terroristic acts precipitating the Jewish massacre there, was convicted today and sentenced to ten years at hard labor. The prisoner, who is a mere youth, testified that he entered the terrorist organization as a spy, at the instance of the police in 1904, and served the police faithfully for two years, but he became converted to the theories of the revolutionists and determined to explate his treachery by killing Capt. Samsonoff.

This recalls the famous case of Degdieff, a member of the inner council of the terrorist organization, who, after the assassination of Emperor Alexander II in 1881, sold himself to Col. Suderkin, chief of the secret police, betrayed a thousand of his comrades and finally confessed his treachery and atoned for it by killing Suderkin in 1883. Degdieff fled to America, where it was reported he took up his abode under another name.

BOLD CRIME BY STRANGER

A Minneapolis Woman Choked Unconscious by Room Seeker.

Appearance of Keeper of Morgue Alone Prevents Murder.

Minneapolis, Nov. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. C. J. Carlson, 511 Ninth avenue, South Minneapolis, was brutally assaulted yesterday afternoon in her home by a strange man, who gained access to the house on the plea that he wanted to rent a room.

But for the timely arrival of Peter Morten, keeper of the morgue, who lives a few doors from the Carlson residence, the woman might have lost her life. As it was, she was choked into unconsciousness during the struggle, and she is still in a highly nervous and hysterical condition from the shock.

The assailant, who was speedily captured, gave his name as James Keenan. He is locked up at the South Side police station. He is about 40 years of age.

SECRET SERVICE CHIEF AT ST. PAUL AT REST

St. Paul, Nov. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Capt. J. W. Lawrence, aged 63 years, chief of the Federal secret service of this district, died suddenly early today of heart disease. He had his headquarters in St. Paul, but his widow and family reside at Union, Iowa. He had been ill for some time and had suffered a paralytic stroke.

ST. PETER TO CELEBRATE

Great Victory of Governor Johnson Next Wednesday Night.

Will be Much Larger Crowd Than Two Years Ago.

St. Paul, Nov. 10.—(Special to The Herald.) — Governor Johnson's tremendous victory at the polls last Tuesday is to be celebrated in his home town next Wednesday night. This was decided upon at a mass meeting of business men held in the public library last evening.

Various committees were appointed, and arrangements will be made to run special trains on all roads. From the number of inquiries which have been received, it is evident that the crowd will be much larger than that which attended the governor's ratification two years ago.

LORD CURZON IS BARRED.

Former Viceroy Too Inexperienced in Diplomacy to be Ambassador.

Washington, Nov. 10.—That Lord Curzon, former viceroy of India and son-in-law of the late Levi Z. Leiter of Chicago, will succeed Sir Mortimer Durand as British ambassador here, is regarded as extremely unlikely. It is pointed out that it is not the practice to appoint to a high diplomatic post any person who has not had long service in that corps.

That Sir Mortimer Durand is too slow for the energetic diplomacy of Secretary Root is the explanation given in Washington gossip for the retirement of the British ambassador. The friction came about, it is said, through the failure of the Briton to cooperate satisfactorily with the secretary in the negotiations for a treaty with Canada, which would end all disputes between that country and the United States.

PHILIPPINES OUTLOOK FOR CATHOLICS BRIGHT.

Rome, Nov. 10.—Archbishop J. J. Harty of Manila, who has just returned here from the Philippine Islands, gave high dignitaries of the church the most satisfactory accounts of the situation in the Philippines, where the Aglipay schism is said to be dying out, being more political than religious. The archbishop said that the division of the money derived from the purchase of the friar lands by the United States, as established by the vatican, pleased the Filipinos and the vatican is now investigating the needs of each Philippine diocese in order to fix its respective yearly portion.

ERIE FIREMEN TO VOTE.

Refusal of Fewer Working Hours May Result in Strike.

New York, Nov. 10.—President Underwood of the Erie railroad today refused demands for a reduction of working hours by the firemen employed on that road. A poll of the Erie firemen will be taken by their officers to determine whether they will strike.

WELLMAN ON WAY HOME PRIOR TO POLAR TRIP.

Paris, Nov. 10.—Walter Wellman and Major Hersey sailed for New York today on the French line steamer La Savoie. The former will return to Paris in six weeks to continue his supervision of the changes in his airship, and Hersey will be back in time to accompany the Chicago Record-Herald expedition in its attempt to reach the pole next summer.

BROKEN RAIL WRECKS CARS

One Man Killed and Nearly Score Injured in Ohio.

Blanchester, Ohio, Nov. 10.—The wrecking of passenger train No. 5, on the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern road today by a broken rail resulted in the death of one man and the injury of nearly a score of persons. The engine, postal and baggage cars passed, but five coaches were turned over and rolled down the bank. Three little children of one family were injured, one having its legs crushed. All the crew escaped, except Conductor Graham, who was injured.

JOHNSON'S MAJORITY IS STILL PILING UP

And It Is Possible It May Reach the 80,000 Mark.

Actual Figures Will Not be Known Until Canvassing Board Meets.

St. Paul, Nov. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the time of writing Governor Johnson's majority is still piling up and no one would be surprised if it reached 80,000. The real majority will not be known until the state canvassing board meets and the returns start to arrive at the office of the secretary of state. The most sanguine of the Democratic leaders stand aghast at the final results and in the words of one of the state officials, all the workers might as well have gone home to bed, for Johnson was elected as soon as the Duluth convention adjourned.

Johnson enters his second term one of the most independent governors that ever sat in the chair. He gives his election to no one man within the party nor even to the party itself. His election by the greatest majority that any governor ever received in Minnesota is his own personal triumph. He stands above all petty alliances and pledges and if he sees fit to make appointments he can do so as his will dictates, not as the party dictates, for he owes the election to his own personal labors and magnetism.

1906, Johnson over Cole.....64,868
1904, Van Sant over Rosing.....56,337
1854, Nelson over Owen.....60,033

There is no indication at present that Governor Johnson will make any important changes in the administrative staff. There may be a few minor changes, but what these are is still a matter for mere conjecture.

Now for the speakership fight. Ambrose Tighe and N. F. Hugo of Duluth are both active candidates. Neither one has great advantage over the other, as a majority of the house is new, only thirty-two of the 119 having ever served before. This gives the way for a very pretty race for the speakership. Tighe and Hugo have been at work and both have pledges, so that a lively time is looked for when the representatives come to the capital for a caucus.

The Minnesota Shippers & Receivers' association will stand behind Hugo, and they will send the word along the line to work for his election. Ambrose Tighe is not wanted by those who hope to secure some favorable anti-railroad legislation this winter. The forces are working against him. Mr. Tighe was very popular with the house of four years ago, but he is comparatively unknown to the members of the newly elected body.

You hear very little from those men who opposed F. A. Day just before the convention. The tremendous majority secured by Johnson has shown that the voters of this state found Day much less objectionable than did a few of those within the ranks who coveted his position, the opposition came from one member of the official family quite generally known, but he, together with his henchmen, have been forever silenced. Governor Johnson is master of the situation now and above all question. He stood up manfully for Day, as he always stands up for his friends. Day was the most sanguine of his workers, and predicted a 30,000 majority and was, by the way, the nearest to the truth.

It is reported that Samuel A. Langum of Preston, secretary of the state senate for the last seven sessions, will serve in the same capacity this winter. A majority of the newly elected senators held a meeting at the Merchants hotel recently and it is reported that they settled on Sam A. Langum again. A. D. Countryman of Appleton, assistant secretary for six sessions, may be seen at his desk. The rest of the slate will be framed up at some future date.

* * *

Next to the large majority which Johnson rolled up is the gratifying fact that there lacks but one of enough votes to sustain his veto. The Democrats have a good working majority in the senate, and Governor Johnson can be counted upon to make the best of it. The Republicans will have to be very regular in attendance this year if they hope to defeat the governor's veto.

The Republicans are not even thinking of a candidate for 1908. A few of the state officials who were overcome by the Johnson majority are just reviving, and there is not enough animation yet present to discuss the matter coherently. Jacobson's name comes to the lips of some. Others are talking P. H. Hanson, but the speculation is desultory and the Republicans are willing to take a rest for the next eighteen months.

The state canvassing board meets within next ten days and then we will know the real figures. Just think of it, every congressional district and all but five counties carried. Fillmore, State Auditor Iverson's own county, was carried. Jacobson's town, Madison, was carried. Senator Baker of Mankato was defeated, McCleary was defeated and Joanson carried the district and Mankato by a good majority. It was all beyond the wildest dreams of avarice.

Archie Vernon of the St. Paul Daily News is being mentioned prominently as Julius Schmahl's successor as chief clerk of the house. Larry Hodgson was mentioned, but he announces that he will not go after the plum, but will stick to newspaper work. Vernon is well liked among state officials and the representatives and stands a good chance of landing it. He will have to face competition, however from Hennepin county.

* * *

It would take a corps of stenographers to answer all the congratulatory letters which Governor Johnson is receiving every day. They come in by the bushel. It is a terrible thing to be so popular.

* * *

Silas W. Leavitt, a member of the board of control, before the election tried to raise two issues when he made a venomous attack on L. A. Rosing by accusing him of dragging politics into the board of control. His first issue was one upon which he hoped to elect Cole. In event of Cole's election he hoped the second would be raised that Rosing should be removed from the board for pernicious activity. Calckens sometimes come home to roost. They may in the case of Silas W. Leavitt of Litchfield before long.

The attack of Mr. Leavitt was the only mud slinging episode in what was the cleanest campaign ever waged in the political annals of the state. Both candidates completed the campaign friends and neither once spoke disrespectfully of the other. It is a remarkable record. Had it not been for the narrowness and vindictiveness of one office holder in the state house the slate would be clean. This blot on the escutcheon will likely be erased.

* * *

Johnson's re-election recalls a good story told on L. A. Rosing, following John Lind's defeat for a second term. L. A. Rosing was his private secretary, and it was the morning after. The scene was laid in the governor's office. Mr. Rosing was softly humming a tune. Mr. Rice, his executive clerk, interrupted him with the remark:

"Mr. Rosing, do you know what you are singing?"

"No, sir, I do not."

"It is that good old hymn," replied Rice, "entitled 'What a Friend We Have In Jesus.'"

Mr. Rosing had been humming the hymn unconsciously.

CITY BRIEFS

Aged 101 Years.

T. Grady of 811 Lake avenue south, received a message today from his sister at St. Francis, N. S., advising him of the death of his mother at the advanced age of 101 years. Mrs. Grady was born in Boston on March 27, 1805.

Lecture Course.

Didie Dion is in Duluth in the interest of the International Lecture bureau, to get subscribers to establish an economic course here this winter. This course is especially for those who delight in intellectual reasoning and Mr. Dion is working among the people of Duluth to assure the course here.

Workmen Will Celebrate.

Five of the Duluth lodges of the A. O. U. W. order will hold a meeting at the Maccabee hall, Thursday evening, Nov. 15, to welcome Master Workman William N. Narvis of Muscatine, Iowa, and to initiate, jointly, a large class of candidates.

To Play at Superior.

New Church Planned.

At a well-attended meeting held last evening at the African Methodist Episcopal church, Sixth street and Fifth avenue east, plans for the erection of a new church, to cost from $8,000 to $10,000, were discussed. A citizens' league was formed, with H. S. Merry, chairman, and a building committee appointed, comprising H. J. Shelton, H. S. Merry, Harry E. Johnson, George B. Kelley and Mrs. Monroe Brown. These bodies will have in charge the raising of the funds with which to build the new church.

Alfred L. Thwing Successful.

The successful candidate for prosecuting attorney of Hennepin county was Alfred L. Thwing, a son of J. L. Thwing of Duluth, who has many friends here and in the vicinity. He was the Republican candidate and was elected by 300 majority over his Democratic opponent.

Will Observe Anniversary.

The companies of the local I. O. F. will hold the eighth anniversary celebration of the order at Bowlby's hall Wednesday evening, Nov. 14. It is expected that there will be quite a large number of Foresters and their families in attendance. A general good time is promised by those in charge of the celebration.

Entertained At Dinner.

Miss Witterlind, of 1703 North Second street, entertained at a dinner party Wednesday evening for Miss Lucile Adams, of Butte, Mont. Covers were laid for twenty-two. The dining room was decorated with ferns and chrucanthemums. The following guests were present: Misses Adams, Butte, Mont.; Cook, Ashland, Lester, Marshall, Albright, Cooper, Dignos, Bain, Jones, Turge, Michel and Messrs. Cooley, Mooney, Brown, Dunlap, Drefold, Martin and John Wetterlind, Dignas, Kenney and Hall and Monroe of Minneapolis.

M. C. French In Kansas.

M. C. French, formerly well known in Head of the Lakes mining circles, is now located at Baxter Springs, Kansas. He is treasurer of the Tyrrill Hill Mines company, an organization having to do with lead and zinc ores. He is also interested in the Kansas oil fields.

Fire Starts In Sofa.

The fire department was called out shortly after 1 o'clock this afternoon by a blaze in a house owned by Dr. G. W. Davis at First street and Sixteenth avenue east, occupied by F. E. Lindahl. The fire started by some means not yet known in a sofa. By the time the fire was extinguished the sofa, some curtains and other articles of furniture were destroyed. The damage will amount to about $400 or $500.

Sailors Will Dine.

The arrangements for the third anniversary celebration of the Minnesota naval militia are practically completed. The dinner at the St. Louis hotel Thursday evening will be attended by the members of both divisions of the naval reserve. The guests of honor will be Congressman J. Adam Bede, Senators Lairbourn and Pugh, Senator-elect P. R. Vail, H. R. Spencer and T. W. Hugo.

GREEN GOODS PASSING.

Some Ancient Swindles That Netted Fortunes About Ended.

The green goods game is passing. Not that the definite end of so ingenious and elsive a swindle will be seen in the immediate future, but the scheme that earned $75,000 a year for Jimmie McNally, the Con King, in the old days and gave small fortunes to more East Side ward heelers, than New York will ever realize, is rapidly passing into the misty distance of the "con" man's golden age, says the New York Sun.

The United States Post Office inspectors have at last discovered an effective means of crippling the green goods game. The fact is that the local inspectors, under the direction of Chief Walter S. Mayer, have gone into the business themselves in a modest way, making about $1,000 a month for Uncle Sam out of the operators of the game. And the chances of a green goods sharper's catching a tartar in the supposed come-on and having to give up two or three thousand dollars in real money to help the Government pay his board in Kings County Penitentiary are getting to be so good that the more discreet confidence men are turning their attention to fresher and less dangerous fields.

Chief Mayer has accomplished this by pushing two measures of attack. In the first place he has made it almost impossible for the sharpers to keep up communication with their intended victim after he has received the first circulars that made him anxious to do business. This has been done by the practical elimination of that obscure but indispensable go-between, the telegraph operator—upon whose secret aid depends the maintenance of a receiving address by the swindlers. In the second place Chief Mayer has done his utmost to bag at once the swindlers and their bankroll.

According to the police and the post office inspectors the green goods game is one of the few new things under the sun. It only came into being, they say, around the year 1870.

Although many crooks have claimed it no one knows to whom the dubious honor of inventing the game is due—all that can be positively stated is that one day a flash of inspiration passed through the cunning mind of some Larry Summerfield of that day, and the germ of the swindle was alive.

To make the man swindled an intending criminal himself by inducing him to buy supposed counterfeit money to pass on his neighbors was the essence of the new scheme. It was not long in developing into one of the most lucrative and persistent swindles ever known.

The most striking feature of the business during its early years was the ease with which the victims were swindled. There were no postal regulations then to prevent the operators using the mails, and it was almost impossible to punish them under the state laws. In consequence the business progressed with an old fashioned simplicity, grimly amusing to contemplate from a viewpoint twenty-five years distant.

The circulars advertising for sale counterfeit money, not to be distinguished from the genuine, were simply dumped into the mails by the hundred. The addresses of the leading lights of hamlets and towns not too distant from New York were bought from brokers who then as now did a regular business in procuring them from patent medicine houses and other mail order concerns.

Then thirty circulars out of a hundred, as against twelve today, elicited replies. To these a second circular was mailed, enclosing a sample of the alleged counterfeit money, invariably a genuine $1 bill, with a recommendation that the customer test it on his friends and make sure that it was as "good as the genuine." He could buy counterfeit money just as good as that, $5,000 worth for $500, $7,000 worth for $750, and so on. Then all that remained for the victim was to come on to New York and be robbed.

Not only ignorant country bumpkins but intelligent men in every walk of life bit at the hook of the green goods men. Many a country banker was caught. One of the most notorious cases was that of a clergyman who took the money contributed by his congregation for domestic missions and lost it to the sharpers.

Money came fairly raining in to the swindlers. The annual income of ten groups of them, operating from New York in the early '80s, has been estimated by the police at upward of $900,000. Old Jimmy McNally, now down and out, made his hundred thousand a year then, say the postoffice inspectors, as regularly as if it was a mere matter of clipping coupons.

A picturesque east side figure, a politician in a small way all his long life, died a few years ago leaving a fortune of $300,000, nearly all amassed by prudent investments in the green goods business. He put up the roll of real money used in working the game. Half the returns went to him, and as he knew his men there was never any squealing. He was a faithful churchgoer all his life, a generous giver to charities, and always known as not only an honest but a sympathetic man.

Then, about 1886, came the passage of the federal enactments making use of the mails with intent to defraud an offense punishable by eighteen months' imprisonment and $100 fine; likewise, that giving the postmaster general power to issue fraud orders. This was the first real blow and, up to a few years ago, the only effective one that had ever been struck at the game.

For a time it made all the operators practically give up business, but in a few years such men as William C. Woodworth, known all through the criminal world as Big Hawley, and Jimmie McNally, then and afterward the king of the con men, with the assistance of the shyster lawyers that are always on the staff of such men as Goslin, Larry Summerhead and their ilk, had devised an entirely new form of the game.

The chief effect of the new federal law up to the time Chief Mayer took office, eighteen months ago, was merely to invent a more ingenious scheme than ever. This worked almost without hindrance for a long time, certainly without any enective curbing of the swindlers.

The chief new feature of the game was the use of the telegraph. Many of the generals and princes of the game have claimed the credit of suggesting this amendment to the old game, but, according to Postoffice Inspector Jacobs and Inspector Boyle of the New York office and Inspector Snow of the Boston office, William C. Woodworth (Big Hawley) deserves the credit of the invention.

Big Hawley later became known all over the country as perhaps the best confidence man alive. As Lord Lionel Musgrave he is alleged to have swindled London people out of thousands of dollars. He got out of Charlestown jail at Boston the other day, broke, and he now announces that he's writing a book telling about all the people in high society who have been associated with his swindling schemes at different times.

This new feature of the game was simply to arrange that the come-on should send his answers to the swindlers by wire instead of by mail.

The other radical improvement over the old scheme provided for a division of labor. Instead of being worked by one man or group of men in the good old fashion, the new scheme fell into the hands of two different parties of operators, quite unconnected, and headed by two men called in the parlance of the underworld the writer and the backer.

The writer first got up the circulars and sent them out by the hundred. He kept the venal telegraph operators on his pay roll to receive the telegrams from the victims. He arranged with other tools to get these dispatches, and with the steerers to meet the victim.

With that his part in the game was finished. The backer now took hold.

He was the man who provided the roll of from $2,000 to $10,000 in good greenbacks used as bait. He hired the turner, the man to whom another steerer, also hired by him, brought the victim from the writer's steerer to be swindled. The backer likewise hired the ringer who effected the rapid substitution of the green paper for the good money, if that was done. In the turning joint. He also engaged the tallers who kept watch outside the turning joint while the victim was being fleeced, and the one who put him on a through train for home afterward.

Say the come-on was robbed of $1,000. Half went to the writer, half to the backer. The backer paid a good rent for the turning joint, gave the turner who did the actual swindle a quarter of his pile, and his steerer, tallers and ringer $5 or $10 each. The writer gave his telegraph operators $25 a month right along, and the steerers, usually broken-down crooks like the turner's minor assistants, $5 apiece.

Thus writer and backers each made from $340 to $375 on the turn without coming anywhere within reach of the arm of the law themselves. Both kept out of sight at all stages of the swindle; and it was a poor week when such men as Jimmie McNally or Big Hawley couldn't turn eight or ten come-ons.

A politician who was backing four writers at the same time made from $1,500 to $2,500 a week for five years. In that time he went bail for half a dozen of his steerers arrested by the postal inspectors on suspicion. Two steerers jumped their bail and he paid it.

His turner was sent to Sing Sing for six years for murderously assaulting a come-on who flushed his money but refused to give it up. The backer supported the turner's family until he was out and could begin to make a living out of the game again. When the backer retired at the end of his five years he had paid all expenses, had lived rather expensively and had a quarter of a million clear in bank.

It was this dexterous and elusive swindle that Chief Mayer found in full operation when he became head of the New York division on Jan. 1, 1905. His first step was to provide come-ons to reply to the green goods circulars that came into his hands.

One supposed come-on whom steerers often met in Jersey City was a borrowed police officer. The game would proceed along the regular lines; but when the turner finished his genuine roll the pseudo victim pulled his gun.

Chief Mayer's orders were "shoot to kill if necessary, but bag the turner and the roll at any cost." Policeman Peter Duncan, who played the come-on eight times, until the operators got wise to him, had to shoot the first turner in the shoulder in self-defense. He didn't have to shoot in the later captures.

As soon as the bunco men got one of the borrowed policemen spotted, another man of nerve and resource from the green fields of The Bronx was selected and went through his short term of playing the come-on.

Chief Mayer next turned his attention to the crooked telegraph operators, without whose help the swindler could not be worked. The green goods men had upward of fifty addresses in New York where they were receiving telegrams and as many more in Brooklyn and Jersey City.

He set to work at once to reduce this total of one hundred odd to zero. He did it by collecting proof that certain operators were receiving dispatches for the benefit of green goods men. Then he took his case to the authorities of the telegraph company.

"Mistake or no mistake," he said, "these swindlers have received telegrams secretly and unlawfully through this man, your employee. I can convict him of crime without great difficulty; but I am satisfied of his guilt and I ask his dismissal."

The officials were ready enough to stop the crooked work when it was put up to them, and the man was dismissed. So one by one, the forty or fifty crooked operators in Greater New York, each keeping up one or two crooked addresses for the swindlers and the hundred telegraph addresses went out of being.

A relic of the time when the operators heard from their victims through their accomplices, the telegraphers, is an indictment filed about six months ago with Charles Van Hagen, clerk of the criminal branch of the United States circuit court, against one Carey, manager of a telegraph office in One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, for conspiring with green goods men to violate the law.

Chief Mayer's plan of operations reads simply enough, yet the rooting out of the telegraph addresses and the hunting down of the swindlers was a long, hard task.

Bill Hanley's case was typical. He was one of the first topnotch men caught in Chief Mayer's net. He hired a good lawyer, appealed, got stays of sentence, and when finally sentenced to four and a half years imprisonment on three indictments, he jumped his bail.

Postoffice Inspectors Boyle, Cortelyou and Ryan ran him down finally at Goshen, N. Y., last autumn. The green goods man, once studious in shunning the society of other common criminals, was found in the company of the noted bank burglar and sneak thief, Abe Coakley. Before the fight between the crooks and detectives was over, Coakley is alleged to have shot Ryan in the lungs and Cortelyou had a broken arm. Not until then was Hanley finally brought to justice and sent to Auburn to begin his sentence.

It is interesting to note that when Marshal Henkel arraigned Coakley before United States Commissioner Shields for shooting Ryan the bank burglar was bailed out by the head of a large contracting firm who is a brother of one of the foremost politicians of New York.

One chapter from the records of the telegraph company will suffice to show what a resistance the schemers put up against Chief Mayer's fight on the telegraphers. When Mike Ryan, an alleged writer, learned that the general manager of the company had dismissed an operator suspected of being in his pay he came out into the open, demanded that the telegrams be sent to him and on the company's refusal brought suit against it for heavy damages.

It was then, on April 14, 1905, that Chief Mayer backed up the company's stand by having Ryan's alleged accomplice, Carey, the 125th street manager, indicted. Soon after Ryan had dropped the damage suit he was caught by one of Chief Mayer's inspectors with the goods on in another green goods operation, pleaded guilty and paid his fine.

Charles Barry and William Goodman, two of the best of the smaller operators, were captured by Inspectors J. E. Jacobs and M. H. Boyle and Sergt. McConville in October, 1905, in a small hotel on Park row, Peter Duncan, the Bronx patrolman, playing the come-on. The $1,500 captured on the cooks just sufficed to pay their fines, Barry getting thirteen months on each of two indictments and Goodman thirteen months on one indictment.

In March, 1906, Sergt. Alphonse Rheaume played the come-on, a supposed banker from Mt. Hope, Ala. Meeting the operators in a back room over a South Brooklyn saloon, he called in Inspectors Jacobs, Meyer and Boyle, one of the latter waiting outside, and the four men were waiting outside, and the four men were waiting outside, and the four men were SKILLFUL TREATMENT OF MEN'S DISEASES.

The Northwest's Most Reliable Specialist IN MEN'S DISEASES

THERE is nothing that speaks for more than actual facts which are everyday occurrences, and when we propose to demonstrate to any man afflicted with any of the diseases that come under our specialty, that we are constantly dismissing cured cases that have been existing in chronic and malignant form for months, it should be certainly enough that we do all we claim—cure diseases of the Pelvic System if they are in reach of medical science. Our ability is proven by the professional services we render, and, though we seldom fail to effect a cure under such circumstances, we receive thanks for our best and conscientious services.

Numerous Pelvic Diseases and Their Dangerous Development.

It is not generally known that such a large number of men are afflicted with some Pelvic disease and chronic complications arising therefrom. The most prolific source of chronic troubles in the Pelvic system is from what is considered the simplest contagious disease, and from neglect and improper medical attention it develops into Prostatitis and finally Kidney and Bladder affections that become so serious as to be incurable. So many men of all ages begin with a little inflammation which should be cured in a few days. This condtion through improper attention or neglect of treatment allows the disease to incapacitate them for the physical and mental duties of man. Impure blood is a disease that in the primary stage, by our system of treatment, is checked in its ravaging course and never amounts to more than a trifling blood disorder, though there are many who are gradually decaying and their misery doubled by the use of injurious treatments. Skin Diseases, Nervous Decline, Weakness and associated diseases are equally sure of a detrimental course if they are not treated promptly and scientifically. What is more vivid than the old adage, "A stitch in time saves nine," to a man whose health is being impaired by a treacherous ailment, and how can a man spend his money more wisely than to save his physical and mental powers.

Varicose and Hydrocystic Enlargements, Wasting, Weakening and Debilitated conditions so common among men, in fact, all troubles peculiar to men, are successfully treated by us, because we have practiced our specialty long enough to formulate scientific methods upon which we can depend, and conscientiously promise our patients entirely satisfactory results.

WE CURE IMPURE BLOOD Skin Diseases, Eczema, Itching, Burning, Pimples, Blotches and Discolorations of the skin.

Blood Poison is either specific or nonspecific. If specific it has arisen by the transfer of poison, and it often appears in the form of scrofula, eczema or similar affections. The nonspecific form is ordinary skin diseases and eruptions, which are due to the blood becoming laden with impurities from the whole system getting out of gear so that poisonous matter accumulates in the blood.

In the treatment of all blood diseases the mistakes too often made are in giving medicines—so-called "blood purifiers"—and in taking patent medicines that are usually harmful because they stop the work of the excretory glands in throwing the poison to the surface, so that the outward signs will disappear for a while, and in so doing the poison in the system increases sometimes to the extent that it attacks the internal organs and becomes fatal. Don't allow the poison to be locked in your system. Have it eliminated, the components of the blood repaired, the tissues restored, and your whole system cleansed so that you will always have pure flesh and blood and robust health. Our treatment is a specific that completely reorganizes the blood corpuscles, by means of which every particle of infectious matter is eliminated. It has been thoroughly tested in the most severe cases and will eradicate every trace of the disease so that a sign never reappears.

Our study and extensive practice in the treatment of all forms of Kidney, Bladder and all Urinary Troubles have familiarized us to the extent that we have attained skill which insures successful treatment in all cases not absolutely incurable. We determine the condition by a scientific analysis of urine, and the severe genito- urinary troubles we have cured by our systematic course of treatment gives us such confidence in our method as to assure good results, and we offer you Consultation Free, Confidential and Private—A personal, thorough and searching examination is required, though if inconvenient to call, write us for information. Office hours are from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m., excepting Sunday, from 10 to 1.

Only Medicine for 30 Years

MR. W. A. STAGG

Mr. W. A. Stagg, Brooklyn, N. Y., aged 73, enjoys good health, thanks to Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, which has been his medicine for 30 years.

Mr. Stagg has had Grip many times, and he says that Duffy's makes a complete cure every time, preventing any bad after effects. After using Duffy's for 30 years as prescribed, he would not be without it.

He gratefully writes:

"For thirty years Duffy's Malt Whiskey has been my one medicine. I have always used it as prescribed and it has proved a valuable aid, as it has not only cured several attacks, but has prevented any bad after effects. I cannot speak too highly of what Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has done for me, and will always keep it to stimulate and tone up my system and as a sure cure for colds and grip. Although 73 years old, I am hale and hearty, due to the judicious use of Duffy's Malt Whiskey. W. A. Stagg, 1063 Pacific St., Brooklyn."—April 3, '06.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

is an absolutely pure, gentle and invigorating stimulant and tonic, builds up the nerve tissues, tones up the heart, gives power to the brain, strength and elasticity to the muscles and richness to the blood. It brings into action all the vital forces, it makes digestion perfect and enables you to get from the food you eat the nourishment it contains. It is invaluable for overworked men, delicate women and sickly children. It strengthens the system, is a promoter of good health and longevity, makes the old young and keeps the young strong. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey contains no fusel oil and is the only whiskey that has been recognized as a medicine. This is a guarantee.

Sold by all druggists and grocers, or direct, in sealed bottles only; never in bulk. Price, $1. Insist on the genuine, and see that the "Old Chemist" trade-mark is on the label. Beware of refilled bottles and spurious malt whiskey substitutes offered for sale by unreliable dealers. They are positively harmful and will not cure. Medical booklet and doctor's advice free. SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT.

Philadelphia Ledger: A North Carolina preacher was requested to limit his sermon to thirty minutes, and it took him longer than that to tell what he thought of the request.

St. Louis Republic: A minister in Alton urges his flock to emulate his example and read the Sunday newspapers. He knows that in this age of rapid progress no one can afford to miss any day's events.

Boston Transcript: The members of a New Jersey church who felt their pastor had imposed upon them by charging the expense of a typewriter to a church must have felt the imposition was deeper yet when he explained that his sermons were too long to write with a pen.

Washington Herald: A South Carolina clergyman omitted his customary sermon and asked his congregation to excuse him, for the reason that he had been so busy attending weddings for a week before that he hadn't time to prepare one. The excuse ought to suffice: weddings are more important than sermons.

Baltimore American: A Philadelphia minister is denouncing the summer girl, saying that she carries her season's trophies of broken hearts as proudly as the Indian wears his scalps at his girdle. This is an attack on that favorite national institution, the summer girl, which the public generally will be quick to resent. To reprove her for breaking hearts is like breaking a butterfly on the wheel, especially as the hearts are completely restored with the advent of cooler weather and enjoy the process of fracturing as part of the regular summer outing. There are problems in life much more complex and dangerous than the summer girl, and it seems a waste of heavy artillery to turn it on her harmless flirtations. Her would-be critics had better be more careful of their own scalps.

A Good Liniment.

When you need a good, reliable liniment, try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It has no superior for sprains and swellings. A piece of flannel slightly dampened with Pain Balm is superior to a plaster for lame back or pains in the side or chest. It also relieves rheumatic pains and makes sleep and rest possible. TESTIMONY IS ALL SUBMITTED

Appraisers in Condemnation Proceedings Will Review Evidence.

The appraisers in the Wisconsin Central Railway company's condemnation proceedings completed their work last evening, as far as public meetings are concerned, for the hearing of testimony in values. The commission will take several days to go over all the evidence that has been collected and compile a report of the awards to be recommended to the district court.

Yesterday morning the appraisers heard the testimony concerning the value of the land that the company wishes for a right of way through the grounds of the H. R. Elliott Packing company at Thirty-eighth avenue west.

In the afternoon, testimony was submitted by owners of property abutting Michigan street under which the company expects to tunnel, on the question of damages that may be sustained by reason of the blasting. The owners contend that the jar from the blasts in the solid rock will damage the foundations of their buildings, that the smoke which is likely to issue from the ends of the tunnel after the passage of trains will envelope the neighborhod and become a nuisance to the people living there.

Capt. Joseph Sellwood was the only witness heard on the tunnel matter. Mr. Sellwood believed that the property owners have a reasonable right to ask compensation for damages that may result to their buildings from the blasting. He thought the smoke nuisance worthy of consideration by the appraisers.

ASSESSES GRAIN IN ELEVATORS

Superior Board of Review Places Figures at $200,000.

The board of review of the city of Superior carried out Mayor Victor Linley's wishes yesterday by making the assessment on the grain found in the Superior elevators, May 1, 1906, $200,000. Mayor Linley really wished the figures $50,000 higher, but the board thought the assessment made was high enough. The assessment followed the written opinion of City Attorney Luse, in which he held that, while all grain found in the elevators, May 1, may not be subject to taxation, to leave it off the rolls entirely would probably endanger the collection of taxes. The elevator interests fought stubbornly the attempt to raise the assessment.

The assessment is apportioned as follows: Great Northern, $85,000; Globe system, $65,000; Terminal system, $15,000; Itasca elevator, $35,000.

The board of review sustained the assessment of $300,000 placed on the Wisconsin Central Railway company's property in Superior. The company objected on the grounds that it paid a state tax. The same action was taken in the matter of the assessment of the Great Northern elevator and dock property.

The railroad company has, it is claimed, made no particular fight against being taxed for elevators and coal docks, but there has been opposition to the idea of taxing certain strips of land adjacent to the railroad terminals. The tax on the latter amounts to $35,000, and on the elevators and coal docks to $526,000. About $450,000 in taxes of a similar nature are outstanding from last year. It is thought probable that the matter may be satisfactorily adjusted by the attorneys.

The board of review reduced the assessment of the Terminal railroad by $6,000, on account of a tax by the state. The assessment of $700 against the People's Telephone company on a city lot was upheld.

LOG ROLLING FATAL.

Two Hookmen Are Swept Under a Log and Drowned.

Biwabik, Minn., Nov. 10.—News reached this place yesterday of the drowning last Saturday, at a logging camp about twenty miles north of here, of Olaf Guldmar and Sigurd Borgman, two hookmen employed in the lumber camp. According to eye witnesses they were engaged in a "teetering" contest during the lunch hour. The pace finally became so fast that both were thrown from the log, swept by the swiftly flowing tide under a raft, and drowned. Both were unmarried and had only been in this country a short time.

HAD BLOODY BATTLE.

Deckhands Fight on Freight Boat for Half Hour.

While a crowd of people on the dock looked on, James Sculley and John Nouckey, deck hands on the freight boat tied up at the foot of Lake avenue, fought a bloody battle for about half an hour. Efforts on the part of the men on the boat to stop the fight were unavailing, but when the police were sent for the fighters were not long in getting separated.

Later in the day Nouckey swore out a warrant for Sculley's arrest, on the charge of assault. Sculley pleaded guilty, in the municipal court, and paid a fine of $12.50.

The fight is said to be the result of a long-drawn argument between the men. Nouckey claimed that Sculley struck him in the face as he was leaving the boat. He claimed he acted only in self-defense.

"GOOD STUFF."

A Confirmed Coffee Drinker Takes to Postum.

A housewife was recently surprised when cook served Postum instead of coffee. She says:

"For the last five or six years I have been troubled with nervousness, indigestion and heart trouble. I couldn't get any benefit from the doctor's medicine, so finally he ordered me to stop drinking coffee, which I did.

"I drank hot water while taking the doctor's medicine, with some improvement, then went back to coffee with the same old trouble as before.

"A new servant girl told me about Postum—said her folks used it and liked it in place of coffee. We got a package, but I told her I did not believe my husband would like it, as he was a great coffee drinker.

"To my surprise he called for a third cup, said it was 'good stuff' and wanted to know what it was. We have used Postum ever since and both feel better than we have in years.

"My husband used to have bad spells with his stomach and would be sick three or four days, during which time he could not eat or drink anything. But since he gave up coffee and took to Postum, he has had no more trouble, and we now fully believe it was all caused by coffee.

"I have not had any return of my former troubles since drinking Postum, and feel better and can do more work than in the last ten years. We tell everyone about it—some say they tried it and did not like it. I tell them it makes all the difference as to how it's made. It should be made according to directions—then it is delicious."

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

Few People Know How Useful It is Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but, on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician, in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefitted by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

INDIAN RUNNER WITH NEVADA RETURNS MISSING

Reno, Nev., Nov. 10.—Tom Bigfoot, an Indian runner, to whom the election ballots and returns of the Wonder mining district were given Wednesday, has disappeared and deputy sheriffs are scouring the country sixty miles east of Reno for him. Upon the returns rests the fate of the candidates for judge in the Second district and the fate of several Churchill county candidates. It is believed that the Indian was intercepted and robbed of the returns and that he fled to the hills.

Law Enforcement.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The election is over, and the result was not a surprise to me. Ever since the convention was held here, and the nomination was made, it was plain to me that it would be a landslide. Had they put up a man with fighting quality and larger acquaintance, the landslide would not have been so great.

Parties may put up men, but they can't be dictators. The people render the decision, and that is right. Good, clean men and good, clean government is what we want. The best men in the land ought to be put up for the highest offices. Men with backbone and courage to do their duty without fear and favor. However, such men are scarce; there are very few men of the Roosevelt type.

We also want good practical men in our law-making bodies that can make laws that can be respected and upheld.

I read the mayor's proclamation quoting the state law as authority that on Sabbath day, commonly called Sunday, or any general or special election day, the saloons shall be closed. Any person violating any of the provisions of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be punished, etc.

It seems to me that this looks pretty plain, and yet it seems awful hard for the authorities to find any one guilty. I can see nothing about the side door issue in this paragraph. Any man who does not sleep when he is on duty, yes, even out of duty, can plainly see a "few" persons guilty of misdemeanor. Yet it seems awful hard to convict them. What more witnesses do we want when the authorities openly defy that "lids" shall be on, contrary to the statute of the state, and clothe themselves with authority which they have absolutely no more right to than any other man?

The Sunday observance law is not only a civic law, but a devine law, and therefore of greater importance than any laws that can be framed by man. The devine law does not only take in this nation, but all the nations and for all time to come. The civic laws may be appealed or amended, and I wish to God that they would do something in that line, so that our laws may be respected and upheld. The divine laws, however, are final and no one can meddle with them. I do not see how any man who has a keen conscience and who respects the laws can take the oath knowing that he never intends to do what is required of him to do. How many men in official life are there who have not perjured themselves? On any estimation their sin is greater than those who probably do not know what it means. It is impossible to get a good, clean government as long as these things exist.

When public sentiment is to be supreme, no matter whether right or wrong, why not strike them out?

How can we expect to educate our children to be law-abiding citizens when the chief authorities pay no attention to the fundamental law? I have no use for hypocrites in any form. Let me at the same time say that those who preach the doctrine of the non-partisan politics and appeal to the opposite party for help to elect their man, claiming that party politics should not enter in that election anyhow, in their hearts are selfish and hypocrites. Most of those who preach non-partisan politics will go home on election day and vote straight, regardless of men and their doctrines.

It is this sneaky way of hypocrites that I am after. My politics has always been voting for the best man according to my own conviction regardless of party.

There is a great deal of difference in executive ability of men in regard to business matters, but when it come to law enforcement they are all lacking.

GOVERNOR JOHNSON'S VICTORY.

As the belated returns on the governorship come into the state capital the wonder grows at the tremendous victory won by Governor John A. Johnson.

His plurality will be at least 70,000, and if there were 15,000 votes cast for the Prohibitionists and Public Ownership candidates for governor, his majority will be 55,000.

This is not only the greatest plurality ever given a candidate for governor in this state, but it is also the greatest majority.

Hitherto the greatest plurality ever given a candidate for governor was that received in 1894 by Knute Nelson, who got 60,053 more votes than his nearest opponent. But there were both Democratic and Populist candidates to divide the vote that year, and Nelson fell 363 votes short of having a majority. Governor Johnson not only succeeded in gaining a much greater plurality than did Nelson, but he also gained a tremendous majority.

The next largest plurality received by a Minnesota governor was that given Van Sant in 1902, when he got 56,487 on the merger runaway, while the state was merger-mad. Yet Governor Johnson's majority is nearly as great as that plurality, and the official returns may make it greater. Van Sant got a majority of 40,810 in that election, and he was the only candidate to receive a majority vote in the last twenty years, except W. R. Merriam, who had a majority of 7,078 in 1888.

Before this election the average Republican plurality for governor in the last ten elections was 13,788. The election of last Tuesday, figuring Governor Johnson's plurality at 70,000, reduces this average plurality, in the last eleven elections, to 6,171.

The pluralities, in order of size, in the last eleven state elections, were as follows: John A. Johnson in 1906, 70,000; Knute Nelson in 1894, 60,053; S. R. Van Sant in 1902, 56,487; W. R. Merriam in 1888, 24,104; John Lind in 1898, 20,194; Knute Nelson in 1892, 14,620; John A. Johnson in 1904, 7,862; D. M. Clough in 1896, 3,552; A. R. McGill in 1886, 2,600; W. R. Merriam in 1890, 2,267; S. R. Van Sant in 1900, 2,254.

No such revolution ever took place in Minnesota before, and no other state, so far as the records at hand show, has ever experienced such a complete turning over.

It is a magnificent tribute to personal merit, and establishes the popularity of Governor Johnson beyond attack. It has been the habit of the Republicans, when they have been beaten in the past, to explain it by saying that "the Swedes did it." This excuse is eliminated by this election. Governor Johnson carried many counties where the Swedish vote is very light, and the evidence shows that the fealty of the Swedes was no greater than that of almost any other nationality that could be named.

This election shows that the Swedes are not the only ones that have learned to vote independently. Nationality cut less figure in this election than it ever did where it could possibly be made an issue. Without regard to nationality or partisanship, the voters of Minnesota picked the better man, and gave him an endorsement that is eminently worth while.

A WARNING.

Opinions upon William Randolph Hearst, who was defeated for governor of New York Tuesday, differ widely, definitely and even bitterly. There does not appear to be any half-way business about it. Either he is a whole-souled champion of the people, or he is a self-seeking demagogue.

But whatever people may think of Mr. Hearst, two things stand out clearly and unchallenged: The evils he complains of are real evils, dangerous evils, evils calling loudly for remedy; and the remedies he proposes are popular, and, in the main, just.

His defeat by what is, under the circumstances, rather a narrow margin, makes more real the danger, as his enemies termed it, of his election. He came closer to victory than many people, outside of New York, had anticipated. He received thousands of votes from people that did not believe in him personally, but they did believe in the evils which he arraigned, and they did want them corrected, and they hoped that he would correct them.

His large plurality in Greater New York is significant. That city is the nation's capital of wealth. Enormous fortunes are common there. The arrogance of plutocracy is flaunted in the face of the people more pitilessly than it is anywhere else. The evils of combined wealth, and the unfairness of the present methods of distributing the benefits of civilization, are more conspicuous there than they are anywhere else in the land. Side by side live the direst poverty and the most extravagant wealth.

By its arrogance overgrown wealth has challenged such a result as the election of Hearst would have brought about. Its merciless exactions, its wholesale heartlessness, its brazen confidence in the supineness of the people, have stirred popular sentiment to its depths, and has given birth to class distinctions and class hatred that should have no place in this fair land.

It is small wonder, therefore, that a man who bends all his energies toward fostering this class hatred, and who promised to rebuke the arrogance of wealth, should have received many votes. It would have been no great wonder had he been elected.

And if the evils that brought about this situation are not corrected, he and worse than he may be elected to almost any office. If present conditions persist, conservatism will find itself brushed aside as lightly as a whisp of straw might be blown out of the road by a wintry blast.

Demagogism is a bad thing, but so is plutocracy, and plutocracy makes demagogism possible.

The people are long-suffering. They have stood much, and they will probably stand more. But there is a limit. If the people are crowded to that limit without relief, there may be a sudden and sharp revolt in which all the accumulated rage and hate of years will burst forth in a sudden explosion that will rock the foundations of the government.

AMERICAN NOVELS.

A writer in the Book News Monthly expresses real regret that so few American novelists are concerning themselves with writing novels of our own soil, novels which are the natural growth of our national life and character.

The novels that appeal most strongly to American readers are novels that deal most truthfully and most interestingly with things that are familiar to those readers.

A glance over the list of "best sellers" in the past few years will show that a great proportion of them deal with modern American life. A certain proportion of them have been historical, and in them the thing that has appealed has been pure romance, the relation of the deeds of men and women when surroundings were more conducive to romance than they are today.

Political and social novels, dealing with conditions that are acutely evident to everybody, have been financial successes if they have been half way well done. "The Jungle" sold enormously, not because it was a pretty book, or because it was particularly pleasant reading, but because it dealt with a subject that was of vital interest to the people.

Sectional stories, like "The Virginian," dealing with the West, and "The Clansman," dealing with the South, have attracted wide interest because they pictured details of real American life. People like to read about things that they already know about. They would rather do that than be instructed in the manners and customs of strange peoples. The average reader would rather enjoy a novel dealing with life in his home town, even if it were not so well done, than to read one dealing with life on some strange soil that he has never seen and never hopes to see.

Marion Crawford has a steady, reliable patronage of his novels. He is an accomplished and industrious workman, and his novels are a credit to American letters. But it is a safe venture to guess that if he lived in America, instead of in Italy, and wrote American novels instead of Italian novels, his genius would yield him very much larger financial returns, and his books would be more widely read and more widely enjoyed.

The "great American novel" has not come, nor is it threatened, because America is too many-sided to be pictured in one book. There may be a great American novel of New England, a great American novel of the West, a great American novel of the South, and even a great American novel of Indiana, Minnesota or Maryland; but if an author deals justly and artistically with one section, he is doing as much as may be expected of him.

However, if an author wishes to be certain of an appreciative audience, he must write of the things that audience knows, and therefore he must write carefully. It is strange, when it is so evident that novels that get close to American life are the most popular, that there are not more of them.

THE LAKE FISHERIES.

Few people have an idea that the fisheries of the great lakes form an industry as great as they do. A report just issued by the national bureau of fisheries, based on returns for 1903, shows that in that year 9,333 persons were employed and that 194 vessels with a tonnage of 3,506 tons and worth $634,450, were occupied in the fishing trade. These were equipped with outfits worth $147,402, and besides them, 340 vessels were engaged in transporting fish.

Employed in fishing were 3,170 small boats, worth $317,060, and 110,457 nets of various sorts, worth $1,310,300. The cash capital employed was $2,119,479, and the industry represented a total investment of $7,474,422.

Practically every variety of freshwater fish in common use as food is found in the Great Lakes. The principal yield is trout, whitefish and herring, but there are dozens of other kinds that are taken in considerable quantities. Even the despised sucker represents, in this report, a value of $121,576 in 1903. Sturgeons were caught to the value of $39,394, and sturgeon caviar was produced to the value of $13,223. This has doubtless been sold in the market as the imported Russian product. Yellow perch amounted to $139,670, pike-perch or wall-eyed pike to $407,367, German carp to $71,285, turtles to $2,372.

Whitefish have steadily declined as a factor in the lake fisheries, and unless efforts to propagate them are more successful than the efforts to get them to the market, they will presently be extinct. In 1903 the take of whitefish was valued at $337,866, while the trout caught was worth $722,542 and the herring $815,428.

The control of the industry is closely held, and fishermen have been complaining in the past season that they have been compelled to suffer by the growth of the monopoly. The prices paid fishermen for their catch has been reduced about 40 per cent in a few years without corresponding reduction in the price paid by the public.

ATTACKING NIAGARA FALLS.

The American Civic Federation, which has been giving its attention to the preservation of Niagara Falls from the encroachments of concerns that would turn all of its scenic beauty into prosaic power, has issued a warning against a new attempt to despoil the falls.

President J. H. McFarland of Harrisburg, Pa., is out with a circular addressed to the members of the association in which he says that all the work done for Niagara preservation is endangered by a situation that has developed since the recent Milwaukee convention of the association.

The engineer officer appointed by Secretary Taft to report upon the facts as to power development at Niagara has joined the American members of the International Waterways commission in a recommendation to Secretary Taft to permit the admission of 160,000 electrical horse-power from the Canadian side.

According to Mr. McFarland, the result of favorable action by Secretary Taft on this recommendation would be to abstract from the Niagara river above the falls a vast amount of water, equal in flow, in connection with the quantity now being diverted on the American side, to a rapidly running river nearly half a mile wide and eighteen feet deep. It is urged that such a withdrawal of water "may" not interfere with the preservation of the falls, but it is hardly conceivable that such an inroad on the water supply will not work great injury to them.

Technically, this claim may be correct. The falls will be there yet, but there won't be enough water running over them to make a decent show, if the manufacturers have their way. If they were given full play, there is not the slightest doubt that they would take every drop of water that could be used to make power. The cliff over which the water now falls in solemn grandeur would be dry and moss-covered. The water would all be diverted to the mills along the shore of the river, and one of the grandest bits of scenery in this land of unparalleled picturesqueness would be gone.

It is necessary to curb them, therefore, if this country would preserve Niagara Falls. There should be some spots in the country that are left immune from the contaminating touch of commercialism. We must not get so intensely practical that scenery becomes nothing to us but a means of making money. We must preserve some of our other instincts, and not let the instinct of commercialism become the monarch of our souls. If we suffer this, so much the worse for us and our ideals.

If the proposed withdrawal of water threatens the falls as it seems to, it is to be hoped that Secretary Taft will sit down upon it with all the power of his physical and mental weight.

CONGRESS AGAIN.

In less than a month now the people of this country will have congress on their hands again.

This can hardly be so important a session as that of last winter. For one thing, it is the "short session," ending March 4, when the terms expire and the new congressmen take their places. That is, they begin to draw salaries, but they will not be able to take their seats, unless there is a special session, until a year from next month.

Important matters, however, will press for action. The tariff is foremost in the popular mind, but it will occupy but a small place in the congressional vision. There is no election for two years, and the congressmen do not need to keep so close an eye on their constituencies as they do in the long session just preceding an election. The present house is hopelessly standpat, and those who would attempt tariff revision at this session would find themselves so circumscribed by hostility that they would quickly subside, unless they are possessed of unusual strength and determination.

The pure food bill, the meat inspection law, the denatured alcohol law and the railroad rate law, the important products of last winter's session, will need a little tinkering, flaws having been found in all of them.

Cuba will probably be the subject of some discussion, and those favoring annexation are quite likely to make their ideas known before the session closes. Annexation is not popular, and therefore it may not gain much headway, but it is certain to be discussed.

The merchant marine subsidy, the currency question, the Philippine tariff measure and other important subjects, are very likely to find themselves shunted off on the next congress for settlement.

Labor has some measures still awaiting attention, such as the anti-injunction bill and the bill limiting the hours of employment of railroad workers. The former stands little show of passage, at least in its present broad form, which makes labor the only exception from the operation of the writ of injunction. The bill that would place a reasonable limit on the time during which railroad trainmen may be employed is so obviously in the interests of the public safety that it ought not to have any real opposition, though it is certain to meet with some.

It will be a busy session, with little time for speech-making, and it will be interesting to note whether the warnings of the recent election will have any effect upon the conservatism of congress.

THE PASSING SHOW.

Too many people think that the business of government is over when the votes are counted. It has just begun then.

The interstate commerce commission, it is said, is going to investigate that Harriman railroad system. While it is at it, it might as well look into the question of what life insurance company is supplying the funds for Harriman's campaign of conquest.

The usual series of hunting accidents where men have been mistaken for deer is being unfolded. A hunter that can't tell a man from a deer ought to be sent to an insane asylum for the rest of his life.

In the election aftermath appear a number of stories of fraudulent voting, but none come from Minnesota, and this state has reason to congratulate itself that its elections are clean and undefiled.

In several states, including Minnesota, laws have been passed making it manslaughter to kill a man by mistaking him for a deer. There will be less carelessness when it has been enforced a few times.

One nice thing about the election in Minnesota is that stakeholders will not have to wait for the official count before paying bets.

Novelist Churchill's fight in New Hampshire seems to have been reflected at the polls, where the Republican candidate for governor failed to get a majority, and the legislature has to make the choice. It is Republican, and will undoubtedly select the Republican candidate.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"It now looks very much as if a first-class country road from Wrenshall to Duluth were a sure go," said C. M. Cromwell of Carlton, Minn., at the Lenox. "Much of the road is built already, and next year the finishing touches will be placed on it. I understand that negotiations for the construction of a bridge across the St. Louis river at Fond du Lac have not been entirely completed, but they are far enough along to insure some means of getting across the stream. That is the only thing in the way of the road at present.

"When the highway is completed and in good condition it will be used very largely, not only in a business way, but for pleasure as well. It will be a popular thoroughfare for automobiles and carriages, especially down toward this end. The farmers will use it most extensively, of course, bringing their products to Duluth for sale and to do their trading. The co-operative store that is to be established at West Duluth for their benefit will be a nice thing, and will prove an additional attraction to draw the country dwellers to Duluth.

"These co-operative stores have been successes in other parts of the country, and I see no reason why one should not succeed here, unless it be the fact that farmers here are not so numerous as elsewhere. The deficiency in this respect, however, could be made up from patronage accorded by residents of the city, and time will provide a remedy in more settlers, anyway.

"Wrenshall is a very small town. It boasts a brickyard, and that is about all, outside the dwelling houses. The country around there is pretty well taken up by settlers, however. One stock farm takes in a large area, and the owner is getting along in fine shape with the venture. He has a select bunch of stock, and finds the climatic and other conditions peculiarly fitted to stock-raising and dairying. I believe with others that stock-raising and dairying will be the principal industry of Northern Minnesota."

"I'll wager that more deer are shot during the week preceding the opening of the season than during any week during the open season," said D. D. Nelson of Bemidji at the McKay. "Last year I came to Duluth the morning the season opened, leaving Bemidji on the Great Northern train in the early morning hours, and arriving at Wawena, a small station not a great ways from Floodwood, not long after daylight. Eighteen deer carcasses were waiting at the station to be loaded onto the train. Now, how could eighteen deer be killed after midnight back there in the woods somewhere, dressed, and hauled to the station before daylight?

"In addition to the eighteen there probably were two or three score more scattered through the swamps, hung there by the hunters to await the time of breaking camp. There isn't much use kicking on the practice, for so many men do it, and there appears to be no way of stopping them. The practice is becoming more general every year, though.

"When a man goes into the woods and finds that his favorite ground has been thoroughly hunted over before the opening of the season, it naturally puts him out somewhat, and as a result of his wrath he usually decides to get on the ground early himself the next time, and the following year will like as not find him killing deer a week before season opens. At this time of the year a deer's carcass may be hung in the woods and kept for weeks at a time with perfect safety, so far as the preserving of the meat is concerned, for the weather is cold enough to keep it in good condition.

"About the only danger is wolves or other hunters of a thieving disposition, and if the deer is hung high enough the wolves cannot get at it. Sportsmen are usually not at all inclined to take game killed by another, but occasionally a man is found who will stoop to anything, and who will carry off a carcass or a part of a carcass, taking it as a matter of course."

"The political market is now a good deal like the stock market, where values not always are determined by innate worth, but by subtle manipulations that make intelligent forecasting impossible," said T. P. Arnold of Minneapolis, at the St. Louis. "The recent gubernatorial election in Minnesota was, I believe, an exception to the general rule, the worth of the man counting for everything, but in ordinary elections the man doesn't count for much as does what is behind the man.

"A man may know the situation thoroughly, may be in absolute control of knowledge of all social, economic and industrial conditions that would naturally influence the stock market or political situation, and yet his knowledge is useless, for a trustworthy stock goes down and a valueless stock goes up, not because of natural depressing or favorable influences, but because a band of men on the inside have determined upon a scheme to work the situation. Candidates are worked the same as stocks, and good men go down and bad men go up at the dictation of the party bosses. This is not so true now as it once was, but boss rule still maintains in several states, and will continue to rule for some time to come."

THE WEATHER.

A crisp, cool morning, with bright sunlight and embracing air, made life in Duluth delightful today. It warmed up as the sun rose higher but it was rather sharp last night, and the weather man says that it willbe sharp again tonight. At times this morning it was cloudy, and a few scattering flakes of snow fell. The weather man expects it to be partially cloudy and colder tonight and tomorrow, with tonight's temperature between 29 and 25 degs. Yesterday's highest temperature was 40 degs., and last night's lowest was 28 degs.

The sun set this afternoon at 4:40, and will rise to morrow morning at 7:06, setting tomorrow afternoon at 4:37, and rising Monday morning at 7:07. There will be nine hours and thrity-two minutes of day tomorrow.

A year ago today was a gloomy, cloudy fall day.

Says Mr. Davidson of conditions: "It is somewhat colder this morning in the central valleys and Lake region, the coldest temperature last night being 12 degs. at QuAppelle. Freezing temperature is the rule this morning in Western Canada, the upper lake region, Wisconsin, Minnowcotan, North Dakota, Eastern Montana, Nevada and Utah. Temperatureses are rising in the far West and Northwest. A disturbance has appeared over British Columbia which is causing rain in North Pacific districts. Light rain or snow also fell during Friday or last night over Manitoba, South Dakota, the northern and eastern lake region and New England as a result of the easterly movement of the lake region low pressure and falling barometer remains high over the Rocky mountains and eastern slopes and generally fair weather is indicated for this locality tonight and Sunday.

Following were last night's lowest temperatures as recorded by the weather bureau:

Abilene	58	Medicine Hat	28

"Not quite," answered Mr. Dustin Stax. "That's the fault of the people who have insisted on exposing the tricks of high finance."

Chicago Tribune: The pilgrims had landed at Plymouth Rock.

"The agricultural outlook is bilious," they said, "but for the study of geology there isn't a place on the whole blooming coast that can hold a candle to it."

Herewith they began collecting rocks, and their thrifty descendants have continued to do the same, even unto the present day.

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

Shall We Reform or Transform?

Reform is not only in the air today It is walking with strong and rapid strides up and down our streets invading our stores, and factories, our city halls and state capitols and touching our common life at many points. It may be held back by timid conservatives or temporarily hindered by its false friends or embarrassed by unwise and hotheaded champions. But the reforming spirit has come to stay and has long ago passed the stage of academic discussion. It is being wrought into the foundation of political platforms and municipal programs and no one can aspire to office today with any hope of attaining it unless he is in real or professed sympathy with the people's cause. And unless, after he is chosen, he "makes good" he is a dead duck so far as his political future is concerned. For the common people today are tired of being circumvented and tricked. They have declared war against octopuses and graft and greed and tyranny of every kind. They want the "square deal."

But suppose we let our imagination run ahead to that golden day, when the great insurance companies shall have all been probed and re-organized, and all the railroads and express companies brought to the observance of fair and open policies, and the holders of big monopolies forced to obey righteous laws,and a clean sweep of municipal officers been made in many a community. Let us even foresee, if we wish, the operation and control of public utilities passed over from private corporations to the people themselves.

Now how much better off shall we be on that glad morning when we awake and find all these things accomplished?

Of course we may be then more than halfway to the bliss traditionally associated with the millenium. But did you ever stop to reflect that the same kind of people will very likely be living then as now? Outward reforms do not purge the populace of selfishness, lust covetousness and sloth. As the late Sam Jones used to say: "You can wash a hog's back clean but you can't take the love of dirt out of him." By all means let us have more parks and bath houses but some people who have four bath tubs and live in brown stone fronts are the meanest of the mean. And what is the use of all of us owning everything if those whom we select to manage our public utilities would rather cheat and feather their own nests than do the square thing by their brethern.

Perhaps, after all, the preachers and the Sunday school teachers, the evangelistss and the city missionaries would better not quit business just yet. If all the gospel shops were shut up the wave of reform would quickly be spent forces. The truth is we must both reform and transform men. Religion, it must be confessed has sometimes centered emphasis on the transforming processes. It has given the impression that the main things its devotees cared for was to pray their prayers and sing their songs and, apart from human need and woe await the coming of their chariots to take them out of this evil world. But that kind of religion has had its day and is being supplanted by one that recognizes that it is on this very earth that the kingdom of God is to be set up and that Christ came to uplift not individuals here and there but to save society.

There is therefore no burning interest of humanity today with which the Church is not vitally concerned. It is profoundly interested in or ought to be in the land question, in the housing problem, in the fair wage question, in decent sanitation, in the transportation problem. This does not mean that it gives up all its Sundays to a consideration of these specific problems, but that it seeks to inspire its members with such a high and broad conception of their duty to the weak, the oppressed, the unfortunate, that the sympathy and the power of the Church shall in direct, but effective ways be brought to bear upo nthe solution of these great modern human problems.

We want a reformed world but we need ever more a transformed world in which men shall recognize the righteous rule of a righteous God and put themselves in his hands as pliant instruments for the service of their fellow men. THE PARSON.

Capt. Morgan, recently of the propeller B. W. Blanchard, will remain here this winter as captain of the tug J. H. Hammond.

The following original manuscripts of "The Foolish Flame of Patricia Montrose" were found by some contractors who were demolishing a house in the East end, for the purpose of erecting a new flat building on the site.

The roll was taken to an expert, who saw at a glance that the characters had been written only a short time ago by a woman who is left-handed. The contents of the roll were so like the contents of the latest six best sellers that even the expert took little interest in them, but the Highways man rescued the roll for these columns.

Those who care to follow can do so:

CHAPTER I.

Patricia lounged at ease in the spacious drawing room at Umpty-Umpty House, smoking a Great Buddha cigaret, which was her favorite, and allowing the smoke to curl above the golden maze of hair which crowned her head, in just the right proportion to make the picture complete.

For Patricia was quite conscious of her charms. She had sat in that particular chair and smoked her cigaret in just that fashion in order to make just the charming picture that she accomplished so very well.

Some people do not like to have their guests smoke cigarets in the drawing room, but Mrs. Jimmie Blitherington was an awfully good fellow. She did not care what one did.

So Patricia continued to blow smoke into the well bred air of Mrs. Jimmie's drawing room and wonder lazily how long it would be before she must give up her pose to dress for dinner.

It had been frightfully dull all day long. Patricia wondered after all whether it was worth while to look so charming in a drawing-room which contained nothing except handsomely carved furniture—exemplifications of Mrs. Jimmie's undeniable good taste—and that stupid Caruthers boy, who always wanted to make love to one and who was too young to be thought of for a moment and yet too old to be even amusing. And then, too, there was talk that his mother was going to cut him off with almost nothing, because of some harmless affair with an actress, while he was at college. Awfully stupid of her.

Patricia was not listening to a word he was saying. She heard a carriage crunching along the gravel roadway that led through the grounds to Umpty-Umpty House.

"The train must have been in long ago," she mused, tossing aside her cigaret and starting for her room, to dress for dinner. As she went out, she turned and smiled at the Caruthers boy, who became intoxicated with joy as he watched the splendid figure disappear between the heavy draperies.

CHAPTER II.

Several of the men gave inward gasps as Patricia Montrose came into the room. She was a trifle paler than usual, but the pallor seemed to accentuate her beauty, and in spite of it she moved and talked with all the exhilaration of the healthy young thing that she was. Her wonderful sunset hair was piled high on her head, a crown of gold, a vertiable halo.

Everyone in the room, even those of the women whose lips curved with a scorn that was even more manifest in their hearts, turned to look at the beautiful girl. Her poise was admirable; she seemed unaware of the attraction she was.

They were all there—all of Mrs. Jimmie's guests for the week end. Maj. Raymond and that thin Brockton girl, the Jack Daytons, Phil Kimberly, the Ramsay girls, young Caruthers, Lord Fitz-Thistle, Tom Maners and Ainsley Squires.

Patricia greeted all of them very cordially, especially the newcomers. "I want to go in to dinner with Ainsley Squires," whispered Grace Blitherington. Patricia gave her a grateful glance, and she fancied that Squires was looking at her rather interestedly through that cynical smile which was his habitual facial adornment.

With the claret, Ainsley Squires seemed to drop that cynical smile for a moment, for he leaned toward her and said, intensely: "Have you seen the Rogers Brothers?"

Patricia had been out several seasons and it had been a long time since she had smoked her first cigaret, but when she heard his strong voice, powerful, yet containing a note of tenderness without being effeminate and displaying plenty of the forcefulness of its owner, her heart fluttered strangely, and she seemed faint. But she looked across the table and her eyes encountered those of the thin Brockton girl, and she turned to Squires with an unruffled calm and met the challenge in his eyes squarely.

"No," she said evenly, "I have not. Do you think I ought to go?"

"Why not? Remember, I leave for Bisbee next week."

"Yes I know," said the girl. There was an underlying note of pain in her exquisite voice when she asked: "But why do you go?"

"How can you ask me that? As if I could stay and see you married to that two-spot Kimberly."

The girl leaned slightly toward him, so that one of her arms touched his coat sleeve, leaving a tiny white trail of powder.

"I'll go," she said.

The major had just finished telling one of his funny stories.

"I don't think that rings true," said Phil Kimberly, with a laugh that sounded somewhat harsh in the beautifully appointed dining room at Umpty-Umpty House. Patricia and Squires started slightly, awakened from their mid-meal dream.

CHAPTER III.

Superior street was gay with an after-theater crowd. Coupes, broughams and motor cars sped hither and thither, etc. Several pedestrians stopped to look at Patricia Montrose as she stepped lightly from Ainsley Squires' big yellow Mercedes, followed by the Jimmie Blitherington's.

"Return in two hours," said Squires to the machinist.

Note: (The most exclusive writers of stories about exclusive people have ceased calling him the chauffeur. Everyone says that now, so they call him the machinist.)

Squires followed his guests into the Hetherington. Despite the brilliance of the well-dressed, well-bred throng in the Hetherington's beautiful supper room, there was quite a vulgar craning of necks to get a look at Patricia Montrose.

She seemed somewhat changed. She was as erect as ever and as young looking, yet somehow her beauty seemed to have undergone a change, barely perceptible, yet noticeable, which seemed to enhance her charms, multiply them.

"By jove, she is a pretty girl," observed young Caruthers, who was with the Jack Daytons and their party.

"Ripping," assented Tom Manners. "I wonder if she will ever marry Phil Kimberly?"

"Hush, Tommy Manners," said Mrs. Dayton; "remember you are not gossiping in your beloved clubs just now."

Clara Dayton had been out many seasons, but she still maintained a freshness that made her one of the most popular matrons in her set—with the men. She had rather a liking for Tommy Manners.

Patricia seemed entirely unconscious of her beauty. She suffered her wraps to be taken by the head waiter, and sat gracefully down to the table. Her eyes were real marine views, not the tawdry sort, and her great wealth of Black Mountain hair wreathed the fairest face at the Head of the Lakes.

Ainsley gazed at the beautiful face, into those wonderful eyes, and tried to read them to find the way to the heart, for which they sometimes spoke.

"Dreaming of life in that dear Bisbee?" asked Grace Blitherington, good naturedly.

Squires laughed lightly.

"I beg a thousand pardons for being lost in thought as to forget that I am host, but to tell the truth I was thinking of life in that dear Bisbee."

He looked again into those wonderful eyes, with their long, eloquent lashes.

Just then Phil Kimberly came in, from all the clubs he belonged to. He appeared to have a great old sosh on. The beautiful girl opposite Squires saw the figure of her intoxicated fiance in the mirrors with which the beautiful supper room in the Hetherington is admirably equipped, and she gave an involuntary shudder.

He staggered toward the table where Squires and his party were seated.

"Whash the meaning of thish?" he asked thickly, scowling deeply at Squires.

That person arose, his handsome but almost angular face noticeably pale. His hands clenched, but when he spoke it was with muffled calm.

"For heaven's sake, Kimberly, don't make a scene here," he said.

The drunken man tottered back. The white bosom of his shirt was rumpled, and his trousers were streaked with mud, as if he had leaned up against a carriage.

"Don't try to talk to me, Squires. As for you, Miss Montrose, I know that you and Squires were seen smoking cigarets together down on the pier the other afternoon. Our engagement is off."

Squires stepped forward. His clenched fist fell in the face of Kimberly and the staggering man toppled over in a heap.

"Oh, why did you do it?"

It was Patricia. He turned toward her.

"Do you suppose I would stand by and see you insulted?" he said.

The girl put her beautiful white hands to her eyes, as if to shut out the pain for a short time. But she did not remain long in that attitude. She stood erect, as if hurling defiance at her enemies and they seemed cowed by it.

Several men, all of whom knew him, had gathered around the prostrate form of Kimberly.

Patricia looked at several of the women. They turned away, as if to avoid contamination and her head went still higher. She was very pale, but more beautiful than ever.

"I think that we had better go home in Lord Fitz-Thistle's car," said Mrs. Blitherington.

Patricia had expected blows, but hardly from this quarter. She seemed stunned for a moment, but only for a moment.

Her fine lips curled slightly, but she did not move as her wraps were thrown about her. Every eye in the rooms was upon her and she almost smiled to herself as she wondered how many of them would dare to cut her dead the next day and the day after.

Then the nastiness of Kimberly's blackguardly accusations and the unpleasantness of the whole scene seemed to crush her, for she put a limp hand into that of Squires.

"Come Patricia," he whispered.

"Good night everybody. Mr. Squires, will you take me to your car?"

And she swept majestically past the group, on the arm of Ainsley Squires.

CHAPTER IV.

Patricia threw aside her cigaret. She had seen the big Mercedes stop in front of the flat.

The wonderful cordage of her hair seemed slightly disarranged, but the effect was not displeasing. It served rather to bring out the graceful curves of her face.

The maid brought in the card.

"Yes, I am at home to Mr. Squires?" said Patricia, as she gave her hair a few playful taps which seemed to place every hair where it belonged.

Squires burst into the room. He threw his gloves down on the table and did not even look around for a decanter.

"I've come for you little girl," he cried. "Surely you don't expect to keep me waiting forever do you? I just got a red hot tip over the wire from Boston and I won't have to sell my car.

The girl's face flushed slightly.

"But you know what some people have said," she began.

"What does one care for what people say?" he asked, and he gathered her into his arms.

IN POLITICS

Politically there is nothing doing just now, except for the activity of office seekers, and the speculations concerning just where the plums are likely to drop. Of office seekers there is a plenty. Only a few of them can get what they want. Who these few will be is a question. As a rule, it is expected that those appointed when Governor first went into office will be maintained in their respective positions, but of course there are likely to be a few changes. Whether any of these changes will occur in the Duluth district remains to be seen.

W. E. McEwen, chairman of the Democratic county committee, was in the Twin Cities yesterday, supposedly in consultation with Governor Johnson and Frank A. Day, chairman of the state central committee. Whether this means that Mr. McEwen would accept a public office if the right sort of one seemed available, and whether such a one will be available will soon develop. Mr. McEwen announced positively a day or two before election that he had no hopes or expectations in the office line, and said he knew of no state office that was likely to come his way that would pay him as much as he was getting out of his newspaper, the Labor World. A state job would not necessarily mean that he would have to quit the paper business altogether, however, so there appears to be fairly good reason to believe that Mr. McEwen may have a plum handed him.

John Cashin of West Duluth is again an active candidate for the postion of surveyor general of logs and lumber, now held by Fred L. Ryan. He made quite a campaign for the same position on the occasion of Governor's Johnson's first election.

Acting under the belief that Chairman McEwen would be chief plum dispenser in the event of Governor Johnson's re-election, so far as this part of the state was concerned, at least, various individuals laid seige to the good nature of "Billy" and tried to convince him that they were entitled to the best there was in the line of political fruit.

Use what arguments he would, Mr. McEwen could not convince these applicants that he had nothing to say regarding the appointments. They wanted anything and everything, from the position of excutive agent of the state game and fish commission down. Most of the men Mr. McEwen had never seen or heard of before, and if they had been going without sleep in their efforts to land Mr. Johnson in the gubernatorial chair, the county chairman was not aware of it, except in a few instances.

The day before election a big, strong-looking man, about 45 years of age, beckoned mysteriously to Chairman McEwen from the door of Democratic headquarters. It was evident that he wished to speak to the chairman alone. Mr. McEwen stepped into the hall.

"I read in the paper," said the man, "that you are giving $5 for every man who agrees to cast his vote for Johnson."

"I will give you $5 if you can produce the paper," said the chairman, seeing the fellow was in earnest.

"I do not care for cash," he continued, "but I am badly in need of a ton of coal, and if you will have it sent around to the house I shall vote for Johnson."

"And if you don't get the coal?"

"He don't get my vote."

This little story explains why Johnson's plurality in the city was only 1,496, instead of 1,497.

And still the wonder grows that Governor Johnson's plurality should be so large. The plurality increases with the wonder, and vice versa. But the greatest wonder in this section of the state is that St. Louis county should have gone so strongly for the Democratic nominee. The official count shows Johnson's majority in the city to be 1,496, and the unofficial returns indicate 1,413 in the county. The only regret of the Johnson backers is that they did not act on their hunch to bet that he would carry the county. As a matter of fact, only a very few of them had such a hunch, for it seemed almost too much to expect Cole would be defeated in such a strong Republican county.

Satisfaction over the election results is general. The Democrats did not have any expectations of getting any other of their candidates than the governor in the state office, and so had every reason to be more than satisfied with the results. The Republicans, on the other hand, knew well enough that Johnson stood a good show of winning out, so were prepared not to be too much disappointed in the event of defeat. The big majorities their other candidates for state office received made up somewhat for the defeat of the gubernatorial nominee, and their satisfaction over the defeat of Hearst in New York added further to the balm for their disappointment.

The defeat of Congressman McCleary in his home district pleased Duluth Republicans and Demorats, and a good deal of pleasure was expressed locally over the victory of Burke for governor in North Dakota, and Judge Fiske, in his candidacy for a position on the supreme bench.

Representative N. F. Hugo says he has more reason than ever since the election to believe that he will be chosen speaker of the house. Only three men who pledged him their support in his campaign failed of election, and he has sufficient assurance of support to afford plenty of ground for the confidence he appears to feel. Mr. Hugo will open headquarters in the Merchants hotel at St. Paul next week, and every Wednesday and Thursday will be prepared to greet his friends there.

* * *

The Lake County Republican committee was shown to be sadly out of touch with political affairs in its own district by the election returns. Members of the committee repeatedly told Duluth men that Mr. Fulton, Prohibition candidate for the legislature from the Fifty-first district, would get not more than thirty or forty votes in Two Harbors, and only a few outside of Two Harbors. They said he had no strength at all politically. The results showed they were very much mistaken, for he carried both Two Harbors and Ely. The vote in Duluth was too heavy against him to allow him any chance of victory, however.

Carlton county may be taken as an instance of the great personal popularity of Governor Johnson. Not a Democratic speaker was sent into the county during the campaign, and yet Johnson received a large plurality there.

* * *

S. F. Fullerton, executive agent of the state game and fish commission, was in the city yesterday and took occasion to compliment Governor Johnson and his methods very highly.

"There isn't a man in the state capitol, no matter what his politics, who wouldn't do anything the governor asked him to, whether it came within the limits of his official duties or not. He has the respect, admiration, esteem and friendship of them all."

ARCHBISHOP HITS UTOPIAS

Common Ownership and Socialistic Schemes Are Denounced.

Private Property and Personal Rights Strongly Upheld.

Council Bluffs, Iowa, Nov. 10.—The Society of the Army of the Tennessee selected Gen. Greenville M. Dodge president, and selected Vicksburg, Miss., as the place of meeting in 1907. An important feature of the deliberations was the passage of a resolution strongly denying the statement of an orator at a recent function at Gen. U. S. Grant's monument, that Gen. Grant aspired to a dictatorship at the close of the Civil war. Gen. O. O. Howard, Gen. John C. Black and Mrs. John A. Logan joined in the denunciation of this aspersion as calumny, and Gen. Frederick D. Grant declared that it was without the least foundation in fact.

At the closing banquet in the evening, Archbishop Ireland, in responding to the toast, "Our Country," said: "That all is perfect in present conditions we must not asert, but this we must assert, that nothing should be done subversive of public order, destructive of the spirit of the country and of its institutions.

"The wild anarchist, the would-be assassin, are public enemies of society, whom to tolerate, is to tolerate open sedition. An enemy too of public order is the workingman who, refusing his own labor, deters by violence a brother workman from his offering of his labor as is, even in a greater degree, the strong and the powerful who override the law of the land in carrying out the schemes of their ambition.

"Private property, and the right of every man to own and dispose of the fruits of the brain and hand must be regarded as sacred and inviolable. It is the cornerstone of the social structure. Destroy it, weaken it, you arrest ambition and effort; you give room to carelessness of the morrow, to idleness; you establish barbarism. Barbarism is that state of society where men, having nothing which is the exclusive possession of any, prey upon the strength and the labor of others.

"That in the holding of private property there will be inequality is a fact that is inevitable. Men are not and never will be equal, in the power that builds up property, in the sacrifice of self, or in the economy that preserves and increases it. The preaching of Utopias in remedy of this inequality, the proposal of schemes that ignore the nature of men and the vital conditions of human society are an insult, no less than an injury to the individual whom they fain would beguile.

"A chief panacea put before us is common ownership, through city, state or nation, of productivity and of transportation hither and thither of the results of this productivity. Let us be on our guard. Common ownership in one direction leads to common ownership in another, all the more so when the purpose really held in mind by the many is to grasp wealth without much personal effort, to make up for one's deficiencies by despoiling others."

PORTER WITH REPUBLICANS.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 10.—Congressman-elect Peter A. Porter, of the Thirty-fourth district, who defeated Congressman Wadsworth on the packing trust law issue, is quoted in an interview as saying that he will align with the Republicans in the next congress.

THE LAXATIVE OF KNOWN QUALITY

There are two classes of remedies; those of known quality and which are permanently beneficial in effect, acting gently, in harmony with nature, when nature needs assistance; and another class, composed of preparations of unknown, uncertain and inferior character, acting temporarily, but injuriously, as a result of forcing the natural functions unnecessarily. One of the most exceptional of the remedies of known quality and excellence is the ever pleasant Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., which represents the active principles of plants, known to act most beneficially, in a pleasant syrup, in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to contribute their rich, yet delicate, fruity flavor. It is the remedy of all remedies to sweeten and refresh and cleanse the system gently and naturally, and to assist one in overcoming constipation and the many ills resulting therefrom. Its active principles and quality are known to physicians generally, and the remedy has therefore met with their approval, as well as with the favor of many millions of well informed persons who know of their own personal knowledge and from actual experience that it is a most excellent laxative remedy. We do not claim that it will cure all manner of ills, but recommend it for what it really represents, a laxative remedy of known quality and excellence, containing nothing of an objectionable or injurious character.

There are two classes of purchasers; those who are informed as to the quality of what they buy and the reasons for the excellence of articles of exceptional merit, and who do not lack courage to go elsewhere when a dealer offers an imitation of any well known article; but, unfortunately, there are some people who do not know, and who allow themselves to be imposed upon. They cannot expect its beneficial effects if they do not get the genuine remedy.

To the credit of the druggists of the United States be it said that nearly all of them value their reputation for professional integrity and the good will of their customers too highly to offer imitations of the manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., and in order to buy the genuine article and to get its beneficial effects, one has only to note, when purchasing, the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package. ELECTION AFFECTS THE REAL ESTATE MARKET

Now That the Excitement is Over, Brokers Expect That the Realty Business Will Resume Its Normal Volume—Some Important Deals Involving Industrial Sites Are Very Nearly Closed.

This has been a rather quiet week in Duluth realty circles, but it is not considered surprising from the fact that it has been an election week, and nearly all lines of business have been affected. Now that the election is over, brokers expect that the real estate business will show a reasonable amount of activity, until the holiday season begins. That is not so very far off, but during the few weeks remaining, it is anticipated that a number of good-sized deals, and numerous small sales, will be closed. It may be stated on pretty good authority that there are some very important deals on the verge of closing at the present time, deals that are likely to involve future industrial activity, but there are, it is claimed, good reasons why the details should not yet be made public.

Announcement has been made this week through the news columns of The Herald of the purchase by St. Louis county of the twenty-foot lot of West First street property, adjoining the postoffice property on the east side. The title to this lot was all that the county needed to give it control of all the ground between the postoffice and Fourth avenue west. The county board has, by resolution, authorized the purchase for $9,500. The deal was negotiated with the heirs of the Fowler estate, by Commissioners Sundeen and Kugler of the county board and Assistant County Attorney W. G. Crosby. The deeds are now in the hands of the heirs for execution. This purchase makes the total amount paid for the new courthouse site $146,400. The site is generally conceded to be one of the best for the purpose in the city. It is understood that the purchase of the property by the county has already caused the prices of other property in that vicinity to undergo a substantial advance.

The news of the completion of the negotiations whereby the Wisconsin Central Railway company has acquired the Metropolitan opera house property, fee and lease, has been of considerable interest to many Duluth people, particularly those within realty circles. There have been various conjectures as to what price the railway company paid to get absolute control of the property, but the figures have been kept pretty well under cover. Probably after the condemnation proceedings are completed, and there is no more agitation on the matter of values of Bowery property, the figures will come out. The appraisers in the condemnation proceedings have been taking testimony of greater or less interest from time to time, concerning values of property west of Sixth avenue west and along Michigan and Superior streets. Whatever may be the outcome in the way of awards by the appraisers, it is certain that a better general conception has been given people of the worth of property in the locality mentioned, and some idea can be gained of the big advance in values on bonafide offers, within the last three years.

The Herald has received a communication from Beriah Magoffin, who makes an excellent suggestion relative to the making of prices of realty on the per front foot basis rather than on the basis of lot prices. The disadvantage of the latter plan is that often lots vary in size and the lot price indicate nothing. Mr. Magoffin says:

"Refering to comments on the cheapness of Duluth real estate in last Saturday's issue of The Herald, I wish to make my brief contribution.

"If the owners and dealers want to raise the price let all begin now to price lots by the foot. All lots, residence and business lots, should be priced by the front foot if we want to enchance the property and convey the impression of value.

"It is the old time moss-back way to sell by the lot. It is up-to-date to sell by the foot and gives character to lots and imparts ideas of value.

"In Oklahoma and throughout the Southwest, all real estate in the towns is sold by the foot, and I have been much impressed with the advantage of the custom, since it inspires life to the property and enables owners to realize better prices."

W. C. Sargent & Co. report a number of sales for the week, including two lots in Portland division, four lots in Harrington's addition and a house and lot in Endion division. Mr. Sargent, the veteran real estate man says that things in the real estate line never looked any better at this time of the year. He believes that Duluth is "out of the fog" and that there will be "something doing all the time" from now on. Mr. Sargent returned Tuesday from a two weeks' business trip in the East, during which time he visited Pittsburg. He says that it was something of a surprise to him to find that the finest residences of that city are built on the street car lines. It has always been Mr. Sargent's idea that the best locations for homes was at least a block off the car lines.

W. M. Prindle & Co. report a fairly active week in business, considering it was election week. The firm has sold a property at 601 and 603 Garfield avenue to local parties. The figure is witheld, but there are rumors to the effect that the consideration was in the neighborhood of $10,000. It is a matter of interest as showing which way the wind is blowing over the local investment fields, to state that this property has an annual rental of $1,500 and will net its owners about 12 per cent on their investment. The same firm has taken earnest money on the southeast corner of Forty-second avenue east and First street. The property, which is unimproved, has a frontage of 150 feet on First street and will make an attractive residence location. The price is understood to be in the neighborhood of $9,000. Another sale closed this week involves two lots on the upper side of Fifth street, opposite Portland park, for $900 each.

It is reported that Dr. Schlddt this week sold two lots on the southeast corner of Twenty-first avenue east and First street, to local parties for $6,000. The property has a frontage of 100 feet on First street.

Victor Gustafson has sold a residence property described as lot 8, block 11, Helm's addition, to Victor Mahmstrom, for $1,900.

Among the recent large sales of farm land was the transfer this week of the north half of the southeast quarter of section 17, 51-15, from the Boston & Duluth Farm Land company to M. F. Rushfelt, for $2,400.

• • •

W. F. Lewis has purchased from Tobias Grady the property known as lot 428, block 115, Duluth proper, Second division. The consideration was $1,050.

N. J. Upham & Co., real estate dealers, have issued this week a neat vest pocket edition containing a list of all the properties that the company has listed for sale, including the description and price. This is the fourth edition of the kind that this enterprising firm has sent out. The booklet is convenient and practical in idea and makeup.

The first addition of the Duluth Architect, a local monthly publication devoted to the building interests was issued this week by Bray & Nystrom, architects, who are the editors and publishers. The publication is a credit to the enterprise of the firm. It is of excellent quality paper, artistic in typographical makeup and contains many things of interest in the way of half-tones of fine residences and public buildings. Space is devoted to the topic of home decorating, building materials, and many things of interest to

MARKET IS LITTLE OFF

Closing Prices Are Slightly Lower in Most American Markets.

Flax Has a Heavy Advance in the Duluth Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, Nov. 10.—Wheat was strong in the American markets during the early part of the day, but the closing price were strictly lower everywhere except in St. Louis, where the December option was a shade higher and the May option unchanged. Rather heavy selling caused the declines. Liverpool closed unchanged to ½d higher, Berlin unchanged and Budapest ½c lower.

Broomhall estimates the world's shipments of wheat for this week at 10,000,000 bus, of which quantity Europe will take about 8,000,000 bus. The actual shipments last week were 11,904,000 bus, and those of a year ago 12,552,000 bus. He predicts a fair decrease in the amount of breadstuffs on passage.

The December option closed ½c lower in Duluth, Chicago, Minneapolis and Winnipeg, ¼c higher in New York, which closes an hour earlier than Duluth on Saturdays, and ½c in Kansas City. The May option closed ½c lower in Duluth, Chicago, New York, Kansas City and Winnipeg and ⅛-¼c lower in Minneapolis.

Corn was slightly weaker in Chicago, the December option closing ¼c lower. Corn closed ½d to ⅝d higher in Liverpool. December oats closed a shade higher in Chicago.

Car receipts at Duluth were 341 against 359 last year and at Minneapolis 291 against 229 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 632 against 588 last year. Chicago received 46 against 169 last year. Winnipeg received 282 against 473 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 897,000 bus, last year 199,000 bus. Shipments 480,000 bus, last year 973,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 464,000 bus.

Primary receipts of wheat were 640,000 bus, last year 469,000 bus. Shipments 422,000 bus, last year 293,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 220,000 bus.

Wheat was active during most of the session of the Duluth market. December wheat opened ¼c higher at 75½c, declined to 75-⅛c by 10:05, rallied to 75¼-⅜c by 10:22 and declined by the close to 74⅜c, a loss of ⅛c from yesterday. May wheat opened unchanged at 78¾c, advanced to 78¾c, declined to 78c and closed at that price, a loss of ⅛c from yesterday. Durum wheat closed ½c lower for December and unchanged for November. Cash spring wheat was unchanged, selling on a basis of 2⅜c over December for No. 1 Northern.

Flax was very strong throughout the session and advanced more than 1c over yesterday's closing prices. Flax was 1½c higher in Antwerp and ¾c higher in London. It opened here with a lively flurry and trading was brisk and prices firmer throughout the day. November flax opened ⅝c higher at $1.18⅜, advanced to $1.19, declined to $1.18⅝, rallied to $1.19, declined to $1.18⅞-19, rallied to $1.19½ and ranged between that and $1.19 during the rest of the session, closing at $1.19, a gain of 1¼c over yesterday. December flax opened ⅜c higher at $1.15⅞, advanced to $1.15¾, declined to $1.15½, rallied to $1.16¾ and declined by the close to $1.16, a gain of 1¾c over yesterday. May flax opened ¼c higher at $1.19, advanced to $1.19¾, declined to $1.19½, rallied to $1.20¼ and declined by the close to $1.20, a gain of 1¼c over yesterday.

The coarse grains closed unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Commission House Buying at Opening Holds Wheat Steady.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—The continued small receipts in the Northwest today and a fair amount of buying by commission houses held the market steady. The trading was mostly in the May option, transactions in December being light. December wheat opened ¼c higher at 73¼c and sold at 73@73⅛c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 678 cars against 514 cars last week and 1,068 cars a year ago.

Sentiment became more bearish in the last half of the session, and on selling by local holders, the price of December dropping to 72⅞c. The close was easy and ⅛c lower than the final quotation of yesterday.

The corn market in general was steady, although profit-taking sales in December caused a slight decline in that option. The weather continues very favorable for the movement of the crop and this had a weakening effect on the market. December opened ⅛c to ¼c higher at 42⅛c to 42⅝c and sold at 42¾c. Local receipts were 341 cars, with 37 of contract grade.

The market held generally steady, with light trading until the close, which was steady and for December ⅛c lower at 42¾c.

The oats market was firm on a fair demand by shorts, but offerings were light. December opened ¼c higher at 34⅝@34¾c, declined to 34½c and sold again at 34⅝@34¾c. Local receipts were 159 cars.

The provisions market was steady and inclined to be strong on a 5c advance in the price of live hogs. January pork was 2½@5c higher at $14.17½@14.22½. Lard was unchanged at $8.50. Ribs were a shade higher at $7.60@7.62½.

Close: Wheat—December, 72¾c; May, 75⅞c. Corn—December, 42¼c; May, 43⅝c. Oats—December, 34⅝c; May, 35⅝c. Pork—January, $14.12½@14.15; May, $14.25. Lard—January, $8.45@8.47½; May, $8.40@8.42½. Ribs—January, $7.60; May, $7.70@7.72½. Rye—Cash, 62½@65c. Barley—Cash, 41@55c. Timothy—November, $4.15@4.25. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, 74@74½c; No. 3 red, 73@74c; No. 2 hard, 72¾@75c; No. 3 hard, 71¼@74c; No. 4 Northern, 70@80c; No. 2 Northern, 77@82c; No. 3 spring, 73@80c. Oats—No. 2, 34½c; No. 3, 33½c. Corn—No. 2, 44¾c; No. 3 new, 42c.

Minneapolis Flour.

Minneapolis, Nov. 10.—Flour market improved. Millers noted an improvement in the demand today. Buyers were in the market and a couple of mills that were on the verge of closing down profited by the demand. The Washburn-Crosby "C" mill started up today. Ship-

BULLFROG RUSH MINING CO.

To Stockholders:

Recent developments on the Bullfrog Rush property are such that we do not feel justified in further disposing of treasury stock at the original promotion price.

The values reported in the Winze, on which the early great hopes of this splendidly located property were based, have not held out at depth, and in the present working the assays obtained are so unsatisfactory that we cannot at this time further recommend the purchase of the stock.

To all who have purchased Bullfrog Rush Mining Company shares from the L. M. Sullivan Trust Company we make the following proposition:

Return the stock to us, and we will refund you the amount you paid for it, or you may select from our new promotions any other stock you like before it is listed.

This offer is good until January 1, 1907.

DECLINES IN STOCKS

Market Decidedly Weak and Sold Off Sharply at Close.

Volume of Business Was Smaller Than Usual for Saturday.

New York, Nov. 10.—Operations in stocks started in a listless manner today and small declines were the rule. A few stocks of first importance showed fractional gains. Great Northern preferred declined ¾ and National Biscuit a point. Dealings were on a small scale.

Declines were extended before the market recovered, but buying became smaller as prics rose. Reading and Great Northern preferred were driven down 1¼ and 1½ respectively, but made up nearly all of their losses. In other active stocks the fluctuations did not extend beyond a sharp fraction. Northwestern yielded 2¼. Cleveland C. C. & St. Louis 1½. United States Rubber first preferred 1⅜ and Louisville & Nashville, Pullman, Colorado & Southern second preferred and American Car preferred 1.

The market closed weak but quite actviousive. The ton was dull and heavy previous to the appearance of the bank statement but prices hardened after that in spite of a showing of a deficit in the legal reserves. Reading recovered to a fraction over last night, Northern Pacific ¼ and United States Realty 1. Prices ran off rather abruptly in the final dealings. Pullman lost 4, Great Northern preferred 2½, eGneral Electric 2, Union Pacific 1½ and Missouri Pacific and Rock Island preferred a point each.

Stock Gossip.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market opened irregular and further signs of liquidation were seen at the opening. A great many of yesterday's buyers were sellers today. The volume of business was somewhat smaller than usual for Saturday. An attempt was made to get Secretary Shaw to commit himself in regard to treasury deposits, but he declined to give out anything for publication. It is the belief that insiders are picking up a great many of the stocks being sold and that when money conditions become normal the public will find themselves without stocks and the insiders will be carrying the bag. The bank statement, as expected, was a bad one; in fact it was much worse than predicted. The market is closing with a weak tone at about the lowest prices of the day. We see nothing better than a scalping affair until the money situation clears.

• • •

Walker Bros. to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market was decidedly weak and before the close sold off quite sharply. The bank statement was very poor, but the statement by Secretary Shaw that he would only help money market when absolutely needed, had a bad effect and caused heavy selling. The money market is the all-important factor now and it looks as if there was not nearly enough to go around. With a good, sharp break in this market, the atmosphere will be much cleared.

Chicago Live Stock.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Cattle, estimated receipts, 800; market steady; beeves, $3.40@7.25; cows and heifers, $1.40@5.20; calves, $5@7.75; stockers and feeders, $2.40@6.40. Hogs ,estimated receipts, 9,000; strong to 5c higher; mixed and butchers, $6@6.50; good heavy, $6.30@6.50; rough heavy, $5.85@6.05; light, $5.90@6.37½; pigs, $5.65@6.40; lambs, $4.25@7.50.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Nov. 10.—The cotton market opened barely steady at a decline of 8@16 poitns and sold off to a net decline of 16@6 points on the active months under bear pressure and liquidation attracted by lower cables, good weather and bearish crop estimates. Around 9.43 for January and 9.63 for March, there was enough covering for over the week end to cause a rally of 3 or 4 points, but there seemed to be no buying of consequence for long account. Trading was fairly active.

Futures closed steady. Closing bids: November, 9.39; December, 9.38; January, 9.45; February, 9.54; March, 9.65; April, 9.71; May, 9.76; June, 9.83; July, 9.85. Spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 10.10; middling gulf, 10.30. No sales.

Treasury Balances.

Washington, Nov. 10.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption shows: Available cash balance, $228,301,142; gold, $114,825,147; gold certificates, $49,042,750.

St. Paul Live Stock.

St. Paul, Nov. 10.—Cattle: Receipts, 2,100; generally steady; quotations, unchanged. Hogs: Receipts, 3,000; 5c higher; range, $5.65@6.10; bulk, $5.90@6.00. Sheep—Receipts, 3,500; steady; sheep, $3.75@5.75; lambs, $2.50@7.00.

Bank Statement.

New York, Nov. 10.—The statement of clearing house banks for the week (five days), shows that the bank holds $1,514,125 less than the legal reserve requirements. This is a decrease of $4,563,900 as compared with last week. The statement follows: Loans, $1,045,428,200; decrease, $7,592,700; deposits, $998,754,500; decrease, $17,069,600; circulation, $50,544,400; increase, $510,100; legal tenders, $66,371,100; decrease, 2,982,500; specie, $181,803,400; decrease, $5,848,800; reserve, $248,174,500; decrease, $8,831,300; reserve required, $249,688,625; decrease, $4,267,400; deficit, $1,514,125; decrease, $4,563,900; ex-United States deposits (surplus), $2,552,050; decrease, $5,213,200.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market was very dull today. The selling of Green has stopped for the present and it rallied easily to 25¾. On any further bulge we think it should be sold for a turn. Copper Range is still being picked up and is the strongest stock on the list today. The bank statement was very poor, and Secretary Shaw refuses to do anything to help out the situation. The big interests are against speculation and are trying to keep the market firm until money starts coming back from the West.

Gay & Sturgis: The bank statement showed reserve of $1,500,000 below the legal limit, and the general market, after holding fairly steady, broke sharply in the last quarter of an hour. The situation necessitates liquidation, and it can only mean materially lower prices. The local market was dull, but buying orders were few and stocks were hard to sell. There can be no upward movement of any consequence in this market, and it will be rather remarkable if prices hold. A selling movement next week seems very likely. We advise taking profits. There will in all probability be excellent opportunities to repurchase. New York advices are that Secretary Shaw says the treasury has $2,500,000 which may be used as a last resort, but not unless absolutely necessary. He says he will not buy bonds or increase deposits unless the situation changes materially.

HUGE CORN CROP THIS YEAR

Agricultural Deparment Places Total 2,881,096,000 Bushels.

Washington, Nov. 10.—The preliminary returns to the crop estimating board of the department of agriculture, according to a bulletin issued today, shows the production of corn in 1906 to be 2,881,096,000 bushels or an average of 30.2 bushels to the acre, as compared with an average yield of 28.8 bushels in 1905. The general average as to quality is 89.9 as compared with 90.6 last year. It is estimated that about 4.4 per cent of the corn crop of 1905 was still in the hands of the farmers on Nov. 1

The general average as to quality is 89.9 per cent as compared with 90.6 per cent last year, 86.2 in 1904, and 83.1 in 1903.

The preliminary estimate of the average yield per acre of potatoes is 102.5 bushels, against an average of 87 bushels, as finally estimated in 1905, 110.4 in 1904, and a ten-year average of 84.4. The average as to quality is 90 per cent as compared with 85.4 per cent one year ago, 93.4 in 1904 and 86.4 in 1903.

The preliminary estimate of the average yield per acre of tobacco is 854.3 pounds as compared with the final estimate of 815.6 pounds in 1905, 813 in 1904. The average as compared with 87.3 per cent one year ago and 89.5 per cent in 1904.

The report also includes flaxseed, rice, hay, buckwheat, fruits and various minor crops which will be published in detail in the crop report.

TENDERED RECEPTION.

Lester Park Residents Honor Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Geer.

A delightful reception was held last evening at the church parlors of the Lester Park Methodist church in honor of Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Geer, Mr. Geer having recently taken up the pastorate of the church. The rooms were prettily decorated for the event and receiving with the guests of honor were Mr. and Mrs. John H. Norton and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bradley. A vocal solo by Miss Maud Mattson gave much pleasure. A large number of the residents of Lakeside, irrespective of denomination, came to pay their respects to the new pastor and his wife. Among the ministers present were: Rev. H. B. Sutherland of the Lakeside Presbyterian church; Rev. Mr. Parker of St. John's Episcopal church; Rev. J. W. Robinson of Grace M. E. church; Rev. Mr. Grice of Asbury M. E. church; Rev. J. W. Powell of the Endion M. E. church; Rev. Mr. Rainshaw of Proctorknott M. E. church, and Presiding Elder E. C. Clemans. All of these spoke in highly complimentary terms of Rev. and Mrs. Geer.

Mohawk-Jumbo Leasing Syndicate

OF GOLDFIELD

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE 25 CENTS PER SHARE

Adjoining the "VELVET"
Adjoining the "SILVER PICK"
Adjoining the "JUMBO"
Adjoining the "MOHAWK"

Five Hundred feet from the "HAYES-MONETTE," lease with a monthly output of $2,000,000.

Two Hundred feet from the "RED TOP" with $3,000,000 in sight.

A GLANCE AT THE MAP OF THE GOLDFIELD MINING DISTRICT WILL SHOW FEW MINING PROMOTIONS OF RECENT YEARS THAT HAVE EMBODIED SUCH UNLIMITED POSSIBILITIES AS THE MOHAWK JUMBO LEASING SYNDICATE STOCK. THE PROPERTIES OF THIS SYNDICATE COMPRISE TWO LEASES, KNOWN AS THE JUMBO EXTENSION LEASE AND THE MOHAWK EXTENSION LEASE.

THE JUMBO EXTENSION LEASE LIES BETWEEN THE VELVET AND JUMBO, AND IS SURROUNDED, OR ADJOINS, THE FOLLOWING BONANZA LEASES, WITH OUTPUTS AS FOLLOWS:

DRISCOLL	$ 500 a day
GARDNER-ERICKSON	1,000 a day
KANSAS CITY	2,000 a day
VELVET	4,000 a day
KALFUS-PENNINGTON	10,000 a day
ST. IVES	10,000 a day
HIGGINSON	15,000 a day

and is about Three Hundred feet from the Bowes-Kernick lease, with a production to date of $1,800,000.

The Mohawk Extension lies between the Silver Pick and Red Top, and is an extension of the MOHAWK—the latter now generally conceded to be the greatest gold mine in the world.

MACKENZIE NO. 1	$ 1,000 a day
KALFUS	5,000 a day
BRADBURG-CURTIS	7,000 a day
SHEETS-ISH	10,000 a day
FRANCES-MOHAWK	50,000 a day and about Five Hundred feet from the world-famous "HAYES-MONETTE," with a monthly output of $2,000,000.

It will thus be seen that the MOHAWK JUMBO LEASING SYNDICATE properties are surrounded by bonanza mines, and a comparison of prices will show that this is really one of the most extraordinary investment opportunities of recent years. What the possibilities are can best be shown by giving the results of surrounding properties.

The great MOHAWK, the adjoining property, which is quoted at FIFTEEN dollars a share, sold at eleven cents a share in January last. RED TOP, Two Hundred feet to the north, sold at $4.25 a share this week, while a year ago it was twenty cents. SILVER PICK, adjoining on the west, sold at $1.60 this week, while six months ago it was begging at eight cents.

THERE IS NOT A PROPERTY IN THIS ENTIRE DISTRICT THAT DOES NOT SHOW A HANDSOME ADVANCE OVER QUOTATIONS OF SIX MONTHS AGO, AND A PURCHASE OF THIS, THE FIRST OFFERING OF TREASURY STOCK OF THE MOHAWK JUMBO LEASING SYNDICATE, PRESENTS POSSIBILITIES OF PROFIT EQUAL TO ANYTHING IN THE DISTRICT!

The SYNDICATE is officered by men who have achieved marked success here on the ground, the Board of Directors being composed of such men as J. R. DAVIS, of Loftus & Davis, who opened and developed the great Sandstorm mine. Mr. Davis is the principal owner and Vice-President of the Gold Bar, the famous mine of the Bullfrog District, as well as being Vice-President and principal owner of the Nevada Hills, the principal mine at Fairview.

H. T. BRAGDON, Vice-President, is also President of the Goldfield Mining Company, and President of the Goldfield Stock Exchange. Mr. Bragdon is prominently identified with many of the most successful enterprises of Goldfield and is also President of the Mohawk Jumbo Leasing Company, operating the Truett lease, which returned to its shareholders on its first dividend the amount of their investment of twenty-five cents per share.

SAMEUL R. MASON, President of the California Borax Company, AUGUSTUS TILDEN, and E. H. LATIMER, complete the Board.

MAJOR W. A. STANTON, Manager and Consulting Engineer, is one of the most favorably known engineers in Goldfield, and has no superior in his knowledge of the District. Under his direction the work is proceeding at a rapid rate with double shifts of men at work on each property.

The shaft on the Jumbo is down sixty-four feet, while on the MOHAWK is down one hundred feet, and has already cut a stringer of ore running One Thousand Dollars to the ton, showing close proximity to big ore body, which is likely to come in with any shot.

Two 20-h.p. gasoline hoists have been ordered and will be on the ground within fifteen days.

There is no reason why the Syndicate should not be shipping within thirty days; dividends should quickly follow and in all probability the first one will equal the present price of the treasury shares as was done on the Truett lease and scores of others.

This will be the first, last, and only offering of Treasury Stock at 25c per share; so ACT QUICKLY IF AT ALL.

Reservations should be made by Telegraph to insure consideration, and remittance by bank draft or certified check must be forwarded immediately after allotment is made; otherwise allotment will be void.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, Nov. 10.—Barrett & Zimmerman's report: All markets have been dull during election week and the horse market has been no exception. Dealers report a large number of small sales to city trade in the delivery and driving class, with a few drafters mixed in. Few car lot sales are reported. The threatened strike has caused intending buyers and shippers to hold back to some extent. The lumbering trade will not get into the market actively until it freezes up. Dealers are stocked up with choice heavy drafters and loggers, and will be able to supply the demand when it comes. Closing tone of the market better than a week ago. Following shippers arrived with consignments during week: John Montgomery, J. T. Smith. Market closed with the following unsteady prices:

Grain Gossip.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—It matters little whether wheat prices are a little higher or a little lower for the day. We think it is time to begin to study the market at long range and figure on what the outcome will be for the year. Can Europe draw 200,000,000 bushels of wheat from this side this year and leave prices down in the 70s? The two big Northwest markets depending entirely on the spring crop for receipts show about 1,200 cars shortage for the week compared with last year. We believe the developments of the week have largely eliminatd the prospect of any break as the result of December liquidation. Small holdings have been liquidated. Think those friendly to wheat should take advantage of any disturbance in the May price around this level to take hold for a material advance later.

Corn—Some very important selling of December corn took place today by cash and elevator concerns. Weather promises less favorable. It is not likely the trade will follow the Snow figures which are so much over the official estimate on the crop. It will be a matter of weather and receipts for a little time now in corn.

Oats—It was natural that some profit-taking should occur in the oats trade before the close but even with this, prices held a little better than the close yesterday. There was good snap to the buying early with prices higher. We feel bullish for several cents advance in the May price.

Chicago Record-Herald: "Some of our larger mills have actually been compelled to shut down because of inability to secure desirable wheat at prices enabling them to compete with the smaller interior and the Southwestern mills," said Harding of Woodworth & Co., Minneapolis. "Under the new rate law the small mills have transportation facilities equal to those of the larger mills; they can run much cheaper, and therefore have a big advantage. The new rate law has certainly distributed the flour milling trade of the Northwest. I think wheat is low enough for the present."

A Chicago house has the following Argentine cable: "Wheat crop prospects are favorable in the province of Buenos Ayres, which has the largest area. Those of the province of Santa Fe are far more moderate crop, owing to previous drought and to locust damage. Weather at present is favorable. We have no reason to change our opinion as to exportable surplus being 101,000,000 bus, but holders are firm."

THE PRODUCE MARKET.

The following prices, with the exception of those on hay, feed and meats, are the official quotations of the Duluth Produce exchange, and shippers can rely upon them as being correct. The list is corrected daily by the secretary, and it shows accurately the market condition up to 12 o'clock on the date of issue. The weekly market letter, published on Fridays, is not an official statement of the exchange, but the information is gathered personally from the different dealers:

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.—

DEFAULT has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage bearing date the 28th day of April, 1905, executed by Stanislaw Kocinski and Mary Kocinski, his wife, Mortgagors, to Sattler Liquor Company, a corporation, Mortgagee, which said mortgage was upon the 1st day of May, 1905, at eight o'clock a. m., recorded in Book 221 of Mortgages, on page 236, of the records in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for St. Louis County, Minnesota.

There is claimed to be due and is due upon said mortgage and the indebtedness thereby secured at the date of this notice, in principal and interest, the sum of $290.23.

No action or proceeding has been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

By reason of default in non-payment of the above amount, which is long past due, the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative.

The following is a description of the mortgaged premises covered by said mortgage, which premises are situated in the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, to-wit: The westerly half of Lot three hundred seventy-six (376), in Block one hundred forty-seven (147), Duluth Proper, Second Division, according to the plat on file in the office of the Register of Deeds of said county, together with the building thereon, known as No. 2316 West Sixth street, with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging.

NOW THEREFORE, notice is hereby given, that under and by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of said premises by the Sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the Front Door of the County Court House, in the City of Duluth, St. Louis County, Minnesota, upon the 26th day of December, 1906, at ten o'clock a. m., at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest and $50.00 attorney's fees, stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, taxes, (if any), and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption as provided by law.

Dated November 7th, 1906.

"COPPER"

THE LARGE PROFITS made in mining investments are made by those who go in at the start, or at the first offering price.

The stock of the CALUMET CLIFTON COPPER COMPANY presents an opportunity for profitable investment, which is worthy the immediate attention and investigation of everyone.

The CAPITALIZATION IS $750,000, divided into 150,000 shares of the par value of $5.00 each, of which 50,000 shares are Treasury stock. The REGISTRAR of the Company is the COLONIAL TRUST COMPANY of Pittsburg, and the DEPOSITORY of the Company the FIRST NATIONAL BANK, of Clifton, Arizona.

THE FIRST OFFERING of Treasury stock is now being made at one-half the par value or $2.50 a share, being full paid and non-assessable.

CLIFTON, where all the mines of the Arizona, Detroit, Standard, New England, Shannon and Calumet Clifton copper companies are located, is one of the best and richest districts ever discovered in this country.

THE CALUMET CLIFTON PROPERTIES comprise five claims each 1500 feet in length by 600 feet in width and covering 100 acres of surface. They are the Ninety-Six, Randolph, Randolph No. 2, South Slope No. 3 and the Copper Rug. They lie directly northeast of the great "Shannon" mines and westerly from the mines of the "New England" Copper Company, and north of the "King" group of mines owned by the "Arizona Copper Company," and north of the "Standard" copper mines.

THE GENERAL FORMATION of the country at the Calumet Clifton property is identical with the formation of all the great copper-producing mines of this district, being limestone, porphyry, quartzite and granite, the ledges or deposits being heavily capped with iron, which is general with all the large copper producers of the district, and is a sure indication of the permanency of the deposits.

The principal development has been done on the "Ninety-Six" claim and consists of the following:

Tunnel No. 1 about the center of the claim, driven 75 feet all in ore that will average from 5 to 30 per cent copper heavily impregnated with iron, making an ideal smelting ore. The vein is strong and well defined, and will average about 15 feet in width.

At the mouth of this tunnel has been sunk a shaft 50 feet deep, all in ore of the same grade and character as the tunnel.

About 100 feet northeast of Tunnel No. 1 has been run a tunnel 50 feet, known as Tunnel No. 2, showing the same grade and character of ore and same width of vein.

Tunnel No. 3 is about 200 feet from the southwest end line of the claim, and has been run 40 feet on the same vein, showing the same ore and width of vein.

Back of Tunnel No. 1 about 100 feet has been sunk a shaft 40 feet all in ore of the same grade and character as the others.

SEVEN ASSAYS made by the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory, Ltd., of Pittsburgh, Pa., all taken from the workings of the Ninety-Six claim show copper values from 4.64 to 27.66 per cent.

When it is taken into consideration that the general average of all the ores in this group will average from 4 to 30 per cent copper and that the large producing and dividend paying companies are working ores as low as 4 per cent copper and paying large dividends, with the immense surface showings and the character of ore exposed and in sight, it removes all speculative values from this property, which, with further and proper development, should soon take rank as a producer and dividend payer.

FUTURE PLANS provide for the immediate and energetic development of the entire property; the extension of tunnels and the deepening of shafts, which work will be carried on from the proceeds of the sales of the Treasury stock. INCIDENTAL TO THE DISBURSEMENT OF FUNDS THERE WILL BE RENDERED TO THE STOCKHOLDERS FROM TIME TO TIME detailed reports showing the AMOUNT OF MONEY spent; the AMOUNT of work done, and WHERE done; the cost per foot, and in general such an itemized statement as will afford to all the stockholders a clear and concise statement which will indicate specifically just how and for what the Company's funds are being expended. These statements will be thoroughly audited and at all times duplicate vouchers may be inspected by any stockholder at the office of the company.

OF FIVE DIRECTORS the president, Mr. James Harvey, and the Treasurer, Mr. B. B. Adams, reside at Clifton, adjacent to the property. The advantage of having two directors right on the ground is recognized. Mr. E. W. Hunt, of Boston, Treasurer of the Saxonville Mills; Mr. M. M. Gasser, Merchant, of Duluth, and Mr. E. C. Blanchard, Superintendent of the Northern Pacific Railway, Duluth, Minn., complete the Board of Directors.

The mining will be under the direct supervision of Mr. Ben. M. Crawford, associated with the Clifton district for many years. Formerly associated with the Standard Copper Company, his ability as regards conscientious and energetic work is known to every one in the district.

FURTHER INFORMATON as to the Company's properties and operations may be obtained at the offices in Duluth, Minn., where maps of the mines and specimens of ore may be seen, and every facility afforded for the fullest investigation, which is cordially invited.

THE PRESENT OFFERING OF STOCK IS AT THE PRICE OF $2.50 PER SHARE. THE TERMS OF PAYMENT MAY BE EITHER CASH IN FULL, OR $1.00 PER SHARE ON APPLICATION, AND THE REMAINING $1.50 PER SHARE IN THREE EQUAL PAYMENTS OF 50 CENTS PER SHARE IN 30, 60 AND 90 DAYS THEREAFTER. AND SHOULD PAYMENTS NOT BE COMPLETED, CERTIFICATES WILL BE ISSUED TO SUBSCRIBERS TO COVER WHATEVER THEY MAY HAVE PAID IN.

IT IS ANTICIPATED THAT CALUMET CLIFTON STOCK WILL BE ACTIVELY DEALT IN ON THE BOSTON CURB, ALSO IN DULUTH, PITTSBURG AND NEW YORK, WHICH WILL AT ALL TIMES INSURE A READY AND ACTIVE MARKET, AND IT IS CONFIDENTLY BELIEVED THAT IN THE VERY NEAR FUTURE A DECIDED ADVANCE WILL TAKE PLACE, BASED ON ACTUAL DEVELOPMENTS.

INTENDING PURCHASERS WHO ARE DESIROUS OF OBTAINING PART OF THIS FIRST ALLOTMENT SHOULD SUBSCRIBE OR MAKE THEIR RESERVATION AT ONCE.

Further information may be obtained by addressing immediately as below.

Make all checks, drafts and money orders to the order of "N. S. Mitchell, Financial Agent."

Bullfrog Rush Mining Co.

Goldfield, Nev., Nov. 6th, 1906.

To the Public:

We desire to state that the use of our names in the advertisement of the so-called Union Securities Company of Nevada as directors of the Bullfrog Rush Mining Company, in which it is stated that six million dollars' worth of ore is already blocked out in this property, is unauthorized, and that according to our best information the statement is absolutely and unqualifiedly false.

The property is unquestionably a splendid prospect, and during the course of its early development held out great hopes of becoming a great mine, but at this time the best average assays obtained in the lower workings are from sixty cents to one dollar per ton. There is a large quantity of ore that has been opened up in the Winze and Upper Tunnels, which gives assays of from fifteen to thirty-five dollars per ton, but this in itself, after deducting the cost of mining and milling does not establish for this property a valuation of $825,000, which on a capitalization of 1,500,000 shares, at the par value of one dollar, offered at fifty-five cents per share, would be the case.

We retain our positions on the directorate of the Bullfrog Rush Mining company for the present in order to protect important interests, but we warn anybody who intends investing in the stock of the Bullfrog Rush Mining company that if he does so it is at his own risk, nor do we in any way indorse any other venture of the Union Securities company of Nevada, of whose responsibility we know nothing.

[Signed] JOHN SPARKS,
Governor of Nevada, Director of the Bullfrog Rush Mining Company.

L. M. SULLIVAN,
President of the L. M. Sullivan Trust Company, Treasurer and Director of the Bullfrog Rush Mining Company.

McCARREN IS ROASTED

New York Democratic Committee Hits Hearst's Brooklyn Foe.

Charges of Base Treachery Made—Leader Fights Back.

New York, Nov. 10.—The Democratic state committee, by a vote of 30 to 13, yesterday adopted a resolution providing for an investigation of the conduct of Kings county Democratic organization, headed by State Senator Patrick H. McCarren, during the campaign just closed.

A delegation of Brooklyn Democrats headed by Patrick Hayes, warden of Kings county penitentiary, and a former leader of one of McCarren's assembly districts, preferred charges against the senator and the Kings county committee of "knifing" the head of the ticket and urged his followers to do the same.

The state committee also took steps to defend any action that may be taken by the Republicans to overthrow the pluralities which seem to exist in favor of the Democratic candidates on the state ticket, from lieutenant governor down. Louis Stuyvesant Chanler, the Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, and William Schuyler Jackson of Buffalo, the Democratic candidate for attorney general, were present.

Chairman W. J. Connors presided. Leader Charles F. Murphy of Tammany hall, Senator McCarren of Brooklyn, Norman E. Mack of Buffalo, Democratic national committeeman, were among those present. Max F. Ihmsen, state chairman of the Independence league, was in consultation with a number of the members, although he did not attend the session.

W. Hayes and his associates remained with the committee for forty minutes and during that time, there were frequent outbursts of applause. The delegation asked that Senator McCarren be relieved from further service on the committee. It was declared by the spokesman that "McCarren's place is with the Republicans." The petition declared among other things, that McCarren openly advocated the election of the nominees of the Republican party and used the election machinary and the Kings county committee to accomplish the defeat of the regular Democratic candidate for governor. It was asserted that the action of Senator McCarren and the Kings county committee "destroyed the Democratic organization of the county and made that organization simply an annex or ally of the Republican organization."

Senator McCarren declared in reply that, at a meeting of the Kings county committee, he had said some things about Mr. Hearst. "And if the opportunity presents," he declared, "I shall repeat them. When a fellow hits you on the jaw, I do not believe in turning the other cheek. I believe in striking back, straight from the shoulder. If on another occasion I could make my statements regarding Mr. Hearst any more emphatic, I should certainly do so. Mr. Hayes, who is here opposing me, never voted a Democratic ticket in his life. I have never voted a Republican ticket. I deny that I knifed the ticket of the convention. As to Mr. Hearst, I regard him as the bolter, not myself. And the Kings county organization regarded him as a bolter."

Mr. McCarren concluded by offering a resolution providing that the investigation be extended to all the counties of the state where Mr. Hearst ran behind his ticket.

The amendment was lost and then the motion to investigate the Kings county organization was carried.

The committee discussed the situation regarding the belated returns from some counties up the state and a number of speakers pointed out what they declared to be the necessity for extreme vigilance to see that correct and regular returns are made. In this connection W. Bourke Cockran offered a resolution, which was adopted, declaring "that each member of this committee be instructed to place himself in communication with all local representatives of the party organization in his district for the purpose of verifying the results of the late election."

The resolution also said: "While we regret profoundly that our candidate for governor has himself fallen a victim to the rancor of the powerful public enemies against whose enormities his candidacy was a revolt, our deepest concern is for the sinister results entailed on the people. Of these the first (originally planned last winter, but deferred while there remained a possibility of Mr. Hearst's election, and which has followed within twenty-four hours of his defeat), is the deposition from the presidency of a great railway of a man whose record of brilliant business successes is unsained or unclouded by the slightest moral reproach, on the ground, cynically avowed by his executioners, that the course of rectitude and probity, which he has pursued, constitutes a claim of superiority to his fellow directors. This flagrant outrage on common decency which, if the Democratic candidate for governor had been elected, would never have been attempted, while ominous of the length to which exponents of rottenness in corporate management now feel themselves encouraged to venture, must serve Democrats to added watchfulness in protecting such fruits of conscientious voting as have succeeded in withstanding the blighting and abhorrent influence to which Mr. Hughes owes his election."

Subsequent to the meeting, it was announced that Perry Belmont, representative from the senatorial district included in Nassau county, had resigned. Mr. Belmont had been serving on the committee temporarily since the Buffalo convention, at which time he was appointed by the Nassau county delegates, who afterwards were unseated.

Sometimes it may be as important to one man to find a quick purchaser for a second-hand desk as it is for another man to find a purchaser for a carload of perishable freight. In either case it usually happens that a Herald want ad. is "the best broker."

48 Foot Vein of 22 per cent Copper Ore.

The great Anxiety-Copper Shoe groups of claims, adjoining on the south the ground of Patrick Clark's Furnace Creek Copper Company in Greenwater, have been taken over by the newly incorporated FURNACE CREEK SOUTH EXTENSION COPPER COMPANY.

This announcement is equivalent to the statement that a twin of the Furnace Creek Copper Company has been born.

The Furnace Creek Copper Company, with a capitalization of 1,250,000 shares, is selling today around $4.25 per share. It was originally promoted at 25c per share.

The Furnace Creek South Extension Copper Company has a capitalization of 1,500,000 shares, of the par value of one dollar each; 500,000 shares are in the treasury. Treasury stock is offered at one dollar per share.

From the report given below by J. D. Campbell, the noted mining engineer, and which is endorsed by J. P. Harvey, the consulting engineer of the Furnace Creek Copper Company, it is apparent that the Furnace Creek South Extension Copper Company owns practically a counterpart of the property of Patrick Clark's Furnace Creek Copper Company. The same croppings of high grade copper ore are in evidence on both properties, the veins having been proved to be continuous.

The Copper Matte claim of the Furnace Creek Copper Company has the greatest showing in the Greenwater camp to date. This claim adjoins the Anxiety No. 1 claim of the Furnace Creek South Extension Copper Company. The immensely rich veins on which the present valuation of Furnace Creek Copper Company's stock is based pass from the Copper Matte claim of the Furnace Creek Copper Company into the Anxiety and Copper Shoe claims of the Furnace Creek South Extension Copper Company.

These veins have been traced for a distance of 4,500 feet on the two properties. On the Furnace Creek Copper Company's ground the belt of ore shows 48 feet of 22 per cent copper ore; 30 per cent copper ore has been found on the surface, and no ore of lower grade than 10 per cent in copper has been encountered at the 250-foot level.

It can be stated as an absolute fact that at the time when Mr. Patrick Clark purchased the estate of the Furnace Creek Copper Company he endeavored to secure the important claims which are now a part of the estate of the Furnace Creek South Extension Copper Company, but they had already been acquired.

Clark's and Heinze's Properties Adjoin.

The tremendous mine showing presented at surface by the property of the Furnace Creek South Extension Copper Company is in a measure shown by Engineer John D. Campbell's report, made before the purchase. It follows:

"The Furnace Creek South Extension Copper Company's property consists of the Anxiety and Copper Shoe groups, embracing the following mining claims: Anxiety, Anxiety No. 1, Anxiety No. 2; Copper Shoe and Nos. 1 and 2, a total of 120 acres. The territory is heavily capped with gossan, one of the truest indications of immense copper deposits beneath, with occasional croppings of high grade copper ore.

"This property has the advantage of exceptional location, being bounded on the north by the estate of the Furnace Creek Copper Company and the Heinze holdings. The Copper Matte claim of the Furnace Creek property, which has the greatest showing in the camp to date, lies next to the Anxiety No. 1 claim of the Furnace Creek South Extension.

"The great copper ledge traversing the Copper Blue and Copper Matte claims of the Clark holdings, has been disclosed at surface on both the Anxiety and Copper Shoe groups, and has been traced for a distance of 4,500 feet on the acreage. These croppings are clearly defined and cut through the formation with the directness of a railroad track. On the Furnace Creek estate this belt of ore shows forty-eight feet of twenty-one per cent copper ore.

"Thirty per cent copper ore has been found on the surface, and no ore of lower grade than ten per cent in copper values has been encountered down to the 20-foot level.

"The Anxiety and Copper Shoe groups form what is regarded as one of the richest pieces of inside ground in the entire district. It is my opinion, based upon the showing of the property of the Furnace Creek South Extension Copper Company and its location with reference to the trend of the copper veins of the Clark mine, that it should develop into one of the greatest copper producers of the Greenwater district."

Ownership Stock Pooled and Not For Sale.

In announcing the promotion of the Furnace Creek Extension Copper Company, we beg to call attention to the fact that copper just at present is commanding a higher price than ever before in the history of metal mining. The supply falls far short of meeting the demand. Never before has the consumption of copper been so heavy. It is finding more general use every day. Copper stocks have been the distinct features of trading in all market centers for many months.

Figured on a basis of the present market value of Furnace Creek Copper Company's shares, stock in the Furnace Creek South Extension Copper Company at one dollar per share is a gift. An investment at this time and at this price is a practical guarantee of tremendous quick profits.

Of the million shares of ownership stock which were paid to acquire the property, 850,000 shares are pooled for one year and cannot be sold or transferred. This will convey an idea of the high opinion of the future of this stock which is entertained by the owners of the controlling interest. The present offering is of 250,000 shares of treasury stock. The net proceeds from the sale of this stock will be put into the treasury of the company and be used for development work entirely. It is believed that these funds will be ample to provide all moneys needed for the opening up of the property and the making of it a dividend payer for many years.

The following recent promotions of Greenwater, which include all the important ones, will convey some idea as to the opportunity presented here for quick profit making.

Greenwater & Death Valley, recently promoted at one dollar per share, with a capitalization of 3,000,000 shares, now $2.75 per share.

United Greenwater Copper Company, recently promoted at one dollar per share, with a capitalization of 3,000,000 shares, now $1.25 per share.

SULLIVAN ISSUES ALWAYS OVER-SUBSCRIBED.

Subscriptions at one dollar per share should be made at once to insure consideration. The recent offering by the L. M. Sullivan Trust Company of treasury stock of the Eagle's Nest Fairview Mining Company at 35c per share was over-subscribed by upwards of 800,000 shares and that stock is now commanding a big premium. Telegraph your reservation as soon as you have made up your mind that you want some of this stock, and we will immediately reply as to what allotment we can make, if any. On receipt of notice of allotment, it will be necessary that remittance be made in full to cover at one dollar per share. As soon as payment is made stock certificates will be promptly issued and forwarded by registered mail, or stock can be ordered shipped attached to draft, if your reliability is known to us.

THE IRON ORE SHIPMENTS

From the Lake Superior Region Likely to Reach 38,000,000 Tons This Season---Outgo in October Was a Surprise.

It looks now as though 38,000,000 tons of ore—if not more—will measure the outgo from the Lake Superior iron region for this record-breaking season. The shipment of 28,000,000 tons would be a gain of 4,500,000 tons over 1905 and 1,000,000 tons in excess of the popular prediction at the opening of navigation, an estimate which some more conservative mining men were inclined to believe somewhat too high. The outgo in October was a surprise to many in the ore trade, in that the traffic over-topped the 5,000,000 mark, the actual figures being 5,062,794 tons, the heaviest movement on record for the time of year. Thus, on the opening day of the present month the season's shipments footed up 33,238,865 tons, compared with 29,730,615 tons on the corresponding date a year ago. With anywhere near favorable conditions, and despite the slackening-off tendency to be expected with the approach of winter, in the neighborhood of 5,000,000 tons should be forwarded to the lower lakes during November and December.

Of the ore already shipped, 22,606,625 tons have been moved from the Minnesota ranges, leaving but 10,632,113 tons to represent the traffic from the Marquette, Menominee and Gogebic ranges of Michigan. From the Duluth, Missabe & Northern docks alone, 9,965,217 tons have already been forwarded this season; the Duluth & Iron Range system has handled 7,331,118 tons, the Great Northern 5,310,317, and the docks at Ashland 2,976,467 tons, the balance—7,055,716 tons—being divided between the docks at Marquette and Escanaba, neither of which ports are doing as well as looked for earlier in the year, as is the case with the Gogebic range shipments from Ashland, practically all the increase of 8,568,220 tons registered Nov. 1, having come from the Mesaba range mines.

Buying of ore for the coming season has not set in yet, but it is assured that the prices will be in the neighborhood of 75 cents a ton higher on Bessemer and 50 cents higher on non-Bessemer than the prevailing quotations this year; in fact, a considerable Mesaba tonnage has already been placed on a basis of $4.75 for Bessemer ore. The shipments next season will undoubtedly exceed 40,000,000 tons. It is probably a little known fact that 1 per cent more ore is always shipped from the mines than the amount for which they are given credit. This is because 1 per cent is deducted when dumped into the pockets at the shipping docks, to recompense for the depreciation on account of moisture, loss in handling, etc. This practice prevails generally on the upper lakes.

It looks as though the Cambria Steel company will add another large mine to its Penn group at Norway, Menominee range. Exploration by means of a tunnel on section 10, township 39-29, a tract known as the East Central Vulcan, has developed the existence of what appears to be a considerable body of ore of very good grade, the crosscut having penetrated forty-five feet of the deposit, at last advices, without locating the footwall. The property is owned in fee by the company and is located between the Cambria's two big mines, the West and East Vulcans. The discovery of the ore at the point where the find was made was a triumph for the scientific deductions of the engineers and was another case of theory winning out. David T. Morgan, the superintendent in charge of the company's Republic mine, Marquette range, has been granted a leave of absence and will spend the winter in California. Shipping from the Republic mine will continue until well into December. Capt. Thomas Walters of Ishpeming, general manager of the Jones & Laugh-

FORTUNES QUICKLY MADE

Suddenly Acquired Riches By Rise in Stocks at Goldfield---Nearly Everybody in the Camp Richer Than a Month Ago.

Goldfield, Nev., Nov. 10.—Never before in the mining history of the United States has there been such an amazing tale of suddenly acquired riches as that which is being told this week here in Goldfield. Stocks, which a year ago were being vainly hawked on the streets at 8 to 10 cents a share, have sold, within the last twenty-four hours, as high as $15 per share. Mines which were optimistically capitalized at $1,000,000, are developing into bonanzas, with $50,000,000 or more in sight, and further untold millions in undoubted prospect. As fast as the stock in any mine is put upon the market it is over-subscribed twenty times over, and doubles in value with almost incredible swiftness. The whole country is buying Goldfield stocks to such an extent that the orders pouring in upon all local brokers keep thirty operators in this town working day and night. A tidal wave is the only adequate metaphor descriptive of these conditions as they actually exist.

To dimly realize the effect this boom is having on the fortunes of every man and woman, who invested even the most meager sums in Goldfield stocks, whether during the last year, or as late as yesterday, one does not have to travel farther than the nearest corner of a Goldfield street. In every store, or restaurant, or saloon, visible from the corner chosen, there is somebody who is richer by just so many hundreds or thousands of dollars than he was a month ago. The boot-black, who owns the little stand at Crook and Main streets, paid $140 for 500 shares of Silver Pick, last August, and sold his holdings last Saturday at a net profit of $350. The barber, who can be seen working at the chair nearest the window, a few doors beyond, made what he thought was a daring investment last July, by borrowing $370 with which to buy 1,000 shares of Combination Fraction. Last Wednesday afternoon he sold his stock, repaid his loan and put $1,750 in the bank.

In the offices of the big concerns, like those of the Sullivan Trust company, for instance, it is the simple fact that every stenographer, every clerk, every bookkeeper, has made a big or little pot of money by investments in the mining stocks of either Goldfield, Tonopah, Fairview or Manhattan; investments, especially some of those made by the young women, of the most haphazard character. A particularly interesting case is afforded by Tommy Nugent, the 17-year-old office boy employed by this firm. About a year ago, Tommy, who has been earning his own bread since he was 12, spent the $100 which he had painfully saved out of the earnings of four years, and another $100 which he received as his share of a dead uncle's estate, for 2,000 shares of Mohawk. As may be readily reckoned, the price per share for this stock when Tommy bought it was

ONTARIO'S NEW SILVER CAMP

Nipissing People Shipped Fifty Oil Barrels of Bonanza Ore During Month---Ledge 26 May Develop Into Valuable Mine.

New York, Nov. 10.—A Cobalt Ont., special to the Sun says: The most interesting development at the camp since the visit of John Hays Hammond, the well known mining engineer, is the statement that the Timmins people have been at work for weeks with a diamond drill at the bottom of their 276 foot shaft. From this point they have reached a further depth of 200 feet with their drill, and the core is said to carry an excellent showing of leaf and plate silver throughout nearly its entire length. The bottom of the core is still in vein matter which shows fully as good values as were found in the surface workings of this vein.

During the month the Nipissing people shipped fifty oil barrels of bonanza ore running from 1,600 to 1,700 pounds each, and showing values between $5,000 and $6,000 a barrel. This was in addition to a large shipment of No. 1 ore, which averages around 2,000 a ton and which is being taken out in steadily increasing quantities from the older workings on the property. The fault at the bottom of the south drift of the Nipissing vein 26, has been found several feet to the east. At this point there is a showing of twelve inches of ore which is considerably richer in silver value than the upper part of the vein. The fault here shows to a considerably greater degree than is usually the case in the district, most of the faults thus found having indicated comparatively slight movement of the country rock.

There is every indication that ledge 26, which has already produced over $300,000 in silver values, will develop into a very valuable mine in itself. The shaft at this point is still going down and a station will soon be cut for the purpose of drifting both ways on the vein from below. On Nipissing ledge 27, at the 35-foot level the vein broadens out to a width of nine inches and shows very much richer values in free silver than was the case at the surface. The arrival of cold weather has of course stopped hydraulic operations for the season, but the plant in three months of operation demonstrated its usefulness by uncovering six or eight very promising veins, several of which have already been opened up. The operating force, which now consists of 200 men, is steadily being increased, and the output for the winter should continue to be considerably in excess of $500,000 net a month.

The coming of winter finds the camp generally in excellent condition. The shipping mines are well equipped for the season's campaign, shaft house and machinery are in place and the output of the next six months will unquestionably be very much larger than that of any similar period of Cobalt's history. The town is still filled with investors and their representatives, all of whom seem more anxious than ever to acquire property. It is understood that a controlling interest in the Beaver mine, formerly owned by Devine Brothers, has just been secured by J. W. Jewell. Mr. Jewell has gone to Buffalo to interest financiers in that city in the new proposition. Quite a little Montreal money has also been secured on this deal and it is understood that a full equipment of machinery will be put on the property. The development work here to date has been for the most part trenching, but a shaft has been put down on the most promising vein to a depth of about forty feet.

It has just been reported that the Coleman Development company, which owns a lot about five miles southeast of the town, has opened up a very promising vein of cobalt with a fair showing of silver. This property is in the vicinity of the Columbus claim, and the Beaver and Gillies claims are in the same group. The Columbus has opened up a vein of cobaltite, which, although a rare mineral and of considerable interest to the geologist, contains very low silver values. On the claim known as the Big Pete, which is in the Glen Lake section and near the Foster, a very good calcite vein has been encountered at the thirty foot level of the shaft. While of course this has not been developed for any distance, the probability is that it is a continuation of one of the Foster veins, and if so it should be of considerable value.

THE BUTTE COPPER OUTPUT

During October Aggregated More Than Twenty-Five Million Pounds—This Month's Production May Show Improvement—Tonnage the Order of the Day at All the Mines.

Butte, Mont., Nov. 10.—A careful estimate of the copper output of the Butte district for October places the quantity at about 25,500,000 pounds, which was extracted from a daily output of 12,500 tons of ore. Production would have been greater had it not been for the fact that during the early part of the month some of the large ore producers were out of business. The last half of the month showed an improvement over the first half, and this month, although it contains only thirty days, may show an increase over last.

Taken all in all, the production of copper in Butte this year will be much greater than during 1905, for the reason that more time has been lost in some of the large mines and the fact that practically all of the companies are working short-handed, not being able to secure a sufficient number of good miners to carry out the work outlined prior to the beginning of the year. The companies have plenty of muckers and surface men.

During the last half of the month the Never Sweat mine was out of commission on account of a broken hoisting engine shaft, but it is now running, having been started a week ago. The output of ore from Amalgamated mines was not curtailed to any extent by the closing of the Never Sweat, for all of the men working in its veins were transferred to other places where the crews were short. And, besides, production at the other mines was increased to make up the deficiency.

All of the companies are now after ore and are getting it. The price of copper is high and they figure that it is to their advantage to make red metal as rapidly as possible. Tonnage is the order of the day with them.

Development in many of the large mines is in progress, and by the first of the year or shortly thereafter new territory that will undoubtedly be productive of immense quantities of good ore will have been opened up. Parrot is sinking; Boston & Montana is sinking in two or three places, the West Colusa and Pennsylvania, being two; North Butte is sinking its main shaft, and the Cora shaft is going down. New shafts are going down in various parts of the district, one on the Tramway, one on the Granite Mountain, one on the Badger State, one on the Elm Orlo, one on the Rarus, one on the Colusa-Leonard, one on the Butte & London, three on the Butte & Bacorn, one on the Trilby claim, one on the Greenleaf and several in other places. The Butte Copper Exploration company is through sinking for the present, having reached a depth of 1,015 feet, and is now cutting a station at the 1,000. It will be cross-cutting for its first vein north by the 16th or 17th.

The prospects of the district were never brighter than they are at present, and while the production of copper this year may not exceed 1 per cent over that of last year, 1907 will see a much greater increase.

The Eastern men detailed to inspect the property of the Butte Hill Copper company have arrived and are now busy. They were accompanied to Butte by Dr. W. H. Hall, who went East a short time ago in the interest of the company. If the deal practically closed in the East goes through, development work on the property will be resumed in a short time and the old shaft will either be enlarged to meet conditions or a new one of larger dimensions will be sunk at a different point, probably north of the apex of the vein.

The Butte Coalition and Butte & Boston companies are making good headway in the new shaft on the tramway claim and will have the opening finished by the first of the year if nothing happens to retard the work. The surface end of the opening is down 500 feet. While sinking is in progress, raising is also going on from the 1,100-foot workings leading from the Minnie Healey. By driving from both ends double headway can be made. It is the intentions of the company to work the veins of the Tramway and Snohomish jointly through the shaft, but the ore raised from the Minnie Healey will all go to the Coalition company by reason of the fact that this company owns the property. Butte & Boston owns half of the Snohomish and two-thirds of the Tramway, and Coalition owns the remained of both. The three mines will be operated through the new shaft.

The organization of the Butte & Superior Copper company has been completed in Butte and the articles of incorporation will be filed in a few days. All of the property which has been acquired has been deeded by Mr. Peake, in whose name the title was held, to A. B. Wolvin, John F. Killorin and Thomas J. Davis of Duluth, comprising the Duluth syndicate which has taken a large interest in the Butte & Superior. The deeds for the property were filed with the county clerk and recorded last Saturday. The property transferred consists of the Four Johns, Raymond, Constitution, Black Rock and a twenty-six thirty-sixth interest in the Niagara, comprising the Black Rock group; the Peake, Parker, Prescott, Paul, Pardee, Pueblo and Paris quartz lode claims situated in the Independence mining district northwest of Butte. Wolvin, Killorin and Davis will in turn deed the property to the Butte & Superior company in a few days. It is the report that the new company has some of the strongest financial backing known in the Lake Superior country. Big payments have been made on the properties and others will be made as rapidly as they become due. Mr. Peake still retains a large interest in the company, but the management is now shared with others.

During their stay in the city the Duluth men paid out quite a sum of cash. The entire price of the Black Rock is said to be about $500,000, of which a portion, said to be 60 or 80 per cent, so far

SENSATIONAL STRIKE MADE

In the Gold Mountain District of Utah—There Will be Several Big Copper Mines at the Head of Big Cottonwood If Expectations Are Realized.

Salt Lake, Nov. 10.—The South Columbus and Alta-Quincy properties in the Little Cottonwood district have been taken over by the South Columbus Consolidated company, an organization with 30,000 shares that was formed in New York a few days ago. The new company paid 100,000 shares for the Alta-Quincy. A control of the South Columbus has been acquired on a basis of one share of new stock for three of the old and the opportunity has been extended to all the stockholders of the South Columbus to get in on the same terms. This part of the deal will eat up the second 100,000 shares in the new company. The remaining 100,000 shares have all been subscribed for by ten New York operators at $2 a share and the money thus acquired is to be used in the further development and equipment of the properties. The ground all joins the Columbus Consolidated properties on the south, and, as some of the largest interests in that company are prominently identified with the South Columbus Consolidated, the presumption is that the men interested have a good idea of the value of the new company's holdings.

At the head of Big Cottonwood, where the boundary lines dividing the district from that of Park City run, is the property of the Mountain Lake Copper company. During the summer the steamboat company's property on the east side of the divide was purchased by Jesse Knight, the controlling factor in the Mountain Lake company, and a consolidation has since been effected and $50,000 placed in the treasury for development. The steamboat tunnel penetrates the mountain for 2,200 feet and it is expected that another 300 or 400 feet will carry the face into the great ledge of copper that crops boldly on the surface.

If expectations are realized in this work there will be several copper mines at the head of Big Cottonwood and on the southwest end of the Park City district that will equal, if they do not eclipse, anything of which Bingham can boast. There are tremendous bodies of 2 to 4 per cent copper ore on the surface in the region outlined. P. A. Heinze's engineers have investigated it to some extent, and it is said that they are now waiting to see what Jesse Knight will show up before making another move.

Additional interest is being attracted to the Deep Creek country in the western port of the state every day, and the visit of F. A. Heinze, Alfred Franks, his chief engineer, and Capt. Duncan MacVichie to the region west of the great desert is causing more comment in mining circles than anything that has happened in a long time. The party went from here to Ely and came into the Deep Creek country from the Nevada side. The Western Utah Copper company, organized by MacVichie and with which Mr. Heinze is identified, owns the Gold Hill group of mines, and it was to inspect these particularly that the trip overland was made.

The mines have been splendidly opened during the last three years and there is reason to believe that a matting smelter will be built out there to reduce the ores of the Gold Hill and other properties in that portion of the great mineral bearing country west of the desert. Water was recently secured by MacVichie, and, according to reports that are just leaking out, the Western Pacific has already agreed to build a twenty-six mile branch line to the mines.

A big compressor plant is to be installed at once on the Diamond and Nimrod company's Park City properties, and the shaft is to be continued on down from the 800 foot level to a point at least 1,500 feet under the surface. The company's property adjoins the Daly West and Daly Judge on the north, and it is the opinion of mining engineers that a great mine can be developed in the ground.

Last Friday the Ontario drain tunnel was tapped from the side drift that is being run to get around the caved portion of the tunnel and drain the mine by a diamond drill. When the thirty feet of intervening rock had been cut through the drill struck a timber, and on that account there was no pressure to the water that came through the hole. It is believed that the tunnel is clear where the drill has penetrated and that had the opening been made between timbers, the result of the connection would have been different. The feeling is that the mine will be drained completely during the next few weeks and possibly few days.

The shares of the Columbus Consolidated company of Alta are to be listed on the Boston exchange and on the New York curb during the next thirty days. The management states that it would have been done by this time only that in making application, some minor details respecting the answering of questions touching the by-laws of the company were overlooked. Everything will be fixed up during the next few days and, as all matters touching the physical condition of the company's properties, title, earnings, etc., have been fully passed upon and approved by the listing committees, the matters referred to are all that need attention previous to the calling of the stock. The company is earning big money, and it will begin the new year with a surplus of 500,000. During the week 315 tons of ore from the mine sold for $32,000 net. The earnings of the company approximate $3,000 a day.

A contract was awarded during the

SNOWSTORM BIG PRODUCER

Experts Say That This Coeur d' Alene Mine Is One of the Greatest Copper Properties Ever Known—Eastern Capitalists Are Interested in Its Development.

Butte, Mont., Nov. 10—The growing interests in the Coeur d'Alene mining district, which for six months has been very marked in Butte, is extending, and mining men and investors all over the country are taking notice of the importance of that district. The principal object of interest at present seems to be the Snowstorm mine, a copper property, located near Mullan, Idaho. Although the mine has been worked for six years or more and in that time has paid good profits to the Greenough brothers, little concerning the property has been konwn to the outside public. Recent reports about the property have attracted the attention of many Butte mining men and a dozen prominent engineers have examined the mines and made similar flattering reports, with the result that some local men have become heavily interested in Snowstorm. It was reported that the Amalgamated Copper company has acquired an interest in the Snowstorm company, but that is denied. The report probably arose from the fact that one of the company's engineers and officials on his own account recently examined the property, and that a number of Amalgamated officials and employes have individual holdings in the Snowstorm.

New York and Boston investors are also becoming interested and many inquiries concerning the mine are received in Butte. A few days ago Charles Copenherve, Montana representative of the Boston News Bureau, the well known Eastern financial authority, received a request from some Boston interests to visit the Snowstorm and make a personal examination of the mine. He secured the services of a well known mining engineer from Spokane, and, in company with Manager W. D. Greenough and several other mining men, spent an entire day in the Snowstorm mines. According to his statements, the reports concerning the vastness of the ore deposits have not been exaggerated, and he considers the property surpassd in value and importance by only such mines as the North Butte, Anaconda and Leonard in Butte. The Snowstorm company, says Mr. Copenharve, has sixteen patented mining claims and three millsites, in addition to the lot of ranch land, purchased to avoid possible litigation in the future. It owns its own electric light and power plant, which will be in operation in a month; it owns vast timber lands, sufficient to supply the company with lumber for twenty years, and the timber can be brought to the mine at a cost of 3 cents per running foot, while other mining companies are paying 9 cents; it owns and operates a 250-ton leaching and precipitating plant, by which it claims to save 95 per cent of the values in the ores; it has just completed a big water flume four and one-half miles long, and has built a line wagon road from the railroad to the upper tunnels of the mine, the road winding around the mountains for three miles or more, and two automatic Riblet tramways connect the mines with the mill and ore bins, by which the ore is transported a distance of a mile and a quarter at a mere nominal cost.

The mine has been developed with three long tunnels and extensive drifts, crosscuts, raises, etc. The vein has been opened to a depth of 1,500 feet, No. 3 tunnel having been driven to the vein at that depth, where the vein is 125 feet wide, and has ben opend by drifts for nearly 800 feet in length. The richest ore is between tunnels No. 2 and 3, where the vein is from thirty to sixty feet wide on what is known as No. 4 level. The ore there shows values of 10 to 30 per cent copper and seven ounces of silver to the ton. On the other levels the ore averages about 4 per cent, except on the lower level, where a rather barren zone has been struck, but the general average of all the ore blocked out will average 5 per cent for the whole mine. The opinion of mining experts vary as to the amount of ore blocked out and in sight, estimates running from 2,000,000 to 5,000,000 tons. Robert N. Bell, Idaho state mining inspector, who was in the Snowstorm at the same time that Mr. Copenharve and his party were there, says the former estimate is a very conservative one. It is the opinion of Mr. Bell and other mining experts that the low grade of the ore on the lower level, is due to the fact that the vein has been considerably leachtd out there by the watr. The vein is faulted and badly broken up in places, and the water comes through it like a mill race. That has been going on for ages, and the inference of mining men is that the copper has been leached out at that point and redeposited lower down, where it will likely be found in the form of copper glance. Tunnel No. 4 is now being driven farther down the mountain and it will tap the vein at a depth of 2,000 feet, where a secondary enrichment is anticipated.

The mine is full of broken down ore and there are 50,000 tons of it on the dump. Even with the present equipment at the mine, the company could mine 1,000 tons per day, but is not prepared to handle it. A concentrator of sufficient capacity will be built next spring, and Mr. Greenough says he will then be able to mine and handle 2,000 tons of ore daily and at a cost of less than $1 per ton for extraction. What that means can best be understood when it is known that it costs $3 and more per ton to extract ore in Butte by the big companies. The company's present net earnings are about $9 per ton, but the big mass of ore on the 400 will yield, according to estimates, $21.25 per ton net. In the opinion of engineers there is blocked out enough ore in the Snowstorm to yield 1,500 tons per day for five year without

CANANEA CENTRAL DEVELOPMENT

No Effort to Run Up a Big Production Until the Property Is Well Opened Up---Working 150 Men Now.

Bisbee, Ariz., Nov. 10.—John H. Talbot superintendent of the Cananea Central property at Cananea, was in the city recently to consult with General Manager Powell on matters in connection with the property. When asked concerning operations at the big property, Talbot said: "At the present time we are operating in four shafts on what was formerly the America property, and all of the workings are in ore. The smelter returns show that we have extracted $120,000 worth of first-class ore in the past few months, as well as a large amount of ore which does not carry a big percentage of copper, but which is good concentrating ore. These returns pay the entire operating expenses.

"The idea at the present time is to develop the property in such a way that when we are ready to place it on a big producing basis, there will be absolutely no trouble. The ore which we are taking out at the present time is that which we find in the course of development work, and we are not making any effort to run up a big production until the property is well opened up.

"We are working about 150 men, and will increase the force steadily from this time on.

"All of the development right now is being one on the America claims, but within a very short time we will start drifting and cross-cutting into the other portions of the property.

"The town of America has been founded almost in the center of the Cananea-Central property, and we are building the houses as fast as skilled carpenters and builders can possibly carry on the work. The reason for building the town is, that many of the men have been paying a rental for houses which are not by any means comfortable, and when they go to work in the morning they are practically in a comatose state for want of comfortable sleep. The houses in the new town are all well built, and we are renting them to the men at the same rental which they formerly paid for a house which was nothing more than what might be called a shack. The movement seems to be very popular with the men, as we can not by any means satisfy the applications which are presented. Eventually we will have enough to house the men we have working at the present time, and will keep on building as we increase our force. The whole camp is booming, and there does not seem to be a doubt of a wonderful future being in store for it."

The Cananea Herald says: The month just closed was probably the best in the history of the Cananea camp. Mines and reduction works have been operated with the utmost smoothness. Splendid system prevails in all departments and the results obtained are excellent. The smelter output was about the same as for the month of September, and will vary but little from that until the increased capacity is obtained, which will be when the additions to equipment now under way are put into commission. Development underground has been continued throughout the camp with splendid results. There has been little in the way of sensational discoveries, but a great deal of steady progress along satisfactory lines has been made. In the territory outside of the proven ground highly encouraging headway has been made. The activity prevalent in these sections means a great deal doing in the spring, when the titles are received. All in all, October has been a splendid month for Cananea, and unless every sign fails November will be even greater in its showing."

A GIGANTIC CONSOLIDATION

Of the Biggest Mines in the Goldfield District Expected---Marvelous Activity and Progress Reported at the Mohawk.

Goldfield, Nev., Nov. 10.—George Wingfield, J. H. Carstairs and other big operators of this place have secured the control of the Jumbo and Red Top Mining companies' shares and there is a belief here that the move has been made preliminary to the making of a gigantic consolidation that will include nearly all of the biggest mines in this camp, including the Mohawk, Combination, Florence, Goldfield Mining, and others, with the properties of the Jumbo and Red Top. The market in all of these stocks has been a feverish and excited one since the deal for the Jumbo and Red Top were closed, and values in most instances have doubled. The reported price at which the control of the Jumbo and Red Top was obtained is given at $2.10 per share. C. D. Taylor, the locator of both properties, was the principal holder of the stock in each company.

The Laguna company has been prospecting its ground with a diamond drill and two ledges have been cut in, sinking something over 400 feet. This much is acknowledged and there is an impression in camp that a third vein has been tapped and that the company is concealing the news.

Now that the Clark road has reached Beatty, in the Bullfrog district, from Las Vegas and has the grade practically finished for the line into Rhyolite, the mines of the district are taking on all kinds of activity. In another month the dumps of the big mines will have been reached by the iron horse, and the hauling of ore to market will begin in earnest. The officials of the railroad company announce that the line will be continued on north to this camp without delay.

The scenes that were enacted when the leases Jim Butler gave on his Tonopah bonanza a few years ago, when every available man was pressed into service to dig out as much ore as possible before the expiration of the leases on Jan. 1, are being re-enacted here on the Mohawk. There are one or two noticeable differences, however. In the case of Tonopah there were no railroad facilities, little in the way of hoisting and mining machinery, and no electric light and power. On the Mohawk, where ore is being lifted to the surface by a dozen or more modern hoisting appliances, the whole scene is a blaze of electric light by night and the wheels of industry hum and roar through every moment of the day and night.

From the mouths of the shafts the ore is going over trestles to the loading bins and at each of these the railroad cars are being constantly loaded for market. Nothing like it was ever known in the history of precious metal mining. Sixty days remain to the lessers to round out their fortunes and during that short time millions will be made and millions in gold will be added to the world's supply.

The news from Fairview is all of a most assuring nature. The Nevada Hills company is producing at the rate of a carload of $300 ore a week and the Eagle, Eagle's Nest and other properties are piling up some ore as development work progresses. The Nevada Fairview company is sacking ore worth about $275 per ton and the camp of Wonder, a few miles from Fairview,

GLOBE TO BEGIN SHIPPING

Within a Month From the Mallory Shaft---Good Progress at the Gem Shaft Which is Down 190 Feet.

Globe, Ariz., Nov. 10.—Within a month ore shipments will begin from the Mallory shaft of the Globe Consolidated, on the former Globe-Boston property. A contract has been let for the sinking, and three shifts of eight men each will begin work at once in the two-compartment shaft of the mine. The boilers have been overhauled and are full of water, a supply of coal is on the ground and Supt. Wayne is awaiting word from Duluth to light the fires and start work. The shaft, which is now down 450 feet, will be sunk several hundred feet deeper before any drifting is done. The ore to be shipped consists of low grade sulphides, of which there is a considerable quantity.

On the Gem claim of the Globe Consolidated the main three-compartment shaft is now down about 190 feet, work being prosecuted at the rate of 100 feet per month. The permanent gallows frame is now being erected and the new ten-drill Sullivan compressor has already arrived on the ground. All foundations are completed and awaiting the new machinery which is now en route to Globe. The site of the Gem claim is a scene of great activity, and the top of Buffalo hill is beginning to assume city airs.

The Troy-Manhattan Development company, which has a working bond and options on the properties at Troy, has a force of miners at work under the direction of Joseph C. Erman as superintendent, and J. J. Devine as foreman. The Florence Blade states that Erman has made a contract with the Arizona Smelting company at Humboldt for the delivery of 32,000 tons of sulphide ore from the Rattler mine of the Troy-Manhattan group. The ore is said to be 3½ per cent copper, $4 in gold, 60 per cent iron, 18 per cent lime, 6 per cent silicate and the balance sulphur.

The sulphide strike on the thirteenth level of the Old Dominion continues to grow. The crosscut has penetrated vein No. 2, eighteen feet, and the ore is of the same high grade. There appears to be no doubt now that Old Dominion will have an abundance of sulphide ores, but the development of the veins will be slow until B and C shafts are sunk to the lower levels of the mine, affording better ventilation. Shipments of sulphide ores from other mines in the Globe district also give promise of increasing largely. The effect will be to wonderfully increase the production of copper here during the next few years.

The Arizona Commercial Copper company is working the usual force of men at the Copper Hill mine, and development work is progressing satisfactorily. The black Hawk is idle, pending the arrival of a boiler shipped from Denver and now due here. As soon as it is installed sinking will be resumed and the sixth level opened.

Leroy Ikenberry has sold to Pasquale Nigro one-half interest in six claims situated on the west side of Quartzite hill, five miles from the Black Hawk mine of the Arizona Commercial Copper company. The consideration was $2,500 cash. The copper is exposed in several shallow openings on the property, and in one place there is four feet of 5 per cent ore and showing bunches of 25 per cent copper scattered through the mass. George F. Wilson is the owner of the other half interest, and Nigro and he have planned to sink a shaft to a considerable depth and prospect the lead.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

CONCERNING WOMEN.

Invitations will be issued Tuesday of next week for the annual charity ball, given each year under the auspices of the Children's Home board of this city. The affair will be given as usual at the Spalding, and the entire board of directors, which comprises the ball committee, are devoting great energy to make the ball the most brilliant and beautiful of the season's social functions. Flaaten's orchestra will play, and especial attention will be directed to the decorations. With Duluth constantly growing the board of directors each year have renewed difficulty in reaching all the friends of the home who desire to show their interest in the institution by attendance at this annual affair, and if any one has been overlooked in the invitation list, if their names are sent to the members of the board, invitations will be gladly sent them.

WOULD CONSOLIDATE ALL WOMEN'S CLUBS

Miss Mary B. Statham Advances Advisability of Merging Duluth Organizations Into One Large and Effective Club.

The communication which was read yesterday at the annual meeting of the Women's Council by Miss Mary B. Statham will undoubtedly prove of unusual interest to the club women of the city. It is herewith given in full:

"A short time ago a well known lawyer said to me that Duluth women were club-ridden; That in no other city had he ever heard of so many women's clubs and practically with the same aims and purposes. That there seemed to be a spirit of rivalry or jealousy between them and that in the circumstances they could never accomplish any real good. In fact, not until the Duluth club women would unite into one large body would they be a real power for good in the community."

"There would then be a concentration of energy for the general cause of educational work, good citizenship and the city beautiful. Every movement that would emanate from this great body of women would carry with it great force and power. In union there is strength.

"Now, can we not prove to the men that we are not narrow and jealous. That we are willing to put aside any selfish feeling that we may have about our small clubs and unite together for the larger and broader education and good citizenship?

"At present we have in our town the Woman's Council, the Matinee Musicale, the Cecilian club, the Art club, the Twentieth Century club, the Saturday club, the Ladies' Literature Class, the Lester Park club, the Bishop's club, the Unity club, the Outlook club, the Duluth Heights club, the Souvenir Spoon club and the heavens only knows how many other clubs.

"Would it not be well for us all to unite into one grand combination with many departments of work and thus become that great power for good? I certainly think so.

"So many clubs exhaust our energies and take so much of our time. To my certain knowledge the president of the Twentieth Century club has to preside at the monthly social and program meeting of that club, attend an executive board meeting each month, and is expected to be present at many of the weekly class meetings. Besides, she is asked to serve on two committees in the Woman's Council, and is invited and expected to be present at a number of outside club meetings and conventions during the year.

"You can readily judge from this calendar what must also be the experience of other club women. Should they attend half these meetings or do half the work expected of them no time would be left for domestic affairs or other social pleasures.

"We should only believe in clubs just so far as they aid in developing woman intellectually and fitting her for her home life. Club life should in a way teach her how to systematize her daily work and not take her from it or to neglect it. It should also broaden a woman and make her more charitable in speech and more sympathetic in temperament. In this great club there would be fewer duties for the individual club woman. The work could be so apportioned that each member need have little else but to come and be edified.

"Let us form this great club at an early date and let us call it the Woman's club of Duluth. A club that would be divided into as many departments as would meet the demands of all these smaller clubs. Let us have a comprehensive constitution and by-laws that would meet every contingency and a large executive board to share the work.

"Let us have more lectures on special subjects for the benefit of these departments, yet do away with some of these small study classes. However, should there be a demand for them, these classes could be kept going under the management of one department—that of literature and history.

"The music and the art clubs could be united in the music or the art departments. In so large a club our appropriations for these departments alone could extend to the thousand-dollar mark, since all could enjoy the benefits of them. We could give our members and citizens such concerts and lectures as they have rarely before heard in Duluth. In this great combination we could have the means to send a member of our music and art committees to the annual meetings of the national associations, who would keep those departments in touch with all that is worth while in their lines.

"There would be no need of the present musical and art clubs to change their form of organization. Only the titles of their officers would need a change. The presidents would be the chairmen of their respective committees, of the departments, and the remaining officers the members of the same, with a secretary and treasurer for the committees. With practically the same executive board that now forms our woman's council.

"Among our departments we should have home and education, which should include domestic science and health and hygiene. In the last named our women could do a great deal to assist the medical societies without any spirit of meddling, for every mother should have an intelligent idea of the prevention of disease as well as a correct idea of the moral training of her children.

"We should also have departments of reform, of science, of miscellaneous entertainment, and evening departments for the busy women. If there should be a demand for them. However, the Y. W. C. association has such classes so well in hand that other classes might seem superfluous.

"The plan of the Woman's club of Milwaukee, Wis., has appealed to me as a good one and this club is housed in an appropriate building. I will quote from the letter of a friend and member of this club about it: 'I am sorry that I cannot send pictures of this building which is an ideal one for our club. It does not, however, belong to the Woman's club, but to the Athenaeum association, a stock company organized, however, for the purpose of housing the club. The basement has dining room and kitchen, the first floor, the Woman's club room, library, hall, tea room and a room for history classes. The second floor is devoted to amusement purposes, having a large dancing hall with dressing rooms adjoining. This hall has a raised platform at one end and is much used for lectures and concerts. It is rented regularly every season to another club and is in almost constant use for nine months of the year. So much for the building itself.

"'I am sending with this letter a year book and a copy of the constitution. It is last year's book, but I know it would serve your purpose, as each year's general plan of work is the same. Each committee has an appropriation for its season's share of the work, and each committee, you will notice, provides the program for two afternoons. The initiation fee has lately been raised from $10 to $15, and the annual dues from $5 to $10.

"'It would be a great thing for the Duluth women if such a combination as you write of could be effected, and I wish you success in your enterprise.'

"The Milwaukee Woman's club has been in existence for thirty years and is now enjoying the most successful period of its existence. The club building is said to have been a good paying investment from the start.

"With such a club as ours where there would be no limit to membership until it had reached 1,000 in numbers we could hope also for a handsome building. It could be owned by our own club women and interested citizens who might be associate members.

"A great auditorium would be a fine place where all our monthly or semi-monthly meetings, concerts, lectures, etc., could be held. This hall also could be sub-let for dances, balls and parties, beside to other organizations when their meetings would not conflict with ours. Lectures and musicales should be made the prominent features of our new club since every member could have the benefit of attending them.

"I would not recommend such enormous fees as the above for our club, as they might frighten away the women. However, it would be reasonable to recommend the sum of $5 per annum to quarter members, without initiation fee and $5 per annum to members joining after the formation of the club.

"One thousand members at $5 per capita would give us splendid working capital, and we could command the very best lecturers for all the departments. Of course we could not expect to command good lectures and other good things for a less amount per person per annum. The dignity of a great club would not admit of it, and we should not wish it otherwise.

"The time is now ripe for such a club. Our city contains nearly 75,000 people and we should be able to draw together from this number at least 500 or 1,000 women for so great a purpose. And would it not be an appropriate idea to look to one of the oldest clubs or classes for the first president of of our great club? There could then be no jealousies among the women of the more recently formed clubs, and it should give us no small pleasure to thus honor one of our older settlers and to show her our respect and esteem.

"As our distinguished president closed her annual address at our state federation meeting, so shall I close my appeal to the club women of Duluth: 'Have we not all common interests, common purposes? Let us, then, give of our best gladly, looking for nothing in return; lending a hand wherever needed; rejoicing at successes, sympathizing with failure. And so, a well disciplined crew on the good ship Federation—Co-operation—shall it be given to us to land many a valuable cargo which shall add to the wealth of the world and to the well-being of humanity.' And we may add, to the wealth of woman's understanding and to our city beautiful.

"I respectfully submit this plan to the consideration of the Woman's council, and pray that it will favor and hasten it to a happy realization."

The plan is one which has been thought of in former years by a few of the women of the city; in fact, at the time of the organization of the Twentieth Century club the idea of the founders was for a department club. The club idea was new in Duluth, the few clubs that were organized were bound by individual considerations, and it ultimately proved that the time was not then ripe for such an organization, and but little has been heard of it during the past few years. Miss Statham's suggestion comes at an opportune time, and will probably receive the support of every interested club woman of the city.

The matter was informally discussed at yesterday's council meeting, and it was most highly approved by these representative women. Mrs. W. S. Woodbridge, the only remaining charter member of the Ladies' Literature class, the oldest most conservative and hard-working of the study clubs of this city, said, in speaking of the proposed Women's club: "The time seems to have come for such a unifying of interest among the women's clubs of this city. The union will make practically no difference in the study to be pursued, each class making its rules as stringent and binding for personal study as it chooses, and the member of the club choosing at will the class with which she will identify herself. The splendid influence of such an organization and its power for good should appeal to every woman."

The discussion was merely a personal one at yesterday's meeting, as none of the members of the council have as yet communicated with their clubs; but if the sentiment as expressed at yesterday's meeting is a criterion the formation of such a club in the city will come about within the next twelve months.

The idea is one whoch has appealed to Mrs. Robert Morris Seymour, who has recently become interested in federation work. In speaking of the women's clubs early this fall she said: "The time seems to have come for Duluth women to get together in some way and unify their interests. In so many cities the women's organizations are almost without number, and all over the town little conservative groups of women are gathered together, pursuing a lonely line of work, utterly unknowing of the work that other women of the same city are doing or trying to do, mayhap, in the same line. With Duluth growing as rapidly as it is, Duluth women must soon come together on some common ground, or their work will be so scattered that the immense value which it might become will not be realized."

It would seem that Miss Statham's awakening of the subject has come at exactly the right moment.

The Literature calss of the Twentieth Century club will meet Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the club room of the library. Mrs. Stella Prince Stocker will be the speaker for the afternoon, and "Nibelungen Saga" will be the subject. Anyone interested is invited to attend.

The first of the evening Browning lectures under the auspices of the Twentieth Century club will be given Monday evening at the club room of the library by Rev. John W. Powell, Jr. The subject of this first lecture, which is to be the first in a series of four will be on "Pippa Passes," and the evening lectures are not to be a repetition of the morning lectures, but four different subjects will be presented. Men may attend the class, becoming associate members of the club. This first lecture will be given at 8 o'clock, and any one interested is invited to attend.

• • •

The first meeting of the morning Browning study class of the Twentieth Century club was held Thursday of this week and has met a demand. The club was organized in conjunction with the Browning lectures which are being given this year by Rev. John W. Powell, Jr.

The program has been arranged as follows, subject to such changes as may seem fit during the months of study. The leader of the class is Mrs. L. W. Kline:

Dec. 12—
"Apparent Failure."
"The Grammarian's Funeral."
"Epilogue to Asolando."
Jan. 21—
"The Flight of the Duchess."
"The Statue and the Bust."
Feb. 14.—
"My Star."
"A Face."
"By the Fireside."
"The Guardian Angel."
March 14—
"Never the Time and the Place."
Passages from "The Ring and the Book."
"Prospice."
"One Word More."

An especially fine program was presented Tuesday afternoon before the Travel class of the Twentieth Century club. The first of a series of special lectures was given by Mrs. John McLeod, who spoke on early English literature, taking as her subject the works and influence of Addison and Spencer upon their time, and the impress their influence has had on the literature of the language. She was listened to with great interest, and a large audience was present to hear her.

The first part of the year's study of the class was begun when the trip across the Atlantic was told of by Mrs. T. K. Hicks. The next stop of the class in its "Cruise of the Orient" will be at Gibraltar.

One of the interesting musical events of next week will be a concert next Tuesday evening at Steinway hall presented by Mrs. James McAuliffe, soprano, and Ruth Alta Rogers, pianist. Both Mrs. McAuliffe and Miss Rogers are among the most popular of the local musicians, and they will be heard with pleasure.

• • •

A meeting of the Shakespeare class of the Twentieth Century club will be held Thursday morning at 10 o'clock at the club room of the library. The study and discussion of "Romeo and Juliet" will be continued

There will be no meeting of the Bishop's club Tuesday evening of next week, the next meeting to be held Nov. 20.

• • •

The meeting of the Outlook club will be held Friday afternoon of next week with Mrs. T. H. Hawkes, Jr., of 210 Sixteenth avenue east. The meeting will be in charge of Mrs. Imogene Lectra, and a reading or discussion of "The Opening of Thibet" will occupy the attention of the members.

THE POVERTY OF LADY ISABEL

By Mrs. Neish.

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

Lady Isabel is one of those essentially feminine-looking women who appeal to you by reason of their obvious and infinitable helplessness.

I use the word "infinitable," since the helplessness is merely a carefully acquired attribute, the result of much painstaking and innate art.

I was busy writing letters when Lady Isabel called me into her room and asked me if I could come out with her at once and do some shopping.

"Do come, dear," she pleaded, "it's your duty to your hostess; besides, I'm going to walk—it's so good for one's skin to walk out of doors—and I simply detest going about by myself."

This was only natural; she was so fair and youthful, and so utterly and childishly dependent, that I almost wondered how she dared cross the road alone.

"Aren't you taking Babs?" I asked; "she dearly loves a walk with us."

Isabel regretfully dismissed the idea of bringing her little girl. "No; poor Babs hasn't anything fit to go out with me in. Nurse makes her outdoor coats so abominably." She glanced unconsciously at her own elegant garment. "But I shall take Minto; he wants a new coat, and I am going to get him some of those boots I hear they keep at Purlam's."

"Really," I said; "but do dogs wear boots, Isabel?"

"Oh, I don't know," she replied, easily. "No, I suppose not, but he must have them; he needn't wear them, of course—but they are so cheap. Poor Minto!" she added, irrelevantly.

"And poor Babs," I murmured under my breath.

She caught the words. "Yes, I do wish I could afford some nice things for Babs instead of the awful clothes nurse makes for her. It's hateful being poor, Marjorie," she added.

The fixed an expensive picture hat on her head as she spoke, and took a pair of long white gloves from her drawer. They were lined with blue, and I ventured to admire them.

"Yes; aren't they nice," she said, as she handed me one to see. "I had six pairs made to order the other day."

Isabel's first visit was to a large automobile firm, where she interviewed the manager. She said she wished to see two motor cars, one for a friend, a countess, for whom she had offered to choose a car, and the other for her brother-in-law, who was in Egypt at present, but who wished his car to be built while he was away, so that it might be ready for the bride he was bringing home.

"Lady F— will, of course, come and choose hers herself, and I am only looking at it for her, as I know so exactly the kind of thing she wants."

The man bowed and said he hoped to please her ladyship, and thought he had the exact car she would require; and he begged us to step for a moment "this way."

When all was arranged we turned to go.

"Oh, by the way," said Lady Isabel, the helplessness becoming exceedingly apparent, "what will my commission be?"

The manager did not move a muscle of his face. "We are not in the habit of paying commission to private ladies," he said quietly.

"Oh, well, of course there are other places where one can buy motor cars," said Lady Isabel, looking pathetically first at me and then at a small address book in her hand.

"If you will kindly wait a moment, your ladyship, I will ask the senior partner to come and speak to you," replied the manager, and pulled forward two chairs for our use as he spoke.

"Fancy their giving you so much as all that, Isabel," I said, as we emerged once more into the noisy street. "Didn't it make you feel very uncomfortable—what he said, I mean?"

"Uncomfortable?" she echoed in amazement. "No, of course not, why should it? It was a greater bother for me to choose them; I only did it out of pure good nature, and, after all—one has to live."

I began to wonder how the trade would live if the female aristocracy took to commerce.

"I just want to look in at Point street, Marjorie," said Lady Isabel presently. "It's horribly out of the way; but I must see little Mrs. Barrington-Brown for a moment today."

"Who on earth is Mrs. Barrington-Brown?"

"Oh, she is a perfect income to poor little me," said Lady Isabel, with an infantile sigh of deep content. "She is one of those nice 'new' women who is paying ever so much to get in with us."

"Really; and do you select her motor cars?"

"Oh, yes, of course; but she has only had two at present; but she goes to Felice to buy her clothes, and he almost dresses me in consequence; it's such a comfort and such a help—"

"It mut be," I said; "and does he dress little Babs as well?"

She stared at me. "No, he doesn't build children's dresses—at least, I don't think he does, although, to tell the truth, I have not asked him. Besides, it might mean he wouldn't make so many for me."

"No," I rejoined drily, "I suppose he wouldn't—not quite so many."

"On arriving at Pont street we were ushered with much ceremony into Mrs. Barrington-Brown's magnificent drawing-room, when Mrs. Barrington-Brown came hurrying into the room, looking very happy if rather flushed.

There was a shade of languor in Lady Isabel's manner as she turned and greeted her.

"I have just looked in," she said, in a pretty, tired voice, "as I happened to be passing by your house, and I wanted to ask you to come to my little party on Tuesday next. Quite a small party," she continued; "only Princess Bertini and Lord Elberstone, and Sir Frederick Stole and ourselves."

Mrs. Barrington-Brown flushed deeply, and murmured she would be delighted.

"Then that's all right," said Lady Isabel gaily, and she led the conversation—very skilfully, I thought—into nearer housekeeping channels.

"Your house always look so clean, dear Mrs. Barrington-Brown," she murmured sadly, and added, "I never can understand how you do it—but, of course, you've got heaps and heaps of servants. By the way," she went on, "that reminds me, talking of things looking clean, I

New Floral Pin Cushions Make Dainty Christmas Gifts

WILD ROSE AND SUN FLOWER CUSHIONS.

PEONIES ARE IMITATED IN RIBBON WATER LILY AND ROSE DESIGNS

Pin cushions in floral devices have quite supplanted the more prosaic and stereotyped forms which have long been indicative of this toilet necessity, and bureaus, chiffoniers and toilet tables will this winter blossom out into regular flower gardens with their new appointments.

Made of silk or satin, the color of the natural flowers or in shades that harmonize with the surroundings, these cushions are decidedly effective and are particularly appropriate for a young girl's bedroom or for use in the guest chamber they add a freshness and beauty to the dresser that is indescribable.

Effective as these cushions are they are simple to make, and any woman fond of fancy work will have no difficulty in fashioning a wild rose or a gorgeous sunflower pin cushion for the bureau.

Simplest of these cushions are made in the shape of a bag, the top of which spreads out into a pretty blossom. For the bottom of the bag a square or round piece of cardboard is first covered with white or colored silk to harmonize with the flower itself. To this cardboard covered circle or square four panels of silk or lengths of satin ribbon are joined together and attached which forms a bag into which cotton, curled hair, sawdust or any other filling is packed and the top gathered and tied with narrow baby ribbon.

The tops which are formed into the flowers, though complicated in appearance when finished, are easily made. The panels of white, pink or whatever the color may be, are cut from the tied ends of the ribbon and knotted to imitate the scalloped edges of the real leaves, but if a pansy or a daisy is to be fashioned, the petals are turned down slightly at either side and the effect is decidedly natural. Artificial centers may either be bought for a small sum or made by working French knots of embroidery silk and attaching them to twisted threads waxed so they will stand up in place.

A pretty cushion that is even less difficult to make is fashioned out of a round piece of cardboard, covered with silk with a layer of cotton batting beneath. On top two or three roses in a cluster make this cushion effective and decorative. At the top a twisted piece of ribbon is sewed to the edge so it can be hung up.

Pond lilies, the most attractive of the flower cushions, are made on wire frames. The stem of wire is covered with a piece of green silk, while the lily itself is built around a circular piece of green silk, the shade of the real flower, and about is shirred a large puff of white satin. Out of this the white petals made of other puffs of white satin stand out prettily, and in the center there is a heart made of French knots in yellow silk that complete a realistic imitation of a natural pond lily.

None of these floral cushions is more attractive than the sunflower. It is made on a round piece of cardboard, with a thick padding of cotton batting, over the edge of which there is sewed a large puff of yellow silk closely shirred and in the center a heart of French knots.

Flower pin cushions are not the only floral decorative pieces that will be used on dressing tables, for there are hat pin and hair pin holders that are made in imitation of apple blossoms and wild roses. These are easily made by covering a glass tube with a netting, to which the ribbons may be sewed. About eight pieces of narrow satin ribbon will cover an ordinary tube. These pieces are sewed together to make a bag and are held in place at the top by a narrow piece of baby ribbon. Above the baby ribbon, so the petals fall over and inside the tube, the petals of a rose or daisy are attached, and with yellow centers look like a flower that has just burst into full bloom.

ANOTHER SUN-FLOWER CUSHION AND HAT PIN HOLDER

SOFT LIGHTING FOR THE THANKSGIVING TABLE

SIMPLE CANDLE SHADES THAT MAY BE MADE AT HOME

Making artistic and even original candle shades is no longer a difficult task for women inexperienced in needle work, for frames in many pretty shapes may be bought, and braid fringe purchased ready for use, so that the shaping of materials and making is really quite simple. Then, too if a housekeeper makes them at home she can frequently change the material, substituting cretonne for silk at a trifling expense, and in this way can save room decorations from becoming monotonous. For instance, on a gala occasion, such as Hallowe'en or Thanksgiving, the candle shades may be made of some appropriate design in silk or paper that conforms with the festive day, and fits in harmoniously with the surroundings.

The frames may be purchased for from 15 cents up, according to size, while the beading attached to a hoop that is ready to be sewed in place costs from 45 cents up, the price depending entirely upon the length of the strands, and also upon the dimensions of the hoop from which they hang. With these two necessary essentials and a yard and a half of silk or chintz, the most elaborate kind of a shade can be fashioned.

The smartest shades imported from France are shawllike in effect, and instead of the material being fitted to every rod in the frame, a circular piece of the material, with the center cut out for the chimney, is made to fit the dome shaped wires. It then falls in graceful folds, the weight of the fringe holding it down in place.

The shawl effects in soft pinks, light blues, deep reds or vivid orange shades of silk are stunning for use on a dining room table or in a parlor or hall. The drapery, to give variety, may be cut square or with deep points, four or five, according to the size of the frames, or in narrow scallops that give breadth to the shade. A gimp is being much used this year; a narrow piece of it in gilt or silver at the bottom makes a pretty finish to cover the heading of the fringe. For these shades narrow bead fringe can be bought by the yard instead of on hoops.

While the trimming at the bottom is quite simple, the upper or chimney effect is often elaborate on some of the smartest shades, being fashioned into the appearance of a crown, either elaborately shirred or smocked.

Where this top is joined to the lower portion a board piece of gimp or a ribbon is used to cover the stitches and to lend a finished appearance to the shade.

Some of these shades are decorated with hand painted designs, copied after Louis XIV, XV and XVI designs, while others are ornamented with hand made ribbon flowers, such as roses, forget-me-knots, poinsettias in festoons, or even miniature sunflowers, similarly applied, that are decidedly effective. The top of such a shade is naturally simple, to give all prominence to the lower portion, so only a fluted or accordian pleated ruffle is used. The fringe, when put on in scallops, is either long or very short, according to the size of the candlestick.

To make a candle shade, first bind the wire frame top and bottom with a narrow strip of soft cotton cloth, to give something to sew to. Then for the lining, take a strip the depth of the frame, pin it to the bottom, then gore it at the ribs by pinning to fit. Remove the silk and sew up the gores, trim and press the seams open. Then sew into place on the frame, turning the seams toward the outside of the frame so that when covered they will not show. Next sew the material straight about the lower edge or pleat it plainly in fine pleats if more fullness is desired. Draw the material up to the top of the frame, and first fasten with pins if the silk or cretonne is pleated, so as to get the folds exact. Or, in the case of shirring the silk, should first be gathered, then the fullness placed before the final sewing.

If the shades are made in scallops each piece, both the lining and outside, must be fitted in place.

THE SEA.

Capt. Dugge of the Hamburg-American liner Prinz Oscar stood by the rail as his handsome boat neared Gibraltar, says the Los Angeles Times.

The day was fine, the sea was blue and sparkling, and a pure, cool wind was blowing.

"How beautiful the sea is," said Capt. Dugge. "Did you ever witness the wonder of those who see the sea for the first time?

"Once I saw two peasants in such circumstances. They gazed at the boundless spread of rolling blue water with awed eyes. Then one said:

"'Amazing! Who would have thought there could be so much water as that?'

"'Yes,' said the other. 'And remember, Fritz, you only see what is on top!'"

Lace Making Latest Craze Among Women

A hundred and fifty dollar Irish crochet opera coat for $30 is possible for the woman clever at lace making and with time enough on her hands to construct it. Society women have taken up the craze and hand made evening wraps will be in evidence during the social season, and surely there is more to recommend them than most of the fancy work women indulge in, for a wrap of this sort will take rank with the family jewels and other heirlooms of value, for it will last for years and can be handed down from one generation to another, the same as any other rare old laces.

In order to show at a glance that the work is done by hand no two sides of the wrap are alike. For instance, the motifs, either medallions or leaves, are used only in one position on the wrap, the opposite side being wholly different. This gives the wrap an individuality that few such garments possess. This determination on the part of the women constructing them to have no two sides alike has resulted in their sending abroad for motifs in order to insure something quite new and different. The latter feature, however, increases the price of the garment perceptibly, but if a woman is content to use two or three of the same devices on one coat a handsome garment may be made at home for a really small sum.

The work is not exceedingly tedious and any amateur can do it, for it consists of carefully placing the Irish crochet braid on designs stamped on cambric and then sewing them in accurate positions. The only part that is difficult is filling the centers with thread. For sometimes the medallions are so formed that a cobweb-like stitch is necessary to complete them, but most of the leaves and flowers are given in a desirable finish by a few straight threads applied in the simplest kind of fashion.

Those who do not want to buy the figures already made, get the Irish braid by the bolt and fill it in the patterns, and in this way while the work takes longer, a more original cloak may be secured. The essential thing in making such a garment is to have the various designs of the sides and backs as different as is possible and still have them fit together in harmony. For instance, where a coat is made up of floral patterns, all the medallions and figures used should be flower-like, while if it is a series of scrolls or geometric devices, the connecting lines should be curves, or squares to correspond.

Floral figures will be most in vogue this season, and of these the daisy, rose, chrysanthemum, lily-of-the-valley, with ivy, oak, maple and conventionalized leaves, will be favorites.

For warmth these evening wraps have silk lining, either with or without wadding, according to the weather. The woman, who goes out much will find that to follow the fashion this year of having a lining to match each frock, will be most satisfactory and will make it look entirely different each time it is put over a new color, for in this way with a blue, pink, white, and yellow or lavender silk slip beneath, the Irish crochet work will not grow monotonous.

Transplanting Palms and Rubber Plants for the House in Winter

In transplanting palms and rubber plants for the fall season when they will be kept indoors, the question of what kind of a vessel to place them in always has to be decided, and it is a difficult thing for the inexperienced woman to work out, for she wants to get a bowl or jar in which the plants will thrive, and at the same time one that will be an ornament to a room.

According to a prominent florist, the best kind of a vessel for a palm or rubber plant is made of terra cotta. It is porous and holds the moisture longer than a wooden, glazed porcelain or metal bowl or tub, and for this reason the plants thrive as they do not in any other kind of a pot.

"While not as artistic as a porcelain jardiniere, or a metal tub," he says, "if painted a dark green or any shade that matches the surroundings, these terra cotta vessels may be made quite attractive, and now that many of them are covered with quaint Japanese dragons, or bold designs of flowers, they are more effective than a plain Delft bowl, or even some of the antique brass jars.

"Tubs of this earthen ware have another advantage besides being porous, for there are holes in the bottom through which the water may drain and run into a saucerlike vessel on which the jars rest. This simple drainage keeps the water from backing up in the bottom of the vessel and rotting the roots, a condition that is almost bound to occur when the palms and rubber plants are put in a metal, porcelain or even wooden tub, in which there are no holes to carry the surplus water off. Though few women realize it, the lack of drainage in vessels is what ruins so many otherwise hardy plants.

"Next to the terra cotta tubs, I believe that wooden ones are the best for these foreign plants, provided there are holes through which the water may run out after it has worked itself through the dirt surrounding the roots and given the nourishment they require.

"As to the actual potting, the greatest care should be taken in changing a palm or rubber plant from one vessel to another. Be sure not to disturb the roots and the earth around them any more than is absolutely necessary, for the transplanting always retards the growth for a few weeks even when done by experts. The loose dirt, such as drops off easily, may be removed before putting the roots into the newly prepared pot.

"A tub made to receive a palm, or rubber plant, for the winter, should have plenty of rich black loam to surround the roots and a well made drain in the bottom. This irrigation must be put in first and can be easily managed once a woman knows how. It is built of broken piece of flower pots, or glass bottles or mugs, arranged around the holes in the bottom so that the round portions cover the holes, forming a sort of tent, and keep the dirt from clogging them and preventing the water from running off.

"With the drainage complete the moist dirt may be filled in for the plants. Be sure there is plenty of room for the roots to expand and grow, and have enough dirt in the vessel to hold them securely and give nourishment, for it is essential that a palm or rubber plant be kept in a good position in a tub, and also that the earth around it be in such a condition that the roots will be properly nourished.

"As to watering these plants, I might say that too much water cannot be given them, for they drink enormous quantities, and occasionally if in a warm room two or three drinks in twenty-four hours is not too much to promote healthy growth.

"Most of the water should be poured around the roots, but occasionally the leaves must be sprayed or wiped off with a damp cloth, for they have pores that collect the dust and these need to be washed out so the plants can breathe, and incidentally to keep them from looking yellow and getting in a bad condition. The temperature of the water used on these plants should always be about the same, neither lukewarm nor excessively cold, for icy water is not good.

"As most rubber plants and palms are kept in living rooms the temperature varies from 60 to 80 or 85 degs., though I think anything below 70 is best for them. The regular temperature, even if over 80 degs. Fahrenheit, does not do the plants as much harm as putting them in a draught where they are struck by blasts of frigid air, for then they are chilled and that is harmful to their growth."

Both Black and Tan Fabrics are Equally Smart for the Small Girls' Winter Coat

TAN IS GREATLY IN FAVOR ~ ~ THERE IS CHARM IN THE BLACK COAT FOR A WEE GIRL. ~ THERE IS A TENDENCY TO EMPLOY BLACK TRIMMINGS

There is a charming simplicity about children's coats this season which coupled with the elegance of materials and trimmings, makes for the smartest models seen in many a day in this department of small folks' wear. There is a strong preference for the loose models which hang in graceful lines from shoulders to hem, and these will be found to be in the majority in the lines of the best houses. In fact, some lines afford nothing else when it comes to making a selection, but the variety of models is so wide and the trimming effects so novel that one does not feel the presence of any monotony. Quite the contrary.

Plain clothes are employed in these little garments for dressy wear, the plaids and checks, stripes and novelty mixtures being reserved for those more serviceable wool-tex models doomed for school and general every day wear.

In colors, brown, tan and gray lead with black equally in favor. Many mothers argue that black is too old for the small maid, but, nevertheless, it cannot be denied that there is a certain charm in the black coat of beautiful lustrous cloth, with its roll collar, revers and wide cuffs of baby lamb worn with an oyster white pony hat rimmed with white satin ribbons and pink roses perched on the curly golden locks of a baby of four.

In the colored garments, especially those of lighter shades, the tendency to employ dark trimmings is very strong. One fawn colored cloth hanging loose from the shoulders and having a stitched box plait either side of the center, front and back, is double breasted and fastened with black silk cord ornaments and frogs, three in number. There is a roll-over velvet collar in the same shade as the cloth and high velvet cuffs stiffened with a light weight haircloth.

Another coat model brought out this season is somewhat of a revival of other days, in that it has straight, loose fitting waist to which is attached a full plaited skirt. There is a front panel which extends around the shoulders in yoke form, simulating a sailor collar, and the sleeves are high cuff affairs trimmed with huge velvet covered buttons and velvet plaitings, as is the front panel. The velvet is a rich wood brown shade and the cloth a grayish brown in the new shade known as taupe. This is a very becoming model, especially to the child who is not too slender, and affords a new and valuable suggestion for the modelling of the coat at home.

Favorite Furs in the Popular Bolero.

FROM THE ILLUSTRATED SPORTING & DRAMATIC NEWS

Still the bolero finds undivided sway among fashionable women, but principally in furs, and some of the smartest of the season's wraps are shown in this model. Mink, Persian lamb, ermine and Russian sable are all made up in this style of wrap, and are very chic. Both the loose bolero and the one fitted at the waist are seen, and both the full, loose, three-quarter sleeve, as well as the tight coat sleeve, are worn. Fancy buttons and gold galoon trim the Persian lamb coats, and occasionally braid ornaments the mink garments.

Tasty Dishes for Home Cooks

By EMMA PADDOCK TELFORD

Potatoes Au Gratin.

Dear Mrs. Telford:—Will you be so kind as to give a recipe in your columns for potatoes au gratin, also a recipe for making tartar sauce and Hollandaise sauce? With many thanks, MRS. S.

Potatoes au gratin may be made of cold boiled potatoes diced or fresh boiled and mashed potatoes. For the former make a good cream sauce, using two tablespoonfuls each butter and flour and two cupfuls hot milk. Season with salt and pepper, add the potatoes, spread smoothly in a buttered baking dish and cover the top with finely grated crumbs, grated cheese and dots of butter. Put in a hot oven, brown and serve in the dish in which it is baked.

For mashed potatoes au gratin wash and boil with the skins on. Peel and mash, seasoning with salt, pepper and butter. Spread a layer of the potato in a buttered baking dish, sprinkle with grated Parmesan cheese, then another layer of potato and more cheese, with cheese and butter at the top. Sprinkle with fine grated and buttered crumbs in a hot oven and serve.

Sauce Tartare.

This is simply a good mayonnaise to which capers, pickles, olives, parsley, etc., are added to make a pleasing acid sauce for fish, tongue, broiled chicken, crabs, etc.

To make it, mix together in a small bowl one saltspoonful salt, one-half saltspoonful paprika, or white pepper, and one teaspoonful each mustard and sugar; and in readiness the yolks of two eggs and a half or whole cup of olive oil that has been chilled on the ice. Break the egg yolks into the mixed condiments and begin beating with a fork or wooden spoon; then commence adding the oil, very slowly at first, beating with a fork or Dover egg beater. As the yolks begin to thicken, the oil may be added more rapidly, and now the Dover beater is the thing to use. Keep on adding oil until the mixture is so stiff that the beater refuses to turn, then thin with lemon juice or vinegar or half and half. It will require from three to four tablespoonfuls, according to taste. A mixture of tarragon vinegar with the other vinegar or lemon juice is especially appetizing. When the proper consistency, add at the last, still beating, a few drops onion juice, one tablespoonful each chopped olives, cucumber pickles and parsley; also if desired an equal amount of capers or nasturtium seeds. A few of the nasturtium leaves chopped fine are also esteemed by many. This sauce will keep for days in a cold place. Before making it, see that the bowl and egg beater are chilled, as well as the ingredients.

Hollandaise Sauce.

Put a half cup butter in a bowl and rub to a cream. Add the yolks of three eggs, putting them in one at a time, and mixing each thoroughly before adding the next. Season with the juice of half a lemon, a teaspoonful salt and a dash of cayenne. Slowly add one cup boiling water, and set the bowl containing the sauce within a larger pan of hot water over the fire. Now with an egg beater beat the liquid sauce until the consistency of thick cream. Do not let it boil. After taking from the fire continue the beating a few moments longer before serving.

Rye Bread Recipe.

Dear Mrs. Telford:—Will you kindly send me by mail a recipe for rye bread. Thanking you in advance, I am yours truly, F. L.

Scald one cup milk and add to it one cup boiling water. Cool to lukewarm, yeast dissolved in two tablespoonfuls cold water. Add a half teaspoonful salt, then rye flour to make a rather stiff batter. Beat thoroughly, cover, and set out of a draught for three hours. Now add more rye flour until you have a dough stiff enough to knead. Knead and pound for ten minutes, shape into loaves and put into greased pans. Cover and let the bread rise until very light—this will take about an hour and a half—brush over with milk or melted butter, and bake in a moderate oven for one hour.

Steamed Rye and Indian Bread.

Mix together two cups cornmeal and one cup rye. Add one-half cup molasses, two and a half cups sweet milk, a teaspoonful soda, and a half teaspoonful salt. Mix thoroughly, turn into a greased tin pail or mould, set in a kettle of boiling water and steam steadily four hours.

Rarebit Without Ale.

Dear Mrs. Telford:—Would you please send me through your paper the recipe for Welsh rarebit to be made without ale, and oblige. MISS ALICE M.

The Boston Welsh rarebit is made without liquor of any sort and is an excellent rule for an amateur to follow, as there is absolutely no danger of its stringing. Cut into small pieces one pound mild American cheese. Put into the chafing dish blazer or saucepan with two levels tablespoonfuls butter. Soften, stirring and mashing the cheese all the time over the blaze, adding as it softens a half tablespoonful salt, a saltspoonful mustard and red pepper to taste. When well mixed, add one-half cup cream and stir until light and creamy. Then add two eggs beaten light, stir hard just a moment, put on a cover and let the rarebit rest a few seconds over the heat. Extinguish the flame or push back on the range, let it stand a moment without stirring, then spread on slices of toast dipped in hot salted water or milk to just moisten. Serve very hot. This rarebit is also good spread on soda crackers crisped in the oven.

Stuffed Green and Red Peppers.

Dear Mrs. Telford:

Would you kindly, through your paper, give recipe for stuffing green peppers and keeping for winter use; also for making pickles of cucumbers, onions, cauliflower, etc.? By so doing you will greatly oblige. MRS. Y—.

Pepper Mangoes and Other Pickles.

In the putting up of home made pickles this month the pepper plays first fiddle. Old-fashioned mangoes are especially popular, and mangoes made from the firm, green, bull nosed peppers are among the best. The mild Spanish peppers, while delightful served as a vegetable or salad, are not suitable for pickles. The bull nosed pepper is a darker green and much stronger in flavor. Soak them for twenty-four hours in a brine not too strong. Cut a slit in one side or remove one end, saving it to serve as cover. Scrape out the pepper seeds. Chop enough fine white cabbage to fill the cavities (it is impossible to give the amount) and use this alone or in combination with chopped celery, green tomatoes or green cucumbers, making three-quarters cabbage, the rest of what you will. Sprinkle this filling with salt and let it stand three hours. Drain, pressing out the moisture. To each pint of the chopped vegetable allow one small onion, half a teaspoonful whole mustard seed, three or four nasturtium seeds or capers with cloves, cinnamon, allspice, ginger, pepper, salt and celery seed to season. Moisten with two or three tablespoonfuls olive oil and fill the peppers with this paste. Fit in the pieces that were removed and tie firmly with white twine. Place the peppers in a preserving kettle, cover with cold vinegar and let them stand over night. The next morning pour off the vinegar, reheat and again turn over the peppers. Cover and set in a cool place and in a month they will be ready for eating. For those who prefer a sweet pickle filling, sugar is added to the vinegar when scalded. A pretty fancy is to put into each pepper along with the regular filling a tiny cucumber, a wee whole onion, a tiny string bean and a few green grapes.

Red Pepper Sweet Pickles.

Soak the peppers in boiling water about twenty minutes then lay in cold brine over night to draw out the crude juices of the vegetable. Cut in thin slices, discarding all the seeds and stringy pulp, then make into a sweet pickle precisely as pears, peaches and apples are pickled. A standard formula for this is three pounds sugar, a pint cider vinegar, two teaspoonfuls each whole cloves, allspice and cinnamon. Scald all together and cook until the pepper is tender. Remove the peppers and cook the syrup enough longer to thicken slightly, then pour over the sliced pickle. This is an excellent relish to serve with roast meats.

Mixed Pickles.

Slice a quart of large green cucumbers and a quart of green tomatoes into cubes, four large green peppers into coarse bits, and one large cauliflower into tiny flowerets. Add a quart of little cucumbers, not more than two inches in length, and a quart of white button onions, then cover with a weak brine, allowing about a cup of salt to a gallon of water. Let them stand twenty-four hours, then put into a porcelain lined kettle and bring to a scald in the same brine. Drain thoroughly, rinse in cold water to free from salt, and return to the same kettle. Make a paste of six tablespoonfuls ground mustard, one tablespoonful tumeric, a cup each sugar and flour, two quarts good cider vinegar. First mix the ingredients with a little of the vinegar, they add the remainder. Put the spiced vinegar in the kettle with the pickles, stir until the whole mixture scalds and thickens, then seal in glass jars or wide mouthed bottles. While this is good within a day or two, it is better in the course of a few weeks. It must be borne in mind that this pickle, or any other containing green peppers, must be thoroughly cooked before canning. A half-cooked pepper will burst any jar.

English Chow Chow.

Allow to two large heads cabbage shaved or chopped, three cauliflowers broken into flowerets, thirty cucumbers sliced, one-quarter peck small white onions, one pint grated horseradish, one-half pound white mustard seed, one ounce celery seed, one-half cup ground pepper, and the same amount cinnamon and tumeric powder. Pack all in large stone jar over night, sprinkling a large cup salt between the layers. In the morning pour off the brine and soak in vinegar and water for a day or two. Strain again and mix the spice with three pounds of sugar and six quarts vinegar. Scald, then pour over the pickle, while scalding hot. Repeat this process two more mornings, then when quite cold add two boxes French mustard mixed with one pint good olive oil.

THE RUSH MESSAGE.

Modern Society: A well dressed young man approached the desk in a telegraph branch office and wrote a message. Laying the pen down, he handed the message to the girl and said: "You can rush this for me, can't you?"

"Yes, indeed," replied the girl.

"It's very important!" he went on. "I must have it rushed."

"It shall go right through."

"All right," he said, turning away. "Be sure and rush it now."

When he was gone the girl showed the message to another operator standing near. "Look what is to be rushed," she said.

The message read: "Henry still loves his little wife and wishes she could be with him."

SHOWER OF PENNIES.

London street and Norfolk square, Paddington, are agitated over the doings of a mysterious person—whether man or woman is not known—who every morning scatters a shower of pennies on the roadway, says the London Evening Standard.

Shopboys and school children, naturally, are delighted. Small bullets, or swan shot, three eights of an inch in diameter and of quite a respectable weight, have been mixed with the money. A peculiarity of the mystery is that each coin bears a strange indentation, as though it had been hit by a trigger. All the efforts made to discover the person have failed.

POWHATAN'S OAK.

Jamestown Magazine: One of the most notable trees in America is a massive old live oak, four to five feet in diameter, with a spread of more than seventy feet. This monarch of the Jamestown exposition is supposed to be nearly 1,000 years old. It was a large tree when the first settlement of Jamestown was made, 300 years ago, and was a favorite resting place of the Indians of Chief Powhatan's powerful tribe. According to authentic reports Indian war talks were made under the shade of this old tree in the early days when the first whites settled in America and the Indians began the long, hopeless struggle for their homes and hunting grounds.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

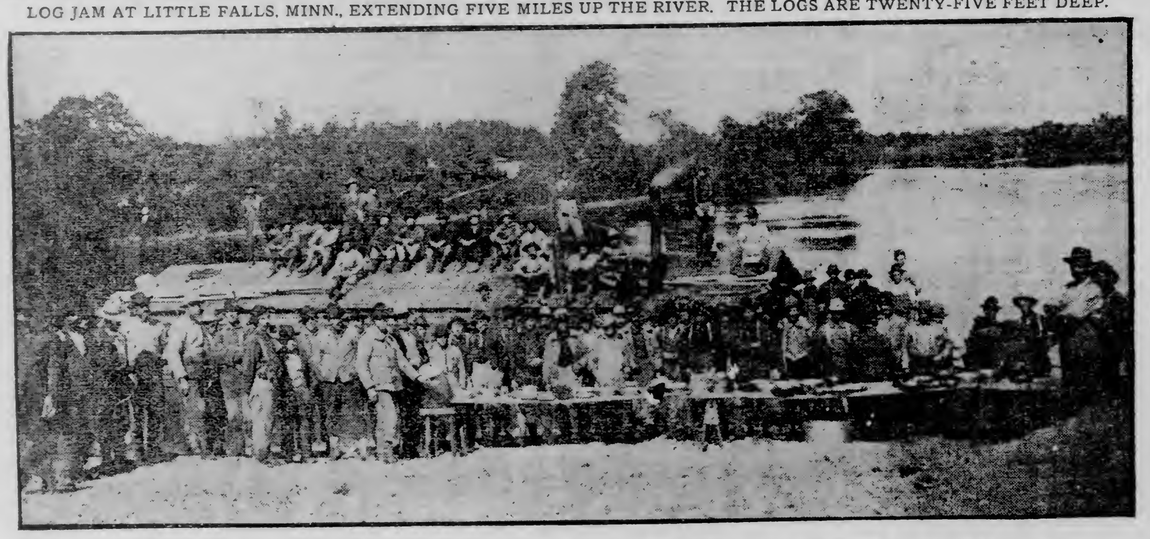

LOG DRIVING ON THE MISSISSIPPI RIVER

CREW OF RIVER DRIVERS AT WORK BELOW THE DAM AT LITTLE FALLS, MINN.

LOG JAM AT LITTLE FALLS, MINN., EXTENDING FIVE MILES UP THE RIVER. THE LOGS ARE TWENTY-FIVE FEET DEEP.

HOUSEBOAT OR "WANAGAN," IN REAR OF CREW WHO ARE WAITING FOR RATIONS TO BE DEALT OUT.

Outside of a few people who reside along the course of the Mississippi river, but few realize the commercial importance of the upper portion of this river to the Central part of the Northwest country. The vact amount of logs that are floated down this steadily flowing muddy stream, would surprise anyone not acquainted with the facts. This portion is operated by a boom company, known as the Mississippi & Rum River Boom Co., which handles practically all the logs between Brainerd and Minneapolis, a distance of 200 miles by the river. For several years past the timber drove has averaged approximately 450,000,000 feet per season. The boom company employs from 300 to 350 men upon an average to make these drives, which lasts from the first break up in spring until it freezes again in the late fall. The expense of these drives is met by the owners of the timber, who pay a boomage sufficient to meet all expenses of the drive, and assortment of logs, together with an annual dividend upon the investment.

The company has provided for its men while on the drive houseboats to eat and sleep in. There are usually three of these boats together and they are known as the "wanagan." There are also three sets of these, as they cannot be gotten over the dams, and are played between the water falls and are taken up stream when the drive commences and follow the drive down to the falls below them. The other boats in waiting below the falls are occupied and continue to follow the drive down stream. The sleeping apartments are bunks, one over the other, along the sides of the boats, which are 75 feet long, and are filled with fresh straw, and the men are given blankets in which to roll up at night. Another boat is used as a dining room and cook house, in which the cook and foreman have their sleeping apartments. While the weather is good they construct table out on the bank of the river and can eat outside, which is more plensant in warm weather. While the days are long in the early party of the season the men eat four meals a day, as they have to be out at daybreak.

At night a fire is built on the river bank, and seats built around on which the men sit and exchange yarns of hair-breadth escapes they may have had, or, if they are near a town they may be strolling about town in bunches, after a hard day's work. These river drivers are usually dressed in a kind of uniform suit consisting of red shirt and red trousers, with high top laced boots with spikes in the soles to keep them from slipping from the logs. They become quite expert at their work, as it takes a man of experience who is able to handle himself while on top of a rolling log in the water, and might well be called skilled laborers. They are paid high wages, as it takes a man of strong consstitution to stand in water for days at a time. Jams sometimes occur when dynamite has to be used to loosen them up, but a jam has to be pretty tight when the men are unable to start it with their cant hooks. A clear head and a quick foot are necessary at all times, as a misstep may cause the victim to slip between the logs may close up before he is able to get his head above the water again.

To get these logs over the dams so there will not be a jam, at each dam a log sluice is built. There sluices are arranged so as to give the water an easier grade, logs going gradually and not piling up as they would if allowed to go over the dam. The smaller streams tributary to the Mississippi, north of Brainerd are filled with many smaller drives conducted by several logging companies who deliver their logs down as far as the first dam where they are taken in charge by the rear drive, as it is called, for delivery to the mills below the Mississippi river.

Indians were employed in the early days on the drive, and were obliged to camp along the bank of the river, as the houseboats were not then in existence, and many an interesting story some of the old drivers can tell when they were in charge of a drive and had a crew of Indians to handle.

LOG SLUICE AT BRAINERD, MINN., WHERE THE BOOM COMPANY FIRST TAKES CHARGE OF THE LOGS.

JEALOUS GIRL IS CAUGHT IN CRIME

Her Love Rejected by Her Employer, She Sought Revenge.

Milwaukee, Nov. 10.—The rejected love of Lulu Ruscha, a stenographer in the office of Ferry & Clas, for Frank Bader, the superintendent of the concern, was the explanation, it is now said for the arrest of the girl for opening Bader's mail. It was only after the girl escaped the police for nearly two years that they caught her by sending an imitation infernal machine through the mail.

When the girl opened this package there was an explosion that brought to the scene the detective who was disguised as a carpenter.

Back of the arrest there is a strange story of a girl's method of securing revenge, as she thought, and of bringing back to her the love of the man she lost. This is the story given out by the police of the efforts they made to detect her. It is intimated she may not have been the girl at fault, in reality, and that she was acting for another. This will be her defense, that it was her friend who loved Bader and that she was the one to pull out the chestnuts for the other.

Whether she or another is the conspirator it is certain that Bader was alienated from all his friends except Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Andrews, Mr. Andrews being the sporting editor of the Evening Wisconsin for a dozen years past.

When Bader jilted his sweetheart a series of anonymous letters, the police say, began to bombard his friends. He was charged with all sorts of offenses against the social code. But the Andrews, husband and wife, stood by their friend, and became the objects of persecution. The husband received letters saying that his wife had been seen with Bader, giving the place, dates, and the like. Mrs. Andrews was told that when her husband was supposed to be in other towns following baseball teams he was with other women. Husband and wife were all but estranged.

When one morning Andrews found his house spattered with ink, he called in the police, that being the German token that a disreputable woman was the inmate. The Andrews were reconciled later and entered into a plan to catch the letter writer.

Finally the police became certain that Miss Ruscha was not ignorant of the source of the letters. They framed a letter to Bader telling him to expect a present the next morning. The present was the minature infernal machine.

ATTACKED BY AN EAGLE.

Anoka Letter Carrier Has Peculiar Encounter With Bird.

Anoka, Minn., Nov. 10.—While Mail Carrier Forest Hunter was returning home from his day's work he was suddenly atacked by a large eagle near Cook creek. He was riding through some thick underbrush when he heard a noise that sounded something like a skyrocket going through the air, and on looking out he saw the bird coming towards him. He thought at first it was a seagull, until it flew into the open door of his rig. It first began to bite and pick his feet and then it flew towards his face. He managed to knock it out of the rig, and he luckily had his rifle with him, so that he shot it before it flew away.

The bird measured nearly five feet from tip to tip of his wings, and his claws were about two inches long.

It is the first time an eagle has been seen in this part of the country, and it would probably have done a great deal of damage if it had not been shot.

BRAINERD ELECTIONS.

Results of the Contests for Crow Wing County Officers.

Brainerd, Minn., Nov. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The following are the Crow Wing officers elected at the general election: Treasurer, S. R. Adair; auditor, J. F. Smart; register of deeds, A. G. Tromald, clerk of the courts, W. A. M. Johnston; probate judge, T. J. Sanborn; sheriff, Ole Erickson; county attorney, J. H. Warner; superintendent of schools, J. A. Wilson; coroner, T. W. Gibson. With the exception of sheriff all are Republicans.

The Republicans elected the mayor in a three cornered fight. The Socialists elected two aldermen, and one Independent, one Democrat, and six Republicans were elected. Municipal judge, special judge and city treasurer are Republican.

The entire Republican legislative and judicial tickets were elected, and Lindberg for congress has 500 majority in the county.

PLAYS and PLAYERS of the WEEK

BIJOU. REFINED VAUDEVILLE. | THE LYCEUM DRAMA. | METROPOLITAN. BURLESQUE.

AT THE LYCEUM

"The Vanderbilt Cup" Monday and Rose Melville in "Sis Hopkins" Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday With Matinee Wednesday.

With the advent of the first real automobile play that has ever been given upon a stage, comes another interesting chapter in stage history, and playgoers of this city will be given an opportunity to witness what is claimed to be the most perfect specimen of up-to-date stagecraft in "The Vanderbilt Cup," which comes to the Lyceum Monday.

Unlike many dramas in which the alluring motor car is introduced as an incident, this "gasoline play" is constructed wholly about the auto, and uses as the main theme the great annual Vanderbilt Cup race, which takes place on Long Island, and originated with W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr.

From first to last it is "automobile," and there is never a moment when raillery is not directed to this latest craze of the American public. Even the musical numbers are written with the dash and go that seems inseparable from the odor of gasoline. "The Little Chauffeur," "Somewhere in the World," "The Light That Lies in Girlish Eyes," the most catchy songs in the play, are all "Motor" ditles.

The story of the play is briefly this: Curt Willets, a millionaire, decides that he will make over to his niece, Dorothy Willets, a portion of his fortune, and forthwith sends his lawyer to the country to escort her to New York, where she may acquire "tone." Dorothy is partly in love with Dexter Joyce, a young wine agent, who arrives at her home when Banting, the lawyer, does, and the three come to the city together, and proceed at once to the Marjorie Wellington hotel, a woman's hotel, and the scene of some screamingly funny situations. There Clarinda Larkspur, a very clever young woman, who has sued old Willets for breach of promise, and lost, discovers that he has a car entered in the Vanderbilt Cup race, that takes place on the morrow. She sets about to win the affections of his French chauffeur, Gaspard. The Hon. John Boxwood, a thinly veiled carlcature of a figure of national importance, arrives at the hotel with his religiously inclined son, Arthur, who conducts a Bible class in his spare minutes. Old Willets endeavors to effect a marriage between Dorothy and Arthur. After some complications, the party leaves for Mineola, Long Island, where the races are to take place at daybreak. The second act reveals the veranda of the Garden City hotel, where Dorothy and Dexter learn of the plot against her uncle's car in the race, and she persuades Dexter to drive it himself, and everything is adjusted beautifully by the time the race is run, and the party transferred to the Long Island Yacht club.

The "big" feature is, of course, Barney Oldfield's wonderful invention of an actual automobile race on a stage, in which two 90-horse power racing cars are driven across the stage to the music of smashing exhausts, flashes of fire, and all the dust and noise and turbulence which marks a big race. Persons who have seen the race declare it to be the best thing that has ever been seen in a theater, and as one admirer puts it: "It is a case of back to the scrap heap with chariot races, horses and locomotives." The automobile is King, and in "The Vanderbilt Cup," this newest triumph of civilization is at the apex of its power.

"SIS HOPKINS."

Three Nights and Matinee at the Lyceum Next Week.

Human heart interest and exquisite sentiment of the kind which appeals to one's sympathies are the mainsprings of "Sis Hopkins," that delightful play of Indiana country life which Miss Rose Melville, the creator of that quaint character "Sis" has made famous the length and breadth of the land. There is much more than mere sentiment in the play; it is full to overflowing of a delightful comedy and humor most beautifully shaded with pathos which softens the high lights of the wit of the play. There is no play on the stage today a greater success, a success which is free from the claptrap of artificiality, a success which is solid and lasting. Miss Melville's portrayal of the odd little country girl who is thrown into the midst of fashionable seminary society clad in her home-made, mother-made dress, has become a classic, and the gentle rebuke which she administers to the girls who sneer at her unfashionably made dress awakens sympathetic response in the hearts of her hearers. After listening to the whispered comments on her appearance, this homesick, lonely little girl, draws herself up and with simple dignity says: "My Ma made this dress for me and what is good enough for her to make is good enough for me to wear." This season, J. R. Sterling, Miss Melville's manager has strengthened the cast and given the play an entirely new production. It is coming to the Lyceum for three nights and Wednesday matinee, beginning Tuesday, Nov. 13.

BYRNE-KENYOR FOUR, TO BE SEEN AT BIJOU NEXT WEEK.

LYCEUM ATTRACTIONS.

Some of the Good Things to be Here Soon.

Walker Whiteside and a splendid company in his newest play "Magic Melody" is the Thanksgiving day attraction at the Lyceum for matinee and night. Mr. Whiteside's appearances in Duluth are always looked forward to and he will bring a thoroughly capable company with him. Reservations for Thanksgiving day matinee and night can now be made at the Lyceum box office. Mr. Whiteside has appeared the past two years on holidays only at Duluth and he holds the record of having sold every seat at each performance at Duluth for the past few engagements.

The famous Besse's band, which is making a tour of the world and appeared at the New York hippodrome last night, is coming to the Lyceum theater for two nights, at popular prices. As this is the first big band to visit Duluth for over a year it will no doubt receive a large patronage.

Nell Burgess in his old play, "The County Fair," is coming to the Lyceum, Nov. 27.

Among the December attractions at the Lyceum are Jefferson De Angeles, Anton Hekking, "Dolly Varden," Crane and Jeffries, Swedish Dancers, "Arizona," Otis Skinner, and Adelaide Thurston.

SHEPARD'S MOVING PICTURES.

Lyceum—Shepard's moving pictures at the Lyceum Sunday will present "The Life of an American Cowboy," and it is said to be a dramatic study of unusual interest. "The Burglar and the Vapor Bath," will also be given.

"BESSES O' TH' BARN" BAND

The famous Royal Besses o' the' Barn band will shortly pay Duluth a visit. Since their arrival in this country at the beginning of August, they have had a succession of successes. Everywhere they have upheld their reputation of the champion brass band of England. At the command performance at Windsor Castle, King Edward said: "I am delighted to see you and to hear you play so magnificently." The criticisms in this country certainly confirm there sentiments. The band is composed of workmen from the Lancashire Mills, and was organized over 150 years ago. Thousands of Englishmen in America are from the Lancashire district, and already several Instances have occurred where they have travelled upwards of a hundred miles to hear once again the band that was the byword of their boyhood days. The "Besses" is under the baton of Alexander Owen, the veteran brass band conductor, whose teaching during the past twenty-two years has brought them to their present standard of excellence.

SCENE FROM "THE VANDERBILT CUP," AT LYCEUM, MONDAY EVENING.

ANTON HEKKING.

It is now two years since Anton Hekking, the great German cellist, has played in America, yet the "Hekking" interest among musicians, professional and amateur, has not waned. Whenever comparisons are made regarding Cellists one always comes back to Hekking. The size and beauty of his tone, the precision of his fingering, the marvellous bowing, all combine to make him the master to whom all gladly make obeisance. Coupled with this extraordinary musical equipment is a most charming personality which has not failed to make itself felt in his playing. In this are heard not only the result of natural adaptability and years of arduous study, but as well the very heart of the man himself. The frank open, boyish nature of the man speaks in every tone. From the Adagio to the Conbrio movements, the individuality of the man is lost in the desire to give an honest interpretation of the thought which the composer hoped to bring out and one hears not Hekking, but a faithful rendition of a work, rendered by one who sees in himself only the medium by which the composer's thought is to be translated to his audience. In other words, Hekking's art is traditional and sure, not stiff or academic, but pure and reliable, at once a source of exquisite satisfaction to the exacting musician and an infallible guide for the student or casual listener. He will play in Duluth at the Lyceum, Dec. 6.

AT THE BIJOU

Unusually Fine Bill Next Week Headed by the Poiriers in Their Great Gymnastic Act---Sketch Artists, Singers and Gymnasts on the Bill.

Bijou patrons will, next week, instance one of the most expensive and best vaudeville programs seen for many months. The numerous acts that have been booked to appear are all recognized as among the greatest features in the vaudeville enterprise.

The Three Poiriers, who were billed to appear two weeks ago, as one of the principal features, but who, owing to a mistake in their route, were sent to Winnipeg instead, will positively appear next week, presenting their sensational gymnastic act. The Poiriers are new to American audiences, having been only brought to this country by the great Barnum & Bailey circus, on its return from France, and they are now making their first American tour in vaudeville.

A big comedy feature will be Gordon, Vidocq and Flinn, a trio of comedy entertainers, who will present the roaring comedy sketch entitled "McKenna's Reception," which is a laugh from start to finish.

Claire Maynard, a prima donna soprano, will appear, introducing melodies both old and new. Miss Maynard has had considerable experience in the operatic field and has a clear and well trained voice.

A pleasing feature will be the Byrne-Kenyon Four. They present a rural playlet, entitled "Uncle Seth's Advice," which is interspersed with music and song.

Georgo A. Armstrong, a monologue comedian and singer, will give a pleasing act of original stories and songs.

Kipp and Kippy will offer a novelty in the juggling line, juggling everything from a table to an egg, and they mix it all up with good comedy stunts.

Jack O'Toole will render "Let Me Write What I Never Dared To Tell," a new song hit, illustrated with colored views.

The moving pictures show "The New Pocher" film and a sensational film entitled "Searching for Adventure."

Matinees given daily at 2:45. Evening performances at 8 and 9:30. Special school children's matinee Saturday afternoon, with regular performances Sunday afternoon and night.

AT THE METROPOLITAN

Campbell's Nightingales to Warble Next Week, Appearing in a "Trip to Jupiter."

Campbell's Nightingales arrive in Duluth early tomorrow morning from St. Paul and will open a week's engagement at the Metropolitan with a matinee in the afternoon. They will also give an evening performance tomorrow.

The organization is said to have been remodeled and refitted throughout this season with the finest scenery, the most elaborate costumes and the prettiest chorus girls on the Empire circuit.

"A Trip to Jupiter," is the title of the vehicle the Nightingales are using to display their talents and it is said to be a tuneful musical comedy in two acts and containing plenty of genuine fun and musical numbers of the whistling kind.

During the past week at the Star theater in St. Paul, they have entertained large audiences and the audiences of the Dewey theater, Minneapolis, having heard of their triumph in the other Twin city, are keen for the show. It does not go there until after its Duluth engagement.

In the company are Gracey and Burnett, Richy W. Craig, the Sisters Bliss, the Yorke Comedy Four, Gertrude Pierce, Pierce Mozelle and Kennett, and a blue ribbon chorus of thirty voices.

The usual matinees will be given Sunday, Tuesday, Thursday (ladies' day) and Saturday.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

George Bernard Shaw in the Play "Caesar and Cleopatra," Makes His Morality the Stalking Horse For His Folly.

New York, Nov. 10.—It is one of those sayings of George Bernard Shaw that the test of a creative writer's authenticity is whether he has his own original system of morality. Or, rather, it is two of his sayings, for he has repeated the idea in the preface to this very play of "Caesar and Cleopatra," which is the piece de resistance of the present week, only substituting the word philosophy for morality. Whether or not this be true, it is certain that Mr. Shaw has invented a new system of fooling, and this is a thing for which we, the people, care a thousand times more than for all the systems of morality and philosophy ever perpetrated. It was the formula of the Shakespearean clown to make his folly the stalking horse of his wisdom. Mr. Shaw makes his morality the stalking horse for his folly.

His airiest nothing he gives a local habitation between a portentous introduction and contentious notes and a philosophic pæme. With a vivacity and apparent conviction worthy of a patent medicine faker, he argues that the true elixir is to be had only in his bottles, and that all others are impostors. "Ceasar and Cleopatra" he proclaims as better than Shakespeare—better as natural history of the human animal, he adds with effective modesty, though not as a drama.

Two salient impressions remain of Forbes Robertson's production at the New Amsterdam. One is a preposterous medley of genres, ranging from farcical burlesque to high tragedy, and the other is of a delight as exhilarating as it is varied, with only occasional intervals of boredom.

What is the explanation of so strange a phenomenon? When Shaw was shown a batch of New York criticisms on one of his plays he descended to the obvious truism that he could have written them better himself. But the fact remains that he has failed as signally as any of his critics to point out the precise line at which he ceases to be the blower of intellectual bubbles and becomes serious.

This much, however, is certain. If Shaw had had the power of self-criticism generally found in complete genius he would have spared us the formless inaptitudes of his play and given us a complete and harmonious fabric. No one objects to shamelessly gagging the lines of "Julius Caesar" or to intellectually playing horse with him. That is the best thing Shaw does. But if he had known how little serious he is as a philosopher and how very serious as an artist in nonsense, there would have been no bloody murder on the stage and no tedious melodramatic plotting. Folly of the most irresponsible is apt stalking horse to wisdom, even to wisdom with a suffusion of the high tragedy of thought. But it is fatal to the drama of human passions.

One element in the play, however, maintains its own integrity, and that is Forbes Robertson's Caesar. I doubt whether any of us, in the first night reports of the performance, had time to realize how lovable, vast and solidly constructed a character he is, and with what tender divination Forbes Robertson portrays him. In moral and spiritual fiber he is closely allied to Hamlet—emphatically it is not the fact that Forbes Robertson embodies him which suggests this. That is one of the multitude of reasons why he is not true to the natural history of the mightiest Julius. Of the energy, will and practical scope of the Colossus of Empire there is no adequate suggestion.—or, rather, the insistence on the minutiae of the man's life dispels all possible illusion of these things. No man, it may be true, is a hero to his valet. He may even be, as Shaw here makes out, the occasion for topical jest. But there is no reason why either history or drama should be limited to the point of view of the servants' quarters.

Where this Caesar shines is in his polished address as man of the world, in his friendly, humorous and intelligent loquacity, his half lover-like sympathy with the girlish Cleopatra, his half fatherly concern for her. His emotion upon hearing of the murder of Pompey is as finely conceived as Hamlet's on seeing the skull of Yorick, and instinct with a deeper humanity. As the scene went off it was marred by juxtaposition with such fooling, but while that negatived the fine and deep skill of the actor, it could not destroy the excellence of the lines in themselves.

It is as the prophet of forbearance, of clemency, that this Caesar rises to his most spiritual heights. The girlish Cleopatra, drunk with her newly discovered power, has procured the murder of her enemy, Pothinus, and in justifying herself to Caesar, says: "If one man in all Alexandria can be found to say that I did wrong, I swear to have myself crucified at the door of the palace by my own slaves." Caesar answers: "If one man in all the world can be found, now or forever, to know that you did wrong, that man will have either to conquer the world, as I have, or be crucified by it." The uproar of the populace besieging the palace increases. "These knockers in the streets are also believers in vengeance and stabbing. You have slain their leader. It is right that they shall slay you. And then, in the name of that right shall I not slay them for murdering their queen, and be slain in my turn by their countrymen as the murderers of their fatherland? Can Rome do less than slay these slayers, too? And so, to the end of history, murder shall breed murder, always in the name of right and honor and peace, until the gods are tired of blood and create a race of men that can understand."

This is, of course, not the spirit of the conqueror of the world, of the slayer of Vercingetorix, of the usurper of the liberties of Rome. It is the spirit of Little England, and G. B. S. is its prophet. The opening allusion to the crucifixion is an anachronism, willful and conscious—an intrusion of the point of view of the dramatist which would ruin the scene, if anything could. But given the premises of the play, and with Forbes Robertson to read the lines, the effect rises very high into the region of the tragedy of thought. It is a thousand pities that Shaw did not respect his own limitations and the limitations of the kind of piece he was writing. Essentially the play is a jeu d'esprit of a very high order—so high that as long as the playwright maintains his equilibrium no reach of the mind or the soul is too high for it, paradox, quip, paradox and anachronism notwithstanding. But this very speech was preceded by the death gurgle of Pothinus and followed by the sight of Ftatateeta—a comic opera nurse, mind you, even in her name—lying at the foot of the idol of Ra, her blood deluging the white stone of its pedestal.

"The Shulamite," the emotional drama of life among the Boers, in which Miss Lena Ashwell is making her first American appearance, also suffers from a lack of technical mastery in the whole and is also largely redeemed by one central character. Its faults are those frequently found in dramatized novels, a lack of compactness, lucidity and climax in the construction, and the absence of any dramatic atmosphere other than is given by the backdrop. Matters move in a devious and irregular course to an inconclusive and insignificant end. It has, however, the virtue, which its like seldom have, of presenting its characters and situations with a certain solid, if crude, reality.

Oom Simeon is an old Boer of the patriarchial cast, who has married a second wife, a beautiful young woman, whom in his Biblical language, quoting the Song of Solomon, he calls the Shulamite. Less soundly conceived he could not fail to have been a mere figure of melodrama, for it is his pleasant habit to beat his young wife with the shambok for trivial offenses, and on finding that, though innocent of actual sin, she loves and is loved by a young Englishman he departs to get his rifle and shoot her. But somehow or other Mr. Askew and Mr. Knobloch manage to make one believe in the old fellow. He has the qualities of his defects in full measure. Though he wields the Mosaic rod and interprets the doctrine of the submission of women with all the force of obstinacy, he manifestly dotes on the physical charms of his Shulamite, adorns her with silk and, granted obedience, lavishes husbandly affection on her.

His conduct in the central situation of the play is as convincing as it is startling. To save herself from the lash—there are dramatic reasons why the blow should not be struck—Deborah the Shulamite falsely declares that she is with child. In the instant the childless old man, filled with the true patriarchial aversion to race suicide, melts into doting tenderness. The reason for the threatening lashing was that she had disobeyed his command not to read a play of Shakespeare. Now he pours out on her not only Shakespeare, but the literature of the world. Then, producing an ancient trunk, he delightedly shows her the baby shoes and baby cap of a dead child by his first wife—secure in the belief that her anticipations as to their second appearance on the stage of life harmonize with his own. The bigness and the rigor of the man, his selfishness and his tenderness, his obstinacy and his weakness, are all there, and the actor who played Oom Simeon scored the one indubitable success of the performance.

Miss Ashwell was less fortunately provided for. The character of Deborah was not lacking in the sympathetic quality and in heroism. Certain of the scenes had a powerful emotional appeal. But, standing as she did throughout in the center of the action, the lack of grip in the play as a whole undermined her best efforts. Her voice, though powerful and not inflexible, has a metallic ring which is little calculated to touch the heart, and her best efforts are gained by repression rather than by utterance. But she had a charming person, distinguished presence and technical authority. It is to be regretted that she did not make her appearance among us in a stronger play and a less gloomy one.

Brooklyn Borough is putting on metropolitan airs, and is to have its own grand opera. Grand opera has held aloof from Brooklyn ever since the old Academy of Music was burned, and even then Brooklyn was treated as a one-night stand as far as high-priced singers were concerned. The Allied Art association, however, is planning to have an opera company of its own, and will produce "The Magic Flute" on Dec. 5. Singers of note will be in the cast, and Curl Figue will be the musical conductor.

"The Blue Moon," with James T. Powers as the star, is shining brightly at the Casino. The play has a plot, and has caught on.

Henry Miller, by arrangement with Lee Shubert, has secured the Lyric theater in New York for matinees for the remainder of the season, beginning with the first week in November, and there, with Mrs. Sarah Cowell Le Moyne, he will make a series of unusual productions. The first half of the season will be devoted to the plays of Robert Browning; the one intended for immediate production being "Pippa Passes," which will be seen first Friday afternoon, Nov. 9. After others of the dramas of the great Victorean poet have been presented, Mr. Miller will produce, with Mrs. Le Moyne, plays by various authors, equal to these in character and purpose. Originally Mr. Miller intended to carry out this program at the Princess theater, but is now prevented doing so by the extraordinary success of "The Great Divide." Upon persuasion of Mr. Miller, Mr. Le Moyne has agreed to play two parts, Ottima and the Monsigneur. When Mr. Miller heard her read the play he was so struck with her characterization of the Monsigneur he overcame her natural disinclination to impersonating a man. There is precedent, however, for her playing the Bishop. It will be brought to mind by followers of theatrical history that Charlotte Cushman was very successful in Cardinal Wolsey in "Henry VIII."

Suit has been entered in the United States circuit court to restrain Oscar Hammerstein from producing Puccini's opera, "La Boheme," at his Manhattan opera house. The redoubtable O. H. threatens to do so, just the same.

Henry Miller has purchased from Louis Evan Shipman the latter's production of his own play, "On Parole." It is now running at the Studebaker theater, Chicago. After being presented in several of the principal cities, the play will be brought to Broadway. At the same time Mr. Miller entereed on a three-year contract with Charlotte Walker, leading woman of "On Parole." Miss Walker subsequently will appear in other productions under Mr. Miller's management. "On Parole" is a Civil war play, in which the great struggle between the states is treated from a Confederate standpoint. Vincent Serrano will continue as leading man.

"Taps," the English version of Beyerlein's play known in German as "Zapfenstreiet," which was produced in this country two years ago by Herbert Kelcey and Effie Shannon, is to be revived within the next few weeks, with John E. Kellard in the principal role.

Blanche Walsh, who has been touring the South in the Fitch play of last season, "A Woman in the Case," will open in a new play from the workshop of this same writer in St. Louis early in December, coming to New York with it early in the new year.

George Broadhurst's new play, "The Man of the Hour," was given its first production last week in Albany. It deals with a young man just out of college who is elected mayor by the bosses of the city. They regard him as a tool in their hands, but he has ideas of his own, and the manner in which he breaks their hold is the plot of the play. It

Mary Mannering's new play for this season is called "Glorious Betsy," by Rida Johnston Young. It deals with the love affair between Elizabeth Patterson of Baltimore and Jerome Bonaparte, brother of Napoleon. The play was given its premiere last week at Niagara Falls.

The story of Robin Hood has been dramatized by Henry Hamilton and William Devereux, and has just been given its premiere in London, with Lewis Waller in the title role. The romance has been voted a huge success. Richard the Lion-Hearted, Prince John, Friar Tuck, Maid Marian and the other well known figures of the tale, are introduced in this new version.

• • •

The dramatized form of Edith Wharton's novel, "The House of Mirth," did not last long in New York. It was withdrawn last week. It was succeeded by Lillian Russell's "Barbara's Millions," which was also a dismal failure, at the Savoy. The third to try for success at this house is Kyrle Bellew in "Brigadier Girard."

Charles Cartwright, the English actor who staged "Merely Mary Ann" for Eleanor Robson, and who originated the character of Kleschna in Mrs. Fiske's play, will be starred this season by the Shuberts, opening in Chicago shortly before the first of the year.

G. Bernard Shaw is writing a new play, and this time it will attack the chancery courts of England. Upon his own confession, it will be broader than a satire; it will be an actual burlesque. To accomplish his task the author will invade the mystic speculations and theoretic evolutions of theosophy. The central character will be a man born a tramp, whose plea is that in accordance with the progression of theosophy's teachings he was due to be born the son of a millionaire. He brings his case into Chancery and there follow wrangilings over the Paracelsian and Rosicrucian speculations and over the doctrines of the successive re-embodiment of the soul in which Shaw's will will wallow joyously at the expense of the wigs and robes of England's dullest court.

Margaret Anglin and Lena Ashwell, assisted by Guy Standing, at two special matinees at the Lyric theater, New York, next week, will revive "Mrs. Dane's Defense," under interesting circumstances. Miss Anglin created the role of Mrs. Dane in America and Miss Ashwell was its first exponent in England. At the first matinee, on Monday, Nov. 12, Miss Ashwell will act Mrs. Dane and Miss Anglin will be seen in the comedy role of Lady Eastney. At the second performance they will exchange parts, Mr. Standing will be the Sir Daniel Carteret.

"A New Mary Mannering" is the matinee girl's tribute to Flora Juliet Bowley, who is now playing the role of Shirley Rossmore in "The Lion and the Mouse" at the Lyceum theater, New York. Miss Bowley, in method, manner and girlish loveliness, recalls the popular star of today when she first made her appearance in New York, oddly enough at the old Lyceum. It was this resemblance that secured for Miss Bowley her first engagement, a minor role, in James K. Hackett's production of "The Crisis."

Ella Wheeler Wilcox, writing from Paris to the New York American, says, "I was treated to one of the most delightful enjoyments of my life in watching Ruth St. Denis, a wholesome and charming American girl, float through her exquisite creation, the beautiful dance poem of Rahda. It is a dance and a hymn, a prayer, a picture and an epic poem, all in one. It was new, it was poetical, it was an appeal to the soul as well as to the eye. The public was electrified by her finished creation when it was produced in America. Now Europe is thrilled with it. It has been tremendously successful in Paris, and Berlin is clamoring for it. King Edward has given his word of approval, and laurels are the fall brow of this slenderfalling on American dancer. Here is another woman who has created a new thing in art, and again in the realm of temperance.

"Let her name go into the Hall of Fame.

"She has elevated her art and given the world a beautiful work."

Everyone familiar with the run on the box office of the Knickerbocker theater, New York, for seats for "The Red Mill," Montgomery & Stone's new hit, will see as much truth as epigram in Fred Stone's answer the other day to an actor just in from the road.

"Where do you spend most of your time now?" asked the actor.

"At the bank!" answered Stone.

Frank Daniels, often called the funniest man on the American stage, was applying his juvenile mind to the intricacies of English grammar at a school in Boston when Henry Bloodgood, Charles Warren and other idols of the Boston Museum were regaling Boston with their celebrated performances. Young Daniels found many opportunities to attend the plays offered at the Museum, and after a while fell to imitating some of the players. The mirth these efforts invariably produced among his chance audiences eventually moulded the boy's ambition. In time he secured a place with a small traveling company.

Contrary to a prevailing impression, Charles Hoyt did not discover Daniels, although it was through that genius the comedian secured his first big opportunity for distinction. Daniels' first professional chance to make people laugh came when he was cast for the leading comic role in "The Electric Doll," a musical hodge podge, presented by Atkinson's Jollities. He was a comedian of fair prominence when the Hoyt & Thomas combination secured him for the leading role in Hoyt's "A Rag Baby," the musical farce that followed "A Bunch of Keys" and "A Parlor Match," from Hoyt's pen. Daniel's creation of "Old Sport" in "A Rag Baby," made him, and established Hoyt.

The comedian next spring will replace his current success, "Sergeant Brue," with "Omar," a new comic opera, having for its hero a droll prototype of the Omar of Khayyam fame.

Rose Stahl, in James Forbes' comedy, "The Chorus Lady," has become so much of a Broadway institution that a manufacturer of liquors has devised a new after-dinner cordial, naming it in honor of the play. Rural visitors to fashionable restaurants are in danger of being shocked to death when they overhear a party of men who have gotten to the demi-tasse and cigar stage call loudly to the waiter, "Say, bring chorus ladies for the crowd."

Belasco recently told some friends that he found himself surrounded by a cordon of discouraging conventions when he came to New York twenty years ago as the unknown young stage manager of the Madison Square theater. It was not until Bronson Howard's play of "Young Mrs. Winthrop" was in rehearsal that he was able to break the ice and take a recognized position on par with his merits. It was after Mr. Howard attended one rehearsal and, seeing the genius which the young stage manager was displaying, turned away with the remark that there was no necessity for his presence while Belasco was in charge, and actually did stay away, in the absolute confidence that his new play could not be in better hands. This eloquent tribute to his ability from the leading dramatist of the day turned the tide in favor of Belasco, and established him as the oracle of American producers.

It was an obscure 'cello player, in Dresden, who first encouraged Victor Herbert to try his hand at composing. The old musician had dropped in at the theater, one of the old German city, where the two were members of the same orchestra, and had found Herbert, then 25, improvising at a piano. It was the 'cello player, too, who suggested America to the now famous composer, as the best field for his efforts. The 'cello player, now old and retired, now lives in a little vale back in the Hartz Mountains, Germany, Herbert, it is said has never forgotten his obligation to his discoverer, corresponding with him irregularly, and considering it a privilege to keep his old friend supplied with practically everything written in music in this country that is considered worth while. The only set of photographic discs ever made of the score of "M'lle Modiste," Fritzi Scheff's vehicle, written by the composer, in conjunction with Henry Blossom, were made for the special use of the old 'cellist.

David Montgomery stepped into a New York bank last Monday to cash Charles Dillingham's check for a comedian's share of the preceding week's profits of "The Red Mill," the new Montgomery and Stone hit, now at the Knickerbocker theatre.

"You'll have to be identified!" said the cashier.

Montgomery directed the teller's attention to a portrait poster of himself on a dead wall opposite.

"I guess that'll do"! said the cashier.

Rehearsals o fthe Belasco-Tully play of Spanish California, "The Rose of the Rancho," are progressing rapidly to a degree of perfection which promises to make the production one of the most notable even of Belasco's many unrivaled stage enterprises. It is said that Belasco has never shown such interest in the details of a play as in the present offering, and, after months of close application to his desk in shaping the drama to meet his own critical requirements, he is as indefatigable in his work of staging it.

Next fall Ernst Lamson who is playing a leading part in "The Heir to the Hoorah" appears in New York city for the second time as a star, presenting a drama called "A Romance of Bright Angel Trail," of which he is the author. The scenes of the play are laid in Arizona. Mr. Lamson once starred in "Toble Hoxle" and was featured in a rural drama entitled "Up York State." He is one of the most accomplished actors on the American stage today, and has yet to record his first failure.

Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Crane have scored an able bodied hit in their comedy "Everybody's Up," which they are presenting in the first-class vaudeville houses. Margaret Crane is one of the best and most versatile character actresses in the country. In the play she assumes six different characters and makes as many changes of costumes, three or four of them being made inside of ten seconds. Season after next this clever woman will star at the head of her own company, under the direction of a well known manager.

William J. Kelly, the leading man of Clara Bloodgood's company, says: "There is nothing like a good investment to improve a man's disposition. There is a farmer near Newport R. I., who is today, thanks to some excellent stock, a perfect well of good humor, and yet this man a year or two ago, would answer you, when you spoke to him, like this:

"'Fine weather, James.'

"'For them as ain't got to work, sir.'

"'Your potato field looks well.'

"'To them as ain't got to dig in it.'

"'Well, James, I'm glad your wife's better.'

"'Them as don't have to live with her, may be.'"

Blanche Walsh in "The Kreutzer Sonata" and "The Woman in the Case" is making a triumphal tour of the important Southern cities, where she is a popular favorite and always attracts large and fashionable audiences. Miss Walsh is thoroughly established as a star of the first magnitude, a position which she has attained by hard, legitimate work. She is one of the strongest emotional actresses on the American stage today.

Ernest Lamson tells this one: "A group of cranks on naval warfare were engaged in a heated discussion of the Spanish-American war one night, when one of the debaters vociferously declaimed that the Brooklyn was hit forty-six times. It chanced that a baseball rooter came down the lobby at this moment and overhearing the last remark, excitedly said: 'Who in thunder pitched for Brooklyn?'"

William J. Kelly, the popular New York leading man, has made an unqualified success in Clyde Fitch's new play, "The Truth," in which he is appearing with Clara Bloodgood. Mr. Kelly first came into prominence as the leading man in Klaw & Erlanger's production of "Ben Hur," after which he became a stock star at Proctor's theater in New York. He is not only a good actor, but a versatile one; moreover, he is a gentleman.

"The Rogers Brothers in Ireland," which was given the first of three productions at the Lyceum in Duluth last night, is a lively sort of show, and provides an evening of good entertainment. It is a musical comedy with about as much plot and a little more comedy than the average performance of its class. There are novel stage effects, pretty costumes, pleasing dances and catchy music, with some attractive girls and two comedians that really are funny. This combination proved eminently satisfactory to the big audience which crowded the theatre to its full capacity, and the applause was of the kind that usually is heard when an audience of that size is pleased with what is going on on the stage.

Three stars twinkle brightly in "The Rogers Brothers in Ireland," two of them are the brothers themselves, and the other is Marion Stanley, taking the part of Alice O'Grady, an Irish girl who is very much in love with a well-groomed young man who returns from America with considerable money in his pocket. To begin with, she is pretty and fair to look upon, and can sing in a manner that proves very delightful to her audience. Her work all the way through shows cleverness. Her song in the third act, "So Different," was an exceptionally clever effort, and called fo rnumerous encores. Her limitations of the different ways in which people of different nationalities went about kissing the blarney stone were funny.

The Rogers brothers themselves appear in their usual roles of Dutch comedians, and they are as usual droll and laughable in the parts. Their songs and dances take well with the audience, and many of their sayings and strange twistings of the tongue are quite funny. All the scenes of the play are laid in Ireland, and all the characters talk with a brogue, with the exception of the Rogers, whose talk is manifestly Dutch. They are represented as being in the country to buy the blarney stone and carry it away with them, although a stranger in search of option in their possession gives no one but themselves the impression that they have a right to do this.

The piece is well staged and the chorus a satisfactory one. Along with Miss Stanley and the Rogers brothers, Bessie Deley and Miss Voie as Mary Carey should be given particular mention. She also is a very attractive Miss on the stage, with a grace, lightness of foot and daintiness all her own. Her singing took well, and her dancing delighted the audience immensely.

Thirteen musical numbers are given, and all of them came in for encores last night. The "Choo Choo Cars" introduced an odd novelty as setting for a song, and the other musical numbers were accompanied by stage pictures that accorded well with the general excellence of the production. Of course, all in all, there isn't much to the performance, and if it were not well handled it would be very "rotten" indeed, but under the present management, and with its present cast of characters, it offers amusing and diverting entertainment.

The performance will be repeated this evening.

OHIO'S NICKNAME.

The buckeye belongs to the tree family of which the horse chestnut is the most conspicuous member.

"In plain English," says a writer in the Ohio Magazine, "the family name is soap berry—suggestive of the cleanliness of our state, morally and physically.

"It grows to a height of from eighteen to thirty-five feet and is often very graceful in contour, sometimes like a great soft, green ball flecked here and there with pale yellowish blossoms.

"No other nut is so beautiful with its rich mahogany coloring, highly polished and distinctly marked with a white scar like the iris of the eye. It was from this resemblance to the dusky eye of a buck that the Indians gave it the name of hetuck or buckeye.

"During the early days of Marietta a certain tall, finely proportioned man in a procession excited so much admiration that he was called a Buckeye as a compliment by the Indians; but it was during the political difficulties of 1840 that the appellation of Buckeye was first given to the state and people of Ohio.

"When William Henry Harrison was candidate for the presidency, his opponents said that 'he was better fitted to sit in a log cabin and drink hard cider than to rule in the White House.' Hence his friends made him the 'log cabin candidate,' and through the doorway of the pictured cabin, near which he sat, could be seen the barrel of cider, coon skins and strings of buckeyes decorating the walls.

"On Washington's birthday in 1840 a political procession gave vent to much Buckeye sentiment, a cabin built of buckeye logs was drawn in the parade and enthusiastic voices shouted the Buckeye song.

Oh, where, tell me where,
Was your Buckeye cabin made?

Where the log cabins stand
In the bonnie Buckeye shade.

Oh, what, tell me what
Is to be your cabin's fate?

We'll wheel it to the capital
And place it there elate,
For a token and a sign
Of the bonnie Buckeye state.

"Harrison himself was thus eulogized;

Hurrah for the father of the great West,
For the Buckeye, who follows the plow.

"And all others were remembered in a rhyme beginning:

Come all ye jolly Buckeye boys
And listen to my song.

"And so from that time Ohio was known as the Buckeye state, her inhabitants as Buckeyes and the buckeye itself was symbolic of her many graces and virtues."

Members of the Duluth Trades assembly thought the question concerning the division of the labor day receipts had been buried and disposed of for all time at the meeting two weeks ago, but last evening it came up again, created a lot of discussion and debate and could not be downed as long as the assembly was in session.

Delegate Hunt of the Electricians' union, who is also a delegate to the Duluth Bhilders' Structural alliance, resurrected the matter by moving that the assembly refuse to approve of the passage in the minutes relating to the division of the funds, one-third to the alliance and two-thirds to the assembly. He repeated that it was not fair to the structural alliance, when both bodies were equally represented on the labor day committee. President Shartel decided that the matter should be brought up later, under the head of new business, and it was hoped that the alliance delegates would then let the matter drop.

Later, however, a communication from the structural alliance was read. It was a rather sarcastic letter, in which the trades assembly was thanked for what money had been apportioned to the alliance and stated that the rest of their share would be donated the assembly if they were so in need of charity. A motion was made by Delegate Derouche that the communication be filed and the secretary be directed to thank the structural alliance for its kindness. This started things going and Secretary Perreault stated that he considered the letter a slap in the face for the assembly, and he would resign his position before he would send a letter of thanks to the structural alliance.

Delegate Hunt explained that the alliance meant no insult by the letter but that it only wanted to explain matters and settle things harmoniously. A substitute motion was finally carried and the communication was ordered filed.

But the last of the sore question over the Labor day proceeds had not yet been hard, as under the head of new business Mr. Hunt moved that the part referring to the division be stricken from the minutes. He said that they wanted the thing settled and it was no use for the assembly members to attempt to dodge things. Another delegate from the electrical union supported Mr. Hunt and stated that their union should have better support from the assembly or it might withdraw from its affiliation.

Several prominent trades assembly members defended the action of the meeting two weeks ago, claiming that the alliance members should have had an understanding before the celebration if a new rule over the division was to be adopted.

Delegate Baker, one of the old time members, gave his opinion on the subject. "I have been a member of this assembly probably longer than anyone else here," he stated. "I have been a member continually for the past fifteen years and during that time the matter of Labor day celebrations has always been a bone of contention between the two central bodies of the city. At one time the builder's trade withdrew from the assembly because it did not think it had been treated fairly.

"It seems to me that the trades assembly is not always fair to the unions which are of the building craft and I have noticed that the officers of the assembly are rarely chosen from the ranks of the building trades. I think we should settle this matter harmoniously above all."

When it came to a vote it was decided that the section of the minutes should not be removed. Twelve members voted in favor of the trades assembly on the matter and seven in favor of the structural alliance.

The report of the secretary and treasurer was read. On July 31 there was $258.24 in the treasury of the assembly. Counting the receipts and disbursements, including the Labor day matter, there is now a balance of $416.

• • •

Delegate Hegg reported for the committee which had been appointed to investigate the city horseshoe shops, and persuade the workmen to join the union; that several of the men had been interviewed and seemed willing to join the organization. Two of the shops had been visited, and he thought the men would join.

• • •

At the last meeting a committee had been appointed to interview City Attorney Fesler and make an attempt to have the bill board law enforced. At last night's meeting the committee reported that the city attorney was anxious that somethign should be done along this line, but said that it would have to come before the city council, as that body granted licenses to the bill board people. The report was received and the committee discharged.

• • •

The members of the Labor day committee were voted the sum of $10 with which to reimburse themselves for car fare and other incidental expenses while they were arranging for the celebration.

• • •

A motion was made that the trades assembly donate $50 to the pavilion board, but Delegate Perreault asserted that as long as the assembly is not represented on the board it should not, as a body, take any stock in the enterprise. If the members wished to make a donation, they should do it individually. Mr. Perreault said that he was willing to start the individual donation with $2 if the rest would follow suit. Treasurer Hegg notified the assembly that the pavilion board had already received about $50 worth of material from the Labor day committee, and he considered this a sufficient donation at this time. It was voted that the assembly donate this amount of material.

• • •

A suggestion was made by Delegate Martin Olmen that an attempt be made to organize the laundry workers in Duluth. In speaking of the need of an organization he cited a case in Detroit where two girls employed as ironers decided to stop work and went to the office to get their pay. They were told that they had one week's pay coming, where in reality they had two weeks due them. If there had been a union there the employers could not have held back the pay. The conditions are the same in Duluth he said, and he urged that the organization committee do some tall hustling and bring the laundry workers into the ranks.

• • •

At the meeting of the Duluth Typographical union held last Sunday at Labor World hall, Walter R. Eastman, vice president, handed in his resignation as he will leave the city soon for the West. Mr. Eastman was also a delegate to the Duluth Federated Trades assembly. He has held the position of vice president of the local union for two terms and has been a hard worker both in this position and in his capacity as delegate to the trades assembly. T. O'Flaherty was chosen to fill out the unexpired term and was immediately installed as vice president. Carl Boerner was elected delegate to the trades assembly in Mr. Eastman's place.

The Teamster's union will give a dancing party next Saturday evening, Nov. 17, at the Maccabee hall, 224 West First street. The receipts will go to the benefit fund.

THE POVERTY OF LADY ISABEL

know of such a delightful laundry. Do you like it? They are rather expensive people"—Mrs. Abrrington-Brown rose to take the address—"but you won't mind that, I know, if they are really good; and they do all the Princess Bertini's things—and ours, of course. They really do things very well."

"I did not know you were such a keen housekeeper, Isabel; it was kind of you to recommend a laundry," I said, admiringly, as we reached the street once more.

Lady Isabel shook her muff and carefully smoother the fur. "Well, you see, dear, they pay me 30 per cent on every one I send them," she said; "and so I really think we might afford a hansom," she added, cheerfully, as she hailed one with a graceful movement of her head.

"Robertson's," she said, and we drove up to a large and well known linendraper's. Lady Isabel took some small change from the fancy bag in her hand.

"I want you to sell these for me," she murmured, showing them to the shopwalker in the fancy department. "I am selling them for a friend—a charity, you know—a lady who has lost all her money, and makes them herself; she only wants 35 shillings each."

The shopwalker shook his head. "I am sorry, your ladyship," but all this kind of thing is done on the promises or bought in the city, and costs us less than half what your friend is asking."

Lady Isabel looked plaintive. "She is so poor," she pleaded.

"I fear it is quite impossible," he repeated, firmly. "I am very sorry, but we never do anything of the kind."

Lady Isabel grew petulant. "Whatever is the good of my dealing with a shop of this class"—this with the inimitable impertinence that sometimes marks the smart lady—"if you cannot do a little thing like that for so old a customer!"

He hesitated. "I will tell you what we will do, your ladyship," he said, politely, "we will take these, as there are only six, and put them in with our own, and try to sell them for you—to oblige your ladyship."

Lady Isabel became helplessly grateful. "Will you really; how very, very good of you. And you will be sure and sell them for me, won't you? And send me the money, so that I may send it on to her at once; she will be so delighted. Thank you so much. Yes—the handkerchief department, please."

Having purchased one small handkerchief for Babs, we then left the shop.

"How nice of him to take them," said Lady Isabel, with enthusiasm. "Wasn't it nice of him—and he will be sure to sell them, I know he will. I can tell by his eye; wasn't it lucky I thought of going?"

"Very," I replied, "but who is the friend?" Lady Isabel hailed another hansom and stepped lightly in, while I carefully withheld her dress from the wheel, and then quickly seated myself by her side.

"Charity," she replied, with a sigh of relief, having finished her morning's work at last. "Charity, my dear Marjorie, begins at home!"

W. C. Agnew, John Miller and John Sundeen, of the courthouse commission, accompanied by County Auditor Halden and J. J. Wagenstein, the architect, left last evening for Chicago, on a junketing trip, during which they will inspect courthouses with a view of getting some ideas about the style of construction to be used in St. Louis county's new building. The party will be joined at Chicago tomorrow by Neil McInnis and E. Morcom, the other two members of the courthouse commission. Among the cities that the commission will visit are Toledo, Ohio, Fort Wayne, Indiana. The commission expects to be gone about a week.

THE WEEK AT THE NORMAL

Merry Time at Social Entertainment at Washburn Hall.

Class Meetings of Much Interest—Sociology Class Topics.

Washburn hall was opened for the first time Saturday evening, when the residents gave a delightful, original masquerade party. The guests arrived masked, and a pleasant hour was spent in guessing the identities, before unmasking, which followed a grand march. There were belles of Civil war days, New England girls, Quakers, Japs, an Aunt Jemimah, a snowshoe girl, sheperdesses, witches, gypsies and tall, stately ghostsin great number. Every one brought her "pet horror," and these were auctioned off amidst great fun. Mice, mechanical and alive, caused the consternation common in feminine circles, and unique "horrors" were sold to the possessors of bean bag banks. A chestnut hunt, visit to the "Witches' Tower," where a many-colored flame showed a wierd light, and the uncanny skeleton doled forth fortunes to the guests, kept the hall lively during the evening. Fates were told by candles, diving for apples attracted all down to the dining hall, where enjoyable refreshments were served. Tiny Jack-o'-lanterns were strung from the chandeliers to the center, and to the corners of the room, and they were given as favors. The hall was beautifully decorated. In the dining hall, besides the Jack-o'-lanterns, ground pine was used. The reception hall and pillars at the doorway were festooned with crepe paper streamers of green and gold, and an immense Washburn hall banner of the same normal colors hung on the wall. At the entrance of the "Witches' Tower" tiny black brownies and witches on the wall pointed the way.

Monday the seniors held a short meeting, and Tuesday a second meeting in the lunch room. They served coffee and wafers, and held a general discussion on having a play some time during the second term. The committee made a report, and lists of plays were submitted. A sample class pin of a new size was shown, and those who did not have pins gave their order to the treasurer. The pins are diamond in shape, having a navy blue enamel center and gold edge, with D. N. S. and '07 inscribed on the inner diamond.

The juniors held a business meeting Wednesday. The class pins, the order for which had been given to a local firm, arrived, and were distributed. They are decidedly unique; circular, with Roman gold edging and an inner circle of gray enamel, with a red figure, thus bringing in the class colors, red and gray. On the upper part of the gold rim the letters "D. N. S." are inscribed, and below, the class numerals, "'08."

The library of the Normal school is of splendid size when we consider that the school is only of four years' growth. The following books were added before the fall term: "Painters of Florence;" "Kentucky Cardinal;" "Holland and Its People;" Appleton's Cyclopedia of American Biography; "Arnold's Poetical Works;" "Standish of Standish;" "Literary Pilgrimage in New England;" Bacon's Essays; "Boys' Book of Inventions;" "Tommy and Grizel;" American Literature; "Florentine Painters of the Renaissance;" "Central Italian Painters of the Renaissance;" "VenetianPainters of the Renaissance;" "Home Life of the Ancient Greeks;" "Teaching of History and Civics;" "Shakespeare Homeland;" "Victorian Prose Masters;" "Grand;" "Old Creole Days;" Napoleon and his Time;" "The Renaissance;" "Wonder Tales of Wagner;" "Hand-Book Legendary Art;" "Story of Alphabet;" "Bacteria Yeasts and Mould;" "Deer Slayer;" "Pathfinder;" "Old Masters and New;" "English Synonyms;" "Concordance to Holy Scriptures;" "Birdseye View of Civil War;" "Lyrics of Lowly Life;" "Home Life in Colonial Days;" "Hygiene and Sanitation;" Emerson's Essays; "Cities of India;" "Reminiscences of Civil War;" "Home Nursing;" Students' Frobel; "Readers History;" "American Literature;" "Outlines of Psychology;" "Corot and Millet;" "Literary Friends and Acquaintances;" "Les Miserables;" Literary Essays; "Romona;" Emerson's poems; "Great Masters;" Tales from Shakespeare; "Primer of Right and Wrong;" Mrs. Lincoln's Cook Book; "Mother's Stories;" "Essays on Nature and Culture;" "Norse Stories;" "First Bird Book;" "Second Bird Book;" "Parke's Practical Hygiene;" "Herbert Spencer;" "Manuel of Trees;" "School Hygiene;" Spencer Biography; "History of Presidental Elections;" "Story of Primitive Man;" "Law of Imitation;" "History of American Literature;" "Lives of Eminent Painters;" "Ben Hur;" "Work of Velasquez;" "Works of Raphael;" "Works of Titian;" "Leaves of Grass;" "Humble Romance;" Harper's Books of Facts.

HIS BARGAIN.

Kingsley Mercury: "My dear," said the thoughtful husband, entering the house with a huge package in his arms, "you remember last week when you secured such a wonderful bargain in shirts at 48 cents and neckties at three for a quarter for me?"

"Yes, love," says the fond wife.

"Well, don't think I didn't appreciate your thoughtfulness. See, I have bought something for you. I noticed some beautiful green and yellow plaid goods in a show window on my way home, and bought you eighty yards of it at 4 cents a yard. The clerk said it was a great bargain, and it will make enough dresses to last you two years. Why she has fainted!"

"He who despises small things seldom grows rich;" and he who ignores the small ads. seldom even lives COMFORTABLY.

IRISH IN CHURCH.

This year, perhaps for the first time since Queen Elizabeth's day, a service was read in Irish at St. Patrick's cathedral in Dublin, says the Edinburgh Review. Ten years ago any man who had predicted such a thing would have been counted a lunatic; today many will resent it. Yet none the less it is a sign of a growing feeling that the church of Ireland, if it is to justify its title, cannot shut itself off from the national life; and the common heritage of a much neglected language and literature has given scope in more ways than this for the meeting of ancient opposites.

BABY'S VOICE

Is the joy of the household, for without it no happiness can be complete. How sweet the picture of mother and babe, angels smile at and commend the thoughts of the aspirations of the mother bending over the cradle. The ordeal through which the expectant mother must pass, however, is so full of danger and suffering that she looks forward to the hour when she shall feel the exquisite thrill of motherhood with indescribable dread and fear. Every woman should know that the danger, pain and horror of child-birth can be entirely avoided by the use of Mother's Friend, a scientific liniment for external use only, which toughens and renders pliable all the parts, and assists nature in its sublime work. By its aid thousands of women have passed the great crisis in perfect safety and without pain. Sold at $1.00 per bottle by druggists. Our book of priceless value to all women sent free. Address

SNAPSHOTS AT THE CITY BEAUTIFUL IN EUROPE

Paris Long Held Undisputed First Place, But Vienna is Now Awarded the Palm by Some, While Budapest Has Beauty Spots Which Clearly Entitle Her to High Rank---Munich, Dresden and Brussels Complete the Half Dozen Cities Most Often Spoken of by Europeans Because of Their Beauty, But This List is by No Means Universally Accepted.

BY DEXTER MARSHALL

(Copyright, 1906, by Dexter Marshall.)

Paris, Oct. 30.—Seated at the eastern base of the Tyrolen Alps, just where the Danube escapes impetuously from between tortuous rock walls to wind peacefully across the mountain circled plain of Austria, Vienna, capital and home of the most exclusive aristocracy in existence, now lays claim to be held the most beautiful city in the world.

But Vienna's claim is disputed vigorously, first by Paris and then by Budapest, further down the Danube and chief city of Austria's twin state, Hungary. For many year the claim of Paris as the most beautiful city was almost universally accepted and the French capital would probably get a majority of beauty votes to this day. Certainly each of the three cities named is warranted in being proud of its looks, but to say that any one of them is the most beautiful in the world would be to chance an endless discussion.

Munich, in Bavaria, which is outstripping Paris as an art center; Dresden, where they make the china; Brussels, the royal city of Leopold, the eccentric Belgian monarch; each o fthese has many famous beauty spots, which in their way excel all others.

The six cities named are certainly more often mentioned when municipal comelines is under discussion than any other. But Florence must not be left out of consideration altogether, nor must Antwerp, remarkable combination of the old and the new, with its great cathedral tucked in between business streets and facing a pitifully mean litle triangular market "square," nor Venice, city of canals and bridges, though it is more picturesque than beautiful.

Antwerp, by the way, boasts one of the most ambitious fountains to be found anywhere, but it is hard to find, either with or without a guidebook. It is in bronze and represents the hero who delivered the city from the fabled giant that tyrannized over it in folk-lore days, standing upon the monster's prostrate, decapitated corpse and in the act of throwing its right hand into the sea. From the severed hand the grewsome, headless neck streams the water of the fountain, in lieu of blood, while the whole is as horrible in conception as its execution is strong and realistic.

Rome, the Holy City, has many beauties, while Copenhagen, the butter metropolis, where the two daughters of the late king of Denmark, Alexandra of England and Russia's dowager empress, are building for themselves a summer house of rare beauty, is surely entitled to some consideration. Copenhageners, by the way, are especially and justly proud of their new city hall. It is really a beautiful and impressive structure, though not of itself sufficient to give the city special distinction.

Buf the great park, part forest and part open, rolling sward, which lies to the west of the town, and where the king's deer roam like pet lambs every day in the year but the one on which royalty goes out to butcher them, would lend distinction to any city in the world. Every day except the one mentioned the gates of the great semi-wooded tract are open to whoever will enter them, and the deer, of which there are thousands, are treated so well that they have no fear whatever of man. I have known a coachman to be obliged to shoo them out of the driveway before he could proceed.

Though Hamburg's chief distinction is commercial, its lakes and canals present extremely agreeable views, and it has much good architecture. Its city hall, for instance, is a structure to which the headquarters of no municipal government in the United States can even remotely be compared for beauty.

But Hamburg also has a colossal statue of Bismarck, higher than many of the city's houses, which has been more laughed at by the world's sightseers than any other work of alleged art on the continent. It is placed in an open space in a park, where it may be seen for miles, and on Sundays and holidays, when the people flock by thousands to the great breathing space around it, they look from a distance more like a convention of black and gaily colored ants at the feet of a statue made of pure white sugar than anything else.

It must be admitted, however., that the great effigy of the man of blood and iron presents a certain dignity when the observer is not too near. The people of Hamburg, who objected seriously to it at first, are gradually becoming as proud of it as the Danes are of the city hall at Copenhagen.

Milan, another city which sightseers, especially those of European birth, often speak of slightingly as "merely a commercial city, with little beauty," has many charming vistas if you know where to look for them. They do not include all of its famous churches, however. Some of them are as ugly as architects well could plan them. They do not include all of its famous churches, however. Some of them are as ugly as architects well could plan them. Defective though its front—which Napoleon spoiled in the finishing, according to some beauty experts—may be, however, the cathedral of St. Mark's warrants a few extravagant phrases, especially when you view it in the moonlight, under a sky as blue as if it were broad day, its azure relieved by drifting cloud fleeces of immaculate white.

"Monumental" Streets—Deadly Uniformity.

Nearly every European city possesses as much or more beauty in reserve than it presents to the visitor's view. Every one of them has miles of thoroughfares that are dull and uninteresting as you drive or walk through them.

Many of these streets are narrow, sometimes with the sidewalks level with the roadway, showing no trace of green, while the walls of the buildings stand flush and are all of one height, pierced at wide intervals with grim arched doorways and windows in interminable, uniform rows. They are even more uninteresting than some of the so-called "monumental" streets on the upper part of Manhattan Island or the bare, bleak streets of Philadelphia, the house fronts of which are relieved only by little flights of white marble steps.

But if you peer through the massive archways as you pass you will perceive that beautiful vistas of green trees, smooth lawns, brilliant flower beds and flashing, plashing fountains lurk behind the frowning walls. In the Italian cities some of the most forbidding, narrowest, crookedest streets—sometimes ill smelling, and, in the summer time, always sizzling under a truly unmerciful sun—run between the walls of old-time palaces, whose courtyards are laid out with the rarest artistic skill and discrimination.

Formerly these palaces were the homes of princes and nobles. Some of them still are, but others are now the abodes of money kings, the "industrialists," who are slowly becoming as important in the Old World as in the New, and whose distinction has been won in the fields of trade, manufacture and transportation. Mixed up with these palaces are buildings devoted to the meanest uses; while many of the palaces themselves have been given over to dealers in stove wood and junk, to butcher shops and bakeries and what Beautiful Paris itself is one of the greatest sticklers in Europe for a uniformity of height in its buildings, which seems deadly in the eyes of some of us Americans. The buildings are not only of the same height, but mostly of the same color as well, gray, a rather dirty gray at that, being the prevailing tone.

white, but they soon become gray like the others. To find a red brick house in Paris, or a yellow or green structure of any kind would be like finding a white blackbird. There are some green roofs, to be sure; that of the wonderful Madeleine church is one. It furnishes welcome relief to the jaded eye when you can see it, but you have to go to the top of the Eiffer tower for that, and the sight is not worth the effort, though the panorama of Paris is, and richly.

Perhaps the most complete and paralyzing example of the Parisian idea that uniformity is essential to beauty is to be seen in the Place Vendome, where the famous bronze pillar commemorating many of Napoleon's victories is surrounded by a circle of gray buildings all exactly alike. They were used by the government in the days of the first empire, but now are devoted to business. Interiorly they have undergone many alterations, but the city's authorities have declared that their exterior aspect may never be changed. To many American eyes they seem like great, gray cardboard houses, rather barn-like than otherwise in appearance.

London, which doesn't even claim beauty, shows more interesting variety in its architecture on half a dozen "blocks" than a whole mile on some of the most famous thoroughfares of Paris.

But Paris is beautiful. Its interminable rows of trees, its great open spaces, its graceful bridges, its boulevards—where can they be matched? But Paris is no longer entitled to be formed a "finished city"; even now great patches of pavement in the Avenue of the Opera are out of place, while extensions to the Metropolitan railway—the Parisian subway—are being put down.

Paris is also allowing greater variety in some places than formerly, the famous Champs Elysee of all thoroughfares being one of them. In one of the most notable stretches a newly rich man, an advertiser of retail wares, whose shrewdness has yielded him many millions, has been allowed to put up a house so different in designe from its neighbors that all Paris is complaining.

Moreover, the complaints are well founded. The house is certainly gorgeous in its white marble elaboration and might be beautiful, considered by itself, but it surely doesn't harmonize, as it might and without being strictly uniform with the nearby buildings, either.

Beautiful Business Structures.

To offset the monumental appearance of their many miles of uniform and courtyard streets, the city builders in Europe have a habit of designing even their warehouses with an eye to the beautiful, both as a whole and in detail.

This is not universal of course, but it may fairly be termed general. In Hamburg, for instance, you will see long rows of warehouses, both in and outside the free port, which, if built along the Broklyn water front or in St. Louis or Buffalo or Chicago, would be ornamented about as much as if they were gigantic wooden packing cases.

In Hamburg, they have been built with almost as much of an effort to please the eye as to hold the merchandise from the ends of the earth, which they shelter. The row of buildings in that German city, which is shown in one of the pictures accompanying this article is made up of coffee warehouses.

The truth is that the European eye looks for beauty in the most utilitarian things.

The effort to obtain beauty in design is by no means confined to the architects. It would be hard, for instance, to find a bridge in any European city without a distinctive beauty of its own. The elevated railroad in Berlin is by no means such an ugly, iron trestle work as are the structures in New York, Chicago and Boston, over which trains run in the air, but a light elegant structure of ornamented uprights and springing arches.

Nor is it allowed to incumber the streets; in Berlin proper it runs along the bank of one of the canals into which the river Spree is divided as it passes through the city. In the suburb of Charlottenburg, with 200,000 population, and continuous with the capital, but not annexed, there being na canal, the line was ordered by the emperor to be continued under ground, rather than to disfigure the streets.

Designs for beauty as well as utility are almost universal. There are no plain, unsightly trolley poles in the cities, but instead gracefully made supports which, if anything, add to the sightliness of the streets. It is so with telegraph and telephone supports also, when, as rarely, the wires are not put under ground. In many cases when the streets are narrow the overhead trolley wires are supported by cross wires anchored to the walls of the houses on either side. Wooden houses being non-existent, this is practicable in Europe, where as it would not be in the United States.

In nearly every European city there is much more sculptural ornamentation on the fronts of buildings than in the United States. Some of the finest examples of this sort of municipal beautification are seen on the Rathhaus of city hall in Munich. The effect of this structure as a whole is marred somewhat by the fact that there is not sufficient free space about it for the observer to get a comprehensive view from any point.

In this respect, however, the designers of the Munich Rathhaus were lesser sinners than the designers of some of the new skyscrapers in half a dozen American cities, who have placed elaborate carvings in marble and other stone hundreds of feet above the street level, where they cannot be seen at all.

Every city of any size in Europe has much more imposing, more beautiful public buildings than any American city, and the difference never can be equalized, for the palaces of royalty, past and present, are almost invariably the largest, handsomest structures in every city. A noteworthy exception is the Kaiser Wilhelm's palace in Berlin.

Many tourists will tell you that although the Berliners, under the kaiser's direction, are trying hard to make the imperial German city a beautiful one, they are not succeeding very well. Others think the desired end is being rapidly attained, and experienced sightseers are not wanting who say in Berlin is even now one of the world's most beautiful capitals.

It may be that the efforts of the Kaiser and the local authorities, who bend to his will in practically everything, are a trifle too geometrical. It may be that some of the Berlin statuary is more impressive by reason of its grace. It is certain that many of the streets in Berlin are unforgiveably dull and uninteresting.

There is a reason for Berlin's straight streets, more of which are to be seen there than in any city outside of the United States, and which suggest the geometrical comparison. Crooked streets are under the ban in Berlin because projectiles from big guns cannot be made to go around corners nor follow the imperial German policy to have the streets of the capital so laid out that artillery could sweep them in case of revolution.

And while the Kaiser's government is anxious for a beautiful capital, it is also anxious to keep constant reminders of Prssian and German military glory before the eyes of Berliners. This is the reason for the numerous statues of the first Kaiser Wilhelm, of Bismarck and of Moltke, the three men who destroyed the third empire in France and made Prussia so great that all the German states save Austria were glad to get under Prussia's wing and join the confederation known as the German Empire.

The criticisms of the straight streets and the uncouth statues are blots upon the city's beauty are well founded.. But the famous thoroughfare Unter den Linden, though disappointing at first, is one of two or three most impressive streets in the world. Its two rows of rather ragged looking trees; its bridle path, on which few equestrians are to be seen, however; its prespective of palaces, embassies, theaters, hotels, retail shops and all the rest; its easy going crowds, well dressed in the main; its automobiles, whizzing over asphalt that is unvexed by street car rails and over which the huge gasoline auto busses are forbidden to run, all combine to form a general whole that is not elsewhere paralleled.

The great playground known as the Thier Garten, beginning to the west of and at the head of Unter den Linden, is a park of which any city might be proud. It is much bigger than New York's Central park or than any American par so near the center of municipal life as it is. And it is different.

Berlin being as flat as Chicago, the Thier Garten is not diversified by hill and dale. Berlin being without stony foundations of any sort, the Thier Garten has few "rockeries," and they are so obviously piled up by the hands of men that they detract from rather than add to the park's beauty.

In place of the comeliness given by irregularities of surface, the Thier Garten possesses the surpassing beauty of trees, planted in the greatest profusion. Trees of every variety that will grow in Berlin's sandy ground, enriched through constant irrigation by the canalized waters of the Spree and by the lavish enrichment of the soil. Trees set so close together that at first their shade seems too deep and the great park almost gloomy. Trees which are reflected in innumerable stretches of quiet water. Trees under which the thick sward is shaven to a velvety smoothness in places, while in others it grows ragged and unmolested. Trees whose deep verdure is set off by gleaming arched marble bridges and sculptured Venuses, lions and warriors. Old trees, young trees, trees by the hundreds of thousands, apparently; a veritable forest in the midst of a great capital, accessible to the millions and used by them freely.

Here in Paris the Bois de Boulogne has a great profusion of trees also, but they are not so beautiful as those in the Thier Garten. Great old trees, by the way, are surprisingly rare in European cities, when you remember the age of the cities.

Berlin is now said to be the cleanest city in Europe and apparently justifies the saying. It is cleaner than Paris or London or Vienna or Budapest. The street sweepers are contsantly at work and no litter of any sort, not even the litter made by the builders, is allowed to remain long undisturbed.

There is more of this latter in Berlin, by the way than in most Continental cities, for Berlin is the youngest capital of Europe. At the close of the Franco-Prussian war it was only the skeleton of its modern self, small, dirty and insignificant.

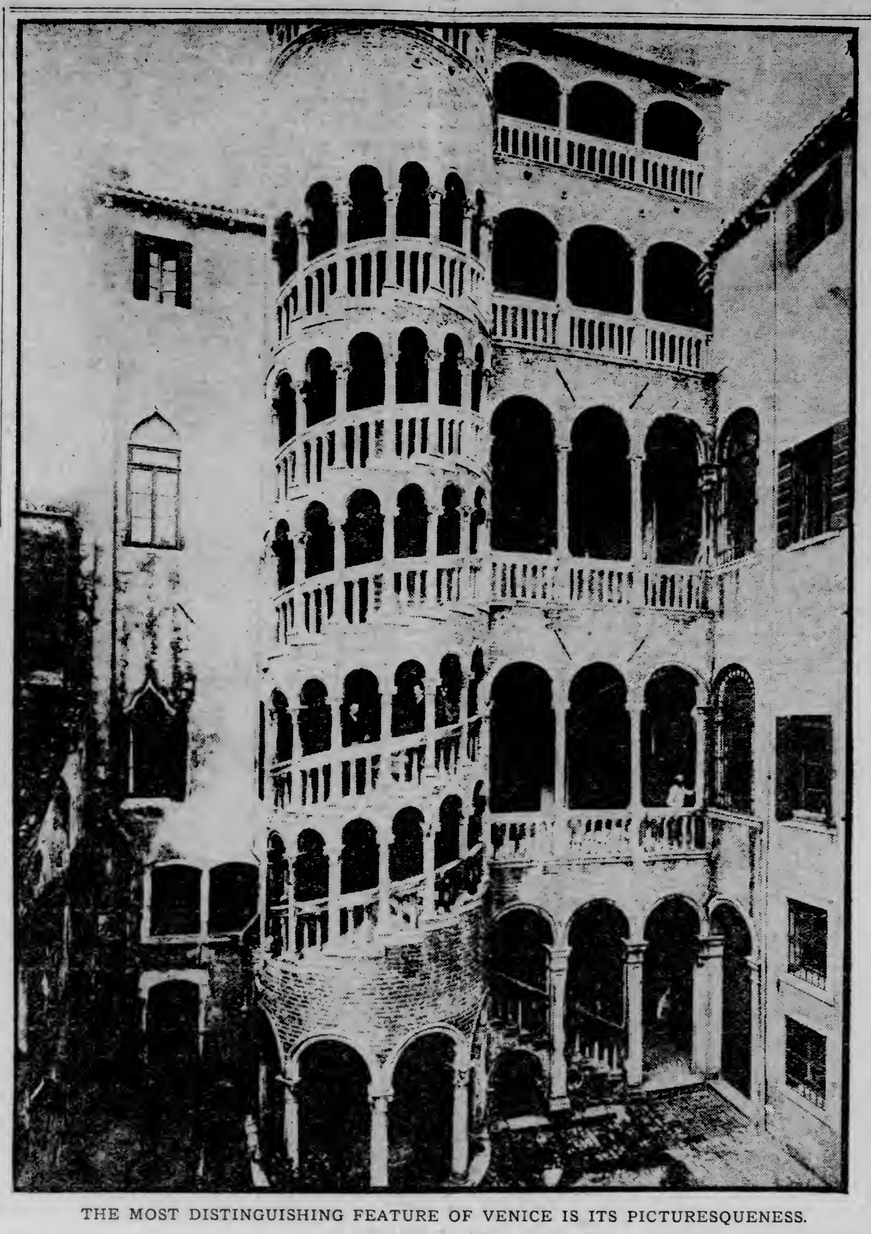

It is still growing about as rapidly in percentages as London or New York or Chicago, and new structures are constantly being erected. Its building regulations are not excelled in severity by those of any other city. A police permit is necessary to change the size, shape or location of a window even; while as for skyscrapers, or the deviation of even one story from the uniform height o fthe buildings on any street, they would not be tolerated for a moment. Difficult as the achievement seems even now, after more than thirty years of the greatest effort imaginable, Berlin may some day be one of Europe's most beautiful cities.

Its improvement in beauty and cleanliness has been as rapid as that of the chief American cities, which only those comprehend who have closely watched them during the last thirty years. Berlin is the only capital in Europe, or the world perhaps, that has no slums.

Conserving the Beauty of Cities.

Naturally, because of its youth, Berlin is more comparable to American cities than either Paris or Vienna, between which, as most folk agree, the palm for greatest beauty lies. For the same reason Berlin, like all American cities, seems an unfinished one as compared with most cities on this continent.

Vienna owes some of its beauty to its age, but more to its situation. In the last forty years Vienna's beauty has been vastly increased. The famous curving Ringtrasse, which some say is the most beautiful thoroughfare in the world, was begun in 1865, while many of its most famous buildings and no end of the city's other improvements have been made since then.

The river and sewer improvements, the city as it did, it devastated the low lying sections with tolerable regularity for centuries until a few years ago, when, at great expense, the authorities made a new and straight channel for the stream, north of the main part of the city, and of sufficient depth and width to accommodate the flow, even at its highest flood. At the same time a part of the stream is allowed to pass through the old channel, which otherwise would be a great, dry, unsightly ditch.

The sewerage system of the city was perfected in due time, and within the last few years a plan has been adopted which obviates the drainage of the sewage into the river. Its waters are now entirely unpolluted, both in the city and below it, as well as in the upper reaches. In this Vienna beats all the big cities in the world.

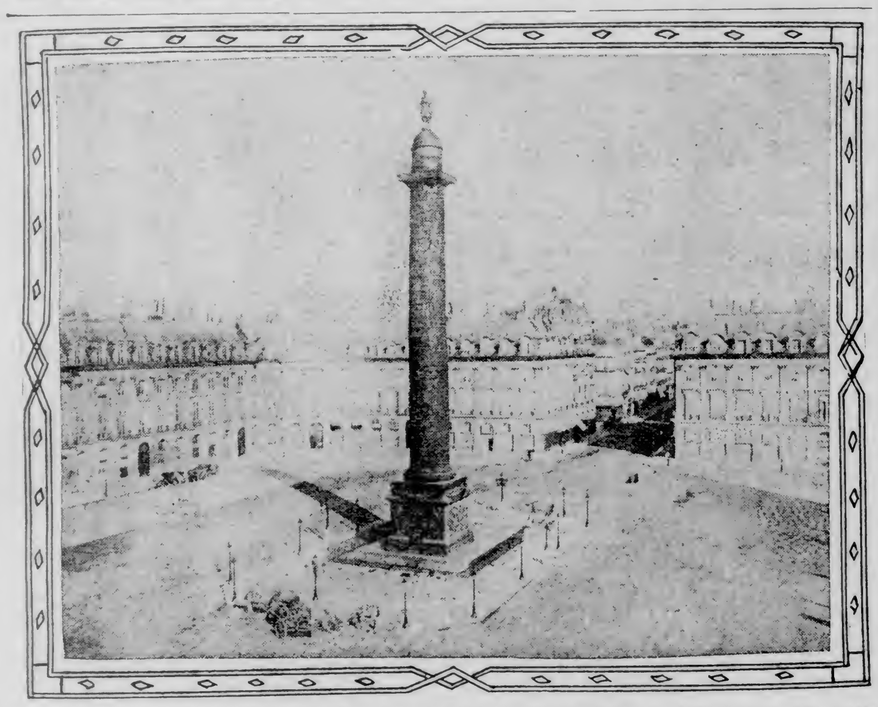

The management of all the improvements is under the control of the city council, which has its corps of architects, engineers, etc., who order all improvements with an eye to increasing the city's beauty at every step. Besides, there is a society, whose object is the conservatism of municipal beauty and the preservation of historical sites and buildings. Its membership includes architects, artists of the highest grade, scholars, professional men and others who are consulted whenever streets are to be cut through, old sections or new parts opened.

Its advice is not always followed, the council being supreme, but it carries great weight invariably, and the city as it stands, as one of the two finest examples of the City Beautiful in Europe, is a result largely of this society's intelligent and hearty co-operation with the authorities.

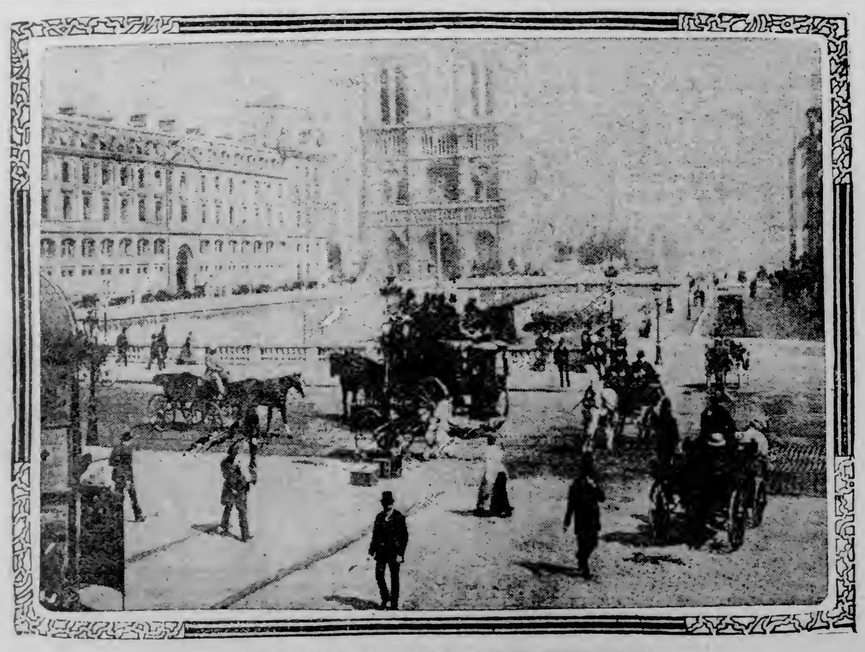

The co-operation of artistic societies and city authorities is a feature of municipal evolution everywhere in Europe, is a result largely of this society's intelligent and hearty co-operation with the authorities.

The co-operation of artistic societies and city authorities is a feature of municipal evolution everywhere in Europe, as it is getting to be in American cities, the scheme having been carried further perhaps in Boston than in any other American city.

In Paris the conservation of municipal beauty is intrusted to the minister of public instruction, the Beaux Arts and of religion. The society of the Beaux Arts supplements the efforts of the government, and is often deferred to. In Buda-Pesth, Dresden and all the famous beauty cities of the continent, no great improvement is undertaken without artistic supervision, and such supervision will be necessary in America if the cities of the United States are to realize their possibilities as to beauty.

NEWS OF THE WEEK FROM THE CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL

Twin City Teams All Sidestep Games With Duluth.

Students Can Talk Only in German in New Society.

Turning out a winning team has its disadvantages as well as its advantages, as the managers of the high schol football eleven have found out in trying to complete the schedule for the remainder of the season.

Most of the teams, which have any claim to the state championship, when asked for a game, by Duluth, politely sidestep with an "I'll be back in a minute, but I've got to go now" expression.

The St. Paul Central eleven, which holds the Twin City championship and will no doubt claim the state championship, has declined to play for some such reason. The misunderstanding which has arisen between the two teams is this:

At the first of the season, Duluth made a verbal agreement with Minneapolis Central for a game on Nov. 17. Then when the Twin City teams arranged their schedule for the season Minneapolis Central gave that date to the St. Paul Central team without giving Duluth any notice of the change. This, of course, left Duluth under the impression that this date was filled. Then St. Paul Central, thinking that Duluth was aware of the change, offered Duluth a game for that date. Duluth refused as they thought the date was filled. Then Duluth offered St. Paul Central a game for Nov. 10, explaining the previous mix-up. St. Paul refused to play on the ground that Duluth had refused a game when it was offered.

If St. Paul Central was not aware of the misunderstanding between Duluth and Minneapolis Central its conduct in refusing to play would be justifiable. However, as the matter stands, it has the appearance of trying to sidestep a game, which they are afraid to play.

The Duluth team would like to play any eleven in the state that has any claim to the state championship.

Manager Hicken has not yet received an answer from the manager of the St. Cloud eleven, as to whether they will give Duluth a game. The Duluth boys hope to secure a game with St. Cloud for next Friday. If they can do this they will probably go down to Minneapolis to see the big Minnesota-Carlisle game, Saturday. As St. Cloud is only a short distance from Minneapolis, the expense would not be great and the boys would get some valuable points from witnessing a first-class game, as this is sure to be.

The team has been out practising every night this week and is in better condition than ever before. McDevitt has a game leg and has not been able to do any hard practising. It is not likely that he will be in the game today, which is with the Eveteth eleven.

The Duluth boys are not looking for much trouble in the game, but do not expect a walkaway, as this team scored on the strong Blaine eleven.

The game will be played here and a large crowd is expected as this is the first real game that Duluth has played for some time.

A new society has made its appearance on the list of high school organizations. It is to be made up of all who desire to get better knowledge of the German language.

Every other Thursday the members will come together in the music room to turn their thoughts and linguistic talents, Dutchward.

About fifty boys and girls were present at the meeting and a great deal of enthusiasm was manifested. The method of conducting the meetings of the society are unique. No language but German will bo tolerated, and those who gather courage to make a speech in Dutch, will have to preserve a profound silence.

This will be hard on some at first, but will have the desired effect of stimulating them to further efforts to master the language.

The question was debated at some length as to whether pupils should be fined for speaking English. The general opinion seemed to be that a fine would not be necessary, as they came for the purpose of speaking German and would not come unless they intended to conform with the rules. The argument was also advanced that all but those who knew the language well would refuse to talk at all if a fine were charged. It was therefore decided that no penalty would be exacted from those who elapsed temporarily into their native tongue.

As it was the first meeting of the society, officers were elected for the coming year. Fraulein Von Scholten was chosen president. The other officers leected as follows: vice president, Herr Toben; secretary, Fraulein Pearl Hector. It was decided to elect a secretary every two months. In this way more of the pupils will get the benefit of the experience, and it is the purpose of the society to distribute the work as evenly as possible among the members.

Herr Boerner was chosen treasurer. The dues of the society will be 25 cents a year. From this, books for the use of the members of the society will be purchased and the other incidental expenses of the association paid.

Fraulein Senta Erd was chosen to write up the doings of the society for the Zenith.

A motion was made that all those who went through the year without making any breaks in their speaking should be excused from the examination. Fraulein Von Scholten expresesd it as her opinion that anyone who was capable of performing this feat would experience very little trouble in getting out of the examination anyway.

A committee of four were appointed to select an appropriate name for the society, and they will report on this at the next meeting.

Another committee was appointed to arrange a program for the meeting These programs will be informal and every one will be allowed to speak who desires to.

Fraulein Von Scholten hopes to increase the interest in the study of the language by the meetings, and there is no doubt that the fun which they will provide as well as the desire for a better grasp of the German tongue will prove to be a strong drawing card for all who are studying the language.

The juniors held their second class meeting last Wednesday. The treasurer reported that he had collected only $10.75 of the dues, which makes a total of $34 in the treasury.

A great deal of trouble is being encountered in collecting the dues. The treasurer said that the seniors were taking in a good deal more and that the manner in which the juniors were paying up, or rather the manner in which they were not paying up, did not speak very well for the spirit of the class.

The juniors give two parties this year, the junior mid-year and the junior-senior, both of which involve considerable expense.The president said that he did not think that they would be allowed to give both of these unless they could get a good deal more money in the treasury than they have now, and that it behooved the members to wake up and pay their dues, if they wished to hold these.

There are many boys in the junior session rooms who refuse to pay junior dues, because they claim to be seniors. The treasurer intimated that he had a lingering suspicion that this gag worked both ways, namely, they won't pay junior dues because they claim to be seniors, and they won't pay senior dues because they sit in a junior session room. At any rate the treasurer thinks that they ought to pay the junior dues and let the seniors look out for themselves, an argument which the seniors will, no doubt, fail to appreciate.

The juniors elected Mary Weston as class artist to illustrate thir section of the Zenith. They also started to elect associate editors but changed their minds and decided to let the editor-in-chief appoint his assistants.

As the juniors wish to get up a basketball team to play the seniors they elected Sergeant McGonagle to captain it.

It is rather early in the year to mention basketball, but the juniors are taking time by the forelock and organizing early.

This was the extent of the business transacted at the meeting.

A meeting of the sophomore boys was called Tuesday night for the purpose of getting a larger number out for the football practice.

The president stated that only a scant half dozen men had showed up so far, and said that they could not play football with that kind of support. The freshmen had a large squad out the other night, and their captain worked them hard with an eye to picking out the best men.

Capt. Pinkerton of the sophomore team urged all the men to get their suits on and get into the game. There are only a few of last year's men who are out this year, and every one has a good chance to make the team if he will just get out and work. He warned them against being overconfident, as it was this which caused the defeat of the Sophomore class last year. They thought that they had the game cinched, and consequently did not take the trouble to work up a good team. The result was that the freshmen, who had practised hard, beat them badly. Capt. Pinkreton said that the men would have to get out and hustle to prevent the freshmen from repeating last year's trick, but expressed his belief that there was plenty of good material in the class, and that his team could win if given good support.

Arthur Dudgeon, one of the sophomores' hopes in the coming contest, was called on for remarks. He talked along the same line that Pinkerton had, saying that all that was needed was the support of the men and some more enthusiasm. He also remarked that if, as freshmen, they were able to beat the sophomore, they certainly ought to be able to beat the freshies, when they themselves rae sophomores. "If we don't," he said, "we'll never hear the last of it, for they'll josh us until we graduate. All the positions are open. Get out right away, and let each man prove that he is the best one for his position. Then we'll have a team that will beat the freshmen without any difficulty. If we don't get busy, the freshmen will be issuing their challenge soon, and our team will be in no condition to play."

After the meeting a good-sized bunch turned out, and Pinkerton will work his men hard until the game comes off.

The meetings of the Philomathian society will hereafter be held on Monday, instead of Tuesday. The next program will be given a week from Monday.

Mr. Smith spoke about the election results in the state of New York on Friday morning, and expressed his hope that men of Hearst's caliber would always be defeated when opposed by honorable men.

The freshmen held a meeting of the boys on Friday, to create more interest in the football game than is being shown. Capt. Nelson appointed a committee to compose yells for the game, and asked all of the boys to get out for practice. He said that he would try to arrange a practise game with some local team for Saturday, as this will help them a great deal, and will be valuable practise.

BRAINERD MAN STRIKES IT RICH

Oscar Foster Makes a Fortune From Nome Placer Mine.

Brainerd, Minn., Nov. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Oscar Foster, a former resident of Brainerd, has returned from Nome, Alaska, a modern Monte Cristo. Mr. Foster left here in 1901 a poor man and has returned wealthy, the results of a lucky strike in the Alaskan gold fields. He is one of the owners of the Bessie Bench, said by the Nome Nugget to be the richest placer mine ever discovered. Mr. Foster is the owner of a one-fourth interest in the mine and has come down to the states to spend the winter, and will make Brainerd his headquarters, but will spend some time in the South and Southeast. Mr. Foster is far from the typical Western mining millionaire, but looks and acts just as he did when he was a clerk in a store here. The Bessie Bench has been worked for about seven months and has already produced a large fortune for each of the owners and is good for four years more at least, before all of the gravel is washed.

For eighteen years, Mr. Foster was a resident of Brainerd, serving as a clerk and afterwards being in the grocery business with varying fortunes, but always a poor man until his lucky strike in the Alaskan fields. He carries as a pocket piece a glass vial containing gold dust, valued at about $70.

DEFINES TALKS OF PRESIDENT

Direct Quotation of Conversations Held to be Defective.

Washington, Nov. 10.—The following statement touching on quoted conversations with the president was made public at the White House yesterday:

"For many years it has been the invariable practice never to attempt to quote a private conversation with the president. It has been found that as a matter of fact the man who quotes such a conversation usually misquotes it, whether consciously or unconsciously, and such an alleged conversation is under no circumstances to be held as calling for other explanation or denial by the president.

"The president is responsible only for what he himself says in public, for what he writes, or for what he explicitly authorizes the proper government official to say in his behalf."

"Our food was good—Bear steak, flapjacks, fresh bread, etc., but nothing seemed to warm and strengthen us as much as a cup of ARIOSA Coffee, which we kept in the original package and ground as needed." From a gentleman now in Bethlehem.

Arbuckles' ARIOSA was the first roasted packaged coffee,—packaged for the consumer's protection and the pores of each berry sealed after the roasting with fresh eggs and sugar to keep the goodness in and make the coffee settle clear and quickly.

Talk about "roasted fresh daily," the way to get a cup of coffee that tastes like coffee, with all the delicious flavor and aroma intact, is to buy Arbuckles' ARIOSA and grind it as you want to use it. Warming it a little develops the flavor and makes the grinding easy. Coffee loses its identity as coffee after being ground or when exposed to the air.

Never buy loose coffee out of a bag, bin or tin. If it were good the roaster would not be ashamed to sell it in a package with his name on it.

The sales of Arbuckles' ARIOSA exceed those of all the other packaged coffees combined. It is the best coffee for you, and costs you less.

SPORTS OF THE WEEK BY HERALD CARTOON ST

WILL MEET IN CHICAGO

Annual Session of Hockey League to Arrange for Season.

Finest Hockey Ever Played in Country is Looked for.

Houghton, Mich., Nov. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The situation, as regards the five teams already in the International league, is but little advanced since the managers of the various teams first announced their first signed men for the coming season. The general feeling, however, throughout the league circuit, is that better and faster hockey will be seen this year than ever before, since the institution of the game in the United States. It is generally considered, in this country, at least, that the class of hockey played by the professional teams of the International league is far superior to that played by the Canadian teams. The players on the American side of the border are professed professionals and are paid good salaries to play the game. During the winter few of the players in the professional teams do anything besides playing the game or indulging in the hard daily practice, getting more real work at the game than do their Canadian brothers.

Today and tomorrow the managers of the Copper country teams leave for Chicago to attend the adjourned session of the annual meeting. At this meeting the schedule committee will make its report, and it is expected that a schedule for the coming season will be drawn up and adopted. It will also be necessary to elect a successor to President Thomas Hoatson of Calumet, resigned, and it is understood that a Copper country man is slated for the position. Probably James Fisher of Calumet will be elected, or, in case he is not selected, Vice President W. L. Murdock of the Soo, will be given the place.

Delegates are expected to be present at this meeting from Houghton, Calumet, the American and Canadian Soos and Pittsburg, all of which towns have teams in the league, and also from Cleveland, Columbus and Minneapolis Cleveland, Columbus, Minneapolis, are considered as doubtful candidates for the league race during the coming season, but it is expected that the Minneapolis-St. Paul people will get a team into the circuit, making six teams in the league and with a good circuit of moneyed towns to draw from. Detroit and Duluth are now considered as being out of the question this season, but may get in next year.

None of the teams already in the league have yet announced their complete lineups, although Portage Lake, or Houghton, and the Canadian Soo have all of their men as good as signed. There is some speculation as to whom Portage Lake has secured to fill the point or cover point positions, taking the place of "Grindy" Forerster and Barney Holden of last year's team. One rumor had it that Hod Stuart would be signed to play cover, but this is strongly denied by the management of the team. The latest and probably the more correct suggestion, is that Dr. J. McD. Gibson, the greatest cover Portage Lake or any other American team ever played, will fill the position again. The management will not make its announcement, however, of its lineup till after the men have actually put their names to the contracts here in Houghton. Last year Gibson did good work as official referee, but it is understood that he did not like the work or the way in which he was dealt with by the public press, and the fans in some of the towns.

The Canadian papers are still teeming with items in their sporting departments to the effect that Charlie Liffiton has been engaged to manage that team and play right wing. This is untrue, however, Liffiton having decided not to come to the Copper country, according to the latest official statement. "Cooney" Shields, one of the headiest and steadiest defense men in the league for the past several seasons, is also spoken of as going back to Calumet and taking the management of the seven. "Cooney" does not say anything about this, however, but is looking for and will probably get a position as one of the official referees. It is thought that he would make a good man for referee, as he means what he says and says what he thinks is right at all times.

The American Sault has not yet divulged the names of the four fast Canadians said to be slated for that town's new team. The situation remains as it was a month ago, however, and several or all of the teams, but Portage Lake will have several new men on their makeups. The Canadians are also keeping quiet in regard to their team at the Canadian Sault, although it is understood that Capt. Roy Brown has picked an excellent bunch of puck chasers. Nothing is heard from Pittsburg, excepting that the two Mallens, Kennedy and Jimmie, of last year's Calumet team, are after positions there. This is unconfirmed. It is understood that Sixsmith has no connection with the team in the Smoky City this season.

As it is generally conceded that a team will be entered from the Twin Cities, Minneapolis and St. Paul, the Copper country managers are probably picking a team for that district and will put a good manager at the head of it. It is up to them to do this in order to be able to get the money on their trips to the Twin Cities for games with the team there. Not very many years ago good teams of amateurs come from the two flour towns to play Copper country teams, but always met severe defeats. Since that time, many Canadians have moved into the district embracing Minneapolis and St. Paul, and the Americans there have taken a more or less desultory interest in the game. For this reason it should pay there very well. Toronto is still being suggested as puttin gthe sixth team into the league this year.

One of the Eastern Canada papers says that "Chaucer" Elliott is again booked to referee in the International league and that he is also wanted by the new professional league in Eastern Canada. Perhaps he will go to the Canadian league, but he will not be welcomed in International league circles again, after the "great" work he did last year. He was especially hard on the Portage Lake team last year and it was thought that he favored the Michigan Sault all through the season. He made the Michigan Sault his headquarters. This town was Portage Lake's hardest chaser last season for the championship and the pennant.

It is expected that the question of the putting up of a cup, to be played for by the International teams the same as the big Canadian teams play for the Stanley cup, will be brought up at the league meeting Sunday. James R. Dee of Houghton made an offer of an elegant cup last spring, and it is expected that he will send the offer to the league meeting in Chicago.

Charles "Baldy" Spittal, who captained the Canadian Sault team the first half of last season, has announced that he will not play the game any longer. "Baldy" has played senior hockey ever since the men now in the league first learned to skate and he feels old age creeping up. Then, too, the hair on the top of his head is not what it "used to be."

It rumored that the great Pete Charlton, a veteran Canadian puck chaser, will be lifted by Calumet for its team of 1906-07.

Bill Nicholson, Calumet's goal tender last year, and who is just about large enough to fill the entrance to the net, is still in Calumet and may yet get the management of that team.

It is noted in one of the Canadian papers that Corbeau, who played part of last season with Pittsburg and part with the Canadian Sault has again joined the "amateur" ranks of Canada. Amateurism in the Dominion seems to be getting to be more of a farce than it ever was. About seven former professional players in the International league are now "amateurs" in Canada, under the dominion of the Ontario Hockey association, or the Canadian Amateur Athletic association. This statement is not vouched for, but items to this effect have appeared in the Canadian press during the past couple of months.

The ban of professionalism has been forced by a certain athletic organization of Canada on many of the players under the rulings of the C. A. A. U., and in the bunch is the entire Ottawa team, holders of the Stanley cup, a trophy which has stood for pure and untainted "amateurism" for many years. The members of this team are F. C. McGee, Harvey Pulford, Harry Westwick, William Hague, S. Dion, Alf. Smith, T. Smith, H. Smith and Arthur Moore. Whether the Canadian "amateur" associations will drop the charges against these players or not remains to be seen. It is probable, however, that this will be done.

The Americans are taking a greater interest in the game in Canada since the talk of forming a professional league in Eastern and Western Canada has come up. This will mean that the Canadian and American teams will meet often in pre-season, post-season and inter-season games. It is also probable that the leagues will ally their interests within the course of a very few years, and that the three will be reorganized, one in the East, one in the West, and the other between the two, the circuits of all three to embrace both Canadian and American teams. This would help the game greatly in both countries.

The hockey players of Canada, that is the great ones, are beginning to show the same contempt for the C. A. A. U. and the O. H. A. as have been shown by the players in the American teams during the past several years.

It is probable that at the annual meeting at Chicago, Sunday, a rule will be adopted by the International league against its players striking each other during the game, the same as has been done in the Canadian Lacrosse association. By this ruling any player who shall be seen by the referee to strike another player, either purposely or accidentally, will be penalized. In this manner it is thought that fewer "accidental" blows will be struck, and the game will be a much cleaner one, and the players will play the rubber, or puck, much better than they have ever done heretofore. This will be but another step towards the perfection of the game.

East End Juniors Win.

The East End Juniors defeated the Tenth Avenue eleven yesterday afternon, by a score of 17 to 5. The lineup for the East end team was as follows: Haire, fullback; O'Donnell, right half; Gonahue, left half; Zuger, quarterback; Dibell, center; Barth, left guard; Abrahamson, left guard; Smith, left tackle; Twohy, right tackle; McGindley, left end and Trask, right end.

Skating Race is a Tie.

Harry Webb and Phillip Busha whirled 'round and 'round the Lincoln Park roller rink last evening in an effort to determine who was the roller skating champion at the Head of the Lakes, but the contest resulted in a draw. Two judges were for Webb at the conclusion and the other two insisted that Busha was the victor. It was said that either one side or the other failed to keep count of the number of laps. It is probable that another contest between Webb and Busha will be arranged for the near future.

Sometimes it may be as important to one man to find a quick purchaser for a second-hand desk as it is for another man to find a purchaser for a carload of perishable freight. In either case it usually happens that a Herald want ad. is "the best broker."

PROSPECTS LOOK DARK

Little Chance of Any More Big Games This Fall.

High School Football Schedule is a Minus Quantity.

Schedule prospects are pretty black for the high school eleven, and once more it looks as if a championship team would have to be content to play with second rate schools.

The chances of getting a game with any of the Twin City schools are very slim, and unless the St. Paul boys are shamed into playing by the open challenge sent to all the Twin City newspapers by the Duluth manager, the local eleven will not have an opportunity of showing what it can do against the team which is claiming the state championship.

The Blaine game is also apparently off, and there is little chance of Duluth and Superior coming together this season.

The only other game in prospect this year is with St. Cloud high school. The Duluth manager has written asking for a game a week from today, and there is a chance that it will be secured. If this falls through there are no other big games in sight this fall.

The team is playing Eveleth this afternoon, chiefly for the sake of keeping in practice, and the score is likely to be a one-sided one.

It is unfortunate that when the team had such rosy prospects of landing the state championship, it should be unable to get its chief competitors to meet it. There is little doubt but that Duluth could give any of the Twin City teams a merry chase this year, and most of the supporters of the team would be willing to back it to the limit against St. Paul Centrals.

WILL BE SEEN IN DULUTH

Pictures of Gans-Nelson Fight Will Settle Foul Question.

Sporting writers and sports in general all over the country have been doing their best to determine via the moving pictures whether Battling Nelson really did hand Joe Gans a foul in the big battle at Goldfield, Nevada.

William Nolan, "Bat's" manager, says no, and Joe Gans and the dusky one's supporters say yes. Private exhibitions of the pictures have been given before newspaper persons and others throughout the country and still the argument is on.

In Chicago most of them have come to the conclusion that Nelson did not foul, while San Francisco bitterly denies this. Local sports still have an opportunity to judge by the moving picture method in the near future, as the original Nelson-Gans fight pictures are to be given at the Metropolitan.

It is also understood that Manager Longstreet is arranging for the appearance of Battling Nelson himself at his play house in December.

NEW GAME BEING TRIED

"Cross" Ball is the Invention of Harvard Gymnasium Instructor.

Played Upon Field Shaped Like the Greek Cross.

"Cross ball" is the name that Dr. D. A. Sargent has decided to give to the new game which he recently invented, and is trying out, assisted by his gymnasium class of Harvard students.

The game, which is a sort of an adaptation of basket ball, has perhaps greater possibilities than any of the popular outdoor or indoor games now in use. It is played by two teams of twelve or sixteen each, upon a field marked out in the shape of a Greek cross. It is the shape of the field that has led Dr. Sargent to call the game "cross ball." Dr. Sargent is the director of the Hemenway gymnasium, at Harvard, and has had a great deal of experience, which helped him to invent the game.

Yesterday afternoon a reporter for the Herald, at Dr. Sargent's invitation, participated in a practice game of thirty minutes, on Holmes Field at Harvard. Two teams of twelve men each lined up, and had a hard contest. The beauty of the game for exercise was quite apparent, while it contains none of the rough elements of football, or the strain on the player's endurance, so evident in basket ball. The field is divided off into five squares, with a semi-circle in front of each of the four goals. All the players are stationed in one or another of the squares, and are not allowed to leave their allotted territory. This allows the contest to change from one part of the field to the other with the ball, while only certain of the contestants can be in action together. Yesterday the Reds defeated the Whites by a score of 35 to 28. The game is still in an experimental state, but as the class plays it three times a week, on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays, at 4 o'clock, it will probably be developed into most of its possibilities before the weather makes the field inaccessible. Kicking as well as throwing the ball is permitted, and an intricate system of scoring has been devised. When the scoring has been simplified, and the kicking part of the game worked up, it will in all probability become very popular among young women as well as among young men.

THE HANDS OF PLAYERS

Some Knotted and Hard —Others Soft as a Woman's.

Brown Not the Only Three-Fingered Player in Business.

New York, Nov. 10.—Mordecai Brown made the National leaguers look like bush leaguers. And he did it with only three fingers. What would he do if he had four?

Just what the great Chicago National pitcher could do with four fingers is what many followers of the game are wondering. Brown, himself, however, makes the startling statement that he could not pitch as well.

The loss of his one finger gives him a wider stretch for his other fingers, and thereby permits him to grasp the ball more firmly than the average hand is able to grasp it.

Brown is the sensation of baseball this year. He is to the season of 1906 what Christy Mathewson was to last year.

Brown's work has aroused other interesting comment on the hands of ball-players.

It is not generally known, but there is a man on the Detroit team crippled in the same way. He is Capt. Bill Coughlin. The forefinger of Coughlin's left hand is gone, and yet it is with that hand that he makes those sensational steps that have won him a position this year by the side of Bill Bradley and Jimmy Collins as a third baseman.

Bill Bradley is probably the better all-around third baseman. He can hit better and is smoother in getting after bunts. Jimmy Collins, in his best days, was probably a flashier and more spectacular player. But on real hard work no one at third has it on Coughlin. No man knocks down the line drives that look good when they start for extra bases, the way he does.

And yet, he has but three fingers.

Baseball players' hands afford an interesting study. Some are harder than the molder's or farmer's hands. Others are soft as a woman's.

Coughlin's hands are hard as wood, and he has a grip of iron.

It is all in the way the player takes the ball. The reason some players are invariably hurt or have lame hands is because they fight the ball. They do not know how to handle a hot grounder, or, rather, cannot acquire the knack of handling it so that it will not hurt them.

Charlie Carr, whose disposition prevented him from being one of the best first basemen of the American league, probably has the knack of handling a hard-thrown ball or a drive from the bat down to a finer point than any other player.

To shake his hand one would think him a ribbon counter clerk. When an infielder threw a man out at first Carr would reach for the ball. As soon as the ball touched his hands he drew his arms back, so that the ball stopped gradually.

Kid Elberfield fights the ball and gets away with it just about as well as any other player.

He comes in after every infield hit and snatches it up. You never see the Kid waiting for a ball to come to him. He goes right after it, spears it, and throws him man out. Ofttimes if he waited, the runner would be safe. If Charlie O'Leary of Detroit would come in faster he would be a great shortstop.

Elberfield, however, has the trick of fighting the ball, and yet giving just so much with it that he does not hurt himself greatly. His hands, from his long years at play, are scarred and calloused.

The outfielders' hands are usually soft, and a pitcher's hands do not need to be hard. George Mullin, in good form, has probably the best curved ball in the game, and yet his hands are comparatively soft.

The catchers are the real men to suffer. Jack Warren's fingers are as gnarled and twisted from fast shoots as those of Charlie Bennett, who played in the days when there were no mitts to protect a man.

The third baseman, catcher and shortstop really have the most work to do with their fingers. And as a general rule their hands show it.

A CORNER IN SPORTS

(Special Chicago Correspondence.)

Quite a number of strangers are in our midst today from up Minneapolis way. They come down to see the football game out at Marshall field. Hope you get licked, boys.

Several of our citizens were seen at the depot this morning when the train came in from Minneapolis.

The clerk at the Great Northern house says the hotel ain't been so full since the fair back in '93.

Our town marshal, Bill Collins, says he ain't going to stand for any foolishness from the boys, and if any of them begin cutting up, they're going to get run in and put in the cooler.

Several Duluth people are put up at the Auditorium. Welcome to our city.

Mr. Field's son, who is running his father's store since his father died, says that he was sold clean out of Maroon ribbon this morning. Business is looking up, and Mr. Field is figuring on painting his sign over again.

Once more the slaughter of the deer has begun in the Northern Minnesota woods, and for ten days the poor, frightened animals will have little rest day or night from their relentless pursuers.

There are always some people—and they are none the less good woodsmen or sportsmen for that reason—who object to the slaughter of deer and other game, as purposeless brutality. This class of people is becoming more and more numerous from year to year.

Others there are to whom this side of the question does not appeal in the least, and who see in the sport only a clean, outdoor recreation. Certainly the life in the woods at this time of the year is well nigh ideal. The cool, clear, brachy mornings and the chilly evenings when a camp fire is a thing of beauty and a joy forever, are enough to make life well worth the living. These need not be denied the people who see only the brutal side of the sport. Hunting with a camera is just about as exciting and interesting a form of amusement as the stalking with a rifle, and the hunter stands far less chance of being hauled before a coroner's jury, or being brought to bay before an irate farmer over the body of some defenseless cow.

Like Alexander, the high school football eleven is sighing for more world's to conquer.

The trouble is not that there are no more worlds, but that the worlds persist in backing away and refusing to come and be conquered.

In former years the Twin City elevens have been known to keep Duluth dangling by a string until late in the season, and then, when the team is out of training and in no shape for a hard game, to suddenly consent to a meeting, which resulted disastrously for the local boys.

Such a thing should not be allowed to happen this year. The Duluth boys have a championship team. It is just as fast and just as heavy as any team in the Twin Cities, and there is every reason to believe that it is the best high school team in the state. The team should insist on a game yith St. Paul Centrals at an early date, and if it is refused, should claim what is rightfully theirs—the championship of the state.

GOSSIP OF OLD LONDON

What the English Sporting World is Thinking and Doing.

Jubilant Over Prospect of Another Try for the Cup.

London, Nov. 10.—The news that Sir Thomas Lipton has decided to make another try for the America's cup is received with joy by British yachtsmen. All the crack yacht designers are rubbing their hands cheerfully in the hope that they may be called upon to put in drawings for the new yacht. It is too early, of course, to predict the type of boat that Sir Thomas will select, but when the selection is made, no time, money or skill will be spared to produce the very best. With all their past failures before them, the designers say, that they can guard against errors of the past and at least produce something to bring the cup to this side of the water.

Miss J. Fletcher, a 16-year-old miss, is one of the most wonderful women swimmers in England. She has won the ladies' championship at Leicester and other events. Miss Fletcher is 5 feet 2 inches high and weighs 8 stone 10 pounds. In a swim for 100 yards her time was 1 minute 20 1-5 seconds.

Our football players are delighted to learn that there is good prospect of an American team paying them a visit and holding an international championship match at Crystal Palace grounds. If America sends a team it must be of the best men. We have good kickers here and they keep in fine training. An international football match would draw a crowd that would probably break all records.

Automobilists all over England will hold celebration on November 14, that being the anniversary of the day when motoring became legally practicable. There will be meetings and dinners and banquets galore. In this city several banquets are planned, and there will be speeches by prominent drivers.

Judging from the many clubs already established in Paris, English boxing has become very popular in the Gay City. Only a little while ago, French amateurs opposed the members of the Bels'ze B. C., and and now professional boxing is to be encouraged on the continent. At the request of several noblemen and gentlemen, Mr. James Lowes, so long associated with Ginnett's circus, Newcastle, will in the near future give valuable money prizes to be fought for at the Alhambra, Paris. Mr. Thomas Barrasford, late of the Lyceum, is the lessee of this building, where boxing bouts will be conducted strictly on English lines, and under rules that govern the sport on this side of the channel.

A deadlock seems to have arisen in connection with this, the first of the amateur internationals, arranged to be played in Paris in November. It has been already published that the French association wanted to play the match on the same ground and on the same day as the rugby match, and to this the football association objected. A new date will probably be decided on—at least, we hope so, as great interest is manifested in the match.

* * *

Boxing has always been popular in England, but this season it amounts to a craze. Bouts are held every evening in many of the clubs, and some of the best men in England, including many clergymen, are in attendance. Some of the clerical gentlement, by the way, are as clever with the mitts as professionals.

* * *

Judging by the football playing of the South African teams, the game there, in its elements, is much the same as that played here, except that it is faster and more robust. Perhaps England suffers from the fact that she is not able to enjoy so much open-air life as her colonies.

STORY FOR FISHERMEN

English Writer Tells Wonderful Tale of British Columbia.

Giant Trout Fought for Flies by the Hundreds.

About twenty-three miles from Kamloops, B. C., says a writer in the Field, London, there is a lake known as Fish lake, in which the fishing is so extraordinary as to border on the regions of romance, though locally it is considered a matter of course. For lake fishing, in point of numbers, it is impossible that this piece of water could be beaten. It is like a battue in shooting, the number to be caught is only limited by the skill and endurance of the angler; indeed, little skill is needed, for anyone can catch fish there, though a good fisherman will catch the most. Also, fish can be caught on any day, some days being better than others, but a blank day is an impossibility.

The lake is twenty-three miles south of Kamloops, and is reached by a good road, and there is now a small wooden house, where one can stop and hire boats. Ten years ago there was only a trail, which was rough, travelling on horseback, with a pack horse to carry tent and provisions. The lake has been a fishing ground for the Indians from time immemorial, and fish used to be brought down by them to Kamloops from a fish trap built in the creek running out of the lake.

I have also seen them fishing with bait and spearing fish at night; but the true bait for Fish lake is the fly, and, contrary to the usual case, the white man with a fly and modern tackle can make catches which far surpass any that the Indian ever made.

The trap has now been abandoned, and the Indians do not fish on this lake any more. From time to time half-breeds and cowboys came into Kamloops with stories of big catches of trout made with a willow bough and a piece of string with a fly tied to it. Sometimes 300 or 400 fish would be brought down which had been caught in this way.

This stimulated the sporting instinct of the inhabitants, and a few visits were paid to the lake and good catches were made, but the fishermen who went were of a very amateur kind. In the summer of 1897 an American proposed to me that we should go up and try what good tackle could do; in fact, he proposed that we should go up and try to make a record.

We went up in the first week of August, and the result far surpassed our wildest imagination. We fished three full days, and brought back 1,500 trout, which weighed 700 pounds, cleaned and salted. The first day we caught 350, for some time was wasted in finding the best places. The second day a start was made at 5 a. m. and we fished till long after dark, about 9:30 p. m., catching 650. The third day we caught about 500. The weather was intensely hot and fine, sometimes dead calm, sometimes a strong breeze, and at night a brilliant moon; but whether dead calm or blowing strong, it made no difference to the fish, for they were taken as freely in the moonlight as at midday.

Flies were abundant, and the fish were ravenous for both real and artificial; they almost seemed to fight for our flies as soon as they touched the water. Even when almost every feather had been torn off they would take the bare hook. We fished with three flies, and often had three fish on at one time. On one occasion my companion handed me a cast and three flies with a few inches of running line which had been lost by me not twenty minutes before.

This lake is a natural hatchery for trout, and its waters are alive with them. It is about four miles long, shaped like a boomerang. The margins are shallow, with a thick growth of rushes, among which the fish lie, feeding largely on a small brown fly, which may be seen on their stalks. In order to catch these the fish may be seen jumping up and often shaking the fly into the water. The best sport may often be had among these reeds in the more open places; but the fish must be held with a tight line and prevented by main force from taking refuge among the roots of the rushes and entangling the cast among them. When this occurs, a long willow wand with a salmon fly hook attached is an excellent means of landing a good fish, which could not be touched with a landing net.

YACHT RACES NEXT YEAR

At the Jamestown Exposition, Will be Events Long to be Remembered in the Annals of Yachting.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 10.—The interest of Emperor William and Sir Thomas Lipton in the yacht racing to be held at the Jamestown exposition in Virginia, in 1907, in addition to the enthusiasm of the Americans themselves will go far toward making those races an event long to be remembered in the annals of yachting.

The exposition is to be held beside the historic waters of Hampton Roads, a wide sheet of tidewater, comparable only with the Roads at Portsmouth, the Firth of Clyde, the Riviera, Kiel or the Sea of Mormora. There is at this spot plenty of breeze for the best yachting results, yet the wind rarely, if ever, reaches the magnitude of a storm beneath the sunny skies and langurous zephyrs of the region.

The spot is pregnant with historic significance. Since the birth of the American republic, this neighborhood has been the center of the nation's life, around which have revolved all its struggles toward freedom and advancement in learning and power to the splendid position it occupies today. Not far away is the birthplace of George Washington, greatest of all Americans, and a little farther away is the home in which he died, which is the shrine of all Americans, and those of other nationalities who admire high thoughts and noble living. It is to celebrate the national beginnings of the United States at Jamestown in 1607 that the exposition has been planned. Every stage of the nation's growth will be recalled at this great celebration.

The Americans have arranged, at a meeting held in New York in July, that the races shall be sailed according to the rules adopted at the Atlantic Coast conference in January, 1906. Canada and the United States have been divided into eleven districts for the purpose of the regatta, and a committee composed of one representative from each of them, known as the "regatta committee," will have entire charge of the races to be held next yeaar.

The International Championship races, in which several noted European yachtsmen are expected to take part, will be run off by the boats of the "p" class, consisting of 30-footers. This rating was decided upon by members of the Regatta committee in order to provite for a large representation of foreign yachts. It is probable that boats of this smal size, inasmuch as they may be carried across the Atlantic lashed to the deck of steamers —will be largely represented.

The Hampton Roads Yacht club, whose roomy, comfortable house is only a few hundred yards from the spot where the races will take place, will be the host of the visiting yachtsmen.

There will be twenty-one races on the program and several times that number of trial or elimination races. A great deal of attention has been given to the "free-for-all" races, which will be free to all in fact as well as in name. The only restriction imposed is that the contestants shall be sailing craft without auxiliary power of any kind. In this classification everything that sails, from the catamaran to the fishboat will be represented.

The matter of motor boating has not been gone into as extensively as that of yacht racing. There was appointed however, at a meeting, immediately following the American Motor Boat carnival in New York, in July, a committee representing all the prominent motor boatmen and the large motor boat clubs of the United States and Canada. This series of races will be known as the Jamestown International Motor Boat carnival. The several American associations interested in motor boating has taken a deep interest in the series of races to be held The events promise to be the most successful ever contested in America.

At an early date the members of the carnival committee will meet at Hampton Roads and will go over the waters on which the races will be sailed. These will, in all probability, be held off the end of the great piers, which will be half a milt long, forming a splendid landing place for the small craft attached to the warships, pleasure steamers and motor boats themselves. Features of these motor boat races will be the contests between the boats equipped with the new hydroplanes, which tend to life boats out of the water, and those not so equipped. It is claimed by advocates of the hydroplane that it will at least double the speed of the boat and lift its body, under proper circumstances, clear from the water. As this reduces the friction of the water to a minimrm it is of the greatest value in increasing speed.

King Edward, Emperor William of Germany, Sir Thomas Lipton, and several other noted European yachtsmen are taking a keen interest in the racing. Several of them have tentatively promised to offer cups to be contested for at the races.

The yachtsmen of France will send several yachts and motor boats to contest for the honors of the Exposition races.

TWO VICTIMS OF HUNTERS

Wisconsin and Michigan Men Shot—Minnesotan Fired at.

Ashland, Wis., Nov. 10.—Severt Hanson, employe of the Rib Lake Lumber company, whose home is in St. Paul, was chopping trees yesterday near Rib Lake when he was shot, probably fatally by deer hunters. The men ran away and he was nearly dead from loss of blood when fellow woodsmen found him. Efforts are being made to find the careless hunters so as to prosecute them.

Marquette, Mich., Nov. 10.—Mistaken for a deer, Lee Hall, attorney of Tonla, was shot and killed yesterday in the woods near Fibre, Chippewa county, by S. G. Miller, lumberman. The shooter has been arrested for manslaughter, the maximum penalty for which is ten years in the penitentiary.

Ely, Minn., Nov. 10.—Philotus Boreinski, a homesteader living ten miles from here, was mistaken for a deer by hunters yesterday as he was cutting wood, and fired at several times. One bullet went through his cap and another grazed his right leg.

MATCHES CHECK WOLVES.

Man and Wife Have Thrilling Experience in Canadian Woods.

Port Arthur, Ont., Nov. 10.—A man and his wife, who had been at work at the Tiptop mine near Kashabowie, started to walk in the evening to the railroad to take the train for this place. On the way they were surrounded by twenty-five wolves. The man lit a match when the beasts pressed too closely, and in this way he saved the lives of himself and his wife.

PINCHING THE WRONG KNEE.

Boston Transcript: The Archbishop of C—— was for many years fearful of a stroke of paralysis.

Seated at the right of Countess T—— at a brilliant banquet, he startled the guests by arising and remarking:

"Brethern, it has come at last—that which I have feared for forty years, a stroke of paralysis. I have been pinching my knee for the last twenty minutes and can't find the least sensation there."

"Pardon me," said the Countess, "but it was my knee that you were pinching."

Here's the last word on the Chicago-Minnesota football game, being played on Marshall field this afternoon:

Minneapolis, Nov. 10.—That Minnesota will have a satisfactory attack and a versatile one is the general belief of the rooters. Dr. Williams is one of the strategists of the game, and fully the equal of his old friend and college chum, Stagg, in that respect. Both are members of the rules committee and attended the many conferences. Dr. Williams has just as good a chance as Stagg to come to a thorough understanding of the possibilities of the new rules. Each was compelled, of course, to adopt his play to the material in hand. The result will be an attack in each case made more to fit the material than to play up to the new rules. This would, on the face of it, appear to give Stagg the necessity for a fast whirlwind play, but Minnesota straight football. Either coach may have something up his sleeve for the other.

It is going to be a great battle, but Minnesota should win. There is a general belief that Minnesota could have licked Chicago with any of its teams of the past four years, including the defeated team of last year, if the game was played later in the season. Minnesota can win if the men go on the field with the do-or-die spirit and free from stage fright. There is no need for stage fright, as the Gophers can lick the Maroons if they will go out with the determination that it must and has to be done. The men have had the advantago of a careful tutoring at the hands of one of the best coaches in the country, and it is up to the men now. The coach cannot help them after the whistle blows.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—The Maroon football team was given a day of rest from scrimmage yesterday. The usual one-hour fight between the regulars and the freshmen was omitted and signal drill occupied most of the time of the afternoon and then came a little holding practice. Eckersall got back for drop kicks and kept at this practice for an hour. All the time the scrubs trying to get through the 'varsity line. Only once during the afternoon, when Schoot kot past the halves, was a kick blocked.

An hour lecture was next given by the "Old Man," principally directed at the linemen. They were again warned in regard to the strength of the Minnesota forwards and that fast charging was the most essential thing for them to do on Saturday. The backs were reminded that it was up to them to score by their tricky dodging and fast play. Faithful training was pressed on the men.

The freshmen, well drilled in the Minnesota shift plays, were then stacked up against the 'varsity for a while. They went through all the shifts of the Minnesota team and this gave the 'varsity plenty of practice in shifting its defense to accommodate the oncoming attack of the freshmen in the role of the Minnesota team. This was carried on until dark, when the freshmen and some of the scrubs were dismissed and the regulars taken to the electric lighted field and put through some strenuous stunts with the charging and tackling machines.

There will be no Maroon cripples sent against the powerful Gophers on Marshall field on Saturday afternoon.

The latest pipe stories that the Midway eleven is a badly crippled one, is far from being the real dope. Stagg is carefully watching his pupils, and he does not intend to take any chances with his stars which might impair their getting into battle on Saturday.

According to a Midway dope artist, Fred Walker has joined the list of Maroon crippies. This same person declares Eckersall is also one of the helpless individuals. The truth of the whole argument it this: Every member of the University of Chicago eleven is on edge and, except for a few bruises, are in the best condition of the year.

All of the Maroon regulars showed up for practice yesterday afternoon. Stagg is pointing Templeton in all of the tricks in which the regulars are vested, and he will be the first eligible for one of the back field positions should any of the regulars be injured.

The only other game of importance being played in the West today is at Urbana. Following is a dispatch regarding it:

Madison, Wis., Nov. 10.—The Wisconsin squad was given its last scrimmage Thursday night before the game with Illinois on Saturday. The men were given their work behind closed gates, and in the signal practice the regulars were used, while in the scrimmage work it was almost an unrecognizable team that played at times. This is owing to the fact that some of the men are not in the best of shape, and the coaches decided to take no chances with the men.

Cunningham, the little 128-pound quarterback, was used at half for the scrimmage work, Clark being left out on account of his condition. Howard, full back, was used at halfback in place of Seissler. Curtin and Hosler were both tried at end, the place made vacant by Frank's injury, it being hardly possible that he will be able to play Saturday. Whittaker was in at center awhile while Dittman could not get into the game on account of his ankle.

Right at the start the 'varsity scored two touchdowns. One came on a fumble, and after the first three minutes of play nothing else in the scoring line was done in the twenty-five minutes of scrimmage work. The freshmen had the ball at times, and were able to gain frequently around the Wisconsin ends. Attention was given at this point, but the gains could not be stopped, and Hutchins is apparently worried over that phase of the work. Practice was had on some of the plays developed for the Illinois game.

The 'varsity left Friday morning for Urbana.

CALUMET & HECLA EARNINGS

Said to Warrant Dividends of $25 a Quarter As Long As Copper Remains Above 22 Cents Per Pound.

Houghton, Mich., Nov. 10.—The fact that Calumet & Hecla has made one of the most important sales in its history at 22½ cents, naturally draws attention to the earnings of the company. In periods when the construction requirements are normal the cost of making Calumet's copper may be safely placed at 8 cents per pound. It is well known that this figure includes construction items of every character. The possibilities of a mine's producing 100,000,000 pounds annually at this figure and selling it at 22½ cents are responsible for the purchase this week of the shares of this company at $880 or within fifteen points of the highest figure on record. The quotation of $950 was made during the last copper boom, several years ago, when the Amalgamated people sought to maintain an artificial 17 cent price for the metal. At that time $1,000 a share was bid for control of Calumet & Hecla and promptly refused.

For the current fiscal year Calumet's construction requirements are extraordinarily heavy, so that it is possible the cost may be 8½ cents per pound. Assuming the ability to sell a year's production at 22½ cents, there results a profit of 14 cents per pound on 100,000,000 pounds, or $140 per share.

At the present time Calumet is paying dividends every three months of $20, or at the rate of $80 per annum. In view of the fact that the surplus, made up of cash and copper, stands at over $10,000,000, it would seem as though there could be no good reason for withholding increased dividends to shareholders. A quarterly rate of $25 would be well within current earnings so long as copper remains at above 22 cents per pound.

The company has yet to show what it can do on the Osceola and Kearsage lodes, when operating them on a large scale but within the next twelve months, demonstrations will be made along this line which promise to add still further to the value of Calumet shares.

To President Agassiz, who is the guiding genius in the management, and who is now at the mines, is due in large measure the great success of the Calumet company. The policy of expansion in mineral territory which has marked the operations of the company during the past year, is his. The shrewdness with which the company's copper has been sold during the past twelve months has also been a most important factor contributing to the company's unparalleled earnings.

One-half of the authorized capital stock of the Keweenaw Copper company is now out-standing, as since Jan. 1, 50,000 shares have been issued by the directors as provided for in the company's by-laws for acquiring new mineral lands. Total capital is 400,000 shares. It is unlikely that more new stock will be issued. The area of the Keweenaw company's holdings now covers twenty square miles, as since the first of the year the directors have added 9,000 acres to their property, thereby nearly doubling the original amount of 17,000 acres. The company now owns a strip of mineral land from Keweenaw point to the Manitou property, averaging two miles in width and being fourteen miles in length. The company's standard-gauge railroad will operate trains regularly commencing, it is thought, Dec. 1. This road, which is thirty-two miles in length, will be further extended for a distance of twelve miles, in the spring, to a harbor at the mouth of the Montreal river. The Keweenaw's one shaft has attained a depth of 150 feet, sinking having progressed at the rate of about 100 feet a month. It is quite probable that another shaft will be sunk by the Keweenaw company in the coming spring. During the past summer exploration work has been carried on in various parts of the property with three diamond drills. But two of these are now in commission and work with these will be stopped shortly for the winter. While no official action has yet been taken regarding a stamp mill, it is known Keweenaw will build a modern mill, the site for which has practically been decided upon.

While no official information has been given out concerning the returns received upon the rock sent to the Franklin mill by the Tecumseh, it is understood from gossip that appears to be well authenticated that the yield has been about 1½ per cent mineral. The shipments thus far have amounted to only a few hundred tons, and consequently it is evident that no conclusive judgement concerning the results can be formed, even by those in full possession of the facts concerning the limited results.

A mill test must run into the months before anything conclusive can be known. But should it be true that the results are as good as has been attributed to them, it is a source of much gratification to those responsible for the undertaking. The Tecumseh's workings are the most southerly upon the Kearsarge lode, and occupy a position nearly four miles south of the Centennial. In the intervening stretch the Calumet & Hecla has three shafts on the lode which have yielded fair results. But in times past—say two or three years ago—arguments of the most persistent kind were advanced that nothing of value could ever be opened upon that lode south of the Centennial. Therefore the securing of good results at the Tecumseh will give satisfaction to its projectors in having their faith substantiated as well as in bringing returns to the stockholders.

Next year the Osceola should produce at least 21,000,000 pounds of copper at a cost well within ten cents per pound. In the best informed circles the fullest confidence is exhibited that for 1907 the average selling price of the metal will not be less than twenty cents per pounds, for which reason it is apparent that prospective earnings for he period are above $20 per share. Conditions at the Old Osceola will soon permit of an increased rock tonnage at a comparatively reduced cost. The south ground of the North Kearsarge is showing positive improvement with depth, and within a year or so its openings will have been extended directly under the Wolverine.

A fact worthy of serious consideration concerning Osceola Consolidated is that in the new openings this year more copper ground has been developed than last in the North Kearsarge branch of the property. The development workings have been more uniformly in favorable ground and consequently less dead work has been necessary. The two shifts of the property are sinking at the rate of 500 to 500 yearly.

Important advantages will be gained by both the Quincy and Arcadian by the purchase by the former from the latter of about 800 acres adjoining the Quincy to the northeast. It is estimated that there are forty years of life in the Quincy mine as it stands, and the acquisition of the adjoining territory, carrying the outcrop and dip of its Pewabic lode for nearly three-quarters of a mile, adds tremendously to the life of the property. At a comparatively trifling cost drifts from the newly equipped No. 8 or Mesnard shaft now down 3,000 feet, can be run north to prove up this ground, where there is sufficient territory for two additional shafts. The advantages accruing to Arcadian lie largely in the elimination through the above purchase of its floating debt, amounting to between $600,000 and $800,000. Freed from this burden Arcadian still has 3,200 acres in the heart of the copper belt. It is said that the Quincy people are to issue a small amount of their recently increased capital to stockholders at a price which will give them a valuable right.

The Isle Royale has completed plans for a power plant at the No. 5 shaft, and will sink a drop shaft through 110 feet of overburden to bed rock. It will then build an incline shaft inside this. At a point a mile and a half north of section 12 shaft on the Baltic lode, the diamond drill has entered the bed rock in search for the lode. There are no plans for a shaft there unless a good ore is obtained.

NEW MINING CAMP OF DULUTH

Situated in the Paradise Range in Nevada and Likely To Take Front Rank Among the Great Gold Camps.

Tonopah, Nov. 10.—Recent developments at the new camp of Duluth, situated in Paradise Range, about twenty miles northwest of Berlin and eight miles north of the old camp of Ellworth, indicate that it is likely to take front rank among the great gold camps in the near future. The original discovery was made by Fife, Bills and Nicholos last June, but systematic development work was begun only about two weeks ago.

Two groups of claims are being developed under the leasing system. Nine leasers are working, four of whom already have good shipping ore, and twenty-seven applications for leases are on file. On the July claim a two-inch streak of high grade ore was uncovered in doing the location work, and an open cut which was run across the formation has exposed an ore-shoot eighteen inches wide, which gives assays running from $216 to $4,728 in free gold and horn silver.

On the Climax claim, which adjoins the July, the ore-shoot is fourteen inches wide, and yield asays as high as 1,600 ounces in silver and twenty-four ounces in gold. The ledge lies against a phonolite wall, and Clarence S. King, the Cripple Creek mining engineer, who is interested in the district, states that the formation is the same as the phonolite formation at Cripple Creek.

Duluth is situated in what has heretofore been known as the Phonolite district, but a new district to be known as the Duluth mining district is being formed. A town site, which will bear the name of Duluth, is being surveyed, and the population of the camp is growing rapidly.

MINING IN THE BLACK HILLS

Deal Pending Which Involves A. D. Ticknor's Property in Bear Gulch Region---Important Strike at Ideal Company's Property.

Deadwood, S. D., Nov. 10.—A deal involving A. D. Ticknor's property in the Bear Gulch region is pending, and Mr. Ticknor has gone to New York to see those interested. This ground, upon which considerable work has been done by the owner for the last twenty-five years, shows remarkable values in gold, silver and copper. There is a great amount of free gold in the rock, and while the vein is not large it is estimated that with the development done about 3,000 tons of ore could be taken out yearly. This property is situated only a short distance from the tin mines at Tinton and near the gulch where so much placer gold was taken out in early days. It is not a great distance from the Burlington railroad and could soon have suitable transportation facilities.

Custer, S. D., Nov. 10.—An important strike has just been made on the property of the Ideal Mining company, situated about twelve miles northeast of this city. Work has been in progress for some time on a tunnel which was being run into Mount Dahlonega (Home of Gold) for the purpose of cutting a ledge, which showed 600 feet wide on the surface. This ledge has just been encountered in the tunnel at a depth of about 150 feet below the surface. While its extent at this depth is not yet known the values which have so far been shown are high. Assays made on this ledge at the surface run from a tract up to $150, while at the Sunbaugh placer—will make one of the biggest producers in the Menominee fields, in all probability rivalling the great Chapin.

The Leonard mine, which has been operated by the Leonard Iron Mining company, a subsidiary company of the Great Northern railroad, will probably be the source whence all the ore will come that is to be mined next year from the Hill lands recently acquired by the Steel corporation. The Leonard is the only active mine to enter into the deal, and as most of the other tracts have not even been explored, it hardly seems possible that shipments can be made from any other deposit. The Leonard has only been on the shipping list for three years, and the most it has produced in one year has been in the neighborhood of 300,000 tons. The minimum shipment from the Hill lands for the first year is 750,000 tons, a quantity considerably in excess of the Leonard's largest output. There is, however, no importance to be attached to the previous shipments of the Leonard as a basis upon which to judge what can be done there. The Leonard is a combined open pit and underground mine, but its present condition, while much improved as compared with the situation at the beginning of the year, is not particularly favorable to large shipments. The pit is very confined in its present area, an effort having been made, seemingly, to get down to the ore as quickly as possible, regardless of the condition of the mine very far in the future. As a result, the pit is now very deep for its horizontal area, and the ore most easy to mine has been taken out to an extent detrimental to the easy mining of the remainder. During last winter a new external shaft was built which facilitated matters materially, as formerly the ore from the pit was hoisted through the vertical shaft to which it had to be trammed. Of underground work has been done this season, but there is litele question that three quarters of a million tons of ore can be mined from the Leonard next season if desired.

There are said to be nearly a score of diamond drills in commission on the so-called Cuyuna range, Minnesota's new iron field; but, while considerable ore has been found on scattered tracts, it does not average much over 45 per cent, and is usually high in phosphorus. Among the operators interested are the Steel corporation, the Chisholm interests of Duluth, the Shenango Furnace company, Pickands, Mather & Co., the Federal Iron company, the Zeno Iron company, the Northern Pacific railroad and Snyder Adams of Duluth, the most extensive landholder in the district. Pickands, Mather & Co. have put down the only shaft on the range, but after cross-cutting and drifting a little, it was allowed to fill with water. The ore on both the property of the Shenango Furnace company and Pickands, Mather & Co. is of such a grade that it could be used if transportation conditions were favorable. The Northern Pacific is the only railroad available, and it has established an 80-cent rate from the range to the Head of the Lake, which, considering the low grade of the ore, is prohibitory. Excessive water, especially on the north range, also is a detriment. In a few drill holes excellent Bessemer ore has been encountered, but in general it may be said that the future of the Cuyuna is as yet far from clear. Probably in future years its ores will be much in demand.

THE COLORADO DISTRICTS

Important Strike in the Genesse-Vanderbilt Mine at Ouray---Big Copper Vein in Springfield Mine, Near Canon City.

Colorado Springs, Nov. 10.—The strike in the Genesse-Vanderbilt mine at Ouray, Colo., promises to be one of the most important ever made in the workings. A chimney has been discovered by a diamond drill forty feet from the main tunnel, in which the ore is black copper and runs 40 to 65 per cent pure metal. A drift from the tunnel has opened the ore at 20 feet. The tunnel is in about a mile and is being driven under the west of Red Mountain No. 1. The Red Mountain Railroad, Mining and Smelting company is owner.

The Bageley tunnel near Ouray will be driven 3,200 feet. The Brooklyn and Chippewa tunnels, same district, are being driven toward their objectives.

The Fitts lease on the Deadwood claim of the Stratton estate, Globe Hill, Cripple Creek, is shipping 18 to 20 carloads of $30 ore monthly. Picks, shovels and roadscrapers are used. The ore body is sixty feet wide and probably forty feet deep.

The Springfield mine in Copper Gulch, 20 miles west of Canon City, Colo., is in a 39-inch vein of almost solid mineral. Returns show 40 to 65 per cent copper, while the shale yields 17 to 22 per cent. The ore carries some silver also. A smelter will probably be erected in the spring at $30,000 cost. Ore is now shipped to Canon City and Pueblo smelters. The total width of the ore body is reported as seven feet.

PREPARING FOR WARREN'S OPENING

Force of Men Now at Work Grading the Streets---Parking System Installed---Will be a City of Homes.

Bisbee, Ariz., Nov. 10.—The work of preparing the Warren townsite for the public is now well under way, and it will probably not be very long before a definite day is set for the placing of lots in the new town on sale. All of the detail work in connection with the plans for the townsite have been completed, and for the past couple of weeks a large force of men has been constantly employed grading what will be the main street of the new city, and doing such incidental work as must be completed before it will be practicable to start building.

The first ground on the Warren townsite was broken by Mrs. Seth E. Hazzard very close to the foothills on the southeastern corner of the townsite a couple of weeks ago, and at the head of what will be the main street of the city. A force of men was immediately put to work grading this street, and at the present time 4,000 feet of the thoroughfare have been graded. This street will be 110 feet wide, and will run directly through the city.

At the lower end of the main street the railroad depot will be erected, and adequate facilities for switching will be allowed.

One of the features of the new town, which will not only beautify the city, but will also afford the children a playground, is the vista. The vista will be 3,000 feet in length, 200 feet wide at the lower end, and 300 feet wide at the upper end. This will be aranged in a system of small parks throughout.

The exact location for the water works and electric lighting plant have not been selected as yet, but this matter will be attended to in the very near future.

The first section of the townsite which will be occupied, and which will form the nucleus of the city, is the part situated in the basin formed by the surrounding hills. As the town grows the small hills surrounding the city will be occupied, and the streets in this section have been so arranged that no driveway is more than 5 per cent grade. On these small hills the streets will be built around and around, each new turn of the road being far enough distant from the preceding one to leave plenty of room for the construction of two houses, one facing each road.

The houses on these hills will also be arranged in such a way that the occupants of each house will have an unobstructed view of the rest of the city.

The projected street car line will occupy the middle of the main street.

The matter of naming the streets of the new city is now under consideration, and from reliable authority it is learned that there are several plans now in view. One of these plans is to name the streets of the city after the pioneers of the Warren mining district, and the other is to select euphonious Spanish names. It is understood, however, that the plan to name the streets after the pioneers of the district will probably receive the preference. In this event, the main street of the city would be named Warren avenue, or Warren street, in memory of George Warren, who is looked upon as the locator of the district.

The entire townsite has bene laid out in accordance with the ideas of men who are high in their respective professions. Warren H. Manning, the well known landscape engineer, was consulted on matters pertaining to the arrangement of the townsite. Manning's ability in this matter is testified to by the fact that he has been selected to formulate the plans for the laying out of the Jamestown, Va., exposition, which is now in contemplation.

On the matter of the architecture, Hugar G. Elliott, professor of architecture at Pennsylvania university, was called into consultation.

There is no doubt but that the new town will be a model of modern city building, and will be of such a character that the men who are employed in the district will have a place to bring their families. It will be a city of homes, and not of boarding houses, which form no attraction except as a place to live while earning enough to move elsewhere.

In the bonding of the town of Warren, the mining companies have only been following out the plan which worked so successfully at Calumet, Mich., where the miners own their homes, and where their children grow up. The main idea has been to afford a place where the miners of the Warren district might have homes to which they can bring their families, instead of living separate, as many are forced to do now.

Ilin company's Lake Superior mines, also will be off duty for a half year or more; he plans to spend a six months' vacation in Europe.

Apparently it is the intention of the Buffalo & Susquehanna company to exercise its option to the Hiawatha mine, in the Iron River district of the Menominee, and take over the property under lease. The workings were unwatered some time ago, since which time underground exploration has been in progress. Now, additional buildings, an office, warehouse, etc., are to be erected. The Buffalo & Susquehanna company also has taken over the Brown-Setgmiller tract, adjoining the Hiawatha on the southeast. This is a very promising property. The Selden tract, on which active exploration has been under way for the past year, adjoins it on the north, while on the east it is the Steel corporation's Dober mine. Thus, as far as location is concerned, the indications are favorable for the opening of a good ore body; in fact, it is already practically determined that the deposit developed at the Hiawatha pitches into it. The development of the tract will begin at once. Whether this will be done through the stopes of the Hiawatha, or whether a new shaft will be sunk, is not yet definitely decided. However, the lower drifts of the Hiawatha are already close to the line of the Brown property, and no doubt they will be continued into the acreage embraced in the new acquisition. The prospective value of the Brown tract has long been recognized, and only for the fact that the property was in litigation its exploitation would have been undertaken ere this.

The Hooligan tract is another property in the same field that promises well. It is in the hands of the Corrigan-McKinney company of Cleveland. A body of ore of no small proportions has been shown up here as a result of diamond drill work. A deposit, the probable extent of which is not yet known, has also been tapped on the Morgan property. The Cleveland Cliffs Iron company has a drill in commission on the Larkins homestead, near Saunders. This work marks the first advent of this corporation in the district, on the Menominee range, for that matter, although it has lately taken options on a number of tracts in this field.

On the Marquette range, where the Cleveland Cliffs already controls many thousands of acres, the company is steadily increasing its holdings in and about the city of Negaunee, where its Negaunee, Maas and other mines are located. Only recently the tract on the so-called east range owned by the Sterlin estate, also tracts owned by Mrs. A. C. Mackenzie and Thomas Nesbitt, were purchased, and a few residence properties have been bought up. In the Swanzey district, new machinery is being installed at the company's Stevenson mine. This property is one of the Cleveland Cliff's smaller mines, but next summer will produce considerably more ore than has been mined this season.

At Quinnesec, Menominee range, the 45,000 tons of low-grade ore in stock at Pickands, Mather & Co.'s Vivian mine are being loaded by steam shovel and shipped. Next to the Steel corporation, Pickands, Mather & Co. are operating a greater number of mines in the Lake Superior region than any other cooncern, although the most of the properties are not large as mines go nowadays. The company owns eleven mines on the Mesaba range alone, and is shipping from eight. Three other mines are being prepared for production and shipments. The operating mines on the Mesaba are the Mohawk, Elba, Corsica, Malta, Minorca, Troy, Albany and Utica. The other three are the Scranton, Bangor and Syracuse. The Scranton is a state lease, and the company has not been in any hurry to develop it, but it is understood that the property will enter the producing list next year. The Bangor and Syracuse are newly acquired properties which are now being opened up and which will go into commission next year. Pickands, Mather & Co. have about a dozen mines on the Menominee and Gogebic ranges, one of the newest of which—the Caspian, in the Sturgeon river valley—will make one of the biggest producers in the Menominee fields, in all probability rivalling the great Chapin.

as W. A. Clark and Mrs. J. K. Clark are concerned, will be paid in stock. The price of the Niagara is $260,000. It was owned by William T. Fitzgerald, Meyer Genzberger, John Forbis, the estate of William Forbis and others. The Raymond will cost the Butte & Superior company in stock and cash $360,000. Judge W. O. Speer owned a quarter in this claim and will receive $75,000 for it. Mrs. J. K. Clark owned a quarter and will receive a similar sum, while W. A. Clark owned a half and will receive $150,000 for it. The Constitution, a fraction, went to the company for $25,000, and the Four Johns for $200,000, making a total of $1,365,000 which the Butte & Superior will pay for the five claims in cash and stock. The Four Johns belonged to John O'Rourke, Mrs. Henry Nickel, Mrs. Fred Loeber and Mrs. Speckart, each of whom will receive $50,000. The Four Johns is considered a pretty good claim, but it has not been worked so extensively as the Black Rock or Niagara. No payments have been made on the Niagara or Richmond, but one is due Dec. 1. So far the Butte & Superior has paid between $130,000 and $150,000 in cash on the purchase price of the claims. It will make another payment on the Black Rock in February.

The East Butte company is just finishing up a large bin for the output of its Dutton shaft. The bin stands south of the shaft and will hold about 500 tons. Up to date the company has been dumping its ore in an improvised bin east of the shaft, and the teamsters hauling the stuff to the smelter or cars have done their loading with shovels. The new bin will do away with this expensive and crude method of shipping, for the ore will be loaded into railroad cars by way of chutes. The ore coming from the Dutton, or shaft No. 1, is soft and rather fine. It looks as if it might carry from 5 to 6 per cent copper.

The Ida-Montana company is sinking a three-compartment shaft on the Ida claim, one of its group, having begun the work last Friday. It is using a whim and will continue in this way until a depth of fifty or sixty feet is reached. By that time the company will have its new engine in motion, and the whim will be thrown over the dump or laid away for a well-deserved rest. It is thought the new engine will be ready in two weeks. It is a good one and will work to a depth of many hundred feet, 2,000 or 2,500.

The copper ore extracted from the old shaft has been shipped and returns received. It carried 5 8-10 per cent copper and some silver, which practically makes it first-class. The company is sanguine of the successful outcome of its enterprise.

The Amazon-Butte Copper company, organized less than three weeks ago, is making rapid strides in the direction of opening up its ground, located south of the Bullwhacker, for it is now moving the hoisting machinery formerly used on the Berlin to its group and will install it as soon as the work can be done. The group comprises the Amazon, West Altena and Gaynor claims. Officers of the new company say that they have secured the entire surface equipment of the Berlin group, which consists of a compressor, engine, pumps, pipes, gallows, frame, tools and appliances, all of which are in first-class condition, and also two boilers having a capacity of 125-horse power each, that were formerly used in the Heinze smelter.

The launching of the Amazon-Butte Copper gives the east side quite a boost, for in addition to the Pittsburg & Montana, which is operating about the center of the flat, there are six other companies and several individuals developing property on the east side. This number does not include either the Butte and London or the Colusa-Leonard Extension, which are practically working on that side. The six are the Butte Copper Exploration, Boston & Montana, Bullwhacker, Lewisohn General Development, Ida-Montana and the Calumet & Butte. The latter is working the Albert and Richelieu, which lay north of the Ida-Montana and a little east of the Altona.

The Consolidated Central Butte Copper Mining company, composed principally of Butte men, is preparing for active operations in its property, located in the Southern part of Butte. It does not intend to lose any more time than it can help, and with this object in view will have things moving in good shape in a few days. The company is incorporated for $1,200,000, in shares having a par value of $1 each, and has acquired the mineral rights of about 160 acres of mineral land. These rights take in a portion of the Noyes & Upton railroad addition No. 2 ,and also No. 1; some in the Trask and Central additions and also some in the Ophir addition, the claims in which they are included being the North Star, South Star and January. There are other claims. The South Star has on it a shaft 250 feet deep, but whether it will be used is something which the company has not yet determined.

10 cents. Last Wednesday afternoon this office boy sold his Mohawk holdings for $30,000 in cold cash.

Other reapings in Mohawk recorded in the Sullivan office were those of Mary Ryan, for sixteen years a servant in Larry Sullivan's household, and of Mrs. Peter Grant, whose husband is Larr Sullivan's partner. It happened that both of these purchases of Mohawk were made on the same day, the day, curiously enough, when Tommy got his tip from his boss, who is credited with a 'clean up" of a cold million on the rise in Mohawk. Mary, who had saved $500 from her sixteen years of toil, and who said she had bought Mohawk because she "got such a lot av ut for th' money," sold her little block of 5,000 shares yesterday for $75,000. Mrs. Grant, who explained to her friends that she had spent $300 on Mohawk "because it was such a tempting bargain, "realized $45,000.

Stories of luck like this could be written around Goldfield by the ream. And, indeed, considering the circumstances, this luck is only a part of a big spectacle. The palmiest days of the Comstock lode, the halycon era of Mackey, Flood and O'Brien, the best that ever could be said of Cripple Creek, these were pale and spineless sagas, compared with the saga that is being sung of Goldfield. What has happened to the Mohawk has happened only in a slightly less degree to the Jumbo, the Red Top, the Silver Pick, the Laguna, the Combination Fraction. And what has happened to those mines, say the wise ones, is bagatelle besides what will happen to the Lou Dillon and the Silver Pick Extension, nested right in the middle of the other big winners and yielding gold to the scratch of a rake. And what is happening to these Goldfield mines is also happening at Tonopah mining, the Montana, the Tonopah Extension and the Belmont; happening at Fairview to the Nevada Hills, the Eagle, the Eagle's Nest and the Hailstone; happening at Manhattan to the Consolidated, Stray Dog, and Jumping Jack, Indian Camp and the As-You-Like-It. Surely, these are great days for Nevada, with the greatest yet to come.

another foot of development work. The faces of all the drifts are in good ore, and the strike of the big vein is westward in the direction of the ground of the Snowshoe company, which latter is also owned chiefly by W. D. Greenough and his associates. A tunnel has been driven on the Snowshoe at a point higher up than the No. 2 of the Snowstorm and the same vein cut there. Drifts have been run east and west, but the ore has not been found of commercial value. The Snowstorm company is now engaged in running its drifts toward the Snowshoe ground, and expects to find the vein in the latter ground just as extensive and rich as in the Snowstorm, and will mine them through the latter. One reason for the economical mining is that there is no hoisting of ore; it is all sent from the upper workings through chutes to the tunnels below and then trammed to the mill or railroad track.

The property is in excellent condition, and the mining has been done in first-class manner by Manager Greenough.

It has been the opinion of mining men generally who have examined the property that were the Snowstorm located in Butte it would be worth $10,000,000, and its stock would be selling at $20 or $30 a share. It is capitalized for $1,500,000, the par value being $1 per share. For years it sold at 10 to 25 cents. Today it is quoted at $3.40 and thereabouts. Last month the company distributed $60,000 in dividends, and Manager Greenough says he firmly believes the mine capable of earning $1,000,000 a year in dividends when the new concentrator is built and when improvements now under way are completed.

week for thirty new cottages in the town of Newhouse, Beaver county, which is the home of the Newhouse Mines & Smelters Corporation's Cactus bonanza. The company is getting ready to materially increase its output and earnings, which are now figured by those who are keeping in touch with what the company is doing at approximately $2,500,000 a year, or better than $4 a share on the captial stock of the corporation.

A strike has been made in the Utahna company's property in the Dugway district, this side of Deep Creek. A full face of ore is exposed in the tunnel which is going in on the vein, and the ore, in adition to its silver and lead contents, carries 20 per cent copper.

The lost vein in the Talisman mine in Beaver county has been found again during the past week and the expectation is that it will make of the mine a heavy producer of rich ore again. The initial car load of ore from the Cedar property, adjoining the Talisman, was marketed yesterday. It brought the company close to $80 a ton.

A new and powerful steam hoisting plant is being installed at the Lulu company's Beaver county mines and a mammoth compresser plant is being put in commisssion at the Frisco contract. The first property adjoins the Horn Silver on the south, while the latter is a north abutting neighbor.

A sensational strike is reported to have been made at the Sevier Consolidated company's property in the Gold Mountain district. While prospecting on the opposite side of the mountain from where the mine workings are located, the superintendent secured rock on the surface that assayed $20 per ton in gold. He put a number of men to work, and within a week he had opened up ore that ran into thousands of dollars per ton in gold, picked samples going as high as $30,000.

Structural steel is now begining to arrive, and the building of the Boston Consolidated company's great milling plant at Garfield will go ahead with greater speed than has recently been possible. Labor conditions are also improving, and that will make a great difference.

For fifty tons of ore from the new strike on the 300-foot level of its property the Carisa company of Tintic yesterday received a little more than $70 a ton net from the smelter. The settlement check called for more than $3,500.

At the property of the Columbus company, in Park City, a big strike was made during the week. In a winze that was started down from the tunnel level in a narrow fissure, an ore body that is now several feet wide was encountered. The ore runs high in both lead and silver. The property is located southeast of the Little Bell less than a mile. The strike will help to prove up a new portion of the Park City camp.

is producing ore from a number of properties. Strikes are coming in from all directions and the promise is made that the winter will develop many new shippers.

The rush into the Walker River Indian reservation, which was thrown open to the prospector and miner on Monday, is reported to have been a rather exciting affair and the prospects are that trouble will result from the action of "sooners," who slipped in ahead and gobbled up ground with which they had previously become familiar. It will be a few days before details begin to show up.

A big combination of copper properties in the Yerrington district is being quietly worked out, and when the pending deals have been finally closed, it will be found that one of the biggest and strongest combinations in the country has landed a great area of valuable territory. Some of the work is being done in Utah and some of it in New York, while San Francisco will also have a voice in the business.

M. L. Requa, manager of the Nevada Consolidated company's properties, is again in harness at Ely, after having been in consultation with the big officials of the company in New York. The work of extending the railroad to the mines, and the building of the great mill and smelter that will be jointly used by the Nevada Consolidated and Cumberland-Ely will be rushed as rapidly as possible during the winter months. It is going to take just about two years to begin producing copper in the Ely camp, and after the start is made production will be rapidly increased.

The Pittsburg-Silver Park Mining company, operating the famous Blair gold mines at Silver Peak, has completed its seventeen miles of railroad from the Tonopah line to camp. The task was begun and finished, and trains belonging to the company were sent over the line in fifty-six days. M. L. Effinger, the company's general manager, has now gone to Pittsburg to meet the directors and arrange the final details in the plans for the construction of the 400-ton milling plant. He reports that the mine has now more ore that will average $10 a ton in gold in sight than the new mill will be able to treat in twenty-five years.

In the same camp the Silver Peak Valcalda company is developing an adjoining estate, and the building of a 50-ton mill to handle the $20 ore which the mine contains, has already commenced. It is estimated that within two years there will be 2,000 people employed in the camp of Silver Peak, and that eventually it will be the largest gold producing district in the United States. The district is located about thirty-five miles west of here.

LATEST NEWS OF THE NEIGHBORING TOWNS

Biwabik

Biwabik, Minn., Nov. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—George Weinzierl, one of the pioneers of Biwabik, who in the early days operated a churn drill at the Biwabik mine, returned to the village this week after spending nine years in the new mining districts of Alaska. The first six years he spent in the neighborhood of Dawson City on the Klondike. There he staked out several claims but failed to make a good strike and put in his time working about the mines and learning the business. Three years ago he went to Fairbanks, on the Tanana river, a tributary of the Klondike, and there struck luck. Mr. Weinzierl says that Alaska gold mining will grow larger and larger for many years. It is a big country and the surface has only been scratched over as yet. Experience has developed new and easier methods of getting out the gold and nowadays under these new methods claims can be made to pay big where formerly a man would starve to death.

He says that modern equipment for working a claim costs all the way from $30,000 up. The dirt is mined and hoisted much the same as ore is handled on the Mesaba range. The skips are dumped into a big hopper which leads to the sluiceway, where the dirt is washed away by water and the gold settles to the bottom. He says that big dredge outfits costing more than $100,000 each are now successfully working the sands in the beds of many of the rivers. These river beds are all frozen the year round and it is necessary to blast ahead of the dredge with dynamite. Wages for miners in Alaska average $6 a day and board or $1 per hour where they board themselves. It costs about $4 per day to board a man. They can work the year round, although the winters are very long and cold and sometimes the snows are so heavy as to make traveling very difficult.

Frank Faber, who has been delivering beer to local saloon keepres for the Fitger Brewing company for some time past, has retired from that business. He sold his teams and outfit to the Fitger Brewing company, who have appointed Fred Erdman to look after the local business. After this deal was completed Mr. Faber at once opened negotiations for purchase of F. E. Andersdorf's saloon business and the deal was closed Tuesday, the buyer taking charge Wednesday.

Miss Barbara Mundigan and Ira Whitney, both of Biwabik, were married in Duluth on Monday last. They will reside here.

Owing to the fact that H. G. Seeley is sitting on the grand jury J. C. Poole of Eveleth is attending the hardware store during his absence.

Rev. Larke, the new pastor of the Congregational church, preached his first sermons last Sunday. The congregation has decided to accept his services.

J. H. Silbar was in Virginia on business Tuesday.

Mrs. N. B. Shank was a visitor to Eveleth Wednesday.

Mrs. D. J. Eyer departed Wednesday on her extended southern trip.

John Johnson brought in the election returns from St. Louis river Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Nopola, St. Louis river homesteaders, were in town Wednesday.

Barney Kinney departed Monday for Santa Cruz, Cal., where he will be employed during the winter running a steam shovel.

F. B. Myers returned Tuesday from Minneapolis, where he conferred with the capitalists who will furnish the money for building a street railway connecting the range towns. He says his associates are anxious to go ahead with the construction and that work will begin just as soon as the necessary franchises are secured from the different municipalities.

When the affairs of the municipal lighting plant were placed in the hands of the board of public works a little over a year ago, there were less than 1,700 incandescent lights on the circuit. The first of last month there were 3,755. There are now fifty-nine are lights, all but ten of which are on the streets, the rest being in the business houses, the increase being almost proportionately as large as is the increase on the incandescent circuit. The increase in the receipts corresponds with that in lights, the total for month being $1,325.77, compared with half this amount the month prior to the plant's transfer to the board. While the increase in lights is very little, if any, increase in the amount of fuel consumed. Last month ninety-four tons were used, costing $3.40 per ton, while the average monthly consumption during the last year the plant was managed by the lighting committee of the council was about ninety tons. The plant is now in much better condition than it has been since it went into commission. The manchinerd installed is working well, and it will be some months before the plant is taxed to its capacity.

Among the reports submitted to the council Thursday evening was one from the board of public works relative to the street improvement work in October. The heaviest item was the cost of widening the ditching and curbing the road east of the city, the sum expended there during the month being $733.90. The other items of expense in connection with the general street repairs brought the total to $825.20. The street work has been practically suspended for the winter, but this does not mean that the expenditure of money in that department has ceased, as he handling of snow, etc., will be an important item.

The finance committee reported a balance of $25,027.12—more than enough to pay the running expenses of the city until additional funds are received from the payment of the taxes. Anton Hendricksen, the principal contractor in the concrete business here last summer, has just finished a tabulated statement of the amount of work accomplished this season and the time it took to do it. Johnson alone did three times as much concrete walk work as was done during the previous season by the three contractors then in the business here. The number of square yards of cement walk laid under contract by him during the season was 17,773, so that it is conservative to say that at least 20,000 yards were laid on the streets and in the yards about town during the summer. Besides this Mr. Hendricksen superintended the laying of 2,481 running feet of cement curbing and the street commissioner estimates that at least another 1,000 feet was laid by the other contractors. It is also figured that counting in the cement work done here this summer fully 1,000 barrels of cement were used.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY

Ancient Arms, 1469, of the Brewers Co., London

THE ART OF BREWING was brought to America by the first settlers of the Colonies, and the industry was generally fostered by Colonial legislation. One of the many examples of this is the act of 1789, passed by the legislature of Massachusetts: "Whereas the wholesome qualities of malt liquors greatly recommend them for general use, as an important means of preserving the health of the citizens of this commonwealth, and to prevent the pernicious effect of spiritous liquors; Therefore be it enacted, that all Brewhouses shall be exempt from taxes and duties of all kinds for a period of five years after the passage of this act."

We say: Most all Beers are wholesome, but ours is the most wholesome, and is brewed of choicest material, according to most modern and approved methods.

Physicians Use and Recommend "5-DROPS"

THE BEST REMEDY IN THE WORLD FOR

RHEUMATISM

Lumbago, Sciatica, Gout, Neuralgia, Kidney Trouble and all Kindred Diseases.

DOCTOR O. L. GATES, Hancock, Minn., Writes: "A little girl here had such a weak back caused by Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble that she could not stand on her feet. The moment they put her down on the floor she would scream with pains. I treated her with "5-DROPS" and today she runs around as well and happy as can be. I prescribe "5-DROPS" for my patients and use it in my practice."

DR. S. D. BLAND, Brewton, Ga., writes: "I had been a sufferer for a number of years with Lumbago and Rheumatism in my arms and legs, and tried all the remedies that I could gather from medical works, and also consulted with a number of the best physicians, but found nothing that gave the relief obtained from "5-DROPS." I shall prescribe it in my practice for rheumatism and kindred diseases."

Swanson's "5-DROPS" cures Rheumatism in any of its forms or stages of development. Applied externally it affords instant relief from pain. Taken internally it rids the blood, tissues and joints of the uric acid and other poisonous matter which are the cause of the disease. It never fails to cure Rheumatism, Sciatica or Lumbago. It has effected more cures of the above named ailments than all other remedies combined.

Neuralgic pains cease at once when "5-DROPS" is used. Nothing else ever discovered will afford such early relief or effect a cure so quickly. In neuralgia the nerves are inflamed, they throb and shoot from congestion and arrested circulation. "5-DROPS" hastens circulation, quiets the nerves and the pain stops.

Kidney Trouble, that most dangerous and painful disease can be cured by this remedy. It acts on the blood; purifying it, and at the same time cleansing the Kidneys of all impurities. It removes the poison from the system and restores the kidneys and liver to their normal condition. If you are suffering from Kidney Trouble or Liver Complaint, you should not fail to secure a bottle of "5-DROPS" at once.

"5-DROPS" will cure Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Kidney Trouble, La Grippe, Colds, Coughs, Bronchitis, Lumbago, Sciatica, Gout, Asthma, Catarrh, Nervousness, Backache, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Croup, Nervous and Neuralgic Headache, Heart Weakness, Paralysis, Creeping Numbness, Sleeplessness, Eczema, Scrofula & all blood diseases.

A trial bottle will be mailed free of charge to every reader of this paper upon request. Cut out the coupon and send to us with your name and address. Write today.

All that is required to keep in perfect health is to have the disease germs destroyed, the blood purified and the nerves and muscles

The Republicans of Gogebic county received a severe jolt Tuesday when R. G. Spencer, the Democratic nominee for sheriff, received a majority of 899 votes over the Republican candidate, David F. Foley. Mr. Spencer was the only Democrat elected in the county, the other party winning everything. The county officers for the next two years are: R. G. Spencer, sheriff; A. D. Johnston, Bessemer, county clerk; Oscar Ketola, Ironwood, county treasurer; Alex Strom, Bessemer, register of deeds; Charles M. Humphrey, Ironwood, prosecuting attorney; William S. Baird, Bessemer, circuit court commissioner; George Rupp, Bessemer, surveyor; F. X. Houle, Ironwood, John P. Mueller, Bessemer, coroners.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS CORNER

Little Biographies of Big Men.

Percy Bysshe Shelly was born August 4, 1792, at Field Place, the splendid country seat of his father, at Sussex, England. He was the first child of his parents, and when nine years old was the brother of four bright, gay sisters, to whom the world is greatly indebted for their many reminiscences of the subject of this sketch, for so little else is known of the boy Percy Shelly, save that which his proud sisters have told us.

To these sisters Percy was a most affectionate brother and playmate, and they looked with pride and indulgence upon the beautiful and high-spirited brother who was to them a hero. There was another brother, but being 14 years younger than Percy, he was never a companion to him who was destined to become so great. While the younger son—John by name—was still an infant, Percy was away at school most of the time, returning to the parental rooftree only during the school vacations.

But in their advanced years it was with the greatest delight that Percy's sisters would recall those home-comings of their elder brother. He would accompany them on their rambles through fields and woods, leading them to unfrequented spots where they would not have dared to venture without his protection. Even to the nursery would the fond brother make his way, joining in their games and leading in sports invented by him for their amusement.

Percy Bysshe Shelly when a boy.

And sometimes their youthful sport was more fantastic and uncanny than that usually engaged in by other children. It was the Shelly children's wont to deck themselves in strange garb, the girls representing formidable monsters—such as had never inhabited the earth — while Percy would impersonate the great devil. To add realism to his favorite role Percy "would carry in front of him a small fire-stove flaming with infernal liquids;" and one day when he set fire to a stack of fagots his excuse for such conduct was that he "wanted a little hell of his own."

In his young mind the Fairyland, teeming with fairies, demons and the Evil One bordered that land of romance into which his maturer imagination would wander in later years.

While still in his early teens Shelly could quote long passages of Latin at his father's bidding, much to the admiration and surprise of his mother and sisters, for he would embellish his speech by strong dramatic intonations and excited gestures.

From his extreme youth Shelly was prond—not to say vain—in matters pertaining to dress; though being something of a young dandy did not deter him from being mischievous at times in school. He was wont to blow up the schoolground boundary palings with gunpowder; once going so far as to blow open the lid of his desk with the same noisy explosive, to the amazement of master and pupils.

But Shelly was the born dreamer, and when still in his first school he would remain apart from the other boys during the recreation time and "walk backwards and forwards along the southern wall, pursuing his own shadowy thoughts." Even then the Muse of Poesy was whispering in his ear, filling his young mind with fancies which would lead him to wondrous achievements when he should learn the mysteries of her tongue.

When the Tree Talked to Harry and Lena.

BY WILLIAM WALLACE, JR.

Harry and Lena, brother and sister, went to the woods one beautiful November day to see if any nuts yet remained on the ground that they might pick and carry home. As they wandered thru the bypaths, rustling with dead leaves, they came to a great walnut tree whose strong branches spread themselves out above every other tree in its immediate vicinity.

"Ah, we ought to find plenty of nuts here," cried Harry, beginning to kick thru the leaves with the hope of uncovering ripe walnuts. "This old tree ought to have cast off many, many bushels of nuts, and some of them ought to be here in the leaves yet."

Lena also set to work to clear away the leaves from certain spots under the tree where nuts might be hidden; but, tho they worked for quite awhile, they found not a single nut.

"Pshaw!" said Harry, impatiently. "The boys and squirrels have taken them all—pigs!"

"Yes, that's just what they are," said Lena, sitting down on a great flat boulder to rest. "Only pigs would take everything in sight."

Just then Harry saw a bird in the branches of the tree, and, running down the bank to the edge of the stream, he gathered a handful of stones, which he proceeded to throw at it.

"I'll bet you can't hit him," laughed Lena. "But see how stupid the thing sits there, letting you toss stones at him—any one of which would kill him should it hit him on the head. I'd think he'd fly away."

Having thrown all the stones, and feeling too tired—or lazy—to go to the creek for more, Harry threw himself down on the boulder beside his sister and began to bemoan their ill luck.

As he finished speaking there was a queer, soft, muffled voice spoke to them—a voice that startled both and caused Lena to draw closer to her brother as if for protection.

"So you would kill the poor bird that has found a hospital in my arms, would you?" asked the voice. "Well, I must tell you that you are little sinners. I am the tree that is speaking to you, and I hope that what I am about to say will linger in your minds and that a lesson may be learned from me. The pretty bird that you have been trying to kill has been wounded already by a greater sinner than either of you, for he is a grown man and should know better than to take the life of such innocent creatures as birds. Well, he had a gun and he shot at the little helpless thing, hitting it in the wing. It was at the time in the air just over me, and, when hit, fell into my upper branches, where it lodged in a close, protecting fork out of the wicked hunter's sight. There the dear helpless thing lay for several days; then, feeling so hungry, it came out upon the limb where it now sits to get a worm that was crawling up that way. This just happened today, and, after eating that worm, the poor thing felt stronger and tried to fly. But the injured wing would not hold its share of the weight of the body, and the bird had to give up and return weak and exhausted to its present place.

"But, what I most want to say is this: Suppose all the birds were killed! Would the woods and groves and parks be nearly so delightful as now? Isn't it a sweet pleasure to hear their songs filling the forests and echoing over the hills and through the meadows? And is it not a pretty sight to watch the feathered songsters build their nests, and to see their pretty little fledglings come from the nests and try their wings, and then their throats? Why, it is one of the sweetest joys of my life to give shelter to the birds and squirrels. While I'm not proud of decayed places in my sides, which produce deep holes—for they are a sign of coming destruction to me—I am sometimes almost glad to have the affliction, for in them little sparrows and squirrels hide away from the winter's blast and find a snug house. Now, if I withhold complaint over these hurts to myself, that others might find succor, might not you—without hurt to yourselves—be at least humane toward these poor helpless creatures that add so much to our pleasure?

"And now I must speak of myself, which may sound selfish, perhaps. But even trees have their love of life. Indeed, trees have so much to live for. They give so much and ask for so little. In the first place we render a fine cool shade to travelers in the summer and shelter pedestrians from the showers. Under our protecting boughs the cattle love to lie when the sun shines hot in the pasture. And all this time we that bear fruit are busy preparing the harvest of nuts and fruits for both the children and the grownups, not to mention the bugs, the worms and small animals. And what do we ask in return? Nothing but soil, atmosphere and rain. Of these man gives us nothing. But often he takes away when he should not. Boys come and hack at our bodies, cutting the bark from our bleeding sides for naught but what they call 'pleasure.' But is it not a wicked pleasure to rob us of so much life when by so doing they gain nothing? And yet they love to gather the fruits we bear. Then, why should not they hold our lives as sacred? And did you ever know a tree or a bird or a squirrel to retaliate in any way when much abused and injured. Ah, you children have much to learn of the things of the forest, the brook, the lake and the prairies, for all hold their mysteries, and secrets which they cannot tell, but which your hearts can teach you if you but listen to their promptings."

The tree ceased to speak. A low plaintive chirp came from the little wounded bird in the tree, and as Lena and Harry looked up they saw it try to lift itself on its wings. For a moment it fluttered, then to the earth—right at their feet—it fell, dead! It had struck heavily against the edge of the boulder and succumbed. Lena stooped and picked up the little body, which was still warm. "Ah," she said, pityingly, "I never knew till now how precious your little lives are. Never—n-e-v-e-r shall I harm a bird or an animal again."

"Nor a poor helpless tree," added Harry, his face deeply serious for the first time in his young life. "I never—never—thought about such things, you know, till now. So many boys and men kill birds, just to be killing something, I guess, for they never eat them; they don't even go to the trouble of carrying them home. But from this day I mend my ways. But—Lena, do you really think the tree spoke?—or was it—it—our—hearts?"

"Whichever it was, brother, spoke the truth, and we must not forget what it said, be it tree or heart that spoke."

"Well, as there aren't any nuts let's go home. I want to tell Joe and Ned of what we heard here—what the tree told us."

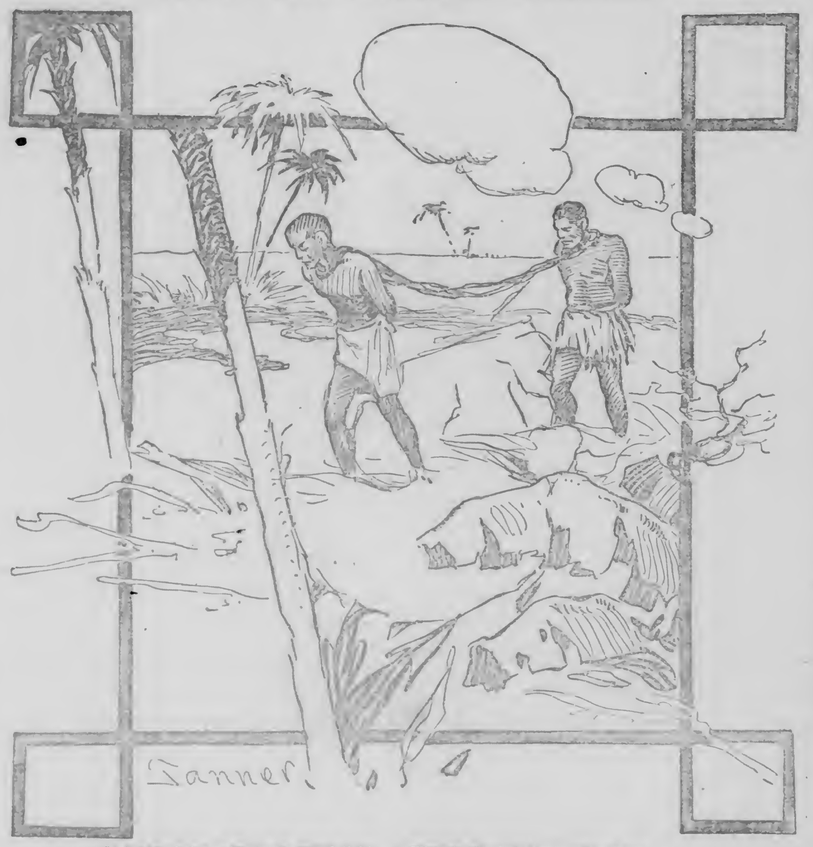

"Won't they laugh at you?' asked Lena.

"Let them," answered Harry. "If a fellow knows he is right and all the others wrong—then let the others laugh. The turn will come to him at last, and 'he who laughs last laughs best,' you know, sister."

So you would kill the poor bird that has found a hospital in my arms!

FIND THE SLAVE TRADER.

In heavy chains, with hands bound tight,
The poor slaves stumble on—
To lands both new and strange to them,
With all their hope now gone.

While boldly swinging out his whip
The slave trader—so mean—
Close to his poor black slave-men
In this picture may be seen.

A Jolly Time.

Oh, it's a wondrous lot of fun
For children, young and small,
To play they're men and women
Grown up so big and tall;

The girls to dress in mother's skirts;
The boys in father's clothes,
With whiskers, made of rope, on chin
And moustache 'neath the nose.

For the girls to entertain at tea;
The boys at golf to play;
Inviting all their young friends in
When they have a holiday;

To laugh and chat and gaily dance
Till they're tired as can be,
And mother's voice is heard to call
Her little ones to tea.

Excitement in the Sparrows' House. By Maud Walker.

Mr. and Mrs. Gray Sparrow lived in a cozy nest that they built in the attic of an old empty stable that stood in the rear of a ruined house which had been burned almost to the ground early in the spring. In fact, the house to which the stable belonged was simply a blackened mass on the day that Mr. and Mrs. Sparrow took up their abode in the stable, and they supposed that it had always been in this form just as the trees, the creek, the rocks and the sky had been the same since the earliest recollections of birds. So they gave the place no thought other than that it afforded a fine place to scratch in old mortar and blackened ashes.

And so Mr. and Mrs. Gray Sparrow built their nest in which Mrs. Gray Sparrow laid three tiny eggs on which she proceeded to sit, till one beautiful day the three tiny eggs became three tiny and hungry sparrows, two sons and one daughter, for Mr. Gray Sparrow to feed, as Mrs. Gray Sparrow did not leave the nest as soon as the little birdies were hatched, but remained either on the nest to keep her fledglings warm or sat on the edge of the window sill near by that she might keep an eye on them.

One day soon after the little birdies had come out of their shells, and while their papa was out in quest of food for them, their mama, who was sunning her feathers in the high barn window, made a quick little chirp of surprise; then she turned her head round and round, casting her eyes below as if making inquiry as to what the unusual sounds and sights there might mean.

What Mrs. Gray Sparrow saw was a man and a boy who were looking over the premises. "Oh, yes, this will do to put the horses in," said the man, motioning his hand towards the barn. "It is some little distance to come to attend to them, but we'll have to do that at present, for the house cannot be rebuilt for sometime. I had a contractor give me his figures and time, and as he has placed the price reasonable enough, and said he would turn the house over to me the 1st of November ready for occupancy, I gave him the job."

"Ah, then our new home will be ready to live in this fall," said the boy. "I'll climb up in the haymow and see how it looks up there," he went on. "I expect to have great fun on Saturdays up in the hayloft when the weather is too bad to be out. I'll be the only boy of my crowd that has a stable to play in."

"That comes of our living at the outskirts of town," remarked the man. "It's the only place to raise a boy, too; for a boy should have romping room and plenty of outdoor exercise and work. I mean to turn the horses and cow over to you to attend to. I had more than that to do when I was a youngster your age, and I'm glad my father knew that work—a liberal amount of it—was the finest ingredient in the world to mix with going to school. Study during the day made the work at evening all the more enjoyable. And the work in turn made me relish my resting spells inside the warm schoolroom with my books. It's a mistaken idea that children going to school should not have their chores about the home to perform. Work is as necessary a part of the education of boys and girls as are the three R's."

"Well, father, I'll show you a fine pair of horses after I've had them in hand for a month. They've got shabby-looking at the livery stable. And the Jersey cow that you are going to buy shall receive her share of my attention. I'm so fond of good milk that I shall see to it that the furnisher of it shall be kept quite like a lady."

While this conversation had been going on Mr. Gray Sparrow had returned to his home, but seeing the giant strangers on the ground right under his window he stopped—worm in mouth—at a safe distance away perched on the limb of a young and leafless sapling. "I wonder what that can mean?" he asked himself. And his heart fluttered for fear that some harm might have befallen his loved ones. But at that moment he espied his little wife on the window ledge, busy looking down on the intruders and no doubt taking notes as to their business there. Mr. Gray Sparrow chirped to her, causing her to look in his direction. When he caught her eye he made known his anxiety, to which she chirped back the information that all so far was well.

But even while she was engaged in conversation with her spouse the boy had entered the barn and was climbing by the ladder to the very place that Mr. and Mrs. Gray Sparrow called their own. But he came so swiftly and so noiselessly that Mrs. Sparrow did not hear him till he had set foot on the floor of her domain. Then she came in from the window and flew about over her nest in a most excited manner, fearing to go away lest the huge stranger do some harm to her babies, so helpless in the nest; yet fearing to remain lest he take her own life. Thus, between love for her little ones and the feeling of self-preservation (which is the strongest instinct of a bird) poor Mrs. Sparrow flew out at the window, then returned to fly out again, her poor heart beating so wildly in her little feathered breast as to almost suffocate her.

"Ha, ha, a birdie in the barnloft!" cried the boy joyously. "I hope it has a nest somewhere and that my coming here won't frighten it away."

But Mrs. Sparrow did not understand the boy's language and, therefore, did not know that he had no evil intentions toward her and hers. So, with a painful little frightened chirp, she flew out and away to the limb where her spouse sat.

"Danger, danger!" was all she said in their own bird language. And she sat close beside Mr. Sparrow, as if to draw from him some courage. But Mr. Sparrow seemed to have too little for himself, and, swallowing the worm to get rid of it, he asked if the little ones had yet been hurt.

Mrs. Sparrow shook her head sorrowfully, saying: "Not at the time when I saw them last; but by now——" she could say no more, and began to hop about in a frantic manner. But to the almost joy of the two they saw at this instant the boy coming from the barn, joining the man who had gone to the place occupied by the charred mass of debris. Then they quickly flew into their home and found their little ones safe, but scared almost speechless. After one of the sons could gain his voice he told of how the great beast as large as a cloud, and twice as large as the moon had come and peered into their nest, speaking to them in a voice that made the whole nest tremble with its power. "It was like thunder," said the young Master Sparrow, trembling again at thought of it.

"Well, we must hurry and get away from here," said Papa Sparrow. "You children must practice flying more today. Yesterday you contented yourselves with flying to the window and back to the nest. Today you must go further. If we don't go somewhere safer than this place we'll meet with grief; I'm quite sure of that."

All that day the little sparrows practiced flying, and once, being very ambitious, they tryed going to the sapling on which their parents had sat the day before during the boy's visit to the loft. But, alas! not one of them reached there. One dropped to the ground, 10 feet from the window, and couldn't get to the nestplace. One hopped onto the roof of the cowshed at the side of the barn, while the third—the little daughter—circled about just outside the window for a moment and gladly got back again on the ledge before her wings gave out.

Then, while the poor Master Sparrow was trying to fly from the ground, only to fall back again, there came the great monster who had so frightened them the day before. To the terror of the Sparrow family, he ran after the little fellow on the ground, grabbed him in his hands and held him close within his great, warm palms. Mama Sparrow, fighting and full of terror, flew at the head of the intruder, screaming and crying. But the boy did not seem to mind her and walked quietly to the ladder, putting the frightened birdie in the bosom of his shirt while he climbed up. Once in the loft, and to the astonishment of Mr., Mrs. and Miss Sparrow, he deposited his captive in the nest and walked away, saying: "Now, you little chaps shouldn't try to fly till your wings have grown. And you needn't fear me, for I'm your friend and want to keep you here all winter."

As soon as he had disappeared down the ladder Mama and Papa Sparrow flew quickly to their son, who was still trembling from fear and exhaustion. But when he told them as best he could in Sparrow tongue that his captor had been very tender with him, they all fell to marveling much.

Master Sparrow No. 2, having come in from the cowshed roof, was much amazed when his brother related to him his late thrilling experience. Then the family sat in council and argued the advisability of remaining in their present home till the little ones were strong enough in wing to travel safely to the creek, a quarter of a mile distant. "I really think we are safe since this behavior on the part of that great creature," said Mr. Sparrow, to which the others agreed. So Mr. Sparrow set out to get breakfast for the children, while Mrs. Sparrow, sitting beside them in the window to sun, sang the merriest tune she had sung since her days of courting.

The next day the boy came again, bringing two horses, which he turned into pasture. Then he climbed the ladder to the loft, scattering a handful of crumbs about on the floor. For a moment the Sparrows sat on the window ledge watching this transaction. Then Master Sparrow, who had been returned to his nest the day previous by the boy, decided to try a morsel of the delicious-looking food so lavishly thrown about. Flying to the floor, he picked up a big crumb. It tasted so good that he tried another and another. His parents, seeing there was no danger and evident pleasure, joined him on the floor and began to fill their little craws. And little Miss Sparrow followed, finding the bread-crumbs much better than worms. Then came the other Master Sparrow—all eating as fast as they could till every crumb had disappeared.

After the boy had gone, Mr. Sparrow, his breast protruding from the hearty meal, declared: "We'll stay here, my dears. This is the best layout I ever came across. Shelter of the best. Plenty of room and food fit for an eagle brought to us. Yes, we'll just stay here."

And there they are to this day, happy in their security.

Mama Sparrow, fighting and full of terror, new at the head of the intruder.

What Happened Then

Little Bill had tried so hard
To play all day in school;
To miss his lessons, one and all,
And break each sacred rule
That bound him to his duties,
And made him kind and good,
And taught him uppermost of all
That his dear teacher should Come first within his little heart
To honor and obey;
And if the Tempter whispered him,
To say that Tempter nay.
But little Bill was not the kind,
I'm sorry now to tell,
Who heeded rules or lessons,
Or loved his teacher well.
All day he had as seatmate
Young Mischief—bad, bad boy—
Whose only object in the school
Was to tease and to annoy.
So, when the teacher's back was turned,
He whispered little Bill
To chew a wad of paper up
Into a big, hard pill,
And throw it with all vengeance
Right at the teacher's back,
And little Bill obeyed him.
The wad hit, and went—whack!
And teacher, turning, caught it
Right on her pointed nose;
But before I tell what happened then
I guess I'd better close.

Washington, Nov. 12.—General Alexander McKenzie, chief of engineers of the United States army, recommends in his annual report an appropriation of $140,000 for the harbor at Duluth, Minn., and Superior, Wis., as well as the following for harbors on the Great Lakes: Manistique harbor, Mich., $100,000; Milwaukee harbor, including harbor of refuge, $129,000; Chicago and Calumet harbors, survey of Illinois and Desplaines rivers from waterway to Lockport, Ill., to St. Louis, Mo., $250,000; Calumet river, Illinois and Indiana, $170,000; Holland (Black Lake) harbor, Mich., $105,400; Grand river, Mich., $110,000; Muskegon harbor, Mich., $110,000; harbor of refuge at Harbor Beach, Lake Huron, $430,000; St. Mary's river at the falls, Mich., $500,000; Hay Lake and Neebish channels, St. Mary's river, $1,000,000; Detroit river, Mich., $300,000.

Other recommendations include: Boston, Mass., $1,430,000; New York and vicinity, $850,000; Southwest pass, Mississippi river, $1,000,000; South pass, Mississippi river, $150,000; Lower Mississippi river, $3,000,000; Mississippi between Ohio and Missouri rivers, $650,000 and between Missouri river and St. Paul, $400,000; reservoirs and headwaters, improvements of river from St. Paul to Minneapolis and of rivers in Wisconsin and Minnesota tributaries to the Mississippi, $269,513; reservoir at head waters between Brainerd and Grand Rapids, $100,000.

General McKenzie reports also that $16,052,431 will be required to complete the engineer work on projected fortifications. During the year eight mortars, four twelve-inch guns and ninety four rapid fire guns were forged, making the present total, 376 twelve-inch mortars, 105 twelve-inch guns, 133 ten-inch guns, ninety-nine eight-inch guns and 587 rapid fire guns. For continuing the construction of gun and mortar batteries, an estimate of $4,247,000 is submitted. For the purchase of sites for new fortifications, $3,310,500 is asked, for search lights and connection, $2,-987,700; for preservation and repair of fortifications, $300,000; for submarine mines, $8,352,819; for the construction of batteries in insular possessions, $2,-363,000.

Republican Governor-elect of Nebraska.

EMERGENCY MONEY PLAN

Financiers Working on Measure to Go Before Congress.

Bankers and New York Commerce Experts Nearly Agreed.

Washington, Nov. 12. — Committee representing the American Bankers' association and the New York chamber of commerce met in this city today to endeavor to frame a measure for the consideration of congress looking to the giving of authority to banks to issue emergency circulation in cases of financial stringency.

The plan outlined by the American Bankers' association at the convention in St. Louis and that subsequently presented by the legislative committee of the New York chamber of commerce are not greatly different, and it is believed that they can be harmonized so that a powerful recommendation for remedial banking legislation can be made to congress at the approaching session.

These plans provide in a general way for the appointment by the president, with the approval of the senate, of a commission of seven members, of which the comptroller of the currency shall be one, to have the same control over the banking laws as is exercised by the interstate commerce commission over the transportation laws; to be nonpartisan, two of the members being appointed for four years, two for eight, and two for twelve years, and after that all members for twelve years, but without being permitted to succeed themselves; to be charged with the duty of considering all applications of banks for emergency circulation and to decide the percentage of circulation compared with capital stock to be allowed in order to meet any emergency, and to rule when the emergency circulation should be called in. Safeguarding against inflation would be one of the commission's chief duties in connection with such circulation. Three per cent has been suggested as the proper rate for such circulation.

RACE ISSUE DISCUSSED

South Carolina's Governor Takes Temperate View of Problem.

Patience and Judgment by All Classes Are Urged.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 12.—Governor D. C. Heyward of South Carolina made the principal address at the opening of the Southern Immigration and Quarantine congress today, after declaraing that there had been too much theorizing on the race problem and it was time for action, he said:

"I do not think that conditions which are the result of years can be changed in a day by the adoption of any rule, or the enactment of any special legislation. To solve the race question will require not only time, but patience and judgement on the part of the white man and upon the part of the negro, it will call for the exercise of more common sense and a far greater proportion of his mral responsibility."

The governor enumerated the solutions of the problem, which had been suggested and tried from time to time, and all of which had failed. Of the plan to deport negroes, he said the deportation could not be attempted, unless it became a national, and not a Southern movement, and not only until the negro problem was better understood and more acute in the North than it was now.

"In course of time," he said, "the negro who is rapidly congregating in the cities of the North, may by his failure to meet the expectations of the people of the North and his own responsibilities, become such a hinderance and menace that our Northern friends may be ready to do something more than merely give advice to the Southern people."

Governor Heyward did not believe that the antagonism between the races in the South was as bad as it had been reported. "That conditions are far from satisfactory, I will admit," he said, "but I don't believe the Southern people are standing on a volcano, or that we are not far from a race war. One race riot in the city of Atlanta, condemned by the people and press of Atlanta and the South, does not mean a race war, any more than rioting in Ohio is a forerunner of a massacre throughout the North. Any solution of the race problem in the South lies as much with the negro as with the white man."

SUSPECTED MAN ENDS TWO LIVES

Bert Seely of Owosso Kills Young Wife and Self.

Owosso, Mich., Nov. 12.—Bert Seely, who was under suspicion in connection with the murder of Edwin Edgar in West Haven township last Wednesday, was found dead in bed today, and lying beside him was his young wife, also dead.

There was no evidence of a struggle in the bedroom, and on a stand near the bed stood a glass with a spoon and a white tablet beside it.

Edgar was found shot dead in the road near his home last Thursday. In the course of their investigation, officers found that Edgar and Seely had quarreled a number of times. Yesterday the officers secured from Mrs. Seely a statement that there had been a long secret enmity between the two, as a result of an imputation of Edgar's against her. She told the officers that her husband had been subject to violent spells for a year, and said that she believed he ought to be in an asylum. Both Seely and Mrs. Seely were to have been witnesses today at the inquest into Edgar's murder.

Des Moines, Iowa, Nov. 12.—Disguising herself in the uniform of a captain of cavalry and stowing herself in the hold of the United States transport, Dix, at Seattle, Mrs. Grace McKinley Heidt, niece of the late President McKinley, calmly disobeyed and defied the whole United States government and accompanied her husband, Captain Heidt, to the Philippines.

In July Miss Grace McKinley was married to Captian Grayson Heidt of the Eleventh cavalry at Fort Des Moines. They expected to spend their honeymoon in the United States, but the war department heartlessly issued

MEMORIAL TABLET RUINED.

Slocum Disaster Bronze Broken Up and Sold to Junk Dealers.

New York, Nov. 12.—The $450 bronze tablet stolen from the Slocum memorial monument in the Old Lutheran cemetery in Middle Village, was found today in a Brooklyn junk shop, broken to fragments by the thieves who sold it to the junk dealer for $14. It had been purchased by subscription and placed on the monument erected to commemorate the Slocum disaster, which cost nearly 1,000 lives. The police have the names of three young men, who sold the tablet to the junk dealer.

MRS. SAGE'S VAST PLANS

Bulk of Eighty Millions to Go to Worthy Poor.

No Money for Churches and None to Begging Writers.

New York, Nov. 12.—Mrs. Russell Sage will give away the bulk of the fortune of about $80,000,000 bequeathed to her by her late husband to individuals whom she considers worthy. It will not be given to endow churches, nor to those who write begging letters.

"I shall keep only sufficient of the fortune left to me by my husband to live quietly and comfortably," Mrs. Sage said today. "The fact that churches are endowed puts them beyond the necessity of work, thus making them indifferent and negligent along the lines where Christian institutions should do the most good. I mean to give to those individuals whom I think worthy. When I have left enough to live comfortably, perhaps I may not be annoyed by persons indelicate enough to beg for help as I am now.

"I wish to help men and women of the higher or lower walks of life, who, through no fault of their own, are so unfortunate as to need assistance, and too proud to ask. Such persons I deem it a pleasure, a privilege and duty to aid. Persons who were faithful and kind to Mr. Sage will be remembered, as I know he wished me to do so. In all my plans I am carrying out his desires, I am certain."

Mrs. Sage said she would do all she could, however, for struggling churches and institutions devoted to the care of the needy and sick.

MATCH CAUSES GASOLINE FIRE THAT FATALLY INJURES GUESTS.

Beloit, Wis., Nov. 12.—By accidentally stepping on a match, E. W. Clifton yesterday ignited a basin of gasoline he was pouring into a stove. Mrs. Edward Merritt was probably fatally burned and her son, Garrett, aged 5 years, was burned so badly that he died this morning. The victims are neighbors, and were guests for Sunday dinner.

MYSTERIOUS DISEASE CAUSES MANY DEATHS IN TEXAS TOWN.

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 12.—Twelve deaths from a mysterious cause have occurred in Marfa and vicinity the last few days, and the community is panic-stricken. Local physicians have been unable to diagnose or cope with the disease, and the state health department has detailed Dr. P. J. Shaver, state health officer at El Paso, to investigate.

FRANCE'S RACE SUICIDE KEEPS ON AT MOST PERILIOUS RATE.

Paris, Nov. 12.—Public attention again has been drawn to the national peril involved in the constantly diminishing birth rate by the publication of the vital statistics for 1905. This shows 807,292 births in France that year, a decrease of 10,957 from 1904. The marriages show a slight increase. Plans are under consideration to reward parents.

SHAFTER IS NEAR DEATH

Hope for Hero of Santiago Given Up by Doctors.

Acute Pneumonia Sapping Life of Veteran Soldier.

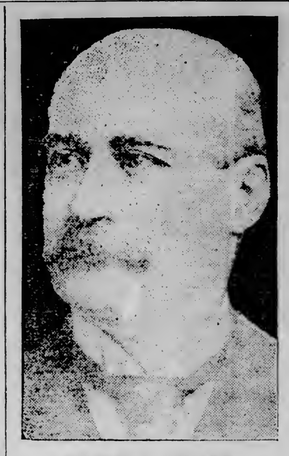

Bakersfield, Cal., Nov. 12.—At 9 o'clock this morning a bulletin was issued from the McKittrick ranch, stating that Maj. Gen. William R. Shafter, the hero of Santiago, in the Spanish war, was near to death, and all hope of his recovery had been abandoned. Dr. Mitchell was in constant attendance all night, and Dr. A. Schafer was sent for in haste. Capt. and Mrs. W. H. McKittrick and a cousin and nieces were then gathered at his bedside.

For seven days the veteran soldier has been confined to his bed, but not until Friday night was it known to the attending physicians that acute pneumonia was sapping the life out of their patient.

Yesterday the general grew worse gradually, and last night his condition was critical. Offers of sympathy and anxiety from friends in all parts of the United States have been pouring into Bakersfield.

WANTS ANOTHER TERM.

New York, Nov. 12.—President John Mitchell of the United Mine Workers is a candidate for re-election at the annual convention next January. Friends say Mitchell has decided to remain leader until the expiration of the agreement with the operators in April, 1908, in the hope of forcing further recognition of the miners in the hard coal field.

ENGINEERS GET RAISE

Lackawanna Makes Concessions to Locomotive Handlers.

Employes of Other Eastern Roads Seek Similar Favors.

New York, Nov. 12.—The demands of the engineers of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroad were adjusted at a conference between President Truesdale and the representatives of the engineers today. The men were granted a ten-hour day and increases in wages aggregating for the 900 $30,000 to $35,000 annually.

Grievance committees representing the engineers and firemen of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad and the New York Central met here today to discuss the wage and hours of labor situations on these two systems.

Similar committees representing the engineers and firemen of the Erie railroad have been in session here for several days and a poll of the Erie firemen to determine the sentiment of the workers on the question of striking to enforce their demands for higher wages and a shorter working day is now being made.

Grand Master Hanrahan, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, said today that the poll of Erie firemen had resulted in an almost unanimous vote in favor of a strike, so far as the returns have been received.

Warren M. Stone, of Cleveland, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, had a conference with Grand Master Hanrahan, and later met President Truesdale, of the Lackawanna, and arranged satisfactory terms with him.

NORSE ROYALTY BRITISH GUESTS

King Haakon and Queen Maud Given Notable Welcomes.

London, Nov. 12.—King Haakon, Queen Maud and Crown Prince Olaf of Norway arrived off Spithead late last night on the British royal yacht Victoria and Albert, and landed at Portsmouth this afternoon on a state visit of a week to King Edward and Queen Alexandra, at Windsor Castle. A series of festivities has been arranged, including a state banquet and a luncheon at the Guild hall.

The prince of Wales welcomed the royal couple in behalf of King Edward, after which all landed amid salutes from the flag-dressed warships and the land batteries, and took a train for Windsor.

On arriving there the visitors were met by King Edward, Queen Alexandra and most of the royal family, including the duke and duchess of Connaught, who will spend the week end as guests of William Waldorf Astor at Cliveden. The route from the depot to the castle was lined with troops, and the royal travelers received a splendid welcome.

CAUGHT IN DEATH TRAP

Six Cars of Immigrant Train Fired by Collision.

Victims Fast in Blazing Debris and Bodies Consumed.

Mistake in Orders Cause of the Terrible Disaster.

Valparaiso, Ind., Nov. 12.—Fifty persons, all immigrants, were undoubtedly burned to death, and their bodies consumed, in a fire that destroyed six immigrant coaches of a Baltimore & Ohio train at Woodville, ten miles north of here, early this morning. Forty others were injured, and were sent to Chicago.

The conflagration was the result of a collision between a westbound immigrant train and a Chicago passenger train.

Up to 8:30 o'clock only one immigrant was found dead, but as near as could be obtained about fifty were missing.

The entire immigrant train of six cars was burned, as were three cars in the freight train.

The fireman of the freight train is dead, and Fireman Culler of the immigrant train is badly hurt, and it is believed he cannot live. Engineers Wrenneman and Burke of the two trains, and Baggagemaster Snyder of the immigrant train, are badly injured. Both engines were turned over on the south side of the track, and fell clear of the main track.

The colliding trains were express train No. 47 westbound, made up of express and immigrant cars, and freight train No. 96, eastbound. The express train had 165 passengers on board, nearly all of whom were immigrants, The railroad company gathered physicians from every available point, and a wrecking train from Chicago brought others.

The accident, it is declared, was the result of the mistake of a train dispatcher. He ordered a westbound train held at Chicago Junction, Ind., to allow an eastbound passenger pass. The passenger train was running in two

MAYOR KILLS BOMB HURLER

Moscow's Chief Magistrate Quickly Punishes Bad Thrower.

Police Lured Into Trap and Mangled by Explosion.

Moscow, Nov. 12.—After a bomb that did no damage had been thrown at Mayor Reinbot on Tver street, at 11 o'clock this morning, he quickly drew a revolver and shot and killed the man who threw the explosive.

At Krasnoyarsk, Siberia, three soldiers of the local garrison, who struck a sergeant and an officer yesterday, were immediately tried by courtmartial and shot.

While the police of Tiflus were searching an unoccupied house early yesterday morning, an explosion, audible for a great distance that shook the entire city, occurred. Three policemen were killed and four wounded. The police had found some revolutionary proclamations under a bed in one of the rooms and went to a window and pulled aside a curtain. A flash of blue flame was followed by the explosion, the force of which was so great that the body of a sergeant, one of the men killed, was hurled over a neighboring roof. The whole upper portion of the house fell in. It is apparent that a snare had been arranged and the police lured into it. The police received a tip to search this particular house, which is located in the Tartar quarter of the city, and which had not been inhabited since the Tartar-Armenian massacres of last year.

CERTIFIES RETURNS

County Board of Election Canvassers Completes Its Work.

Total Number of Votes Cast in County Was 12,097.

The official returns of St. Louis county, as certified by the county board of canvassers, shows a total vote cast at the last general election of 12,097, of which 6,969 were cast in Duluth and 5,128 in the county outside the city.

John H. Norton, who was elected county attorney on the Republican ticket has the distinction of having received the largest vote, 9,217, although J. P. Johnson, clerk of the district court, was a close second with 9,200. Owing to the fact that there was no contest in either of these two cases and that in several precincts there was no vote at all on the clerk of the court it is likely that Mr. Johnson would have received a much larger vote if the voters had any idea that he needed it.

The next high in order were as follows: W. A. Holgate, county treasurer, 9,183; O. Halden, auditor, 9,149, and J. B. Middlecoff, probate judge, 9,128. Several other officials against whom there was no contest, ran close to the 9,000 mark.

As was stated by The Herald Saturday, on the unofficial returns, Governor Johnson's majority in St. Louis county was 1,413.

For sheriff W. J. Bates received a total of 6,829 against 2,656 for John Brady, Democratic candidate. Mr. Bates has a plurality of 3,173 over Mr. Brady and a majority over the other two candidates of 2,257, which insures his election by a very wide margin. The official returns also show that for county commissioner George Tischer received 1,293 votes against 1,045 for Fred W. Kugler. In the county outside the city Mr. Tischer received 115 and Mr. Kugler 28 votes.

Following are the official returns on the state ticket, and on the county ticket where there was a contest:

LOSS RUNS TO THOUSANDS

Insignificant Blaze Causes Big Smoke Damage at Silberstein's.

Early yesterday morning, fire was discovered in the third floor of the Silberstein & Bondy company's store. It was found in the alteration room, and had apparently been smouldering for several hours. A hole about three feet in diameter had been burned through the floor. A chemical engine quickly extinguished the flames, and no water was required. The store was at once opened up and aired as well as possible all day yesterday, and it was the belief until this morning that the damage would be merely nominal, but an examination today discloses the fact that the loss by smoke damage will run to several thousands of dollars. This loss is mainly on the second and third floors in the cloak, suit, millinery and infants' departments.

ANNUAL TAX SALE BEGUN

Forfeited Tax Sales Made of City and County Property.

Attendance Good But the Bidding is Very Light.

The auditor's annual forfeited tax sale began at the courthouse this morning and will be continued from day to day until the whole list has been gone over.

Although there was quite a large attendance of people at the sale, there was little bidding, due, it is said, from the fact that the list had been threshed over and over again in years gone by, until all the desirable property has been picked up by those who have wished to secure tax titles.

About one out of every fifty lots offered for sale this morning was sold. The law requires the purchaser to pay the taxes and penalties, and in thousands of cases the sum total is a great deal more than the property is worth now or, for that matter, ever will be worth.

The sale had proceeded but part way through the delinquent list of city property up to this noon, and it was expected that the city list would hardly be finished by this evening.

As there is a big list of forfeited taxes on lands in the county outside of the city, it is probable that the sale will not be completed before Tuesday evening, probably not until Wednesday.

About the best price paid this morning was in the neighborhood of $250 by J. Allyn Scott, who bought a tax title to some West Duluth lots.

Accidents will happen, but the best-regulated families keep Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil for such contingencies. It subdues the pain and heals the hurts.

TREZONA FILES REPLY TO ANSWER

Claims He Has Abstained From Liquor for Nearly a Year.

Capt. John J. Trezona of Eveleth, who has sued Capt. S. Penna for $10,000 for the alleged alienation of Mrs. Trezona's affections, has filed in the district court his reply to Penna's answer to the complaint.

Capt. Trezona admits that about Nov. 20, 1905, he took treatment at a Minneapolis institution for the liquor habit. He claims that he was benefited, and that from Dec. 20, 1905, when the treatment stopped, he has not touched intoxicating liquors of any kind.

Capt. Trezona further asserts that when he left Eveleth to go to Minneapolis, he left his wife well supplied with food, clothing and all other necessaries of life. He denies all other allegations set up in the amended complaint, except such as may be admissions on the part of Capt. Trezona to the things charged in the complaint.

THE ARGENTINA COWBOY.

Our friend the gaucho is as much in evidence along the line to the west as to the south in Argentina, says the Los Angeles Times. He still sticks to the inevitable poncho, but he has discarded the chiripa, a blanketlike garment that the Southern gaucho wears around his legs, or bombachos, which is the name for absolutely the largest trousers on record.

The bombachos in the first place were, I believe, brought to Argentina by the Basques. The things went straight to the heart of the gaucho and he adopted them at once. Only he has steadily insisted on amplifying them, until today one leg of a pair of bombachos will house a small family. There is no particular point of utility to be urged for these windbags, but they serve to make their wearer a conspicuous figure when he rides into town, which is reason enough for the gaucho.

The recado or saddle used in the West is much the same as in the South. It consists of a couple of smooth pieces of wood to be laid on a blanket behind the horse's withers. Over these several thicknesses of fleece or soft blankets are strapped, a pair of stirrups thrown over the whole, and the recado is ready for use. This sounds like a crude arrangement, and such it often is; nevertheless I have heard a number of Englishmen who have used it claim that the recado gives a knee grip in the soft blankets that insures a seat more sure than that possible in any saddle of hard leather.

The most inseparable companion of the gaucho of the West is his ribenka, or whip. This has a heavily-loaded handle about a foot and a half long, which terminates in a thick single or double thong of rawhide of the same length as the handle. The handle is sometimes covered with hide, or, again, heavily inlaid with silver. A blow from the handle of a ribenka will fell a horse, and a cut from its lash will tear open a gash in the flank of a tough-skinned mule.

The gaucho of the South fights with his knofe in one hand and his folded poncho in the other as a shield. The Western gaucho substitutes the ribenka for the poncho, and must make a far more formidable opponent. His great facon, or knife, reposes most of the time in his belt; his ribenka never leaves his hand during the day, and at night he sleeps with the thong of it about his wrist.

BOY POISONED HIMSELF.

Rome, Wis., Nov. 12.—Mrs. John Peleison of this town is in the deepest sorrow. She found a love letter in the pocket of her 12-year-old son, from a girl of 11, and she locked him up in his room after administering a sound spanking. When she went to unlock the door she found the little chap dead. A cup that bore evidences of poison told the tale.

BANK WRECKER LOSES APPEAL

Aged President of Faribault First National Must Serve Term.

St. Paul, Nov. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Adams of the United States circuit court of appeals today overruled the appeal of Thomas B. Clement from the order of the United States circuit court committing him to the penitentiary at Stillwater for eight years on conviction of being responsible for the failure of the First National bank of aFribault, Minn. Judges Sanborn and Hook concurred in the opinion.

Clement, who is over 70 years of age, was president of the Faribault bank which was closed by order of the comptroller of the currency at Washington in January 1904. He was convicted of twenty-four of the twenty-seven counts of the indictment brought against him and sentenced to serve eight years on each count but with the provision that the terms should be served concurrently.

Spencer Kellogg Company Gets Another and Will Build Mill.

The Spencer Kellogg company, the big oil crushing firm which is one of the big factors in the Duluth flax market, has bought another elevator at Buffalo, the Coatsworth house, and will take possession April 1, 1907. It is situated on the opposite side of the slip from the elevator owned there now by the company, and has a capacity of 750,000 bushels. It is the purpose of the Spencer Kellogg company to erect another linseed oil mill at once and orders for twenty-four presses have already been placed. This will give the company eighty-six presses with a crushing capacity of 8,000,000 bushels annually.

GETTING RID OF PIRATES.

A reader who arrived at Hongkong from Wuchow informs us that on Sunday, when he left Wuchow, there was a great clanging of gongs and blowing of whistles, says the South China Post. The people were in a most excited state of mind and crowded the streets and housetops.

Inquiry as to the usual state of affairs elicited the information that seventeen of the most notorious robbers of the district, men who had kept the inhabitants in terror for a long time past, had paid the penalty of their misdeeds. It being impossible for the authorities to effect their arrest in the ordinary way, the taotai of the district enticed the robbers to his yamen by making an offer of a free pardon and other inducements to abandon their nefarious practices.

No fewer than seventeen of the ruffians swallowed the bait. Sixteen entered the yamen and were promptly surrounded by troops and made prisoners. One man escaped from the compound into the street, and ran for dear life. Another—the seventeenth man—suspected a trap and took to his heels without entering the official residence. Meanwhile the troops were not handling the fifteen captives very gently. They were promptly disarmed and without much ado were stripped and cut into a thousand pieces.

The enraged populace were not long in securing the two runaways, and they met their end in the same manner in the streets. There was great rejoicing afterward, and it is hoped that this lesson will have a deterrent effect on others whose haunts may be in the neighborhood.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

It would take an hysterical Jack London to look down beneath the outward seeming of things in the so lacking in any thrilling episodes, settlers to the number of some 200 are waiting for the opening of the land office, to see the primeval injustice that isn't there, and the deathlike, unending struggle that isn't going on. A visit to the corridor is so lacking in any thrillign episodes, and yet there is so much sort of hanging around in the air, beside smoke, that one instinctively thinks of the too brutal John, who can see fights, skirmishes and principles and injustices of nature, and dozen of other things, to the length of any number of pages, in the most ordinary happenings of everyday life.

The mere announcement that a lot of people are waiting for Tuesday or Wednesday or Thursday morning, camped out temporarily in the federal building, does not mean a great deal, so a casual visit is worth most anybody's time. The corridor is teeming with people. They sit around on chairs, and anybody who says the day of the campaign cigar is over would better take a walk down that corridor, lined on both sides with men, who have nothing to take up their immediate attention but you and cigars.

There are great browsy woodsmen, which means men some six feet in height, with the swing and power and life that sort of shows that they know how to appreciate life on a stone and timber or agricultural land, or what-ever it is that they are going to have. There is an occasional good-looking young fellow, with an eye to the picturesque, with his sleeves rolled up elbow high, displaying a beautiful pair of nice brown arms, and with his clothes in rather cut-of-door disorder, and a cunning pipe hung at the corner of his mouth. He looks, the one or two of him that is in evidence, like the picture off the front of the Saturday Evening Post—and he knows it.

But along down the line from a big chair, made comfy and soft with two or three fur coats, the interested gaze of an Indian maiden greets one, and the most interesting and charmingly receptive of the hosts in the halls of the building, is there. The aloofness and disinclination to talk of her race is not a characteristic of Miss Mary Beargrease, who is waiting for the opening of the land for filing, and she tells you, in the most friendly way, of her cabin in the woods, and of her life there alone.

"But what do you do?" gasps the astonished city person, who can scarce imagine a day spent all alone, let alone months at a time.

Miss Mary gives a little indulgent chuckle, and says: "Oh, I go out each day and saw up a couple of blocks of wood, and then I walk around my land."

The beauty of that pronoun of possession almost made the interviewer decide to file on land herself, if the opportunity ever came.

"My grandmother is there now and, of course, the folks come down with the supplies occasionally, and I have a gun now, and when I go home I'm going hunting for deer."

"To kill it?"

"Of course to kill it," said the Indian girl, in a rather expressionless voice, that intimated, "Why not? Aren't deer made to kill?" and the subject was dropped, except for a further soft sigh: "and I'm afraid, now that I have the gun, I'll never see one, for when I had only a gun too small to kill a deer they met me in the forest all the time."

With her kindly courtesy and ready conversation, Miss Mary Beargrease upset for eternity all the preconceived ideas of taciturnity of the Indian, but perhaps the young woman is a woman first, and then a daughter of her race. After a half hour's interesting talk, she called out cheerliy, "Come again," to her self-invited visitor, and lolled back to peruse further a few of the papers and magazines with which she was plentifully supplied.

WED AT SEATTLE.

Miss Dickinson and H. L. Billson Are Married.

Announcements have been received from Mrs. D. A. Dickinson from Seattle of the marriage of her daughter, Miss Anna Dickinson and Harfold L. Billson. The wedding took place Tuesday evening of last week at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Albert Speyers of Seattle, the service being read at 6 o'clock. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Billson of this city. During the week preceding the wedding, Miss Dickinson was the guest of honor at several beautiful functions at Seattle. Mr. and Mrs. Billson left Tuesday for their home at Pasadena. Mrs. Dickinson will remain at Seattle until just before the holidays.

REPORTS ARE HEARD

Of Winona Meeting by Guests of Saturday Club.

A large number of the local club women and a delegation of prominent club women of Superior, were the guests of the members of the Saturday club at a meeting Saturday afternoon, at which reports of the delegates from the various clubs of the city to the annual meeting of the Minnesota State Federation of Women's club held last month at Winona, were presented. The gathering was a most representative one, and the report of the delegates and the annual president's address given by Mrs. J. L. Washburn, made a most delightful afternoon. The members of the club were especially pleased at the large number of Superior club women in attendance and the meeting was perhaps the most successful of the meetings ever held in the city to hear federation reports.

The business of the federation was the first report given by Mrs. R. E. Denfeld, who told in an interesting manner of the details of the sessions of the annual meeting and the social features and music were told of by Mrs. J. A. Keyes who voiced a gracious acknowledgement of the warm hospitality of the Winona women.

Mrs. H. C. Marshall sopke of Household Economies and Art, quoting in detail from the paper of Mrs. Margaret Blair of the State Agricultural college whose work among the students of that institution is widely known. Mrs. Marshall also spoke of the address before the federation meeting of Mrs. Robert Morris Seymour of this city.

The work of the Juvenile courts was the subject of Mrs. S. E. Matter's report, and she spoke in detail of the address of Judge Tuthill of Chicago. Reform and Education were the phases of the meeting which were presented by Mrs. J. C. Swan and Mrs. A. H. Brockleburst, and the program closed with the president's annual address. Following the meeting an informal social hour was enjoyed, and the meeting was a most successful one.

Lecture Tonight.

"Pippa Passes" will be the subject of the first of the lectures presented at the Evening Browning class of the Twentieth Century club, this evening at 7:45 o'clock at the club room of the library. The lectures will not be a repetition of those presented at the morning class and any one interested in the study of Browning is invited to attend the lecture this evening.

Reception.

Mr. and Mrs. William Wardell of honor of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Stewart, 1113 East Third street, will entertain at a reception tomorrow evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Stewart. The guests of honor will leave the latter part of the week for Seattle, Wash., where they will make their home. Mr. and Mrs. Stewart have lived in Duluth for the past fifteen years and have a large number of friends in the city.

Events of Interest.

The literary class of the Twentieth Century club will meet tomorrow afternoon at the club rooms of the library. The principle speaker of the afternoon will be Mrs. Stella Prince Stocker and the study of German poetry will be continued. Anyone interested is invited to attend.

The Ladies' Aid society of Plymouth Congregational church will meet tomorrow afternoon with Mrs. Swangie of 10 South Fifty-eighth avenue west.

What Retail Markets Offer

Eggs, 32 cents a doz.

Quamquots, 50 cents a quart box.

Brussell sprouts, 35 cents a quart.

Beef stew, 8 cents a lb.

Beef kidneys for stew, 8 cents each.

Lamb stew, 8 and 12 cents a lb.

Veal stew, 12 cents a lb.

Eggs, 32 cents a dozen. Well, did you ever? Thirty-two cents! For eggs. After one gets over the cold, cruel, mercenary shock of the thing it is rather comforting after all. It is an evidence of the hope and opportunity held out to the lowliest in this great land of freedom. Who would ever imagine that little scrubby farm yard hens would come to such a position in life that they are carefully guarded, tenderly nourished, fed several times a day by a buxom, apple cheeked lady with a pan of corn and an enticing "Co-m-e! Chuch, chuch, chuch, chuch." And then each beautiful, white, warm, loudly announced egg is spirited away from the snug little nest and the apple cheeked lady calls it to a pan full, her eyes gleaming with the effort of adding 32 and 32 and 32. Eggs, only 32 cents a dozen? Why, what's that?

These cold days when a few blocks' walk in this crisp air makes one ravenous, is a mighty good time to induce the family to eat stews.

The EVENING STORY.

THE SIREN

By Basil Tozer.

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

The jury returned a verdict in accordance with the coroner's decision. Deceased, they said, had clearly not taken poison. Neither had he died of apoplexy. Seemingly he had been in excellent health on the very day of his death. In the small hours of the morning, according to the evidence, his valet, who slept in a room adjoining, had heard deceased breathing unusually heavily. Becoming anxious, he had entered his master's room and there found the young man pale as death and quite unconscious, with wide-open eyes and pupils extraordinarily distended.

At once he had hastened in search of a doctor, but by the time the doctor had reached his master's room life had been quite extinct. Deceased, though pronounced by his friends a man about town, had not, they said, been addicted to violent dissipation. Neither had he been addicted to drugs or to alcohol. A rather remarkable feature in connection with the case was the statement that no less than four other young men of social standing had been found dead in their beds under circumstances almost exactly similar, and that within the last few months. As on the previous occasions the verdict returned this morning was that of "Death from natural causes."

Phoebe Vincent let the paper drop from her hands and smiled. A very beautiful woman in the prime of her life, and gowned to perfection, few knew whence she came or who she really was. Rumor had it that her husband had died under a cloud, also under circumstances said to have been "mysterious." But nobody much cared, least of all the men—men of position, all of them, and not a few of rank—who figured so largely among her visitors. Indeed it had come to this, among a certain set, that not to know Phoebe Vincent was to argue yourself out of date.

True, there were women who raised their eyebrows at the sound of her name, and few men among her intimates failed to smile significantly if the name was mentioned among them. Popularly voted one of the best, however, her admirably appointed flat on Fifth avenue had gradually gained for itself almost as enviable a reputation as the delightful little dinner parties she was in the habit of giving there.

"Poor boy," she said at last. "I almost feel sorry at times, and yet—"

She looked steadfastly for some moments at a framed photograph on her silver table. Then her gaze rested on several portraits, framed and unframed, on the mantel. They were portraits of men, most of them, the majority portraits of men well under 40. Some were portraits of mere boys.

"Pah!" she exclaimed. "I shall do it again. I know I shall. It gives me pleasure. Perhaps it gratifies me even more than it gratifies them—while it lasts."

After a little while she rose and pressed the bell.

"I shall want the brougham tonight," she said, as the maid entered. "Tell John I am going to the opera."

"Tristan and Isolde" was over. In the portico of the opera house policemen and others bellowed down the line of carriages. Within the hall men and women mingled, awaiting their turn to depart. Beneath the glittering lights bright eyes sparkled, and on all sides lovely faces alive with animation leavened the ranks of aged women bepainted and bepowdered. In all directions laughter and conversation rippled in ceaseless flow.

Beside the inner entrance a tall and remarkably good looking youth, exquisitely groomed, stood wrapped in admiration of an extraordinarily handsome woman waiting alone not many yards away. Seemingly the woman was ignorant of his presence, of his very existence. Yet presently she turned her head carelessly and at once her eyes met his. As they did so she smiled at him and almost bowed. Taken back he instinctively raised his hat. A moment or two later he stood beside her.

"I believe I have had the pleasure—," he began rather awkwardly, but the woman set him at once at his ease.

"It is charming to meet you," she said, with another entrancing smile, and extending a well shaped hand from beneath her handsome opera cloak. "My brougham is so long coming, could you, I wonder—it would be so dear of you—find out where it is? I am quite alone."

She looked at him meaningly and he returned the glance. Then he disappeared in the chattering throng.

"How very bold you must think me," she said, as they drove together through the badly lighted thoroughfares. "I wonder, if you know my name."

He mentioned it at once and she gave a delightful little laugh.

"Then you have heard things about me, perhaps?"

"One hears things about everybody," he answered, "but as a rule they don't interest."

"They interest in this case, then?"

She heard him catch his breath, but he did not answer.

As they passed swiftly down Broadway a gloved hand presently stole softly into his, and the fingers very gently pressed his own. At the touch his whole soul seemed to thrill. A moment later he had succumbed to the temptation and was kissing her passionately on the mouth.

"How wicked of you," she said roguishly. "Really you quite hurt me. Do you often get like this?"

"I love you dreadfully," he half whispered, "dreadfully. I have so often. I have so often longed to speak to you. But I never got introduced."

"So you thought tonight you would waive the introduction," she said, lightly. "Do you kiss everybody like that you are introduced to? Perhaps," she went on, presently, "I say only perhaps, I have sometimes noticed you before tonight. Perhaps I have sometimes before tonight been aware you were gazing at me as you were just now. I think you are handsome enough to be looked at a little yourself," and she leaned slightly towards him.

Four months had passed. In the boudoir of a Fifth avenue flat a young man lay half recumbent on a settee. Over him bent a woman. The man looked rather wearied. His eyes sagged slightly. And the woman peered down at him attentively.

"Arthur."

"My darling?"

"Look at me—look right up into my eyes."

Rather reluctantly he turned his gaze up to hers.

"Arthur," she said, after a little while, during which she had seemed to him to peer into his very soul; "tell me, Arthur, have you loved any woman but me since that night—since the night we met? Tell me the truth."

"Why, of course I have not," he replied with emphasis, which though exaggerated, carried no conviction.

"You lie!" she exclaimed, her whole attitude changing on the instant. "You lie! And yet you swore to me you wouldn't—you swore to me you would never more love anyone but me!"

Her eyes seemed to glitter. She was trembling strangely. A great wave of feeling appeared to control her. And yet at that moment she looked to the man more entrancing than ever.

"Really, Phoebe, my darling," he began, but she checked him.

"You should not lie to me," she said, presently, more composedly and seemingly half in jest. "It is dangerous to lie to me."

He laughed at her a little as he flung aside his cigarette and made himself more comfortable.

"Phoebe," he said, "I love you dreadfully, as I told you the first night we met, and I always shall love you."

As he spoke he drew the beautiful face down to his and kissed it.

She offered no resistance. Somehow on this evening she appeared to him more seductive than ever. Presently—he wondered then that he had not noticed it before—her breath seemed to fall quite heavily on his brow. He could not quite tell why, but as it did a sense of indolent gratification came over him, a feeling that was strangely soothing. And now he felt distinctly that she was breathing purposely upon him and allowing, perhaps also purposely, her breath to fall across his face. It held him spell-bound. His very will was fast weakening. His mental faculties were dying.

"You like that?"

The voice sounded at a distance.

He sighed heavily.

At once she bent over him still more. Now her eyes were riveted to his.

Then, of a sudden, all life was blotted out from him, his heart and brain throbbed painfully; reason and consciousness alike had fled, leaving him pulseless, stupefied, inert.

With a visable effort she recovered herself and rose. Her face was flushed. Her eyes glistened curiously. A strange, unnatural fever made her hot and restless.

She crossed the room and rang twice. Her own maid answered the summons.

"Call a cab, Aphelie," she said quickly. "He is ill."

The cab arrived soon. As Phoebe heard it stop she turned.

"Come, Arthur," she cried rather loudly. "You must be going now. Come along."

He rose and looked stupidly about him. She helped him into his coat, then handed him his hat.

"Good night," she said, extending her hand.

"Good night—Phoebe—my darling."

His speech was slow. His voice sounded hollow. His eyes, wildely distended, with enormous shining pupils, lacked all intelligence. Mechanically he took her hand. Mechanically he passed slowly down the flight of staris. Mechanically he pulled himself into the cab and told the driver his address.

* * *

The speaker was one of three members of the medical profession, who chanced at a reception tomorrow evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Stewart. "It is extraordinary—most extraordinary—to be seated together in the otherwise empty smoking room of a rather well known club.

"To what do you yourself attribute death?" asked another member of the group.

"I can throw as much light on the problem as both of you can—which is none at all," he answered grimly.

"And you say this is the sixth case of the sort that has occurred in New York?"

"Yes, and that within a period of ten months."

"It is most interesting."

"Most perplexing."

"As I say, it is quite as extraordinary a case as its predecessors. Well," glancing at the clock, "my time is up."

"I must be off, too."

"And so must I. Good night to you."

"Good night."

M'KINLEY'S NIECE DEFIES ROOSEVELT AND TAFT

an order for the captain to proceed forthwith to the Philippines. His wife accompanied him to Seattle, where he was to take the transport, Dix, a provision ship. But she found herself barred by government red tape a mile high, women being forbidden to travel on that particular transport.

In her despair, the girl bride appealed to Secretary Taft and next to the president. Both said the rules could not be broken. Then Mrs. McKinley interceded in the girl's behalf without success. The president even went so far as to forbid the girl to proceed to the Philippines on the transport.

The lovers parted tearfully at the wharf. Mrs. Heidt said she could not bear to see her husband sail away.

Then she hurried to the hotel and hastily donned one of the captain's old uniforms and proudly walked aboard. In the bustle of getting away she was unobserved.

Three days later a steward discovered the girl stowed away in the hold, faint from loss of food. In that condition her husband found her. There was a joyful meeting, though under unhappy circumstances. The ship officials finally forgave the girl and promised to take her to Manila.

Word of her escapade came in a letter, which Mrs. Heidt wrote to friends here.

"Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is the best remedy for that often fatal disease—croup. Has been used with success in our family for eight years."—Mrs. L. Whiteacre, Buffalo, N. Y.

NOT AFFAIR OF VATICAN

Pope Will Not Interfere in the Dispute in Poland.

Question of School Language Must be Settled at Home.

Rome, Nov. 12.—The several visits which Herr von Tschirsky, the German secretary for foreign affairs, paid to the Vatican last week, including the private audiences he had with the pope, led to no diplomatic success. He failed to persuade the pope to interfere in the contention of the Catholics in Prussian Poland that their children should be taught religion in the government schools in their own language instead of in German. The agitation against this school rule had become so great that the Prussian authorities feared serious disorders. So it was thought advisable to enlist the aid of the Vatican, as the majority of the people of Prussian Poland are Catholics and the matter concerned them more than others. Much as the Vatican authorities desire to maintain harmony with the German officials, it was impossible to accede to the request for direct intervention, and they limited their action to the giving of indirect advice. As a matter of fact it was known at the Vatican that several of the Polish bishops, among them the archbishop of Posen, supported the people in their contention, and it would have been inconsistent for the Vatican to aid the government in the matter.

Just now the relations between the Vatican and the German government are rather strained, principally because Pius X. is anxious to give no offense to the French officials by showing too much friendliness toward Germany. Besides, a few days ago an important Catholic paper here, the Vera Roma, had an article regarding the relations between the Vatican and Germany, the publication of which caused some trouble at the Vatican. The article pointed out that the German emperor was an heretical sovereign and as such could not expect the Holy See to do his bidding. At the instance of the church authorities, following a pointed note from the German foreign office, a subsequent issue of the paper discredited the article and matters were mended.

In conformity with the wishes of Pius X, the Catholic bishops of every country in the world have sent letters of sympathy to the French bishops, the latest to do so being the bishops of Austria and the Irish prelates. It is thought here that the pope will not be contented with this evidence of the solidarity of all the Catholic prelates of the world with the church in France, but that he will soon issue an appeal, asking all Catholics in the world to help by their contributions in lessening the difficulties of the French church. This will not be done, however, before the new law goes into full operation in December, as there are still hopes at the Vatican that matters may be mended satisfactorily at the last moment, and that the French church will then again find itself in a self-supporting condition.

The pope is now bent upon reducing the number of dioceses in Italy, as it has long been thought there are too many. Some of them have in their jurisdiction but one or two little villages with a few thousand inhabitants, and it is the pope's plan to incorporate such small dioceses with larger ones, if an understanding can be arranged with the Italian officials. Pius X desires that at least a part of the income set aside for the support of the suppressed dioceses shall be turned over to the larger ones which shall absorb them, but so far the necessary consent of the government has not been obtained. In fact, there is talk of a parliamentary commission to take up the question of reducing the salaries of several bishops in Italy, which are considered extravagant. Among these are Reggio in Calabria, with an annual income of $6,500; Pisa, with $16,000; Aversa, with $8,500; Cefalu, with $26,000, and a number of others. The Vatican might consent to reductions provided the excessive incomes should be turned over to the use of poorer dioceses and the support of the nominaries, but to this it is hardly expected the government officials would consent.

It has been officially denied that the Marquis de Ojeda, the new Spanish ambassador to the vatican, sent his resignation to his government because he could not come to accord with the vatican authorities regarding legislation proposed by the Liberal cabinet for the church in Spain. As a matter of fact the marquis is still a frequent visitor to the vatican, and there is a well founded report to the effect that an agreement has been reached between the Spanish government and the church authorities whereby the former will not submit to the cortes the drastic legislation they had proposed against the religious orders. It is estimated that there are over 50,000 members of religious orders in Spain, who would naturally resist any attempts to deprive them of their rights and property. It was this factor in the situation that led some to suppose that the religious orders would take common cause with the Carlists in harassing the Spanish government.

The Vatican palace is just now full of workmen, making the repairs arranged for some time ago, which are to cost the Vatican administration many thousands of dollars. Several apartments are being rearranged, among them those occupied by the cardinal secretary of state. Rooms are being arranged for the picture gallery soon to be removed to a lower floor, and the new quarters are being prepared for the astronomical observatory.

The personal solicitude of the pope for the protection of Catholic interests all over the world has again been made patent by a letter just sent from the Vatican to Menelik, emperor of Abyssinia, exhorting him to extend his protection to all the Catholics in his dominions. It is said that this letter was provoked by some measures of hostility to Catholics recently adopted in Ethiopia, of which the bishops in that region promptly informed the Vatican authorities.

It is considered more than probable that the recent proclamation of the czar granting full religious liberty in his empire will find an echo in the establishment of a papal delegate at the Russian capital. The plan has been under consideration for some time and the carrying of it out was one of the dearest wishes of the late pope. It is asserted that the Russian government favors the appointment and that the only opposition met with comes from the holy synod of the Orthodox church. It is hoped now to overcome all difficulties and thus to improve the conditions of the church in Russia.

WOUNDED DEER

Killed by Switch Engine and Brakeman is Injured.

Hibbing, Minn., Nov. 12.—A wounded deer, which was being chased by hunters, got in the way of a Missabe switch engine last evening and was run over and killed. Brakeman Seasted, who was riding on the front footboard of the locomotive, was jammed in between the deer and the engine and had one leg fractured. He was taken to a Duluth hospital for treatment. At the time of the accident the engine was going up to the Glen mine, which is about seven miles east of this city. The crew did not see the animal till the locomotive was right on top of it.

Christmas Gifts

Altho the holidays are two months away many gift hunters have already made their selections. We have a store-room for these reservations, where they will be carefully packt away until the day of delivery. For years we have preacht "Early Buying," and "sensible and practical gifts," and each year more and more of such gifts from the S. & B. store go down the chimney on Christmas morning.

Another important day is ahead of us—Thanksgiving. Is there need for any additions to the Linens that will decorate the most important room in the house on that day? If so, it will behoove you to buy now while stocks are complete, and choosing easy. The finest show of high class Linens ever brought to the Head of the Lakes is ready for your inspection.

The entire store is at its best. Welcome, whether in buying mood or merely desirous to see the new styles.

LATE DOINGS IN UPPER MICHIGAN

Indian Wanted for Assault With Attempt to Murder.

Menominee, Mich., Nov. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The police are looking for an Indian named Peter Beaver, residing in the Indian settlement at White Rapids, who is wanted for assault with attempt to murder. Beaver attacked another Indian named John Shine with a knife and a club, beating and cutting him unmercifully. He had had a grudge against Shine, and when he heard that the latter was coming back to the settlement to live, he laid in ambush for him and assaulted him.

Nettie Johnson, a 16-year-old girl living near Munising, is in a critical condition from carbolic acid, which she swallowed in an attempt at suicide. A doctor was called in time to save her life. Her mouth and throat are terribly burned. She will give no reason for the deed.

Frank Carmody was stabbed eight times in his saloon at Egg Harbor, and so badly injured that he may die. The stabbing was done by Paul Barnabas and followed a general fight in a dance hall and saloon. Barnabas has been bound over to the circuit court.

Hattie Kramer of Forestville was fatally burned while starting fire in the kitchen stove at her father's home. The parents of the child were working in a field some distance from the house, and at 6 o'clock the child tried to start the kitchen fire with kerosene. The blaze shot up and communicated to the girl's dress. Crazed with pain and fear, she ran from the house, her clothes a mass of flames, calling for help. Neighbors responded and the flames were extinguished, but not until the child had been horribly burned from her feet to her shoulders. She lived six hours.

Marquette—Erick Johnson, a homesteader near Ploedwood, was drowned Saturday in a spring containing only a few inches of water. He had laid down to take a drink from the spring, when he was seized by an epileptic fit which rendered him helpless. When found in the afternoon by a searching party his face was buried in the water.

Norway—Angelo Ficaro, head clerk in the Penn store of Vulcan, was found dead in his home Saturday, death resulting from touching a live electric wire. He was conducting electrical experiments. Frank Nora was killed at a Pine Creek lumber camp by a falling tree.

Ontonagon—Rev. S. D. Eva of Hermansville, Menominee county, is journeying across the Atlantic to claim a bride—the culmination of a romance of several years. He is on his way to Launceston, Eng., where he will be married to Miss Ethel M. Luxton, principal of the school of that place, and an accomplished young woman.

ENTHUSIASM HAS BEEN AROUSED

By Support Given to International Exhibition in Ireland.

Dublin, Nov. 12.—Great enthusiasm has been aroused in Ireland by the support which is being given to the International Exhibition of 1907. Not only are Irishmen of all classes united to make it a success, but foreign countries are also sending exhibits to help in celebrating the great industrial revival which the exposition represents. Speaking of the progress of the undertaking, James Shanks, the chief executive officer, says:

"The exhibition is supported by manufacturers, merchants and traders all over the country. It has a sound financial basis, with a guarantee fund of $800,000, signed by nearly 1,000 subscribers, and on that security the Bank of Ireland has agreed to advance funds amply sufficient for the purposes of the exhibition. No previous exhibition in Ireland has had so much money behind it, and nothing of equal extent was ever projected in this country. Nearly 75 per cent of the guarantee fund has been subscribed in Ireland, over 60 per cent of the entire space area available has been applied for by Irish manufacturers and merchants, and several of the exhibition buildings are already practically complete.

"When so many prominent Irish manufacturers and merchants of all creeds and politics have shown their willingness to undertake this arduous public service, and when they have acted throughout on the mandate imposed upon them by the great meeting at which the exhibition was launched, it is their manifest duty to carry to completion on the original lines this great project of purely commercial and industrial importance. If there are any who are in favor of any exclusively 'National' exhibition, they are quite free to pursue that object.

"The executive committee of the International Exhibition have steadily and consistently persevered with the project publicly entrusted to them, and have been most careful not to provoke censure or hostility. They have been supported in their action by constitutional Nationalists as well as by Unionists, and they believe that in bringing the exhibition to the successful conclusion now assured they will have done much to assert the power of rational public opinion in Ireland."

HUSBAND HAS THE FAT WOMAN HABIT

Wife Weighing 520 Pounds Tells of Spouse's First Mate.

New York, Nov. 12.—Mrs. Cherry Volkman sighed a sigh with 520 pounds behind it to give it force, and declared that it was a fatal error for a professional fat woman to ally herself in matrimony with a combined living skeleton and professional sword swallower, suffering from locomotor ataxia.

Despite his malady, Volkman seemingly was able to move his legs fast enough to keep out of the way of the police, who wanted him in Jefferson market court to answer various charges preferred by his wife.

"You'd think us professional people would be above jealousy," said Mrs. Volkman, as she was waiting for the performance to begin in the museum in the Bowery, "but Volkman is so jealous. That caused all the trouble.

"Every time the bearded lady, or the wild man of Borneo, or the glass eater, or the handless hank, who makes roses out of raw potatoes with his toes, would pass the time of day with me Volkman would take on something awful.

"He kicked up so many rumpuses here that the manager finally said that he'd have to keep away or I'd have to get another job. While, of course, I love him, I could not stand for that, so we went into court. I'd sue him for non-support, if it didn't look so pitiful to see a little skinny thing like him trying to support a great big fat thing like me."

According to Mrs. Volkman her husband has the fat woman habit. His first wife was a fat woman. She weighed 550 pounds when she died.

BEAUTIFUL WOMAN ON TRIAL FOR HER LIFE.

Hazlehurst, Miss., Nov. 12.—Mrs. Angie Birdsong, considered a belle in her girlhood days, and still one of the most beautiful women of the state, will go to trial here this week for her life.

Mrs. Birdsong, the wife of Dr. Robert Birdsong, a prominent dentist of Monticello, and the niece of Former Governor Longino, is under indictment for the murder of Dr. T. H. Butler, a well-known physician of Monticello, who, she admits, she had shot to death in his office because Dr. Butler boasted of his relations with her. The case is brought here on change of venue.

FINISHING OPERATIONS

Cold Weather Does Not Stop Work on New Reservoir.

Coping Being Placed in Position and Bottom Is In.

Large numbers of West Duluthians took the short trip upon the hillside yesterday afternoon, despite the cold weather, to view the finishing operations at the big reservoir. Although the cold spell has hindered the work to some extent, there has been no letup in the operations and Contractor McDonnell will turn the big basin over to the city engineer within the week.

The coping of the reservoir is now being placed around the top and this part of the job is nearly finished. On account of the freezing weather, the water is being heated in mixing the cement and the concrete is put in nearly hot. The bottom is practically complete and Mr. McDonnell said today that the whole would be ready for the water by the first of next week.

The construction of the immense reservoir has been going on for over a year and on account of many obstacles which have been met, there has been some doubt as to whether the job would be finished this fall. The work has been rushed during the past few months and now Mr. McDonnell will soon have the contract off his hands. The men employed on the job are working all day and until 12 o'clock at night in order to finish things up as soon as possible.

Mr. McDonnell is said to have lost a large sum of money on the contract.

DEATH OF MRS. KAUPPI.

Taken Sick Saturday, Wife of County Commisioner Dies Suddenly.

Mrs. Charles Kauppi, aged 26 years, the wife of County Commissioner Charles Kauppi, died of heart's disease, at St. Luke's hospital, Sunday morning, after an illness of one day.

Mrs. Kauppi was taken quite sick Saturday morning at the family residence, No. 3 Sixty-third avenue west, and was removed to the hospital Saturday evening. Her death was preceded by convulsions.

Besides the husband, three children are left motherless, two of them belonging to Mr. Kauppi's first wife. The decedent leaves, also, a sister, Miss Ina Wilcen, of this city, a mother and two brothers who reside in Aitken county, Mrs. T. Dykeson, another sister, at Portland, Or., and an uncle at Lalde, N. D.

The funeral will be held Wednesday afternoon from the Finnish Lutheran church in West Duluth.

MAY JOIN INDOOR LEAGUE.

Universal Millers May be Organized to Play Ball Indoors.

Tom Foubister, who was manager of the Universal Millers baseball team last summer, is working hard among the ball players with a view of organizing an indoor team to play this winter. Few of the players are familiar with the indoor game, and on this account have so far given Foubister little encouragement, but he hopes to persuade them in a few days to take up the game.

Several of the players of the Millers are assisting Foubister in the organization of the indoor team. Among them are: Ernest Larson, A. Witte and Tom Robinson. The Buska brothers, who will be back from Dakota this week, can be depended on to join the team. If the organization can be accomplished, an effort will be made to join the indoor baseball league recently organized in Duluth.

Deer Are Plentiful.

From reports which have been received by West Duluthians from hunters who are in the woods after big game, the deer are very plentiful this year. Some of the numerous parties have already bagged several of the creatures and there will be enough venison in West Duluth upon the return of the soprtsmen to satisfy people for several weeks. One New Duluth business man drove into West Duluth Saturday and reported having seen a fine buck near the roadside on his way in.

West Duluth Briefs.

A musical entertainment will be given Thursday evening at the Great Eastern hall under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society of the Asbury M. E. church. Miss Grayce Francis Turner will be in charge and an excellent program is promised.

W. E. Kern, William Shanks, Thomas Murphy and Ralph Evans left yesterday to join the numerous sportsmen already in the woods looking for deer. They will be gone several days.

L. A. Barnes left this morning for Fergus Falls where he is attending a session of the federal court as a juror. He will be absent from West Duluth probably the balance of the week.

Charles Zell has resigned his position at Wade's hardware store and is working at the box factory.

William Ehr returned Saturday, after spending several days on business at Fargo.

Jewelry repairing—Hurst, 201 Central.

Mrs. George Kreidler, who has been visiting friends at Milwaukee for the past week, returned to West Duluth yesterday.

W. J. Lowrie and C. W. Lowrie are spending the week hunting about thirty miles out on the Duluth, Mesaba & Northern road.

Charles W. Stewart and family, who left West Duluth about a month ago, are now located at Pasedena, Cal., where they will remain temporarily while looking for a good business opening.

A pleasant surprise was given Saturday evening for Miss Hildigard Wahlin at her home, 102 North Fifty-sixth avenue. Games and music furnished the entertainment for the evening and refreshments were served.

For wall paper go to Nygren's.

The revival meetings will begin this evening at the Third Swedish Baptist church, Fifty-ninth avenue west and Ramsey street. The meetings will be conducted by Rev. A. J. Freeeman, the blind evangelist, who will be assisted by his daughter.

PLAN REFORMS IN INSURANCE

Committee of Fifteen is Ready to Present Strong Report.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—The committee of fifteen appointed at the meeting of insurance commissioners, governors of states, attorney generals and insurance attorneys here last February to formulate plans for the regulation of insurance in the Central and Western states met here today. With them were officers of the American Life convention, which met at Chattanooga, Sept. 28.

It is expected that a formal report will be submitted by the committee late in the day. Unofficially, it is stated that the committee in relation to standard forms of policies and standard provisions for policies will favor standardization, although the American Life convention adopted a resolution opposing it.

It is planned that the report of the committee shall be followed by the introduction of the laws regulating insurance companies which will take the place of the Ames bill which was dropped some time ago.

ERIE FIREMEN VOTE ON STRIKE

Situation on Eastern Road Serious—Engineers Also Restive.

New York, Nov. 12. — The question of a strike of the firemen of the Erie railway system because of the refusal Saturday of the officials of that company to grant the men's demands for reduced working hours was voted on under direction of the firemen's grievance committee at headquarters here, to take a poll of their fellow workmen.

Grand Chief Hanrahan of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, spent a busy Sunday in conferences with grievance committees of Erie firemen. At the close, he refused to make any statement.

If the 2,275 firemen vote for a strike, a strike will be ordered immediately which will affect the Erie and all its subsidiary lines from New York to Chicago.

Sixty engineers representing the men on the Erie Lackawanna, New York Central and the New York, New Haven and Hartford railway, held a conference with Warren S. Stone, grand chief, and a meeting of West Shore engineers was held at Union Hill, N. J., last night.

It was said on good authority that the marine engineers on the tugs and the ferry boats of the Erie railroad had demanded an increase of $20 a month.

E. W. Hurley, assistant grand chief of the engineers brotherhood, said that the Erie engineers were neither expecting nor desiring a strike. He remarked, however, that the brotherhood was in excellent condition to stand a strike, as were the firemen.

FLAMES IN LA CRESCENT.

Old Parochial School and Dwelling Burned and Church People Scared.

La Crosse, Wis., Nov. 12.—Fire destroyed an abandoned parochial school building in La Crescent, Minn., across the river from here, and the dwelling of John Burk, adjoining, causing losses of $3,000.

A strong wind was blowing, and it was at first feared the new Catholic church across the street would be destroyed. A mission service was in progress in the church at the time, and the worhippers were dismissed by the priest. There was great excitement for a time, and reports were sent out that the town was in danger.

STARTED ON BAD CAREER

John Jacobson Admits Nine Years Spent in Penal Institutions.

Judge Cant Imposes Sentences on Three Who Pleaded Guilty.

Only 22 years old and with a record of nine years spent in the state training school, the reformatory and the workhouse, John Jacobson, an alert, boyish looking fellow who hails from Minneapolis, appeared before Judge Cant this morning and was sentenced to the state penitentiary on the reformatory plan as a punishment for grand larceny in the second degree, a charge to which he pleaded guilty Saturday afternoon.

Jacobson admitted the theft of a quantity of clothing and some jewelry belonging to the clerk at the Metropole hotel. The evidence accumulated by the police showed that Jacobson was one of a gang of young criminals that came to Duluth in August and started out to work the town. Walter Madden, one of his pals was convicted of stealing some clothing from the West hotel on the Bowery. A large quantity of the stolen property was found in Jacobson's possession. Jacobson, following his arrest, wanted his case continued for a time, claiming he would establish an alibi, but he soon gave that up and even attempted to shoulder the blame of the theft at the West hotel. It is presumed by the police that he did this with the idea that he was pretty sure of a stiff sentence anyway and thought he might be able to get his pal Madden off clear. After the authorities investigated the matter they took no stock in Jacobson's story that he was responsible for both thefts.

Jacobson did not show any signs of repentance when questioned by the court this morning. He admitted without reserve his detention at various penal institutions of the state and rather seemed to carry the idea that the dangers of a life of crime appealed to him.

Jacobson's mother is a widow, residing at Minneapolis, and in poor circumstances. She came to Duluth when her son was first arrested and the authorities were told that he had given her a great deal of trouble. The youth is a printer by trade.

In passing sentence the court remarked that he might have considered the advisability of sending Jacobson to the state reformatory but from the fact that Madden had already been sentenced to that institution and the two, were they to get together, might concoct further mischief. Judge Cant said that some of the best authorities in the country now concede that the sentence on the reformatory plan is about the best thing for youthful persons charged with crime and for whom there is a possibility of reformation. He added, however, that a great deal rests with the accused, whether he reforms or not, and the indeterminate sentence gives such the opportunity of showing what they do along that line if they are so disposed.

Dempsey Lewis, the young colored woman who pleaded guilty to the theft of a quantity of clothing from a house on Lake avenue, was given a jail term of four months. In passing sentence the court said he would have sent her to the reformatory had there been a place provided in such an institution for women. The Lewis woman, although pleading guilty to the charge, claims that she was brought to Duluth from Minneapolis under the belief that she was going to be given a good position doing housework, but found herself located in a house of questionable repute. She claimed that she took the clothing to sell it with the idea of procuring money enough to take her back to Minneapolis.

Joseph Solonowski, a young Russian who could not speak English, was given a term in the state reformatory for grand larceny in the second degree. Solonowski admitted stealing $281 from a companion of his nationality in a logging camp not far from Duluth. Through an interpreter Solonowski claimed this to be the first time that he ever attempted a criminal act. He said he was willing to give back what money he had left and to make good the remainder, which amounts to about $40. The young man's appearance was far from that of a hardened criminal; in fact, the court remarked that he was impressed with the belief that it was really his first attempt to depart from the path of honesty. In view of the large amount of money taken, however, Judge Cant thought that Solonowski should be impressed with something of the enormity of the crime. Through the interpreter, John Gonska, the court gave the young man an earnest warning of the necessity of sticking to the path of honesty in the future.

STABBED BY HIS FATHER.

Minneapolis Man Receives Probably Fatal Wound In Row With Parent.

Minneapolis, Nov. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Leonard Extrand was stabbed in the abdomen by his father, according to the police, during an altercation, Saturday evening, at the Extrand home, 2517 Minnehaha avenue, and is at the City hospital in a critical condition, while the father is under arrest. The cause of the quarrel is unknown.

MOBILE PLANTS BURNED.

Mobile, Nov. 12.—Fire that started at midnight and was extinguished at 4 o'clock this morning, destroyed the sawmill plant of Hieronymus Bros., on the river front, and the plant of the Mobile Howard company, seven blocks away, causing losses of about $60,000. Several large vessels were saved by tug boats.

IN COMMISSION SOON.

New Duluth Steamer Has Applied for Her Official Number.

An application for an official government number has been received at the Duluth customs office for the new steamer, Peter A. B. Widener, which is about ready to go into commission at Chicago. The boat will be enrolled in the port of Duluth.

The Widener is a sister ship to the Rogers and the J. P. Morgan, and was launched at Chicago several months ago. She will become one of the fleet of steamers owned by the Pittsburg Steamship company. Her total length is 580 feet, her beam is 58 feet and her depth 27 feet. She will run between Duluth and the lower lake ports.

TRAVELING MAN IS ARRESTED

Young Girl Makes a Charge of Assault Against Him.

Hugo Hirsch, who claims to be a traveling salesman, will be examined in the municipal court, Friday afternoon, on the charge of assault, a charge to which he this morning entered a plea of not guilty.

It is understood that the offense with which the young man is charged is really of a more serious nature than would indicate on the face of it. It is claimed by the police that complaint was made by a 12-year-old girl that Hirsch enticed her to his room in a local hotel and attempted an assault.

The offense is claimed to have occurred Saturday evening. Pending his examination, Hirsch was released on $100 bail.

Mat Klink, who is charged with assault, entered a plea of not guilty this morning, and his examination will occur tomorrow. Klink was arrested about a week ago on the charge of assaulting a man in front of the Bijou theater and breaking his jaw. He has been released from custody on bail in the amount of $50.

For getting drunk and fighting, John Miller and Leonard Apiella were each assessed $10. On the same charge Mike Begane paid a fine of $7, and Thomas Olson, who pleaded not guilty, was to have been given an examination this afternoon.

Seventeen drunks were lined up before Judge Windom to explain their Saturday evening and Sunday jags to the court. In a majority of the cases a fine was imposed, with the alternative of a few days in jail

"NO REBATE FOR ME," SAYS REV. M. S. RICE.

"The topic is too broad for our time," declared Dr. Rice in his sermon on "The Merchant," last night, "for it reaches at once into every phase of our industrialism, the popular line of the world's thought today.

"The merchant of today is entirely different from the men of the ages gone who catered to the needs of the world. His methods of transportation and sale have so changed that he himself has been made over in the process. A general definition of a merchant would, perhaps, be "a man who has provided himself with what we want and charges us enough to get it to insure him a living in the process, a tribute we pay for his having sense enough to anticipate our needs.

"The first thing in the modern spirit of merchandise is the bargain. I don't like the word," declared the preacher with emphasis. "It smacks of gambling. It caters to the morbid desire for gain without pay. As a customer who always insists on paying the full price, no rebate for me, I protest against the spirit of the bargain counter. It cheapens the basis of your patronage. It spoils merchant and customer alike. I am afraid of the merchant who constantly bawls out, "Bargains!" and keeps the windows full of red cut prices. The method is wearying, unfair. Men strain it beyond honesty. Customers get such an appetite that they want to buy bargains always. They are the crop of the false practice of the merchant. He created them. I detest the principle.

"There is a very subtle idea abroad that if a man is shrewd he does not really have to earn a living; it can be gotten without labor; gotten out of profits easily found in far flung trades, in buying and selling. Profit is the reward of sharpness and not the just reward of service. I speak with care when I say it is the principle running mad in American life today that is producing many of our greatest problems. We need not be surprised at the gross revelations of our day. We need not wonder at graft and rebate.

"The whole moral tone of the conception of trade is low. The call of our day is making itself heard at every hand, but is scarcely understood in its full meaning, for it speaks in a strange language. It is for a new conscience in business—conscience moulded on the good old-fashioned bed-rock religious model known as plain, unselfish honesty. If I seem to speak plainly, it is because I am convinced plain words are needed."

This sermon being so much on the same lines as our much talked-about "Saturnight Talks" published in The Herald during last spring and summer, we wish to subscribe to it from the merchant's standpoint, who is unwilling to submit to the bad custom still prevailing in many local stores, of making people believe that they can, all the year around, get goods for less than they are worth or of allowing fictitious, misleading and double-dealing rebates to some people while overcharging the others. Our main purpose is to give a new meaning to the word "bargain," so that if we use it in connection with a special offer, everyone may know here is an opportunity which is not of the every-day variety.

COLUMBIA CLOTHING CO.

TRY THIS FOR YOUR COUGH.

Mix half ounce of the pure Virgin Oil of Pine with two ounces of glycerine and a half pint of whiskey. Use in teaspoonful doses. A famous throat and lung specialist, whose camp for consumptives in the pine woods of Maine, has attracted great attention, declares the above formula will break up a cold in twenty-four hours, heal the lungs and coure any cough that is curable. The ingredients can be secured from any drug store at small cost.

Care should be exercised in securing the best quality of glycerine and whiskey, while the Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) should be purchased only in original half-ounce vials, which are securely sealed in a round wooden case, with engraved wrapper with the name Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) plainly printed thereon. Cheap or adulterated oils which are sold in bulk always create nausea and never effect the desired results.

HAPPENINGS IN THE DAKOTAS

Clarence Hallock Dies From Effects of Engine Explosion.

Grand Forks—Clarence Hallock, who was severely scalded by the explosion of an old thrashing engine here ten days ago, died at a hospital Saturday morning. Three other men will recover, being but slightly scalded.

Mitchell—Shot while attempting to quell a riot on the Milwaukee railroad train, the Rev. John W. Phelan, Sibley, Iowa, a Catholic priest, is dying here. Eight men were engaged in the fight and Father Phelan rushed among them just as weapons were drawn. One of the number sent a bullet through the priest's head.

Aberdeen—The toppling over of a pile of heavy freight doors which he was unloading from a car at the new station here probably fatally injured John Gilbert, carpenter foreman for the contractor who is building the station.

Gilbert was steadying a stack of the doors, each one of which is said to weigh several hundred pounds, when the pile suddenly toppled over, crushing him to the floor. Four other men were in the car with him, but they could not budge the pile, and had to remove the doors one by one.

Gilbert's chest is crushed and it is believed that he sustained severe internal injuries. He has lived in Aberdeen about two years, having come here from Blue Earth, Minn.

TESTS TO DEVELOP BEST LOCOMOTIVES.

Altoona, Penn., Nov. 12.—All the conditions of a 1,099-mile run by a locomotive pulling a heavy train can be duplicated in the huge indoor engine-trial plant which the Pennsylvania railroad has just completed here. By the arrangement of the testing apparatus the largest engines can be run at the top speed without traveling an inch. The great advantage is that constant results are obtainable, and that these results can be measured and tabulated with far greater exactness than is possible in road trials

The amount of fuel consumed, the steam evaporation, even the weight of the cinders and sparks that go up the smokestack, the friction of the various parts—these are only a few of the elements of locomotive performance that are ascertained at the testing plant. Although this plant involved considerable expense, officials of the motive power department say that the value of the results obtainable with it far exceed the cost of the venture.

Nine locomotives of different types not in regular use on the Pennsylvania have been purchased for testing purposes. One of them is a French engine, which, although it is below the Pennsylvania's standards, has suggested minor improvements in American designs. "We recognize that progress in locomotive building is not confined to any one road," said one of the Pennsylvania officials. "By tests and service and by keeping in touch with advanced practice elsewhere, we determine the best points, and in the future are able to use to advatage the ideas we get from this study."

A locomotive undergoing a test at th Aeltoona plant rests on supporting wheels. The drawbar is attached to a stationary dynamometer with scales which weigh the pull. The supporting wheel axles extend so as to receive absorption brakes, and the work done consists in overcoming the resistance of the wheels and brakes, the force exerted by the drawbar being measured by the dynamometer. The scales of the measuring devise register the traction power of the locomotive, and pens attached to the scale levers make a permanent record of the performance.

Tests carried out under these conditions are so exhaustive and the records are so complete that for only eight locomotives the tabluated results fill a large volume, packed with information upon the basis of which more efficient "iron horses" can be designed and built.

RAILROADS

PULPWOOD MOVEMENT

Railroad Men Say Last Year's Total Will be Doubled.

This May Result in an Unparalleled Congestion of Traffic.

Duluth railroad agents are looking for an extraordinarily heavy movement of pulpwood through the Head of the Lakes this year. It is estimated that between 8,000 and 10,000 cars will pass through the city, consigned to the big Wisconsin factories in the Fox river valley. Last year the movement did not total half this amount, and the figures have not been so high for two or three years.

This means that the congestion of traffic at present being felt by all the roads will continue well into the spring. The pulpwood does not begin to move until early in December, but it starts before the grain rush is over, so the traffic men will have no time to rest between the two busy periods.

Extreme difficulty is being met with just now in moving any freight with dispatch. This condition is said to be due more to a shortage of motive power, and to a lack of adequate terminal facilities, than to a shortage of cars. The first fall of snow, and colder weather, will make this condition all the more pronounced, for it will necessitate the shortening of trains, and traffic will be handicapped all around. Heavy storms this winter would result in a congestion unequaled in the history of railroads of the country.

An indication of the heavy pulpwood movement expected is seen in the fact that all the large companies have this fall established agents in Duluth to look after their interests in the way of making contracts with producers and looking after the railroad end of the business. While most of these companies are known to be in a combination, popularly known as a trust, the individual members of the combine find it necessary to have men in Duluth just the same. Last year was the first time this was done at all, and then there were only one or two such agents here.

The pulpwood business is a source of considerable profit to the Northern Minnesota settlers, who have little to do in the winter besides getting out timber in one form or another. They turn their attention to the class of timber that will bring in the highest returns, and at present pulpwood is the favorite, for the demand will be such that there will be a ready market, at good prices, for all that is cut. This means that settlers will not ship so much stove wood as usual, which may result in a scarcity of that commodity, with higher prices than have prevailed in past seasons.

SCALPERS DOWN AND OUT.

No Sale in Chicago for Return Slips of Football Tickets.

Among the many who took advantage of the $10 and $12 round trip rate to Chicago on account of the football game were several who had no intention of returning to Duluth, it is said, but who hoped to dispose of the return portion of their tickets to brokers in Chicago.

These people will be greatly disappointed when they reach Chicago, for there are no brokers to do the business with in the Windy City, since they have been driven out of business there as in Duluth and the Twin Cities. No other agents will dare handle the tickets, as it would be very dangerous to do so. It is claimed that some hotel clerks in the Twin Cities thought recently that they might scalp tickets, but the railroads got after them and soon put a stop to the business.

This is the first time the general public has derived any benefit from the abolition of the ticket broker. When the scalping business was in full swing, the railroads on all popular excursion business issued a form of ticket which involved all kinds of bother. When a man went on a special round trip rate to Chicago, for example, he had to accept a ticket which contained a full description of the purchaser and required his signature. When he wanted to return he was compelled to go to a validating agent in Chicago, who charged 25 cents for his services. In case the conductor was suspicious as to the traveler, he would compel him to sign his name.

This worked a hardship in many cases. Women were affected in particular. The ticket agent would tell her to sign her given name on the ticket, and then, perhaps, a suspicious conductor, looking out for the interests of the road, would come along and the woman in her excitement would, perhaps, sign the initials of her husband. The conductor might then refuse to accept the ticket on the grounds that the identification signature was not the same as the other.

The only restriction on the new form of ticket is that they must be used clear through to Chicago, or other point named, in order to be good for return trip. It would not be allowable, for example, for a person to stop off in Milwaukee on a ticket reading through to Chicago, and then board the train at Milwaukee again for the return trip.

NEW DEPOT BUILDING.

Duluth & Iron Range Road's Structure at Mesaba Station.

The new depot of the Duluth & Iron Range road at Mesaba station is now in the course of construction. It is sixty-two feet by thirty feet in size. The sidetrack facilities are among other improvements being made at Mesaba by the road. Spurs now run to the Mayas and the Adriatic mines. Mesaba station is booming. Ten new buildings have been erected there during the past year.

ADOPT STANDARD RULES.

Duluth & Iron Range Will Use Them After First of Year.

After the first of the year, the standard rules of the American Railway association will be in force on the line of the Duluth & Iron Range road.

The regular book of the association will be the guide to which the employes of the road will look for information in the near future. It has been found that the use of odds and ends of rules in the yards and railway officials all over the country have decided that the same set of rules should apply everywhere.

Of course, there are some rules of the road which are in force on every line in the country, but there also regulations which some have, and others have not. The new rule book contains much matter of interest to railroad men.

Chicago Train Late.

Because of the large number of returning football rooters, making it necessary to haul extra cars, the Omaha train from Chicago, due at 11:10 o'clock this morning, was three hours late in arriving in Duluth.

FREIGHT RATES CASE UP.

Kansas City Federal Court Begins Hearing Burlington Contest.

Kansas City, Nov. 12.—The federal court here today began the hearing of the case brought by the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad to restrain the state board of railroad and warehouse commissioners and the attorney general from enforcing the provisions of the maximum freight rate law passed by the last Missouri legislature. The Burlington, contending that it could not adhere to the rates on furniture, live stock, agricultural implements and lumber and make a profit, secured a temproary injunction, six months ago, restraining the state officials from enforcing the law. Two weeks were spent hearing evidence in the case in Chicago, recently, when Attorney General Hadley attempted to show that the rates were reasonable.

Bossism is Dying.

To the Editor of the Herald:

In a St. Paul dispatch to the News Tribune this statement is made:

"In many of the counties the total vote is much lighter than it was two years ago, but it is very evident in every district that it was not the Johnson men who stayed away from the polls. They were all there."

This is not correct. There are fully forty Republicans in this town that did not vote for reasons of their own. Had they gone to the polls they would have voted for John A. Johnson for governor. Bossism is dying with corporation politicians. That is how Johnson won; also Hughes of New York.

NOT MAKE CAMPAIGN

Ministers Not Disposed to Initiate the "Lid" Movement.

Will Watson S. Moore be Mayoralty Candidate on "Lid" Platform?

In their sermons next Sunday, the ministers of Duluth will preach earnestly and emphatically for the enforcement of the laws in this city, particularly with reference to the closing of saloons on Sunday.

This was decided at a meeting of the Duluth Ministerial alliance held this morning at the Y. M. C. A., when the ministers had as their guests a committee of laymen from the West end, headed by A. R. Merritt. The enforcement of the law providing for the closing of saloons on Sunday formed the chief topic of discussion, and during the course of his remarks, Mr. Merritt announced that Alderman Watson S. Moore stood ready to run as a reform candidate for mayor, provided he could be assured of good backing by those who would see the "lid on" in Duluth.

In many ways, the session this morning was interesting. The ministers discussed the topic of the enforcement of the Sunday closing law, but there were those clergymen present who objected to the publicity which the recent leanings of the alliance toward a concerted move to bring about a reform in Duluth has received.

Discussions took up most of the time from 10:30 until noon, and action was taken on some resolutions which were presented to the alliance from the committee which has been considering the Sunday saloon proposition for some time since. In addition, it was decided by unanimous vote to lay particular stress upon the need of the enforcement of the Sunday closing law, in the sermons of next Sunday.

It is probable, too, that a number of clergymen and citizens are anxious to see the saloons closed on Sunday will be in the council chambers at the city hall a week from tonight, as then the council will be asked to revoke the licenses of the saloon-keepers whose places were found to be open on Sunday by a number of reformers, recently.

In his talk to the ministers today, Mr. Merritt and his associates on the committee from the business men's organization, urged them to bring friends of the movement to the council chambers on the evening in question, arguing that there was strength in numbers and that it would be a good thing to see how the different aldermen stood on the proposition.

The recommendations of the committee of the alliance which reported at the meeting today, were adopted. They follow:

"We recommend to the alliance that the pastors of the various churches be requested to preach, and in other ways arouse the spirit of the people with regard to seeking a better observance of law in the city. It is the judgment of the committee that an organization can be effected to arouse the people."

The "organization" referred to in the recommendation will probably be a citizen's league, with workers in every ward in the city. The preachers seemed in favor of it and Mr. Merritt gave quite a little talk in behalf of the plan, declaring it to be a most effective way of working out the "lid" problem. He suggested that the preachers were the ones to start the movement.

Different phases of the Sunday saloon question were discussed by the ministers but practically the only action taken was the decision to devote their next Sunday sermons to a plea for the enforcement of laws.

Dr. A. W. Ryan, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, said he was much opposed to a campaign by the Ministerial alliance against the Sunday saloons. He said that it had been tried before and failed. He declared that many of the ministers fell by the wayside in the movement, influence being brought to bear from their churches and that only a few stayed in, with the result that some of those few had to dig down in their own pockets to pay some of the debts of the campaign.

Dr. Ryan said that if a movement was started by the ministers themselves, there was sure to be great opposition. He admitted that it was unfortunate, but declared it was true nevertheless. He said that he was very heartily in favor of the closing of the saloons on Sunday; that it was a good thing for the ministers to preach in favor of it and said he was willing to do all he could as a private citizen or as a member of a civic league, but reiterated his opposition to a campaign against the Sunday saloons by the alliance.

Dr. Alexander Milne, pastor of Pilgrim Congregational church, declared himself to be very much of the same mind as Dr. Ryan.

Both Dr. Ryan and Dr. Milne said they did not like the stories of the plans of the ministers that have appeared in the newspapers and the publicity side of of the situation was gone over by the members of the alliance. All along, there has been no mention of "putting on the lid" or statements of the kind. Rather, the ministers have talked only of trying for an "enforcement of the laws."

Besides Mr. Merritt, S. Morterud and Hendricks were present as a committee of business men. The president being absent, Rev. R. J. Mooney presided as chairman and Rev. Thomas Grice acted as secretary.

Besides those mentioned, there were present Rev. Messrs. Baxter Waters, A. B. Parker, J. C. Farles, H. K. Madsen, John A. Anderson, Carl Solomonson, James A. Geer, Alexander Milne, A. W. Ryan, Charles Schoenhelder and Mr. Moore of the African Methodist church.

CITY BRIEFS

Found Guilty of Assault.

Before Judge Cutting Saturday, Charles E. Miller, foreman of a switching crew was found guilty of assaulting Albert Riley, a teamster, in front of a saloon at 50 Garfield avenue on Thursday afternoon. The court fined Miller $25 and costs in default of which he was given 20 days.

Old Resident Dies.

Peter Poissant, aged 65 years, for the past twenty-three years a resident of Duluth, died Friday evening at his home, No. 4 Glen avenue, after an illness of several months. He was well known in local marine circles, having been employed for a long time by his brother-in-law, Napoleon Grignon.

The decedent leaves a widow and six children. The funeral took place this morning from the St. Jean de Baptist church.

Stops Runaway Team.

A sensational stop of a runaway team was made by Mounted Patrolman Eugene Rothie of the central district on East Fourth street Saturday afternoon. The team, belonging to Herman Blotner, had become frightened at a street car and the mounted officer had a running race of five blocks before he gained much upon the horses. At Fourteenth avenue east he closed in on them and getting hold of one of the bridles brought them to a stop. The race attracted hundreds of people and the officer was loudly cheered as he returned the horses to their owner.

Will Banquet Members.

E. A. Tessman, the contractor, is to banquet the members of the produce exchange at an early date, as the result of an election bet with H. B. Knudsen, a member of the Duluth Produce Exchange and a well known fruit dealer. The banquet will be served at the Commercial club and will be very elaborate. The date for the feast will be given out soon.

More Licenses Issued.

Up to noon today 1,232 hunting licenses had been issued by the county auditor. Several persons made application for licenses this morning, and it was expected that many more would be after permits before this evening. The licenses do not expire until the last day of December, but it is not likely that there will be any demand for them after Nov. 30, which is the last day for the killing of moose and deer.

Range Case is Settled.

By stipulaton filed in the district court, the appealed case of Saari Bros. against John W. Mitchell which was brought here from Eveleth, has been dismissed and Sheriff Bates has been directed to release Mitchell's property held under an attachment issued to Saari Bros.

Jury Trials Begun.

The damage case of Gust Swanson, administrator, against the Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railway company, was started for trial in district court room No. 3 this morning. Up to this noon the attorneys were still examining jurors as to their qualifications. In room No. 2, the civil cases of Herbert H. Hoyt against the Duluth & Iron Range Railway company and against Martin Bros. was being tried before a jury.

Object to Poles.

At the meeting of the board of public works this morning, objections were heard from the pepole living in the Normal school district to the granting of a permit to the Great Northern Power company to place its poles in that district, to carry power to the pumping station. A permit was granted for the poles as far as the Vermilion road, and the board took the question of the remaining district under consideration.

Capt. Norris Very Ill.

Reports from the residence of Capt. M. Norris this afternoon were to the effect that his condition showed little or no change. Capt. Norris has been afflicted with heart trouble for nearly two years past, and this is the cause of his present illness. His condition is critical, but hopes are entertained for his recovery.

Enlists in Navy.

D. D. Walstedt, who gave his home as Sauk Rapids, Minn., was enlisted in the navy Saturday by Officer Blenkhorn, in charge of the local recruiting office. He is 21 years of age and will act as a coal passer on one of the warships. He is the only man out of five applicants who could be accepted.

Circle to Meet.

Circle No. 4 of St. Paul's Episcopal church will meet Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Parker Paine, 1128 East Third street.

PERSONALS

W. A. Scott left yesterday for Casselton, N. D.

S. G. McConaughy left for Clinton, Iowa, yesterday.

AUDITOR WILL REPORT.

Annual Checking of the City's Books Has Been Completed.

The annual report of the auditor appointed to examine the books of the city, will be received at the meeting of the council this evening.

The auditor has completed the work of checking over the city's accounts, and will present his statement together with his recommendations for any changes in the system which he thinks advisable.

This is about the only business of importance due to come up, aside from the usual routine.

END IS AT HAND.

Last Day of Waiting for a Third of Land Seekers.

For about one-third of the land seekers at the Federal building, this is the last day of the weary waiting, and tomorrow they will be able to file their applications. The first of the three townships will be opened to entry tomorrow and on the following days the other two will be thrown open.

The crowd at the building has been increasing steadily up to the last few hours, but it is now thought that the limit for this opening has been reached. The waiting applicants have been divided into groups of three, according to the townships they care to file for, and tomorrow the first group will go through the ordeal at the desk of the land commissioner.

The other two groups will have a chance to make their applications on Wednesday and Thursday.

THE PEOPLE ON GUARD.

The Crookston Times puts it up to the people of Minnesota this way:

> Now that the campaign is over and a governor and a full complement of lawmakers have once more been chosen, what are we going to do about it? Nothing? That is what we usually do, and then we grumble because we are not entirely satisfied with the result. Why not attend to the business of state all the year around for a change, and see if we cannot get better results?

The Times is rather pessimistic upon this subject. It seems to The Herald that we are about to do a great deal. Nearly all of the legislative candidates elected are pledged to practical reform measures, and they can hardly forget their promises to the people in the few weeks yet to elapse before they assemble in St. Paul.

But the point made is that the people do not pay enough attention to public matters; that they think it is all over when they have voted and elected public officials; and that it is a good deal like it would be if "a business man selected a force of clerks with great care and then turned his business over to them and never went near it for a couple of years," to quote the Times again.

If a business man selected his force of employes with great care, he ought to be able to turn his business over to them with confidence that they would handle it properly. But the chances are that they would not, no matter how competent they were, because businesss needs a responsible head, and nobody can take that place like the man that owns the business.

It is a little different with public business. Everybody's business is nobody's business, so the people elect responsible heads to oversee things for them. But it is as true in this case as it is in the case of a business enterprise, that if the people go skylarking and leave things in the hands of their employes, business will suffer, unless perchance they have selected an uncommonly able head of affairs.

But it does not pay for the people to take chances. A paragraph in The Herald the other day said that too many people think the business of government is all over when the election has been held, when as a matter of fact it has just begun. The people should take a perpetual and earnest interest in their affairs, and let their servants know that they are watching all the time. That is usually enough to keep them straight. For instance, if the legislators who will go to St. Paul in a few weeks realize that the people are looking on very attentively, they are not likely to forget their promises or neglect their duties.

Therefore, if the lawmakers you elected made fine promises, do not let it go at that. Keep track of them. See that they fulfill these promises, and if they fail, see that they realize that you know it.

THE WORST OF IT.

A little pamphlet on "Export Prices to Date," by Byron W. Holt, published by the Reform club of New York, contains some interesting material for those who are arguing the need of a reasonable revision of the tariff.

The great argument against the present tariff schedules is that they permit manufacturers to hold up the people of this country for excessively high prices, while they are selling their products abroad at lower prices. The plea by the advocates of the prohibitive tariff that this is done to keep American workmen employed is hypocritical, and the argument that the prohibitive tariff is in the interests of labor is equally ridiculous in view of the fact that American manufacturers are now able to compete in foreign lands with products made by the labor of those lands, after paying ocean freights.

At first advocates of the tariff denied that American goods were sold abroad cheaper than at home. When that was no longer possible, they tried to justify it by talking about keeping labor employed. Labor would be employed just as well if this country could get the benefit of the lower prices, for that would certainly stimulate the demand.

This pamphlet contains the export discount from list prices, the home discount from list prices, and the percentage of difference in favor of export prices, on about 400 articles, all of which enter into everyday living as necessaries. There is a differential in favor of export prices on every item, some of them running as high as 60 per cent.

For instance, take kerosene, which is protected by retaliatory duties averaging 100 per cent. Mr. Rockefeller charges us 12 cents a gallon for a certain grade of oil in barrel lots, and he quotes the same grade for export at 7½ cents a gallon. Sold in bulk, we pay 10 cents a gallon, and the foreigner gets it for 6.40 cents. Thus oil is sold to us for about 4 cents more than the oil trust is glad to get for it from the people of other lands.

Wire nails cost $1.90 per hundred pounds at home, and $1.55 abroad.

Barbed wire sells for $2.45 here, and $2.22½ abroad.

Hoes cost $4.75 per dozen abroad and $5.50 at home.

Wagon and hay scales bring $75 here and $67.50 abroad.

Augur bits sell for $2 a dozen here and $1.21 abroad.

And so it goes.

Is it any wonder that the voters are beginning to defeat standpat candidates?

STATEHOOD RESULTS.

Full returns from the vote in Arizona and New Mexico on the joint statehood proposition are not yet in, but enough is known to justify the course of those who protested against forcing this condition upon the two territories without giving them a voice in it.

The original plan was to provide joint statehood for these territories upon the same basis as that upon which it was conferred upon Oklahoma and the Indian Territory. But it was made clear that while Oklahoma and Indian Territory wanted it and deserved it, it was equally clear that Arizona and New Mexico did not want it, whether they deserved it or not.

New Mexico was willing, of course, since she has the greater population, the least resources, the greatest expense of government and the least advancement. But for these very reasons, Arizona did not want it, and the results show that it would have been a high-handed outrage to carry out the original plan of not giving her any option.

Both the Republican and Democratic territorial conventions in Arizona declared against joint statehood, and the indications are that in Arizona hardly one vote in ten was cast in favor of it. New Mexico will probably show a majority for it, but it cannot be large enough to overcome the immense hostile majority in Arizona. Besides, the consent of both territories was required.

So unpopular was the Republican proposal to rape the independence of the territories, and force joint statehood upon them without their consent, that though saner counsels prevailed and the choice was reluctantly extended to them, the result of the election is that the Democrats have made great gains in all of the territories. The legislature of Arizona will be Democratic and Oklahoma went overwhelmingly Democratic, although in the latter case it is said that opposition to prohibition is the cause.

It is interesting, to those who believe that better results in government will be secured when the people are brought more closely in touch with the government, to note that the result of the election in Oklahoma will probably be the adoption of the initiative and the referendum in that state. This policy was in the Democratic platform, and as the Democrats are in control, they will have a chance to put it into practice.

It is hard to oppose this policy on any other ground than that of a distrust of popular government. It has not failed where it has been tried. Switzerland has it in the most perfect form of any state in the world, and Oregon has this year given the country a vivid illustration of how well it works.

The initiative and the referendum will be brought before the legislature this winter in Minnesota, and the action upon it here will be watched with great interest.

GOLDBRICKED AGAIN?

Have we been bunkoed again on a piece of legislation from which we hoped much?

When the bill removing the tax from alcohol made unfit to drink—as though any alcohol were fit to drink—for use in the arts and industries was pending in the national legislature we were told of marvelous benefits that would accrue from it. We were told that it would be made and sold for about the price of gasoline or cheaper, and that as it was more potent than gasoline it would soon run out the Standard Oil trust. We were told that it could be made from almost anything almost anywhere, and that every little community could have its denatured alcohol plant to make alcohol for local uses from the products of local farms and gardens.

It sounded well; almost too good to be true.

And now that we have the free alcohol bill, after much stress and storm, it appears that our internal revenue department has surrounded its manufacture with such binding restrictions that it is going to cost about 35 cents a gallon, nearly twice as much as gasoline, and that its manufacture will be so complicated and difficult that it will probably be confined to the big distilleries. And as the Standard Oil trust is taking over the whisky trust, here we are again, brought up with a round turn by the oil trust's busy lasso.

The present tax on ethyl alcohol is about $2 per wine gallon of 180 degrees proof, and the price runs from $2.30 to $2.50 a gallon for the strongest alcohol. The removal of the tax and the cheapening of the process of manufacture ought to bring the price down very materially, but the regulations provided by the treasury department have made it so that the reduction will not be proportionate.

In the first place, the department has made denatured alcohol expensive by providing that the denaturing shall be done by adding one part of wood alcohol to ten parts of ethyl or grain alcohol, with a slight mixture of benzine. This makes the alcohol unfit to drink, but it also makes it expensive enough, apparently, to eliminate most of the benefits expected from it. Many cheaper denaturing ingredients might have been found, but apparently the wood alcohol interests have busied themselves for the protection of their industry.

Again, the manufacture of the stuff is to be surrounded by a multiplication of conditions that will contribute to its expense. Special bonded warehouses must be provided, and government inspectors employed. These requirements will make it too expensive for small concerns to go into the business, and naturally the whisky trust and the Standard Oil company will absorb the industry, unless the government relieves it from some of the needless restrictions, and permits a cheaper method of denaturization. Great Britain only requires 5 per cent of wood alcohol instead of the 10 per cent to be required here.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"A new insurance law that goes into effect in New York the first of the year will handicap the insurance business all over the country," said E. L. Dane of Chicago, at the Lenox. "It regulates the commissions to be paid to agents, and also regulates conditions under which life insurance business is to be done. On renewals alone the new law cuts commissions in half by reducing the number of renewals from twenty years to ten years, and where commissions of from 60 to 75 per cent have been paid, under the new law they will be reduced to 50 per cent.

"The new law will have the effect of paralyzing business and life insurance will languish until the legislators see the necessity of modifying the law. It will be impossible for agents to make a living at the new prices. The law also provides that no life insurance company shall make advances to agents, and violations of this provision is regarded as a criminal offense. It has been the general practice to size up an agent and estimate him at his probable producing value. One man would be worth $50 a week, another $40, and under an agreement to remain in the service for a number of years advances were made on that basis whenever the agent required money. A great many agents failed to remain the time they had agreed upon, a contract of this sort being binding only upon the company employing the party, and advances would be left against them to the tune of $100, $1,000 or even $5,000. The law prohibiting such advances is designed to protect the policyholder from probable loss, but it closes up an avenue of encouraging business, which has been traveled by all the companies.

"The law passed by the New York legislature is universal in effect, because, while the New York legislature cannot make laws for other states, it can and does provide that no company doing business in the state of New York shall do certain things. As New York is the headquarters for most of the large companies, it is evident that the law really holds good all over the country."

"The problem of how to help the girl who works on a low salary has been solved in Indianapolis," said C. M. Robinson of Indianapolis, Ind., at the St. Louis. "The Mutual Service association turned the trick. The organization started two years ago with $5 contributed by a business man, and it now has a home valued at $10,000, and is doing no end of good among the girls who have a hard time mbaking both ends meet.

The general betterment of women workers, either in the home or in the business world, is the aim, and the association gladly takes the initiative or offers cooperation to any other organization, whenever a case of need comes to its attention. Thirty young women can be comfortable accommodated at the home, which is attractively situated on a tract of land four or five acres in extent, prettily timbered. During the summer a camp was maintained at the home and many young women availed themselves of the opportunity of getting away from the heat and noise of the city, and to spend their night in the quietness of the camp.

"The work of keeping up the home is done by young women members themselves. Each young woman looks after her own room herself, and in addition to this she assists in light housework. The girls take care of the grounds about the home as well as the inside work. They have flower beds, truck gardens, etc., and their work in this respect results in a neat little profit for themselves. Aside from the money gain, the gain in health was an important factor, which alone made the outdoor work worth while."

"The Chicago factory I represent claims to have solved the problem of a smoke preventer that really prevents," said S. W. Gladstone, of Chicago, at the McKay. "The thing that did the trick is an arch of fire brick, directly under the boiler. The company recently reset its boiler, and made the change in construction at that time. The arch of fire brick was constructed over the entire top of the combustion chamber, directly back of the fire box, so that the comparatively cool surface of the boiler itself does not come in contact with the volatile gases from the fire, that go to makeup the greater part of the smoke.

"Instead of this, the arch of fire brick, which becomes red hot within half an hour after the fire is lighted, ignites all these gases as they come in contact with it, and they are consumed. The opening of the combustion chamber from the fire box is over the bridge will just as in ordinary boiler settings.

"This very simple arrangement has proved quite effective. Besides disposing of the smoke, it saves the fuel. From the time the fire is fairly started in the morning there is no smoke, except for the minute or two when it is necessary to open the doors to put fuel on the fire, and then the smoke is not of extreme density, but a grayish mixture that disappears as soon as the doors are closed."

The Independent Paper.

Kansas City Star: The compensations of a sincere, progressive and fearless newspaper are not wholly dependent on immediate results. There is an abounding satisfaction in working for better government, cleaner politics and a higher social order even when progress is slow. It is a privilege to be able to address the large audience that a paper of wide circulation commands, and in making that address to have no restraints of party, no considerations of personal interest, no impulses based on prejudice, but to be free to judge men and issues on their merits. A paper that follows this policy from month to month, from year to year, has its reward in the cumulative results as well as in the passing joy of the work. It gains the confidence of its readers. Its motives will be continually misconstrued by the selfish interests it opposes, but such misconstruction has no effect against the established reputation of a steadfastly sincere journal.

THE WEATHER.

Wintry, rather, last night and this morning. The clouds that overcast the sky were of a dull, gray hue that threatened snow, and perhaps if it had been warmer, more snow would have come. As it was, a few flakes were squeezed out from time to time. The weather man says it will be still partly cloudy, but milder in temperature, tonight and tomorrow. Last night's lowest temperature was 22 degs. and yesterday's highest was 26 degs.

The sun set this afternoon at 4:37 and rises tomorrow morning at 7:08.

A year ago yesterday Indian summer weather prevailed, and a year ago today it was a beautifully warm fall day.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Cloudy skies are the rule this morning in Central and Northern districts east of the Rocky mountains. Light falls of snow or rain fell during Sunday or last night in North Atlantic states, the lake region, Oregon and Washington, due mainly to the influence of barometric disturbances central off the New England coast and over British Columbia. An area of rather pronounced high pressure, central over the eastern portion of the Dakotas, Nebraska and Kansas, is attended by freezing temperatures throughout the Northwest, lake region and Central valleys, the southern belt of freezing being a line drawn east and west through Asheville and Santa Fe. Partly cloudy and milder weather is indicated for this locality tonight and Tuesday as a result of the expected easterly movement of the Dakota high and British Columbia low pressure areas."

"OUR NEXT GOVERNOR."

Stillwater Gazette (Rep.): Albert L. Cole has gone down to tremendous defeat, but with the knowledge that no act of his or, with his connivance, of friends of his, has been done that will cause him or the party to which he belongs regret. It evidently was not on the books that any Republican could win against the Democratic nominee this year.

St. Paul Pioneer Press (Rep.): Now the truth is that the Democratic party might go much farther—to New York or Nebraska, for instance—and fare much worse. Johnson would be far less objectionable as a Democratic candidate, or as a president for that matter, than either Hearst or Bryan. He is not a demagogue; he is not an agitator; and while he has kept most of his views on most national questions carefully concealed about his person, it is probable that he is naturally more conservative than either of the other gentlemen mentioned. The worst indication is that he is a pronounced admirer of Bryan. * * * However, far be it from us to throw cold water on those who are dreaming of a second President Johnson. The Pioneer Press knows of no one whom it would rather see receive the Democratic nomination. Such an event would save a good deal of toil and anxiety two years hence. Besides it would advertise Minnesota not unfavorably; for its Johnsons are products of which it is proud, and John A. is one of the best specimens.

Redwood Reveille (Rep.): John A. Johnson has been re-elected governor of Minnesota by a plurality of some 60,000. This is unprecedented in the history of Minnesota politics, is the greatest political feat of the present election, and may result in the governor becoming a presidential possibility.

Winona Independent: Johnson's pluralities in Duluth and St. Louis county indicate that the voters up there are learning the independent spirit.

Austin Register (Rep.): The able manner in which Governor Johnson responded to an encore has certainly made the Republicans of Minnesota sit up and take notice and the Democrats to jump for joy.

Preston Times (Rep.): As a partisan, the Times is sorry for the defeat of Cole, personally we can express no regrets. We have said before, we say it now, that John A. Johnson is a good man, has made a good governor and we do not hesitate to say that in our opinion he will continue to make good. Look out for him as a vice presidential probability in 1908.

Eveleth Star (Rep.): It seems that the people are of the opinion that it is impossible to get "too much Johnson."

Austin Register (Rep.): The trip up Salt river was certainly fine, the only trouble was that there were so many trying to make the trip at one time that one was in danger of being swamped.

Rochester Post-Record (Rep.): John A Johnson is re-elected governor of Minnesota. With a plurality of somewhere around 40,000, there may be no very great doubt of that. The reason? "Though reasons were as plenty as blackberries," it would be hard to find any except his pleasing personality, and the custom of giving an official who has made even a fairly good record a second term. No man in the state is better known, no man has better or stronger friends, and as a man, none deserve them better. But they needn't have rubbed it in quite so hard. It was really overdone by a few thousand.

Winona Independent (Ind.): Governor Johnson's victory is largely a personal one, and he has every reason to view his return to office with pride. It cannot fail to be a source of self congratulation to him that he has accomplished what no Democratic candidate for governor has ever been able to do before, but the Independent this morning feels more like congratulating the voters of the state of Minnesota than anyone else. Governor Johnson earned his victory and it is a matter of no little moment that more than a hundred and fifty thousand Republican voters of the state could throw off their party bonds and cast their ballots fearlessly for the man whom their better judgment told them was entitled to their suffrage.

What The Had In Tennessee.

Nashville American: When people who are one-fourth crow and three-fourths hyena try to run a campaign that is the kind of campaign they run.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1886.

Casper Schulte has just completed a fine residence in Hermantown.

The Democratic majority in the lower branch of the next congress will be twenty-one, including two labor men. Minnesota sends three Democrats and two Republicans.

John Lundberg is building a new residence on East Second street.

If this Duluth weather continues much longer, it will be spring before anyone is aware ot it.

M. H. Bywater is erecting a residence on the corner of Second street and Tenth avenue east.

Henry Truelsen says he went to the polls on election day determined to vote for the best men, and he could find no better than himself running for sheriff so he got a vote.

There is not a vacant tenantable house in Duluth.

Brother C. H. Foster of Duluth says the Pythian Advocate, is a man of man, titles, holding important offices in nearly a dozen societies, besides being an exemplary "family man." He is soon to be commissioned Sixth district dramatic editor of the Advocate.

Alderman F. W. Eaton has established a hunting camp about eight miles south of Northern Pacific Junction. He has a neat cabin built there and fixed up conveniently for hunters.

Articles of incorporation of the Duluth & Wisconsin railroad were filed in the register of deeds office in Ramsey county yesterday. The incorporators are W. H. Fisher, A. S. Chase, John H. Hammond, William V. Noal and E. E. Barton. The principal place of business is Duluth and the capital stock is $500,000. The object is to build a railroad from Duluth to West Superior.

All the real estate men are looking for a big boom from now on. The numerous railroad schemes floating about will no doubt have a tendency to help the boom along.

Wheat freights from Duluth to Buffalo yesterday were 7½ cents. It is expected that the shipments for the remainder of the season will be about 1,500,000 bushels.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Winona Independent: Now that election is over, the voter can return to the important problem of how he is going to pay his coal bill and have turkey for Thanksgiving.

Little Falls Transcript: It is evident that the Republican state convention at Duluth did not do the wisest thing possible.

Preston Times: Our neighboring county of Winneshiek used voting machines this year, although there was a storm of protest because the commissioners had involved the county in the heavy expense. The voting machines, no matter what the opposition, will gradually be adopted all over the country. They are absolutely incorruptible and cannot be tampered with, which is more than can be said of some judges of election. Like many other improvements over old methods, they have come to stay.

Eveleth Star: It is now up to the men chosen to the legislative bodies of the state. But they will need assistance from the people if they are to be successful in their efforts. And while this matter is being considered, it would not be a bad plan to also consider the need of better roads and plan for favors to farmers and the encouraging of manufacturing interests.

Princeton Union (Rep.): If there is ever a "next Republican state convention," Hennepin ought to be shut out.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: It is now up to the Republican legislature to do something for the people. If this state is to elect a Republican governor in 1908, it is time to get busy.

Le Sueur News: Come, let us advertise Minnesota.

Anoka Free Press: Joseph M. Patterson, the wealthy Socialist, has started a daily paper. In all probability he will find that an effective means for the distribution of his wealth.

Crookston Times: One insurance company discovers by experiment that it is cheaper to get business by advertising than through agents. Here's a hint for every other enterprising business man.

Red Wing Republican: It often seems to the quiet, well disposed man, possessed of good ability and conscientious uprightness of character, as though the necessary elements of business success in this world were unlimited cheek and utter absence of conscience; but that view of life if morbid. Merit still receives due recognition, often enough to keep the honest man from becoming pessimistic.

F. M. in Prison Mirror: A woman in Missouri has been divorced and remarried eight times. Now, I'll bet that this very same lady would have the sublime nerve to take her pen in hand and, in John Hancock style, write her name to a petition asking for the removal of a Mormon from public office.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: The trouble about being good is there aren't enough vacations from it.

The way a girl likes to have you kiss her best is the way she won't let you.

There must be a heap of satisfaction in being so poor everybody is sure you aren't a thief.

A woman is so proud of getting a cable dispatch she would like to hang it in the parlor in a gold frame.

When you hear a man bragging how early he gets up because he likes to it's because the people who employ him would discharge him if he didn't.

My Bark.

God set my bark afloat
Upon Life's morning sea,
And gave for captain Hope
To sail my bark for me.

* * *

We voyage past rock and reef
By tide winds blown afar,
Beneath the ancient sun,
Beneath the steadfast star.

We coast by phantom shores,
We raise the Isle of Dreams;
We plow through wide wastes lit
By phosphorescent gleams.

And still we tack and drive,
And still, though waves o'erwhelm,
I'm cabined with Content,
For Hope is at the helm.

And through his guidance staunch
I feel, at God's decree,
Fair haven I shall find Beyond Life's sunset sea.
—CLINTON SCOLLARD.

The Meaning.

New York World: Let nobody mistake the meaning of the narrow victory that Charles E. Hughes has won over William R. Hearst. Mr. Hughe's election by 36,000 plurality is morally a Republican defeat, a popular repudiation of the corrupt Republican machine and its alliance with corrupt corporations. The Hearst vote is a striking illustration of the popular temper in regard to the abuses of corporations and the demand for effective regulation.

The next two years must be years of definite results in the way of reform government and the restriction of corporation abuses. If the Republican bosses thwart Mr. Hughes in his work of reform, or if Mr. Hughes himself falters, it will be useless to appeal again to Democrats to save the state from demogogues. If the people are driven to the conviction that nothing but demogogy can sweep away the old order of things, they will vote for demagogy. When that feeling comes it will be too late to appeal to reason.

If the confidence of the people is again betrayed, and no effective effort is made to remedy the evils of which they not unjustly complain, it may be something even worse than Hearst next time.

Pointed Paragraphs.

Chicago Daily News: Never lend yourself to the borrowing of trouble.

Many shady reputations are due to the casting of reflections.

Some men work overtime trying to quench a burning thirst.

Nothing ever takes a harder fall out of worry than hard work.

You could save a lot of car fare by letting your thoughts travel for you.

It goes without saying that the less said about some things the better.

Gather Them While We May.

Baltimore American: A fantastic imagination and delusions of childhood are the brief and beautiful flowers of life.

POINTED PLEASANTRIES.

Washington Star: "Think of what these prosecutions of your trust are costing the taxpayers!"

"Yes," suggested Mr. Dustin Stax, "and think of what I, as one of the heaviest taxpayers, am obliged to contribute toward the cost of my own prosecution!"

Baltimore American: "Don't you know that surgeon who passed us just now?"

"I know him very well."

"He cut you dead."

"Oh, that's only the force of professional habit."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Yes, he was nailin' a board on his front steps and hit his thumb an awful swipe. And what do you think! He didn't say a word."

"He didn't?"

"Nope. He's deaf and dumb."

Chicago Tribune: "Speaking of the triumphs of mind over matter," chuckled the expert burglar, as he succeeded in working out the combination and opening the safe, "how's this?"

Washington Star: "Sometimes," said Uncle Eben, "a lazy man works harder dodgin' work dan he would have to work if he tended to business."

Baltimore American: "A tailor or a dressmaker will be the last person alive when the earth comes to an end."

"Because of the doctrine of the survival of the fit-test."

Philadelphia Press: "Well, well," remarked old Mr. Pastangon, "the young women of today are not what they were in my time."

"No?" replied Miss Huskie.

"No, indeed. Why, all the young women nowadays are muscular athletes."

"That's so. In the proud lexicon of feminine youth there is no such word as 'frail.'"

Chicago Tribune: "I try to be polite to passengers," said the street car conductor with the powerful breath, "but when one of 'em tries to pass a plugged nickel on me, by George, it's pretty hard for me to hold in! And the company never makes any allowance for that sort of thing."

"I suppose," observed the other man, "the company is more concerned about what you hold out."

Business is Business.

"How's business?" I said to a butcher I met
While out for a stroll on the street.
"Well, sometimes it's tough, but by chopping," he said,
"I manage to make both ends meat."

I spoke to an author, a cheerful young chap,
Whose life seemed exceedingly bright.
"How goes it?" I asked, and he promptly replied:
"Oh, everything seems to be write.

"You're looking quite well," to a broker I said,
Whom I sat beside in a car,
"Don't take any stock in my health," he replied;
"I'm feeling away below par."

My tailor I met on a prominent street.
"Good morning," I said, "you look cute."
"Why shouldn't I, pray?" he replied with a smile.
"When every one's easy to suit?"

"Ah, doctor, good morning. How goes it with you?"
I asked with a smile on the side.
"Oh, I'm going along in the same old way.
Enjoying bad health," he replied.

I said to the man who makes automobiles:
"It isn't quite proper to frown."
"I know it's dead wrong," he replied with a pout,
"The fact is, I'm all broken down."
—Judge.

The Warning of Hearst.

Pittsburg Dispatch: But one fact should be set down by the corporate and financial classes. Whatever strength Hearst has, and whatever danger to the future he personifies, have been given him by the abuses of the corporate world. He would be powerless if there were not a foundation of truth for his attacks. It is because of the spectacle of corporate lawbreakers and trust-fund manipulators going on with impunity that frothy and designing men like him have power to call out the dangerous energies of the masses.

Pointers by Peasc.

Anoka Union: The people usually vote right.

Now the contest for the speaker of the house will start.

Does anybody know where our congressman keeps himself?

The people are demanding tariff revision and they'll have it sure as you live.

Minnesota can afford to spend a goodly sum of money to bring settlers here and the legislature will be wise if it makes the appropriation.

THE "SPLENDID STEWART" BASE BURNER

THE HIGHEST TYPE OF HEATING STOVE EVER CONSTRUCTED.

"STEWART" Stoves and Ranges Made and guaranteed by THE FULLER-WARREN CO. The oldest Stove Makers in the United States Established 1831.

It's Best to Have a "Stewart" when the Mercury Goes DOWN

IF YOU WANT THE BEST, YOU MUST

BUY A "STEWART"

With every "Stewart" Stove or Range you get the broadest and most liberal guarantee it is possible for you to get with a stove. And we do not stop there. Come to this store and we will show you a "Stewart" "Base Burner" that has been in actual use in Duluth for 20 years.

This is certainly the most powerful and convincing argument in the world in favor of a "Stewart" Stove or Range. A bank, a trust company or, in fact, any institution is judged by what it HAS done—by its record in the past, and NOT by what it PROMISES to do. While other dealers make desperate claims and promises as to what their stoves will do, we show you what the "Grand Old Stewarts" HAVE done—CAN do—and ARE doing, right today, in Duluth! Over 3,000 "Stewart Stoves sold at the Head of the Lakes by this store alone—and over 20,000 sold in Northern Minnesota and Wisconsin in the past 15 years. We have the facts and figures to substantiate this, as every other claim we make for these wonderful stoves.

How Much Coal Do You Use? READ THIS!

Mr. J. H. Moork of 6211 Lavaque street, West Duluth, who used a "Stewart" Stove for 20 years, has this to say about the cost of fuel and repairs of his stove: Size of house heated, six good-sized rooms; average amount of coal used, ONLY 3 TONS PER YEAR; cost of all repairs in 20 years, only $2.50.

WE CHALLENGE COMPARISON!

Before you spend any stove money, we want you to come to this store and let us explain the many good points of a "Stewart" Stove, as compared with any other. We want you to see the nickel work and general condition of the "Stewart" Stove that was used 20 years.

MANY HEAR NORTHROP

Men Listen to Eloquent Talk by State University President.

Y. M. C. A. Meeting at Lyceum is Very Well Attended.

Cyrus Northop, president of the University of Minnesota, delivered an address on "The Twentieth Century Religion" yesterday afternoon at the Lyceum theater, before the largest crowd that has gathered at any of the Y. M. C. A.'s Sunday afternoon meetings for men.

Dr. Northup spends all of his time looking after an institution of learning for young men and women, and therefore, as he said, he was able despite his gray hairs to view things from the young man's point of view and his talk yesterday seemed to confirm his contention.

He talked straight from the shoulder about "The Twentieth Century Religion," what its tendencies were and what it should be. He declared that by the way it was drifting, there seemed to be a disposition to leave God Almighty out of it altogether and it was against that that he spoke most eloquently and emphatically.

He declared against the practice of doing some kindness to a neighbor and imagining that that was all there was to religion. That, he said, should not be the twentieth century religion.

Dr. Northop was greeted with loud cheers when he arose to talk, after an introduction by C. A. Smith, principal of the Duluth high school. Dr. Northop said in part:

"The Y. M. C. A., when it was organized something like fifty years ago, was supposed to look after only the moral and spiritual welfare of the young man but since then its scope has been broadened and now it looks after the physical and intellectual well-being of the young man, as well. I have no doubt that the spiritual work is the hardest of all and to which there is the least response.

"It is not hard to impress a man with the need of physical and intellectual development. If he is not interested in any of these movements, he is likely to be found in some place that is undesirable, disgraceful and degrading.

"But my topic is 'The Twentieth Century Religion.' And we take it for granted that the twentieth century is going to have a religion, just like the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. It is not going to be Mohammedanism, Buddhism or any of the other 'isms' but it is going to be Christianity in some form.

"Let us take an inventory of the stock on hand. What is it that men are after all the time, every day in the year, every month in the year and year in and year out? Money! That is the topic everywhere, money. We are told, by the bank clearings, etc., that the business of the United States has increased tremendously during the last five years and you believe it readily because you are familiar with it. We are living in an era of great prosperity. Any man with his eyes half open can see that.

"In the course of economic revolutions and political changes, however, the delicate balance of prosperity is going to be upset, and what is comfortable now will become very miserable indeed.

"The poor man sees his more prosperous neighbor piling up wealth, and thinks, with some reason, that he gets very little of it. The workman sees the profits of the company for which he works go higher and higher and feels that he gets very little of them. A New York justice has resigned a berth on the bench which paid him $17,500 a year in order that he might enter the practice of law again and provide for his nine children, five of whom are women. And who can blame him? We all want money.

"People, in the matter of money, are drunk, and there you have the atmosphere of America today. A craze for money, that is what it is, and do you wonder that the churches are cold and that the prayer meeting does not flourish?

"Sometimes people think of other things. They think of elections, of football games, of a revolution in Cuba or a volcano in Mexico. Yet even then they are thinking of money, for they bet on the outcome of the election, on the football game, and I am not sure that in a short time they will be betting on volcanoes.

"Duluth is a great place for making money. I have no doubt that after I have gone you will be scrambling in a lively fashion after money.

"But I am not in favor of idleness. I believe in the accumulation of wealth, but I think that it should be more evenly distributed rather than piled up for the few.

"Go back a few centuries and what do you find? You find that everyone worshiped God. The architecture, pictures and sculptures were all expressions of the love of man for God Almighty. The relation of God to man was very close. Everyone prayed all the time. They feared God. They were afraid of him, so they prayed often. But I do not think that they loved Him so very much.

"But we are swinging the pendulum too much the other way. We are thinking too much of money and we are leaving God out of it altogether. There is no religion without God. Some people think that if they do a neighbor a service, they are embracing religion and all that it contains, but they are not. Leave God out of your thoughts and you may be amiable, but you cannot be spiritual.

"In this twentieth century I suppose that you have got rid of the old idea of hell. But do you believe that sin goes unpunished? We must give an accounting somewhere and sometime. And we will not be asked what we have got or how much money we had when we died, but what we have been doing.

"Why do the churches need so much help at present? Because people are not thinking so much of God. Right here in this city I suppose that there are thousands of young men who are untouched by this association, and you are needed to carry on the work of rescuing them. Stand up for Jesus. Let us be true to the truth and to the God who made us!"

Rev. Alexander Milne offered a prayer and Rev. M. S. Rice pleaded eloquently for a generous contribution. The Orpheus Singing society sang and there were several numbers by an orchestra.

Mr. Lippold, the secretary of the religious work of the Y. M. C. A., spoke briefly of the attendance and the meetings which have been planned for the rest of the winter. A flash-light photograph of the audience was taken.

ELECTRICITY FROM STOMACH

San Francisco Scientists Perform Scientific Experiments.

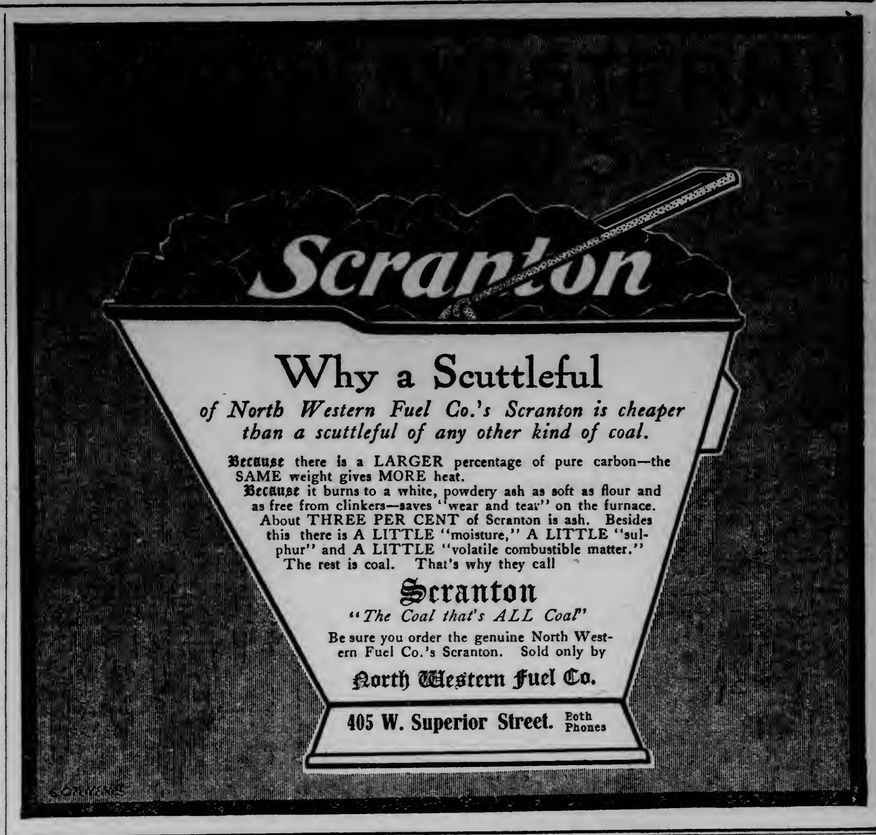

San Francisco, Nov. 12.—Before a number of medical men and scientists, yesterday, Doctors Albert J. Atkins and E. J. Lewis succeeded in charging an electrical circuit with human electricity to such a degree that external sound waves were transmitted and heard through an ordinary telephone received. The experiment consisted of the application to the walls of the living stomach of two platinum electrodes that were connected with a telephone and microphone. The moment the electrodes were swallowed sufficiently to touch the walls of the stomach, human electricity flowed over the wires, rendering audible sounds. The electric charge measured from 7 to 8 millivolts.

Col. E. P. Richardson, the subject of the experiment, swallowed the electrodes and succeeded in retaining them for a considerable time. After a brief rest, he was given a drink of whisky, and on again connecting the electrodes with the interior lining of his stomach, the galvanometer registered 15 millivolts.

Doctors Atkins and Lewis assert that by this experiment they have demonstrated the law of action of the human senses. They hold that if sound is transmitted over a copper wire when it is charged with human electricity, it is reasonable to consider the principle the same when the various nerves are charged with the same force.

RECOMMENDS COUNTY HOME

Grand Jury Suggests Official Care for Unfortunate Infants.

A recommendation for a county institution for the care of homeless infants, less than 3 months of age, was embodied in the report which the grand jury filed with the district court when it was discharged last Saturday. The report follows:

"In addition to the various indictments and no true bills which have been from time to time reported to the court, the grand jury desires to further report that it has come to the attention of the grand jury that there is no place in St. Louis county where unfortunate infants of less than 3 months of age can be cared for, and that there are a number of such infants each month left to the care of the Humane society.

"It is, therefore, respectfully recommended by the grand jury that the board of poor commissioners, or the board of county commissioners of St. Louis county, take action to provide means and a place of refuge for such infants.

MILLIONAIRE SOCIALIST IS STUDYING FARMING.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 12.—Joseph Medill Patterson, the young millionaire Socialist whose meteoric career in Chicago politics last year, ending as it did in his conversation to the doctrines of Socialism, attracted national attention, has enrolled as a student in the short course in agriculture at the University of Wisconsin. Mr. Patterson is a grandson of Joseph Medill, founder of the Chicago Tribune, and is a graduate of Yale. After completing his college course he returned to Chicago, where he was appointed commissioner of public works by Mayor Dunne. He at once began a vigorous crusade against numerous private interests which had encroached upon public property without authority, and succeeded in collecting thousands of dollars of rental for the city of Chicago. In the midst of his work of reform, he became convinced of the hoplessness of the struggle under present conditions, and tendering his resignation to Mayor Dunne, announced his espousal of the cause of Socialism. His determination to study agriculture at the University of Wisconsin this winter is evidently the result of his recognition of the importance to return of a large part of the population to farming, as the only solution for the evils of congested life in large cities.

Mr. Patterson is the second young millionarie to take advantage of the instruction of the short course in agriculture at the state university. Last year Fred Pabst, son of the late Capt. Fred Pabst of Milwaukee, resigned his position in the management of the great brewery interest with which his name has long been associated, and decided to take up the raising of blooded horses as his occupation. Accordingly he entered the short course last winter, and took special work in the breeding and care of horses. Upon completing his work last spring, he purchased a ranch of several thousand acres in Dakota, and imported hundreds of the finest Russian horses. Since then he has been busily engaged in developing this new line of work, which promises to prove an exceedingly profitable one.

CULLOM FOR REVISION IN SPECIAL SESSION.

Washington, Nov. 12.—Senator Cullom of Illinois, who has arrived in the city, is in favor of revision of the tariff at a special session of congress next spring.

"I have not talked with the president," he said, "and I do not know whether he proposes to call an extra session, or even that he favors revision of the tariff at this time."

The senator declares that he has reached the conviction that the only practical way to bring about revision is to frame a new law.

"The present law is old," he declared. "It may have been more or less perfect when enacted, but conditions have changed, and there is necessity for revision."

The senator is a protectionist, but insists that revision cannot be accomplished by amendments, because when one amendment is presented, scores of other changes will be offered to it.

The senator also believes that some of the duties in schedule should be lowered, while there are others that should be increased.

KILLED BY HIS DEER.

Rich Flour Merchant Found Dead at His Country Place.

New York, Nov. 12.—Killed by the deer in his beautiful country place in Eagle Rockway, Montclair, the body of Herbert Bradley, a wealthy flour exporter of 58 William street, New York, was found at 7 o'clock Saturday. Bruises covered his body and his legs were lacerated, evidently by the horns and hoofs of the animals, which had been very tame and great pets of their owner, though they often terrified other residents of the countryside by escaping from the park on Mr. Bradley's place.

IMPALED ON A STICK.

Little Boy Meets Death on a Farm Near Foley.

Foley, Minn., Nov. 12.—Little August Bialki, the 8-year old son of a prominent farmer living a few miles out of town, fell from a strawstack and was impaled on a sharp stick. He died in a short time.

AGED MAN MISSING.

Left Home at Arrow in September and Not Heard From.

Hibbing, Minn., Nov. 12.—William Furlong, residing at Arrow, a village fifty miles north of here, was in Hibbing last evening seeking information concerning the whereabouts of his father, who left home on Sept. 29 and has not since been heard from.

The father, who is 75 years old, went away the day in question with the intention of visiting friends four miles distant.

Although the woods have been searched and relatives have visited every town in the vicinity of Arrow, nothing can be learned of the missing man.

RATHER SLOW PAY.

Lamberton, Minn., Nov. 12.—Postmaster A. J. Gebhard has received a letter from a party in Crandon, Wis., stating that he stopped here at a hotel some thirteen years ago, and left without paying his board, amounting to 60c. He enclosed a draft for $1 and requested Mr. Gebhard to look up the party running the hotel here at that time and pay him the money.

A COSTLY RUNAWAY.

Cannon Falls, Minn., Nov. 12.—John Judge will have to pay Hilda Carlson $1,500 for allowing his team of young horses to run away. Judge was about to be married and hitched up two green horses to do some trading. They took fright, pitched him out of the rig and he landed on Mrs. Carlson's team as she was going to the creamery. She also was thrown out and badly hurt, so she sued Judge for $5,000, but got a verdict for only $1,500.

DYING OF CONSUMPTION.

San Francisco, Nov. 12.—William Haywood, American consul general in Korea, has arrived here on the Pacific liner Korea. Within a few weeks after his arrival at Seoul, Mr. Haywood was taken ill with pulmonary trouble. His physician ordered him to Arizona as being the only place where he would have a chance to regain his health. He is accompanied by his wife and two children. His condition is said to be serious, and little hope is entertained for his recovery.

BORDER TARIFF HARMS AMERICA

Plea for Reciprocity With Canada Made by James J. Hill.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—"Commerce will go her own way even though she must walk in leg-irons. Why not strike them off and permit her to pursue her journey freely to the end?"

This single utterance symbolized with brilliance and succinctness the dominant note of a speech delivered to the Merchant's club at the Auditorium Saturday night by James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern railway, on "Reciprocity with Canada."

"The situation is not unlike that existing between Great Britain and the American colonies before the revolution," declared Mr. Hill, "and every turn of the tariff screw by the United States merely creates exasperation and hardens a determination to achieve industrial independence, even though it be purchased at the cost of industrial isolation. Each year has seen a diminution in the Canadian desire for reciprocity."

That reciprocity is still possible, however, the railroad president believes is unquestioned, and he mentions as a favoring influence the downfall of the Chamberlain policy in Great Britain, and with it the virtual command of the mother country to her dependencies to make trade agreements wherever possible. Then Mr. Hill gave some figures in the way of clinching his arguments. He said:

That the export trade of Canada to the United Kingdom had risen from $3,544,000 in 1866 to about $110,000,000 in 1904.

That on our side Canada does more business with the United States than any other country save Great Britain and Germany.

"It remians," continued Mr. Hill, "for business men in both countries to take hold before it is too late."

And he asked at this point what the first principle step should be, and answered it in this manner:

"No man can go into this matter, dismiss bias and self-interest, whout believing that the consummation most to be wished is the wiping out of custom houses along our northern frontier and the establishment there of absolute free trade. It is the suggestion of natural law, of business interest, of the common good. If the time be not due for that, the least that it demands is the policy and measure of ample reciprocity.

There cannot be even a beginning until we shall have fixed in our minds the desirability of a free interchange of natural products and raw materials, giving to the New England manufacturer his fuel and to the farmer of the Western plains his lumber, and to the makers of books and newspapers everywhere their print paper free from the exactions which a needless tariff now permits monopoly to impose."

Mr. Hill also argued that as great a boon as the Panama canal will be to the trade of the country, it would benefit the South most and would make its greatest drafts of business upon the Western coast of South America, which he believed could not be compared to the vast agricultural acreage of the Northern country.

The speaker also referred to the rapid development of Canada and said one of her most ambitious projects was the proposed canal from Lake Huron to the St. Lawrence river.

POLICYHOLDERS BOOM FISH FOR PRESIDENT.

New York, Nov. 12.—Several members of the International Policyholders' committee, and some of the candidates for the board of trustees of the Mutual Life Insurance company, have been advised by large policyholders of the company within the last few days to advocate the election of Stuyvesant Fish as president of the Mutual Life Insurance company, in the event of the success of the policyholders' ticket.

In one of the communications received it was pointed out that Mr. Fish was driven from the presidency of the Illinois Central railway as punishment for his independent course while trustee of the Mutual Life in insisting upon a thorough housecleaning of the company.

This policyholder wrote that a man who stood up against the pressure exerted by E. H. Harriman, President Charles A. Peabody and other powerful interests, and in behalf of the policyholders, and was then sacrificed because of his honesty, was the idcal man to put in charge of the policyholders' interests.

We owe the young people of this country the best example and teaching that we chance to know. That's good advice. Take Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea. Tea or Tablets, 35 cents. Ask your druggist.

DOYLE NOT GUILTY OF WEILER MURDER.

Morden, Man., Nov. 12.—M. Doyle is a free man after spending eight months in jail. He was declared innocent of the murder of Vincent Weiler of Mount Carmel, N. D., after a trial consuming ten days. The jury was out less than an hour.

The climax of a fierce fight over a human life was devoid of dramatic soundings, though there were sensational elements earlier in the day, when counsel on each side were arguing the case and the court was analyzing the vidence.

The case goes down in criminal history as one of the real mysteries of the great prairie province.

Justice Richards chraged strongly in favor of the accused, pointing out the evidence gathered by the crown was largely circumstantial, and some of it unworthy of credit.

While the opposing counsel and judge were addressing the jury, Mrs. Doyle and ten children of the accused occupied a prominent position in the court room.

Nothing was said by his lordship or the prisoner himself as he stepped from the court room a free man. Doyle showed little more emotion than he has betrayed throughout the entire trial, and it was seldom he moved a muscle in his features, even in the face of startling statements.

SMALLEST MAN IS DEAD.

Reese Wiggles, Aged 56, and 37 Inches Tall, Passes Away.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Nov. 12.—Reese Wiggles, who claimed to be the smallest man in the world, being four inches shorter than Gen. Tom Thumb, died Saturday at Retreat, near here. He was 56 years old and most of his life was spent on the stage. He had been exhibited throughout this country and Europe. He was on the stage with Gen. Tom Thumb in Wales and then came to this country. He was 37 inches tall. His parents died when he was young and William H. Thomas has since taken charge of him.

ROSEAU COUNTY'S GREAT AGRICULTURAL DEVELOPMENT

Rich and Fertile Soil Where Crops Never Fail—The Paradise of Settlers Who Understand Farming, Dairying and Stock Raising—For Gilt-Edged and Money-Making Investments for Homeseekers and Investors None Excels This Section of Minnesota.

By J. A. MONGER.

Roseau county is one of the richest in agricultural lands in Minnesota. The general contour of the country is prairie, with poplar groves and hazel brush dotting it all around. There is no cut over timber land, no swamp, except grass swamps, that is always found in the fertile valley regions of the prairie states. The soil of these lands is a rich black and dark sandy loam, with subsoil of clay, that has been fertilized for ages by the autumnal crops of vegetation, making it an almost inexhaustible soil, that only awaits the civilizing touch of the plow, to convert it into the garden spot of the Northwest. Land is selling from $10 to $15 per acre today, which will be worth $40 to $60 in another five years. This soil is unsurpassed for the growing of all kinds of crops; wheat, oats, barley, flax and corn, all root crops, timothy and clover, while the climate is unequalled for dairying and stock raising. This land is located in the high-priced market zone of St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth. It is this rich soil and superb climate of Roseau county that we propose to talk with you about, and the opportunities that await the farmer settler who takes advantage of the situation as it now exists.

Roseau county was organized in 1895, with the county seat at Roseau. In size it is thirty-two miles wide, north and south, and sixty miles long, east and west, containing forty-five townships. There are thirty-one organized townships, five incorporated villages, ninety school districts; estimated population, 14,000; assessed valuation, $2,500,000. At the time the county was organized in 1895, the population was only 2,400; there were but twelve townships organized, and thirteen school districts, while the assessed valuation was only $74,000.

NORTH STAR CREAMERY, AT BADGER.

This is one of the four creameries that are located in Roseau county and that have a combined capacity of 14,000 pounds of butter weekly, all of which is shipped to New York City.

Quite a change in eleven years in population and wealth. It would have been 50 per cent greater had the fertile agricultural lands of Roseau county been favored with railroads. This has been the great drawback to the development of the county. The Great Northern railroad has graded a roadbed, running from Thief River Falls to Warroad. The road is only built and operated to Greenbush. The Canadian Northern passes through Warroad on its trunk line, running from Winnipeg to Port Arthur. This line will give a through passenger and freight service, via Beaudette, with the Duluth, Rainy Lake and Winnipeg railroad, not later than March, 1907. With this line in operation, the Great Northern will no doubt get busy, and lay the steel rails on the balance of its graded road from Greenbush to Warroad. These two railroads will give a great boost to the price of Roseau county farm lands, beside trebling the population of Greenbush, Badger, Roseau and Warroad, in a single twelvemonth. The sun has never shone upon more fertile soil for all the requirements of farming, dairying and stock raising.

The county and state are perfecting a system of drainage ditches, which now includes the Two Rivers and Badger ditches, while a channel is being dredged in the Roseau river, and through Roseau lake, to the international boundary. The estimated cost is $60,000; of this amount $25,000 has been appropriated by the state. In addition there is the Hay creek ditch, that cost $15,000, the county paying $3,000 and the state $12,000. There is a well-developed plan to carry on the work of good roads, besides completing the system of ditches for drainage of all classes of agricultural lands in Roseau county. This is a work that most new counties neglect until the land values make it an object. In this respect Roseau is far ahead of her older sister counties in Minnesota, Iowa and Illinois.

To prove that this is a dairy county, where stockraising is one of the leading features, we point to the four creameries that are owned and operated by the farmers of Roseau county. The creameries are located at Greenbush, Badger, Roseau and Pelan, and produce 14,000 pounds per week of high grade butter. The dairy interest is just developing, and in another few years will be equal to that of any county in the state.

Roseau county is noted for her flour mills, and the superior quality of the flour made from No. 1 Northern wheat, grown in this favored region. The mills are located to the best advantage of the farmer settlers. They are the Roseau flour mills, daily capacity, 75 barrels; Badger, 100 barrels, and Wannaske, 75 barrels.

The grain elevators are well distributed, being located at Warroad and Greenbush, where 900,000 bushels of wheat, oats and flax were handled in 1905, while there is a large increase in the crop grown this year.

As an agricultural county Roseau is the peer of any in the state. The soil is wonderfully rich black and dark sandy loam with clay subsoil; no stones, no wet land, except prairie grass swamp land, which when drained is the most productive. The soil produces small grain equal to any, while corn is successfully grown; in fact, this will be the future corn belt of the United States. It is today the banner section for all kinds of root crops, timothy and red clover. No better county can be found for dairying, stock raising and diversified farming. Small fruits, such as strawberries, raspberries, plums and apples thrive here equally as well as in the older fruit growing sections.

In the matter of land values, no agricultural section of Minnesota offers so many inducements as does Roseau county. Nowhere are lands so cheap, where good country roads are the rule; best of schools and churches; central trading points throughout the county, Roseau a village of 800, Greenbush 800, Badger 400, Warroad 600 and Rosevelt 300; a climate that is health giving, that invigorates the whole system, where malaria and fevers are never known; no cyclonic disturbances; no wind or hail storms; the purest of crystal water from flowing wells tapped at a depth of forty to sixty feet. You who are looking for a new home will do well to investigate this new farming region of Roseau county, Minnesota, in touch with the high priced markets of St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth, a county that will be cut up with railroads in the next few years, which will send present land prices of $10 to $15 per acre to $40 and $60 per acre. This is a region where those who came poor five years ago, are now well to do, while many are wealthy in flocks, herds and lands.

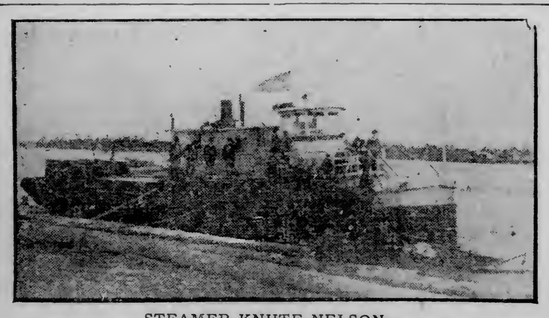

Northern Minnesota is still thinly populated, but now that the railroads are traversing it in every direction, it offers the best of opportunities for the man who wants a home, health and contentment. It is said without fear of successful contradiction, that the man without a "pull" but plenty of push and vim, the man who wants to carve out a fortune of his own and has energy, courage and backbone can find here his golden opportunity awaiting him. It will not wait long, for time and tide wait for no man. But today they are here. They are for men who,

"Act in the living present,
Heart within and God o'er head."

They are for no one else. It is that homeseekers may know of it that we have made a study of this vast and fertile region of Roseau county.

While all Northern Minnesota is teeming with life, and prosperity and promise it is in Roseau county that the greatest possibilities both for the homeseeker and the investor exist, for it is here that vast stretches of agricultural lands still remain undisturbed, only awaiting the brawn and brain, the will and muscle of the actual settler to make them give forth wealth and happiness.

This region is one of the most picturesque and delightful in its natural characteristics and its variety of possibilities, as well as substantial and sure in its every-day resources and opportunities to the every-day man, that can be found anywhere. New counties can offer so many and varied resources. Men of all tastes and different trainings can here find something to do, something which will give them both profit and pleasure. It is certainly one of the most beautiful and picturesque spots in Mother Earth's domain, yet like any other it has its limitations. Nevertheless, for the plain, common-sense, resolute farmer settler who is willing to face life with nerve, industry and persistence, and who seeks a country where he may have the best fighting chance for the developing of his own resources in helping to develop the resources of the country he seeks, Roseau county cannot be excelled. Is there need to review the subject further, to impress upon your mind the necessity of deciding while the opportunity lasts, whether you desire a home in this, the money making section of Minnesota?

GRAIN, GRASSES AND VEGETABLE EXHIBIT MADE AT ROSEAU COUNTY FAIR, HELD AT ROSEAU ON OCT. 11, 12 AND 13, 1906.

ROSEAU COUNTY FAIR.

The first Roseau county fair was held in Roseau, Oct. 11, 12 and 13 and was an unqualified success as to display of cereals, root crops, timothy and clover. It exceeded any display we have seen in the state, and has proven the superiority of the soil and climate, for the growing of diversified crops. The corn exhibits proved beyond question that Roseau county is in the corn zone, and will be a record-breaker in dairying and stock raising when the farmers awaken to this importance as money makers. The fair exhibit of blooded stock and horse races were held on the Roseau County Agricultural association grounds. They comprise thirty-five acres, have grand stand, half mile regulation track and necessary buildings. Elsewhere we reproduce an illustration of the vegetable display, which was certainly one of the features of the fair.

ROSEAU, THE COUNTY SEAT

This is a very progressive village of 800 population, growing in spite of the lack of railroad facilities. Of new buildings erected or contracted for in 1906-07 we would name the following: A. Elliot, cement blocks, three story and basement, 24x100, costing $12,000; Great Northern depot, $4,000; First National bank, Twin City pressed brick, with marble front, 53x60, costing $9,000; K. Torgerson & Co., cement blocks, 25x80, costing $6,000; Archie Alley, cement blocks, 25x60, costing $6,000; C. A. Pearson, cement blocks, 25x80, costing $6,000, and Sjoberg Bros. two story and basement cement block building, 30x103, costing $14,000. This shows at a glance that Roseau is growing and expanding, from the wealth that is taken from the soil. It was first settled in 1889 and incorporated as a village in 1895. It is 400 miles northwest of St. Paul and 25 miles north of Greenbush, the present terminus of the Great Northern railroad, which has the road bed graded ready to lay the steel rails in the early spring. The leading industries are the Roseau Milling company, which grinds fifty barrels of flour daily from No. 1 northern hard wheat, and a creamery that makes 3,000 pounds of gilt edge butter weekly. In newspapers it has two, the Region and the Times, both public spirited and ably edited, which have battled early and late for the upbuilding of the city of their adoption. One of the best guages to rate a city by is the number and financial standing of the banks. Roseau has three, all with ample capital, having the highest standing in the business and financial world. The business center of Roseau is well built with brick and cement blocks, while the merchants who occupy them are up-to-date carrying large stocks of goods, which makes this the trading center of the county. Roseau has a graded school with five departments, and instructs up to the tenth grade; the school enrollment is 275 scholars. In churches it has the Lutheran, Swedish, Norwegian, Swedish Mission, Seventh Day Adventists, Methodist and Episcopal, and the usual number of secret and benevolent societies. It will be seen at a glance that Roseau enjoys all the modern advantages of the older settled communities of Iowa and Illinois.

Those looking for a new start in life can find no better opportunities than present themselves in and around Roseau, the county seat of Roesau county. There are 50,000 acres of good land that can be bought from $10 to $15 an acre, all within easy range. This land has been overlooked owing to the lack of railroads, but now that this question of railroad transportation is all but settled, these lands will soon be snapped up, as they are the last of the low priced rich, black loam prairie lands of Northern Minnesota.

Read what an ex-Iowa farmer says:

Roseau, Minn., June 4, 1905. Dear Sir:—My former home was in Lind Grove, Iowa, and I located here in 1893, buying a piece of land. During the first couple of years I put up my buildings, doing most of the work myself, the lumber being cheap, the cost of the buildings was not very much. I had only eighty acres of land in my Eastern home, which was too little for my large family, while I have 160 acres here for less money than that derived from my eighty in the East. The land here is fully as productve and I have made financial gains, which I would not have done had I remained in Iowa. I have not had a failure in crop and some of my neighbors have raised as high as forty bushels of wheat, seventy of barley and eighty of oats to the acre. I believe this is an opportune time for the man of moderate means to come here and secure a home, because land will surely advance now that railroads have been built into this country. Tame and wild hay grow in abundance. I have raised considerable live stock for beef and am now engaged in dairying, disposing of the cream at our local creamery.

Yours truly,
KNUT O. DORKEN.

What Knute O. Dorken's experience has been is that of hundreds of other Iowa, Kansas, Illinois and Indiana farmers, who have settled here to better their conditions. Those who are interested or thinking of locating here and want the best that is in the market as to farm lands, should correspond with the following gentlemen: Israel Sjoberg, vice president of First National bank; A. H. Foss, cashier of Farmers & Merchants State bank, or Bendix Holdahl, president of Citizen's State bank, all of Roseau, Minn. These men are all reliable and own individually all the way from 3,000 to 600,000 acres of improved farms and wild lands, which can be purchased from $10 to $15 per acre on easy payments and long time. If there is anything better in the market as to farm lands we should like to get next.

GREENBUSH PUBLIC SCHOOL.

The above illustration shows the new four-room school building, built of cement blocks, size 32x60, two stories with basement. It was built at a cost of $5,000, and is a model building in all respects. The school attendance is sixty-six and is steadily growing. The principal of the school is Prof. W. H. Boone, who is a graduate of the Stanley high school of Wisconsin, class 1904, and who also took the summer course at the Minnesota State University. The members of the school board are: Ole O. Dalby, president; Torjus Lundevall, treasurer; Olaf Hildahl, secretary; and Olfred A. Burkee, Dr. C. Jelstrup and A. P. Kukowski, trustees, all firm friends of the public school system.

THOMPSON BROS., HARDWARE

This is the only exclusive general hardware store in Roseau. The Thompson Bros., located here in September, 1904, coming from Hallock, this state. They built their own business block 24x100, which is stocked with a full line of builders' and shelf hardware, stoves and ranges, tin and graniteware, pocket and table cutlery, sporting goods, tools of all kinds, farm machinery, wagons, buggies, paints and oils, and all kinds of building materials. The Thompson Bros. are not only enterprising business men, but boosters for their town and county, which is such a great aid in the pioneer days of any community, that is forging ahead to win out in city and county development.

WILLIAM OVESON, GENERAL MERCHANT.

This is one of the wide-awake business houses of the county seat. The store was opened in 1901 with a full line of general merchandise, covering all lines except drugs. In addition, Mr. Oveson handles farm machinery, and has a well stocked lumber yard, carrying an average stock of 300,000 feet, and all lines of building material. William Oveson owns his building, size, 24x82, and in addition has two warehouses to carry surplus stock. He is a business man, and a hustler for trade all the time.

S. T. HOLDAHL'S BIG STORE.

This gentleman established his present business in 1903, coming here from Ross where he was in the general merchandise business for eight years. The Big Store is what its name indicates, covering a ground space of 24x90 and 16x50, besides two warehouses. The stock of goods carried covers dry goods, clothing, boots and shoes, groceries, furniture and hardware. The stock is not only large, but well selected, offering the best of bargains in all departments. Mr. Holdahl is a native of Norway, born there in 1868. He came to the United States in 1888 to Portland, N. D., where he started life as a farm boy, and later took the full course of studies in the Valparaiso Business College of Indiana, after which he clerked for his brother, Bendix Holdahl, in the general store of Roseau, and later became a partner in the business at Ross. S. T. Holdahl is one of the leaders in business circles, and is always ready to do his share to help build and expand the resources of Roseau.

SJOBERG BROS., THE PIONEERS

It was back in 1888 that the above general mechandise business was established. The business grew until today the Sjoberg Bros., with their stores at Roseau and Badger, the Badger First National Bank of Roseau, and the Badger Flouring mill of 100 barrel capacity, are the leaders in business and financial circles in this section of the state. Sjoberg Bros., have just moved into their new $14,000 two-story, with basement, cement building, 30x103 fect. It is a modern building throughout, while the stock carried would do credit to a city of 20,000 population. This is not all the Sjoberg holdings, as they own 5,000 acres of the best Roseau county improved wild lands listed at $10 to $15 per acre. These are to be sold on the best of terms, as to payment and time.

CITIZENS' STATE BANK.

This bank was organized in 1905 by Bendix Holdahl, who organized the Roseau County bank in 1896 and was president of the First National bank in 1902. The Citizens' Bank of Roseau is the outcome of the other banks down to date. The following statement will prove its high standing and thorough reliability:

The president of the Citizen's bank is Bendix Holdohl with Olaf Holeldohl as cashier, which is an ample guarantee of the bank's high financial standing.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK.

This financial institution has a standing guaranteed by the national government and therefore there is no question about its liability. It has an average capital and surplus of $25,500, pays interest on deposits and does a liberal and yet safe banking business. The following condensed statement shows its present standing:

A. H. Foss, the cashier of the Farmers & Merchants' bank, has a 240-acre farm one mile south of Roseau, where he grew 25 bushels of wheat, 46 bushels of oats, 18 bushels of flax and three tons of timothy and clover to the acre, while his alfalfa was an extra big yield. In addition to this farm he owns 2,000 acres improved and wild farm lands within from one to fourteen miles of the postoffice which is being offered at $10 and $15 per acre on the most attractive terms.

GREENBUSH, ROSEAU COUNTY

This is a splendidly located village of 600 population at the terminus of the Great Northern railroad, on Two Rivers, in Skagen township, twenty-five miles southwest of Roseau, the county seat. It is the present grain market of this great and fertile Roseau valley. It has three grain elevators and a co-operative creamery that makes 1,500 pounds of creamery butter weekly, which is shipped to the produce commission houses of New York. It has two banks, three hotes, four general

ST. HILAIRE RETAIL LUMBER COMPANY, AT GREENBUSH.

A GREENBUSH GROUP OF GRAIN ELEVATORS.

One of the best object lessons as to the fertility of the soil of Roseau county is the three grain elevators having a combined capacity of 56,000 bushels, but which handled 500,000 bushels in 1905 and will handle 800,000 in 1906. The following are the names of the elevators and their agents: Hanson & Barzen Milling company's elevator, capacity 18,000, P. W. Brost, agent; Gillespie elevator, capacity 20,000 bushels, Ole J. Bottem agent, and the Red Lake Falls Milling company's elevator, capacity 18,000, P. O. Christenson, agent.

stores, a graded school, churches, secret and benevolent societies, and a live, progressive newspaper, the Journal. The great backbone of the growth and development of Greenbush is the wonderful fertility of the soil, a rich black loam, unsurpassed for the growing of all kinds of small grain, even timely and red clover. It is the ideal dairy and stock raisers' country as to soil, climate and water. In order to prove what we say, we reproduce the following letter, which voices the sentiments of one of the many hundreds who have settled in this portion of Roseau county:

THE POOR MAN'S OPPORTUNITY.

Greenbush, Minn., June 10, 1905.—Dear Sir: I came to my present home from Oslo, Minn., in the fall of 1894, bringing with me a small sum of money not to exceed $500. Today my homestead, stock and farm implements are free from encumbrance and valued at not less than $5,000. During this time I have provided for a large family of nine persons. The health of myself and family has been splendid, and we attribute it to the splendid water and dry bracing air. I have raised wheat, oats, barley and flax and have successfully raised corn each year. Garden truck is as fine as in any part of the state. There are great opportunities here for the poor man because the land is very fertile and easily opened up, timber enough for fuel and windbreaks, and can be bought at prices from $8 to $20 per acre on crop payments or small cash payments, thus giving a poor man unequalled privileges. Prices are sure to double in a short time, for with the new railroad now built into the heart of Roseau county we have a splendid market. I have been thankful for being fortunate in coming here, even at the disadvantages prior to the building of the present railroad, for until that time we had to drive seventy-five miles to market, but now we have the railroad into the center of our settlement. Last fall I raised wheat giving twenty-five bushels to the acre and oats seventy-five bushels. Flax we always seed on spring breaking for a first crop and makes an average yield of about seventeen bushels per acre. Yours truly, OLE K. KAASA.

GREENBUSH VILLAGE OFFICIALS.

Th village has prospered because all its public officials are taxpayers, and for this reason have an interest in the true welfare of its growth and development. A. F. Kukowski, mayor; A. A. Burken, treasurer; Torgus Lundevall, recorder; Olaf Hilldahl, K. K. Grive and G. H. Tillman, councilmen, all good, loyal citizens and taxpayers who are doing their best to give the village a good, clean administration.

GREENBUSH WATER SYSTEM.

The water supply is taken from two rivers and pumped into a stand pipe holding 1,100 barrels, having an elevation of seventy-eight feet, giving ample pressure for fire and other purposes. The plant is owned by the village and cost about $5,000.

A. P. KUKOWSKI'S LEADING STORE.

This business was established in 1904 and has grown to be the one leading general merchandise store of this portion of Roseau county. Mr. Kukowski owns his building, 52 by 115, two story, also a warehouse. The lines of goods carried cover dry goods, clothing, boots and shoes, groceries, farm products and all kinds of farm machinery. A. P. Kukowski was born in Winona, this state, in 1872 and is one of one of the best types of self made men. He started in life's battle with a cash capital of $75 and today is one of the leading merchants of this county and state for that matter. Mr. Kukowski is mayor of Greenbush and is doing his share to push the village to the front. One of his enterprising hits was the establishing of a daily stock buyers' sale which has proved a big drawing card for Greenbush. Mr. Kukowski also has a sheep ranch of a thousand head located only a quarter of a mile from his store.

GREENBUSH BANKING HOUSES

There are two banks that do a general banking business and that have done much to promote the growth and steady development of this whole region.

STATE BANK OF GREENBUSH.

This bank was organized in 1904, with a capital and surplus of $11,000, and from the opening day has done a large and growing business. In addition to the banking business, they handle real estate, make farm loans, write insurance, sell steamship tickets and make collections. The officers of the State Bank of Greenbush are J. Anderson, president; K. T. Waag, vice president, and Torjus Lundevall, cashier. In farm lands the bank owns 5,000 acres of improved and wild lands that are selling at from $10 to $20 per acre, according to improvement and nearness to market. This land raised wheat that went 15 to 25 bushels to the acre; oats, 45 to 65; barley, 35 to 45; flax, 14 to 18; potatoes, 300 to 400 bushels; timothy and clover, 3 to 4 tons to the acre; while they grew sugar beets that weighed 11 pounds.

FARMERS' AND MERCHANTS' STATE BANK.

This bank came with the Great Northern railroad in 1904, and has been one of the main props to the business thrift of this section of Roseau county. The capital stock and surplus is $13,000, while its financial responsibility exceeds many hundred thousands. The Farmers' and Merchants' State bank owns its own building, 22 by 50; has a time lock and all other up-to-date safeguards for the proper care of the people's money. The officers of this model bank are: D. E. Towney, president; A. H. Foss, vice president, and A. A. Burkee, cashier. The bank owns 4,000 acres of improved and wild lands, all within eight miles of the village, which is listed at $10 to $15 per acre. Every acre of this land is reached by good roads, has the best of schools and churches, besides having a creamery and grain market within a stone's-throw. This is not all. Greenbush has a daily stock buyers' sale, where all classes of stock are sold, horses, cattle, hogs and sheep. This is certainly the farmer's, dairyman's and stock-grower's paradise as to fertility of soil markets and climate.

ST. HILAIRE RETAIL LUMBER COMPANY.

This company has five yards located at Greenbush, Badger, Roseau, Warroad and Beaudette, each yard carrying an average stock of 300,000 feet of lumber. The local manager of the Greenbush yards is L. E. Frost, who came here two years ago from Edenburg, N. D., where he had held a like position for five years.

NELSON BROTHERS' GENERAL STORE.

These enterprising brothers opened a general merchandise store in 1902 and have made a winning of it from the start. Their stock includes clothing, boots and shoes, groceries and a full line of novelties termed light hardware. The Nelson Brothers own their business block 24 by 36, which proves their abiding faith in the future of Greenbush.

DR. CHRISTIAN JETSTRUP.

This gentleman located here last year and opened up a drug store in addition to practicing medicine. The doctor is health officer and one of the public spirited men of affairs.

WARROAD, ROSEAU COUNTY

This village has the distinction of being on the main line of the Canadian Northern, the popular Winnipeg and Fort Arthur routes, and what is more, will have a through line to Duluth via the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railroad not later than March, 1907. This will be the short line for passengers and freight traffic to Lake Superior ports and this great jobbing and manufacturing metropolis of the northwest—Duluth. It will cut off the Great Northern business that now goes by Larvoxston to Winnipeg. This means a great deal for this section of Minnesota, which has been held back because of insufficient railroad facilities, or we might better say, none at all. The lumber and iron ore interests won the victory over the plans to exploit this rich region at some future time. The standing fine forests of the Rainy Lake region were too tempting and the consequent increased demand for iron ore pushed railroad building in all directions. As a result, the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg has all but built into Beaudette giving this rich and fertile northland territory an outlet for its farm crops and saw mill products over the Canadian Northwest and the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg routes. This means which to the great lumber interest, to the farmers, dairymen and stock raisers of the section of country through which these railroads run. It gives them the Duluth markets and in return, Duluth jobbers and manufacturers have a new territory all their own to exploit. In this hotel where this is written the Twohy-Elmon Mercantile Co.'s calendar is posted on the wall, proclaiming the greatness of the lässigsGn fTingbrtgKolt sse- diess shr h Head of the Lakes' jobbing grocery trade, while the Duluth Fashion cigar is the leader. One need never get home-sick if there is any satisfaction in seeing Duluth's greatness, as the one jobbing center posted on all sides. This country is Duluth territory and as the railroads extend, it will be more assuredly so.

Warroad is destined to play a most important part in county building in the next few years. There are those who predict that it will be a county seat when the division comes. This is not necessary to make a place of 6,000 population instead of 600 in the next five years. The agricultural development will do this, as Warroad is in the heart of an exceedingly rich zone, when put under the plow, with cattle raising and dairying as the chief money making occupation.

The Lake of the Woods, with its hundred of rockbound islands, a water line of 100 miles long and ninty miles wide, will attract the attention of the multi-millionaire, who will want to build castles and cottages to commune with the grandeur of nature. Warroad is the only gateway through which to reach it. You take passage on the lake steamers at Warroad river docks to reach these picauresque treasure spots of the Lake of the Woods. There is no more delightful or soul-inspiring lake trip than that on the Lake of the Woods to Rat Portage, a distance of ninety-five miles.

Warroad is the natural grain depot of this great cereal producing section of the Northland, an empire unto itself, one that has scarcely been explored. It may not be the breadbasket of the Northwest, but it will contribute its share, which of itself will make this a very busy trading center. The land in and around Warroad is timber and prairie mixed, including the best of meadow lands, with soil varying from a black to a dark rich sandy loam, fertilized with marl, making it of the greatest productive value. This is why it yields such crops. If this land was located in the widely advertised regions of Iowa, Illinois or Indiana, it would bring $200 an acre, while the price here is only $10 to $15 an acre, on long time and low rates of interest. All of this land is within easy reach of good schools, churches, creameries, grain elevators and the best of country roads, while flowing wells are reached at a depth at from sixty to 100 feet.

Warroad on May 31, 1905, was literally wiped by flames from the face of the map. The whole business portion went up in smoke. The fire loss was over $200,000 with but $75,000 insurance. This great conflagration dazed the people, who lost their all, for the moment, but they rallied from it, and worked with renewed vigor, and today Warroad is rebuilt with brick and cement blocks on a larger and more substantial scale.

The present needs of Warroad are a banking house run on broad, liberal lines, that will play its part in the affairs of city progress; a hospital, pulp mill, creamery and flouring mill. All these will flourish here and be assisted by local capital. Those interested should correspond with Postmaster Thomas L. Jones, one of the live public spirited citizens of Warroad.

The grain business is represented in the Canadian Elevator company, which has a capacity of 35,000 bushels, all of which is shipped to Duluth via Winnipeg. There is talk of another elevator and the increase in the acreage of the grain crop will bring this about in another season.

One of the long delayed and much needed improvements was the dredging of a 12-foot channel 300 feet wide, in the Warroad river to the Lake of the Woods, by the government. The first appropriation was $45,000 and the second $35,000. When the work is completed all lake steamers will depart and sink anchor at the Warroad docks in the harbor of Warroad river. This will double the local traffic between this point and Rat Portage, a distance of ninety-five miles.

The water supply of the village is taken from flowing wells, drilled to a depth of 150 feet, supplying the finest quality of water. The flow of this well is ninety barrels per day. These flowing wells are one of the features of this section, as water is struck at a depth of 60 to 100 feet in the Warroad district.

WARROAD FARMS AND FARMING LANDS.

Many of our readers will want to buy a quarter section of the rich black loam farm lands in this highly favored location. Those of you interested, who refuse to squander any more time and money in looking up the impossible eldorado, and desire to get in touch with some one who has these $10 and $15 per acre improved and wild lands for sale, should write to Thomas L. Jones, postmaster of Warroad since 1897, a leader in the mercantile business from 1897 to 1905, and now mayor. Mr. Jones owns 2,000 acres of the choicest and best improved farms and has listed with him 10,000 acres of wild lands all within easy reach of this, the best railroad point in Roseau county. He is not only reliable but an active, energetic man of affairs, who is a large property owner. Delays are dangerous, so write at once and secure a quarter section of this money making land.

The postoffice is a two-story cement block building, size 25x50. It is heated by hot air and has its own lighting plant. The second story is used by the Masons for lodge purposes.

THE WARROAD PRESS.

The progress and advancement of all communities is based on the quality of its newspapers. Warroad is far advanced, having such ably edited and largely circulated newspapers as the Warroad Plaindealer that has the talented William Book as its guiding star, and the Warroad Commonwealth, edited by A. M. McDonald, an old Duluth typo and one of the brightest writers on the interurban press of the state. The growth and development of Warroad has been nurtured with much success by her newspapers, who are ever to the front battling for its best interests along the best lines of city and county building.

THE NEW WEST SIDE STORE.

Messrs. Hanson & Gould have just opened a general merchandise store on the West side, which is amly stocked with dry goods, shoes, men's goods, groceries and farm products, cigars and tobaccos. Messrs. Hanson & Gould are two young men who have been identified with the general merchandise business of Warroad for years, as clerks in the other stores and, consequently, have a large acquaintance, besides knowinfig the needs of the people. They have commenced in a conservative way and have a high standing for integrity and honesty, which are the best assets to build upon. As Warroad grows and expands, so will Hanson & Gould in their West side store.

WARROAD IN BRIEF.

Capt. Frank Truax, master of the Warroad government dredge, who is in charge of dredging a twelve-foot deep and 300 feet wide channel in the Warroad river, into Lake of the Woods, has closed down work for the season. The channel is half dredged out, allowing the largest boats to pass in and out of the lake to the river docks.

Warroad is just completeing a $3,000 two-story, eight-room graded school building, which will add much to the educational adavntages to be obtained here.

Dr. Lawrence Parker came to Roseau in 1895 and in 1902 located here and built a sanitarium, which was destroyed by fire in 1904; the loss being $5,000. It was rebuilt for a drug store and physician's and surgeon's office. This building was also burned to the ground with all the other business portion of Waroad on May 31, 1905. Dr. Parker was certainly being pursued by the fire fiend, but nothing daunted built a new and larger business block. The first floor is used for his drug store and medical and surgical offices, while the second is fitted up as an opera house. Dr. Lawrence Parker is a man of broad views and has a large and growing medical practice.

J. E. Hampton, dealer in groceries, fruit, farm produce, notions, shoes, confectionery, cigars and tobacco, came here in the fall of 1904. He is a native of Iowa and was educated for the law profession, having graduated from the law department of the university of the Northwest, class 1890. Mr. Hampton practiced his profession ten years in Iowa, but gave it up owing to deafness. He has made a success in the mercantile calling at Warroad, owning his store building 24 by 60 feet, which is well stocked.

Wahlberg & Boos, proprietors of the city meat market, are among the most enterprising business men. This business was established in 1904 in their own building, size 22 by 32, two stories, fitted up with all the latest power machinery for chopping meat and sausage-making.

J. Hammond is one of the standbys in the wholesale and retail meat business and farm produce, while he carries side lines of confectionery and fruits. Mr. Hammond is a man of many genial parts, who takes great interest in the welfare of Warroad.

Warroad has three up-to-date hotels, which give the traveling public the choice of places. The Lakewood hotel is a large, 20-room house, well furnished and with the best of table service. D. M. Boyd, proprietor, is ably assisted by his amiable wife. Hotel Warroad was opened to the public in 1899. It is a 16-room house, size 42 by 60, two stories, well furnished and giving the best of accommodations. It is owned and managed by Peter Ornes.

WARROAD MERCANTILE COMPANY, AT WARROAD.

To write about the Northland and leave out a sketch of the Warroad Mercantile company, would, to say the least, be an injustice to this part of Minnesota, as it is one of the big business houses of this territory. The business was established in 1905, and has grown to its present proportions by the best of business methods. The company has a capital stock of $50,000 and is well able to finance such a large and growing business. They are now in their new pretentious, two-story and basement, cement block building, size 80x110 feet. The three floors are devoted to the following departments: The first floor, east side, 30x80 feet, hardware, crockery and glassware; west side, 40x80, clothing, furnishings, and women's ready-to-wear goods; the balance of the floor space is divided into the departments of drugs, notions, toys, confectionery, stationery, tobacco and cigars, while 30x10 feet in the rear are devoted to the grocery and farm products departments. The fixtures, shelving and counters are solid oak, and there are cash and bundle carriers. The whole building is heated by furnace, while a freight elevator connects all three floors. All of the second floor, 80x110, is devoted to the furniture, rug, carpet and curtain department, making it one of the best salesrooms we have ever had the pleasure of writing about. The basement has cement floors, and is well lighted. This is where the surplus stock and farm produce is kept, making one of the most complete retail mercantile houses in the Northwest. The building was erected by the well known contractor, Newton Shears, and reflects great credit on his skill as a builder. It cost complete $20,000, and is a substantial, attractive piece of architecture. The officers of the Warroad Mercantile company of Warroad, Minn., are: John S. Lawson, president; C. E. Carlquist, vice president; and Thomas Lawson, secretary and treasurer, all the manner born, trained and urer, all the manner born, trained and versed in all departments of the business that they are now so extensively engaged in.

The Hotel Minnesota is another popular hotel of its class, owned and conducted by Messrs. McAnnany & Hollard, who have a feed and sales stable in connection. Joseph Holland is the owner of the celebrated race horses, Little Jack and St. Charles, who won easy money in the three-minute class and free-for-all at the Roseau county fair races last October.

PLEAD GUILTY TO CHARGES

Two Indicted Persons Decide Not to Stand Trial.

Two persons held for trial under indictments returned by the grand jury entered pleas of guilty in the district court, Saturday afternoon. All three were charged with grand larceny in the second degree.

John Jacobson admitted that he stole the wardrobe of a guest at the Metropole hotel. Mary Ellen Taylor, alias Dempsey Lewis, a colored woman, admitted the theft of a quantity of the personal effects of another woman living on Lake avenue.

W. H. Reynolds, who was indicted for grand larceny by the grand jury, was arraigned Saturday afternoon. He waived the time for pleading and entered a plea of not guilty. Bail was fixed in the sum of $500, which was furnished by two of Mr. Reynolds' friends.

KIDNAPS HER CHILD AND IS CHASED BY HUSBAND.

Eureka Springs, Ark., Nov. 12.—After a wild ten-mile ride across the country, in an open wagon, with her irate husband in close pursuit, Mrs. Evelyn Blakeney, a prominent society woman of Eureka Springs, managed to get across the Arkansas line with her 8-year-old daughter, and it is said the officials will not honor a requisition for her return from Oklahoma, where she is in contempt of court by her act.

Braving the danger of imprisonment, the woman deliberately planned the kidnaping and got away with the child before her divorced husband was aware of her purpose. This is the second time Mrs. Blakeney has kidnaped the child. Before, she was unaware of the law regarding requisition, and went back into Oklahoma with the officers. She says she will do nothing of the sort this time.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORTS

CHICAGO'S SURPRISE

Found Speed as Well as Strength in Minnesota's Team.

Eckersall Brilliant, But Found His Match—Saturday's Scores.

CHIEF POINTS OF GAME.

	Minnesota	Chicago
Yards gained by rushes from snapback	202	89
Yards gained by punts	851	927
Yards lost by penalties	30	20
Number times penalized	3	2

Minnesota averaged 3.6 yards in 202 rushes.

Chicago averaged 2.2 yards in 89 rushes.

Minnesota averaged 34 yards in 25 punts.

Chicago averaged 37.1 yards in 25 punts.

What would have happened if it had not rained is what all the "dope" artists are now striving to figure out with reference to the Chicago-Minnesota game of Saturday. The Chicago men claim they would have played a much faster game and would have made at least one touchdown. They think the wet field favored Minnesota, because it prevented their own team doing fast work. On the other hand, the Minnesota men claim they would have done much faster work and would have sprung some surprises that would have been an enlightening exhibition of the possibilities of the game under the new rules, had the condition of the field permitted.

As a matter of fact, the final result would probably have been no different. The Minnesota men were faster, a thing which not a Chicago man looked for. They displayed a speed that startled their opponents, and they kept it up to the finish, too. It was in the kicking department of the game that Chicago expected to have its greatest advantage, because of the mighty Eckersall, and yet Larkin held his own very well with the Chicago man. It was an astonishing thing to Chicago, too, that Minnesota won by the very play that Chicago looked for to cause victory to perch on its own banners, a kick from the field.

Eckersall had some other great surprises, too. He has always been one of the most elusive men that ever stepped a gridiron, dodging and running in a most sensational manner. But on the Minnesota team he found those who could down him. He got away several times for good gains and once was by reason of Minnesota's goal when Marshall downed him, but in the main, though he played brilliantly and like a demon, he found himself downed in his tracks time and again as he caught punts. Once when he tried a fake play, one that counted against Michigan last Thanksgiving day, Marshall detected the play and downed the little quarter on the Chicago one-yard line. It was not Marshall alone either that got down the field under the punts in great style, but Snyder on the other end, and Doane, the speedy little halfback, were equally spry and as certain in their tacklings.

The stars of the game, however, are conceded to be Marshall and Schucknecht, the latter because of his long run. Safford, the center, and a Duluth man by the way, played such a surprising game that he is picked by some as the logical man for the position on the all Western team.

He was nervous before the game, so much so that his teammates were afraid that it would mar his work, but it seemed to affect him the other way, for he outplayed his opponent every minute of the game.

Larkin ran his team with great generalship and the safety he allowed was his one slip of the game. There is a difference of opinion as to that. Some contend that because of the obliteration of Coach Yost by the rain he thought he was catching the ball back of his own line.

As to the play there is a difference of opinion but Dr. Williams, Minnesota's coach, admits it was an error and that ought to settle it. Another view of the matter is expressed in the following report in one of the Twin City papers yesterday:

"But while Bobby Marshall virtually won the game for Minnesota by his place kick and by his remarkable work at end, and while Larkin deliberately gave Chicago those two points, the quarterback should be given equal credit with Marshall, for that safety was one of the smoothest tricks ever pulled off on a football field. Never has there been a better piece of quick thinking done in any game.

"Eckersall had punted from near the center of the field to the Minnesota three-yard line, where Larkin caught the ball. Larkin could have returned the sphere five yards. But even that is doubtful, for the Maroon ends were down upon him like a flash and were within a few yards of him when he made the catch. Larkin gave a quick glance up the field and then turned and deliberately ran behind his own goal with the ball and touched it to the ground.

"A cry of dismay went up from the Minnesota stands, for all of the enthusiasts did not understand the play. They did know that it meant two points for Chicago, however, and that it put them in a position where a drop kick would win the game for Chicago. Referee Hackett immediately determined it a safety and the Chicago rooters went wild, not realizing that they had been outgeneraled.

"Larkin realized as soon as the ball went sailing through the air off Eckersall's toe that it would remain dangerously near the Minnesota goal, no matter who retained the ball. In case he should be downed on the 5-yard line, the Minnesota quarterback would have to punt out from behind his own goal posts.

"There was a possibility that the punt would be blocked and a Chicago man fall on the ball. At any rate, he would hardly have punted more than thirty-five or forty yards at the most, and this would give the mighty Eckersall a chance to drop a goal from the field. On the other hand, if he gave Chicago two points by a safety, he would have the privilege of punting out from his own 25-yard line, and thus get the ball out of danger.

"All of this Larkin thought out in almost the twinkling of an eye. It probably saved the game for Minnesota, as there is no telling what might have happened had he tried to carry the ball out."

While it was Marshall's kick that won the game, it was the splendid work of the entire team that made it possible for him to make it. Safford sent the ball back to the kneeling Larkin as straight as a bullet. Larkin poised it perfectly and so well did the line hold that Marshall could have taken several seconds more to make his kick had he chosen to.

Altogether it was a great game, one of the greatest the West has ever seen. Minnesota now has the Western championship.

MEETS WITH HIS APPROVAL

President Eliot Thinks New Football is Fine Thing.

Boston, Nov. 12.—Football, under the rules as demonstrated in the Harvard-Carlisle game at Cambridge, Saturday, meets with favorable comment from President Charles W. Eliot, of Harvard university, in an interview made public today. President Eliot, whose attitude towards the sport last year made it seem probable that football would soon be dropped from Harvard's athletic schedule, attended Saturday's contest and expressed his enjoyment of the game which, he said, appeared to him "free from unnecessary roughness." President Eliot said:

"I saw the game between Harvard and Carlisle at the stadium and I can say frankly that I enjoyed it. I consider that many of the things which appeared to me to be objectionable under the system employed in former years have been eradicated by the new rules, or, perhaps, by the new way of playing the game. The contest, insofar as I could see, was free from unnecessary roughness and there was apparently no brutality. Much has been done, to my mind, in improving the game by the rules committee this year, and there only remains further improvement in other years along the same lines. I hope to see the game again improved by additional modifications along the same general lines as this year."

Football is considered on probation at Harvard this year. A committee appointed several months ago is still discussing the subject of athletic sports, with especial reference to football, but has not yet submitted its report. President Eliot's views as expressed today, it is expected, will have some weight with the committee in recommending that football be retained on the crimson's athletic calendar.

BLAINE WORSTS CHIPPEWA TEAM

Superior High School Team Walks Away With the Game.

Sixty-seven to 0 was the score by which the Blaine High school team worsted the Chippewa Falls, Wis., school eleven at the Superior driving park, Saturday afternoon.

Again it was a case of the brawn of the Blaine boys against the lighter if quite as swift Chippewa lads. From the outset it was obvious that the Chippewa delegatio was up against it hard but they made a gritty fight.

Superior had the ball most of the time and the wide touchdowns were for the most part the result of end runs. As usual Buchanan was the star of the willing workers from Blaine school and his most valued assistants were Burr, Hotchkiss and Underhill.

Several players were hurt a little during the game. Cassidy, the Chippewa fullback and Buchanan the Blaine fullback were both knocked out but they quickly recovered.

Buchanan made the first touchdown for Blaine and accomplished several of the others during the game. At the end of the first half, the score was 28 to 0 in favor of Blaine. The second half saw one touchdown right after another. Blaine put several of her second team in toward the last, to give them practice. Final score: 67 to 0.

HOOLIGANS THE VICTORS.

Defeat Billings Park Giants by Score of 11 to 5 at Superior.

At the Superior driving park yesterday afternoon the Happy Hooligans met and defeated the Billings Park Giants by the score of 11 to 5.

The Hooligans rushed the Giants off their feet from start to finish of the game. Line bucks by Redman, Berg and Hanson were great gainers for the Hooligans, who were in the best of form and showed that they have speed as well as skill. Hanton, the star halfback of the Happies, received an injury which will keep him out of the game for the rest of the season. It was in the second half that the Parks team secured their score after a procession down the field.

The teams lined up as follows:

EVELETH WAS EASY

Centrals Pile Up Score of 61 on Light Range Team.

Game Was Marked by Long Runs and Swift Rushes.

An easy victory was gained by the Duluth high school football team over the Eveleth high school boys Saturday afternoon at the Athletic grounds. The Eveleth team is much too light for the Duluth boys, and a score of 61 was made against them. Of course, Duluth was not scored upon.

The entire game was marked by long runs ranging from twenty-five to seventy yards and the rushes through the line were always good for from six to thirty yards. Duluth boys did not play up to their usual good form probably duo to the absence of their captain, McDevitt, who was not in the best of condition.

The first touchdown was made for Duluth after about four minutes of play and after this the strong rushes of Duluth were good for six or eight yards every time and almost every down was good for from fifteen to seventy yards. McKinley, Cummings, Ryan, Bradley and Caulkins were conspicuous in making long runs for Duluth. Evenleth had the ball only five times throughout the game and only once did Eveleth make gains. Twice Hosking attempted to kick and once he was blocked and the ball rolled behind the line for a touchdown for Duluth. At the close of the first half the score stood 38 to 0. Some changes were made in the Eveleth line-up in the second half, Duluth men taking some positions, and the Duluth team was held down to four touchdowns in the same time that seven were made in the first half.

The halves were of twenty minutes each. Referees were Leigh and Lowe; timekeepers were Phillips and McLean.

The line-up:

THREE GAMES SECURED.

Superior Fans Looking Forward to Some Great Contests for Blaine.

The Blaine high school football team has finally secured a schedule of games for the next three weeks which insures some good sport for the fans. Next Saturday the team will take on the strong St. Paul Centrals at St. Paul. Nov. 24 a game will be played on the Duluth grounds with the Duluth Central team, and on the following Saturday the team will play Eau Claire at Eau Claire. The Superior fans are said not to be worried over either the St. Paul game or the later one with Duluth, and think they will have a walkaway with the Eau Claire bunch.

THEATER TRUST TO BE SUPREME

Big Managers Plan Combine to Dominate All Cities.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—The Tribune says: "The most gigantic theatrical combination in the world, of which the biggest syndicate now in existence will be part, is in process of formation in Chicago. The new combination is to include 350 of the most important theaters in the United States, will be represented in every city, from New York to San Francisco and from Portland to New Orleans, will dictate matters of bookings, tours of all big companies, and, in a word, do the theatrical business of the United States.

"Although the combination still is in the process of formation, the following interests are slated as those to go into it: Klaw & Erlanger, Daniel Frohman, Charles Frohman, Al Hayman, Nixon & Zimmerman, Rich & Harris, Orpheum circuit. It is estimated by some of the managers who expect to go into the combination that the properties controlled by the corporation will value far in excess of $50,000,000.

"According to present plans, one new corporation will be formed, probably under the laws of Illinois. Its capital stock will be placed somewhere between $50,000,000 and $100,000,000."

FOR HEBREW RELIEF WORK.

American Jewish Committee of Noted Men Formed at New York.

New York, Nov. 12.—For the protection, preservation and the extension of the civil and religious rights and privileges of Jews, the American Jewish committee, composed of prominent members of the race from all parts of the United States, was organized at the Hotel Savoy, yesterday. It is not the purpose of the committee to interfere with the work of any existing institution, but to form a permanent organization, representative of all Jews in the United States, which will have a fund ready for any call, like the Kishineff massacre or the San Francisco disaster. Oscar S. Strauss of New York, soon to be secretary of commerce and labor; Judge Mayer Sulzberger of Philadelphia, Dr. Emil G. Hirsch of Chicago, Prof. J. M. Hollander of Baltimore, Jacob H. Schiff of New York, and Daniel Guggenheim of New York are members of the committee.

CAMPBELL'S NIGHTINGALES.

Good Vaudeville Acts Given by Company at the Metropolitan.

Campbell's Nightingales opened an engagement at the Metropolitan yesterday. They have not the best entertainment that has been seen at the playhouse recently, but they manage, with their songs, gags and specialties, to drive dull care away for two hours or more.

They give a two-act musical comedy sort of thing, called "A Trip to Jupiter," and the vaudeville acts are given during the action of the piece. The specialties are all good and form the best part of the show.

The best bits of vaudeville are contributed by Richy W. Craig, with his musical instruments and his phonograph; Mozelle, fire and electric dancer; Dan Gracey and Ada Burnette, comedy sketch artists; the Yorke Comedy Four and Pauline De Vere, vocalist.

All of Richy Craig's numbers are pretty, and Mozelle's act is beautiful to look upon. Miss De Vere has a voice that is pleasing but not remarkable for its quality, and the singing of the comedy four is excellent. The Sisters Bliss contribute a song and dance turn that is not very strong.

The musical numbers introduced are, for the most part, very good. If the performance is weak, the weakness lies in the comedy. Some new business should be worked up by the comedians or they should take a comic tonic of some kind.

"THE VANDERBILT CUP."

"The Vanderbilt Cup," a name which smacks of magnificence and the "swell mob" generally, is the name of that much heralded automobile comedy-drama which has had an eight months' run at the Broadway theater in New York, and now, after amusing Chicago at the Colonial for three months more, has been sent on tour, and will be presented at the Lyceum this evening, in all the entirety of its metropolitan run. The company is a big one, and includes the majority of the original principals, besides a number of famous stage beauties who are arrayed in the latest and most fetching "motor" garments."

"SIS HOPKINS."

During the eight seasons that Miss Rose Melville has been presenting "Sis Hopkins" and playing the title role of the quaint Posey county girl, a character which she originated, she has acted the character nearly 3,000 times; she has appeared in over 300 theaters and it is estimated that 3,000,000 have watched the telling of the stage story of "Sis Hopkins'" life. During this period Miss Melville has traveled over 100,000 miles by rail, stage coach and steamer. She has worn out five different sets of those odd costumes in which "Sis" is so quaint a figure, and has lost and broken over twenty sets of those funny little pink celluloid side-combs with which her pigtailed hair is held in place. She will appear at the Lyceum Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

MINE LABOR BENEFITS BY DIRECT PAYMENTS.

New York, Nov. 12.—The following statement is authorized on behalf of the anthracite coal operators:

Mine laborers are benefiting largely from the rule of the anthracite strike commission, requiring that the operators make direct payments to contract miners' helpers. Formerly the miner was supposed to pay his own laborers, who load the coal cut or blasted by him. Under that system the operators had no way of knowing the wages earned by miners' laborers, and were therefore unable to refute the cry of "starvation wages."

Now they find that the laborer frequently receives for his work, which requires no skill, from $2.50 to $2.75 a day. The contract miners' laborers often suffered badly under the old system. The miner frequently failed to pay him at all, and as he had no right to look to the company for redress, he was helpless. When he was paid the saloon generally was selected as the pay place, in order that the saloonkeeper might assist in making change; and it frequently happened that both the miner and laborer spent much of their earnings over the bar before they left the saloon.

These evils have been done away with as a result of the direct-payment award, which is now fully in force. All contract miners are required to furnish, prior to each pay day, a statement of the amount due from them to their laborers. The coal company must deduct that sum from the amount due the contract miner, and pay it directly to the laborer.

By this method the laborer is sure of his money, and the necessity of going to the saloon is removed. If on pay day the laborer claims that the miner has understated the amount due him, the company holds back the pay of both until the discrepancy is adjusted. The company keeps an account of the time that the laborer works and is accordingly able to assist in settling such a dispute.

IT'S THE FOOD.

The True Way to Correct Nervous Troubles.

Nervous troubles are more often caused by improper food and indigestion than most people imagine. Even doctors sometimes overlook this fact. A man says:

"Until two years ago waffles and butter with meat and gravy were the main features of my breakfast. Finally dyspepsia came on and I found myself in a bad condition, worse in the morning than any other time. I would have a full, sick feeling in my stomach, with pains in my heart, sides and head.

"At times I would have no appetite for days, then I would feel ravenous, never satisfied when I did eat and so nervous I felt like shicking at the top of my voice. I lost flesh badly and hardly knew which way to turn until one day I bought a box of Grape-Nuts food to see if I could eat that. I tried it without telling the doctor, and liked it fine; made me feel as if I had something to eat that was satisfying and still I didn't have that heaviness that I had felt after eating any other food.

"I hadn't drank any coffee then in five weeks. I kept on with Grape-Nuts and in a month and a half I had gained 15 pounds, could eat almost anything I wanted, didn't feel badly after eating and my nervousness was all gone. It's a pleasure to be well again."

SAWMILL IS CLOSED DOWN

Season's Sawing Contract Completed at Murray-McCann Plant.

The Murray-McCann sawmill, on Superior bay, closed down yesterday morning, having finished its season's sawing contract with the Edward Hines Lumber company. During the past seven months the mill has manufactured 35,000,000 feet of lumber and given employment to about 300 men. About $75,000 has been paid out in wages this season by the sawmill company.

It has not yet been decided whether the mill will resume operations after this season. It has been rumored that the sawmill interests would seek a new field. This is borne out to some extent by the fact that the Edward Hines Lumber company, which has been shipping its logs to the mill at Superior, has finished its cut along the line of the Northern Pacific road, in Northern Wisconsin.

A Year of Blood.

The year 1903 will long be remembered in the home of F. N. Tacket, of Allnance, Ky., as a year of blood; which flowed so copiously from Mr. Tacket's lungs that death seemed very near. He writes: "Severe bleeding from the lungs and a frightful cough had brought me at death's door, when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, with the astonishing result that after taking four bottles I was completely restored and, as time has proven, permanently cured." GOOD ADVICE TO POLICYHOLDERS

Gov. Johnson and Messrs. Young and O'Brien on Insurance.

St. Paul, Nov. 12.—An official statement, signed by Governor Johnson, Attorney General Young and Insurance Commissioner O'Brien, issued to the policyholders of the New York and Mutual Life Insurance companies, declares that for years the officers of the companies have managed all elections as if they were proprietors, and refused policyholders part in these elections; refers to the scandals that were exposed by the New York investigation; upholds the work of the international policyholders' committee, and endorses its ticket, and advises:

"We would urge upon each policyholder in these companies that he give no proxy to any one. The law places in his hands a ballot which he should use to further his own best interests, and to secure the fullest benefits to his family. This we believe will be done by voting for the policyholders' candidates. If under any misapprehension he has already given his proxy, he can still vote by ballot, as the ballot cancels the proxy. The polls close on Dec. 18. Every policyholder should vote for the purpose, at least, of making clear the fact that the policyholders are interested in the management and control of these companies."

NEGRO SOLDIERS WEEP ON GIVING UP ARMS.

El Reno, Okla., Nov. 12.—The members of Companies B, C, and D, of the Twenty-fifth United States infantry, (colored), recently ordered dismissed by President Roosevelt as a result of the concealment of a murder at Brownsville, Texas, Aug. 13, were disarmed yesterday. Many of the men, some of whom had been in the service more than twenty years, shed tears when they gave up their guns. They will be discharged immediately on receipt of the official order from Washington. They are quiet.

SPEAKS OF THE CHURCH OF TODAY

Rev. Kerby S. Miller Discusses It in Inaugural Sermon.

At the Unitarian church yesterday, the minister, Rev. K. S. Miller, spoke on "The Church of Today," the address being in the nature of an inaugural. His statement of religion was to the effect that it was a quality of life, a temper of mind, an attitude of the soul, founded on a man's attitude towards the life principle of the universe and expressed in his practice towards his fellowmen; and that the only basis of a wholesome sane life was absolute confidence in the spirit of life manifested in nature, in society and personal experience; and expressed in our identification with the development of life in men, because all men are a manifestation of divine life.

This church of today, he said, is organized for the benefit of men rather than to "worship" God, and aims to be not a "church of a creed," but "the church of the need and deed." Its work is to make known the gospel of trust and love, to search for truth with an open mind, believing in the sanity of the universe, and to find and supply the needs of the people to whom it may minister. Some of the activities planned are a school of religion and ethics which will be scientific and practical, sections for the study of Emerson, and of Browning, others for the study of literature and the sciences, a school of municipal government, a club for consideration of educational problems and committees for the study of local charities. Some of these will begin work at once. Philanthropic work in connection with the police court and jail and the juvenile court will also be undertaken. It is a church of today, for the life of today in the light of today; a twentieth century church to cultivate a twentieth century conscience in twentieth century conditions, an association of thoughtful me and women, who, in the spirit of helpfulness, are devoted to the common welfare, attempting to make practical use of the great fundamentals of the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of men.

Walter Madden, who was convicted of grand larceny, will not be retried. A motion for a new trial was denied in the district court Saturday.

Tricked By Dyspepsia

The Doctor Couldn't Tell Where the Trouble Lay.

"For the past seven years I have been a victim of dyspepsia and chronic constipation and have consulted the most noted specialists to be found on diseases of this character. None, however, seemed to locate the difficulty or give relief. In addition to this medical treatment, I have resorted to the use of many remedies and have given them faithful trial, but all to no purpose.

Upon the recommendation of a close friend, I purchased a 50c package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and in less than five days noticed that I was receiving more benefit than from any remedy I had used before. I continued to use the tablets after each meal for one month and by that time my stomach was in a healthy condition, capable of digesting anything which my increasing appetite demanded.

"I have not experienced any return of my former trouble, though three months have elapsed since taking your remedy."

We wish that you could see with your own eyes the countless other bona-fide signed letters from grateful men and women all over the land who had suffered years of agony with dyspepsia, tried every known remedy and consulted eminent specialists without result until they gave Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets a trial. Like the doctor above, they couldn't locate the seat of the trouble.

Dyspepsia is a disease which has long baffled physicians. So difficult of location is the disease that cure seems next to miraculous. There is only one way to treat dyspepsia—to supply the elements which nature has ordained to perform this function and to cause them to enter the digestive organs supplying the fluids which they lack. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets alone fill these requirements, as is shown by the fact that 40,000 physicians in the United States and Canada unite in recommeding them to their patients for stomach disorders.

We do not claim or expect Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets to cure anything but disordered conditions of the stomach and other digestive organs, but this they never fail to do. They work upon the inner lining of the stomach and intestines, stimulate the gastric glands and aid in the secretion of juices necessary to digestion.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are for sale by all druggists at 50 cents a box. One box will frequently effect a perfect cure. If in doubt and want more adequate proof send us your name and address and we will gladly mail you a sample package free. F. A. Stuart company, 61 Stuart Bldg. Marshall, Mich.

Madden was accused of stealing a $30 suit belonging to August Engbloom from the West hotel, on West Superior street, Aug. 4 last.

The police believe that Madden is one of the three crooks who attempted to pull off a "touch" in this city. They believe the other two men were John Jacobson and Jack Manahan. Jacobson pleaded guilty to the theft of some clothing from the Metropole hotel, the same days that Madden stole the suit from the West hotel. Manahan, who was wanted in connection with the thefts, managed to get out of the city before he could be apprehended.

SWITCHMEN GET WAGES RAISED

Four Cents Advance is Offered and Accepted by Brotherhood.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—All danger of a strike of the 20,000 switchmen of the principal Western railroads was averted Saturday night, when the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen agreed to accept an advance of 4 cents an hour. The same raise will be given to the members of the Switchmen's union.

FINDS KILLING JUSTIFIABLE

Coroner's Jury Exonerates James Hodgkins for Shooting Rankota.

James Hodgkins of Blueberry, Wis., who shot and killed Matt Rankota Friday evening last, will not be prosecuted by the Wisconsin authorities. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of justifiable homicide.

Hodgkins, who is a saloonkeeper at Blueberry, claimed that he killed Rankota in self defense. He said he was only a few yards from his place of business when a stranger shot at him. Hodgkins claims that he returned the fire and went home to summon help. It was claimed that there was another man with Rankota when the shooting occurred.

NORTON NAMES HIS ASSISTANT

W. J. Stevenson is Appointed Assistant County Attorney.

William J. Stevenson, a well-known attorney of Duluth, has been selected by County Attorney-elect John H. Norton as his assistant for the coming two years' term of office. The position pays $1,800 a year.

Mr. Stevenson is 36 years of age. He was born in Olmstead county, Minn., and has been practicing law in Duluth for the past thirteen years. He is said to have the indorsement of the wholesale and jobbing interests of the city.

Mr. Norton will succeed County Attorney J. M. McClintock, Jan. 1 next, at which time Mr. Stevenson will take the office now held by appointment by Wilson G. Crosby.

It has been the custom of the county attorney to look after the criminal matters of the county, while his assistant looks after the civil cases in which the county is a party.

HAT PIN CAUSES DEATH OF MAN

Scranton Woman, Whose Name is Hidden, Kills Mysteriously.

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 12.—Thomas Dougherty, a prominent young man of Dunmore, a suburb, died here yesterday as the result of stabbing with a hat pin by an unknown woman Saturday night. He refused to make any statement beyond saying that he was to blame, and that the woman stuck him with her hat pin.

No one could give any information as to where Dougherty spent Saturday evening and he refused to give the medical men any details.

HOCH BARELY RE-ELECTED.

Less Than 2,000 Plurality Causes Kansas Democrats to Rejoice.

Topeka, Kas., Nov. 12.—Complete returns from ninety-six of 105 counties, give E. W. Hoch, a plurality of 2,060 votes over William A. Harris, Democrat. The nine counties still out are all small ones, but probably will bring Governor Hoch's plurality down to 2,000 or less.

The Democratic campaign managers now concede the election of Hoch, but claim that his plurality is considerably less than 2,000. They declare that they are highly elated over the showing made by the party and claim that the cutting down of Hoch's plurality of nearly 67,000 in 1904 to less than 2,000 in 1906 is in itself a great victory.

BURGLAR KILLS PITTSBURG YOUNG MAN IN HIS HOME.

Pittsburg, Nov. 12.—Henry Firth Smith, son of Joseph Smith, a wealthy business man of this city, was shot twice and almost instantly killed at 4 o'clock yesterday morning by a burglar whom he surprised in the dining room of his father's residence, and with whom he engaged in a desperate fight.

WILL FIGHT DIVORCE.

Charles Peterson Claims Wife's Temper and Habits Caused Troubles.

Charles Peterson, who intends to fight the divorce action started by his wife, Annie, has filed an answer to the complaint with the clerk of the district court. In his answer Peterson denies the charges of neglect and bad treatment made by his wife and claims that he has always taken care of his wife and children to the best of his ability and is willing to continue to do so.

Mr. Peterson claims that his wife is a woman possessed of a temper that at times causes her to forget herself and that under such circumstances she is not responsible for what she says or does. He claims that she is addicted to intoxicants and has on occasions done a great many indiscreet things while in an intoxicated condition. He claims that he gave her plenty of money and even went so far as to sell a certain piece of property to supply her with funds alleged to have been wasted.

Mr. Peterson alleges that all he has in the way of personal property are some household goods worth about $135. He says his wife owns a lot at Nashwauk worth $400 and a timber claim worth $1,500. Peterson claims he bought the lot for her and furnished the funds by which she secured the timber claim.

AN EXPERT FORECASTS NEW BUILDING ERA.

New York, Nov. 12.—Capt. John S. Sewell, corps of engineers, United States army, signs an article in the current issue of the Fireproof Magazine, which forecasts a new era in fireproof building. Capt. Sewell's high rank as an expert makes the opinions he expresses in this article the most important contribution yet brought out in the vigorous discussion of construction problems now going on among architects and builders all over the country.

"In the matter of fireproof construction," Capt. Sewell says, "reinforced concrete should be treated as a structural material, superior in many respects to steel, but one demanding protection from fire. It seems to me that the logical line of development is reinforced concrete, covered with terra cotta. I see no reason why the terra cotta should not be so developed that it would take the place of a great deal of the wooden centering which forms such a serious item of expense in the execution of reinforced concrete.

"Terra cotta exposed to fire is either totally destroyed from expansion stresses, or else it is entirely undamaged. We should endeavor to so install the terra cotta that expansion stresses may be taken up without breaking. The fire cannot do it any molecular damage, so that if it escapes damage from expansion and contraction, it will be absolutely uninjured. A relatively small thickness of terra cotta would prevent concrete on the inside from becoming heated enough to damage it.

"When the economy of doing away with a lot of the wooden centering is considered, it seems to me that this combination of reinforced concrete and terra cotta offers a prospect of improvement in fire-resisting construction, besides a very appreciable economy."

Capt. Sewell has already carried his ideas into practice in the construction of the buildings for the war college at Washington.

GOV. JOHNSON CALLS ON PEOPLE OF STATE TO GIVE HEARTY THANKS

St. Paul, Nov. 12.—Governor Johnson's annual Thanksgiving proclamation issued Saturday evening is as follows:

"The shortened day, a wind-blown leaf, an air crisp with the twang of the coming of the frost king, these remind us of the near approach of winter and the passing of another year.

"The past twelve months have been remarkably prosperous ones for the American people. In material prosperity no nation approaches ours in its enjoyment; in the renewal of the faith of our fathers, typified in the demand for the highest type of public service, we are still more to be congratulated. The year has been rich in blessings. On every hand in the bountiful Northwest there is peace and plenty. Poverty, through press of circumstances, will always exist, but the great mass of our people, provided as they are with employment that yields a fair return for the labor performed, are prosperous almost to the point of affluence.

"That their better natures have not been lulled into forgetfulness of the higher things by the outpourings of the horn of plenty, is significant of the new dispensation. On the contrary, the nation has experienced an awakening of the public conscience that has penetrated to our farthest borders and quickened this entire body politic.

"Recognizing our blessings and rejoicing, too, that our own fair State of Minnesota has been notably free from any public calamity expressed in fire or flood, famine or pestilence, or other cataclysm of nature, it is not only our privelege, but our duty to give thanks to our Heavenly Father, the giver of all good things and the father of all our mercies.

"As an evidence of our gratitude, and in conformity to usage and the precedent established by our New England fathers and continued by the presidents of the United States, I, John A. Johnson, governor of the state of Minnesota, do hereby proclaim Thursday, Nov. 29, A. D., 1906, as a day of general thanksgiving. Upon that day let the people assemble in their customary places of worship and participate in such services as will indicate the gratitude in their hearts for the manifold blessings of the past, and let them devoutly pray for the continuance of divine mercy in the future. Around the hearthstone and at the family altar let the bounty of our God be the topic of thought."

FEW NEGRO BARBERS NOW

White Men in Charge of Nearly All Duluth Shops.

Twenty Years Ago White Barbers Were Very Scarce.

Within the last few years the colored barber has almost disappeared from Duluth, whereas years ago there was hardly a white barber to be seen in any part of the city. As late as ten years ago the negro shops were very numerous throughout Duluth and at that time the white barber was the exception. Since then the evolution of business has gradually driven all the colored men away and today there are not more than half a dozen small shops in town.

Most of the shops run by the colored gentlemen which still remain in the city are small affairs and there are not one that has more than three or four chairs. These shops are mostly operated in the downtown district and cater to the work of the men of the black race. Few white people patronize these places although a few of them still stick to the old customs of the days when there were no white barbers. One shop run by colored barbers is located out in West Duluth but the rest of them are in the downtown district.

There are many causes given for the passing of the negro barber. For many years barbering was considered a work which a white man should not be engaged in as it was thought the negro was more fitted for it. Gradualy, however, the white man began to take hold in the business and the colored barber has been forced to the woods.

One of the white barbers in the city, who has been working at the trade for the last fifteen years, says that when he started there were very few white barbers here. "At that time the white barber was very unusual and all the work in Duluth was done by the colored men," said this particular barber.

"The change has come about gradually until at the present time there are only a few shops left that are in charge of the black people. The white barber has slowly shown his superiority over the negro and this is one of the reasons why the latter are becoming so scarce. Another reason is that many white men do not care to be waited upon by a black man. I feel that way myself and would not let a negro barber touch a razor to my face. On the other hand, I will never do any work for either a negro or a Chinaman and always send them to a shop conducted by the colored men."

At the present rate of decrease of the colored barber within a few years there will be no more than a few shops in Duluth or in any part of the state or country.

WOULD ELECT PARTY BOSSES

Secretary Bonaparte Advocates Letting One Man Name Tickets.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 12.—Secretary of the Navy Charles J. Bonaparte has given to the public a novel plan for the election of a "legalized boss" in each state and city by party primaries—the "boss" to select all candidates for the various elective offices. He believes that in this way better men can be secured for public offices. He outlines his plan as follows:

"He ought to be elected annually by the legal voters of his party, at a primary held under all the sanctions of law, and at which only this one office, or rather position, should be filled. Each voter would only have to say whom he considered the best man in the party to be constituted a nominating convention of one, for all elective offices within the state, city or county, as the case might be. This would be a very simple duty, and I am inclined to think it could be satisfactorily performed by the average voter; and I likewise think it probable that no one of the persons who have been known as 'bosses' since I have known something about politics would have been elected at such a primary.

BISHOP HALTED BY DESPERADO

In Alaskan Wilds—Persuades the Bandit of His Error.

Seattle, Nov. 12.—One time in the criminal career of Karl Hendrickson, who passed through the city a few days ago en route for McNeill's island, the better man in him prevailed and he refrained from robbing a man that he held up. It was Bishop Rowe of Alaska, who persuaded the highwayman to forego the practice of his chosen profession when the two men met on a lonely trail in a far-away section of Alaska in the dead of winter some years ago, according to a story that has been brought from the Northland by travelers just returned.

In the course of his visits to the various missions in Alaska, Bishop Rowe often found it necessary to undertake long journeys to isolated sections. The season of the year was no hindrance to the ecclesiastic, and he penetrated unknown regions fearlessly in the prosecution of his charitable work without ever a thought of danger.

On one of these trips several years ago the bishop had "bucked snow" on an almost forsaken trail for a whole day without meeting a soul. Toward evening he saw a speck come up over the horizon slowly. It grew larger and the missionary quickly realized that it was a man. He was glad of it and had a vision of a friendly chat and social camp for the night, being too far away from any roadhouse to be able to reach it that day. As the man approached, there was nothing unusual about his appearance to excite suspicion in the bishop, for the winter togs of all travelers in the far North are much alike.

Though the occasional presence of highwaymen on the trail was generally known, the churchman never gave the matter a passing thought and he walked straight up to the stranger prepared to give him welcome.

"Hands up!" was the unexpected salutation, and the bishop obeyed instinctively as the wayfarer covered him with a gun. Then came the further demand to deliver whatever worldly property of value he might possess. Although the predicament would have been a serious one for the average person, Bishop Rowe took a lighter view of it.

"You would not hold up a bishop, would you?" he asked, and the man, whose features were now clearly visible, dropped the gun.

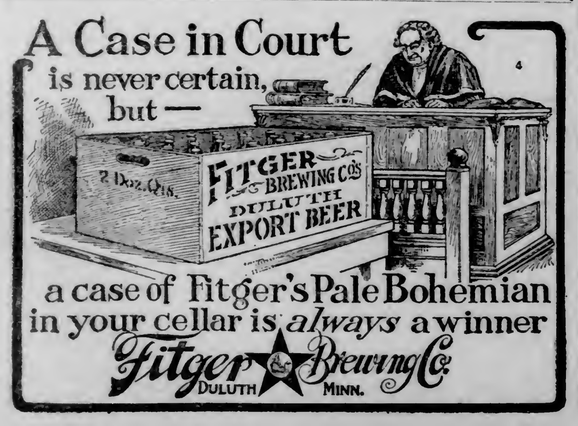

"You're not bluffing, are you?" he said as he surveyed the victim-to-bo from head to foot.

Bishop Rowe realized that he had none of the distinguishing marks by which men of the cloth can be recognized usually. To make certain as to his identity, the highwayman wanted to know of what church he was a bishop.

"The Episcopal church," Bishop Rowe answered with assurance.

"Well, I belong to that church myself. As we're brothers, I guess I'll have to let it pass," and with that the highwayman prepared to resume his journey.

During the brief parley that followed he made himself known as Karl Hendrickson, the man who had terrorized many lone travelers in Alaska, and to whom many depredations are charged. The men parted, each going his way, the bishop to do good and the hold-up to rob. Some time ago Hendrickson was sentenced by the court at Fairbanks to a long term in the penitentiary. On the way down the Yukon he sawed his way to liberty, but was recaptured and finally landed in Seattle. He is now at McNeill Island to serve his time.

J. L. Cromwell Talks About Supreme Lodge, Knights of Pythias.

Returns From a Several Weeks' Visit at New Orleans.

James L. Cromwell has returned from New Orleans, where he attended, from Oct. 16 to 26, the supreme lodge of the Knights of Pythias. Mr. Cromwell and George Tawney of Winona were the supreme representatives from Minnesota.

The supreme lodge is the highest governing body in the organization. It is oomprised of 150 supreme representatives who were present from all the states and territories in the United States, as well as from the Provinces of Quebec and Ontario, in Canada and British Columbia.

"Minnesota was recognized in the supreme lodge," said Mr. Cromwell, in speaking of the session, "by the reappointment of Arthur J. Stobbart of St. Paul as major general of the Uniform Rank, and of Judge J. F. Hilscher of St. Paul as a member of the supreme tribunal, which is the supreme court of the order.

"One of the most important things done by the supreme lodge was the establishing of the fifth class of membership in the endowment rank, prich provides a method of insurance as solid as old-line insurance, with several of its features, at a cost considerably less than old-line insurance. This lesser cost is made possible by a difference in the cost or expense of securing new policyholders. For an instance, in a general way, it may be said that when fraternal insurance costs somewhere between $16 and $20 annually, the cost of old-line insurance will run from $60 up as high as $200 a year.

"The new rates are based on the American mortality tables instead of the National Fraternal congress tables, because the American tables are more conservative.

"Another thing done by the supreme lodge was the placing of the power with the subordinate lodges to control their own funds and legislate on the questions of weekly sick and funeral benefits.

"Beginning in the year 1908 the Uniform Rank, supreme assembly, will have the authority to choose the major general. This will place the control of the Uniform Rank in the hands of that body and will be more in keeping with the democratic principles of the organization. At the present time the major general is appointed by the supreme lodge.

"Another thing done by the supreme lodge was to change the qualifications of membership. No person engaged in dealing in intoxicating liquors can become a Knight of Pythias. This rule has been made broad enough to cover wholesale liquor dealers and hotelkeepers who run a bar in connection with their hotel. Any person who is now a member of the order and who hereafter enters the liquor business will forfeit his membership.

Tomorrow evening the local Knights of Pythias will hold an "old-timers'" meeting. The guests of honor will be the men who have for a long term of years been identified with the order, and some of whom, by reason of their advanced age, are no longer active and who have retired. Among the "old-timers" who will be present will be D. E. Holston, the oldest Knight of Pythias in the Northwest in point of membership, also Capt. Asa Dailey, who joined the organization in an early day.

The contest between the degree teams of North Star lodge, No. 23, of Duluth, and Zenith lodge, No. 23, of Ishpeming, Mich., for the championship of the Northwest, has been postponed until after the holidays. Arrangements had been made to have these two degree teams, one the champion of Minnesota and the other the champion of Michigan, to come together on neutral ground, the Grand Opera house in Superior, Wis., about Thanksgiving, but as so many of the members on both teams have business that will keep them too busy to give the degree work the time it needs before the contest, it has been decided best to wait until after the holiday rush is over.

The outcome of the contest will be watched for with great interest by the Knights of Pythias all over the country, as Duluth and Ishpeming have the acknowledged crack degree teams of the order, and there will be a battle royal for honors when they meet.

ELECTRICAL EDUCATION

Special Training Given by Navy in This Branch.

Recruiting Officer Blenkhorn Tells How Warships Get Electricians.

There are few opportunities for young mechanics so good as those offered by the electrical branch of the naval service, in the opinion of B. W. Blenkhorn, gun captain, in charge of the Duluth naval recruiting office in the federal building. He says there are scores of young men who go into it each year, and that they find their pay increased materially after the special training which the government gives them in preparation for the particular work they will have to do.

"There is an increasing demand for electricians in the navy," said Officer Blenkhorn yesterday, not for specialists but for all around practical men who can manipulate and care for the many types of electrical machines used on the modern ship.

"Each new battle ship in turn becomes the most complete electrical plant to be found anywhere, for, when its power and the variety of its machinery are considered, it is without comparison. The Connecticut, just completed at the Brooklyn navy yard, will require the constant services of thirty expert electricians to take care of the machinery which does the work for 900 men.

"To educate men for this diversified sort of work the government has to support its own schools. It has two, one in New York and one on Mare island, California, and the enlisted electrician is sent to one of these before being given an appointment on board ship. No matter what his previous experience or technical education as an electrician may have been he will find in these schools many things to learn.

"The students are mechanics, electricians and graduates of technical schools. They are put to work at the most practical things, and instead of class work there is individual instruction. Theory is taught only as it may be new to the pupil, the object being to make him conversant with the reasons for the things he may formerly have done altogether mechanically.

"The wireless telegraph systems come in for a great deal of attention, as the navy supports many land stations as well as the ones on shipboard. It has not yet been decided which of the several systems is best suited to the navy's demands, and for that reason every student is required to become thoroughly familiar with each. He learns not only the theory of the wireless working, but becomes an operator, more or less expert, according to his ability.

"Upon completing the course the graduate is sent to a wireless station or given an appointment on shipboard. Any capable man can leave school with a rating of electrician of the second class, and the more successful will be rated as first-class. From this latter grade there is but one step to the position of chief electrician, who has charge of the electrical machinery on board ship, and who deals direct with the ship's officers.

"The pay for this position is $70 a month, with all the usual living expenses paid by the navy. This is very good money, indeed, as the monthly salary can be set down almost entire as savings."

THE RECENT ELECTIONS

Give Evidence of the Power of the Independent Voter.

Members of Present Congress Who Are Among the Missing.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, Nov. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Now that the smoke of battle has lifted and a clearer view is offered of the recent conflict between the great political parties of the United States, there cannot help but come, in the midst of the jubilation to the Republican party, a profound realization that its tenure in office was brought about not only by the activity of President Roosevelt but by the use of his name as a pledge for further reform. While party lines were smashed in many states and while Republicans and Democrats exchanged places for candidates it must not be forgotten that the exchange was in the interest of reform as viewed by these opposing interests.

Early in the campaign the American Federation of Labor, through its president, Samuel Gompers, announced its intention to take an active hand in the political situationand the magazine of that great organization boldly declared that it would fight those who had been inimical to the interests of labor and would support those who had been fair. It marked for saughter Littlefield of Main, Cannon of Illinois, Mudd of aMryland, Dalzell of Pennsylvania, Lilly of Connecticut, Lafean of Pennsylvania and Babcock of Wisconsin, as among the more prominent members of the fifty-ninth congress. Out of this number, however, but one scalp hangs at the belt of Samuel Gompers, Babcock of Wisconsin goes down in defeat while the rest have been elected, some with normal, some with increased and some with reduced majority.

In the great fight which William Randolhp Hearst waged in New York, one thing is certain, labor gave him earnest and loyal support, and while he was defeated his strength must still be reckoned with in the presidential battle to come. Unexpectedly William Randolph Hearst was taken seriously by the people, not only of New York city, but by the state and his surprisingly large vote polled on election day continues him as a power in the political equation.

Notwithstanding that the Republicans will have in the neighborhood of fifty majority in the lower house of the sixtieth congress, the power of the independent voter was never so forcefully expressed as during the last election and the absence of many of the stalwart figures which have been in evidence in former congresses, particularly on the Republican side, will be noticable. The "Sage of Athens," as Charles H. Grosvenor has come to be known, as well as "Old Probabilities" will be particularly missed, a Republican preceeding him from the eleventh Ohio district. Gen. Grosvenor was defeated by Albert Douglas of Chillicothe, in the primaries by an exceedingly small majority. This left many sores and in the eraliest returns on election night it looked as if the friends of Grosvenor had "knifed" Douglas for his Democratic opponent. Later returns, however, showed that Douglas was elected, but by a slight margin.

Next to the absence of Grosvenor, that of Joseph W. Babcock of Wisconsin, chairman of the District of Columbia committee, will be most commented upon. While it was known that he had a hard fight in front of him by reason of his continued opposition to Senator La Follette it was believed that Babcock, who is an exceedingly resourceful politician, would win out, but the opposition proved too strong and he is among the missing. Babcock came to congress in 1894 and has continuously served in the lower house ever since. He was not only chairman of the District of Columbia committee since 1896, but has been a member of the ways and means committee for the last eight years. His defeat means two splendid committee assignments for somebody of Republican principles and who will have the ear of "Uncle Joe" Cannon, the next speaker of the sixtieth congress.

The independent voter who really deserves the name "scratcher" because he marks his ticket to suit himself, has at his belt three other Republicans of national reputation. First, possibly because of his antogonism to the so-called Beveridge meat inspection, bill wherein Mr. Wadsworth as chairman of the committee on Agriculture opposed the provision that the packers should pay the cost of inspection instead of the government as the bill now provides. Mr. Wadsworth, who as a farmer in the valley of the Genessee in New York, and owning broad acres in that great farming community, has made agriculture a study, and who by reason of his connection with the committee on agriculture has been instrumental in bringing about very liberal appropriations for the agricultural department, was marked for slaughter because of what the farmers of the thirty-fourth New York District believed to be a covert attack upon the president. During his years in congress Mr. Wadsworth necessarily made enemies because he could not secure for all applicants government jobs and places of power in political affairs. He incurred the enmity of F. C. Stevens, president of a bank here in Washington, but a state senator from the Genessee district and it is now alleged that Stevens, who was gerrymandered out of his place as state senator from the thirty-fourth district, placed the sinews of war to bring about Wadsworth's defeat in the hands of a picturesque person by the name of Peter A. Porter of Niagara Falls who, while running as a Republican, received the endorsement of the Democratic and Independence league parties.

Early in the campaign Mr. Porter bethought him that a fine play to make would be to draw attention of the farmers to the fact that Mr. Wadsworth and the president were not of one mind on the meat inspection question, and that Wadsworth had run counter to the president's wishes so far that they were at loggerheads. Realizing that the cow was a predominating factor in the district, Porter adopted the bovine for his coat of arms, and not only used the milk-giver from an heraldic point of view, but actually appeared in the district astride of a cow, announcing that issue was the beef trust, and Wadsworth's opposition to the meat inspection bill, and that he proposed to make the cow the emblem of his campaign. The cow and Porter were constantly together, and in not a few towns Porter made his entrance into his meeting, where they were held on the ground floor, mounted on the emblem of his campaign.

One of the most surprising results of the election is the defeat of James T. McCleary of Mankato, Minn., who has served continuously in congress since 1894. Mr. McCleary is one of the most intense tariff stantpatters in congress, and has well won his title of "schoolmaster," because he has been one of the premiers of tariff education since his entrance into the political arena. Mr. McCleary's opponent used the pronounced views which the former entertains toward the tariff to advantage, and as a large element in Minnesota wants tariff revision, his defeat was brought about.

Another of the old stalwarts is numbered amongst "the dead or missing" in the person of John Fletcher Lacey, Republican, of the Sixth Iowa district. Barring one congress, Judge Lacey has served continuously in the lower house since the Fifty-first congress, having begun his present service March 4, 1893, with the Fifty-third congress. For years Judge Lacey has been chairman of the public lands committee, and many of the public land laws owe their origin to him. Lacey is a pronounced standpatter, and during the campaign for the gubernatorial nomination in Iowa, took decided stand with George D. Perkins, editor of the Sioux City Journal, as against the present governor, Albert S. Cummins, who was renominated and re-elected by a decreased majority on Tuesday last. Lacey incurred the enmity of the Cummins crowd by reason of his pronounced views on the tariff, and he was marked for slaughter. His defeat tells a distinct, interesting story of the power of the independent voter, and the fellow with a "grouch."

While the Republicans lose many of their leaders, and in the shake-up suffer much more laregely than the Democrats, the latter are not without their dead, wounded or missing. The defeat of Bankhead by the aspiring Richard Pearson Hobson, who prides himself upon looking somewhat like Bryan, to say nothing of having Bryan's voice and his magnetism, is first among the Democrats whose absence will be marked from his parties councils. And yet the defeat of Bankhead will probably give him a place in the upper branch of congress, having been chosen by the constitutency of Alabama to succeed to the first vacancy created by the death or resignation of one or the other of the distinguished senators from that state. Should Senator Pettus, who is reported as a very sick man at his home in Selma, pass over the bar, he will be succeeded by John H. Bankhead, whose place Hobson will succeed to in the Sixtieth congress.

There will be other vacancies in the Democratic ranks, some of whom will be missed, and some of whom will be soon forgotten. Among the Democrats who go out are Timothy D. Sullivan, William Randolph Hearst, Charles A. Towne and Jacob Rupert, Jr., the big brewer of New York. And so they come and go, but the government at Washington still lives.

HEIRESS TO MILLIONS ELOPES WITH COACHMAN.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—Heiress to an estate of several million dollars, pretty Emma Buchanan Howe, 19 years old, adopted daughter of Miss Frances Howe, eloped Saturday with a coachman named Jensen. She fled from the noted Bailey town homestead, near Chesterton, Ind.

After the girl, who was adopted from an orphanage when she was but a few years old by the wealthy spinster and Chicago property owner, was discovered in a love seance with the coachman, she leaped into a buggy with him and fled across country. The couple were chased by employes of a nearby brickyard. The pursuers were headed by the girl's foster mother, but all were outdistanced.

The girl had told Miss Howe she was going to marry the coachman. When the couple drove out of sight on the way toward Valparaiso, Ind., Miss Howe collapsed.

S.S.S. A CERTAIN SAFE TREATMENT

Even if mercury and potash could cure Contagious Blood Poison the condition in which these strong minerals leave the system would make the cure worse than the disease. But they cannot cure the vile disorder; they can only cover up the symptoms for awhile to break out with renewed violence when the treatment is left off. When the virus of Contagious Blood Poison enters the blood the entire circulation becomes poisoned, and the loathsome symptoms begin to appear. The mouth and throat ulcerate, hair and eyebrows come out, glands of the neck and groin swell, copper-colored spots appear on the body, and in severe cases sores and ulcers break out, and even the bones become diseased. S. S. S. is the only certain, safe cure for Contagious Blood Poison; thousands have been cured by it after failing with the mineral treatment, Hot Springs, etc. It is the only remedy that is able to get at the root of the disease and force out the poison so that no signs are ever seen again. S. S. S. is purely vegetable, being made of roots, herbs and barks, and never leaves any bad effects, but instead, tones up the stomach and digestion and builds up every part of the system while removing the poison from the blood. UNCHANGED IN DULUTH

Wheat Same Here, But Lower in Other American Markets.

Flax Makes Some Heavy Advances in the Local Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, Nov. 12.—Wheat maintained a good tone and closed unchanged in the Duluth market today but in all the other markets in America, the tone was slightly weaker at the end of the session. In Duluth, both options closed unchanged. Light receipts caused strength during the early part of the day. Liverpool closed unchanged to ⅛d. higher, Berlin ¼c lower and Budapest ½c higher.

The December option closed unchanged in Duluth, ⅛@¼c lower; in Chicago, ⅝c lower, in New York, a shade higher, in Minneapolis, ¼c lower, in St. Louis ¼@⅜c lower in Kansas City and ⅝c lower in Winnipeg. The May option closed unchanged in Duluth, ⅛c lower in Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City, a shade lower in Minneapolis, a shade higher in New York and ¼c lower in Winnipeg.

December corn closed ¼c lower in Chicago and was ¼d to ½d lower in Liverpool. December oats closed ⅜c lower in Chicago.

Following were the world's shipments of wheat and corn last week, the previous and the corresponding week last year:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opens Firm on Good Cables and Small Northwest Receipts.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—Firm cables and continued small receipts in the Northwest caused a firm and slightly higher opening in the wheat market today. Commission houses were the best buyers, while pit traders and local professionals were the sellers. Trade was only fair in quantity. The fact that Northwestern receipts were 275 cars less than last year was the principal bullish factor. December opened ⅜c higher at 73c and then reacted to 72⅞@73c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 833 cars against 965 cars last week and 1,386 cars one year ago.

The market became less firm in the last half of the session, chiefly because of a substantial increase in the visible supply. December sold off to 72⅝c. The close was easy with December ⅛@¼c lower at 72⅝@¾c.

General selling of the May option by commission houses and pit traders because of the bearish constructing placed on the government crop report caused the corn market to be somewhat heavy. Cash houses were good sellers of the December option, December corn opened ⅛@¼c lower at 42c to 42⅛c and sold at 41⅞@42c. Local receipts 424 cars with 102 of contract grade.

December sold off to 41⅜c@7⅜c. The close was easy with December ¼c lower at 42c.

The oats market was steady but slightly lower in sympathy with the weakness of corn. Commission houses were sellers of May, while cash interests were buying December. December oats opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at 34⅝@34¾c to 34¾c and sold at 34½c. Local receipts were 321 cars.

The provisions market was lower on 5c decline in the price of live hogs. There was a fair demand at the decline, shorts being the best buyers. At the opening January pork was 10c lower at $14.05. Ribs were down 2½c at $7.57½. Lard was down 2½c at $8.42½.

Close: Wheat—December 72⅝@¾c; May 77⅝c. Corn—December 42c; May 43⅛@⅜c. Oats—December 34¼c; May 35¼c. Pork—January $14.05; May $14.17½. Lard—January $8.37½; May $8.35. Ribs—January $7.55; May $7.60½. Rye—Cash 64@66c. Barley—Cash 41@52c. Flax, clover and timothy, nothing doing. Cash wheat, No. 2 red, 73¼@74c; No. 3 red, 71@73c; No. 2 hard, 72½@75c; No. 3 hard, 71@74c; No. 1 northern, 79@83c; No. 2 northern, 77@82c; No. 3 spring, 73@81c. Corn, No. 2, 44@45c; No. 3 new, 41½c. Grain Gossip.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—After a slow and rather disappointing day in wheat the market closed with ⅛-cent loss in the May price. Buyers of wheat can see a number of encouraging features. Northwest receipts do not catch up with last year or with any normal year. This market ought to divorce itself from the bearishness in corn after another day and believe the legitimate news will turn the market higher.

Corn—That it is not going to be an easy matter to hammer corn prices lower was well demonstrated. Think it will do to follow corn down a cent or two from this level.

Oats—This market may be unsettled for a day or two in sympathy with corn, but we believe an increased volume of buying will be felt on any little break.

Provisions—If hog movement is enlarged permanently it is likely to cause some further concession in prices of products.

Minneapolis Flour.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 12—Flour, market steady; millers report a fair demand for flour. Premiums for cash wheat remain too high to make any great activity in trade. Buyers are not taking hold with any degree of freedom but generally come in when the market shows a suspicion of advancing. Shipments: 47,023 barrels. First patents $4.20@4.30; second patents $4.05@4.15; first clears $3.35@3.35; second clears $2.40@2.60.

Copper Gossip.

Gay & Sturgis: The market has been weak at times today, but the net loss was slight. The tone is good and it is astonishing how well stocks held, considering money rates quoted today. It seems inevitable, however, that more liquidation must come, and with it lower prices. The local market was soft, but stocks were well taken. The selling of Greene looked good, but there seems to b a big market for it at 25. Would sell stocks on any continuation of rally tomorrow, as forced selling is bound to come sooner or later.

St. Paul Live Stock.

St. Paul, Nov. 12.—Cattle—Receipts, 7,700; steady to stronger; grain fed steers, $4.50@6.25; cows and heifers, $3.50@4.50; grass steers, $3.25@5.15; cows and heifers, $2.50@3.75; stockers, $1.10@2.50; feeders, $2.75@4.25. Hogs—Receipts, 3,000; 5c lower; range, $5.60@6.10; bulk, $5.90@6.00. Sheep—Receipts, 25,000; steady; lambs, weak; sheep, $3.75@5.15; lambs, $2.50@7.00.

WEAKNESS IN STOCKS

Liquidation Due to 20 Per Cent Call Money Rate.

Market Closed Lower, But With Declines Partially Recovered.

New York, Nov. 12.—Large selling orders appeared in the stock market when trading began today, under which prices declined sharply all around. Great Northern preferred fell 2, Canadian Pacific and Anaconda 1½ each, Union Pacific 1¼; Pennsylvania, Reading, Atchison, Brooklyn Transit, National Lead, St. Paul, Erie, Baltimore & Ohio, New York Central, Missouri Pacific, Amalgamated Copper and Colorado Fuel large fractions each, Mexican Central advanced a point and Kansas & Texas ⅝.

Covering by shorts strengthened the market and some stocks recovered sharply, but again fell back to about the opening level, when the bears stopped buying. A large variety of stocks was depressed a point or more. Tennessee Coal dropped 6 points, Reading, Louisville & Nashville and Iowa Central 1½, New York Central, Delaware & Hudson, Chesapeake & Ohio, Erie and the second preferred, Colorado & Southern, Copper, Toledo, St. Louis & Western preferred, American Car, Crossed Steel Car, Colorado Fuel, Sloss-Sheffield Steel, General Electric, Hide & Leather and Distillers Securities 1 to 1¼.

The rise in the money rate brought out stocks freely. The resulting declines left few of the active stocks less than a point lower than Saturday's closing bid. Reading and Great Northern fell 3, Northern Pacific, Union Pacific, New York Central, Louisville & Nashville, St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred and Pressed Steel Car 2 to 2½ and Pennsylvania, Chesapeake & Ohio, St. Paul, Delaware & Hudson, American Woolen, Brooklyn Transit, Sugar, Colorado Fuel, Consolidated Gas and General Electric 1½ to 1¾. Tennessee Coal dropped 7½ and Anaconda 4¼. The rebound was feeble when the selling pressure relaxed. Bonds were easy.

During the noon hour stock prices were steady at small fractions above the lowest. Westinghouse Electric declined 2½.

During a large part of the afternoon the market hovered within striking distance of the bottom, but free from additional pressure and a rally of some vigor set in shortly before 2 o'clock.

The market closed firm and very dull. Prices continued to recover slowly but steadily. Losses were not entirely up except in St. Paul which rose a large fraction over the final price of Saturday. The buying was not a large scale and was attributed mostly to uncovered shorts.

Stock Gossip.

Gay & Sturgis: Now that the elections have been eliminated from the stock market situation, the speculative element has come to a realizing sense that existing money conditions constitute the dominant factor. On Friday call money touched 15 per cent, the highest in two months, on Saturday the announcement was made by Secretary Shaw that he would not relieve the market by refunding government bonds, by increasing deposits, or in any other way unless conditions should change materially. Thus the attitude is generally taken that no appreciable lessening in the monetary situation can reasonably be expected before the first of the year. The market of today is in the same peculiar position as it was exactly a year ago. As was expected yesterday the West had financed its crop and was able to furnish large sums of money in response to the 25 and 60 per cent call money needs, which is decidedly helpful to the market operators.

Then, too, it may be supposed that the trust companies last year expanded their own liabilities on a scale which overstepped conservatism, but which also aided the operators. Will the next two months witness a repetition of such stringent money conditions present exactly a year ago? I think not. The interior bank position is much weaker than a year ago, the demand for funds from our various business lines is more urgent, while the trust company inflation will be checked by the reserve law, which did not then exist. As one level headed financial authority says: "The fact that a monetary stringency is so much talked about and prepared for is one of the best reasons for thinking it will never come." Judging from the existing conditions, however, we are likely to see a continuation of the liquidation movement on a moderate scale, with occasional rallies, until an adjustment of the money markets and values has been made.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market is closing lower, but at a substantial rally in most cases from the low point of the day. A 20 per cent call money rate is not conducive to the bull market. Traders found this a stumbling block, and for the time being it overshadows all else. General increases in wages by railroad and industrial corporations is causing wide comment. It will do much to offset the growing feeling against corporations, and it will add to the purchasing power, thereby making for far more in the prosperity than we have yet seen. The tendency of traders to desert the general market for the curb issues suggests that when the public desire to trade they do not feel confident enough to more than merely nibble at the general list.

Today's market was a liquidating one pure and simple. Money loaned as high as 20 per cent, final loans being reported at 4 per cent. The immediate future of the market depends altogether on the money situation. Considering money, apathy on the part of the public and the general dull trade, the list holds remarkably. While call money fluctuates as it did today, we doubt if advances can be maintained.

Walker Bros. to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market opened barely steady and later developed a good deal of weakness. Traders began to sell and many stop orders were reached. In the afternoon money eased off and this had a good effect. Prices recovered somewhat and became firm. The close was about steady, but there was little buying power and what there was was mostly by shorts.

Washington, Nov. 12.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve shows: Available cash balances, $226,997,510; gold coin and bullion, $117,164,846; gold certificates, $48,227,710.

New York Money.

New York, Nov. 12.—Money on call strong 5@20 per cent; ruling rate 12; closing bid 5, offered at 8. Times loans easy; 60 days 5; 90 days 7 to 7½; six months 6½. Prime mercantile paper 6@6¼ per cent. Sterling exchange, steady at decline, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.86.70@4.86.75 for demand and at $4.80.25@4.80.30 for 60 day bills; posted rates, $4.81¼@4.86½; commercial bills $4.80. Bar silver 72⅜c. Mexican dollars 55c. Government bonds, steady; railroad bonds, easy.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Nov. 12.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 2 and 3 points in response to fairly steady cables, and scattered covering. Trading was quiet immediately following the call and prices held within a point or two of the opening figures. here was little indication of bull support, however, and sentiment around the ring appeared to be rather bearish. In the absence of aggressive offerings the market advance a few points during the middle of the morning and ruled steady about 7 and 8 points net higher.

The rally during the forenoon carried the market about 15 to 16 points net higher on covering of shorts, a less pearish private estimation of the crop and predictions for frost in the Eastern belt. The market at middday was steady, but about four points off from the best. Spot quiet; middling uplands, 10.25; middling gulf, 10.50.

Futures closed very steady. Closing bids: December 9.63; December 9.62; January 9.68c; February 9.77c; March 9.88c; April 9.94c; May 9.99c; June 10.04c; July 10.07c. Spot closed quiet, 20 points advance, middling uplands, 10.30, middling gulf, 10.55; sales 800 bales.

FIFTY BURN TO DEATH

sections, but the conductor of the westbound train was not notified of this. When the first section had passed, he therefore pulled out and started for Chicago on the main track, and the collision followed.

The immigrant train was the second section of the regular express and the first section did not carry any signal to indicate that the second section was following. The freight train pulled out on the main track and met the immigrant train on a curve. Engineers and firemen saved themselves by jumping though the engineer of the passenger was badly scalded by escaping steam. The passengers, mainly all Poles, were asleep when the accident occurred and many were killed while they slept. The cars caught fire at once and many were pinned in the wreckage and were unable to release themselves before the flames reached them and were consumed. Cries of the dying filled the air and those who were badly hurt tried to save others but they were not very successful and the flames drove them back.

The immigrant train was bound for Chicago. The accident was caused by the freight crew failing to observe signals on the first section of the express train that another section was following. The immigrant train caught fire and was entirely consumed. There were 167 passengers on it and 117 of them have been accounted for. A wrecking crew from Chicago is now at the scene of the accident clearing away the wreckage.

The immigrants consisted of Russian Jews, Servians and Poles and were en route, by way of Chicago to the Northwest.

At 1 o'clock officials of the Baltimore & Ohio announced that they had received positive news from the wreck at Woodville, and it was known that out of the 135 people on the train, forty were killed, thirty-five injured, and sixty escaped unhurt.

Chicago, Nov. 12. — Immediately after notifying Mercy hospital to prepare for the reception of the wounded in the Woodville wreck, the officials of the Baltimore & Ohio requested the aid of the police department in caring for them and Chief of Police Collins ordered ambulances to meet the train at the depot. It was then announced by the officials of the road tha tthe train would not reac hthis city before 3:30 o'clock.

RUNAWAY ENGINE'S HAVOC.

Detroit Freight Depot Wrecked and One Killed and Several Hurt.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 12.—George R. Booth, parcel agent, was killed and several men injured, three of them badly, today, when a Michigan Central railroad freight engine ran away and crashed into the Third street depot, tearing down a large section of the structure.

The severely injured were: Donald Thompson, assistant district superintendent of the Pullman company; Earl S. McEuen, cashier of the Pullman office; Bert Haner, a Michigan Central conductor.

The engine was switching in the yards a mile from the station, when, it is said, the crew saw a passenger train approaching behind them, thought a collision was about to occur and jumped from the engine. It was running at good speed and, unchecked, dashed into the station and hit the west wall, tearing out a section twenty-five feet wide. The second and third floors over this section also collapsed.

Booth was killed in his parcel room, near which the engine struck. Haner was on the third floor, and fell with the wreckage from there.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.—Whereas, default has been made in the conditions of a certain indenture of mortgage, made, executed and delivered by August Lund and Maria Lund, his wife, of the County of Douglas, State of Minnesota, as mortgagors, to Hans Johanson, of the County of Douglas and State of Minnesota, as mortgagee upon and covering the following described real property situate in the County of St. Louis and State of Minnesota, to-wit:

The South One-half (S½) of the Southwest quarter (SW¼) and the South One-half (S½) of the Southeast quarter (SE¼) of Section Thirty-five (35) of Township Sixty-nine (69) North of Range Twenty-one (21) West of the Fourth Principal Meridian.

Which said mortgage bears date the 25th day of April, A. D. 1905, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said St. Louis County, on the 1st day of May, A. D. 1905, at 3:15 o'clock P. M. in Book 221 of Mortgages on Page 237 thereof, and

Whereas, there is claimed to be due and is due upon said mortgage and the notes therein described, at the date of this notice, the sum of Three Hundred Forty-three and 58-100 ($343.58) Dollars being $300 principal and $43.58 interest) and no action or proceeding at law or in equity having been instituted to recover the same or any part thereof;

Now, Therefore, notice is hereby given that under and pursuant to the power of sale in said mortgage contained and the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the real property therein described will be sold by the sheriff of St. Louis County, Minnesota, at public auction, to the highest bidder therefor for cash, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Duluth, St. Louis County, Minnesota, on Wednesday, the 28th day of November, A. D. 1906, at Ten o'clock in the forenoon, to pay the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage and the notes secured thereby and the costs of foreclosure thereof, including an attorney's fee of Twenty-five ($25.00) Dollars stipulated in said mortgage, to be paid in case of foreclosure thereof.

Dated October 9th, 1906.
HANS JOHANSON, Mortgagee.

GEN. SHAFTER PASSES AWAY

Commander at Santiago, Cuba, Succumbs to Pneumonia.

San Francisco, Nov. 12.—General William R. Shafter, commander of the United States forces at the siege of Santiago during the Spanish war, died just before noon today on the McKittrick ranch, near Bakersfield, of pneumonia. He was born at Galesburg, Mich., Oct. 16, 1835. He entered the Civil war as first lieutenant of the Seventh Michigan Infantry, Aug. 22, 1861, and rose to the rank of colonel. He entered the regular army as lieutenant colonel, Jan. 26, 1867, and was made colonel, March 4, 1879 and brigadier general in 18877. He was made major general of volunteers in May, 1898, and had charge of the Santiago campaign, that ended in its surrender, July 3, 1898. He retired June 30, 1891, as major general. He received several medals for bravery.

KNOWN IN DULUTH.

Victim of Assault by Deer Had Often Visited Here.

A little dispatch from New York today was of considerable interest to local grain men.

It stated that Herbert Bradley, a wealthy flour exporter, had been killed by a pet buck deer on his game preserves, near Montclair, N. J. The deer ripped open an artery in Mr. Bradley's hip.

Mr. Bradley was well known in Duluth, and frequently came to this city on business trips.

HARD CHASE OF RAIDERS.

Cape Colony Police Trying to Catch Up With Insurgent Boers.

Cauetown, Nov. 12.—The colonial police force pursuing the insurgent party under the Transvaal Boer, Ferreira, was within five miles of the raiders last night, but the scarcity of water and the sandy country renders the chase difficult. The fugitives have gained several recruits.

SPEAKS AT HIGH SCHOOL

President Northrop Makes Short Address to the Students.

Says That No Person Can Have Monopoly on Knowledge.

Cyrus Northrop, president of the University of Minnesota, spoke to the pupils of the Duluth Central high school this morning.

Principal Smith introduced President Northrop as a man who is entitled to speak with authority on all matters pertaining to education, as he is one of the greatest college presidents of the present day. President Northrop spoke as follows:

"My young friends: From the number of speeches that I am making in Duluth you might be led to think that I am running for office. This is not so, however.

"I am here this morning because of the love which I bear for your superintendent, principal, teachers and yourselves.

"Everyone of you who has entered this high school may consider himself well up in the world. And yet, looking out at the beautiful hillsides which rise above you, you may realize that there are still greater heights to attain, and something to be seen on the other side. You have one of the most beautiful high schools in the world, with better equipment and supplies than any other school in the state. You are taking advantage of the great opportunity which is offered to you to secure an education. You are working for knowledge and not money.

"There is a great difference between the two. There is not enough money to go around an dsatisfy all. If one man secures a great amount of it, another man must take a correspondingly small share. It is not so with knowledge. You may all take as much as you want and carry it away with you, but the quantity is not diminished in the least.

"You are to be future citizens of the state of Minnesota. The responsibility of the state will rest on you. It is a great thing to have trained and cultivated minds, it is a great thing to have a good education, but if that is all you are going to have, God help the state of Minnesota.

"We want men who will always do what they know is right. If you will just determine to do what is right, you will have very little trouble in distinguishing between the good and evil. You don't need any rules to help you in this. You simply recognize the difference and choose the right.

"I came here twenty-two years ago. There were about twenty pupils in the Duluth Central school then. There are more than 800 now. The appreciation of the value of an education is a great thing. It is becoming more widespread all the time. The time was when most business men could get along with the help of uneducated employees. That day has passed. We have more than 500 young men at our university training to be engineers, and every one of them will be able to secure a good position after he has satisfactorily completed his course.

"I am not here to influence you to attend our university. We have a large number there now. But if you wish to attend come and see me about it. I shall be glad to talk to any of you.

"Go to whatever college or university you desire to; secure a good education; stand up always for that which you know to be right; and it shall be hard if the future of the state of Minnesota is not as glorious as we could desire.

THE GOLDEN RULE

TRIBUTE TO JOHNSON

Federation of Labor President Makes Neat Introduction.

Cheers Greet Minnesota's Executive and His Good Wishes.

Minneapolis, Nov. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the opening of the American Federation of Labor's annual meeting a band of 110 pieces, picked from the local musicians union played the Star Spangled Banner. Rev. C. P. Magill, pastor of the Oliver Presbyterian church, made the opening prayer, and Alderman A. E. Merrill welcomed the federation in behalf of the city.

President Gompers was responding to the address when an outburst of cheering gave notice that Governor Johnson had entered the hall. Mr. Gompers at once resigned the floor to the governor, saying that while it would be a presumption to introduce a man of the national standing of Governor Johnson, he considered it an honor to present him.

Governor Johnson said that he not only welcomed the federation, but wished it Godspeed in its work for the uplifting of the laboringmen of the United States.

Resuming his speech, President Gompers pointed out that even in times of great prosperity many people felt the pinch of want, that in time of depression the instruments of wealth production were unimpaired.

Following President Gompers' address, the credentials committee presented its report through its chairman, N. P. Higgins. This led to a reopening of the old controversy between the plumbers and the steamfitters.

TRUST PLANTS ARE DYNAMITED

American Snuff Company's Kentucky Warehouses Destroyed.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 12.—The warehouses of the American Snuff company at Eddyville, Princeton and Fredonia, Ky., have been wrecked by dynamite.

The Eddyville warehouse was blown up early this morning. Citizens of that place were awakened by the shock of the explosion which shattered windows for a wide radius. Bloodhounds were secured and followed the trail of the wreckers for ten miles into Caldwell county.

Several months ago trust warehouses in the northern part of Kentucky were dynamited and growers who sold tobacco to the trust received warning messages from the "night riders."

HOOPOE'SCROWN.

Pall Mall Gazette: That interesting bird, the hoopoe, is now represented in the zoological society's menagerie. Compared with a bird of paradise, the hoopoe is a humble looking creature in its red sandy plumage, barred with black; but in its way it is beautiful. It has a large curved beak, and its head is adorned by a crest of stiff feathers. The hoopoe is well known in Asia as well as in Europe. There is a Spanish legend concerning it which has been related by Kingsley.

The story goes that once upon a time the holy bird who run up and down on the Prado at Seville among the ladies' pretty feet had golden crowns on their heads. One day the birds and beasts all went to pay homage at the court of King Solomon; among them, of course, were the hoopoes. When their turn came they made their request, which was that the king would pray for them that their crowns might be changed.

So King Solomon prayed, and instead of golden crowns they received crowns of feathers. Ever since then, the legend continues, the hoopoes "live as merrily as crickets in an oven, and also have the honor of bearing the name of his Most Catholic Majesty King Solomon."

CHILLED BOMB MISSES NOTED RUSSIAN GENERAL MARKED BY TERRORISTS

Bold Attempt to Assassinate Rennenkampf is Failure.

Press and Editors of Odessa Under Military Gag Rule.

Count Witte's Return to St. Petersburg Very Chilly.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 13.—A desperate attempt was made at Irkutsk, Siberia, yesterady to assassinate with a bomb, Gen. Rennenkamp, cavalry hero of the Japanese war and now governor of Transbaikalia. The chilling of the explosive, however prevented it from doing much damage. The general was unharmed and his two aides were only slightly contused.

The general had been on the terrorist deathlist for some time on account of his severity in repressing mutinies and armed revolts in Transbaikalia in December. The would-be assassin lay in wait for him on Amur street, where he is accustomed to promenade, and as he approached the terrorist arose from a bench, threw the bomb and started to run, but was immediately captured, the general aiding in seizing him. A revolver was found on the prisoner.

Within four hours after the throwing of the bomb the terrorist was placed on trial before a drum-head court martial. The prisoner, who had not been identified, admits that he is a member of the Social revolutionary organization.

The publishers, editors and principal collaborators of the Odessa newspapers have been obliged to sign an agreement not to discredit the government arrangements for the preliminary elections nor to generally excite the people by making undesirable interpretations of government acts. The penalty is a fine of three months' imprisonment, with confiscation of the offending edition. All papers henceforth are to be submitted to the military censorship.

The return of Count Witte here yesterady created scarcely a ripple on the INSURANCE WORK SECRET.

Commissioners Consider Matters of Moment in Executive Session.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—The conference of insurance commissioners was today turned into an executive session, scheduled to last until evening. It was announced before the session opened that it was improbable that any specific action would be taken before tomorrow.

TRADE DEAL UNDER STUDY

American Experts in Berlin to Examine German Matters.

Foreign Office Names Notables to Assist in Inquiry.

Berlin, Nov. 13.—S. N. D. North, director of the census, and James L. Gerry, chief of the customs division of the United States treasury department, members of the commission designated by Secretary Root to confer with German officials regarding tariff complaints, arrived here today and joined Nahum I. Stone, tariff expert of the department of commerce and labor, and third member of the commission. They will have diplomatic rank as attaches of the embassy, although their functions do not extend to negotiation, but only to wide inquiry into the trade relations between the United States and Germany with regard, more particularly to the complaints against the customs administration, and to what Germany really wants, under the new arrangement to be considered by the United States government.

The foreign office and the interior department will designate three or four representatives to co-operate with the American commissioners. These probably will be Herr Wermuth, under secretary of state for the interior; Herr Delbrueck, an official of the interior department, to whom was assigned, some years ago, the task of making a special study of the American tariff and trade questions; Dr. Lehmann, a prominent official of the trade division of the foreign office and the director of that division; Dr. Wonkerner, who is now in Spain, negotiating a commercial treaty, and who is likely to return and assist in the work before the commission finishes its investigation.

ALL ROADS AFFECTED

Cleveland Firemen Unite in Demands for Betterments.

Eastern Enginemen Confer With Magnates of Big Lines.

Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 13.—Frank M. Gray, secretary of the Cleveland branch of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, announces that demands have been made on all roads entering this city, with the exception of the Lake Shore, for higher wages, shorter hours and better working conditions. Similar demands will, he says, be made on the Lake Shore later this week. The increase demanded ranges from 10 to 30 per cent.

New York, Nov. 13.—Committees representing the firemen of the New York Central and New York, New Haven & Hartford railroads went into conference with officials of the two roads at the Grand Central depot today. The committees were headed by Grand Master John J. Hanrahan, of the firemen's organization.

Before going into the conference, the members had a talk with Grand Chief Stone, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, but he said that he was acting only in an advisory capacity. He will have a conference with committees representing the engineers of the Erie, New York Central, and New York, New Haven & Hartford roads, later in the day and probably will leave for his home in Cleveland tonight. It is understood that the principal question that the grievance committee will take up with the New York Central concerns the wages to be paid to the engineers when the electrification of the road is completed.

SAVES FATHER FROM ORDEAL

St. Louis Treasury Shortage Involves District Attorney's Son.

St. Louis, Nov. 13.—The federal grand jury will convene tomorrow and begin the investigation into the shortage of $61,500 in the St. Louis sub-treasury. This was traced to the department of receiving teller, D. P. Dyer, Jr., whose father, Col. D. P. Dyer, is United States district attorney. Because of the relationship, Col. Dyer has been temporarily relieved from taking part in the sub-treasury investigation at his own request, and the government has appointed F. W. Lehman to act in his stead.

CRAZED BY FOOTPAD BLOW.

Young Man's Skull Crushed on Avenue of New York.

New York, Nov. 13.—Crazed from a blow on the head, probably dealt with a black-jack, wielded by a hold-up man, a young man believed to be John Driscoll of Waterford, Conn., is a raving maniac at Bellvue hospital. His skull was crushed by the blow and his condition is believed to be critical. He was found lying on the sidewalk at One Hundred and sixteenth street and Amsterdam avenue early today.

SENATOR CULLOM IS ILL.

Illinois Statesman Victim of Indigestion at Navy Department.

Washington, Nov. 13.—Senator Cullom suffered an attack of indigestion nausea while at the navy department today, requiring the attention of a physician. He is resting easily, and it is believed soon will be completely recovered.

TOM LAWSON HEARD FROM

Was Glad to Contribute to Governor Johnson's Campaign Fund.

First Public Utterance Since Prostrated by His Wife's Death.

St. Paul, Nov. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Have just heard of your fight. Have been cast on the shore where the rocks are jagged and the seaweed chills. Am trying to get my bearings, but am awful tangled. Convey to your White Chief my God bless him. Would my voice could aid him. Draw on me for one thousand—my mite. THOMAS W. LAWSON."

This telegram from the assailer of the "system" is his first public utterance since the death of his wife, which so prostrated him that he has been unable to write or even to take up his other duties. The telegram was addressed to Frank A. Day, chairman

BAPTISTS IN CONGRESS.

National Gathering of Denomination Opens at St. Louis.

St. Louis, Nov. 13.—Prominent Baptist ministers and laymen from all over the country were assembled at the opening session of the National Baptist congress, which convened in the Second Baptist church today. The congress will be in session for three days and will devote much of the time to discussion of selected topics.

WIFE BANS FAIR CLERK

Ramsey County's Surveyor-Elect Forced to Dismiss Girl.

Compelled to Give Pledge Even Before His Candidacy.

Mayor and Other Officials Seek to Avert Discharge.

St. Paul, Nov. 13.—Because his wife objected to the handsome girl bookkeeper employed in the office of the county surveyor, John Irvine, elected to that office on the Democratic ticket, last week, was compelled to promise that he would discharge her as soon as elected.

Mr. Irvine was defeated for reelection two years ago, and when he made up his mind to recapture the office, his wife made him give her a pledge, before he filed for nomination, that if he were elected the first thing he would do would be to discharge Miss Susan C. Ringwald. The wife intimated that unless he obeyed, she would see that he did not get the nomination if she could prevent it.

Fearing that opposition in his own home would result disastrously to his election, Mr. Irvine solemnly promised to serve notice on Miss Ringwald as soon as he was counted into

REBATERS FACE TRIAL

Kansas City Freight Brokers and Railroad Man Nipped.

Indicted by Federal Grand Jury for Illegal Actions.

Kansas City, Nov. 13.—Indictments were returned here today by the federal grand jury as follows :

Against David H. Kresky of Kansas City, a freight broker, charged with conspiracy to violate the interstate commerce act in securing concessions on export shipments of flour, sold by the J. A. Howard Mill company of Wichita, Kas., to A. F. Roberts & C., of New York, for export to Bristol, England, and Leith, Scotland, and sent from Wichita to Kansas City over the Missouri Pacific, from Kansas City to Chicago over the Chicago & Alton, and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroads, and from Chicago to New York over the Nickel Plate line.

Against W. A. McGowen, agent at Kansas City of the Nickel Plate Fast Freight line (the New York, Chicago & St. ouis Railroad company), for conspiring with Kresky to violate the interstate commerce act in granting concessions on shipments of flour destined from Wichita to the foreign ports named.

Against Henry S. Hartley of Kansas City, a dealer in cottonseed meal, charged with accepting commissions and rebates on shipments from Roof, I. T., to Tarkio, Mo., and Plano, Iowa, over the St. Louis & San Francisco and the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroads.

SUIT CASES OF TRAVELERS BOOTY OF NEVADA BANDITS.

Reno, Nev., Nov. 13.—Armed bandits held up the overland limited westbound train at Carlin, Saturday night, and escaped with the suit cases of passengers, and the money sack of Conductor Conn. The railroad men at Sparks state that they secured about $1,000. A posse was formed and a pitched battle took place at the edge of the town, 100 shots being fired. No one is known to have been injured. Southern Pacific detectives and deputy sheriffs are hot on the trail of the robbers.

MISSIONS BOARD LOSES FIGHT OVER CHANGE IN BIG WILL.

Augusta, Maine, Nov. 13.—The Maine supreme court has decided against the Congregationalist board of foreign missions in its contest of the will of Solomon H. Chandler of Portland, who in 1896, directed that his estate, valued at $1,000,000, should go to the board, but in 1902, wrote a codicil leaving the entire property to relatives. The board contested the codicil on the ground that when it was added the testator was not of sound mind.

FIRE ON BIG OCEAN STEAMER PUT OUT WITHOUT ANY PANIC.

Queenstown, Nov. 13.—Fire was discovered in the electric fan room of the great Cunard steamer Caronia at 1 o'clock this morning, after the vessel had passed Browhead. The flames were extinguished before the steamer reached Queenstown. All the precautions possible were taken against eventualities, but there was never any real danger and the momentary excitement among the passengers soon subsided.

OIL TRUST'S LAND GRAB IN CALIFORNIA MAY END IN FEDERAL INDICTMENT

SAMUEL GOMPERS,
President of American Federation of Labor, Now in Session at Minneapolis.

Taking of Alleged Gypsum Claims Covers Petroleum Steal.

Ohio Begins New Action Against Rockefeller Combine.

The Federal Government Plans to Break Up Huge Monopoly.

San Francisco, Nov. 13.—Recent heavy locations of land in Kern county by agents of the Standard Oil company, have made the subject of investigation by government officials, and it is asserted that indictments will follow. The land was taken up by the petroleum combine ostensibly for the gypsum deposits, but in reality for oil purposes. That the character of the land had been carefully studied is shown by the fact that a flowing oil well already has been developed.

The inquiry is being made through the office of United States Attorney Devlin of San Francisco. Federal agents have been at work several weeks in Kern county. From their preliminary reports it is believed that the manner in which the land was secured will warrant indictments.

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 13.—Ouster suits were filed in the circuit court at Lima, last evening by Attorney General Wade Ellis against four subsidary companies controlled by the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, to prevent the further operation of the alleged combination popularly known as the "Standard Oil trust." The companies named as defendants are The Ohio Oil company, The Solar Refining company, The Buckeye Pipe Line company and The Standard Oil company of Ohio.

The petitions allege that the Standard Oil company of New Jersey owns and controls all the stock of these four companies, except an amount sufficient to maintain a directorate and a corporate existence in Ohio. It is further alleged that the control of these companies is exercised in restraint of trade and in contravention of the anti-trust laws of the state.

The suits result from the suit of the state against the Standard at Findlay, during which the alleged facts regarding the subsidary companies were brought out.

Washington, Nov. 13.—While no authoritative statement could be obtained, there is good reason to believe that the government has decided to institute proceedings against the Standard Oil company, under the Sherman anti-trust act, with a view to the dissolution of the company as it now exists, and the restoration to each of the seventy-five or eighty constituent companies of its proportionate share of the stock, and also to compel the observance of the law inhibiting the various companies from entering into any contract, agreement or understanding with each other, with a view to maintaining prices on oil.

LABOR'S PART IN POLITICS

Federation Executive Council Upholds Its Recent Activity.

Plans to Work for Men Who Favor Union Measures.

Minneapolis, Nov. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The recent political activity of the American Federation of Labor occupied a prominent place in the report of the executive council to the twenty-ninth annual convention, which was read at the morning sesion today by Vice President James Duncan.

While the report did not go into the details of the recent campaign for the defeat of Speaker Cannon, Congressman Littlefield of Maine and other congressional candidate, it defined clearly the attitude of organized labor toward politics and gave a summary of the receipts and disbursements of the campaign fund subscribed by the affiliated unions of the American Federation of Labor. According to this the total campaign receipts were $8,056.89, the expenditures, $7,834.11, and the unexpended balance, $222.78.

"The American Federation," the report declares, "does not contemplate the formation of a distinct political

SIX GROUNDS FOR DIVORCE

Committee on Uniform Laws Presents its Proposed Bill.

Philadelphia, Nov 13.—The national congress on uniform divorce laws held its second meeting in this city today. The first meeting was held at Washington, nine months ago, at which time an adjournment was taken to permit a committee to draft a bill on uniform divorce laws, to be presented to the legislatures of all the states.

The bill drawn by the committee names six causes for which divorces can be granted indefinitely—felony, bigamy, desertion, habitual drunkenness and intolerable cruelty. The committee recommends that the various legislatures be asked to agree on a period of residence, before application may be made for divorce. It is expected that this, if adopted by all the states, will decrease the number of migratory divorces.

CASTRO IN BAD SHAPE.

Ailments of Venezuela's Dictator Reported Nearing Climax.

Willemstad, Island of Curacao, Nov. 13.—The latest advices received here from Caracas confirm previous reports that President Castro's illness is approaching a climax, and that his physicians believe it is impossible for him to recover.

The Venezuelan rebel leader, Montilla, is again in arms, has twice defeated government troops, and has threatened to pillage the town of Barquisimeto. Serious disturbances, it is still asserted, are feared in case of Castro's death.

PRESIDENT NEARING COLON

Wireless Message From Battleship Reports Roosevelt Trip Fine.

Washington, Nov. 13.—According to a wireless message which reached the White House over night the battleship Louisiana, with the president and party on board, was 600 miles off Colon, last night. The weather was reported to be fine. The message came from the naval station at Guantanamo to Key West, and thence to the Washington wireless station.

BANK WRECKER SENTENCED

Wooster, O., Director Pleads Guilty and Gets Two Years in Prison.

Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 13.—J. R. Zimmerman pleaded guilty to the charge of conspiring to wreck a national bank, in the federal court, here, today, and was sentenced to two years in the penitentiaryy and to pay a fine of $10,000. He was the chairman of the board of directors of the Wooster, Ohio, National bank, which failed about two years ago.

MONEY AID IS REFUSED

Secretary Shaw Declines to Go to Wall Street's Relief.

Sees No Turn in Financial Situation to Cause Action.

New York, Nov. 13.—Secretary Shaw was at the sub-treasury today to consider the money situation, it was understood in Wall street, with a view to determining whether the government aid might be necessary.

Mr. Shaw said that he had discovered no material change in the financial situation since Saturday, when he said he would not take any measures for relief of the money market under conditions then prevailing. Today he still tdhered to that determination. His cheif business in New York, he said, had to do with matters concerned with the customs house. He expected to return to Washington tonight.

WEATHER FORECAST—Rain or snow tonight and Wednesday. Warmer tonight with temperature close to 32 degs. Brisk southerly winds.

CANANEA LEADS THE COPPERS

It is the Feature of a Slightly Stronger Market.

The copper stock market took a little brace today, and Cananea Central was the feature. At the opening, it sold at $24.25, advanced to $25.50 and closed at $25 bid and $25.50 asked. The money rate was easier at the close.

While the highest sales were $27.50, Superior & Pittsburg closed stronger at $27.50 bid and $28 asked. During the day it sold as low as $27.12½. Keweenaw and Hancock Consolidated had good tones. Keweenaw sold at $12 and closed at $11.75 bid and $12 asked, and Hancock was traded in at $12, closing at $12 bid. Warren sold at $12, advanced to $12.50 and closed at $12.50 bid and $13 asked.

North Butte opened at $111, declined to $110 and closed at $110.50 bid and $111 asked. Amalgamated opened at $109.50 and closed at $110.50 bid. Calumet & Arizona opened at $154, declined to $153, rallied to $155 and closed at $154 bid and $155 asked.

Butte Coalition opened at $35.75, advanced to $36 and closed at $36 bid.

Anaconda opened at $266, advanced to $268 and closed at $268 bid.

There were some small trades in Calumet & Sonora at $16.50 and the closing price was $16 bid and $16.50 asked. Copper Queen of Idaho and Calumet & Montana were strong. Copper Queen sold at $2.50, advanced to $2.75, and closed at $2.75 bid and $3 asked, Calumet & Montana sold at $5.50 and closed at $5.50 bid.

Cliff was traded in at $5.25 and $5.37½ and closed at $5.25 bid and $5.37½ asked. Denn-Arizona was inactive and closed at $19 bid and Butte & London at $2.37½ bid and $2.50 asked. Black Mountain sold at $9.50 and closed at $9.50 bid.

WERE NEVER NATURALIZED

Have Lived in Duluth Many Years But Are Aliens.

There are many foreigners who came to this country fifteen or twenty years ago and who never became actual citizens of the United States, who do not realize that they are aliens until they take a journey outside the boundaries of the country.

An instance of this was brought to the attention of William H. Dean, immigration inspector, today when he had to impose the usual head tax of $2 upon two men who came in from Canada, who had been residents of Duluth since 1887 and 1888. Gus Peterson, aged 46 years, and Oscar Jackson, aged 39 years, were the two men in question. The former landed in New York in 1887 and the latter in 1888, but as they had never taken out their citizen papers, they cannot re-enter the country after an absence without being treated as aliens.

Both had filed their intentions to become citizens as far back of 1890, but that is as far as either of them went in the way of becoming naturalized.

HORSE THEFT MADE EASY

Cuban Generals and Rebels Involved in Bold Doings.

Poor Farmers Having Hard Times Reclaiming Levied Steeds.

Washington, Nov 13.—Some of the Cuban generals who have been assisting the Americans in the effort to disarm and send to their homes the insurrectionists in the late revolutionary movement, appear to have legalized the crime of horse stealing in the most ingenious manner, according to reports that have reached the war department.

When the rebel soldiers surrendered their arms, they were told that they might keep their horses until they could reach their homes. Now, these horses had been stolen mostly, and the individual soldier was told that he must return the horse to its owner if the latter could show that the animal was registered, according to the Cuban law. Each of the soldiers was given a certificate, describing the horse, and the conditions.

Two facts made this reclamation impossible in most cases. In the first place, only a small proportion of the horses in Cuba were registered, so that no matter how thoroughly a farmer could identify his own animal in the possession of one of these rebels, he could not obtain possession for lack of the registration certificate. In the second place, the disbanded rebels, before returning to their homes, took care to exchange horses, so that an animal stolen in Santiago would not be returned to that province, but would find a home in Pinar Del Rio.

This state of affairs was made worse, according to the report, by the action of some Cuban generals, in issuing certificates in blank; to the disbanded soldiers, so that it was possible for them to continue indefinitely to steal horses, all that was necessary for them to do being to pick out a likely horse, make sure that it was not registered, fill in the blank certificate with the description of the animal, and defy the owner to reclaim it.

CITY BRIEFS

Dismisses the Case.

By stipulation of both parties to the suit the personal injury action brought by Nikolai Kolbenson against the Duluth & Iron Range Railway company has been dismissed from the district court, a compromise or settlement having been reached in the matter.

Parties File Stipulation.

Dismissals of the personal injury suits of Joseph Ribets and Ambrose Kundar against D. C. Peacock, superintendent for the Shenango Furnace company, were filed in the district court this morning. The actions were brought against both the furnace company and its superintendent and, recently, the court overruled the demurrer of Mr. Peacock to the complaint in the Ribets case.

Charged With Insanity.

Thomas Hayden, a resident of Eveleth, will be examined this afternoon or tomorrow in the probate court, for alleged insanity. The information in the case is filed by Charles Oreckovsky, also of Eveleth.

Farmer Not Insane.

Leander Dutki, a Finlander farmer who resides north of Floodwood, who was brought to Duluth a few days ago and examined for insanity, has been released. The examining physicians decided that his condition was not such as to warrant his commitment to the state hospital. Dutki imagines that everybody owes him money. He is about 50 years old and has been in this country several years.

Woman Arrested.

Charged with assaulting Mrs. Emma Johnson on Twenty-fifth avenue west between First and Second street, Mrs. Annie O'Donnell was arrested and arraigned in the municipal court yesterday afternoon. She entered a plea of not guilty and the case was set for Friday.

Stole Suit Case.

Robert Harrington was arraigned in the municipal court this morning on the charge of petty larceny, and was sentenced to pay a fine of $5 and costs or spend sixty days in jail. He was charged with stealing a suit case and some clothing from a companion.

Guest Instead of Host.

President Emil Tessman, of the common council, is wrathy at the statement that he had lost a bet on the recent election to H. B. Knudsen. Mr. Tessman was a warm supporter of Governor Johnson and was the winner of the bet instead of the loser. He will, therefore, be the guest at the banquet at the Commercial club instead of the host.

Trespass Case on Trial.

The timber trespass cases of Herbert H. Hoyt against the Duluth & Iron Range Railway company and Martin Bros. are still on trial before a jury in Judge Dibell's room. J. A. Keyes represents Mr. Hoyt and H. B. Fryberger represents the defendants.

Moore Not "Lid" Candidate.

The statement of A. R. Merritt, made before the Sunday observance committee, that Alderman Watson S. Moore would consent to become a candidate for mayor on the "lid" ticket, is said to be a mistake. Mr. Merritt corrected himself later and said that he had misunderstood Mr. Moore's attitude, and that Mr. Moore had not made such a statement to him, that his business would not permit him to run.

Will Rebuild Its Mill.

It is understood that the Red Cliff Lumber company is about to rebuild the sawmill which burned at Red Cliff, Wis., on the south shore of Lake Superior, some time ago. The company has a quantity of hemlock timber at that point, estimated at 70,000,000 feet. The plant will cost about $20,000 and will be ready for operation next spring. It will have an annual capacity of 20,000,000 feet.

Are Preparing Report.

George Claypool, Franklin Pulford and F. L. Kennedy, the appraisers appointed in the Wisconsin Central Railway company's condemnation proceedings, are preparing their report, which may be presented to the court about the last of the week. The appraisers will prepare a list of the properties that the company desires for a right-of-way and for a terminal with the amount of damages that they believe the owner should receive in each case. It is expected that the list will be quite a long one, as testimony was taken on the values of a great many improved and unimproved lots on the proposed right-of-way on this side of the bay.

Are Getting Many Recruits.

Three men were secured for enlistment at the marine recruiting office yesterday. They were Grant Cater, William John Olser and Chris Evans. On Sunday six men were sent to Mare Island, Cal., being the result of last week's canvassing. Lieut. William McNeal, whose headquarters are at St. Paul, was in the city Sunday and went on to Hibbing yesterday. At Hibbing about half a dozen recruits had been enlisted the week before. From Hibbing the officer will return to Duluth before going to St. Paul.

WOULD CLOSE BLIND PIGS

Pike Lake Residents Urge Authorities to Make Investigation.

Between the attempt of certain interests to induce the board of county commissioners to permit a licensed saloon at Pike Lake, and the fight that is being made by other interests to keep out the saloons, blind pigs, and houses of questionable repute, that particular town in St. Louis county is attracting more attention than some of the property owners there really desire. Various attempts have been made by parties to secure a liquor license, and petitions and counter petitions have been sent to the county commissioners, but up to the present time no license has been granted, in fact, one application that has been on file some time was turned down at the last meeting of the county board.

The complaints that are reaching the ears of the county authorities seem to indicate the presence of some blind pigs and alleged disreputable places at Pike Lake, in spite of the efforts that have been made already in the matter of fines for persons in that locality detected in the act of violating the law. It is claimed that a blind pig and questionable house is being operated at the present time in proximity to the lake by a woman said to have had a great deal of experience along that line of business. This complaint has reached the authorities and it is understood that steps are being taken to make a thorough investigation of the matter and bring the people connected with the place to the attention of the next grand jury. Duluthians who own property in the vicinity of Pike Lake are determined to clear up the moral atmosphere about that resort, they claim, if it becomes necessary to secure indictments at every grand jury session from now until next summer.

SHOT DEAD IN ITALIAN ROW

New Yorker Who Refused Aid in Dark Deed, Kills Enemy.

New York, Nov. 13.—In the presence of scores of men and women, hurrying through Mott street in the Italian quarter, Enrico Pavone, today shot and killed Nunziato Legato.

Pavone, who was arrested, told the coroner that he shot Legato because the latter had threatened to kill him unless he went to Ellis island and swore that a woman detained there is his wife. He said he knew Legato wanted to get the woman into the country for immoral purposes and for that reason he refused to have any part in the affair. Thereupon Legato prepared to carry out his threat, but Pavone fired first.

A revolver, fully loaded, was found on Legato's body. Pavone submitted to arrest quietly and readily admitted that he fired the fatal shot.

INHERITANCE TAXES BIG.

Wisconsin Expects to be Able to Collect $400,000 This Year.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 13.—It is expected that the State of Wisconsin will collect $400,000 inheritance taxes this year. For four months, from July 1 to Nov. 1, the state has collected $163,986, an amount larger than for any full year previously.

SLAY PEASANT ROBBERS.

Russian Troops Kill Ninety of Band of "Forest Brothers."

Mitau, Courland, Russia, Nov. 13.—A punitive expedition, which has been operating in the Kreutzberg district during the last few weeks killed ninety peasants belonging to a revolutionary organization termed the Forest Brothers, who had levied tribute on the surrounding country. Several robbers have been tried by drum-head court martial and executed in Jakonstadt, seventy-eight miles from here.

UNSAFE TO WRITE AT NIGHT.

From 8 to 10 p. m., the tall girl wrote letters. The next morning immediately after breakfast she announced that her time up to 12 o'clock would be devoted to correspondence, says the New York Sun.

"Surely you are not going to write more letter," said the top floor girl. "You wrote a dozen last night.'

"I know I did," was the reply, "but I am not going to send them. I never mail a letter that I write at night. It isn't safe. I say too many idiotic things. I only write them as a kind of safety valve. There are certain things that I must say to relieve my mind. After I get those thoughts put down on paper, I feel better, but you couldn't hire me to mail the letters.

"I used to, but that was before they got me into so much trouble. We let our emotions run away with us when writing at night. We get entirely too confidential. Under a shaded gas jet we tell things that wild horses couldn't drag from us by the light of day. Next morning we realize what geese we have made of ourselves, but if the letters have been mailed it is too late to do anything, and we just have to sit down and wait for the avalanche.

"I still write letters at night, but only as a relief. This morning I shall write to the same persons I wrote to last night, but the letters will not be even first cousin to those emotional epistles. These will be safe and sane and warranted inocuous."

The top floor girl looked uneasy.

"I wrote a letter myself last night," she said.

"Better read it," the tall girl advised. "You'll be sure not to send it if you do."

The top floor girl opened the envelope and perused her letter slowly.

"I think," she said, "that I will go upstairs and write another."

THE WORM TURNED.

Lippincott's: A village doctor whose most troublesome patient was an elderly woman practically on the free list, received a sound rating from her one day for not coming when summoned the night before.

"You can go to see your other patients at night," said she, "why can't you come when I send for you? Ain't my money as good as other people's?"

"I don't know, madam," was the reply, "I never saw any of it."

A SUDDEN GOLD.

Miss Helen Sauerbier, of 815 Main St., Joseph, Mich., writes an interesting letter on the subject of catching cold, which cannot fail to be of value to all women who catch cold easily.

PERUNA ADVISED FOR SUDDEN COLDS.

It Should be Taken According to Directions on the Bottle, at the First Appearance of the Cold.

St. Joseph, Mich., Sept., 1901.—Last winter I caught a sudden cold which developed into an unpleasant catarrh of the head and throat, depriving me of my appetite and usual good spirits. A friend who had been cured by Peruna advised me to try it and I sent for a bottle at once, and I am glad to say that in three days the phlegm had loosened, and I felt better, my appetite returned and within nine days I was in my usual good health.
—Miss Helen Sauerbier.

Peruna is an old and well tried remedy for colds. No woman should be without it.

ONLY EIGHT APPLICANTS

Civil Service Examination Does Not Prove Big Attraction.

Demonstrates Necessity of Raise for Policemen and Firemen.

The necessity for a raise in the pay of the firemen and policemen in order to keep the departments from deteriorating, was shown by the small number taking the examination prescribed by the civil service board this morning.

Only eight candidates in all appeared, and three of these were seeking promotions in the fire department. There was but one applicant for a position in the police department and only four for positions in the fire department.

The four latter can secure positions at once, if they are successful in passing their examination, and the candidate for a position in the police department will be one of two or three on the eligible list.

"You can't maintain an efficient force with such a small list of applicants," said Chief Troyer last evening, in summing up the situation before the council. "I can remember the time when we used to have 200 or 300 on the waiting list, and then we could pick and choose our men.

"But with such a small number of applicants we have to just about take whoever we can get.

"The low salaries paid the men also plays havoc with discipline. If the superior officers give orders that are not satisfactory to the patrolmen, they simply quit, or at least, there are some of them who show that disposition.

"The trouble is that the job isn't valuable enough to them to bring good results."

DRAWN BY THE CO-EDS

Coach of Victorious Football Players Pulled by Girl Students.

Wonderful Enthusiasm Marks Return of Gophers From Chicago.

Minneapolis, Nov. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The return of the victorious Gopher squad from Chicago, marked Monday, Nov. 12, as the red letter day of the year for the Minnesota followers. The celebration accorded the team was the most elaborate meeting ever tendered in the history of the university. The jollification was so general that lectures were suspended for the day.

At the "first hour" about 1,500 students formed a line and proceeded down University avenue, followed by co-eds rooters, to the depot.

The most striking display of unbounded spirit, was the drawing of the large tallyho, carrying the team, by the co-eds, who gamely tugged the rope, and pulled the rig safely to the gates of the university. There the male section lent a hand and the tallyho was finally placed upon the wide landing in front of the library building. Besides the team in the procession from the center of the city, was the famous Minnesota band, and an increasing mob of admirers. The procession was the most pretentious ever accorded a returning team.

From the tallyho, the players, Dr. Williams, and prominent members of the faculty responded to the cheers with neat speeches.

When Bobbie Marshall, the great end, whose timely place kick won the game, arose to speak he was given an ovation seldom equaled. He said: "Although the game was won by a place kick, it was through the wonderful ability of the Minnesota line to hold and the game fight put up by the Minnesota players."

Dr. William said: "This wonderful display of college spirit will do more to develop future Minnesota teams than anything I know of. It reminds me very much of the woderful reception given to the returning victorious Yale teams."

The others who spoke and aided in the celebration were: Dan Smith, Case, Vita, Ittner, Schuckecht, Synder, Larkin, Weist and Asber of the team.

The wonderful game put up by Safford, the Duluth boy, who played center, was a source of great satisfaction to his many admirers, especially the Duluth students who went wild when he rose to speak.

The football spirit at the university is at fever heat and all of the reserved seat tickets for the Carlisle game are sold, insuring an immense crowd.

New Postal Note Scheme.

A new postal note scheme was recently submitted to Congress which contemplates the adoption of special postal notes running from one cent to nine cents, which will be sold at their face value, but on those for larger sums a small fee will be charged. Its adoption will do away with the present careless method of enclosing silver or stamps in envelopes. The adoption of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as your family medicine will be the means of saving you much unnecessary suffering. A dose or two at the first sign of any stomach, liver or kidney disorder will convince you of its wonderful merit. It always cures and prevents poor appetite, bloating, heartburn, sleeplessness, dypepsia, indigestion, costiveness, chills, colds or female ills. Try it today and you'll be thankful for the hint. All druggsits sell it.

MAKING USE OF PIGEONS

Hunters Take Birds Into Woods to Act as Messengers.

Sportsmen Now Have Way to Communicate With Families.

Homing pigeons have been put to a new use by a party of hunters, who are out after deer, about 100 miles from Duluth on the north shore.

The party is composed of T. T. Hudson, City Attorney Bert Fesler, City Clerk H. W. Cheadle, and several other sportsmen from the southern part of the state.

They took with them a number of homing pigeons belonging to Theodore Frerker, and they have been releasing one each day since their arrival in camp. The pigeon carries a brief message from the hunters to their families, and in this way they can keep in communication with their friends.

The first pigeon arrived in the city yesterday, bringing word that all of the hunters were well and that Mr. Cheadle had secured the first deer on Saturday.

Owing to the fact that they are located many miles from the nearest postoffice, and farther yet from a telegraph office, it would be impossible to communicate with their families in any other way. The pigeons, however, can deliver a message as rapidly as a telegram would be delivered. For a well bred homing pigeon, 100 miles is an easy matter, and the birds can make this trip in two or three hours.

Pigeons are likely to become popular with hunters when their value becomes known. They can be used to give notice of any injury or accident befalling the party; to send word for fresh supplies; and to allay the anxiety of the families of the sportsmen. In fact, it is not unlikely that in a year or two, a few homing pigeons will be looked upon as a part of the outfit of a well regulated camp.

ASKS FOR DAMAGES

Trial of Gust Swanson Against Missabe Road is Begun.

Husband Claims Wife Was Killed Through Company's Negligence.

Was Mrs. Gust Swanson killed through the negligence of the railway company, or was there good reason to believe that her death was due to contributory negligence?

This is the question which again confronts a jury in Judge Cant's room in the damage case started against the Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railway company by Gust Swanson, administrator of his wife's estate. The first trial of the case resulted in a disagreement. Swanson asks $5,000, which is the statutory limit for damages in case of death.

According to the testimony introduced by Mr. Swanson, this morning, his wife was riding from Virginia toward Eveleth, last Christmas night, in a sleigh, with Swan Sanberg and a young lady with whom he was keeping company. Sanberg claims that he was sitting in the laps of the women, driving the horse. He claimed that when they approached the road crossing of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railway company's tracks, none of the party noticed a passenger train approaching from the direction of Virginia, until the rig was directly on the track, and the engine was practically on them. Sanberg claimed that no one of the three persons in the sleigh heard the whistle or bell, nor saw the train, although he admitted that the headlight and all the other lights in the train seemed to be lighted.

Cross-examined by C. O. Baldwin, attorney for the railway company, Mr. Sanberg admitted that he was not paying any attention to the railroad when the rig approached it and did not think to either look up and down the track or listen for any approaching train. He claimed that none of the three persons in the party had their ears covered up, so that they could have heard the train had the engine whistled. Mr. Sanberg claimed that he did not know how far a train could be seen approaching from a point from 100 to 126 feet from the crossing.

This afternoon the railway company is getting in its testimony in the attempt to show contributary negligence.

In stating the defense to the jury this noon, Mr. Baldwin claimed that the company would show by actual photographs taken two days after the accident, that any person approaching the crossing had a clear view of the track toward Virgina for a distance of 4,200 feet or about three-fourths of a mile. He said witnesses would be produced to show that the usual warning signals were given, the same care was exercised by the engineer as when the train usually passed the point of the accident, and that the circumstances all seemed to point to the fact that Sanberg was racing his horse to get across the track ahead of the engine, when the accident occurred.

It is claimed that the first glimpse the engineer had of the rig was when the horse and sleigh with one occupant, Mrs. Swanson, shot in his range of view ahead of the engine as the train reached the crossing. It is claimed that testimony will be introduced to show that Sanberg and the young lady accompanying him jumped from the sleigh a number of feet back from the track.

Photographs were introduced in evidence this morning tending to show that there are no trees or undergrowth for over 100 feet back from the track so that the view of the railroad track is unimpeded. John Jenswold, Jr., appears for Mr. Swanson.

GRAIN RATE WEAK.

Tonnage Offered at 2 1-2 Cents and Shippers Hold Aloof.

The grain rate to Buffalo is soft at 2½ cents. Boats are offered at that figure, and shippers have so little to place that they are not taking them, and are asked by vesselmen to make bids. The belief that existed among vesselmen that the close of the season would see good rates for grain has gone glimmering. At the final moment there may be a few cargoes that will go at good figures, but there does not now seem to be any reason to believe that there will be any scarcity of tonnage. The rate for grain for last shipment and winter storage is about 3 cents. A few weeks ago it was 4 cents.

NEW SAULT LOCK SOUGHT.

Col. Davis to Ask Congress to Appropriate $4,000,000 at Once.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 13.—Congress at its December session will be asked for $4,000,000 for the construction of a new lock at Sault Ste. Marie. The report of Col. Davis, United States district engineer, which will be forwarded at the end of this month, will recommend this expenditure and, as the support of the chairman of the river anud harbors committee is assured, it is believed by officials of the Lake Carriers' association that the matter will go through.

It is proposed to have the new lock 1,350 long, eighty feet wide, with a depth of twenty-five feet over the Sills. It will be located north of the Poe lock.

If the whole appropriation is made at one time, work will begin next year and be finished about the middle of 1909.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SESSION.

Duluth Association to Hold Meeting at First Christian Church.

The Duluth Sunday School association will hold its regular meeting this evening at the First Christian church, Fifth avenue west and Fourth street. Rev. C. R. Neel, state evangelist for the Christian denomination, will be the principal speaker of the evening. His topic will be "How to Read the Bible and Understand It." An elaborate program will be given, and it is expected that nearly every church in the city will be represented.

Rev. Mr. Neel will also speak at the First Christian church Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings. He has been conducting evangelistic services there every evening for more than a week. His topic tomorrow night will be "How a Good Man Became a Christian," on Thursday evening he will talk on "How a Bad Man Became a Christian," and Friday evening he will explain "How an Ignorant Man Became a Christian."

GOT HIMSELF IN TROUBLE.

Saloonkeeper's Testimony Before Appraisers Results in His Arrest.

The testimony given by Delfils Gauthier before the appraisers in the Wisconsin Central condemnation proceedings, that he kept his saloon open twenty-four hours a day, resulted in his arrest for violating the liquor laws, and this morning he was arraigned in the municipal court on the charge of keeping his saloon open on Sunday.

He entered a plea of guilty, and was fined $30 and costs by Judge Cutting.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Woman's influence is one of the most exquisite things in the world—to talk and write about and Ruskin can write beautiful things about flowers of goodness and loveliness springing from the path down which she has trod that leaves one with a mystical and far away look in one's workaday eyes—but when it comes down to a question of any real influence, everybody can think of dozens of examples of its non-existence in a substantial sense. It is hard to make such a statement on the women's page, to thus, mayhap, tear down illusions, and scatter seeds of pessimism, for there is nothing nicer than to think that woman holds up the ideals of the nation and all that sort of thing and nothing further from the truth. Woman exerts just half the influence in the world and the other half is supplied by men. That statement is logical and reasonable, although not ideal and sentimental, and every fair minded person can dig down into his or her own memory and prov eit so.

Another of the recent public proofs to be of interest to the nation. That is the recent election of Governor in New York. Hearst was not elected. Woman did not triumph, for there is not a woman in Christendom who would not vote against and exert her influence also against a man who wore whiskers such as adorn the face of the governor elect. It is a loss of prestige all along the line for woman. To begin with, Mrs. Hughes has thus far been unable to induce him to part with them. If they were very much Van Dyke there might be a possible question of taste involved, but no man on earth, at a conservative estimate, could approve of his kind, growing out bushy and at all angles from ear to ear, such as Mr. Hughes disports, malignantly, without shame or thought of removal. That the women of New York undoubtedly worked for his defeat and failed is a thing that every right minded woman knows and the success which in some unaccountable political way is deemed a failure in that state, was achieved in spite of the women.

Think of any man voting for whiskers such as Mr. Hughes wears from choice, when there might have been a smooth faced governor. As one of the very beautiful and exceedingly brilliant of the recent heroines remarked, "A bald head is a visitation of providence but a beard is a man's own fault."

BROWNING CLASS.

Evening Department Holds First Meeting of Year.

The first of the Evening Browning lectures of the Twentieth Century club, was presented last evening at the club room of the library by Rev. John W. Powell, Jr. A large number were present and many of the members of last year's class were present. Four evenings will be devoted to the studying of the poet, and the next lecture will be given the second Thursday evening of December.

"Pippa Passes" was the subject of last evening's talk. The lessons to be learned from the exquisite poem were first emphasized, the spiritual lesson to be learned from the sweetness of Pippa's character and the influence which she unconsciously exerts upon the lives which she is impersonating upon her one holiday of the year. The power for righteousness that good in the world must become, becoming a center and reaching out and touching the life about it, was dwelt upon and the unconscious influence that is possible in the world.

Mr. Powell read portions of the poem, outlying briefly the situations and characters, the purpose of the lectures being but to supply an outline for further reading of the poet.

CHARITY BALL.

Invitations Issued for Annual Function.

Invitations were issued today for the annual charity ball which will be given as usual under the auspices of the board of directors of the Children's Home society. Duluth society is this autumn enjoying an especially brilliant round of entertainments and it is planned to make the charity ball one of the most beautiful functions of the sort that Duluth has enjoyed for a number of years. The affair will be given at the Spalding Tuesday evening, Nov. 27, and Flaaten's orchestra will play.

A large number of invitations have been issued, but with a list of such number the accident of omission may easily happen or some friend of the institution be overlooked. Any friends of the institution interested in the affair who have not received an invitation are requested to send their names to the chairman of finance, Mrs. T. J. Davis, or the president of the board Mrs. C. E. Lum.

MATINEE MUSICALE.

Members Listen to Program of Romantic School.

Selections from composers of the romantic school of music, Mendelssohn, Schubert and Loewe, being chosen, were presented yesterday afternoon at the regular meeting of the Matinee Musicale at Steinway hall. The program was arranged by Miss Bernice Crowley and Miss Winnifred Holmes. Owing to severe colds, Miss Bradshaw and Otto Metzger were both unable to appear. The opening number was the A Major (Italian) Symphony of Mendelssohn played at two pianos by Mrs. J. A. Stephenson, Miss Crowley, Miss Holmes and Miss Mary Paine. The other piano number was a Schubert-Scharwenka selection "Impromptu, G Minor," well played by Miss Ruth Rogers. She was warmly received, and responded with an encore a Mendelssohn Scherzo. A duet, "I Would That My Love," by Mendelssohn, was a delightful number sung by Mrs. Mark Baldwin, and Mrs. James T. Walsh, and Miss Frances Woodbridge appeared in a Schubert number.

GAY GYM FROLIC

Enjoyed at Rooms of Duluth Gymnasium Club.

To never have been a woman, to know the ecstatic sense of freedom which comes with the tossing aside of cumbersome skirts and the issuing forth in bloomers to prance away to your heart's delight, is not to have known what freedom is. The person who has never been bound, can never appreciate freedom, and gymnasium frolic is one of the delightful oases in the desert of lady-like living with ankle length skirts and feet that stay decorously near the floor.

Last evening the Duluth Gymnasium club entertained at its first frolic, and a large number of the members were present to enjoy the untrammeled delight of an evening of foolish delight. Skirts were discraded. Bloomers reigned. Skipping ropes were in evidence and beautifully colored balls of unimagined lightness and little wooly sheep and plenty of dolls. When the placidness of such play had worn away somewhat, two steps, with nobody waiting for partners, and waltzes with everybody dancing, were enjoyed. The affair which was planned by the physical director, Miss Ruth Roberts, was a delightful success.

In Society.

Mrs. L. W. Leithhead and Miss Sellwood were hostesses this afternoon at bridge, at the home of the former, on South Eighteenth avenue east.

• • •

Mrs. Jack McLaren will entertain at bridge tomorrow afternoon at her home.

• • •

Mrs. C. H. Bagley will entertain at bridge Thursday and Friday afternoon of this week at her home, 1929 East Superior street.

Mrs. John H. Dight entertained at a children's party this afternoon, in honor of her daughter, Marion.

Quiet Wedding.

The wedding of Miss Clara Edna Calhoun, daughter of Mrs. Lawrence Calhoun of 432 East Second street, to Charles W. Oppel took place quietly yesterday morning at St. Anthony de Padua church on East Second street. The wedding service was read by Rev. Father Limmer and only a few friends were present for the service. Mr. and Mrs. Oppel will be at home in Duluth.

Surprise Party.

A pleasant surprise party was given last evening in honor of J. J. LeTourneau at his home at Lakeside, the affair being planned by the officers and members of the Sunday school of the Lester Park Methodist church, and was in honor of Mr. LeTourneau's birthday anniversary. The guest of honor has been superintendent of the Lester Park Sunday school for three years, and in a short talk, the pasjor, Rev. Geer, congratulated Mr. LeTourneau on the prosperous condition of the school. The oldest member of the church, Mrs. T. J. Watt, presented the host with a boquet of flowers from the officers and teachers. Those present were:

Messrs. and Mesdames—
Geer, W. J. Stevenson,
T. J. Watt, W. S. Albertson,
McFadden, Hall,
G. E. Watt, Richards.
Mesdames—
J. McDowell, Rhudd.
Misses—
Thompson, Clara Watts,
Ina Schaver, Lillian Potter,
Helen Schaver, Louise Richards.
Messrs.—
Lovett, Ross.

Concert Tonight.

Miss James McAuliffe and Miss Rogers will give a concert this evening at the Steinway hall, combining in the program vocal and instrumental music.

Church Meetings.

An all day meeting of the first division of the Ladies' Aid society of the First Baptist church will be held tomorrow at the church, and upon Friday the second division will meet for an all day session at the same place. A large attendance is desired at both meetings, as preparations for the Christmas sale will occupy the attention of both divisions.

The Ladies' Aid society of Merritt Memorial church will meet tomorrow afternoon, at 2 o'clock, with Mrs. Kerr of 4013 West Fourth street.

School Children Face Dangers

Work, Worry and Close Confinement—How They Can be Safeguarded.

To thousands of boys and girls the confinement in the school room imposed by their studies is a very serious strain. Many become broken in health and are physically weakened for life.

If you give your boys and girls pure, healthful, strengthening food you go far toward removing all dangers. We recommend above all others Malta-Vita as especially beneficial to school children. It is a crisp, delicious, wholewheat food containing every element necessary to the upbuilding of the body and brain.

"Malta-Vita" in its literal translation from the Latin means "Malt Life." The original phrase "For the blood is the life" is the winning point of Malta-Vita. On account of its large percentage of maltose, or malt sugar, a natural sweetening agent, it is easily digestible, readily assimilated and the best food to form rich, healthy blood.

Malta-Vita is not at all like the tasteless variety of flaked breakfast foods—the whole family welcomes its appearance on the table. Always ready to eat. On a cold morning try it with hot milk or cream. All grocers, 10 cents.

The EVENING STORY.

THE LITTLE MANDARIN

By Amity Point.

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles).

Jermayne was not by any means a bad sort of fellow. He had never been intended for business; he had been too highly educated, and at his father's death he found himself in the position of a well-educated polished and wealthy individual with nothing in which he could exercise the inherited family shrewdness.

One particular day, Jermayne came to the stupendous conclusion that he was in love. This conclusion was arrived at with all the deliberate care which his cautious instincts necessitated; it was final with him, and if unrequited would involve a solitary existence for the rest of his days. The favored lady was not beautiful in form or feature, neither was she talented or particularly clever, and she was decidedly poor in the world's goods; but she was a general favorite, being gifted with a sweetness of manner and an amiability altogether charming; particularly so to Jermayne.

It was, he analyzed, so obviously to her advantage to marry him, yet he did not desire her to marry him for such comforts as he, with his wealth, could give her; what he wanted was proof that she was absolutely disinterested; that it would be for love, and love only, that she would accept him.

Late one winter afternoon Jermayne was dressing preparatory to going out for the evening. In the course of that evening he fully intended to place his future at her disposal. He had secured tickets for a certain annual charity festival, and in the course of an hour or two he would meet her there.

Jermayne was a man whose tastes were unusual; he was fond of the quaint and bizarre in art, and his rooms abounded in ornaments of curious origin and strange workmanship. Among these was a small figure of Chinese make, the figure of a mandarin with a nodding head; a fantastic image with a solemn face and high bald head that moved when touched and kept moving for some minutes afterwards.

Exactly what the figure had to do with after events, Jermayne never knew; it was a strange circumstance, however, that as he held it in his hand he expressed the wish which was so simply granted.

"If," he said, "I could read past lives and present thoughts but for one day I should know whom I could trust and whom to avoid."

He placed the little image back on the shelf, and the figure commenced nodding at him. He had placed the mandarin in front of the lady's photograph, and her face seemed to smile at him; one of those bewitching smiles which had sealed Jermayne's affections. Then a haze seemed to spread throughout the room.

"My nerves must be out of order," he said to himself, as he proceeded with his toilet. He paused before the mirror to put a finishing adjustment to his tie, when suddenly with a gasp, he sank into a chair, and it came to him that his wish had been granted. Just as in a dream incidents flash past one, which in waking hours would take days to accomplish, so he, in that brief moment had seen the mean actions of his past life; the childish deceits of his youth, followed by a panorama of petty meannesses. He became at once disenchanted with himself as he sat in his chair, all his little conceits gone from him.

With an effort he recovered himself and finished dressing, keeping away from the accusing mirror.

He pulled himself together, took a sip of brandy, and went out into the street.

At the second lamp he passed a man, a personal friend, and a good fellow, well known for his charitable and benevolent nature. Jermayne avoided him ever afterwards. He moved on rapidly with a sickening sense of what was to come.

He came next to a house where a ball was being held. A lady was leaving her carriage. As he paused for her to pass him, she raised her eyes to his, and he knew her to be a lady of note, but, alas! he recoiled again at what was revealed to him.

Jermayne paused, turned around, and hurried home, looking neither to right nor to left of him, avoiding the gaze of all passers. He hastened to his rooms and flung himself on a couch. He dared not face his sweetheart that night. The housekeeper heard him, looked in and then went out and called a doctor. The doctor was a young man with a future before him; he was a friend of Jermayne's, and came around at once.

"Hello, Jermayne, what's the matter? Let's have a look at you."

He felt his patient's pulse and passed his hand over his forehead. Jermayne keeping his eyes closed all the time.

"You seem to have had a shock of some kind. What is it? Come, you may as well tell me."

Jermayne, in disjointed sentences, told his story.

"Nonsense, my dear fellow, you've been overdoing it; that's what is wrong. What have you been reading lately? You had better go to bed, and I'll send in something for you."

The doctor glanced at the metal figure. It nodded incessantly.

"Queer little beast, that mandarin of yours, Jermayne, but if it's going to affect you like this you had better bury the thing. Good-bye, old man, and—can I take a message to Miss Blaine for you? I'm going on to the dance after I have ordered your little dose. Shall I tell her you'll be round to see her tomorrow evening after the twenty-four hours are over? Ha! Ha! Can't trust yourself to see her just at present? Stuff and nonsense, old man, but good-bye; I'll pop in on my way back."

To himself he said as he went down the stairs:

"I don't half like this. A sensible, steady fellow, too."

Dr. Winston sent a dose and went on his way to the dance. Almost the first person he met after entering the room was Miss Blaine. He stopped her in his off-hand way.

"Miss Blaine, you may as well give me all of Jermayne's dances tonight. I've just seen him, professionally. He asked me to let you know."

In answer to the girl's perceptible loss of color and evident anxiety he added:

"Don't worry, he'll be all right tomorrow and he said he would see you in the evening. Some mental shock; nothing of importance, really. Thanks"—and he handed her back her card.

Amy Blaine was scarcely herself that evening; to smile was an effort, and once, they had concluded a dance, the ddoctor remarked to her:

"Miss Blaine, I'm inclined to think Jermayne a very lucky man. I wish some one would take the trouble to worry over me."

"I don't quite understand you, doctor?"

"Well, you look a bit fagged, and had better leave early. I am going early too, and can drive you and your aunt to your home."

When passing Jermayne's the doctor ordered his man to stop.

"Excuse me a minute," he said, "and I'll run up and see how the old chap is."

"May I come too, doctor—just to the door?"

"Come if you wish," he said.

The doctor found Jermayne awake, and his first question was:

"Did you tell her?"

"Yes; in fact, I'm driving her home."

At this moment the housekeeper addressed the doctor, and it happened that for a few minutes Amy was left forgotten outside the open door.

Jermayne moved restlessly, and she heard her own name. How weak his voice was! Mental shock. What did that mean? Oh, if he were to be very ill—to die! The girl's mind was a chaos of love and fear. She did not stop to consider what she was doing. In a moment she was kneeling beside the couch.

"Oh, Tom, are you very, very ill? What has happened to you?" and she took his hand in hers, but he kept his face resolutely turned from her; he dared not look at her. The one thing which he had desired—the power to see her as she truly was—it was his, yet he dared not use it!

She placed her hands on his face, and gently, ever so gently, drew it round toward her, and he was compelled to look at her. He saw what truly transformed him—that for her there was but one man in the world and that one himself.

The little mandarin continues to nod, but under a glass case. He is promoted, and Jermayne always treats him with particular respect.

What Retail Markets Offer

Quinces, 60 cents a peck.
Maple syrup, $1.50 a gal.
Buckwheat, 40 cents a sack.
Venison to look at.
Calves' liver, 20 cents a lb.

The poor appealing, cut-off-in-their-prime, deer are lying stretched out to an uncomfortable length in some of the windows of the down town markets and when you ask about the price, the facetious market man, with a rotund smile on his Katzenjammer face and figure, says: "Two dollars a pound." There now, will that hold you until after lunch time? Two dollars a pound! Humph! But really and truly you can't buy venison, the butcher just gives it away. For it is against the law and nobody likes it anyway. There is not a greater piece of humbuggery among the American people than their fondness for venison. Everybody says they like it; "and that wild taste is so delicious," and yet if Smith gives Brown a roast, Brown's wife rebels, and it is handed over to Jones, who gives it to Black, who gives it to his next door neighbor, who telephones back to Smith to know if he doesn't want a nice roast of venison, and then the poor man who shot the deer buries his head in his woeful hands and bemoans the fate that made him slaughter one of nature's gamboling wood creatures, that no one will eat. Serves him right.

HAPPENINGS IN THE DAKOTAS

Judge Engerud to Resign Soon From the Supreme Court.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Grand Forks—Edward Engerud, associate justice of the supreme court of North Dakota, will tender his resignation early in January, in order to enter into the practice of law at Fargo, succeeding the late Seth Newman in the firm of Newman, Holt & Frame.

Judge Engerud has gained considerable notoriety in the campaign that has just closed in North Dakota, and the announcement that he is to resign from the bench will be a surprise to those who have been in close touch with the political conditions since the Jamestown convention of Republicans, at which John Knauf was nominated for the supreme bench.

On the eve of that convention, when it had been practically settled that John Knauf was to receive the nomination, Judge Engerud made the announcement that in the event of the election of Judge Knauf he would resign from the bench. Two weeks later Knauf was appointed to the bench by Governor Sarles to succeed Judge N. C. Young, who resigned to enter practice at Fargo. Judge Engerud kept his word, and when the first term of the supreme bench was convened at Grand Forks, Judge Engerud failed to appear, and made a statement in which he gave his reasons for not doing so. These reasons did not reflect creditably on Judge Knauf as a jurist, and this, occurring just at the opening of the campaign, was given the widest publicity. Judge Engerud was attacked on one side for trying to influence the voters against Judge Knauf, and on the other side he was commended for an action that could be construed into no other form than that of favoring a non-partisan bench.

The election resulted in Judge Knauf's defeat by a large majority, and naturally it was expected that Judge Engerud, who had made the fight for Judge Fisk, would be the first to welcome him to the bench, which he no doubt will. Right on top of all the fight, however, comes the announcement from a source that is absolutely reliable that Judge Engerud has decided to retire from the bench.

The retirement of Judge Engerud will give Governor-elect Burke the appointment of a successor, and while there are many candidates, it is expected that the appointment of the new governor will be approved.

Friends of Judge Fisk are of the opinion that he will not qualify until after the first of the year, in order to give Governor-elect Burke a chance to appoint his successor in this district. There is little question but B. G. Skulason will receive the endorsement of the district bar association, and in that event Mr. Burke will see his way very clear to appoint him. Mr. Skulason was chairman on the committee having in charge Judge Fisk's campaign. He is a Republican, a young man, and his appointment would but carry out the campaign cry of a non-partisan judiciary, which helped immensely in the election of Judge Fisk.

Yesterday it was announced that Judge Knauf would resign within the next few days and that Governor Sarles would appoint Judge Fisk to succeed him. While this might clarify matters, in one way it would complicate them in others. During the campaign it has been claimed that J. H. Bossard had been promised the appointment by the Republican machine managers in the event of the election of Judge Fisk to the supreme court. It is known that Governor Sarles has selected George A. Bangs, a former law partner of Judge Fisk, for the position, and should he be untrammeled in his seceition the place will go to Mr. Bangs. While this would be a popular appointment in some sections of the district, it would be opposed in others, and it is doubtful if Judge Fisk will qualify unless there is some certainty expressed before that time as to who his successor will be.

Claude Johnson, the desperado who escaped after his attempt to slay three men at the Anderson farm Wednesday afternoon, was still in that vicinity Sunday. He has some money coming from Peterson, the man he had been working for, and it is believed that he may return to secure it before leaving the country. As he is armed there is some apprehension as to what he may do in case a satisfactory settlement is not brought about.

Finley—The County Farmers' Mercantile company's safe was blown Saturday night. Insurance policies, $4,000 in notes, $75 in cash were taken. There is no clue. The men stole a team and buggy from Alf Windness & Co. to escape.

Bismarck—That there is to be an Indian school established at Bismarck is now assured. The government will advertise this week for bids for the construction of five brick buildings and a water and sewer system for the school. The buildings will consist of a dormitory and employes' quarters, steam heated and electric lighted, a laundry, barn and warehouse. It is expected the school will be ready to open next fall.

Valley City—In an address delivered here Saturday evening, Prof. Ladd of Fargo, who has made a national reputation fighting food, paint and drug adulterators as state chemist, declared that, unless the enforcement of the law was properly supported by the legislature, he would resign this year. For six years the work has gone forward on an appropriation of $1,400 a year, when the actual outlay outside of any salary for Prof. Ladd has been nearly $8,000 a year. Prof. Ladd said that unless the legislature appropriated at least $8,000 a year he would resign and the agricultural college would drop the matter.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Pierre—Articles of incorporation were filed yesterday for another north and south railroad to be known as the Yankton & Southern, to start from Yankton and extend to Galveston. Nominal headquarters are at Yankton, with a business office at Cincinnati, Ohio. The company is capitalized at $100,000 and the stockholders are: Robert G. Gamble, W. J. Fantle, Isaac Pilos, Yankton; Fremont Hill, Jesse Lowman, Thomas R. Paxton, Alfred Hill, John H. Farrington, William Copes Proctor, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Sioux Falls—The first lodge of the Order of Sons of Norway to be organized in South Dakota has just been organized in Sioux Falls with a charter membership of nearly one hundred. The work of organizing similar lodges throughout South Dakota now will be taken up, and within the next few months it is expected that scores of similar lodges will be in existence in the state. The following were selected officers of the lodge organized at Sioux Falls: President, Alfred Mortonson; vice president, Lewis Larson; judge, P. J. Morstad; physicians, K. Zeltlitz and E. Khaveness; recorder, Otto Leopold; financial secretary, P. Eruhard; treasurer, Tore Telgen; regent, H. U. Rogness; marshal, John Ellingson; guard, B. Carlson; sentinel, M. Arntson; trustees, G. C. Christopherson and O. S. Swenson. The lodge was named "Gjoa," in honor of the ship sailed by Capt. Roald Amundson, the great Norwegian explorer, when he discovered the Northwest passage.

COULD NOT REST NIGHT OR DAY

With Irritating Skin Humor—Whole Body Affected—Scalp Itched All the Time and Hair Began to Fall Out—Wonderful Result From

APPLICATION OF CUTICURA REMEDIES

"I am never without Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment since I tried them last summer. About the latter part of July my whole body began to itch. I did not take much notice of it at first, but it began to get worse all the time, and then I began to get uneasy and tried all kinds of baths and other remedies that were recommended for skin humors; but I became worse all the time. My hair began to fall out and my scalp itched all the time. Especially at night, just as soon as I would get in bed and get warm, my whole body would begin to itch and my finger nails would keep it irritated, and it was not long before I could not rest night or day. A friend asked me to try the Cuticura Remedies, and I did, and the first application helped me wonderfully. For about four weeks I would take a hot bath every night and then apply the Cuticura Ointment to my whole body; and I kept getting better, and by the time I used four boxes of Cuticura I was entirely cured, and my hair stopped falling out, but I continue to use the Cuticura on my scalp. It keeps all dandruff out and scalp is always clean. I always use Cuticura Ointment on my face after shaving, and have found nothing to equal it. I will never be without it." D. E. Blankenship, 319 N. Del. St., Oct. 27, 1905. Indianapolis, Ind.

RECOMMENDED TO ALL MOTHERS

"I have used Cuticura Ointment for chafing of infants, and as they grew older all skin diseases were given treatment with that and the Cuticura Soap. I never found it necessary to call a doctor, as these Remedies are a sure cure, if used as directed. I am glad to recommend them to all mothers." Sincerely yours, Mrs. F. A. Kennard, June 21, 1905. St. Paul Park, Minn.

THE WINNING STROKE

If more than ordinary skill in playing brings the honors of the game to the winning player, so exceptional merit in a remedy ensures the commendation of the well informed, and as a reasonable amount of outdoor life and recreation is conducive to the health and strength, so does a perfect laxative tend to one's improvement in cases of constipation, biliousness, headaches, etc. It is all important, however, in selecting a laxative, to choose one of known quality and excellence, like the ever pleasant Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., a laxative which sweetens and cleanses the system effectually, when a laxative is needed, without any unpleasant after effects, as it acts naturally and gently on the internal organs, simply assisting nature when nature needs assistance, without griping, irritating or debilitating the internal organs in any way, as it contains nothing of an objectionable or injurious nature. As the plants which are combined with the figs in the manufacture of Syrup of Figs are known to physicians to act most beneficially upon the system, the remedy has met with their general approval as a family laxative, a fact well worth considering in making purchases.

It is because of the fact that SYRUP OF FIGS is a remedy of known quality and excellence, and approved by physicians that has led to its use by so many millions of well informed people, who would not use any remedy of uncertain quality or inferior reputation. Every family should have a bottle of the genuine on hand at all times, to use when a laxative remedy is required. Please to remember that the genuine Syrup of Figs is for sale in bottles of one size only, by all reputable druggists, and that full name of the company—California Fig Syrup Co., is plainly printed on the front of every package. Regular price, 50c per bottle.

REBATE CASES OVER FOR DAY

New York Central and Sugar Trust Face New Trials.

New York, Nov. 13.—The trial of the New York Central & Hudson River railroad and the American Sugar Refining companies, charged with granting and receiving rebates on sugar shipments, which was to have been begun in the United States circuit court here today, was adjourned until tomorrow.

The corporations will be tried on two of the thirteen indictments still pending against them. The New York Central has already faced one of the federal courts and a jury on indictments alleging the granting of rebates on sugar shipments to Detroit, which resulted in a conviction, and the imposition of fines exceeding $100,000. This case has been appealed.

SHAW RAPS AT WALL STREET

New York, Nov. 13.—Secretary Shaw, in explaining his visit here today, said: "You may say that there is a 'duffer' at Washington, who is trying to keep posted on conditions and who is in sympathy with the United States."

"How about Wall street?" was asked.

"Wall street is not the United States of America by any means," replied the secretary with a broad smile.

FEED THE BLOOD.

Pale, weak and emaciated people invariably suffer from some derangement of the digestive organs. The blood supply of the body depends on the ability of the stomach to assimilate nourishment from the food.

Beecham's Pills are a great stomach medicine, and by strengthening the digestion, should increase the supply of life-giving blood. They cleanse the system of impurities, purify the blood, and carry health and strength to all the organs. Beecham's Pills are a blood purifier and producer, and a true tonic for the weak and anemic.

WEST DULUTH

COMING OF NEW WORKER

Miss Kerr Comes From Massachusetts to Be Parish Visitor.

Has Jurisdiction Over Holy Apostle's and St. Luke's Churches.

Tomorrow there will arrive in Duluth and West Duluth one of the most capable of women church workers who has ever been brought to this part of the country. She has been secured by the Episcopal churches in West Duluth and the West end to take the position of parish visitor for this district, and it is expected that her acquisition will tend to create considerable enthusiasm among the members of these churches.

The new parish visitor is Miss Kerr, who comes to Duluth from New Bedford, Mass., and her jurisdiction will take in both the Holy Apostles' Episcopal church of West Duluth and St. Luke's church at the West end. For a few days after her arrival, Miss Kerr will be a guest at the home of Rev. R. J. Mooney in the West end, the rector of Holy Apostles' and St. Luke's parish.

The duties of the parish visitor are to attend to the guild work, especially among the young ladies, and the Sunday school work, besides assisting in keeping the records of the churches.

The ladies of the Holy Apostles' church will meet tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. A. Kirkwood, Fifty-fourth avenue east and McCullough street. Although Mrs. Kirkwood has removed from West Duluth to another part of the city, she still retains an interest in the West Duluth church. In order that the ladies may go to the home of Mrs. Kirkwood together, Mrs. Haines, the president of the guild, requests them to take the Lakeside car at Fifty-fifth avenue west at about 1 o'clock tomorrow.

IS GIVEN RING.

A. W. Stewart Gets Present From Brother Maccabees of West Duluth.

At the meeting of the West Duluth tent No. 2 of the K. O. T. M. at Great Eastern hall last evening, the resignation of A. W. Stewart, as bookkeeper and finance manager of the lodge, was received and accepted. Mr. Stewart will soon leave for Seattle, where he expects to locate permanently.

The members of the lodge presented Mr. Stewart with a fine seal ring, as a memorial. G. J. Mallory made the presentation, expressing the regret of the members at Mr. Stewart's departure, and wishing him success in the West. Mr. Stewart responded with a few words and thanked the lodge and members for the token of good will which he had received.

After the business of the meeting had been concluded, the members partook of an oyster supper.

OLD RESIDENT DIES.

Mrs. Sarah Coombs Has Lived at Head of the Lakes for 35 Years.

After reaching the ripe old age of 83 years, Mrs. Sarah Coombs, one of the early settlers at the Head of the Lakes, died last evening at the residence, 416 North Sixtieth avenue west.

She had been a resident of Duluth and vicinity for the last thirty-five years, having lived at different periods at Thompson and Carlton before coming to Duluth. She leaves six children, all residents of Duluth. They are Mrs. Mary King, Mrs. Anna Lemott, Robert S. Coombs, Edward J. Coombs, Mrs. Ida Hatch, and Mrs. Delia Ensilin.

The funeral will be held from Asbury M. E. church, and the remains will be interred at Oneota cemetery.

Martha Washington Affair.

The Martha Washington skating carnival to be given at the Lincoln rink tomorrow evening by the young ladies of the Holy Apostle church, promises to be a very interesting affair. Considerable rivalry exists among the young ladies to see which one can appear attired in the finest costume of the Martha Washington or Colonial fashion. A prize of $3 will be given to this young lady. A prize of $2 will be awarded to the young gentlemen attired in the most original American costume.

Dr. Rial to Preach.

The first of the special mission meetings to be held at the Holy Apostle's Episcopal church next week, will be addressed Sunday evening by Rev. Dr. Rial of St. Paul's church, who has selected for his topic, "Drifting." The rector, Rev. R. J. Mooney, extends a cordial invitation to all West Duluthians and others to attend. The service will begin at 7:30 p. m.

NEW USE FOR RED COATS

Deer Rubber at Them as If Strangely Fascinated.

Buck's Admiration for D. M. Brier's Garment Brings Death.

Heretofore the sole purpose of sportsmen in wearing red coats in the woods has been to protect their own lives from the bullets of excited hunters who have a propensity for mistaking human beings for deer. It has remained for D. M. Brier, traveling freight agent of the Great Northern, with home and headquarters in Duluth, to make the remarkable discovery that it is the man with the gaily colored mackinaw who shoots the most game.

The red acts on the deer's curiosity in the same manner that a piece of colored bunting on a stick attracts and holds the attention of antelope on the western plains, according to Mr. Brier, who returned last night from a trip up the Duluth & Iron Range, bringing with him a large buck whose admiration for a fluming red coat worn by the railroad man resulted in his untimely death.

"Mrs. Brier used to insist that I wear a coat of this description," he said this morning, "being afraid that I would be mistaken for a deer and shot if I donned ordinary attire before going into the woods. To satisfy her it originally was my custom to start from home with such a garment adorning my person, but as soon as I got in the woods I generally hid it under a pile of brush, and braved the dangers of the forest in ordinary clothes. But the hunters are so numerous this fall that I thought it the better part of valor to put the garment into active service while after deer, and since arriving at that conclusion I have been glad that I did so, for I probably would not have been successful in my hunt had it not been for the coat. In future I shall wear it when after deer.

"It happened this way: A friend and myself started out from camp Sunday morning, and both of us had our scarlet plumage much in evidence. In the course of a few hours' hunting we jumped a buck and doe. We shot two or three times as we caught glimpses of the animals going through the brush, but after this fusilade the doe, on reaching a little opening and catching sight of the red coats, stopped a moment to look at them, probably to decide whether that particular shade of red would be becoming to her complexion. The pause was fatal, for a well-aimed bullet from my friend's trusty rifle brought her to the ground.

"Then it was up to me to get the buck. We dressed the animal shot, and started in the direction taken by his majesty. We got pretty close to him, and pretty soon he started off at a ninety-mile gait. I got in a few shots, and then the buck's eye caught a glint of red and he stopped and rubbered at me. I wasn't in a very good position and scored another miss, but came so close that his buckship took himself to safer quarters without entirely quenching his thirst for knowledge concerning the latest fashions in wearing apparel in the metropolitan centers of the great Northwest, as was evidenced by his actions later on.

"I surmised that he would take a certain direction from the place where we started him the second time, and therefore took it upon myself to get ahead of him, leaving my lucky friend to follow the trail. By taking a short cut I thought I reached a spot where he was likely to pass and took up my position on a stump, where I had a commanding view of the surrounding country.

"I stood in this position for several minutes, keeping a sharp lookout on all sides. Finally I saw the identical buck we had been shooting at. He was standing a little more than 200 yards distant, staring straight at me. How long he had been there I do not know, but he was perfectly still when my eye fell on him, and did not seem inclined to move. Probably he was wondering if a mackinaw of that description would meet with his lady's fancy as a Christmas gift.

"His admiration and speculation occupied too long a period of time for his own good, however, for I was determined to make a sure shot of it this time, and, while he was trying to decide whether to charge upon me and take the coat from me by force, or get possession of one similar to it in a more legitimate manner, I shot him. The bullet found a vital spot and the buck was mine. Me for the red coat hereafter."

REICHSTAG IN SESSION AGAIN

Von Buelow Fails to Make His Expected Speech.

Berlin, Nov. 13.—The Reichstag reassembled today with crowded galleries in expectation of a speech from Chancellor Von Buelow, who it had been widely rumored would take the first opportunity to discuss foreign affairs. He did not do so, however, but probably he will address the house tomorrow, as Herr Basserman, national Liberal, intends to interpolate the government on its foreign policy.

Von Buelow and his associated ministers will have to meet several serious questions, among them the extraordinary rise in the price of meat, the colonial administration and the unrest in Poland on account of the school strike, which, although a Prussian internal problem, is likely to be the subject of a debate in the Reichstag, as sixteen seats are filled with aggressive Polish nationalists.

ENFORCE EIGHT-HOUR LAW.

Federal Attorneys Given Fresh Instructions by Their Chief.

Washington, Nov. 13.—Attorney General Moody today issued a circular letter of instructions to United States attorneys regarding prosecutions for violations of the eight-hour law, in which he says the government is determined upon a strict enforcement of this statute as relating to public works of the United States. In the last ten weeks as many as 300 alleged violations have been reported.

BANKERS WORK SECRETLY.

Washington, Nov. 13.—The currency committee of the American Bankers' association and the New York chamber of commerce, which are at work on a measure providing for the issue of emergency currency in times of financial stringency, continued their york today in secret.

NO ANTI-MOORISH MOVE.

London, Nov. 13.—The reports from Gibraltar that preparations are being made for an Anglo-French naval demonstration off Tangier are officially declared to be erroneous.

ON THE BARGAIN COUNTER—WEDNESDAY MORNING.

FACTS ARE DIFFERENT

Modern Samaritan Officials Explain Object of Meeting.

Take Exception to Some Statements in Morning Paper.

Duluth officials of the Modern Samaritans express indignation at a number of statements claimed to be false, which appeared in the morning paper, in an article relating to the meeting in St. Paul tomorrow, called for the purpose of instituting a grand or state lodge.

West Duluth lodge, No. 4, was given credit for starting an agitation for a grand council, when, as a matter of fact, the imperial council has for a number of years, its officers say, shown a desire to have such a council formed. The officials make the assertion that there is no dissatisfaction over the methods of the present management in distributing and handling the funds of the order, or otherwise conducting its business. According to these officials the West Duluth lodge has opposed the formation of a state organization.

"For a number of years the imperial council has been endeavoring to induce the subordinate councils in Minnesota to make application for a charter for a grand council," said John Christie, vice imperial Good Samaritan, this morning. "This action has been opposed by a number of the councils, and particularly by the council in West Duluth. Realizing the importance of the organization of the state body, the imperial council at its annual meeting last June amended the constitution so that the organization could be made upon the application of twenty councils, and upon the failure of twenty councils to make such application, then the imperial council could establish the state body as soon as the number of councils in the state had reached thirty, with a membership of not less than 3,000.

"As the councils failed to make any application for a charter, the imperial council, a few months ago, took the necessary steps to effect the organization, without any action on the part of the subordinate councils. As the imperial council has for a number of years manifested a desire to have the grand council formed, the statement in the morning paper that this action was taken as a result of the protest of G. J. Mallory and M. Jacoby, is entirely contrary to the facts, as these two gentlemen have been persistently endeavoring to prevent the formation of the state organization."

It is expected that the meeting tomorrow will be addressed by Governor John A. Johnson and Mayor Smith of St. Paul. The order was started in Duluth, and has more members here than anywhere else. Consequently there will be more delegates from Duluth than elsewhere. Branch lodges have been established in St. Paul, Minneapolis, St. Cloud, Mankato, Wabasha, Princeton, Two Harbors, Aitkin, Highwood, Zumbrota, and Staples, all of which will be represented at the St. Paul meeting.

The Modern Samaritans is a fraternal and assessment order instituted in 1897 in this city. There are three lodges in Duluth proper, Alpha, No. 1, Beta, No. 2, and West Duluth, No. 4. There are about 7,500 members in the state, and in North Dakota, Wisconsin and Michigan there are about 2,000 more. A surplus of $75,000 is now in the treasury. The delegates from Duluth will be as follows:

Alpha, No. 1, W. J. Henderson, George R. Laybourn, Thomas J. McKeon, Wallace P. Welbanks, Thomas A. Gall, John H. Norton, Arthur A. Fider, Frank A. Noble, Herman Saxton; Beta, No. 2, Arthur Farrington, Charles E. Dice, John Jermroth, A. J. McCullough, John Hultquist; West Duluth council, No. 4, G. J. Mallory, M. Jacoby; Lake Superior council, No. 8, Two Harbors, Dr. J. D. Budd, L. H. Bryan; Agate council, No. 14, Proctor, Charles L. Peterson.

All the members of the imperial lodge, except Past Imperial Good Samaritan C. E. Lovett, now in Boston, will attend the meeting. Other members of the imperial council are George H. Crosby, imperial Good Samaritan; John Christie, vice imperial Good Samaritan; W. A. Hicken, imperial scribe; O. F. Collies, imperial treasurer; W. H. Salter, M. D., imperial medical director, and A. E. McManus, imperial counselor.

There is considerable rivalry over who shall be named officers for the ensuing year, and an active canvass is going on in favor of candidates. Several candidates are in the field for the position of grand Good Samaritan, and grand scribe. Other officers to be chosen will be grand vice good samaritan, grand good samaritan, grand treasurer, grand high priest, levite, grand chief mesenger, junior messenger, centurion, watchman and two auditors. The representation at the meeting tomorrow will be one delegate for each 100 members or major fraction thereof. The grand council may elect to the imperial council one representative for every 2,000 members or major fraction thereof.

TRAIN WRECK IS LUCKY.

Missouri Pacific Passenger Derailed, But No One Badly Hurt.

St. Louis, Nov. 13.—A westbound Missouri Pacific passenger train, while running at full speed, was thrown from the track by spreading rails near Glencoe, twenty-seven miles west of here today, but, except for cuts and bruises, all on board escaped injuries. The entire train plunged into an embankment and the track-bed was torn up for 200 feet.

WEST END

LEAGUE OF CITIZENS

Friends of "The Lid" Are Planning to Form Organization.

Effort Being Made to Revive the Business Men's Association.

If the movement amounts to anything more than talk, it is probable that a citizen's league will be soon organized in the West end for the purpose of working for the enforcement of the Sunday saloon law and other regulations, which the reform element in that section of the city feels are unheeded.

Friends of "the lid" in the West end have been planning a sort of civic league for some time, and propose, when they organize, to make their West end organization the nucleus for one which shall have the whole city for its field.

Enemies of the Sunday saloons have made several fights in the West end, and just at present they feel encouraged over the outlook. They are planning to renew their campaign with added numbers and increased intensity of purpose.

If the citizens' league is formed, it may probe carefully into the alleged carelessness of policemen in the West end. A citizen of that section complained, last week, in a communication to The Herald, of the conduct of the mounted policemen.

TO REVIVE ASSOCIATION.

West End Business Men's Organization is to be Revived.

Strenuous efforts are being made by a few to resuscitate the West End Business Men's association, which was reorganized last year, and which then, appeared to be a very healthy infant.

But not a meeting has been held this fall. All of the business men seem to be wrapt up in their private affairs, which apear to be prospering nicely, that they have given the business men's organization little thought. A meeting will probably be held some evening this month, however.

Revival Meetings Close.

A. J. Freeman, the blind evangelist of Galesburg, Ill., concluded the series of revival meetings he has been conducting in the First Swedish Baptist church, Sunday evening. For more than a week he and his daughter, Esther, who is a beautiful singer, conducted services in the church and they aroused a great deal of interest. Before leaving the city, Mr. Freeman will conduct services in other Swedish Baptist churches in the city.

West End Shortrails.

Dr. A. Olson and Dr. Pare have gone to Culver, Minn., to hunt deer.

The Epworth League sewing circle of the Norwegian-Danish M. E. church met last evening at the home of Miss Alice Sorenson, 2225 Piedmont avenue.

R. M. Stitt has returned to his headquarters camp on the Big Fork river, after spending a few days in the city.

J. J. Howe has returned from Minneapolis and is a guest at the Esmond for a few days.

Earnest Johnson of Port Wing, Wis., is in the West end for a few days.

G. H. Young of Omaha is registered at the Esmond.

The young ladies' society of the First Swedish Baptist church will meet for bible study Thursday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. John F. Fredin, 3 Eleventh avenue west.

When you think hats think Pearson's, 1814 Piedmont avenue.

William Nickels of Dickinson, N. D., and Charles Barrett of Mandan, N. D., are guests at the Esmond.

Bert Perry has returned from Cleveland, where he went with the remains of his wife, who died shortly after coming to this city as Mr. Perry's bride.

Simon Dahlquist has returned from the Twin Cities, where he went on business.

William C. Anderson of Milwaukee is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hanson of 2432 West Second street.

A. W. Erickson and Iver Johnson have returned from the Shackers' club at Arnold, where a number of West enders are hunting deer.

Miss Anna Rosneau of 3211 West First street has gone to Ashland, Wis., where she will visit her sister, Mrs. J. K. Lundstrom.

Miss Anna Langlois and Henry Lemora were married at the St. John Baptiste church yesterday morning, by Rev. Father Feignon. A reception was held last evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Langlois, 14 North Twelfth street.

Miss Nora Stranmark was pleasantly surprised at her home, 2325 West Second street, Saturday evening by a number of her friends. The evening passed very pleasantly.

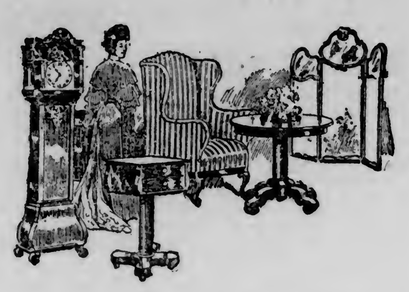

Stop that cough! Take Lion cough cure (contains no morphine.) Sold at "Lion Drug store," 2002 West Superior street.

The name of the Hill Tops baseball team has been changed to the West End baseball club. This was decided at a meeting of the members last evening. Emil Peterson was elected manager; Albin Nordstrom, captain, and Don McKenzie, treasurer. Among those who are likely to play on the team next season are Harold Smallman, Alex Peterson, Albin Nordstrom, Don McKenzie, David Olson, Emil Peterson, Albert Peterson, Victor Wickstrom and Oscar Anderson. Last season, the team won ten out of fourteen games played.

The many West enders who went to Chicago to see the Minnesota-Chicago football game, have returned. They said they had a very good time, even if it did rain all during the game. The West end will send a large delegation of rooters for Minnesota to Minneapolis next Saturday, to witness the game between the husky University team and that from Carlisle.

West end merchants are beginning to receive the first consignments of their holiday goods and are preparing for a larger trade than ever before.

"THIS IS THE BEST PLACE TO COME"

Beautiful New Pieces.

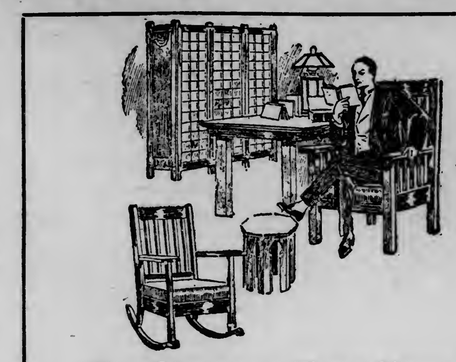

Exquisite designs in solid Mahogany Colonial Tables—four post beds, sewing tables, drop leaf tables, library tables, period chairs, Sherraton & Hepplewhite reproductions—large, easy reading chairs, colonial clocks, hall clocks with chimes, beautiful davenports and sofas—our store is filled with the very choicest and best. We are always glad to have you come in and to bring your friends with you.

THE above remark was made by a lady upon entering this busy store one day last week after she had been "looking around in other stores." Hundreds of people are finding how true this is.

They find our prices are much lower than in other stores and the selection of articles is made easy by our immense stock, always complete.

Our floors are filled with new things we are always glad to show you. We want you to feel at home here, to come in and get our prices. Let us figure with you on the new home furnishings, perhaps a new dining table, or some new chairs for the parlor.

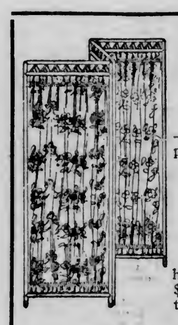

We want you to come here at any time, get acquainted with our methods, use our gradual payment plan if you like. Our aim is to make this store THE BEST PLACE TO COME.

Reliable Piano Dealers.

Piano Buyers, Please Read This:

On April 1st, 1897, our piano store was opened in a small room on the second floor, and a small affair it was, but had the powerful germ of usefulness and progress within its modest make-up and you have seen it grow, until now its annual sales of pianos and kindred instruments far exceed those of any other Duluth store. The reasons for this condition are not far off and you will kindly pardon our mentioning a few of them.

First—Our prices are much lower than others, made possible by the fact that this is the only piano store in Duluth or Superior buying all instruments out and out for cash, thus owning them at prices far below its competitors.

Second—Conducting this business in connection with a large and old established trade in other lines enables us to effect a great saving in expenses which gives still further ability to make low prices.

Third—Customers appreciate the fact that this is the only piano store in Duluth or Superior that keeps their contracts in its own possession and endorses each payment when it is made upon the back thereof. It is embarrassing, to say the least, after one has bought a piano, to find the contract in the hands of a money-lender, some manufacturer, the bank, or that it has been sent out of town for some indefinite purpose. Our methods insure against all these unfortunate conditions.

Fourth—We take more interest in customers' complete piano satisfaction than others, because this is the only piano store in the city owned and controlled by Duluth men and not tributary to outside ownership, dictation or management.

French & Bassett's One-Price System of Selling Pianos:

Under this system we are able to materially reduce the prices of pianos and it marks a new era in piano selling in Duluth—perhaps more important than our advent in the business eight years ago. Each instrument bears a large tag with the lowest cash price marked in plain figures, from which there is absolutely no deviation under any circumstances.

These prices are fixed after the fullest consideration and investigation, and will be found as low, and in many cases lower than the largest houses in New York, Boston, Philadelphia or Chicago.

Every price is absolutely guaranteed as the net cash value of the instrument and when customers wish to purchase on time, interest will be charged at the rate of 5 per cent per annum on deferred payments.

The product of seventeen leading piano makers is here and each make is a leader in its particular grade.

The public is cordially invited to see and hear our beautiful pianos and to investigate our One Price System. It will save you many dollars and much time.

Very easy terms of payment will be arranged at from $5 to $10 a month.

How to Buy a Piano:

Nearly every customer wants to look around to satisfy their minds, and we say, do so by all means, but in doing so do not fail to come here, for this is where the true test of comparison will culminate. For instance, compare with any instrument priced in other stores at from $275 to $350, as the case may be. We will fully demonstrate that our piano is better—it has handsome real mahogany case, fine ivory keys, delightful action and charming tone. Sold for $10 cash and $5 a month.

Our High-Grade Piano at $195

STATE TO SELL TIMBER.

Many Isolated Tracts Will Yield Profit to Commonwealth.

St. Paul, Nov. 13.—Samuel G. Iverson, state auditor, is arranging for a series of sales of state timber in Northern Minnesota. They will be held as follows: Morning of Dec. 10, Two Harbors; afternoon of Dec. 10, Duluth; Park Rapids, Dec. 11; Walker, Dec. 12; Bemidji, Dec. 13; Grand Rapids, Dec. 14; Aitkin, Dec. 15.

These sales will be for the disposition of "small stuff," scraps left on cut-over lands and small isolated patches of standing timber, all being timber which a few years ago lumbermen would not bother about, but which now can be sold for some profit to the state.

CONTEST IS PROBABLE.

St. Paul, Nov. 13.—Pierce Butler, who ran against Joseph M. Hackney for senator from the Thirty-seventh district, comprising the tenth and eleventh wards and the country districts of Ramsey county, is seriously considering a contest. He was beaten by only 35 votes and a switch of 20 votes would elect him. It is claimed that students at Hamline and Macalester have no right to vote there.

STEAM HEATER BIDS FOR SUPERIOR'S POSTOFFICE.

Washington, Nov. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bids were opened by Supervising Architect Taylor yesterday afternoon for low pressure steam heating apparatus for the postoffice at Superior, Wis. There were six bidders, the lowest being F. Porter & Co., Minneapolis, $10,051; other bids were: G. A. Kees Domestic Engineering Co., St. Paul, $10,500; Hubbard Heating Co., Washington, $11,558; H. J. Archambo, Minneapolis, $10,200; Allen-Black Co., St. Paul, $10,229; American Heating Co., Superior, $11,500.

HOG RATES DENOUNCED BY SEATTLE MEAT MEN.

Washington, Nov. 13.—Meat packers in the state of Washington have brought an action before the interstate commerce commission against the Northern Pacific and Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroads, alleging that these railroads have raised the rates on shipments of hogs from the corn belt states to Seattle, Wash., to a figure that practically prohibits shipments west and threatens them with bankruptcy.

EXPLOSION IN FURNACE.

Colfax, Iowa, Nov. 13.—While putting coal into the furnace, Mrs. D. S. Duffus was badly burned by an explosion which wrecked the furnace and hurled her twenty feet to the side of the cellar. She was found unconscious, but while her injuries are serious, it is believed she will recover.

RAISES IN SALARIES

Policemen and Firemen Will Get Extra $5 Per Month.

First Victory For Half Fares Won on Park Point.

Firemen and policemen were given a substantial raise in pay, under a resolution passed by the council last evening.

The new schedule was prepared by the finance committee composed of Aldermen Haven, Getchell and McEwen, and it was found possible to grant the raise with the funds available.

The aldermen felt that the efficiency of the departments was being impaired by the low salaries paid. It is impossible to keep the eligible list full, and men are constantly resigning from the departments because of the low wages and the long hours.

The raise amounts to $5 per month for the regular men, but it will not take effect until after July 1.

In the police department, under the new schedule, the salaries will be as follows: Chief, $2,500; captain, $1,320; lieutenants and detectives, $95 per month; sergeants, $85 per month; first class patrolmen, $80 per month; second class patrolmen, $75 per month; third class patrolmen, $70 per month.

The firemen are given the same raise, to take effect at the same time.

Alderman Lyle maintained that the raise was too small and that it should be made greater, if possible, and made to take effect at once.

"It is only a raise of 7 cents a day," he said," and each promotion should be worth an extra $10 a month."

It was pointed out by the finance committee, however, that the raise granted was as large as the funds could stand, and in order to save the other aldermen from being forced to vote against a measure which they favored, Alderman Lyle withdrew his amendment at Alderman Moore's request, and the schedule adopted by the committee was endorsed.

The first victory for the half fare movement for school children has been won.

The Interstate Traction company, according to the statement of Alderman Lyle last evening, has consented to put in service a special car for school children. The car will run in the morning, at noon, and in the evening, and will carry children for one half the regular fare. The car will go into service on Nov. 15, and Park Point children who are compelled to ride to school will hereafter be charged but 2½ cents in place of 5 cents.

The council also voted last evening, to send the committee composed of Aldermen Lyle, Getchell and Staples, Mayor Cullum and Bishop McGolrick, to St. Paul to meet with the committees from St. Paul and Minneapolis. The trip will be made some time within the coming week.

The report of the special auditor, William Frank, was submitted last evening.

He was appointed by the council to make the annual audit of the city's books, and has just completed the work.

In his report to the council he discussed in detail some minor errors in bookkeeping which he had discovered, but the errors were purely technical ones and did not affect the accuracy of the accounts as a whole. Following are some extracts from the report:

"I have carefully gone over the bills and receipts of each of the departments and have checked them against their books and against the books of the comptroller. For the sake of brevity and simplicity, I refer your honorable body to the annual report of each department. I shall set forth under the head of each department any error that may exist in their books or annual reports.

"The comptroller's department has kept the accounts of the various funds correctly, barring a few entries in which some accounts were charged to the wrong fund, but they were subsequently corrected by cross entries.

"The comptroller's system of bookkeeping is very good, and he is studiously endeavoring at all times to improve the same wherever it is necessary.

"In the treasurer's department I found an excellent system of bookkeeping. Accounts are accurately kept and no errors were found. The treasurer's report for 1905 is a true copy of the condition of the funds as shown in his books.

"The city clerk's accounts are correctly kept and they agree with the comptroller's and treasurer's accounts."

Alderman Lyle submitted a resolution that a waiting room be provided for the residents of Park Point, at the ferry bridge. He stated that the street car company would pay one-half of the cost of such a waiting room, and his motion that the city pay the other half was carried.

A petition was presented for the improvement of Sixteenth avenue east from South street to Sixth street.

Owing to the delay in the completion of the power company's plant, the Duluth Edison Electric company asked for an extension of time on the placing of the additional free street lights called for by the new contract. The power company had agreed to furnish power by Oct. 1, but now it is unlikely that it will be furnished before Dec. 15 at the earliest.

BOY'S LIFE CRUSHED OUT.

Atwater, Minn., Nov. 13.—August Browman's 10-year-old son, Vernon, was run over by a thrashing machine and killed Sunday evening. The thrashing machine was being moved from Browman's, eight miles south of Atwater, and the lad who was taking a ride on the separator, lost his hold, falling under the wheels, and was badly crushed, dying within two hours from the time of the accident.

Piles

Seattle Gentleman Cured With Less Than a Box by the Pyramid Pile Cure.

Anyone Can Easily Test it and Prove It, For a Free Sample Is Sent By Mail to All.

Seven out of ten readers of this paper are tortured with piles or some form of rectal disease. You are, or you would not be reading this article. Thirty years ago doctors carried a lancet in their vest pocket and bled people for all sorts of diseases, and bled them hard—sometimes a quart at a time. It was the fashion then. All that is changed nowadays, and a doctor with a lancet would be considered a curiosity.

Five years ago doctors "cut out" Piles wherever they got the chance. All that has been changed since the marvelous soothing, healing and curative properties of Pyramid Pile Cure have become known.

By every mail we get letters like this: "Wishing to give credit where credit is due, I feel it my duty—to humanity—as well as yourselves—to write you regarding your pile remedy. I have not finished my first box and am now well. After the first treatment of Pyramid Pile Cure the soreness left, and the swellings have kept decreasing. I also used your pills and am feeling like myself again. Thanking you kindly, I am, yours truly, C. Crowley, 170 Ninth avenue, Seattle, Wash."

If you want positive proof of the curative value of this remedy, send to the Pyramid Drug company, 61 Pyramid building, Marshall, Mich. You will receive a free trial package by return mail. Try it, then go straight to your druggist, get a 50c box and get well.

EARLY REPORT WILL BE MADE

On Rivers and Harbors Bill at the Coming Session.

Washington, Nov. 13. — Chairman Burton of the committee on rivers and harbors of the house, has called a special meeting of his committee for Nov. 29, in order to get an early start in the preparation of a bill that will carry between $50,000,000 and $60,000,000. Heretofore the river and harbor bill has been kept back until the end of the session and kicked from pillar to post. It is intended to change this program and report the bill early and make a hard fight for all its provisions.

Among the most important improvements that will be authorized will be those for inspecting the connecting channels of the great lakes. A new lock is to be built at Sault Ste. Marie, and the channel at Detroit is to be deepened. In all these improvements the committee will follow the recommendations of the army engineering corps.

The importance of the waterways of the country is being recognized more now than for many years. A river improvement convention was held in Washington last spring, which was largely attended by delegates from all parts of the country.

Representative Lorimer, who is one of the leading members of the house committee, will make a hard fight for the deep waterway from the lakes to the gulf, and will have the support of the delegations from at least twenty-two states, who will be directly benefited by the improvement. The St. Louis convention will give this project a big impetus, and as a result Mr. Lorimer expects to bring sufficient pressure to bear to get an appropriation to start the work.

CHURCH CONTRACT.

Virginia, Minn., Nov. 13.—James Simpson has been awarded the contract for the erection of a new church for the Methodist congregation. It will occupy the site the old one did, at the corner of Cleveland avenue and Spruce street, and will be built on the old foundation. The contract price is in the neighborhood of $8,700. This is exclusive of foundation, plumbing, wiring and heating, and it is expected that the total cost of the building will exceed $10,000.

HETTY GREEN TRUSTS' FOE.

Richest Woman Declares Giant Combines Will Bring War.

Boston, Nov. 13.—Mrs. Hetty Green, richest woman in the United States, would hardly be expected to be a trust-buster. Yet Mrs. Green is against the trusts. She thinks them as iniquitous as lawyers When Mrs. Green says trusts are as bad as lawyer, it is the limit of her condemnation.

"There is going to be a revolution in this country," she says, "and the people are going to revolt against the oppressions of the trusts. There will be a deluge, and these streets will run with blood when the people are aroused. The people are gradually finding out about the trusts."

DROP LAND AGENT FAVORS.

All Western Railroads Decide to Let Out Immigration Workers.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—All western railroads have announced that they will discontinue free transportation or reduced rates to land agents, and a majority of the 50,000 land agents, registered with the western trunk line companies will find themselves out of work. This action was taken because the interstate commerce commission ruled that the issuance of such transportation was illegal.

Under the new conditions the methods employed in colonizing the country west of the Mississippi river must be revolutionized. Under the old system the rates were put down to a point where prospective settlers could look for new homes at a small cost.

NEEDLE IN DRESS DEADLY.

Scranton Mystery Solved by Girl's Story of Attempted Hug.

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 13.—That Thomas Dougherty of Dunmore, whose heart was pierced by a long needle Saturday night while visiting Miss Kate Burke, was the victim of an accident was shown yesterday. The girl said that she had been mending her brother's clothing with a long needle and on going down in the evenig she stuck the needle in the bosom of her dress. Dougherty, who had been her sweetheart, attempted to embrace her, and the needle was forced into his body. Hemorrhages ensued that caused his death.

SON'S MARRIAGE PLANS CAUSES MOTHER'S SUICIDE.

New York, Nov. 13.—Conrad Weiss, a fireman, returned to his home Sunday, after his night of duty, and found his mother dead. She had asphyxiated herself by turning on the gas.

Weiss told the coroner that his mother probably killed herself because she would not leave her own home, which she loved dearly. He had told her Saturday that he was about to marry and that she was to come and live with him and his bride. She protested, but gave no hint that she meant to take her life. Weiss was her only child.

FOUND DEAD IN CREEK.

Granada, Minn., Nov. 13.—Arthur Deane of Sherburne, was found dead in a creek one mile west of Granada, yesterday morning. Mr. Deane had been here about a week taking treatment, and on Thursday evening he disappeared. Search was started the next morning, but he was not found until yesterday.

DISCOVERS OLD CERTIFICATES

Aged Fisherman Finds Copper Stock Purchased Forty Years Ago.

Have fifty shares of copper stock issued by the Pewable Mining company of Northern Michigan, in 1867 and present value? This is a question that Laughlin MacLean, an aged fisherman residing at 360 St. Croix avenue, is asking himself, and he is anxiously awaiting the outcome of inquiries that have been started in his behalf.

Mr. MacLean is an old resident of Duluth and is well known, particularly among the old timers here. Yesterday Mr. MacLean called on a friend at the courthouse, to whom he exhibited the certificates of stock and explained the circumstances of his possession. He stated that he bought the stock way back in 1867 or 1868 and paid a pretty good price for them, the exact price for which he could not remember owing to the lapse of time. Mr. MacLean said the certificates became misplaced and, during the passing years, all knowledge as to their existence passed from his mind. Recently, while looking over a number of old papers Mr. MacLean discovered the certificates of stock and he recalled the circumstances of his purchase nearly forty years ago. Not knowing whether the certificate has any present value he decided to ask some friend to investigate the matter for him.

The Pewable Mining company was reorganized many years ago and the new company, now known as the Atlantic Mining company, a large and wealthy corporation, took over all the holdings and reissued stock in exchange for the shares of stock of the old Pewable company. Whether the MacLean stock, which was not exchanged and which must have been shown as missing when the books for the new company were made up, has any value, is a question. The outcome of Mr. MacLean's find will be watched with much interest by his friends.

HIGH SPEED COSTLY.

Wisconsin Central to Pay $600 Penalty for Fast Running.

Waupaca, Wis., Nov. 13.—A case of more than ordinary interest to the public has been on trial here in circuit court for the past four days, which has resulted in a verdict and judgment for the plaintiffs. The action is entitled State of Wisconsin and Charles F. Crane, plaintiffs, vs. Wisconsin Central Railway company, defendant, and is brought under the provisions of sections 1808 and 1819 of the Wisconsin statutes for the recovery of forfeitures for running trains within limits of the incorporated village of Weyauwega exceeding six miles per hour, before having passed all the traveled streets, the penalty for each offense being not less than $50 nor more than $500.

The jury found for the plaintiff, separately, on eight of the eleven charges, and assessed forfeitures amounting in all to $600.

HIDDEN DANGERS

Nature Gives Timely Warnings That No Duluth Citizen can Afford to Ignore.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 1 comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick. Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid. Sick kidneys send out a thin, pale and foamy, or a thick, red, ill-smelling urine, full of sediment and irregular of passage.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 2 comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, tell you of sick kidneys and warn you of the coming of dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Here's Duluth proof:

Moses Leckey, flagman on the Northern Pacific railroad, living at Seventy-first avenue west, West Duluth, Minn., says: "A friend did me a great kindness when he recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to me. He had used them with marked benefit, and on his recommendation I got a box and began treating a bad case of backache and kidney disorder, which had troubled me severely all last winter. There was acute pain in my back and loins, and the irregularity of the kidney secretions was most annoying. It prevented sleep at night. The first box almost rid me of the trouble, but I continued using them, until I had taken two boxes; then not a trace or a symptom of the trouble remained. I used Doan's Ointment for itching hemorrhoids with equally fine results, and it is needless to say that I am an earnest endorser of both remedies."

For sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

BURGLARS GET BOOTY.

Enter Albert Lea Store and Carry Off Money and Goods.

Albert Lea, Minn., Nov. 13.—The big department store of Skinner, Chamberlain & Co. was entered by burglars Sunday night. Money and goods were taken. One high-grade, fur-lined coat was found Monday morning where it had been left. The entrance was made by a rear window, and was no doubt work of local thieves. A chisel was left by the thief.

MURDER IN CAR.

Wisconsin Man Killed While Homeward Bound From South Dakota.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Nov. 13.—Word has been received by J. R. Hanson of this city, that his brother, Andrew Hanson, has been murdered in South Dakota.

According to the details of the affair as received here, Hanson was riding in a car of wheat from Watertown, S. D., to Minneapolis, on his way to this place. A few miles out of Watertown, two other men entered the car, and covering Hanson and a friend, who was accompanying him, with revolvers commanded them to throw up their hands. Hanson refused to do so and was shot and killed.

After securing $40 from the dead man and his companion, the murderers left the car, locked the door and escaped. It was not until several hours later that the imprisoned man was able to attract the attention of the train men and gain his liberty. The murderers have not been caught.

DEATH TRAP COACHES.

Yesterday an "immigrant train" on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad had a collision with a freight train in Indiana. The six passenger coaches of the "immigrant train" were smashed into kindling wood, and as they immediately burst into flames, the results were horrible. Out of 165 passengers on the train forty-seven were either killed outright by the collision or burned to death and thirty-eight were seriously injured, so seriously that many of them will die. More than half of the passengers, therefore, were either killed or badly hurt.

We are informed by the news reports of the accident that it was due to the "blunder of some employe of the railroad company."

That is to say, somebody made a mistake in issuing or receiving orders, and this was the detail that resulted in the collision.

But the real blame for this horrible outcome must be placed higher up. No employe can be saddled with that. The fault is that of the railroad company itself, and it is a fault of which many other railroad companies are guilty, though perhaps they have been more fortunate in results.

What kind of cars were those that a collision would "smash into kindling wood?" They must have been frail, old wooden coaches, which had outlived their usefulness in the regular passenger traffic, and were therefore deemed good enough to make up an "immigrant train." Several of the freight cars in the other train were also smashed, though the report does not say how many. It would appear, however, that the freight cars were stronger than the death traps that composed the immigrant train, for while only "several cars" of the freight train were wrecked, the entire immigrant train was "smashed into kindling wood."

It ought to be a crime, severely punished by law, for any railroad to carry passengers in such coaches.

There are plenty of coaches made nowadays that are almost immune to injury in collision. They are made of steel, and though a collision would shake them up and scratch the paint off, they could not be "smashed into kindling wood."

Cars that can be smashed into kindling wood in a collision must be made of kindling wood in the first place. There is no excuse for running such coaches on any railroad in this country, and their use should not be permitted.

People that can afford to pay extra fares ride in the strong steel cars that are almost impervious to injury.

Immigrants and poor people that are in luck to be able to find the plain, ordinary fare, have to ride in death traps.

The railroads must be made to realize that a man is a man, whether he wears fustian or broadcloth, and that in the eye of God and justice one human life is as valuable as another.

The fact that the Baltimore & Ohio railroad packed men, women and children into cars that were evidently about as solid as drygoods boxes ought to make it liable at law for the death of every victim of yesterday's horror. And if it is held for damages, it may find that it would have been more economical in the long run if it had put its money into cars fit for human beings to ride in.

BINDING OUR OWN HANDS.

James J. Hill says that there is no more reason why this country should dread Canada in unprotected business competition than there is why North Dakota should fear Pennsylvania, and no more reason why Canada and the United States should be separated by a tariff wall than there is why one state should be separated from another by such a partition.

The need of less restrictions upon the trade between this country and Canada is felt very strongly, and while Mr. Hill's plan to do away with the tariff altogether will probably stand little show of being generally accepted soon, there is hope that some reciprocal arrangement that will be to the mutual advantage of both countries may be brought about if the standpatters can be made to receive reason.

Canada has coal that we could use in our business, but we can't get it because of the tariff. Our coal is closely held, and prices are arbitrarily fixed without reference to the value of the product. American coal can be bought across the line cheaper than it can in this country. If there were no tariff on coal, Canada could ship her coal to this country and compete with the American coal trust, to the great relief of consumers.

To use another example, Canada has pulpwood and lumber, and the tariff we have imposed to shut them out is simply an implement that brings about our own undoing. Our lumber and our pulpwood are closely held, and the prices we pay for them are enormous.

As Mr. Hill said in his Chicago speech Saturday night, "if the time is not ripe for absolute free trade, the least that it demands is ample reciprocity. There cannot be a beginning until we have fixed in our minds the desirability of free interchange of natural products and raw materials, giving to the New England manufacturer his fuel and to the farmer of the western plain his lumber, and to the makers of books and newspapers everywhere their print paper free from the exactions that a needless tariff now permits monopoly to impose."

Can anybody figure out a reason why this country, squirming under the exactions of the coal trust, the lumber trust and the paper trust, should voluntarily keep up tariff schedules that prohibit relief from nearby supplies of coal, lumber and pulpwood in Canada?

We have no competition at home because these necessities are held by monopolies that charge us as much as they think we can possibly stand.

We have no competition from abroad because the tariff shuts it out.

Either we must destroy these monopolies, or we must let down the tariff bars and admit foreign competition to free them to give fair play.

And competition from Canada, a neighbor so close that it is almost the same as a sister state, should be invited, not barred out by aggravating and feud-creating tariff schedules.

FUNNY MR. BONAPARTE.

Charles J. Bonaparte, secretary of the navy, in an interview in his home town of Baltimore the other day, presented a plan for remedying our political evils that is unique, to say the least. He wants to have a legalized "boss" of each political party in each state and city, to be regularly elected by the voters at a primary election held under all of the sanction of law, and at which only this one position shall be filled.

This would do away with nominating conventions, and also with primary nominations of candidates, for Secretary Bonaparte's legalized bosses would pick out all the candidates and manage their campaigns.

He offered this plan rather apologetically, and one would imagine that he might well accompany it with an apology, unless he meant it for a joke. No evidence of hilarity appears in his interview, except that hilarity is the irresistible product of a consideration of his scheme.

Remember what the "bosses" who have elected themselves to their positions of power in this country have done, and then think of how it would be if there was to be a boss in every city and every state of the union! Think of the power they would have! Think of the opportunities for pleasant pickings of graft! Think of what a scramble there would be for these places, and of how much money the candidates could afford to spend to get them, since they could readily make it up in a single election by taxing the candidates they selected for the privilege of being selected!

It is bad enough to have bosses worm themselves into power upon their own initiative, without creating bosses at a wholesale rate by law. There is no reason to think that an elected boss would be any more conscientious than a self-made boss.

It is hard to believe Mr. Bonaparte to be serious, even though his interview is given out with apparent gravity and earnestness. If we are to have dictators to select our public officials, why not abandon popular government altogether, and select a dictator to manage all of our affairs?

But his scheme will cause innumerable mouths to water. How would you like to be this nominating convention of one, if you were not bothered with that troublesome possession, a conscience? Just think how you and the boss of the other party could get together and frame up a slate. You could divide the profits, and guarantee election by nominating weak candidates against the fairly strong ones that were willing to come down handsomely. You could select tools that would hand over the public contracts and the special privileges to you and your friends, and you could get rich so fast that you couldn't count it.

IMPROVING WATERWAYS.

In the call for the meeting of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, which will meet in Washington Dec. 6 and 7, there are some pertinent facts and figures about waterways, tending to show that though the sums devoted to their improvement by this country look large enough by themselves, when compared with what other countries have done our figures appear rather niggardly.

It is shown that we have in this country, excluding the seaboard of course, 43,799 miles of navigable waterways. Since 1820 we have appropriated and spent $470,000,000 for their improvement.

Yet Holland, with only 2,000 miles of waterways, has spent $1,500,000,000, or more than three times the amount the United States has scattered over twenty times as many miles of waterways.

France, with only 4,000 miles of navigable waterways, has spent $1,120,000,000.

Belgium, with 1,230 miles, has spent $80,000,000 since 1875.

Hamburg has put $75,000,000 on her own harbor alone; Liverpool's harbor has cost $200,000,000; Newcastle's harbor has taken $27,000,000; Marseilles has spent $24,000,000 on her harbor; Havre has spent $35,000,000, and Rotterdam's harbor has cost $9,000,000.

Of course it must not be forgotten that these countries have been in business much longer than the United States, and that that accounts in part for their greater expenditures. Still, there can be no doubt that this country has not done its duty toward its waterways, and that there is room for the expenditure of vast sums in addition.

Another important fact to be noted in this connection is that a considerable proportion of the money this country has spent was wasted. The rivers and harbors bill is a "pork barrel," into which congressmen are permitted to dip once in a while in order to make them solid in their own districts. This distribution of the funds available for such work has resulted in the lavish expenditure of money on projects that nobody ever suspected would amount to anything, while real waterways like the Great Lakes and the Mississippi river have suffered from lack of attention.

There is probably not so much of this now as there used to be, but there must always be some of it so long as rivers and harbors money is regarded as a kind of perquisite attached to the job of congressman.

The importance to the people of keeping our waterways in good condition is shown by the fact that while the average cost of transporting freight on the railroads of the country is 7.79 mills per ton mile, the cost on the Great Lakes averages less than 1 mill per ton mile, or .92 of a mill.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"This has been a fine year for the manufacturers of clothing," said N. T. White of New York at the Spalding. "The spring demand was large, but the fall season, just closed, has been the biggest in the history of the trade. The business for next spring has been fairly opened, but from present indications the volume will continue just as large.

"The demand for clothing is due to the general prosperity of the country, and there is at present no indication that the general conditions will change. There is some apprehension felt concerning the storm-swept section of the South, but if there is a falling off in the demand down there, it will not be large enough to seriously interfere with the profits of the manufacturers.

"During the entire year factories in the East have been taxed to their capacity and have been employing all the labor possible to obtain. Many of the largest plants during the last few years have overgrown their factories, and have established branch plants in different sections of the country. Manufacturers are now preparing for the spring trade. It is not such a question of getting orders for garments as it is of getting cloth from which to make the clothes. There has been such a great demand for clothing that cloth manufacturers have not been able to produce the material fast enough."

The best duck hunting of the year is now to be had on the lakes of Northern Minnesota," said T. O. Narey of Cass Lake, Minn., at the St. Louis. "Hunters who returned home with small bags a few weeks ago should forget about deer and moose now long enough to go out and kill some of the birds. The main flight appears to be on from the North, and many of the lakes are black with ducks.

"The birds were wise to wait so long before putting in their appearance, for there is only one duck hunter now where there were twenty-five three or four weeks back. Sportsmen seldom get out after the birds this late in the year. If they get out with a gun at all, it is with a rifle, in search of deer and moose. Smaller game is forgotten. I was up along the Minnesota & International last week, Friday and Saturday, and the ducks I saw would give the average sportsman the duck fever, there were so many of them. If I had been hunting I could easily have shot seventy-five or a hundred of the birds in a single morning.

"The main flight is much later than usual this year, and many a man was compelled to return home with scarcely a bird as a result. Those who went after ducks earlier in the year, in our part of the state, had to rest content with chickens and partridge."

JOHN A. JOHNSON---A REAL MAN.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: John A. Johnson, Democrat, was elected governor of Minnesota by the largest majority every accorded a gubernatorial candidate in the history of the state. Mr. Johnson was elected as a man, and not as the exponent of any political principle. Real men, in correct application of the term, are so very scarce in politics that it is not remarkable that Mr. Johnson's worth was recognized and given the magnificent endorsement. That he is a real man no one will attempt to deny, and the campaign against him, made on party and every other issue, fell flat, as it should. Mr. Johnson conducted the campaign of a gentleman, and the newspapers throughout the state that supported him followed exactly that manner of campaigning, establishing a record for political decency that any party or community might follow with profit. During his two years of service Mr. Johnson was a governor that everybody in the state was proud of—with the possible exception of a few hungry politicians—and it was a fitting that he be given the second term so richly reserved. The Republicans, to their shame be it said, failed to profit by the lesson of two years ago, and conducted their fight on the same old lines, and made themselves ridiculous a-doing it. Mr. Cole, the Republican candidate, personally was not the man to lead his party to victory against such a man as Mr. Johnson. He was handicapped to start with when he came out of the Republican convention at Duluth last June, and the campaign that was set up by his following was the millstone that carried him under. Mr. Cole's political coat was tailored after the manner of the scriptural garment attributed to a historical gentleman who had no other name than Joseph, and that, coupled with the evident manipulation of the state convention, gave the independent Republican a good excuse for disregarding the party call, uttered so vociferously by the machine leaders. Mr. Cole was used simply as a means and his crushing defeat is not to his personal discredit—he did as well as any other Republican could have done under the circumstances. The Republican daily newspapers of the state carried on the usual campaign of abuse against Governor Johnson, which disgusted many Republicans and caused them to give their votes to the head of the Democratic tickets. And then, too, Rob Dunn was pressed into service, and that's enough to defeat anybody.

THE WEATHER.

The cloudiness persists, and it has been several days since the sun had a really good chance at us. A little snow has fallen, a few scattering flakes at a time. The temperature has been cold, with a touch of rawness. Last night it got down to 20 degs. and yesterday's highest was 26 degs. The weather man says it will be warmer tonight and tomorrow, with rain or snow.

The sun set at 4:36 this afternoon, and it rises tomorrow at 7:10.

A year ago today it was cloudy and blustery.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The eastern disturbance caused still further snow flurries or light rain in the lake region Monday or last night. The British Columbia low pressure area has increased somewhat in strength shifting its center to Assiniboia and causing somewhat warmer weather over the eastern slopes and Rocky mountains, and rain or snow in Western Canada and from the Dakotas westward to North Pacific coast states. Pressures are high in the lower Mississippi valley and California, and it is colder over Eastern Gulf states and Atlantic states. The Western Canada storm, as it moves eastward, will be attended by rain or snow and rather strong southerly winds in this locality tonight and Wednesday."

Following were last night's lowest temperatures recorded by the weather bureau:

LINES TO A LAUGH.

Chicago Tribune: "Miss Queer is exactly like her father, isn't she?"

"No; not exactly. She's a crank by inheritance and he's a crank from choice."

New York Press: Edith—You would hardly know Robert since he got back from Europe. He lost all his money there and—

Ethel—Hardly know him—why, I shan't know him at all!

Washington Star: "That man is one of my friends," remarked the novice in public life.

"Which kind?" responded Senator Sorghum. "Friends, you know, are divided into two great classes; those whom you need and those who need you."

Detroit Free Press: Bilkins—Why in the world do you spend so much time reading bear stories?

Wilkins—I'm courting the mother of a 4-year-old.

Philadelphia Press: "Ma," asked the little rabbit, "is it true that pa was shot by an amateur gunner?"

"Not at all!" snorted the mother rabbit scornfully. "The gunner was shooting at something else while your poor father sat behind him and laughed. Unfortunately the gun kicked and the man sat down on your father and killed him."

Chicago Tribune: "I suppose there is such a person as the 'foolkiller,'" mused Uncle Allen Sparks, "but he has either retired from business or he's hopelessly behind on his orders."

Philadelphia Catholic Standard: Mr. Footenit—I was under the impression I had met you before, Miss Jiggs.

Miss Jiggs—No; you may have met my sister, but not me.

Mr. Footenit—I guess that's it; the Miss Jiggs I met was pretty.

Cleveland Leader: Miss Payntz—I just can't bear to walk out in the wind. It roughens my complexion so.

Miss Knox—Maybe your complexion's too thick; if you put it on thinner it might not do that.

When the Acorns Drop.

There's a whisper on the hilltop and a murmur in the wood,
There's a dream of golden glory everywhere!
On the beech a russet cover, on the elm a scarlet hood,
But the walnut lifts her branches brown and bare.
Oh, the squirrel's at his feasting in the old oak's top—
And ho! for Injun summer,
When
the acorns
drop!

There's a bloom upon the meadow, like the ghost of summer flowers,
But the forests and the valleys are aflame;
And on hillside and in hollow, throughout all the misty hours,
Descend the rustling drops of autumn rain!
Oh, the crows hold their meeting in the old oak's top—
And ho! for Injun summer,
When
the acorns
drop!

When the chestnut and the hazel nut put on a richer brown
And chatt'ring birds are gathered in a flock;
When "mallow-in-the-marshes" buttons up her yellow gown,
Then it's time to heap the fodder in a shock!
Oh, autumn's on her waning, better garner in the crop,
And ho! for Injun summer,
When
the acorns
drop!

"OUR NEXT GOVERNOR."

St. Cloud Journal-Press (Rep.): The voters of Minnesota will not be dictated to and will not obey the party lash. That is the lesson of this election. May the Republican party profit by it.

Anoka Free Press (Dem.): In the re-election of Governor Johnson the voters of Minnesota have done themselves proud. The state being overwhelmingly Republican, the voters, by electing for a second term a Democratic governor, have shown themselves above party prejudice—have shown that to them public interests appeal more strongly than party success. This is a most encouraging sign of the times. It sounds the death knell of political bossism and presages that in the future merit and not mere allegiance to the dominant party will determine elections to office.

Stillwater Gazette: The governor is certainly in the public eye just now, especially the Democratic eye, and he will be decidedly a more prominent character during the next term than in the two years past. What chance there would be to elect a Western man to the presidency two years hence cannot be stated with any degree of accuracy at this time. It does not seem as though the party would select a candidate for national honors from a state so strongly Republican as Minnesota, but strange things happen in politics, and Governor Johnson's victory Tuesday may inspire his party to the belief that as a national candidate he would be able to turn the electoral vote of Minnesota to Democracy two years hence.

Willmar Tribune (Pop.): The people of Minnesota have expressed their opinion in a way that should make a lasting impression on the men who guide the parties in the state. The tremendous majority rolled up for Johnson has no partizan significance. It is the expression of the desire of the people to reward a faithful servant and at the same time impress upon the Republican politicians that, while they may manipulate a convention and defeat the will of the people there, they cannot control the votes of the people at the election. It is a victory for clean government. It is a victory for the best element in the Republican party. It means that henceforth a governor can fight for the people and feel sure that they will stand by him, and it also means that the politicians will not feel that they can put up any corporation tool on the Republican ticket and rely upon partizan feeling to elect him. The independent vote is growing, and that is what we need to reform politics and get good, clean government.

Owatonna Journal-Chronicle (Rep.): We do not believe Minnesota will ever become a Democratic state as nearly as Steele county has become a Democratic county, but it won't be in the Vermont class as a Republican state for some time to come. We will have to enjoy for a while the sight of our Democratic friends fattening in their prosperity. After all they have won in a fair fight, as much through our mistakes as a party as on account of anything else, and it is up to us to swallow our medicine with a smile. The nation isn't lost yet.

Austin Herald (Rep.): The election of John A. Johnson, Democratic nominee for governor, by 50,000 majority was a grand Republican victory. It was a victory of the Republican party over the Republican machine. It was a victory that will be repeated in 1908 if the appointed machine fails to accede to the wishes of the party and nominates a candidate who cannot measure up with the size of the state and its interests.

F. M. Eddy in Sauk Center Herald: It was a "land slide." The Herald predicted the slide all right, but missed its direction. We expected to bury the other fellows, but it didn't turn out that way. John A. Johnson is the eighth wonder of the world. His campaign was the most wonderful ever waged and his victory is unparalleled in the history of politics. The great dailies of the state except the Duluth Herald and St. Paul Daily News were against him. Ninety-five per cent of the country press were lined up for Cole. The United States senators and every member and ex-member of congress were opposing him. He had had a strong clean, capable man opposed to him. He was up against a normal majority of forty thousand. Johnson simply made monkeys of the whole bunch and won out by a majority that will take the canvassing board till Christmas to count. It was a marvelous performance unmatched in the political history of the nation and in all human probability will never be repeated.

The Joys of Cuddletime.

As the evening shadows gather,
Then 'tis cuddletime, I know,
When my baby dressed for Dreamland,
Comes a-romping to me so;
Comes and begs of me to hold him
On my knees and rock-a-by,
As the purpling sun sinks lower
In the gleaming Western sky.

And he cuddles to me nearer,
As the firelight softly glows
And across the dusky portals
Ghostly, flickering shadows throws;
And two dimpled arms about me
Are clasped tighter for a kiss—
Aa, was ever richer necklace
Placed about one's neck than this?

Soon the drooping, drooping lashes
Cover up two eyes of brown,
And the tousled head so golden
On my breast sinks lower down.
Ah, the sweetness of the pleasure,
Making life one golden rhyme.
With a dimpled babe to fondle
When it comes to cuddletime.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Little Falls Transcript (Rep.): Hearst was for something more than a square deal. He intimated that the civic interests that had never given the people a square deal had something worse coming to them. It was well that he was defeated, but his immence vote showed that the people are angered at the failure of big interests to consent to fair public control.

Princeton Union (Rep.): From tablets unearthed in his archaeological researches Prof. Clay of the university of Pennsylvania has discovered that grafters existed so long ago as the days of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. And here have we been laboring under the impression that graft was a modern art!

Le Sueur News: While it is true that election is over, the necessity of fighting the trusts is as great as ever. Keep an eye on your congressmen and senators.

Anoka Free Press: It would be fine if Secretary Wilson, in providing for the enforcement of the pure-food law, should require the American hen to date her eggs.

Crookston Times: If you want an example of pure paternalism, behold the Minnesota school system. By means of annual appropriations from the legislature dispensed through a state school board, almost every school in the state is at the dictation of a board of five men, all of them whose chief thought in education is the state university.

St. Cloud Times: Frank Eddy, who has been booming Cole on the stump for four or five weeks, and helping to carry every county but two or three for Johnson, now consoles himself with the thought that McCleary was beaten.

Little Falls Transcript: There will certainly be a renewal of the movement for nomination of state candidates by the primary election system. A proposition that deserves attention is that there shall be a registration of voters for the primary election, and that voters shall signify what party ballot they propose to vote at the primary. If such declarations were made some time before the primaries there would be comparatively little false registration. The avowed members of any party should be allowed to select their own candidates.

Crookston Times: The Minnesota pine and the Minnesota deer are fast being exterminated, and there is less hope for the pine than for the deer.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: Now it remains to be seen if the state legislature will stand for the Duluth News Tribune's sand-bagging.

Northfield News: All over the state evidence piles up to show that the federal machine cared nothing about the Republican party or its candidates except so far as selfish purposes could be served. Pledges were obtained under duress; and the sentiment is growing that there should be an entire new deal.

Fergus Falls Wheelock's Weekly: The people have not yet learned to go into the personality of the whole state ticket and decide intelligently. That is their next duty.

As they knock, knock, knock,
Are not they a precious flock?
I'm alluding to the belles, belles, belles,

Hear the scandal of the belles!
Shrewish belles!
Human tongues as well as brazen may ring knells.
Reputations sent to pot!
Aren't they just a lovely lot?
I'm referring to the belles, belles, belles.

STREET CARS UNHEALTHY

Whether it is the close confinement of the work, the constant motion of the car or the jerking of the stop and start that is peculiarly effecting street car men, has not been definitely ascertained. The fact remains however that nine-tenths of the street car employees are troubled with stomach, liver and bowel derangements.

Samuel Booren, 1742 Munsey Ave., one of the oldest employees of the D. & L. Ry. Co., of Scranton, Pa., has recently recovered from a severe attack of this kind and when asked about it gave the following statement for publication.

"I have been doing street car work on the D. & L. line for thirty-two years and can say that for at least sixteen years I have suffered from stomach, liver, and bowel troubles. My appetite and digestion were poor and constipation was chronic. I had frequent headaches and always felt tired and worn out. I heard of many fellow workers who were similarly effected. I tried every remedy I could hear of, but nothing seemed to have the desired effect until I heard of Cooper's New Discovery and began its use. After I had finished one bottle I was wonderfully improved. Constipation gave way to a pleasing regularity of the bowels and I ate better, slept better and felt better than I had for months. It is the greatest medicine I have ever known."

Cooper's New Discovery cures stomach and kidney troubles, catarrh, rheumatism and blood diseases, it sells for one dollar per bottle. Cooper's Quick Relief liniment, the assistant remedy costs fifty cents. They are sold by all drug stores.

surface of the Rusian politics. In contrast with his reception, after his return from Portsmouth, when a throng gathered at the railroad station to greet him, and the street in front of his house was blocked the following day by carriages of high personages, coming to pay their respects, he was met at the depot by only Baron Alde, and a few reporters, and received few callers this morning. The rare arrivals were closely scrutinized by agents of the secret police on account of the reported threats of assissination.

Count Witte denied himself to reporters and declined to make a statement regarding his reported intention of resigning his seat in the council of the empire, and being a candidate for election to parliament. The Constitutional Democrats are eager to receive him in their ranks, in case he decides to be a candidate.

It is authoritatively stated that measures for relieving the Jews of many of their disabilities will be published as temporary legislation before the convocation of parliament as foreshadowed in Premier Stolypin's communication of Sept. 6. The full extent of the reforms is still a matter for discussion by the cabinet, but they comprise permission for Jews to live in the country, as well as in the cities within the pale, and the removal of certain restrictions placed on Jewish merchants and artizans in cities outside the pale. The full settlement of the Jewish problem is left to parliament.

The police have identified the man who yesterday threw a bomb at Gen. Rheinbot, perfect of police of Moscow, as a brother of Vladimir Mazury, leader of the flying group of terrorists, who was captured Sept. 12 and executed Sept. 14 for the murder of Col. Von Leshnikoff, of the secret police. A third brother, Sorgei Mazury, was executed for participation in the St. Petersburg customs robbery, and a fourth is now in prison here for membership in the revolutionary organization.

Gen. Rheinbot defends his action in shooting the terrorist after the latter had been seized by two of the policemen on the ground that Mazury was making a desperate struggle to escape and succeeded in drawing a revolver and firing a shot at the perfect of police.

A daughter of Gen. Benevsky, ex-governor general of Amur province, has been condemned to ten years' imprisonment at hard labor for participation in the plot to kill ex-Governor General Dabassoff of Moscow. Her hand was blown off while preparing a bomb and this led to her detection and conviction. She is only 24 years old and beautiful. She was married in prison to another political prisoner.

office. Yesterday he performed his promise.

Miss Ringwald, who had served in the office many years, regardless of politics, is prostrated over the affair, because she is the sole support of a widowed mother, and because her long service in the office has practically unfitted her for other duties.

A petition has been started in the city hall, headed by Mayor Smith, to induce Irvine to retain her services despite his promise to his wife.

47 BURNED; 38 INJURED

Casualty List in Indiana Wreck Holocaust Made Up.

Nearly All Victims Refugees From Misrule of Russia.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—Forty-seven immigrants were killed, and the bodies thirty-eight were injured, many seriously, in the collision between the immigrant train and a fast freight, at Woodville, Ind., yesterday morning. Six passenger coaches and three freight cars were hurled, with the locomotives, over an embankment. Fire followed at once, and forty-seven of the people, pinned in the wreck, were burned in plain sight of the survivors and farmers, who gathered in numbers.

Many of the victims were Russsian Jews and Poles, whose passages had been paid by refugees, who fled to America to escape massacres. These refugees made most pathetic scenes about the depot here, while several became so excited that they attempted to attack depot attaches, whose uniforms led them to believe they were employed by the Baltimore & Ohio road.

Among the wounded brought here was Mrs. Anna Chyza, who had come from Warsaw to meet her husband, who has been working here for six months. She is blind, and her husband recognized her as she was being carried through the crowd by two policemen. Before the officers could stop him, he fell across the stretcher, carrying it to the ground, and kissing his wife repeatedly. She recognized his voice, and they clung to each other so desperately that it required the efforts of both policemen to force them apart. Chyza struggled so fiercely that it was necessary to arrest him. He was released after being taken out of the depot.

Others whose relatives were among the injured begged to be allowed to take them to their homes, but the police had all of the injured taken to the hospital.

San Jose, Cal., Nov. 13.—Three men were killed by the explosion of the engine on the southbound Sunset limited train, on the Southern Pacific road, at Sargent's station, Sunday night. They were: Joseph Goodfellow, superintendent of the Southern Pacific block system; Samuel G. Gillespie, engineer; James Bladon, fireman. When the boiler exploded, the cab was hurled into the station, which was being passed at the time, and destroyed the structure, while the boiler, weighing 100 tons, shot forward through the air, striking the track ahead more than 300 feet away.

of the Democratic state central committee, in response to a letter sent to Mr. Ridgeway, who is a personal friend of Mr. Day's.

The letter recounted the fight which Governor Johnson had on his hands; how the press of the state, with but one or two single exceptions, was against him; how the corporations were combining to defeat him and elect another more to their liking.

Realizing the stand that Governor Johnson had taken in insurance matters, Mr. Lawson was more than willing to come to his aid. Governor Johnson was one among the few governors of the various states who stood shoulder to shoulder with Mr. Lawson when he was fighting almost singlehanded the great insurance corporations of the East.

Mr. Day thought that Mr. Lawson would like to know the fight being waged upon Governor Johnson, and would be glad to contribute something to his success. The letter found Mr. Lawson prostrate over the death of his wife. Mr. Ridgeway, who had not even approached him on the matters of the greatest importance, knew his deep feeling toward Governor Johnson, and forwarded Mr. Day's letter, which brought the above kind response.

LABOR'S PART IN POLITICS

party. It does not intend to dictate the party membership of any union man. It does propose to suggest from time to time legislative measures of advantage to labor and to secure the nomination and election of representatives and seantors favorable to their enactment, and to give full publicity to the action taken on these bills that all union men may know who are their friends."

Preceding this declaration of its political platform the committee outlined the political declarations of the American Federation of Labor made since 1894 to show that its entrance into active campaigning in the late election was not a sudden departure from its former policy, but a logical culmination of a long period of evolution.

"We have never opposed politics in our organization," says the report, "though we have always opposed partisan politics. Independent voting with an eye single to the interests of labor is urged upon all members of the affiliated unions."

The report shows that progress has been made in the movement for an interchange of union cards between the unions of America, Great Britain and Europe; that an alliance has been formed with the Farmer's Educational alliance for mutual support; that an effort has been made to secure government statistics on woman and child labor.

It was recommended that Rev. Charles Stelzle, superintendent of the department of church and labor of the board of home missions of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America, be seated as a fraternal delegate without a vote.

On the question of the dozen or more controversies between rival organizations in the similar trades which have long vexed the federation, the committee reported no progress, but declared that when such internal dissensions were carried to such length as to inconvenience employers who were disposed to be fair to labor, the limit had been reached.

INTEREST IS RATHER LIGHT

Few Attend Tax Sale and Receipts Are Small.

The auditor's annual tax sale which was begun at the courthouse yesterday resumed this morning and at noon was adjourned until tomorrow morning.

The sale, which is conducted by Deputy County Auditor L. A. Marvin, during Auditor Halden's absence from the city, will likely be finished by tomorrow night.

Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured in Three Days.

Morton L. Hill, of Lebanon, Ind., says: "My wife had Inflammatory Rheumatism in every muscle and joint; her suffering was terrible and her body and face were swollen almost beyond recognition; had been in bed for six weeks and had eight physicians, but received no benefit until she tried the Mystic Cure for Rheumatism. It gave immediate relief and she was able to walk about in three days. I am sure it saved her life." Sold by all druggists.

Yesterday Mr. Marvin sold about 200 descriptions which netted in the aggregate, about $4,000. This morning the sale amounted to about 100 descriptions in the county outside the city and the receipts will aggregate about $1,000. This will bring the total for the sale, thus far, up to about $5,000.

There are still a large number of descriptions to dispose of for the taxes and penalties, if purchasers can be found. The sale this morning was lightly attended.

ASSAULT CASE CALLED FIRST

Criminal Trials Will Begin in District Court Wednesday.

It is expected that the trial of criminal cases on the present term calendar of the district court will begin tomorrow.

County Attorney McClintock said today that the first criminal case that is likely to be tried is that of the state against Charles Hill who is charged wih assault in the second degree. It is claimed that Hill stuck a knife into John Mitchell in the Rising Sun hotel on Lake avenue about a month ago.

There will be qupite a list of criminal cases for trial this term, though the number may be somewhat reduced during the next few days if some of those who are indicted decide to plead guilty and avoid a trial.

COURTSHIP BY LETTER.

Three Years of Correspondence is Followed by Marriage.

New York, Nov. 13.—After three years of courtship by letter, neither having ever seen the other, Bartholomew Morse, 41 years old, who lives on Long Island, and Cinderella Parmlee, 41 years old, of Kansas City, Mo., met by appointment in the Grand Central station Saturday, and in fifteen minutes were married.

Dr. Henry Marsh Warren, the hotel chaplain, married the couple in the Hotel Belmont. Morse has a farm on Long Island and he and his bride went there immediately after the ceremony was performed.

NEW WAY

Of Celebrating Her Birthday Tried by a Hoboken Women.

New York, Nov. 13.—Mrs. Charles F. Kalgebhn, of Hoboken, found a new way of celebrating her birthday and tried it Sunday, for the first time, when she was 69 years old. Now she is looking forward to spending several more birthdays in the same way.

Mrs. Kalgebehn's celebration consisted in gathering her children and presenting them with $10,000. As the children are four, and there is $300,000 to divide, and Mrs. Kalgebehn's health is as good as it was twenty years ago, there are many more such celebrations in sight.

Years back when Mrs. Kalgebehn was still Miss Kussel, an elder brother, Philip, left Hoboken, went to Chicago and engaged in the wholesale grocery trade. He flourished. Last June the sister got word that Philip, a bachelor and wholesale grocer, was dead, and he had left to his sister in Hoboken his savings, amounting to $300,000.

Warranted the most wonderful Blemish Cure ever known. Sold by all druggists.

Prevents Flat-Foot

ONE OF THE REASONS.

Flat-Foot Pitched Forward — Perfect Foot Pitched Backward.

Foot specialists will tell you that in cases of "flat-foot" or extreme low instep, the leg becomes pitched forward, as shown by the shaded portion A B in the above illustration.

When the foot is perfect and the body correctly poised, the body pitches backward, as shown by C D above. In this position two-thirds of the weight is borne by the heels, while the toes merely give spring and vigor in walking or running.

To prevent flat-foot, Gotzian Shoes are made to hold the foot and leg in this correct relation—and thus give the right bodily poise and distribution of weight. But, while a shoe made to do this naturally fits better and is more comfortable, it does not look so graceful when off the foot. The front line of the upper is inclined slightly backward, and most shoe manufacturers prefer to make the front line perpendicular, so the shoes will look their best in a store window. Remember, the test is not how they look in the store window, but how they look—and fit—on your foot.

Most first-class dealers handle Gotzian Shoes and will gladly prove this argument by fitting you with a pair. Prices, $3.50 and $4.00.

An interesting and instructive booklet, "How Shoes Are Made," sent free on request. Also shows latest fall styles.

CHARGES ARE VERY STRONG

Nellie Brown Asks for Divorce From Charles I. Brown.

Based on allegations somewhat more startling in nature than are usual even in divorce cases, Nellie Brown has started a suit in the district court for a legal separation from Charles I. Brown. Mrs. Brown not only wants a decree of absolute divorce but she wishes her maiden name of Nellie Maud Budd, and the custody of their child.

According to the complaint Mrs. Brown is 28 and her husband is 34 years old. They were married at Prestel, Clare county about four years ago. For her first ground of complaint Mrs. Brown charges her husband with committing adultry with persons in a house of ill-fame at Grand Marais, Minn. Her second charge is that Brown is a "dipsomaniac," which according to Webster, means that he has an irrepressible desire for alcoholic drinks. Mrs. Brown says her husband compells her to keep on hand a larger portion of his wages so that he can have the money to go on a "periodical debauch" which is claimed to occur once a week. Thirdly, Brown is charged with the non-support of his wife and child.

Mrs. Brown alleges further that her husband even went so far as to urge her to enter a life of shame and sell her honor to earn money to keep him supplied so he could live in comfort and without working. She says she scorned the request and that Brown left her and went to Thief River Falls Minn.

In closing the complaint Mrs. Brown claims that her husband has done everything that he could to drag her down to his level and she does not believe him a fit person to have the custody of their little child. If she can get a divorce she would not even bear his name.

Mrs. Brown asks the court, in case a decree is granted, to make an order for a suitable amount of alimony and attorney's fees of $50. She says her husband is an ablebodied man and capable of earning $3 per day. A. T. Park represents Mrs. Brown.

WILL STAND TRIAL.

Clarence Potter Permits His Attorney to Enter His Plea.

Clarence Potter, who was indicted for unlawfully entering a building under circumstances not amounting to burglary, but with intent to commit malicious mischief, was arraigned before Judge Cant yesterday afternoon. Potter remained silent when requested to plead, and his attorney, Cyrus Crandall, entered a plea of not guilty. Potter is the man who entered the Scott residence, on Lake avenue, several days ago, and frightened three little girls whom he chased into the building.

J. U. Riopel, who was indicted for forgery in the second degree, pleaded guilty, and his attorney, Hans Haroldson, asked that clemency be shown the young man, because of his previous record of good behavior and the respectability of his parents. Judge Cant reserved sentence until he consults with the county attorney to learn more of the alleged facts in the case.

FARMER MADE INSANE.

Feared McCleary's Defeat Would Bring Ruin to the Nation.

Mankato, Minn., Nov. 13.—Driven insane from the fear that the result of the recent election would bring about the ruin of the nation, Martin N. Thorstad, a farmer of Butternut Valley township, was examined before a commission in the probate court yesterday afternoon and committed to the asylum at St. Peter.

Few speeches during the campaign were moreearnest or impassioned than that delivered by Thorstad during the progress of his examination in court. Striking a dramatic attitude, with rare eloquence he deplored the election results. Later he gave further evidence of being mentally unsound by picturing the enthusiasm shown at a rousing meeting on the Fourth of July, when he made a great speech nominating James Thompson McCleary for reelection to congress from this district. After relating the story of his nominee's defeat, he took up the McCleary slogan of "Hammond, Hunger and Hard Times," and made the courtroom ring with his prophecy that "the greatest nation of the world is going to the dogs."

Thorstad is a farmer of moderate means, living in an obscure part of the county. He was violent at different times during the day and was handled by the officers with great difficulty. Thorstad is 45 years of age and has a wife and seven children.

THE WORLD OF SPORTS

INTEREST AT FEVER HEAT

Gophers Are Now Heroes of Hour Throughout the State.

Carlisle Game Will be Climax of Successful Season.

The eyes of the football world are now turned on Minneapolis, where next Saturday the Gophers and the Carlisle Indians will come together in the last big game of the season in the West.

The outcome will not settle the world's championship, but it will come as close to doing so as any game which will be played this season.

Minnesota is undoubtedly entitled to the Western championship, or at least has the first claim to it and will undoubtedly be acknowledged as the leading Western team by the critics.

Michigan is the only team that can dispute the claim, and the Wolverines have not played any of the big Western teams, but Illionis and the Illinois had no trouble in scoring against Yost's machine.

The Indians, however much to the disappointment of the Minnesota rooters, will not come to Minneapolis with a clean record. Harvard managed to defeat the redskins while Minnesota was trimming Stagg's outfit, and while the score was small, being but 5 to 0, it was sufficient to give Harvard the call.

If the Gophers, however, can show their ability to score on the Indians on straight football and cross the Carlisle line once or twice, it will show their superiority over Harvard.

Yale and Princeton are still undefeated in the East, but Harvard stands a good show of getting revenge on the Blue this year and if she succeeds Yale will be out of the running.

The Minnesota-Carlisle game, therefore, will go far toward settling the championship question, and will give an excellent idea of the comparative strength of the Eastern and Western teams.

Interest in football at the university is at fever heat. Minnesota stock jumped about 100 per cent when "Bob" Marshall sent the oval sprinting over the Maroon goal last Saturday afternoon, and the Gophers are the heroes of the hour throughout the state. All records for attendance will probably be broken next Saturday, and the Minnesota-Carlisle game will surpass even the Chicago game in interest.

In the early part of the season the Michigan-Pennsylvania game was hailed as the big contest which would settle the question of supremacy between the Eastern and Western teams, but this is now overshadowed by the game at Minneapolis. The Wolverines have had their troubles with the second class college teams, and Pennsylvania colors have been trailed in the dust by both Swarthmore and the Indians.

FAST BOUTS AT HIBBING

Ben Trimble and Young Cohen Are Given the Decisions.

Big Delegation of Duluth Sports Witnesses the Mills.

Hibbing, Nov. 13.—Special to The Herald.)—Sports from all over the northern part of the state assembled here last evening to witness the bouts in the Power theater. A large number of Duluth and Superior men were on hand, and traveling salesmen from all parts of the state made Hibbing their stopping place yesterday.

The first go was a fifteen round bout between Ben Trimble of St. Paul and James Barry of Chicago. For eight or ten rounds the honors were about even, and the pace was fast, but during the last few rounds Barry was plainly weakening, and Trimble had all the better of the argument. He was given the decision by Referee Bob Cherry at the end of the fifteenth round.

The second go was to have been a ten-round event, between Eddie McCann and Young Cohen, both of Superior. Young Cohen, however, proved altogether too much for his opponent, and sent him to the floor for the count in the sixth round.

DEER RIVER IS DEFEATED

Light and Speedy Grand Rapids Team Proves its Superiority.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Nov. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Although outweighed by nearly sixteen pounds to the man, Grand Rapids defeated Deer River here, Sunday afternoon, by the score of 26 to 6. The home team played a fast and clean game of football, and plainly outclassed their opponents. The scores were made by four touchdowns and a place kick. Lloyd Johnson of Grand Rapids was largely responsible for the victory, playing a magnificent game for the home team.

HAILED AS CHAMPIONS

Chicago Critics Give Minnesota First Place in the West.

Marshall Was Accused of Roughness by Referee Hackett.

The Chicago Record-Herald halls Minnesota as the Western champions.

Following is the aftermath of the game published in that paper:

"The gophers now have the right to consider themselves the virtual champions of the West, although the fact that neither Chicago nor Minnesota meets Wisconsin or Michigan makes the technical championship claim invalid. It is not probable that either the Wolverines or the cardinals could defeat Williams' aggregation, according to the "dope" so far this season, and therefore the Minnesota eleven will not be disputed when it claims the honors of the West.

"It developed yesterday that "Bobby" Marshall, who won the game for Minnesota with his place kick, came near being put out of the game in the first half for rough play. The colored player used rough tactics repeatedly, and the officials appeared not to notice it. Referee Hackett, however, took note of Marshall's style of playing, and told the other officials that he should be removed. Umpire Burkland, however, objected to taking such measures, and allowed the Gopher end to continue playing.

"According to Hackett, Marshall was plainly violating the rules by unnecessary roughness. Few of the spectators knew how narrowly a sensation was averted. Had Marshall been removed from the game, Minnesota's best man would have been gone, and the result of the game, in all probability, would have been different. The Maroon players spoke of Marshall's roughness after the game, but no protest was made to the officials.

"The inhabitants of the Maroon camp just began to realize their defeat yesterday. The students had had a strong hunch that Minnesota would get the small end of the score, and it was hard for them to take the defeat. Coach Stagg declared he had already forgotten about it and would spend his time getting ready for Illinois and Nebraska.

"'I still hold that Minnesota proved to be the better team on the muddy field,' said Stagg. 'Our work was entirely spoiled by the bad underfoot condition, and there is little more to say about it. I think that both teams might have gone on playing indefinitely without scoring a touchdown.

"'I am not at all sure that Illinois is going to be an easy proposition. We will work hard for the Illini, just as we do for any game. I cannot say whether we will use our new plays next Saturday or not. For that matter, I don't know whether we will have to do so or not. Illinois made a mighty good showing against Michigan, and I think they can furnish us an argument all right.

"'I saw Nebraska play Minnesota, and I found out that they are a shifty, fast and clever lot of players. They worked tricks on the Gophers several times, and the backs got away for several long runs. I only hope that the weather conditions will be decent for our next two games.'"

Minnesota rooters take exception to the statements regarding the rough tactics employed by Marshall. Referee Hackett is known to be antagonistic toward the colored end, and so far as the rooters themselves could see, Marshall played a perfectly clean game. He mixed it pretty freely with his opponent, Walker, but so far as could be seen, Walker was as much to blame as Marshall.

A CORNER IN SPORTS

Queer are the ways of muckerism.

Down in Chicago, Saturday night, the muckers did their best to bring the students of the colleges into disrepute. The most enthusiastic and vociferous supporters of the respective institutes of learning probably never got any closer to college than the front gate. One person, who loudly proclaimed that he was a "Minnesota guy," was decked out in several yards of Maroon and Gold ribbon, and in a thick and unsteady voice, tried to start something which he imagined was a Minnesota yell, in one of the down town cafes. He was promptly silenced and thrown out into the street by the proprietor.

Accompanied by their "lady friends" the muckers filled the beer gardens, the cafes and the concert halls, and proceded to prove to the other onlookers that they were "students."

The students for the most part contented themselves wih a visit to the theater, and perhaps a little supper following, but thanks to the muckers, many gained the idea that the collegians spent the night in a drunken debauch.

SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR VETERAN IS MURDERED.

Butte, Mont., Nov. 13.—Austin O'Malley, 37 years of age, a veteran of the Spanish-American war and said to have been one of the foremost to follow Gen. Frederick Funston in his famous swim across the Bag-Bag river in the Philippines, is dead in the hospital here from the effects of a wound said to have been inflicted by Maj. W. E. Deeney. Deeney is under arrest charged with murder. The cutting occurred last Sunday and is said to have been entirely without provocation. O'Malley is said to have been seated in a saloon discussing politics with several friends when Deeney suddenly entered and slashed him across the face with a knife. The wound was not thought to be dangerous, but complications later ensued which caused death. Maj. Deeney has been a resident of Butte for many years and has the reputation of being a peaceful and law-abiding citizen. He refuses to talk about the case.

LITTLE OF EVERYTHING

Done by Emergency Woman at Busy Housekeeper's Call.

Does Shopping, Acts as Companion and Makes Preserves.

New York, Nov. 13.—The untalented woman when she faces the problem of bread winning is perhaps the most deserving of sympathy of any of her sex. One who found a field calls herself "emergency woman" and gives it as her experience that there is plenty of opportunity for other women to follow in her footsteps. She admits, however, that the preliminary years of drumming up custom were not so easy that one cares to dwell upon them, says the Sun.

The emergency woman fills in any gap in the domestic fabric at a moment's notice. While she has no one great talent she has a smattering of many, and it is by making a patchwork of them, which has been carefully fitted to the pattern of life, that she has been able to manufacture a cover for the very coldest weather.

Her telephone bell is constantly ringing and the belt of inquiries extends from Harlem down town to the area of business and professional offices, where women find it necessary to depend on another to help them out.

She is called upon to do all sorts and kinds of work, and has discovered that every sort and kind of information that she has ever gained can be put to practical use. The trouble with the woman who is obliged to become a wage earner is that she is discouraged at the outset because she cannot do one thing so well that she is in instant demand.

The emergency woman when the reporter saw her was putting up fruit cake and plum puddings for a long list of customers.

"I used to do this in my married days as a joke; now I find that I can turn a pretty penny by it. Of course, I could not depend on this for my support, but it is a fraction and it doesn't take so many fractions to make a unit, if they are only important enough to begin with.

"Housewives know the value of the cake and pudding that are prepared in the fall for Christmas table. There is as much difference as there is in the vintage of a wine that is recently bottled, and one that has the bouquet of age."

During the summer while her customers were out of the city the emergency woman took advantage of the cool days to put up a large stock of preserves, brandied peaches, marmalades and jams. Some of these she makes every year to fill up the shelves of housekeeping patrons, a great many fill new orders from bachelor women and young couples who do light housekeeping, and she even has a few bachelors who have breakfast in their rooms and like to have a shelf of sweet things.

While you might think that trade would lag in the hot, weather, the contrary has been the case, and she has been kept hard at work. Her mail is a large one, consisting of requests from out of town folk to send some forgotten article left in the flurry of departure, to do some shopping, to purchase bridge whist prizes, or to take advantage of some bargain noted in the Sunday papers.

"Just to give you an example," she says between hurried steps from pantry to visitor, "one of my ladies telegraphed me to get her some arrack punch for a 5 o'clock tea she was going to have, and the very same mail I got a hurry call to meet a pet dog.

She is called upon often to open and air apartments before the homecoming, to find maids and have them ready—the most herculean labor of all—and in lieu of that to do such work in the apartment as may render it habitable.

In her spare moments the emergency woman has perfected herself in the triple need of modern days, manicuring, facial massage and shampooing. She does not care to make her money in this way if better opportunities offer, but she can fill in unemployed hours.

In the neighborhood of private schools she can often be seen, a trim little figure, leading one or two children to their daily tasks, and when school is over she returns to escort them home. Many women are unable to spare a servant or to go themselves, while the child cannot be trusted to go alone.

Her care of children extends to a wider field. She takes them to the dentist, to the matinees, to any and all kinds of amusements. Often at children's parties she attends, to help out in amusing them, and on her child list are the names of two little ones whom she takes once every week to visit their grandparents, from whom the parents are estranged.

From some of the fashionable schools outside the limits of town she meets a group of girls every fortnight, and takes them to luncheon, and then to the matineee or concert. She does not leave them until the train pulls out of the station.

Another of her interesting duties is the entertainment of guests who want to shop or go to places of interest, of which their hosts are tired. By filling in a day of this kind she relieves the situation, and brings the guests back at night tired and happy, to find the woman of the house delighted to welcome them, having had her own day free.

Among these customers is a wealthy bachelor, whose mother makes him an annual visit, and with whom she takes delightful trips of all kinds; this engagement is a from year to year one, and the week of that visit all her other duties have to be rearranged. Once when she was ill the visit was postponed until her recovery.

Convalescent nursing is another of her offerings. She can give no regular trained service, but for the patient who can take short walks, wants to be read to or roused from moods of languor and depression, she makes a capital substitute for the professional.

The private detective work she has been called upon to do now and then for a well known law firm, she admits, is the most exciting. She may go to a smart hotel and stay, take hurried trips out of town, or whatever may be required.

In speaking of her experience of this kind the emergency woman displays a sense of humor which may be one of the elements of her success.

"In one of my cases a man and wife had been divorced, the court had given the child to the father, and the mother had promptly kidnaped her; she had married again and lived in a beautiful house on Riverside Drive. The father was anxious to have his little girl, but hesitated to kidnap in turn, or resort again to legal measures, for the girl was 14, and he thought he would rather win her regard than attempt to coerce her.

"I watched my chance and one morning met the little girl on her way to school, for the time unguarded. I spoke to her and told her of meeting her father and how anxious he was to see her. She agreed to meet him and promised to keep that meeting secret. I telegraphed the father, who came 'way from the South. He talked with her and they came to an understanding that she was to visit him for three months, and if at the end of that time she wanted to return she could do so.

Six weeks afterward I happened to be in the neighborhood and there was Frances—the little girl—walking nonchalantly to school. I spoke to her again and she acted very embarrassed, admited that she had been with her father, but said I had better write to him.

"As to the money part of the transaction, that had been settled long ago, but I was curious, so I did write, and he answered my letter, saying that it had been a great mistake trying to change existing conditions, for when he came to live with Frances he found her so much like her mother that he couldn't stand her at all and had to send her back.

"I have been asked what I don't do in my capacity as emergency woman, and frankly I don't believe I could tell. It is a profession that grows by use. Sometimes when I am called upon to shampoo a lady's hair we get talking, and before I have finished I have discovered some household or social need, which I can fill, and the hour's work may extend to a whole day or even longer. Naturally I take these opportunities to advertise myself, as that is the best, in fact, the only way to get known.

"My scale of wages, of course, fluctuates with circumstances. Sometime I am paid by piece work, whatever that may be; again, with a great many of my customers I receive a monthly sum for all services rendered. I keep an account of what I have done during the stated period, and the items of time and service have their separate values; so far no one has ever disputed them.

"Work of this kind is very pleasing from its novelty. No two days are alike; one of them I may be automobiling through Westchester county with a charming old lady, the next attending a matinee with a group of school girls, another reading to an invalid, and another putting the last touches to a woman sitting for her photograph who depends upon my taste rather than the poses of the professional."

What the emergency woman does not say, but what probably accounts in great measure for her success, is her personality. She has a serene, well poised manner which would not be readily ruffled; she has a wide experience of the world and is a good talker; her dress is pleasing without obtrusiveness, and, in a word, she could fill any place without a misfit. Above all, she has the naturally cheerful manner which is almost indispensable to any one who gains a livelihood by catering to the fancies of human kind.

REDUCES THE CHANCES OF DELAY ON RAILROAD.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 13.—Winter risks of delay on the main line of the Pennsylvania railroad east of Pittsburg have been largely reduced now that the company's improvements at Hollidaysburg are about completed. At this point a vast freight yard with fifty-five miles of track, has been established in connection with the ePnnsylvania's new low grade freight line. If the main line at this mountain trouble-spot should at any time be obstructed, it will be possible to divert all traffice without loss of time by way of Hollidaysburg.

While this is the practical advantage the public gains by the improvement, interest is also centered at this point because it is the place where canal boats, in years gone by, were taken out of the old canal, transferred to cars and hauled up the mountains by the old Portage railroad. It was then the scene of great busde.

The increasing volume of freight business in the past few years made it necessary to relieve the main line, and for five or six years, the low grading freight line has been building for this purpose. For its entire length the maximum grade is three-tenths of one per cent. At West Morrisville, near Trenton, the low grade line joins the main line to Philadelphia and Jersey City. "Runs" on the low grade line are arranged from Pitcarin, just outside of Pittsburg; from Hollidaysburg to Enola, near Harrisburg, and from Enola to West Morrisville.

In the Hollidaysburg yards there are engine accommodations, including a 24-stall engine house, coal wharf, two 75-foot turntables, and four ashpits with pneumatic hoists and traveling cranes. There are shop yards (for repairing cars), machine shop, power house, store house, oil house, planing mill and lumber sheds.

Opening of New Towns Causes Inquiries at Land Office.

Official Gives an Interesting Account of Opening of Towns.

Owing to the unusually large number of persons who have been waiting at the federal building for the past two weeks in order to make application for land on the three townships, the first of which was opened this morning, people in and about Duluth have become greatly interested in the proceeding and the officials at the land office have received numerous inquiries concerning the opening of new towns in general.

The fact that there are a number of students and teachers among those who are camped in the corridor of the federal building is one of the causes for the interest manifested. It is said there are a half dozen college students as well as several teachers in the line and therefore the pupils and teachers at the local schools are wondering how the land is opened and why the applicants have to wait so long a time before the opening takes place.

"The proceeding which began today and will continue tomorow and Thursday, is known as the opening to entry of new towns," said an official at the land office to an inquirer yesterday afternoon. "Throwing open a town to entry is not the same as opening it to settlement and these towns are being thrown open to entry.

"The first procedure in the opening of a new town after enough people have settled upon the land, is the circulation of a petition among the settlers for the survey of the land. This petition is addressed to the surveyor general, who in this state is located at St. Paul, in the person of Eli S. Warner. It is necessary to have the names of a certain proportion of the settlers on the petition and if the surveyor general finds this to be the case and the petition correct in every other particular, he acts acordingly.

"It is his duty to send out notices to surveyors and engineers and to receive bids for the work of surveying the land. The surveyor who gets the work of surveying the land is instructed to take great care to note on his chart or field plat of the land just what parts of the town are occupied by settlers. This is done so that there will be less confusion at the opening and so that applicants will not file for the land which has already been claimed by settlers.

"After the land has been surveyed and the chart on the plat has been filed in the office of the surveyor general, notice is sent to the local land office in which ever district the towns are situated and the matter is turned over to the land commissioner. The land commissioner advertises the opening of the towns for a period of three weeks, during which time the applicants may start to form a line at the entrance to the land office as soon as they please. This is not generally done until only a few days before the opening.

"On the morning of the opening, the man or woman who is first in the line has the choice of filing for any tract of land up to 160 acres. Anyone who has settled on any of the land may come to the land office any time within ninety days of the filing of the plat with the surveyor general and lay claim to his particular share of the town. If this is found to be a bonafide claim and is borne out by testimony, the land is his and a title to it is given him. If anyone else has filed upon the land at the opening, a contest before the land commissioner is the result, but the squatter or settler has a prior right.

DEFEAT OF WADSWORTH

Regretted by Both Democrats and Republicans in Congress.

Increase of Rural Mail Carriers Likely to be Made.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, Nov. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Among the unexpected results of the election last Tuesday was the defeat of the chairmen of two of the most important committees of the house of representatives, Messrs. Babcock of Wisconsin and Wadsworth of New York. The former has been at the head of the committee on the District of Columbia for many years, and was also chairman of the Republican congressional committee until the close of the last campaign, when he was succeeded by James S. Sherman of New York.

Mr. Babcock's defeat was due to the factional fight in his home state and to the antagonism of Senator LaFollette, who, having failed to defeat Babcock for renomination, is reported to have used all his influence to defeat him at the polls.

The elimination of James W. Wadsworth as a factor in national legislative affairs is sincerely regretted by every man in congress who has been heard from to date. Mr. Wadsworth has been at the head of the committee on agriculture for the past ten years, and it is due very largely to his intelligent knowledge of the agricultural affairs of the country that the department has grown to be the important division of the federal administration which it is today. Ten years ago the budget provided less than three million dollars for the expenses of the department. The appropriations this year are approximately nine millions, or three times as much. Mr. Wadsworth made a close study of the work of every bureau of the department, and he made personal examinations of the accounts of the different bureaus each year. The biennial "hearings" upon the apppropriation bill are telling witnesses to the knowledge possessed by the chairman, for they show on each page, through the questions which he submitted to the various bureau and division chiefs, that he always kept himself fully informed as to the work and accomplishments of each.

It was because of his insistent enquiries into the most minute details of the work of the department that he was not cordially loved by some of the scientists. Each of these gentlemen naturally believes his particular work to be the most important in connection with the department, and naturally each desires to extend the scope of the work upon which he was engaged. But Mr. Wadsworth, while always willing to aid in extending useful work, was never disposed to waste the public funds, and he frequently had to cut down the estimates in order to avoid extravagance. The outcome of this policy was the quiet antagonism of some of these chiefs of bureaus. Several of them contributed to the columns of the agricultural press and aided in poisoning the minds of the editors of those journals against Wadsworth.

In 1900, during the fight over the proposition to increase the tax on oleomargarine to a prohibitive figure, Mr. Wadsworth, although a large owner in several creameries, declined to be a party to the movement. He held that if people want oleomargarine they have a right to buy it without paying an exorbitant tax, and he proposed a substitute which would, if adopted, protect the consumer and the maker of butter absolutely, without destroying a legitimate industry. There is reason to believe that the Wadsworth substitute or something very similar to it, will be adopted by congress this winter. But Mr. Wadsworth's position in 1900 and his attitude towards the meat inspection bill last May was used as a club to drive voters away from him by the thousand. The district was literally flooded with circulars and newspapers picturing him as a friend of the packers, an enemy of the farmers, and an antagonist of the president.

Mr. Wadsworth was urged to appeal to the president to refute the latter charge, but he declined to do so. There are several facts connected with the meat inspection legislation which are not generally known. In the first place, Mr. Wadsworth has urged for ten years that the cost of inspection ought to be paid by the packer so long as inspection was not compulsory. But the comptroller of the treasury decided that under the section of the revised statutes, which prohibits the acceptance of voluntary service by the government, it was not competent for the agricultural department to appoint inspectors to be paid by the packers. When inspection for all meat food products to be used in interstate commerce was made compulsory in the interest of public health, Mr. Wadsworth held, and congress stood by him, that the cost of such inspection was a just and righteous charge against the public revenues. Further than this the president himself declared that he opposed the policy of public payment of inspection only because a time might come when the appropriations would become inadequate and inspection might fail. But this contingency was met by the increase of the appropriation for inspection from $800,000 to $3,000,000 for the current fiscal year.

Still the public had been worked up to such a degree that no argument in favor of Mr. Wadsworth was of any avail. He could not follow the lies which had been circulated and which were circulated up to the hour of election. These misstatements of his position and the fact that there were factional fights in the two senatorial districts comprising his congressional bailiwick, brought about his downfall, and as a result New York state will lose the chairmanship of the committee on agriculture and congress loses one of its most popular and efficient members and every one in the house, democrat and Republican alike, regrets the result.

One of the most probable outcomes of the coming session of congress is the increase of the pay of the carriers of mail matter over the rural free delivery rutes. When this service was first inaugurated by John Wanamaker in the Harrison administration, the few carriers employed were paid at the rate of $600 per annum. Last year the maximum pay was increased to $720 and still there are plenty of applicants for every vacancy in the service. But it is admitted on all sides that the pay is utterly inadequate for the work performed. The average length of each rural route is twenty-five miles and this distance must be made on schedule time, every day in the year except Sundays and holidays. No carrier can keep up the service with less than two horses, for beasts of burden, unlike men, break down under constant work. The cost of keeping two horses is at least $25 per month, under the most favorable conditions, and the expense of repairs and renewals to harness and wagons foots up a conservative sum each month in addition. The carrier on a rural route, therefore, puts in ten hours of hard work each day for a net salary of little more than $30 a month. In these days, when even farm laborers earn $30 to $35 a month, besides board and washing, it will be seen that Uncle Sam's postmen in the country are very poorly paid servitors.

Postmaster General Cortelyou has endorsed the recommendation of his assistant, P. V. De Graw, that the salary of these men be increased to $1,000 each, and the recommendation is expected to meet the approval of the president. The carriers themselves are well organized and there is every reason to believe that the country generally, especially the rural districts, will aid in the movement, especially when it is recalled that the city carriers' minimum pay is greater than that of his brother on the mud roads and that he works but eight hours daily and has no horse to keep.

Representative Howell of Utah is to be the next man attacked on the "Mormon" question if Senator Du Bois of Idaho can carry out his plan. Mr. Howell is serving his second term in congress and although he is attached to the "Mormon" religion he has never been accused of the violation of the law in any particular. But there are a certain number of would-be reformers in this country who forget apparently, that the constitution guarantees to each individual absolute religious liberty. Fortunately this bigotry is dying out rapidly. Thirty years any president who invited either a Catholic or a Jew into his cabinet would have stirred up a hornet's nest. But President Roosevelt appointed Mr. Wynne, a devout Catholic, postmaster general and he has just invited Mr. Strauss of New York, one of the most eminent Hebrews in America, to take the portfolio of the department of commerce and labor.

Senator Smoot is an apostle of the Mormon church, and that fact was the cause of one of the most bitter fights ever made to unseat a senator. Compared with the onslaught upon Senator Smoot the attacks against the validity of the election of Senator Bryce and Senator Clark of Montana, some years ago were as the tickling of a house fly to the kick of an ostrich.

Senator Smoot still retains his seat and he will probably continue to do so until the end of his term. There is no chance to reopen the contest against him in the senate and in consequence the scene is to be transferred to the house. Mr. Howell is to be put to the expense and inconvenience of defending himself in a contest simply because the Mormons, who are American citizens, continue to exercise their political rights and refuse to abstain from voting a ticket which suits them just to please Senator Du Bois. That gentleman will retire from the senate in March, largely because the Mormons and other Republicans of Idaho joined in electing a legislature which will choose a Republican as his successor.

James D. Yoemans, who died here about two weeks ago, was the first man ever appointed to the interstate commerce commission from outside the legal fraternity. Mr. Yeomans knew nothing of the technicalities of the law, but he was a railroad man literally from the ground up. He had served on an engine, in charge of trains, as superintendent of railroads and a builder of iron and steel highways. There was no branch of the railroad business with which he was not familiar, and his connection with the federal railway commission was a distinct benefit to that body, as well as to the railroads and the shippers. Scores of intricate and annoying problems were solved by his common sense, his knowledge of men and roads and his sterling if blunt way at reaching for results. He resigned from the commission a year ago last March to devote himself to his farm holdings in Virginia, and as he was a lover of outdoor life as well as a practical agriculturist, he accomplished great results with lands which had for years been unproductive. He was the principal owner in the High Point dairy farm, twenty miles below Washington, where a herd of upwards of 300 cows is maintained. The property consists of about 5,000 acres and the appointments of the dairy are second to none in the country.

About three years ago he purchased another farm of about 2,500 acres, also in Virginia, but above Washington on the Potomac, where he made his summer home. It was here that the disease developed last summer which resulted in his death.

J. D. Yeomans was an example of stirling, sturdy Americanism. He was short on education but he made up for the disadvantages of his early schooling by using the hard common sense with which he was endowed, to the very very best advantage of his country, his family and himself.

Antelope Hunt, in Which Men Were Only Absorbed Spectators.

Feline and Canine Formed a Queer Pair of Hunters.

New Orleans, Nov. 13.—"Very often men in my profession in their travels around the globe see queer friendships formed, friendships in which natural enemies bury the hatchet and live in the sweet bonds of peace, just as though it had not been ordained—since the fall of man and the entrance of sin into the world—that they should ever be at each other's throats, and if you care to listen, I will tell you a little story along this line which may prove interesting."

I. K. Blackwell, an American, for years in the English merchant service, had an attentive group around him, in the lobby of the St. Charles hotel, a few nights ago, and as everybody wanted to hear it, the story was forthcoming.

"Just before I started to run from Liverpool to this port, on the Head Line ships, I was attached as second officer to the Pearl of Ceylon, a British steamer in the East India trade," Mr. Blackwell started off after lighting a fresh cigar, "and we made a regular trip to Calcutta and points along the way.

"On one of our voyages something went amiss with our screws and we had to lay up at Calcutta for two long months while the necessary repairs were put on the Pearl of Ceylon at the government yards. We were masters of our own time, that is, those of us in the officers' mess, and whiled the days away as best we could for a couple of weeks, and then the whole thing growing monotonous, we made up a party with some young men and went up the Ganges for a week's hunt.

"We stopped at a small place about thirty miles from Calcutta, a place with a name I'm not going to even attempt to pronounce, and using the town as our headquarters, made inroads into the jungle country, looking for tigers, lions, elephants, leopards, wild dogs or any other fierce creature the district produced.

"We were earnest sportsmen, I'd have you know, but our luck wasn't great, and the most terrific beast we killed in the eight days of our excursion was a half grown jackal, a poor little beast that couldn't have hurt a child. We were keen enough for sight of a tiger, or even one of the measly India lions, which don't compare in strength or ferocity with the feline king of Africa, but never a one of either beast did we see, and perhaps it was lucky that we didn't, as none of us could hit a bullseye, and were all a nervous lot.

"This story hasn't to do with any achievement of our own, but is about a cheetah, or hunting leopard, and a tame wild dog. That tame wild dog sounds paradoxical, doesn't it? But there's no other way to put it, as there are only two kinds of dogs in India, the wild dogs, capable of giving a tiger a lively riffle, and the Hindoo mongrels, as starved and wretched-looking as their brown skinned masters.

"The cheetah and dog were owned by Lieut. Bursley, a young officer who had command of the small force of soldiers kept in the bum town, more for a display than anything else. Bursley was a fine chap, and although he tried to keep a straight face, we could see that he was laughing at us each evening when we came back to the post with nothing to show for our shooting exercise but some ridiculously small birds or animals as equally insignificant.

"We had noticed Bursley's wild dog and cheetah, but too much taken up with our hunting, didn't pay much attention to the queer pair until nearly the end of our visit. The leopard was small, smaller than the regular fells leopardus family, which inhabited the jungles further up the country, but he was quick and agile and every movement in his long, lithe body spoke of a terrible strength, while the dog was very large, larger than a mastiff, with heavy jaws, and head that reminded one of the red fox, which used to be plentiful up around my home in Ohio, when I was a boy.

"The cheetah was named Nippo, and the dog was called Lionheart, because of his known courage and readiness to fight any beast that walked, and both animals, strange to say, were bosom friends.

"Bursley used his cheetah for hunting deer and jungle wolves, and, doubtless he felt sorry for us. Two days before it was time for us to go back to Calcutta, he proposed that we go with him the next morning for a little—as he called it—real sport. 'I'll bring Nippo along, and you'll see what a fine huntsman he is,' the lieutenant said, and we all jumped at the invitation.

"The next morning, bright and early, we started, Bursley, a cousin of his lately from Eengland for his health; myself and five others who had made the trip with me from Calcutta. We went on foot, and had six or seven natives to carry our arms and provisions and two to look after Nippo.

"Nippo did no journey on foot, but rode in a little canvas covered, two-wheeled cart, which was drawn by one of the Hindoos. Another in our party I forgot to mention was Lionheart, who trotted along through the jungle grass at his master's side.

"We made four miles in as many hours, going was so slow through the underbrush, and about noon reached the portion of the wilderness which was belted across in a straight line with a thin fringe of trees.

"The trees separated the jungle country from an undulating plain, high and dry, where deer, a species of antelope, abounded. After partaking of a hasty lunch Bursley stationed us in the wooded section, and told us to lie still and make no sound, and while we were assuming comfortable attitudes on the green carpeted earth, the lieutenant went to the wagon and took Nippo out.

"Nippo wore a brass collar, to which was attached a chain, and Bursley kept tight hold on the chain to prevent his pet from springing away in a mad pursuit of the game which his feline instinct told him was near. Bursley, as is customary in handling the hunting leopards, dipped a hoodwink over Nippo's eyes, and then led him to a place amid the trees where a clear view of the greasy plain was to be had, and while we waited, including Nippo, Lionheart crouched on his haunches, his great head resting on his forepaws, and seemed an interested spectator to the arrangement going on about him.

"We lay still for half an hour, when slowly moving over the plain in our direction we saw a herd of antelope. The long-limbed, graceful animals, with what little breeze there was blowing toward us, preventing them from scenting danger, came steadily to their doom, and soon they were within less than 100 yards of our place of concealment. They would have afforded an excellent target for rifle practice, but none of us wanted to use guns then, we were so anxious to see Nippo work, and in a short time our desire was gratified.

"Bursley, still holding to the chain, led the blindfolded animal to the edge of the trees, and slipping the collar from Nippo's neck, and the hoodwink from his eyes, whispered, "Catch him boy!" Nippo appeared to crouch flat on the ground, and moving his legs swiftly forward, passed over the ground like a mottle streak of light.

"He was upon the antelopes before the luckkless creatures had any idea of danger, and rising from the ground in a mighty spring, he landed fair on the back of a full-grown buck, and brought the antelope bleating its death cry to the ground.

"Nippo, as it afterwards developed, had broken the antelope's back with the force of his spring, and crushed his spinal cord at the back of the neck with his strong teeth. The other deer had taken fright on the instant, and ere we were well out of cover they were scampering away across the plain as fast as a ship driving before a hurricane.

"We all advanced to where Nippo still crouched on his prey, and noticed that Bursley carried in his hand a large piece of cooked liver. The liver was to be used to coax the cheetah from the antelope, the queer nature of the beast making it obstinate and unwilling to relinquish anything it has killed unless first fed. When Bursley reached the dead antelope, Nippo, without leaving the carcass, thrust forward his beautifully marked head and took the liver most willingly, and gobbled it up, too, but he did not leave his prize, and Bursley looked at us and smiled as the reason was evident.

"Big Lionheart dashed up, and the cheetah welcomed his approach with a loud 'meow!' expressing genuine pleasure, and not until the wild dog, with his terrible teeth, had torn out a choice strip of flesh from the quarry's throat would Nippo give over his prey to his master.

"That was only one evidence of the cat's love for Lionheart, his desire to provide the dog with choice food. Bursley told us, and in many other ways did Nippo manifest where his chief affection was centered, on one occasion even killing a seven-foot vobra in the yard of the barracks, which Lionheart had cornered and was barking and jumping at, in a very foolish and unsafe way. Bursley had gotten both animals when they were very young, and brought them up together, and wherever the cat went the dog was sure to go.

"They were a strange pair, I tell you, and even if we weren't successful ourselves in bagging game, that little exhibition Nippo gave us was worth the journey."

It rids the blood, tissues and joints of the uric acid and other poisonous matter which causes those intense rheumatic pains. This is the only way in which a cure can be effected "5-DROPS" has been the means of restoring to health and strength thousands of people who were suffering with Rheumatism, Gout, Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Kidney Trouble or some other painful disease.

Here Is The Proof—Read The Testimonials

BENJ. DITTKE, 207 S. Main St., Mason City, Ia, writes: "The benefit I received from "5-DROPS" cannot be told. I was all crippled up with Rheumatism for a year and one-half, in which time I spent a good many dollars in all different ways to regain health, but could find no relief. After commencing the use of "5-DROPS" I was able to start to work in a short time and have not lost a day since. I have given "5-DROPS" a thorough trial and am more than pleased with the results. I can and always will recommend it."

M. V. BURNETT, Dexter, Ind., writes: "Your "5 DROPS" has cured me of Rheumatism. There is no symptom of the disease about me. My mother had been down with the same disease for nine years, nineteen months of which time she had to walk with a crutch and cane. Now she has thrown away both and goes where she pleases without either of them. She is 71 years old, and was cured of the Rheumatism by "5-DROPS." I shall never be without your remedy in my house."

MRS. CHARLOTTE ALEXANDER, Omer, Mich., writes: "I have suffered with Rheumatism for over fifty years. When I sent to you for a bottle of "5 DROPS" I had been unable for four months to dress or undress myself alone. I used one bottle of your remedy and felt better. The second bottle I used stopped all the pain. Three bottles of "5-DROPS" cured me."

MARY CARBAUGH, Black Gap, Pa., writes: "I suffered terribly with Kidney Trouble for years, and after using less than two bottles of "5-DROPS" I am now entirely well, and I give "5-DROPS" the praise for my cure. I could not find anything that would give me the slightest relief until I tried this remedy, and I recommend it to everybody as a permanent cure for Kidney Disease."

G. W. BENEDICT, Frankfort, Ill., writes: "I am 65 years of age and have suffered with Rheumatism for nearly forty years. I purchased a bottle of your "5-DROPS" and used it as directed and am now well. If any one wants to hear from me, they can write and I will tell them all about it."

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE—

Default has been made in the conditions of a mortgage executed by John Young and Maggie Young, his wife, mortgagors, to Duluth Brewing & Malting company, a corporation, as mortgagee, bearing date the 27th day of April, 1906, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of St. Louis County, Minnesota, at 8 o'clock A. M., on the 3rd day of May, 1906, in Book 231 of Mortgages on page 101. Said default consists in the failure of the mortgagors to pay five installments of $50.00 each, with interest at 8 per cent per annum, of a promissory note for $807.56 and interest at 8 per cent per annum bearing date the 27th day of April, 1906, one of which installments with interest thereon became due and payable on the first day of June, 1906, another on the first day of July, 1906, and another on the first day of August, 1906, another on the first day of September, 1906, and another on the first day of October, 1906. By reason thereof the power of sale in said mortgage contained has become operative and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has ever been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage. Said mortgagee has paid taxes assessed against the premises described in said mortgage, amounting in all to $28.15 and insurance premiums for insurance on the premises described in said mortgage amounting in all to $5.50.

Now therefore, in accordance with the provisions of said mortgage and because of said default, said Duluth Brewing & Malting company hereby elects to declare and does hereby declare the whole amount secured by said mortgage to be due and payable. The amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at this date, including the amount paid for said taxes and insurance is $863.71.

The property described in said mortgage and thereby mortgaged is situated in the County of St. Louis and State of Minnesota, and is described as follows, to-wit: Lots numbered eight (8) and nine (9) in block numbered two (2) in the village of Fall Lake, Minnesota, according to the recorded plat thereof, on file in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said St. Louis county, Minnesota. Now therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of said premises above described, which sale will be made at public auction to the highest bidder for cash by the Sheriff of said St. Louis County, Minnesota, at the front door of the County Court House in the City of Duluth in said county on the 28th day of November, 1906, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage, including said taxes and insurance premiums and $50.00 attorneys' fees as stipulated in said mortgage, and the costs and disbursements allowed by law.

Joseph M. Gaites is a theatrical manager who has a great weakness for picking up the rights to a New York success and sending it out into the country with a company of but fair ability, charging the prices of a good attraction and walking off with a good bit of the people's money that he is not entitled to. He gives a performance that is just good enough, so that it cannot be called bad, and yet leaves one with an unsatisfied feeling. Thus it was with "The Vanderbilt Cup," seen at the Lyceum last evening, only the wily Joseph did not get so much, for the house was not a large one

"The Vanderbilt Cup" was written by Sydney Rosenfeld to pander to the automobile craze, and it made quite a success in New York, partly due to the cleverness of Elsie Janis, an 18-year-old girl. A racing scene between two great cars is the climax, and it must be said that it hardly satisfied expectations. The cars run fast enough, but the mechanical effects that produce the race illusion are not sufficiently developed to give it the required realism. It is not to be compared with the race scene in "Ben Hur." The moving pictures showing automobiles in action, and representing pictures of the Vanderbilt cup race are the best feature of the production.

ENTERTAINING BILL.

Good Numbers on the Vaudeville Program at Bijou.

The bill offered at the Bijou theatre this week contains much to charm the soul of a vaudeville enthusiast. There is enough variety to prevent the entertainment becoming tiresome.

The Byrne-Kenyon Four, which are heralded as headliners direct from Keith's New York theatre, give a sketch called "Uncle Seth's Advice" that makes a big hit. It is bullish with "b'gosh" sentiment and liveliness.

The Three Poirers, who were billed to appear at the Bijou three weeks ago but who went to Winnipeg by mistake, are handing out a gymnastic act that is worth while. Gordon, Viadocq and Flynn have a comedy sketch that is all right, too.

Clair Maynard has a good voice and her selections are well chosen. Jack O'Toole, Chauncey Olcott's local rival, is singing "Let Me Write What I Never Dared to Tell." Kipp and Kippy are clever jugglers, George Armstrong a versatile monologist and the moving pictures are fascinating.

"SIS HOPKINS."

This evening Miss Rose Melville will begin an engagement of three nights with a matinee Wednesday at the Lyceum, presenting "Sis Hopkins." Miss Melville created this unusual bit of characterization and now cannot get away from it, for with all of her desire to break into something else the public will not let her but keeps on demanding "Sis."

CAMPBELL'S NIGHTINGALES.

People who have no connection whatever with the stage little realize the amount of work that it takes to prepare a company for a season's tour on the road. Audiences see the scenery, the pretty costumes and elaborate gowns of the prima donnas and few of them appreciate what they cost or the amount of work there is on them. Two hundred yards of material is used by Mlle. Mozelle on her costumes which are used in the fire and electric dances which she is giving at the Metropolitan this week, with Campbell's Nightingales. Three thousand little spangles are sewed on one wonderful gown. Mlle. Mozelle's act has been attracting a great deal of attention this week. It is one of the many pleasing vaudeville features of the entertainment given by the Nightingales. There will be a ladies' matinee Thursday.

Woman's Nightmare

No woman's happiness can be complete without children; it is her nature to love and want them as much so as it is to love the beautiful and pure. The critical ordeal through which the expectant mother must pass, however, is so fraught with dread, pain, suffering and danger, that the very thought of it fills her with apprehension and horror. There is no necessity for the reproduction of life to be either painful or dangerous. The use of Mother's Friend so prepares the system for the coming event that it is safely passed without any danger. This great and wonderful remedy is always applied externally and has carried thousands of women through the trying crisis without suffering.

MILITIA LIKELY TO GO AFTER DIETZ.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Nov. 13.—When Governor Davidson was here last September he said that John F. Dietz could not be allowed long to continue to defy the laws of Wisconsin. He had been asked by Sheriff Gylland to assist by sending the state militia to capture the Cameron dam man, but Governor Davidson did not care to do so until he had learned that the Sawyer county authorities had exhausted all means at their disposal. It is firmly believed here that Dietz's capture will soon be effected and that Governor Davidson will give the desired aid. The fact that the majority of the voters of Sawyer county have just indorsed District Attorney Frank L. McNamara, who pledged himself to put an end to the fiasco, and that Attorney General Sturdevant has informed Governor Davidson that he has authority to call out the militia to capture Dietz, would seem to bear out this position.

The opinion given by Mr. Sturdevant to Governor Davidson has just been received here and reads in part as follows:

"I have carefully read the letters of the sheriff and district attorney of Sawyer county and Judge Vinje, which you handed me. * * * Upon the facts in the letters of the three officers mentioned, it is my opinion that there is such resistance to the execution of the laws of the state as to authorize you to furnish the assistance to the sheriff which he requests.

"It appears that this man Dietz has for a long time, with force of arms, successfully resisted the service of all papers upon him. In my opinion you are fully authorized and warranted in sending a company of militia to the assistance of the sheriff."

TRADE UNION IS EXTOLLED

President Gompers Dwells on Benefits of Labor Movement.

Eight Hour Day is Urged for All Working People.

Minneapolis, Nov. 13.—The feature of the opening day of the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor was the annual report of President Samuel Gompers. In it he said:

"By constant, consistent and persistent application and concentration of our efforts along trade union lines, we have steadily but surely advanced onward and upward, and have aided in the substantial improvement of the material, moral, political and social condition of the working people; aye, of all the people.

"Despite the progress and achievements, it is the mission and the bounden duty of the much-abused, misunderstood and misrepresented organized labor movement of our country and our time to lighten burdens, abolish wrong and attain the rights too long denied.

"Without detracting one iota from any association, there can be no question among thinking men that the modern labor movement has done, is doing, and will undoubtedly do more in the interest of mankind and to humanize the human family than all other agencies combined.

"Yet, despite the necessary beneficent results which follow and have their being from the result of our movement, it is attacked and vilified as is no other institution on earth.

"That the trade union movement and our federation is the highest and best developed working class movement thus far evolved, no thinking man can successfully dispute. That we are improving and perfecting our organizations and making them more effective to protect and promote the best interests of all the toilers in every field of activity and opportunity, is clearly manifest."

Mr. Gompers collected statistics to show that 317 charters had been issued by the federation during the past year, of which 167 were to local trade unions, 87 to federal labor unions, 53 to city central bodies, 4 to state federations and 6 to international unions. There are now affiliated with the federation 119 international unions, 36 state federations, 538 central bodies and 759 local trade and federal labor unions.

"It will be observed," comments the president, "that despite the bitter antagonism of the worst elements in the capitalistic forces and the relentless war upon our movement which they have undertaken to wage, as well as the attempt of those who mask under pretended friendship for labor, and their efforts at undermining and dividing our organization, our movement steadily forges to the front, is augmented by large numbers of the previously unorganized and brings into the fold of our brotherhood international, state, city and local unions."

Of the natural development of trade unionism, he said: "The trade union movement sets no hard and fast lines for itself. It reckons with the workmen as they are, and not as it would wish them to be. It undertakes to deal with them and the problems confronting them so that they may make, as they are making, the trade union movement broader, more comprehensive and effective for their own good, as well as for the common good of all."

In a general survey of the internal conditions of the order, Mr. Gompers found satisfactory evidence of prosperity and healthy growth. In immediate neighboring countries, as in Canada, he found a healthy condition, and in Porto Rico he was gratified to find a marked increase in organization and a raise in wages. He congratulated the printers upon the struggle they have been making and upon the results thus far achieved. He also found matter for congratulation in the furtherance of organization among the textile workers and the betterment of their condition. Of the eight-hour struggle, he said:

"There can be neither justification nor excuse in our time for longer deferring the ideal and practical universal work day of eight hours. Neither industry nor economy require a longer work day. As a matter of fact, the history of industry will show that an eight-hour day brings in its wake greater industrial development and commercial expansion, a higher and better manhood and makes for social uplift.

"Today labor is very generally employed. From the authentic reports received at our office the state of unemployment would indicate that whereas for the year 1905 the unemployed was about 3 per cent, yet from the indications for the present year it will be about 2¾ per cent. Of course, so long as there is one wage earner unemployed through no fault of his own, so long is there a great wrong from which he suffers, and just so long will it be the mission of the trade union movement to right it."

The remainder of President Gompers' report was devoted to the consideration of national legislation, passed and pending, such as the anti-injunction bill, the possibility of the reversal of the Chinese exclusion policy, the convict labor regulation bill, the Panama canal labor bill, the railroad labor limitation bill, the railroad arbitrtiaon act, etc.

Of the result of the recent political campaign, which excited so much public interest, he said: "While at this time no definite results can be predicted, I feel confident that we have enough congressmen elected and pledged to the rights of labor and the people as to make it impossible for another hostile or indifferent congress to treat labor's demands in the future as they have been treated in the past. * * * If labor's efforts shall prove not to have fulfilled its highest hopes we shall not be greatly disappointed; we know that the toilers will not be downcast. Our movement is not only of and for today, it stands for eternal justice."

"Financially, as well as otherwise, the American Federation of Labor has had a prosperous year," said Secretary Frank Morrison in his report for the year ended Sept. 30. he year closed with $113,540 in the treasury. The total receipts from all sources were $217,815.18, divided as follows: Per capita tax, $168,661.88; supplies, $12,887.84; American Federationist, $25,912.87; International Typographical union assessment, $82,-619.12; textile assessment, $2,656.10; defense fund, $15,556.65; premium on bonds, $750.55. The expenses were $218,540.04, as follows: From general fund, $124,818.24; American Federationist, $26,868.12; defense fund, $13,643.40; premium on bonds, $501.16; International Typographical union, assesment, $52,619.12.

John B. Lennon, treasurer of the Federation, in his annual report, said: "During the sixteen years marked changes have taken place in our organization. Then we were struggling to maintain our existence. Now the Federation is as strong as the everlasting hills. Then the advice and help of the Federation was sought for by but few of our unions. Now none of our International unions make any great trade movement without the approval and co-operation of the American Federation of Labor."

WILL LOOK FOR IRON.

Mellen, Wis., Nov. 13.—The Hoppermman mining property, about three miles from here, which is thought to contain a deposit of iron, is to be explored. A. Beal, superintendent of the Montreal mine near Hurley, has taken charge of the land, and will begin work on it at once.

MISSOURI RATES MAKE PROFITS

St. Paul Expert Shows Up Injustice of Burlington.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 13.—E. M. Fisher, expert accountant of St. Paul, Minn., employed by the State of Missouri to examine the books of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railway, testified yesterday before E. L. Scholfield, special master in chancery of the federal court, that the Burlington freight rates were from 25 to 35 per cent higher in Missouri than in any state east of the Missouri river. He went to Chicago, June 16, and began an examination of the Burlington books and he has worked unceasingly since that time. He is still employed in inspecting the waybills turned in at the auditors' office.

"The methods of keeping accounts adopted by the Burlington is not fair in showing the apportionment in Missouri earnings," Fisher testified. "Rates are from 25 to 35 per cent higher than in Iowa or Illinois, and the earnings are 90 per cent greater. Two reasons may be assigned for this: First, the higher rates; second, the density of population and traffic."

NOBLEMAN IN DISGUISE.

Suspected Explanation of Giri's Attachment for an Obscure Coachman.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—Emma Bachman Howe, who eloped with Gustave Christianson, her coachman, and for whose return unmarried a reward of $500 was offered, was found in Hobart, Ind., Sunday, and returned to the home of her foster mother, Miss Frances Howe, at Porter, Ind.

Christianson followed the girl to her home and made several attempts to elude the vigilance of her relatives and carry her away again.

Miss Howe's elopement, in which a twenty-mile buggy chase figured, was the last chapter in a story of romantic courtship. Miss Frances Howe and friends of her ward are convinced that the young coachman, with whom she eloped, is a Danish student of aristocratic connection, whom the girl met while studying at the University of Christiania, four years ago. It is believed Christianson followed her to Amerlea to press his suit and worked as a coachman to be near the girl and keep his identity concealed.

LUMBERJACKS JAILED

Because They Refused to Work After Accepting Railroad Fare.

Deer River, Minn., Nov. 13.—William Hulbert, who is running a logging camp in section 16-145, engaged a number of men in Bemidji Wednesday to labor for the winter. He paid the railroad fare to Deer River and also the hotel bills of the crowd. On reaching the town the crowd concluded that they did not want work and refused to either go to camp or to refund the money Mr. Hulbert had advanced to secure their services. Mr. Hulbert managed to capture two and turned them over to Marshal Bond, who took them before Justice Chill. At the hearing they were given a sentence of fifteen days in the county jail.

SIX MEN ARE KILLED BY EXPLOSION OF BOILER.

Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 13.—Six men were killed and five seriously injured yesterday, when a boiler in the power house of the Lake Shore railroad in Collinwood, a suburb of Cleveland, blew up. The dead are: Max Crawford, electrician; Albert Blooms, carpenter; Julius Wader and A. P. Latta, pipo fitters; Paulo Lanciont, and Giovinni Piocini, laborers.

CHILDREN WORKING NIGHTS.

St. Paul, Nov. 13.—The state labor bureau is going to make an investigation of complaints that children under 18 are working nights. A number of such complaints have come to the department lately, and statements have been made that many children are employed at night, contrary to the law. The complaints come almost entirely from the three large cities—Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth.

FOR M'KINLEY SARCOPHAGI.

Windsor, Vt., Nov. 13.—A contract has been placed with a local granite firm for furnishing the green granite for the sarcophagi in which the bodies of the late President William McKinley and Mrs. McKinley will rest in the mausoleum at Canton, Ohio.

LANPHER

MEN'S FUR-LINED COATS

THERE are more fur-lined coats made in St. Paul than in any other city in America—probably more than all else put together. What does that mean? The highest priced fur designers and furriers—the top-notchers in their art—are at St. Paul. A man may be a good custom tailor, but he may not be able to build a fur-lined coat that will have the right hang and keep it.

Our coats are designed and made from start to finish in our own six-story fur factory—one of the largest in the United States—they simply must be right in every part. The shell—as we call the cloth part—is made by our own tailors in our factory. They are made of the finest selected Kerseys, Doeskins and Broadcloths, thoroughly shrunk. The fur lining is made by our most experienced furriers and the trimmings are all the very best. The coats fit properly and hang properly and wear until they become a part of yourself.

DIPPED MUSKRAT LINED Kersey Coat, with unplucked Otter collar and facings..... $75.00

We make fur-lined coats costing as little as $30 and all the way up to $400 each. Over 100 different varieties in fur, cloth and facings.

We have in stock Men's Fur Coats at $16 up to $450 each. Every one a good coat, every coat appropriate for some uses; well made without a single exception. If it's a LANPHER FUR it is made as well as if we made it for our own use; none are made better.

LANPHER FURS are sold by the leading dealer in every community Write to us for the book "Judging Furs," and we will also send you the address of our nearest dealer.

TO CURE A COUGH OR COLD.

This is a never failing home remedy for coughs and colds. Two ounces of glycerine, one half ounce of concentrated Oil of Pine, one half pint good whisky, mix and shake thoroughly; use in tablespoon doses every four hours. This, if followed up, will cure any cough that is curable or break up an acute cold in twenty-four hours. The ingredients all can be gotten at any drug store. Concentrated Oil of Pine comes put up for medicinal use only in half ounce vials in small round wooden cases designed to protect it from heat and light. The bulk oils of pine will produce nausea and cannot give the desired results.

THUGS DEFY CITY POLICE

Pittsburg People Apparently at Mercy of Desperate Thieves.

Business Organizations Aroused and Stern Measures Urged.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 13.—Emboldened by the apparent helplessness of the police and detective forces of the city, the highwaymen and burglars who have terrorized this city for ten days, have apparently extended their operations into broad daylight, as well as working under cover of darkness.

At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, at the corner of Sixth avenue and Wood street, one of the most crowded spots in the heart of the city and within a few hundred feet of police headquarters, Mrs. A. G. Boykin was attacked, thrown to the sidewalk, and robbed by two men who escaped.

Trade and business organizations are holding indignation meetings and drawing up petitions to the mayor and the police officials. The murder of Harry Smith in the east end by burglars Sunday morning, has aroused that section and last night a meeting of the east end board of trade was held, at which a vigilance committee was appointed. A resolution warning citizens to arm themselves and recommending the purchase of bloodhounds, was presented to the board.

The Pittsburg board of trade met last night and discussed the rising tide of crime in the city. A committee will call on the city officials in an effort to secure safety.

Newspapers are offering rewards of $1,000 for the arrest of each or any of the slayers of James A. McMillan, who was killed a week ago, and of Harry F. Smith.

NO CONTEST IN NEW YORK

Statement by Chairman Woodruff as to Court Action.

New York, Nov. 13.—Chairman Timothy L. Woodruff, of the Republican state committee, issued a statement last night in which he said: "I have not been requested by any candidate up on the Republican state ticket to institute any contest or proceeding to open ballot boxes. So far as the procedure of having a count of the 'void and protested ballots' by order of the court is concerned, that is simply the method provided by the election law to correct any errors that may have been made by the board of inspectors of the various election districts. This proceeding can be instituted by any candidate who has been voted for in any election district. Of course this has nothing whatever to do with the question of opening the ballot boxes, as these 'void and protested' ballots constitute a part of the returns of the inspectors, placed in sealed envelopes and sent in with the returns."

This statement was called forth by formal application on behalf of the candidates on the Republican state ticket at the recent election for a judicial examination of all void and protested ballots in New York county, by A. S. Gilbert, law partner of Attorney General Mayer, in the supreme court. The application is in the form of a writ of mandamus to have the board of canvassers of the county of New York show cause tomorrow why the court should not judiciously examine all ballots rejected as void and protested as marked for identification.

The writ was signed.

OPENING IS VERY TAME

Long Wait at Land Office Door Ends for Some.

Amelia Cavasin Makes First Entry, Stone and Timber Filing.

The opening of the first of three towns, township 57, range 9, took place this morning at the United States land office in the federal building and about a hundred persons who have been patiently waiting in line at the entrance to the office have entered the claims they wanted.

Several minutes before 9 o'clock the officials in the land office had completed their preparations to receive the applicants and were waiting for the signal for the entrance of the first applicant. Outside the office, the long line was waiting in the center of the corridor, but there seemed to be none of the nervousness which is usually marked upon the faces of persons waiting to file at such an opening and those in the line chatted and smoked in the same manner that they had during the last two weeks.

There had been considerable speculation among those at the federal building concerning who the first man in the line, Hector Vizzna, had been keeping his place for as it was known that he did not intend to file himself. This morning a woman took his place in the line and was the first to be admitted into the land office by the officers.

When the signal was given at 9 o'clock sharp, she was admitted to the office and presented her papers to the land office. The lucky woman was Amelia Cavasin who wished to file for a stone and timber claim and secured the east half of the southwest quarter, lots 3 and 4, of section 19. She was sworn, questioned and her name filed in four minutes time and then the officers were ready for the next applicant.

The second applicant was Edmund Pike who wanted a homestead. He applied for the west half of the northwest quarter and east half of the northwest quarter of section 3. His case was disposed of in about five minutes.

The third man seems to have had had luck in the matter of homesteads. Some time ago he filed for a homestead in Wisconsin and in some way failed to get either the land or anything for it. In his papers which he presented to the registrar there was no affidavit telling of the former entry for a homestead, and therefore, he could not file again. He was Wellington S. Splahn and although he could not file for a homestead he did file for a stone and timber claim. His claim is northwest quarter of section 12.

Other applicants were disposed of by the officials in quick order and within a half hour there were over half a dozen applicants passed through and the line in the corridor was beginning to thin out.

HERO HELD UNWORTHY.

Greek Who Tried to Save Crew Loses Carnegie Award for Posing.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 13.—John Segaloe, the Greek fireman who made five ineffectual attempts to swim ashore with a life line from the steamer Valencia just before it went to pieces on Vancouver island rocks last January, and who has since been hailed as a hero and given ten medals by various associations and churches of this city, has been refused participation in the Carnegie hero fund, though the gift of $10,000 was recommended by Special Agent Crapsey, who spent several weeks here investigating the case. The commission declined to give the money on the ground that Segaloe had allowed himself to be exhibited by a theatrical manager for several weeks subsequent to the wreck.

DIES WHILE PRAYING.

Dubuque, Iowa, Nov. 13.—While Peter Roth, aged 59 years, was kneeling in prayer in St. Boniface church at New Vienna, Sunday, he sank to the floor and died instantly from heart failure. He was a prominent and wealthy farmer of this county.

FATALLY BURNED.

Iowa City, Iowa, Nov. 13.—Gladys, the 5-year-old daughter of John Musser, was burned, Sunday night, at River Junction, and is dead. The child was left alone in the kitchen. When the mother returned the girl was enveloped in flames.

WHEAT HAS GOOD BULGE

Makes Sensational Advances in Minneapolis, Chicago and Duluth.

Flax is Very Strong, Feature Here Being November Option.

Duluth Board of Trade, Nov. 13.—Wheat made sensational advances in the American markets today. At the close, prices were much stronger everywhere, with Minneapolis leading. Next to Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago were strongest. Minneapolis gained 2¼-⅜c over yesterday for the December option, against gains of 1⅝c in Chicago and 1½c in Duluth. Bullish reports from Minneapolis caused the bulge. The Watson-Minneapolis crowd were reported to have gone long on wheat and the following message was sent out from there: "A prominent elevotor concern with 180 houses through Minnesota, South Dakota and Northern Iowa reports only 150,000 bushels in all of its houses, against over 2,000,000 bushels this time last year. Another elevator concern of the Northwest says houses through Central and Southern Minnesota and South Dakota are practically empty."

Liverpool closed unchanged to ½d higher, Paris unchanged to ¼c higher and Berlin and Budapest ⅜c higher.

The December option closed 1c higher in New York, 1-1⅛c in St. Louis, 1¼c in Kansas City and ⅞c in Winnipeg. The May option closed 1⅝c higher in Duluth, 1¼c in Chicago, 1⅝-⅝c in Minneapolis, 1½c in New York, St. Louis and Kansas City and ¼c in Winnipeg.

December corn closed ¼c higher in Chicago. It was ¼d to ⅝d lower in Liverpool. December oats closed ¼-⅜c higher in Chicago.

Car receipts at Duluth were 663 against 963 last year, and at Minneapolis 225 against 270 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 888 against 1,233 last year. Chicago received 64 against 292 last year. Winnipeg received 709 against 888 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 1,325,000 bus, last year 1,430,000 bus. Shipments 710,000 bus, last year 670,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 273,000 bus.

The world's visible supply of wheat increased 4,064,000 bus. In America and east of the Rockies there was an increase of 1,137,000 bus, in Canada an increase of 877,000, and in Europe and afloat an increase of 2,600,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 629,000 bus, last year 771,000 bus. Shipments 250,000 bus, last year 269,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 2,000 bus. The world's visible supply of corn decreased 13,000 bus.

Wheat was active throughout the session in the Duluth market. It advanced steadily until the close, on the bullish reports sent out from Minneapolis. The December option opened ⅜c higher at 75¼c and advanced by the close to 76⅝c, a gain of 1⅝c over yesterday. The May option opened ⅛c higher at 78⅛c and advanced by the close to 79⅝c, a gain of 1⅝c over yesterday.

Durum wheat closed ½c higher for November and unchanged for the December option. Cash spring wheat was ¼c higher, selling on a basis of 3c over December for No. 1 northern.

Flax opened with a lively flurry, on higher cables and trading was very heavy in Duluth throughout the session. Some export business was done by local exporters but the orders from abroad were very quickly filled. November flax was in great demand and the feature of the local market was the advance of 4c over May by the November option. The foreign flax markets were 2⅝c higher. November flax opened ¼c higher at $1.22, advanced to $1.23½, declined to $1.23¼, rallied to $1.23⅝, declined to $1.22¾, rallied to $1.23⅜ and closed at that price, a gain of 2c over yesterday. December flax opened 1c higher at $1.18½, advanced to $1.19, declined to $1.18⅜, rallied to $1.19 and ranged between that and $1.18¾ during the rest of the session, closing at $1.18¾, a gain of 1¼c over yesterday. May flax opened ⅝c higher at $1.22¼, advanced to $1.23¼, declined to $1.22½, rallied to $1.23 and ranged between that and $1.22½ during the rest of the session, closing at $1.22½, a gain of 1c over yesterday.

Oats to arrive closed ⅛c higher and the other coarse grains unchanged.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Small Northwestern Receipts Make Opening of Wheat Firm.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—Continued small receipts of wheat in the Northwest again formed the dominating feature in the local wheat market. Prices were firm, because of the small movement and also because of a good demand of cash houses and shorts. Offerings were light. December wheat opened unchanged to a shade higher at 72⅝@72¾c to 72¾c and sold at 73c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 982 cars against a holiday last week and 1,587 cars one year ago.

The demand continued all day, and the market rallied sharply late in the day. The high price for December was 74½c. The close was strong with December 1⅜c higher at 74@74⅜c.

The corn market opened easy on a considerable selling movement by local longs. December opened unchanged to ½c lower at 41⅞c to 42c, and sold at 42¾@42⅞c. Local receipts were 352 cars with 60 of contract grade.

The market, which was affected by the strength of wheat, ruled firm during the last half of the session. The December option, after selling down to 41⅜c, advanced to 42¼c, where it closed strong and ¼c higher.

The oats market was steady but very quiet, the opening quotation of the December option being the only figure posted for thirty minutes after the opening. December opened at 34½c and held there. The local receipts were 196 cars.

The provisions market was quiet and easy on a 5c decline in the price of live hogs and a decrease in shipments of lard and meat. January pork was unchanged at $14.65. Lard was unchanged at $8.37½. Ribs were 2½c lower at $7.52½.

Close: Wheat—December, 74@74c; May, 78⅞c. Corn—December, 42¼c; May, 43⅝c. Oats—December, 34½@35c; May, 35½@35¾c. Pork—January, $14.15; May, $14.25. Lard—January, $8.40@8.42½; May, $8.57½@8.40. Ribs—January, $7.60@7.62½; May, $7.72½. Rye—Cash 64@65¾c. Barley—Cash, 41@53c. Flax, clover and timothy, nothing doing. Minneapolis Flour.

Minneapolis, Nov. 13.—Flour market, steady. Millers had a fair amount of inquiries today and a few acceptances. Business, as a whole, was quiet. Buyers are not in sympathy with prices, but the demand under these conditions is fair. Shipments, 54,952 barrels. First patents, $4.20@4.30; second patents, $4.05@4.15; first clears, $3.25@3.35; second clears, $2.40@2.60.

Grain Gossip.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The day's operations in wheat are certainly very encouraging for those who consistently stuck to the bull side of the market during the dull period. The way wheat was traded in here and in the Northwest today indicates that the activity which we have been looking for must come with a bull market. Everything points to a change of front on the part of a number of leaders here and in the Northwest. Blizzards in Minnesota and snow in the Dakotas, better feeling in foreign markets, rumors of frost damage in Argentina, ice in some of the Russian ports, all helped to create bull feeling for the day. There will be reactions, but the market is headed higher.

Corn—It is not reasonable to expect a bull market at this time of the year in face of the new crop movement, and especially in the face of the most bearish crop figures ever published. Chicago is without stocks. The Bradstreets report gave a small decrease in stocks east of the Rockies. Total Western receipts are less than a year ago. These things and the strength in wheat overcame the early selling and gave a moderate gain for the day.

Oats—It is hard to understand why oats prices were not up 1c instead of less than ½c for the day. Weak holders are sold out and waiting to get in on a break. We think the legitimate situation suggests that oats lead the advance, rather than follow the other markets.

Provisions—The trade thought the packers sold some stuff, and this caused early buyers to turn sellers. After the early advance was lost, the market had a second period of good support at the close.

Broomhall reports foreign crop conditions as follows:

United Kingdom: The weather is fine and crop prospects are more favorable.

France: The finishing of seeding has been interrupted by unfavorable climatic conditions, otherwise the outlook is favorable. Offerings are rather larger.

Germany: The crop outlook is favorable and the trading in foreign grain is improving.

Roumania: The weather conditions for the crops are favorable. There are some complaints heard regarding the unsatisfactory quality of corn. Shipments from the Danube are expected to continue light until spring.

Russia: General rains have fallen in the Southwest and crop prospects are improving elsewhere. The crop outlook is fair to good. Stocks in the Southwest are increasing in the Azoff light and elsewhere fair.

Italy: An official report for the week ending Oct. 31 states that rains have improved the crop prospects.

North Africa: The weather is rather too dry.

Copper Gossip.

Gay & Sturgis: There was an improved tone to the local copper share market at the opening, with trading broad and active. Utah was the strong feature, advancing to 63½ on the court decision not to exercise the injunction against the Utah-Smelters pending a hearing on appeal to the higher court. A wager was made that the next dividend on Utah to be declared next month would be $3. The last dividend was $2.50. United States Smelting advanced to 63 up ¾ on moderate transactions. The initial quotation on Mexico Consolidated listed this morning was 13, which compares with a closing price of 12¾ on the curb yesterday. Hayden, Stone & Co. sold 2,000 Mexico Consolidated at 13. Sargent was the largest buyer. Hayden, Stone bought Utah. There were more buy than sell orders in Santa Fe. In the loan crowd there was a good demand for Amalgamated and United States Steel.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: High rates for money caused considerable selling all day. After the first break of a point or two stop orders were caught and the market looked pretty weak for some time. Toward the close, however, money was a little easier and we had a feeble rally. For the time being we advise the sale of stocks on all strong spots as there does not seem to be any permanent relief in sight for the money situation. On any sharp break we should certainly pick up Copper Range, Calumet & Arizona, Shannon, Centennial and Old Domonion.

• • •

Gay & Sturgis: Calumet & Arizona blew in its fourth furnace yesterday to be used exclusively for Superior & Pittsburg ores.

FIRMNESS IN STOCKS

Notwithstanding That, Call Money Rates Are Still High.

Feature of the Market Was Sharp Rise of St. Paul.

New York, Nov. 13.—The early business in stocks today was of limited extent and small gains were the rule, with a sprinkling of losses. Northern Pacific rose about a point and Louisville & Nashville and Canadian Pacific large fractions each.

Pressure against St. Paul undermined the market after the opening and the list fell back a fraction. Later, Reading, the Western group and Amalgamated Copper moved up sharply and the tone became firm again. The Kansas & Texas stock, Louisville & Nashville, Canadian Pacific and Pressed Steel Car improved 1 to 1¼. Northern Pacific 1⅝ and Pullman 3¾.

Prices advanced on small transactions, but fell back under sales to realize. Some abatement in the money stringency had a favorable effect on speculative sentiment. Delaware & Hudson rose 2½, Great Northern preferred 2, the Rock Island stocks and Kansas City Southern preferred 1½, and Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and Reading 1 each. Delaware, Lackawanna & Western sold at a decline of 2¼. American Cable 4 and Knickerbocker Ice 1. Prices recovered at noon. Bonds were steady.

Prices stopped rising after Reading had touched 144¼, but the reactions that followed were unimportant and resulted in extreme dullness. Rock Island preferred extended its advance to 1¾. St. Paul preferred meanwhile fell off 3.

Confident buying of St. Paul contributed to higher prices in the rest of the market, but trading and improvements were small outside of Reading and Union Pacific. Call money rates receded to 6 per cent. Delaware & Hudson gained 3½. St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred 2⅝, St. Paul and Atlantic Coast Line 2, Union Pacific and Reading 1½ each, and United States Steel and Colorado Fuel 1. Losses were established of 2¼ in United States Pipe preferred, 2 in New York, Chicago & St. Louis and 1 in Wisconsin Central.

The market closed firm, but generally below the best. Profit taking by room traders caused a reaction, but prices came up again in sympathy with renewed advances in St. Paul to 4¼ over last night, Tennessee Coal rose 4, Canadian Pacific 1⅜, Wisconsin Central preferred 1⅜ and Atchison, Baltimore & Ohio and Smelting 1, Michigan Central fell 2½. Otherwise the further movements were unimportant and there was some renewal of profit taking.

Stock Gossip.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: Notwithstanding the high call money rates, the market opened with a better feeling and the standard issues were in good demand. Trade at first was rather light, and when money suddenly shot up to 16 per cent there was a slight reaction. That stocks have been well taken on recent declines was shown by today's trading. St. Paul was conspicuous as the leader in today's trading and was in good demand at the closing hour. Indications point to an unsettled money market, but it is the concensus of opinion that the leading bankers will support the market whenever it becomes necessary. Standard issues look like they will do to purchase on any pronounced soft spots, such as the market experienced yesterday.

T. A. McIntyre & Co. to Gay & Sturgis: While there is no decided disposition on the part of large holders of stocks to liquidate at the present time, there is undoubtedly a feeling that it would be unwise in the present state of the money market to encourage active speculation and it is apparent the banking community are doing considerable to discourage any tendency on the part of speculative interests in this direction. Wall street seems to have considerable apprehension of the money situation, but it is a notable fact that most bankers do not regard the situation serious so long as speculation can be held in check and they are of the opinion the money market will right itself in a short time. Should higher rates prevail it will tend to attract very large amounts of out of town money and this in itself may cause a material softening of rates in the next two weeks.

Call Money Away Up.

New York, Nov. 13.—Money on call was loaned at 14 per cent soon after the opening of the stock market today.

New York Money.

New York, Nov. 13.—Money on call strong, 5@6¼ per cent. Ruling rate, 8 per cent; last loan, 7 per cent. Time loans slightly easier, 60 days, 7¼@8 per cent; 90 days, 7½ per cent; six months, 6@6½ per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 6@6½ per cent. Sterling exchange easier with actual business in bankers' bill at $4.85.90@4.85.85 for demand and at $4.80.15@4.80.20 for 60-day bills; posted rates, $4.81½ and $4.86½; commercial bills, $4.80. Bar silver, 71½c. Mexican dollars, 55¼c. Government bonds steady. Railroad bonds steady.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Nov. 13.—The cotton market opened barely steady at a decline of 2@6 points, owing to slightly disappointing cables and liquidation by yesterday's buyers. There was a fair demand attracted by heavy to killing frosts as far south as Jacksonville and reports of firmer interior markets, but New Orleans turned easy after the first few minutes and prices sagged off in the local market which during the middle of the morning was about 8@10 points net lower. Trading was fairly active, but mostly for the account of local professionals. Futures opened barely steady: November, 9.60 bid; December, 9.60; January, 9.65; February, 9.73 bid; March, 9.83; April, 9.88; May, 9.94; June, 9.97 bid; July, 10.02.

The market at midday was about 7 points up from the lowest on covering. Trading was quiet and the tone steady at a net decline of 4@7 points as compared with yesterday. Spot, quiet; middling uplands, 10.25; middling gulf, 10.50.

Futures closed steady. Closing bids: November, 9.82; December, 9.74; January, 9.75; February, 9.84; March, 9.93; April, 9.89; May, 10.04; June, 10.05; July, 10.12. Spot closed quiet, 10 points advance. Middling uplands, 10.40; middling gulf, 10.65. Sales, 600 bales.

Treasury Balances.

Washington, Nov. 13.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund exclusive of the $150,000,000 reserve in the division of redemption shows: Available cash balance, $227,070,200; gold, $116,831,536; gold certificates, $48,034,500.

St. Paul Live Stock.

St. Paul, Nov. 13.—Cattle—Receipts, 5,100; killing cattle, easy; stockers and feeders, steady at yesterday's advance of 10@15c; grain fed steers, $4.50@6.25; cows and heifers, $3.50@4.50; grass steers, $3.25@5.15; cows and heifers, $2.50@3.75; calves, $1.50@5.50; stockers, $1.50@2.75; feeders, $2.75@4.25. Hogs—Receipts, 5,200; market, 10c lower; range, $5.40@6.00; bulk, $5.80@5.85. Sheep—Receipts, 15,000; weak, $3.75@5.75; lambs, $2.50@6.85.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, Nov. 13.—Barrett & Zimmerman's report: Market improving. Several car lot sales were reported today to be shipped to Duluth, Rainy river and Wisconsin lumber woods. These sales are in the heavy class. The market is assuming a firmer tone, with but slight change in values.

THE TIME IS SHORTENED

Grand Marais Folk Are to Get Their Mail Sooner.

Duluth & Northern Minnesota Road Has Done Much Work.

Forty-five miles of road-building has been accomplished during the past few months by the Duluth & Northern Minnesota railroad and next Monday passenger service as far into the woods as Shauf Lake will begin.

Some of the forty-five miles represent branches of the main line built to tap the timber which Alger, Smith & Company, owners of the road, and other lumbering interests are planning to cut during the next few years but the main line was extended twelve miles. Sauf Lake is now the terminus.

When the new train service is begun Monday, the distance from Duluth to Grand Marias will be shortened one day. The trains will carry mail and the citizens of Grand Marias will receive their letters and papers a day earlier than they have in the past.

Not only mail but loggers' supplies and other freight will be sent out over the line of the Duluth & Northern Minnesota rather than from Two Harbors. This will mean quicker service and an increase in the D. & N. M. business.

Persistent rumors have been afloat recently to the effect that Alger-Smith people were going to extend the Duluth & Northern Minnesota road to the Canadian border to connect with the Canadian Northern, with as little delay as possible, but John Millen, vice president and general manager of the line, said today that such a move was not contemplated at present.

"It is impossible to say now when the line will be extended to the Canadian border of whether it ever will be," said Mr. Millen to a representative of The Herald. When questioned more closely, however, Mr. Millen admitted that there was a likelihood that his line would some day build to the border. This theory was made more plausible by an intimation from R. N. Marble, assistant general manager of the road, that if further extensions were made on the line, that they would be unlikely to go in the direction of Grand Marais, indicating a plan to strike a more direct route to the international boundary.

"The Duluth & Northern Minnesota will be a very busy road this winter, handling timber products of all kinds," said Mr. Millen. "Alger, Smith & Company will carry on extensive operations and other concerns having timber in that territory will use the road extensively. This year's business will undoubtedly eclipse last season's.

"When the new train service begins Monday, it will be possible to leave Duluth at 7:45 a. m., over the Duluth & Iron Range, go to Shauf Lake, the northern terminus of the Duluth & Northern Minnesota, and get back in Duluth again at 7:15 p. m. That is making pretty good time.

"Shauf Lake is going to be quite a little town. A post office will probably be established there and a store is already being built.

"Just what road-building will be done next year, I cannot say at present. No more work will be done this winter."

Two new locomotives and a new passenger coach are expected from the shops very soon and will be added to the road's equipment. The Duluth & Northern Minnesota, unlike some logging roads, is built for premanency and will not be dismantled when Alger, Smith & Company shall have finished cutting all of their timber in St. Louis and Lake counties. That will not be this year, however.

THE CONFLICTS ARE NUMEROUS

Twenty-Five Enteries in New Town Will Require Hearings.

All the morning the applicants for land in the township opened today were admitted into the land office, each filing taking an average time of from two to five minutes. Occasionally an applicant would bring in his papers with no signature, and the officials would be compelled to wait patiently while he laboriously wrote his name on each. Aside from these little hitches, the filing went on very sucessfully, and when the noon hour had passed there were nearly 100 persons who had filed. After this time about a score more applicants straggled in, and it was not until 1:05 that the last man had been disposed of.

There were altogether about 112 persons who filed, and the claims are probably divided about evenly between stone and timber claims and homesteads. As more and more of the land had been filed for, the conflicts became more numerous, and when the last man was in, there were about twenty-five of these. The hearings on these conflicts will be set before Register Engels within a few days, and the rightful claimants will be determined.

The land officials say that the opening is characteristic both for the large number of applicants and for the quiet and orderly manner in which the long line held throughout the morning.

LATE DOINGS IN UPPER MICHIGAN

"Peach Brandy" Sold to Saloons Was Livery Stable Product.

Marquette.—A sensation has developed among the saloonists of Marquette, Ishpeming and Negaunee by the discovery that "peach brandy" sold to them by a smooth-tongued stranger was made of water flavored with an extract of saltpeter. A washtub procured at the stable served as a mixing vat and a piece of soapbox as a paddle. The "brandy" went at $1.25 a gallon. It is estimated that 900 gallons were sold in the three cities.

As Frederick Hills, of Dollarville, was returning to his home from Newberry, walking on the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic track, he was stricken with an epileptic fit and fell lengthwise between the rails. An engine and five cars passed over him but he was only bruised slightly on the face. When the train crew took him to Newberry he recovered and walked away.

Emil Gagnon, who has been engaged in the building contracting business at Negaunee for several years, is missing from that city, a fact which is causing his creditors no little worry. It is said that he owes in the neighborhood of $6,000. This includes his accounts with firms handling building materials as well as various sums which he is said to have collected on incompleted contracts, but does not include an unsecured loan of $1,000 obtained from one of his carpenters. Gagnon is said to have gone to Canada, and there is fear he does not intend to return.

Hon. J. M. Longyear, probably Michigan's richest man, is advised from Boston that his daughter, Miss Helen, has been elected secretary of the sophomore class of the Massachusetts school of technology. She is a student of architecture, and is pursuing her studies with the intention of preparing herself for philantropic work.

Norway.—Frank Nora was killed at Pine Creek lumber camp by a falling tree.

Calumet.—John Ollila met with what may be a fatal accident at No. 1 shaft of the Centennial mine at about noon yesterday. Ollila was a trammer working on the twenty-fifth level and was in the act of filling a car when the accident took place. A rock rolled down the stope and bounded, striking the man on the head. He is severely injured. He was removed to the surface and taken to the Northern Michigan general hospital, where his condition is said to be quite critical.

HALF DAY OFF FOR LABOR MEN

National Federation Decides Not to Work Saturday Afternoon.

Minneapolis, Nov. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The committee on rules and order of business of the American Federation of Labor convention, recommended a half holiday on Saturday, the time of sessions for other days to be 9 a. m. to 12 noon, and 2 p. m. to 5:30 p. m. At once there was a storm of protest. One faction wished to stick to business the entire six days, and another stood for the half holiday, while a third smaller crowd favored no business on Saturday. The report of the committee was finally adopted. Unless business presses the entire delegate body will witness the Minnesota-Carlisle football game.

President Gompers today appointed E. J. O'Brien assistant secretary; S. J. Spencer, sergeant-at-arms, and E. J. Dahl, messenger, to serve throughout the convention. J. N. Bell and A. Gee, the British fraternal delegates to the convention, who occupied seats on the platform, were formally introduced by Mr. Gompers.

MEN OF CHURCH IN ONE ORDER

The Presbyterians Plan Brotherhood to Push Religious Work.

Indianapolis, Nov. 13.—Prominent Presbyterians from all parts of the country are arriving for the national convention, which will open tonight with a banquet, for the purpose of organizing a brotherhood, to include the men's clubs, societies and Bible classes within the church.

Among the earliest arrivals today was Rev. G. E. Hunt of Madison, Wis., who said: "The men of the church see the need of uniting and organizing in order to accomplish more good. The women of our church are effectively organized, and they are doing great work. I am confident that this organization will be the means of getting the men of the church to work more ardently."

TWINE WORKS FOR WISCONSIN

Minnesota's Plant Examined With View to Reproduction.

Stillwater, Minn., Nov. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Wisconsin state board of control, and Henry Town, warden of the Waupun prison, visited the state prison today and inspected the binder twine plant, with a view to establishing a similar industry in the Waupun prison.

The Minnesota board of control was in session at the prison to transact the usual monthly business. Petitions of sixteen, for parole, and nine for discharges, were heard. The receipts on binder twine notes amount to $815,546, and the miscellaneous receipts for October aggregate $8,515 more.

NO TROOPS AFTER DIETZ.

Governor Davidson Denies Intention to Send Soldiers to Cameron.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is denied at the governor's office that he contemplated sending a company of militia to help the sheriff of Sawyer county to capture John Dietz of Cameron Dam. No such action is likely to be taken.

HOCH'S PLURALITY SMALL.

Kansas Governor Re-elected by Only 1,986 More Votes Than Harris.

Topeka, Kan., Nov. 13.—E. W. Hoch, Republican, was re-elected governor of Kansas by a plurality of 1,986 over Ex-Senator W. A. Harris, as shown by the official canvass, completed here today.

MISTAKES

Many a bright and promising career has been blighted by injurious habits of folly before the age of knowledge and understanding, and many have been cut short by the unfortunate contracting of some poisonous special disease, which, through neglect or improper treatment, has completely undermined and shattered the physical strength and mental faculties. No greater mistake can be made than to consider lightly the first evidence of the introduction of any disease into your system or to neglect the first symptoms of weakened mind and approach of nervous debility caused by habits, dissipation, etc.

Such indifference and neglect of the first symptoms are responsible for thousands of human wrecks, failures in life and business, insanity, suicide, etc. Why take such desperate chances? The manifestations of the first symptoms of any disease or weakness should be a warning for you to take prompt steps to safeguard your future life and happiness. You should carefully avoid all experimental, dangerous or half way treatment, for upon the success of the first treatment depends whether you will be promptly restored to health again, with all the taint of the poisonous disease removed from your system, or whether it be allowed to become chronic and subject you to future recurrences of the disease, with the varifols resulting complications, etc. We cure KIDNEY AND URINARY DISEASES, SMALL, WEAK ORGANS, SEMINAL EMISSIONS, STRICTURE, DISCHARGES, VARICOCELE, NERVO-SEXUAL DEBILITY, CONTAGIOUS BLOOD POISON and all diseases and weaknesses due to habits, dissipation, or the result of special diseases. ORDER FOR HEARING APPLICATION FOR APPOINTMENT OF ADMINISTRATOR.

State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis —ss.
In Probate Court, Special Term, October 29th, 1906.
In the Matter of the Estate of John A. Anderson, Deceased:
On receiving and filing the petition of Anna Anderson, of the County of St. Louis, representing, among other things, that John A. Anderson, late of the County of St. Louis, in the State of Minnesota, on the 5th day of October, A. D. 1906, at the County of St. Louis, died intestate, and being an inhabitant of this County at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels and estate within this County, and that the said petitioner is the widow of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to Anna Anderson granted;
IT IS ORDERED, That said petition be heard before said Court on Monday, the 26th day of November, A. D. 1906, at ten o'clock A. M., at the Probate Office, in the Court House in the City of Duluth, in said County.
ORDERED FURTHER, That notice hereof be given to the heirs of said deceased and to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in The Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper printed and published at Duluth, in said County, and that a copy of this order be served upon the County Treasurer of St. Louis County not less than ten days prior to said day of hearing.
Dated at Duluth, Minnesota, this 29th day of October, A. D. 1906.
By the Court,
J. B. MIDDLECOFF,
Judge of Probate.
(Seal, Probate Court, St. Louis Co., Minn.)

FARMERS IN FEDERATION OF LABOR ADDING HOSTS TO UNION MOVEMENT

Delegates of Society of Equity Seated in Convention.

Gompers' Political Policy Receives Approval of Gathering.

British Unionist Successes Reported on by Two Visitors.

Minneapolis, Nov. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—That the American Federation of Labor may be extended to either include as active branches, or as auxiliaries, organized bodies of farmers, was foreshadowed this morning when eight delegates from the American Society of Equity were admitted to the national convention, and two of them, W. Wes Tubbs, the secretary, Peoria, Ill., and O. C. Crowley, Wisconsin, state organizer, addressed the convention. If this plan be carried out fully, it is expected to add millions of men to the present 2,000,000 of the federation.

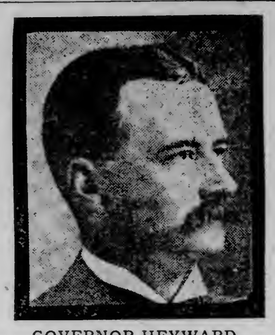

Resolutions denouncing the judicial system of the United States as "tyrannical and antiquated from the police court up to the supreme court of the United States," were introduced and were referred to the committee on resolutions. These with others known as the "socialist resolutions," were presented by Victor L. Berger of Milwaukee, delegate for the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor. These call for the election of all judges by the people of their respective districts or states for terms not longer than four years, with the privilege of being re-elected from time to time. The insurance system of the United States is denounced as a notorious method of graft and exploitation.

T. A. Rickert, president of the Garment Workers' union made his report as the fraternal delegate to the federation of trades and labor of Canada, which dealt chiefly with the political activities of the Canadian unions.

The committee members will be busy this afternoon preparing their reports for tomorrow and those not so engaged will be taken on a trolley ride about the city by the local arrangement committee.

Yesterday afternoon the matter of the adoption of a universal label design was referred to the convention

GOVERNOR HEYWARD,
Of South Carolina, Who is Presiding Over the Southern Immigration Congress.

JOHNSON NO CANDIDATE

Governor Denies That He is Aspiring to Higher Honors.

Says He Looks Forward to Retiring to Private Life.

St. Paul, Nov. 14.—Governor John A. Johnson is not a candidate for any further political honors and looks forward to life as a private citizen in some quiet vocation at the conclusion of his present term of office.

"I am not a candidate for president, as there has been some rumor, nor for any other office," said the governor yesterday. "Any person who says I am, or talks of me for any further public office, acts without my consent.

"At the end of my second two years of service as governor of Minnesota, I expect to retire to some private vocation and spend my time in enjoyment of a quiet life as a private citizen. While it is pleasant to have friends who are so desirous of advancing my political career toward higher honors, such action is taken without consulting myself in the least. In regard to the meeting in Texas, where it is said citizens endorsed resolutions favoring me for president, I konw nothing whatsoever about it, except what was published in the papers, and do not know how authentic the press reports on the subject were. It was certainly all without my knowledge.

"After the last campaign and the success which it brought at its conclusion, there is to be found some explanation for the 'high wave' talk of myself as a presidential possibility. I have discouraged it wherever I have met with it.

"My present ambition is simply to devote myself to my duties of governor for another two years and to give the state the best administration of which I am capable."

The governor is daily receiving let-

FIFTY-ONE DEAD IN INDIANA WRECK

Bodies of Catholic Victims to be Religiously Reburied.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—Zasalow Palovicz, 17 years old, injured in the recent wreck on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad at Woodville, Ind., died in the Mercy hospital today. His death makes the total of fatalities 51.

Much dissatisfaction has been caused among the survivors of the wreck, because the dead—the majority of whom were Roman Catholics—were without religious rites. Local church officials have arranged with the railroad to have the bodies dug up and reburied.

CASTRO DEAD SAYS RUMOR

Venezuela Declared to be Hiding Demise for Purpose.

German Cruiser Makes Ready for Possible Emergencies.

Fort de France, Island of Martinique, Nov. 14.—The Dutch cruiser Kortenaer, which arrived here today from Willemstad, Island of Curacoa, reported that at the time of her departure from there it was declared persistently, and generally believed that President Castro of Venezuela was dead, but that his death was being concealed by the Venezuelan government in order to main tain itself in power.

The Kortenaer has received orders to hasten her preparations to put to sea again and to leave Fort de France for La Guayra, Venezuela, if the death of President Castro be confirmed.

The French cruisers Jurled de La Graiviere and Du Guay Trouin are off this port.

DEATH TAKES NOTED SISTER

Founder of St. Vincent's Asylum, Chicago, Passes Away.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—Sister Mary Julia, founder and mother superior of St. Vincent's Orphan asylum in this city, who gained an international reputation in religious circles, because of her benevolence and assistance to the poor, died at the orphanage yesterday of pneumonia, after an illness of a few days.

Sister Julia, whose former name was Sophie Wolfe, entered the convent of the Sisters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul society at Emmetsburg, Md., when she was 15 years old, and for the past twenty-five years had been actively connected with the religious and charity work of the society.

Several years ago, while connected with the St. Agnes hospital, Baltimore, Sister Julia founded the new Water Cure sanitarium, which is widely known throughout the United States. At the completion of the sanitarium, she was transferred to the boys' orphanage at Syracuse, N. Y., where she remained until four years ago, when she returned to St. Vincent's orphanage asylum.

St. Louis, Nov. 14.—Dr. Franz George J. Specht, 75 years of age, widely known among the Germans of the Southwest as a physician and as manager of a St. Louis German daily newspaper, was found dead in bed yesterday by his daughter. He had been in poor health for a year. He was born in Germany.

Norwich, Conn., Nov. 14 Gen. William G. Ely died suddenly at his home here last night from heart trouble. He commanded the Eighteenth Connecticut volunteers in the Civil war and was brevetted brigadier general at its close.

RELIEF MONEYS STOLEN BY GREEDY GRAFT RING IN STRICKEN METROPOLIS

FIRE WIPES OUT FAMILY

Michigan Mother and Three Small Children Are Burned.

Father Tries in Vain to Get Loved Ones From House.

Coldwater, Mich., Nov. 14.—Mrs. Charles Mowry and her three children, Homer, aged 6 years, Louise, aged 3 years, and a baby of 6 months, were burned to death early today in their home on a farm at Batavia station, six miles southwest of this city, on the Lake Shore railroad.

Charles Mowry, the husband and father, rose early and built two fires in the house, and then went to the barn to do chores. While there he discovered that his house was afire and rushed back but the flames had made such headway that he could not enter the house and his calls through the windows to his family brought no response.

It is thought that the mother and three children were suffocated to death while asleep.

BAPTISTS IN SESSION DISCUSS THE TRINITY.

St. Louis, Nov. 14.—The second day's session of the twenty-third annual National Baptist congress was devoted to the discussion of the topic, "Does Scripture Warrant Any Formal Statement of the Doctrine of the Trinity?" The speakers were Rev. C. J. Baldwin of Granville, Ohio; Prof. Gerald B. Smith, University of Chicago, and Rev. S. B. Messer of Detroit.

Million Sent to San Francisco Reported Boldly Filched.

President Roosevelt Said to be Back of the Probing.

Climax of Reign of Corruption in Pacific City.

San Francisco, Nov. 14.—That the local graft ring accused of having misappropriated millions of public money stole even many sums of money, large and small, aggregating possibly $1,000,000 sent from different states to San Francisco for the relief of the sufferers from the calamity, is almost positive. It is openly charged that scores of gifts never reached the relief committee. Some of these amounts which aggregate a large sum were mailed to the care of Mayor Schmitz.

Special Prosecutor F. J. Heney, Detective William Burns and about one hundred government agents have been making an investigation of the charges. President Roosevelt is said to be the moving spirit beyond the inquiry and to have declared that no man guilty of diverting the relief funds shall escape justice. The cases come within the jurisdiction of the federal authorities because of the interstate character of the postal service, which is alleged, was criminally tampered with.

Considerable sums of money were sent through the express companies and Wells-Fargo, which companies are now investigating the disappearance of $10,580 sent in one package from the citizens of Searchlight, Nev., which the relief committee says they never received and which the company says

SOLDIERS ENGAGE IN BATTLE AS RESULT OF AN OLD FEUD.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Nov. 14.—A detachment of artillerymen from Fort Russell attacked a number of infantrymen on the streets of Cheyenne last night, and both sides fought with knives. Five men were badly slashed, one of whom is expected to die. The wounded were taken to the hospital. The cause of the fight was an old feud between the two arms of the service.

PERU HOLDS TO ITS SILVER BY TAKING STERN MEASURES.

Lima, Peru, Nov. 14.—Although there is no law to prevent, the government refused yesterday, to allow a local firm of bankers to ship 12,000 silver sols (about $12,000) to London, and the authorities are searching the baggage of passengers leaving the country, and seizing all silver coin in excess of ten sols. This action is the result of the recent rise in the price of silver in Peru. An export duty on silver coin is projected.

STONE MAIDENS TOO HEARTY--- CHISEL AS ANTI-FAT REMEDY.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 14.—Because eight stone maidens, intended for ornaments of the new $2,000,000 federal building here, were pronounced to have "too much embonpoint," by the United States inspector, an order came from Washington that a few hundred pounds be chipped off the maidens. "Make 'em more petite," said the inspector. So work has been stopped while the eight statues, two on each corner, are taken down and put through a course of anti-fat sprouts under the chisel.

COUNT BONI LOSES WIFE AND CASH AS WELL AS CUSTODY OF CHILDREN BY PARIS COURT'S DIVORCE DECREE

COUNT AND COUNTESS DE CASTELLANE,
Who Have Been Separated by the Decree of a Paris Court, Because of His Brutality and Gross Infidelity.

Charges of Abuse and Infidelity Held Fully Proved.

Tribunal Refuses to Order Examinations of Witnesses.

Alimony Denied Castellane—Little Ones Stay in France.

Paris, Nov. 14.—The Countess De Castellane (formerly Miss Anna Gould) was today granted a divorce from the notorious Count Boni de Castellane, on the grounds of repeated acts of cruelty, gross infidelity and wasteful squandering of her millions. She was given, also, the custody of the children, but will not be allowed to take them from France without the consent of Count Boni De Castellane, their father.

The end of the famous case came suddenly. The court brushed aside the demand of the count's lawyers for an examination of witnesses and, as anticipated, the public prosecutor did not even ask to be heard.

As soon as the court assembled, Judge Ditte handed down the judgment, which is a sweeping victory for the countess. In granting her petition for divorce, the court gave the countess the custody of her children, the count being allowed only the usual rights to share in the control of their education, which was not contested, and to see them at stated periods at the home of their grandmother, and keep them a month annually during the holidays.

The count's demand for an "alimentary allowance of $50,000 annually" was pronounced by the court to be without foundation in law, and was rejected.

The only point decided in the count's favor was the imposition of the inhibition on the countess to take

BOLD BREAK BY CONVICTS

Twenty-five Russian Life Prisoners Escape at Kronstadt.

Gen. Rheinbot's "Bomb" Declared to Have Been Ugly Fake.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 14.—Twenty-five sailors, sentenced to hard labor in the mines for life, after having been convicted of participating in the August mutiny, were allowed to visit the baths at Kronstadt, last night, under an escort of sixteen soldiers. These they overpowered, killing on man. Then they donned civilian clothes and disappeared. A strict watch is maintained along both coasts of the Gulf of Finland, but only one fugitive has been captured.

The man who threw a bomb at Gen. Rennenkampff, governor of Transbaikalia, at Irkutsh, Siberia, Monday, has been identified as a workman, named Nicholas Koshun. The drumhead court-martial, before which he was tried, has condemned him to death.

Gen. Rheinbot of Moscow, who shot dead a bomb-thrower who missed him, has received hundreds of messages, including a personal communication from Emperor Nicholas, through Premier Stolypin, and a dispatch from Count Witte. In spite of these congratulations, which give color to the official version of the attempt on the prefect's life, there are rumors in Moscow that Gen. Rheinbot was himself the author of the plot, so as to retrieve his sinking fortunes, and to stave off retirement,

HEARTY THANKS BY ROOSEVELT

The President Exchanges Wireless Greetings With Steamship's Men.

New York, Nov. 14.—The officers and crew of the steamer, Advance, which arrived here today from Colon, exchanged wireless messages with President Roosevelt during the voyage. When the Advance met the battleship Louisiana and her escort, the Tennessee and Washington, the following wireless message was sent to the president:

"Hon. Theodore Roosevelt, U. S. S. Louisiana: The captain and men of the S. S. Advance send greetings, wish you and Mrs. Roosevelt a most pleasant voyage and congratulate you on result of New York state election. Edward Hammond, captain."

The president's reply was:

"Captain Hammond and men of the steamer Advance: Heartiest thanks for your congratulations on both counts. Theodore Roosevelt."

PLAN NATIONAL BROTHERHOOD

Presbyterian Delegates Gather to Organize New Men's Order.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 14.—One thousand delegates and half as many more visitors, representing every state, were present today at the opening business meeting of the convention called to unite in one national body the men of the Presbyterian church. The Cumberland Presbyterian church, the Presbyterian church south, the Brotherhood of Andrew and Philip, the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, the United Presbyterian Men's League, the Methodist Episcopal Brotherhood of St. Paul and Wesley, an dthe Men's Guild of Scotland, sent delegates to extend fraternal greeting to the new organization which is to be called Presbyterian Brotherhood.

Henry O. Osborne of Chicago, presided. The first hour was given to devotional service led by Dr. John E. Bushnell of Minneapolis. Dr. W. P. Roberts of Philadelphia, stated clerk of the general assembly, delivered the first address. His subject was "The Presbyterian Church, What It Stands For."

HARMONY IN CANAL WORK.

Officials of Panama Zone Form Organization on Work.

Washington, Nov. 14.—An organization of subordinate officials of the isthmian canal zone has been effected that, it is believed, will bring the various departments and divisions of the canal government into harmony and prevent the duplication of work and other conflicts. The new association will hold meetings semi-monthly, with all the heads of departments and divisions, including the general manager of the Panama railway, attending Each of these officials may bring subordinates with him, if he desires, to assist in the explanation or description of work to be undertaken.

NEW COUNTERFEIT FOUND.

Secret Service Gives Description of Bogus $10 United States Note.

Washington, Nov. 14.—The United States secret service announces the discovery of a new counterfeit $10 "Buffalo" United States note—apparently a photolithographic production printed on two pieces of paper with silk fiber distributed between them. The face of the note is grayish black. The numbering, seal and large X TEN are of good color and workmanship. The check letter and plate number do not appear in the lower right hand corner. The back of the note is a dark bluish green. By itself this counterfeit is apt to deceive, but, when handled with genuine notes the difference in the color of the back is plain.

WINDING UP ITS BUSINESS

Split Rock Lumber Company Takes Step for Dissolution.

One of the final steps for the winding up of the affairs of the Split Rock Lumber company, which for the past seven or eight years has been operating in the vicinity of Split Rock, on the north shore of Lake Superior, filed in the district court a petition for the dissolution of the company, for a sale of all its real and personal effects, and for a division of the proceeds pro rata among the stockholders.

The petition is signed by W. H. Gratwick, executor of the estate of Pendennis White, a prominent Buffalo lumberman, who died several months ago, and who was largely interested in the north shore company, and Thomas D. Merrill and W. H. Gratwick, appearing personally as stockholders in the concern.

During its existence as a corporation, the Split Rock Lumber company has cut an immense amount of pine timber on the north shore, which it has rafted to Duluth and manufactured into lumber at the Merrill & Ring company's plant in West Duluth.

A Year of Blood.

The year 1903 will long be remembered in the home of F. N. Tacket, of Alliance, Ky., as a year of blood; which flowed so copiously from Mr. Tacket's lungs that death seemed very near. He writes: "Severe bleeding from the lungs and a frightful cough had brought me at death's door, when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, with the astonishing result that after taking four bottles I was completely restored and, as time has proven, permanently cured." Guaranteed for Sore Lungs, Coughs and Colds, at all drug stores. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

CLAIMS HE WAS ABUSED

Cloquet Merchant Asks $1,050 Damages of Traveling Salesman.

H. H. Hoyt Gets Two Verdicts Awarding Trespass Damages.

The damage case of M. J. Zalk against E. P. Murphy and the Gowan-Peyton-Twohy company was called for trial in Judge Ensign's room this morning. A jury was drawn, but no evidence was introduced up to the noon adjournment, from the fact that the witnesses for Mr. Zalk were unable to reach Duluth by reason of a delay of the train.

M. J. Zalk, who is proprietor of a confectionery store and ice cream parlor in the town of Cloquet, Minn., claims that E. P. Murphy, a traveling salesman and collector for the Gowan - Peyton - Twohy company, wholesale grocers, entered his place of business, Aug. 22 last, and demanded the payment of an alleged debt of $3.42 due the local company. Mr. Zalk claims that he did not owe the debt, and told Mr. Murphy so. He says that Mr. Murphy became angry because of his refusal to pay and called him names.

It is alleged that the terms were used in the presence of some girls, who were clerking in the store, and some customers, and that Mr. Murphy talked so loud that a disturbance was caused and people congregated in front of the store to listen.

Mr. Zalk claims Mr. Murphy used this means to compel him to pay a debt that he denies owing, and that by reason of the disturbance his business has been injured in the sum of $50. He also asks general damages in the amount of $1,000.

F. V. Inskeep of Cloquet represents Mr. Zalk, and Crassweller & Crassweller represent Mr. Murphy and the wholesale company.

Shortly before noon today Arthur Crassweller, who is conducting the defense, objected to the introduction of any testimony in so far as it involved the Gowan-Peyton-Twohy company. He claimed the concern was not liable or responsible for anything Mr. Murphy might have said to Mr. Zalk, that it was a personal matter between them, if anything was said in the way of abusive language. Mr. Crassweller argued that after Mr. Murphy had asked for the payment of the alleged debt, the company had no further interest in what was said. Mr. Inskeep was to argue for the other side when the trial was resumed this afternoon.

Two verdicts in favor of Herbert H. Hoyt and against the Duluth & Iron Range Railway company and Martin Bros., respectively, were read in Judge Dibell's room this morning. The actions were brought for alleged trespass and Mr. Hoyt was awarded $29.66 against the railway company, and $59.33 against Martin Bros. The verdict was arrived at last evening when it was sealed, and was opened this morning. J. A. Keyes apeared for Mr. Hoyt, and H. B. Fryberger appeared for the railroad and Martin Bros.

The damage case of Gust Swanson, administrator, against the Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railway company, was submitted to the jury this noon, the morning being spent in arguments by the attorneys. This is the second trial of the case, the jury having been unable to agree at the first trial.

* * *

This afternoon it was expected that one of the several fire damage cases pending against the Duluth & Northeastern Railway company would be called for trial in Judge Dibell's room. The actions have been instituted by settlers, who claim that a fire started by section men, ran through their timber and damaged it. The cases are similar to those tried during the previous terms of court.

WILL RETAIN PRESENT FORCE

St. Paul, Nov. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Pressure is already being brought to bear upon Governor Johnson by candidates for office in the gift of the chief executive of the state, but it is generally understood that it is Governor Johnson's intention to make practically no changes in his force of officeholders. He is quite well satisfied with the manner in which the business of the state has been conducted the past two years. There will, of course, be an appointment to make of a surveyor general of logs and lumber at Minneapolis, F. G. Winston having resigned, but in general there will be no changes of heads of departments or in important offices. A movement to secure the place of F. L. Ryan, surveyor general in the Duluth district, for another has acquired some notice but it is understood that there will be no change there.

PROBE TREASURY SHORTAGE

St. Louis Federal Grand Jury Begins Inquiry into Missing Cash.

St. Louis, Nov. 14.—The November federal grand jury was sworn in by Judge Finkelberg in the United States district court today. Presumably the first matter to be taken up is the investigation into the shortage of $61,500 recently discovered in the funds of the St. Louis United States sub-treasury. Attorney F. W. Lehmann of St. Louis, special counsel representing the government, will conduct the examination of witnesses.

A Sale of Beautiful Tailor-made Suits at Half Price.

We've gone through the stocks—picked out the ones and twos here and there that we do not expect to re-order on any more this season and have placed them on sale for a clean-up—the lines include 21 to 27-inch Tight-fitting Jacket Suits—21 to 30-inch Semi-fitted Suits—Novelty Eton Suits and several styles in three-quarter length suits—in neat mixtures—nobby plaids and overchecks. Since this is a clean-up of ones and twos of which we desire to clean up stocks, none will be sent on approval—or exchanged—and alterations will be charged for at cost. Regular prices range from $19.50 to $57.50—at half would mean $8.75 to $23.75—there are only about thirty suits left of this special line—so come early enough.

CITY BRIEFS

Cigar Company Incorporates.

Articles of incorporation of the Independent Cigar company have been filed with the register of deeds by H. B. Detweiler, John McCambridge and Fred Reynolds. The company is capitalized at $50,000.

Administrator Files Motion.

W. G. Joerns, administrator of the estate of Charles Gasper, deceased, has filed a motion in the district court that the name of the Ron-Fernandez Cigar company be stricken from the action brought against the estate to recover on a claim of John L. Seymour, and that the name of Mr. Seymour be substituted. The arguments on the motion will be heard Saturday, at the special term. Mr. Joerns has also asked for more time in which to prepare himself to appear in the matter of the claim of Charles A. Peterson. This request will be considered Saturday.

Good Progarm Sunday.

An excellent literary and musical program has been arranged by the Independent Order of Brith Brith, Covenant lodge No. 569, for their open social meeting to be given next Sunday afternoon at the Maccabee hall, 224 West First street. The meeting will begin at 2:30.

Judges Will Fix Date.

The judges of the district court will fix a time, shortly, on which applications for naturalization papers under the new law will be heard. An applicant's name must be posted 90 days in advance of the hearing and it is likely that one day each month will be set aside by the court for the hearing of such matters.

Naval Lieutenant Coming.

Lieut. I. C. Wettingil, of the navel recruiting station at Minneapolis, will arrive in Duluth tomorrow to take charge of the recruits for the navy which have been secured during the last two weeks by Officer Bienkhorn. Lieut. Wettingel will be accompanied by Dr. Brocton who will make the final test of the recruits.

H. V. Jones in Town.

H. V. Jones, of Minneapolis, the well known crop expert, editor of the Commercial West, and a partner in the firm of Watson & Company, was in Duluth for a few hours today. He returned to Minneapolis at 1:55 this afternoon. It is reported that the presence of Mr. Jones in the city had to do with arrangements which are being made by Watson & Company to establish a wire brokerage office in this city. Watson & Company are stock as well as gain brokers, being members of the New York Stock exchange, and it is rumored that the concern seeks quarters on Superior street.

The Widener is Enrolled.

The steamship, Peter A. B. Widener, the new boat which has just been completed at Chicago for the Pittsburg Steamship company, was enrolled in the port of Duluth this morning. Her official number was received from Washington yesterday. The Widener will leave Chicago next Saturday and will probably arrive in Duluth for her first cargo about the middle of next week. She will be used in the ore carrying business.

Auxiliary to Meet.

The Park Point auxiliary of the First Presbyterian church will meet Thursday afternoon of this week with Mrs. McInnis, 2401 Minnesota avenue.

Are After Deer.

A hunting party consisting of C. F. Wiggerts, "Jake" Stubler, H. Miller and Edward Greeg, the latter from Minneapolis, left this morning for the Rush lake country, back of Cloquet, which is said to be one of the best game regions in the state. They will be gone for two weeks, and took along enough supplies to last two months, according to common report. If they succeed in carrying all the ammunition they started with, their friends say they should meet with good success in the North woods.

Norris Funeral.

The funeral of Capt. Michael Norris will be held Friday morning at 9 o'clock from the residence and from the Cathedral of the Sacred Heart at 10 o'clock. Interment will be made at Calvary cemetery. Capt. Norris was a member of the Elks, and they will attend the services in a body.

Fined For Assault.

Jesse Farrington was arraigned in the municipal court this morning on the charge of disorderly conduct. He is claimed to have assaulted Nelson Oberg last evening, without provocation, at the corner of Lake avenue and Superior street. Judge Cutting fined him $40 and costs, with the alternative of thirty days in jail.

Sunday School Meeting.

The Duluth Sunday School association held an interesting meeting last evening at the First Christian church, Fifth avenue west and Fourth street. An interesting program was given and the attendance was very gratifying. The principal speaker of the evening was Rev. C. R. Neel, state evangelist for the Christian church, who is conducting a series of evangelistic services at the First church. They will conclude Friday.

PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Cole have returned from Butte, Mont.

J. H. O'Meara, secretary to General Manager McGonagle, of the Missabe road, is fast recovering from the illness that has kept him from his desk for the past two weeks.

I. Gunderson left for Fergus Falls, Minn., this morning.

Knute Randall left for Winnipeg yesterday.

L. O. Ruchards left for Milwaukee today.

C. K. Marion left for Minneapolis today.

Talks on Germany.

The third monthly meeting and banquet of the men's league of the First Methodist church was held last evening and the largest number of gentlemen who have attended this season, sat down to a turkey dinner at 6:30. W. L. Smithies, president of the league, acted as spokesman and before calling for the address of the evening, expressed his delight at seeing such a large attendance and hoped that the growth of the league would continue.

The subject of the evening was "German School System," and the address was given by Prof. Herbert Blair of the normal school faculty. Prof. Blair spent nearly all of last year in Germany, studying the educational systems there and only returned this summer in time to resume the work at the normal in September.

BRIBE OFFER IN OIL CASE

Cleveland, Nov. 14.—A special to the Cleveland News from Findlay, Ohio, says: "According to C. C. Myers, member of the jury that convicted the Standard Oil company of violating the anti-trust law, a bribe of $500 was twice offered to him during the trial, once on the street and once in the basement of the courthouse, on condition that he hang the jury up and force a disagreement.

"Myers says he does not known who the man who tendered him the money was, though it was the same man in both instances. The bribe offered in the second instance may have been greater than $500, as the agent did not state the amount—merely displaying a huge roll of bills.

"Prosecutor David and other county officers will not discuss the charge of attempted bribery."

MEMORIAL TO FOUNDER.

Canterbury, Conn., Nov. 14.—A handsome memorial monument will be unveiled here Friday in honor of Moses Cleveland, a native of this place and founder of the city of Cleveland, Ohio, which will be represented by Mayor Tom L. Johnson and members of the chamber of commerce.

Moses Cleveland was born Jan. 29, 1754, and the date of the unveiling will be the one hundredth anniversary of his death. The monument is a tribute of the city of Cleveland to its founder.

BUCK'S STOVES & RANGES

"THE PEACE MAKERS"

30 Days' Free Trial!

No Money Down.

Think of it. The greatest demonstration of confidence ever shown in any line of stoves.

A $60 Bucks' Base Burner

put in your home on 30 days' absolutely free trial.

Not our cheapest heaters, but our very best. Think you, we would do this if we did not know these heaters would prove satisfactory. This heater will give more heat and burn less fuel than any other heater in the world.

WHY?

1st.—Because it has the largest cold air flue.

2nd.—Because the cold air flue is entirely surrounded by the hot air flue.

3rd.—Because the hot air flues are larger than in any other heater.

4th.—Because this heater has one very large hot air flue, which affords very free circulation and can be operated under check more easily than any other heater.

5th.—Because the fire pot is constructed exactly in proportion to the size of hot air flues thereby giving the most heat with the least fuel.

6th.—Because the reflector dome deflects the heat.

7th.—Because of the peculiar construction of the grates, which operate in such a way that the fire pot can be kept clear of ashes and clinkers with absolutely no waste of coal.

8th.—Because it is a double heater and will heat the rooms upstairs.

9th.—Because it heats the floor as well as the ceiling.

10th.—Because there are more reasons than we can enumerate.

All we ask is to have you call and let us show you. Take no chances, get a Buck's Heater and we will take the chances by sending any Buck's Stove or Range on 30 days' free trial.

We set it up in your home—you give it a good thorough test—we don't ask you to pay us a cent until you see how absolutely perfect this heater is. Your coal bills will be much less with a Buck's.

VON BUELOW TALKS ABLY

German Chancellor Discusses Foreign Affairs in Reichstag.

Declares French Vivacity and Ambition Need Constant Care.

Berlin, Nov. 14.—Chancellor Von Buelow, from the place in the reichstag where he fell unconscious seven months ago, spoke for forty-five minutes today on Germany's foreign relations, the audience including Baron Von Aehrenthal, Austro-Hungarian foreign minister, Ambassador and Mrs. Charlemagne Tower and several other ambassadors.

Herr Bassermann, National-Liberal, following his question of yesterday for information regarding the country's relation, said that, since Prince Bismarck left Germany respected and loved by her neighbors, the country's foreign policy had entered on a period of journey speeches, telegrams and courtesies—a period of unsteadiness which caused disquiet not only at home, but abroad. Herr Bassermann then alluded to the reports that a group of spiritualists have influence at court, saying that from what one read during the last few days, "the suggested spiritualistic romances and back-stays had formed one of the Byzantine period, with its flatterers, or the cabinet government of William III, or the cabal under Emperor Friederich Wilhelm IV." This statement was greeted with cries of "quite right" from various parts of the chamber.

Chancellor Von Buelow's reply was marked by his old time clearness of elocution and harmonious succesion of sentences, but there was less vivacity than formerly. Referring first to the relation between Germany and France, the chancellor related a conversation with the late Leon Gambatta, in which the French statesman said: "France has sunk to her knees," and his own reply was: "Up and forward." The emotion of France, the chancellor added, were like a thermometer, for with a pressure of the hand the quick silver rose or fell. "I may remark here," he continued, "that this vivacity of French patriotism is very strong, as is the ambition of the French people, and also the traditional brilliant qualities of our neighbors, which require us to be alert and armed so that we may protect the estate we lost on the Vosges, and won back again with streams of German blood."

COPPER STOCKS ARE STRONGER

Anaconda and Cananea Central Features of a Firmer Market.

The copper stock market was strong today, with Anaconda and Cananea Central as the features. Reports from Butte are to the effect that at high ore Shaft No. 2 at Anaconda, the largest body of ore glace ever discovered in the district has been struck.

Anaconda opened $4 higher this morning at $272, declined to $270 and rallied to $275, closing at $275 bid. Cananea Central sold early in the day at $25.50, advanced to $26.25 and closed at $26.75 bid and $27 asked. Superior & Pittsburg sold at $27.50 and 428 and closed at $27.62½ bid and $27.50 asked.

Opens Another Store

Owing to the tremendous increase in our business this season, we have found it necessary to secure additional space, and have consequently opened another

FUR

Store at 5 West Superior Street, which will have our personal attention the same as at 4 East Superior Street. We can say without fear of contradiction that with these two establishments, we are in position to offer not only the biggest of furs and fur selections, but also the best values in the Northwest. We cordially invite you to visit us at either location, and inspect our superb stock, whether you intend purchasing or not. Don't forget the new location,

5 West Superior St.

North Butte had a better tone, opening at $110.75, advancing to $113 and closing at $112.50 bid and $112.62½ asked. Amalgamated opened at $110.87½, declined to $110.75, rallied to $112.12½ and closed at $112 bid.

Calumet & Arizona opened at $155, declined to $154 and closed at $154 bid and $155 asked. Butte Coalition opened, ex-dividend, at $36.25, advanced to $36.75 and closed at $36.50 bid and $36.5 asked.

Calumet & Montana closed strong at $6 bid, after being traded in during the day at $6. Calumet & Sonora sold at $16.25 and closed at $16.50 asked; Globe Consolidated at $10 and closed at $9.75 bid and $10 asked; Hancock Consolidated at $12 and closed at $12 bid and $12.25 asked; Keweenaw at $12 and closed at $12 bid, and Copper Queen of Idaho at $2.75 and closed at $2.75 bid and $3 asked.

Warren was inactive and closed at $12.50 asked, Butte & London at $2.50 bid, and Cliff at $5.25 bid and $5.37½ asked. Black Mountain sold at $9.62½ and $10 and closed at $10 bid.

LATE DOINGS IN UPPER MICHIGAN

Nenominee, Mich., Nov. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Menominee has a big ski club, organized late last winter to take the place of the small weak club organized by a few young men. A large number of prominent citizens of all nationalities have joined and the avowed object is to secure one of the national tournaments for this city. A big slide was built and used here last winter and interest in the sport grew rapidly.

Among the residents here are John Mosted of Menominee, who won several medals and trophy spoons by his long jumps in contests in Norway, and John Eck of Menekaune, who had a record of an 118-foot ski jump in Norway previous to his coming to America several years ago. The backbone of the club here is formed by the Norwegians. C. C. Hanson, county clerk; O. B. Olson, editor of the Swedish paper, and other prominent business men are behind the movement. A much larger and better slide is to be erected here this winter. New runners are to be trained and it is planned to send a big delegation to the national tournament.

Houghton—Announcement was made yesterday by Manager Cowley of the Calumet & Hecla band that William F. Robinson, for the past eighteen months the director of that organization, has resigned and will return to his old home in Hamilton, Ont. He goes there to become assistant to his father, the most famous band master of Canada, leader of the celebrated Thirteenth battalion band.

The Greenland bank of Meilleur, Mercer & Co. has brought suit against the United States Casualty company for $2,457.72, the alleged shortage in the accounts of John J. Bogue, of Houghton, a former cashier of the bank. C. Meilleur, of Ontonagon, is the manager of the bank and Mr. Bogue served as cashier from August, 1901, until April 14, 1905. It is alleged that after Mr. Bogue had left the institution it was found that the accounts were short this amount. The bonding company was asked to make good the shortage and failing to do so the suit is the outcome.

Ishpeming—John Beauchamp, a resident of this city for more than a quarter of a century past, and very well and favorably known, died suddenly Monday morning at 6:35 o'clock. The deceased was perhaps one of the most widely known Frenchmen in Ishpeming. For some twenty-four years past, with the exception of a short time he was in business on his own account, also for a time he spent with the A. W. Myers Mercantile company, he had been in the employ of T. Hughes & Son, having had charge of the grocery department. He was about 50 years of age and leaves a wife, four daughters and two sons.

Negaunee—Joseph Graf, who came here from Milwaukee some months ago to take a position in Winter & Suess' meat market, had enough excitement crowded into the single day which he spent in the woods near here on a hunting trip to last him for the entire season. He went out with some friends early Sunday morning, to spend the day in the vicinity of Eagle Mills. The party had hardly separated, each to scour a section of the territory selected, when Graf discovered, after he had made a turn or two, that he was lost. He spent the entire day trying to find his way out of the woods without success, but luckily he met another hunter just before darkness came on, or it is likely that he would have spent the night in trying to make his way out.

Marquette—Two men passed by the house of Peter Vandenbush Monday afternoon, and, it is said, irritated the dog which belongs to the family. At any rate, the canine growled and ran towards them, whereupon one of the men drew a revolver and fired a shot at the animal. Unfortunately, the bullet went wide of its mark, and struck the window in front of which Mrs. Vandenbush had been sitting. However, having heard the noise of the dog, she had arisen from her chair, and thinking the sound came from that direction, had gone to the front window. Hardly had she done so when the report of the shot was heard, and the bullet entered through the side window, passing over the place where she sat not half a minute before.

Frank Winterstein, an orphan 12 years old, who lives on Fourth street, while sliding down hill, crashed into a street car at Third and Washington streets, and received a bad injury to his foot and a bruised head.

News has been received here of the death of Mrs. Taft, widow of the late Dr. Taft, for many years in the early days a practicing physician here and at Republic, and who is well remembered by the old-timers in the county, though his death occurred nineteen years ago. Mrs. Taft died at a ripe old age, at the home of a daughter in Ann Arbor.

Something in the way of a freak deer was shot Saturday by George W. Smith, Jr., while hunting in the woods along the line of the L. S. & I. railroad some miles west of here. The animal bagged was of the spike horn variety, and had a jet black breast, black tail and very large black ears. Nothing just like it was ever seen here before. The deer weighed about 100 pounds.

SEEKS TO ANNUL PRINCE'S UNION

Paris, Nov. 14.—Prince Amedee De Broglie, father of Prince Robert De Broglie, has filed in the Paris courts a demand for the annulment of his son's marriage with Miss Estelle Alexander of California in Chicago, Aug. 14.

It was claimed at the time that, according to the laws of France, the marriage was not valid because the prince's divorce from a former wife had not been approved and because his second marriage had not been recorded according to the French laws. Prince Robert claimed that his marriage was legal under the laws of Illinois, and in Paris recently showed a letter from the French vice consul in Chicago stating that the marriage had been recorded with his government and was legal under the French law. He added that he had instructed his lawyer in Paris to bring suit against his family to compel them to recognize the marriage and also to recover interests to which he was entitled.

The two, the wife being known on the stage as "Princess Estelle De Broglie" are now touring vaudeville in the United States. During the princess' singing act her husband, conducts the orchestra.

HOTEL TRUST IS THE LATEST

New York, Nov. 14.—With the opening of the new Knickerbocker, New York has waked up to the existence of an Astor family "hotel trust." Beginning with the Astor House, the Astors have successively put up the Waldorf-Astoria, the Hotel Astor and the St. Regis, and now the Knickerbocker is added to the list of Astor-built hosteleries, "providing exclusiveness for the masses."

Rising fifteen stories high, the Knickerbocker, with a frontage of 186 feet on Forty-second street and 102 feet on Broadway, is a conspicuous monument in the very center of New York's liveliest district. Although millions have been spent on the interior decorations and furnishings, Col. John Jacob Astor's architects and builders did not stop at outer appearances.

To make the 1,000 that the Knickerbocker can accommodate feel that they are securely as well as luxuriously housed, the fire proofing of the new hotel was made one of the principle features. This idea has been so completely carried out that should a blaze break out in any room, it would simply burn up the inflammable material there and then die out. The floors and partitions of hollow-tile form bulwarks through which fire and smoke cannot pass. The steel frame work is encased in terra cotta to prevent warping from fire or sudden collapse from the effects of the corrosion.

In fact, the perfection of the steel and hollow-tile construction makes the whole building so nearly unburnable that there is no danger of a guest waking up to find that his only choice lies between being roasted alive or a leap from the fourteenth or fifteenth story. Evidently, the day of the hotel fire trap is passing, for every new hotel must keep up with the standard set by such buildings as the Knickerbocker.

How the center of New York's hotel population has changed is shown by the fact that within a radius of 1,000 feet of the Knickerbocker there are sixteen theatres and twenty-one clubs. Through the basement runs the Subway; within two blocks is the Grand Central station, and a short distance away the new Pennsylvania termial is beig built. What used to be the northern limit of the "Rialto" is now the location of its half-way house.

MRS. DOWIE GETS FINE PROPERTY

Chicago, Nov. 14.—United States Judge Landis, today directed the entry of an order by virtue of which Mrs. Jane Dowie is granted the Mac-Dhui property at White Lake, Mich., purchased by John Alexander Dowie when he was at the head of the Zion church and worth $60,000. In return, Mrs. Dowie relinquishes all claim to property in Zion City, and turns over the stock held by her in the Zion City lace factories to Overseer Voliva, now head of the church. Voliva had declared that he would contest the transfer of the property at White Lake, but his attorneys entered no objections to the entering of the formal order.

OIL PIPE LINES GROWING.

Three Standard Oil Concerns Add Heavily to Their Capitals.

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 14.—Three pipe line concerns, controlled by the Standard Oil company, filed notices in the state department today of heavy increases in their capital stock. They are the Crescent Pipe Line company of Philadelphia, whose capital has been increased from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000; the Southern Pipe Line company, Oil City, from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 and the Northern Pipe Line company, Oil City, $1,000,000 to $4,000,000.

KEEP UP HEARST LEAGUE.

New York, Nov. 14.—At a meeting last night of the executive committee of the Independence league, resolutions were adopted congratulating William R Hearst, on his good work in the recent election in New York state, and pledging the reorganization and continuance of the league as a means for furtherance of the principles advocated by him.

RUMORS OF SEA FIGHT NOT TO BE CONFIRMED.

Washington, Nov. 14.—No confirmation of a Victoria report that two Russian converted cruisers have been sunk by a Japanese destroyer in the neighborhood of the Seal Islands, can be had at the state department nor the Russian or Japanese embassies. Unofficial reports are that there has been much friction between the Russian guards patrolling the Seal rookeries in the neighborhood of Copper islands and Japanese seal poachers similar to that in the case of the United States' own seal islands.

ACQUITTED OF CHARGES OF OFFICIAL MISCONDUCT.

Ottawa, Ohio, Nov. 14.—The jury in the case against David F. Owens and Ignatius Stechschulte, county commissioners, charged with misconduct in office, as a result of indictments growing out of the investigation made by the grand jury last spring, has brought in a verdict of not guilty.

NAILS DRIVEN THROUGH HAND

Pittsburg, Nov. 14.—William Mitchell, formerly of this city, has been arrested at Canton, Ohio, to answer to the charge of having virtually crucified his 19-year-old wife, Jean. The latter is at the Homeopathic hospital, suffering from the wounds made when nails were driven through her hand, but she refuses to state who did it.

A sound as of a carpenter driving a nail, intermingled with the screams of a woman, awakened the dwellers in the apartment house at 2047 Forbes street, Sunday.

"Oh," the woman cried, "you're not going to nail my hand to the sink-board, surely? Oh, don't be so cruel!"

Neighbors hurried into the apartment and found the woman in a kneeling position on the floor. Her left hand was nailed to the sink. The woman was unconscious, and was taken to a hospital. When she recovered she said when she entered the flat something struck her on the back of the head, and she felt herself drawn by the hair toward the sink. Her hand was pressed down against the board, and two nails were driven into it.

The Mitchells have not been living together for two years. Mitchell is said to have accused his wife of infidelity, and they parted, but recently he has tried to compel his wife to return to him. Thursday Mitchell came to town. Mrs. Mitchell told Miss Anna Adams, who occupies adjoining apartments, that if she heard a scream to run to the rooms at once, because Mitchell had threatened to kill her.

Mitchell denies he committed the assault.

MUSKRATS A MENACE.

Buildings at Lake City, Iowa, Are Being Undermined.

Lake City, Iowa, Nov. 14.—Much concern is expressedd by business men that the curious invasion of the town by muskrats may result in great damage to buildings. Already the animals have undermined several structures. The coming of the muskrats is a puzzle. They were many years ago very thick along the streams in this county, but have since largely decreased. Lake City is two miles from the creek and the land invasion of the muskrats cannot be explained by ordinary theories. They are being killed in large numbers and their furs saved for marketing.

NATIONAL GRANGE OPENS CONVENTION IN DENVER.

Denver, Nov. 14.—Every state in the union was represented at the annual convention of the National Grange, which was called to order in the chamber of commerce here today by President M. H. Bachelder of New Hampshire. The first session was occupied with the appointment of committees and other routine work. The sessions will continue ten days. An attendance of 1,500 delegates is expected.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

"Considering the equipment" is the qualifying phrase with which the workers and members of the local Young Women's Christian association are most often greeted. Visitors to the city, who are identified or interested in the work of the association throughout the country, are always impressed with the growth of the work in Duluth, and invariably the comment is "Considering the equipment, the work done is marvelous."

The latest visitor to the local association is Miss Daisy M. Griggs, state secretary of the Young Women's Christian association of Minnesota, who was a guest of the Duluth association to open the world's week of prayer, which is being observed all over the world this week. Miss Griggs spoke at the Sunday afternoon devotional service, and at the Monday and Tuesday noon hour services, and left last evening for Moorhead, where a student association is to be organized. Miss Griggs visited Duluth in March of this year, shortly after becoming secretary. She is especially interested at this time in the work which the association is undertaking in Buenos Ayres, a secretary having been sent to that city whose first year's salary is being paid by the associations of Minnesota and Pennsylvania.

"Buenos Ayres is a most cosmopolitan city," said Miss Griggs, last evening, in speaking of the work. "In the Y. M. C. A. there of 500 members, there are thirty nations represented. The field is broad, and Mrs. Shuman, who is well known here, and who has started the Young Women's work there, and is president of the Buenos Ayres association, writes most enthusiastically of the possibilities of the work. The local association members should watch with interest Miss Batty's efforts this coming year.

"I can hardly decide which part of the work pleases me most in the Duluth association. After watching for a few days the planning and contriving to work in, and find room for, the classes which are being carried on, the wonder grows that the work progresses as it does, with the binding conditions which are evident. Duluth should have a large association here for her young women. The need of more secretaries is also evident, for Duluth should be doing something along the line of extension work in the factories, which is at present, through the lack of workers, being unprosecuted."

A caller at the rooms last evening could not but be impressed with the urgent need of greater facilities. Two of the educational classes were meeting in the dining room; a study class was in the office, and gymnasium classes occupying the hall. At the tick of the clock the members left these places to make way for others, and but a small space in the parlors was left for chance visitors to rest or wait. No one who witnesses the contriving which takes place on class night to provide for all the calls of the association work can doubt the great necessity for more room.

FINE CONCERT.

Mrs. McAuliffe and Miss Rogers Heard to Advantage.

Duluth has seldom heard Mrs. Judd McAuliffe in finer voice than she appeared last evening in concert with Miss Ruth Alta Rogers in an interesting program, which was presented at Steinway hall. The concert was one of the most enjoyable of the fall offerings in the musical line. Mrs. McAuliffe opened the program with a group of four songs, "Song of the Captive," by Gerard Tonning; Dvorak's "Song That My Mother Taught Me;" "Three Green Bonnets," by d'Hardelot, and "The Year's at the Spring," by H. H. A. Beach. The singer's voice was in perfect control and of a velvety quality, and beauty that made her every number a joy. In the last group, the optimistic Browning song was presented with a sustained vigor that made the number one of the most brilliant of the program. Mrs. McAuliffe's other numbers were from the aria from "Persian Garden" by Liza Lehman, and "Cavatina" from "The Huguenots" of Meyerbeer, and they were both finely sung.

Miss Ruth Rogers was heard last evening in a more extended program, than she has presented heretofore, and in her selection she displayed the musicianly interpretation and taste which have marked her previous playing. Miss Rogers' selections were, "Toccato Op. 14" by Alberto Jona's, Gluck-Brahms "Gavotte" and Brahms "Intermezzo Op. 17, No. 1, "LeCoucou" by Daquin, Liszt "Etude in D flat," and a Chopin number "Fantasie Op. 49." The numbers were of variety to bring out the ability of the young musician, and she was received with much favor. The accompaniments for the evening were played by Mrs. Margaret Bradbury.

BUTTE SOCIETY

Honor Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Cole at Brilliant Functions.

Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Cole, who have been at Butte for the past two weeks, have been the greatly feted guests of the society people of that city. The society column of the Butte papers chronicle a series of handsome luncheons and dinners in honor of the Duluth visitors. Mrs. Cole was the honored guest at handsomely appointed luncheons Tuesday and Wednesday and Friday, at which Mrs. A. J. Shores, Mrs. W. H. Hall and Mrs. William Kirkpatrick were hostesses. Mrs. J. D. Ryan, whose house guests Mr. and Mrs. Cole are, entertained at bridge in their honor, Wednesday evening, and upon Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. Ryan entertained at dinner in compliment to the Coles. Another dinner of twelve covers, at which Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Leonard were hosts, was given Friday.

Bridge Reception.

Mrs. L. W. Leithhead and Miss Sellwood entertained yesterday afternoon at the last of the series of afternoons at bridge, at Mrs. Leithhead's home on South Eighteenth avenue east. Bridge was played at eight tables, and the favors were won by Miss Hoatson, Mrs. George H. Mance and Mrs. G. A. St. Clair. The rooms were decorated in brilliant American beauties and chrysanthemums.

Card Parties.

Miss Cora Letteau entertained informally at bridge yesterday afternoon at her home on East First street. The game was played at two tables and the favors were won by Mrs. J. D. Elliot.

Mr. and Mrs. George M. Tallant entertained last evening at a neighborhood party at their home, 830 East Second street. The rooms were prettily decorated in red, candles in the bright color and softly shaded lights being used. Five hundred was played at five tables and the favors were won by Mrs. Cunningham and John Olden and the consolation favors went to Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Swanson.

Reception.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Wardwell entertained last evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Stewart who will leave the latter part of the week to make their home in the West. The rooms were prettily decorated for the function and during the receiving hours more than a hundred guests called. Assisting about the rooms were: Mrs. W. A. Cragin, Mrs. Henney, Mrs. J. M. Ford and Mrs. D. W. Walte. Mr. and Mrs. Stewart will make their home in Seattle.

Shakespeare Class.

The regular meeting of the Morning Shakespeare class of the Twentieth Century club will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at the club rooms of the library. The reading and discussion of "Romeo and Juliet" will be continued and any one interested is invited to attend.

Children's Party.

Mrs. J. H. Dight entertained at a children's party, yesterday afternoon, in honor of her little daughter, Marion. Sixty little ones were entertained at a most delightful afternoon, one of the very pleasing features being a Punch and Judy show.

Events of Interest.

The Members of Circle No. 3 of the Ladies' Aid society of Temple Emanuel will entertain at an informal dancing party tomorrow evening at Steinway hall. LaBrosse's orchestra will play the program of dance music.

The members of the thimble bee of the J. W. Culver Relief corps will be entertained tomorrow afternoon by Mrs. P. H. Levy of 319 Fourth avenue west.

Personal Mention.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Viele will leave tomorrow for Honolulu where they will be until June of next year.

Miss Alice Scott left today for Minneapolis, where she will attend the football game Saturday and other functions at the university.

Dr. and Mrs. G. H. Jones, Dr. C. F. Jones and W. H. Smallwood, Jr., have returned from a hunting trip.

Miss Florence Searle returned to Minneapolis today after a visit with Mrs. Miller McDougall.

Mrs. E. C. Alstead of the Ashtabula terrace is visiting friends in Minneapolis this week.

What Retail Markets Offer

Stock fish, 20 cents a lb.
Smoked halibut, 20 cents a lb.
Red cabbage, 5 and 10 cents a head.
Shelled hickory nuts.
Garlic, 25 cents a lb.
Flounders, 15 cents a lb.
Pork and beans.

The above list is not recommended in combination.

It is time for buckwheat cakes and maple syrup, and a little delicious home made sausage. Don't you care how many times the housekeeper pokes out hor lips and draws her brows together in a frown; assert your manly authority that now is the time for the buckwheat cake jar to be commenced, and that you insist upon her doing it now. There probably never was a housekeeper who really liked to start a jar full of buckwheat batter to last until spring, but it is your right so long as you provide the buckwheat and the syrup, and see that you get it.

The market man has put out in tempting array great hunks of pork for pork and beans, and everybody ought to have some. Stock fish is a Norwegian delicacy that looks like a piece of fire wood, and it is put to soak in lye for a week or two, and the concluding ceremonies concerning the poor fish are lost in mystery.

GERMAN CHARGES DELAYED.

Karl Hau, Washington Professor, Held for Another Week in London.

London, Nov. 14.—Karl Hau, alias Stau, professor of Roman law in George Washington university, at Washington, D. C., arrested here Nov. 8, charged with the murder of his mother-in-law at Baden-Baden, was further remanded for a week at the Bow street police court this morning, the papers in his case not having arrived from Germany.

H. Wilson, who was retained by the prisoner at the last moment, briefly examined the officer who arrested Hau, his questions suggesting that the defense will attempt to show that Hau's revolver was never fired and was purchased in Constantinople and not in Germany.

After the remand had been ordered, Mr. Wilson said: "Hau insists that he knows nothing about the murder and that he is quite innocent of the charge."

SPAN OF NEW BRIDGE FALLS.

Loveland, Ohio, Nov. 14.—A span of a new bridge being built across the Miami river at Loveland, fell into the river today. Five men were injured, one of them fatally.

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Rose Melville in "Sis Hopkins."
METROPOLITAN—Campbell's Nightingales.

COMING ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM — Friday and Saturday, "Texas."
LYCEUM—Tuesday and Wednesday, "The Gingerbread Man."

AUDIENCE DELIGHTED.

Rose Melville in "Sis Hopkins" is Again at the Lyceum.

CAST.

Ma Hopkins.....Florence Webster
Tishie Standifer.....Fay Lewis
Margery Melrose.....Grace Kimball
Obadiah Odlum.....J. T. Ray
Pa Hopkins.....Frank C. Hartwell
Addison Vibert.....Lee Daniel
Parthenia Peckover.....Elsie Mackay
Bert Varnum.....Gilbert Fitzgerald
Elsie Van Ness.....Mary Atheling
Sis Hopkins.....Rose Melville
Ridy Scarboro.....Frank Minzey

Rose Melville in "Sis Hopkins" received her usual enthusiastic reception when she opened a three-nights' engagement at the Lyceum theater last evening. This is the eighth season this picturesque pastoral play has been on the road, and it appears to be just as popular now as it ever was, which is saying a good deal. Miss Melville has at different times manifested a desire to find some other vehicle for her talents, but there is such a demand for her in the familiar character of Sis that no opportunity has presented itself for her to play in some other production.

It is difficult to imagine another taking the place of Miss Hopkins in the role, and if such a calamity should befall, the chances are the play would meet with an untimely fate. It is Miss Melville the audience wants to see, and no one else would draw a crowd in this part the way the originator does. She enters into her work with the same sincerity that she always did, and the result is realistic enough to satisfy the most critical. She appears to fine advantage all the way through the performance, both as the awkward country girl and the polished young woman who returns from abroad.

The support is quite satisfactory. Florence Webster answers the requirements as Ma Hopkins, and Fay Lewis was attractive as Tishie Standifer. J. T. Ray provoked laughter by his odd antics in the character of the undertaker, and F. C. Hartwell made a likeable father of Sis. Lee Daniel was sufficiently disagreeable as the villain, while Elsie Mackay was good as the proprietoress of the seminary. Frank Minzey made a sincere lover of Sis, and Mary Atheling was pretty and pleasing as Elsie Van Ness. Gilbert Fitzgerald came in for his share of attention as the impulsive college youth.

"TEXAS."

The play "Texas," by J. Mauldin Feigl, which will be seen at the Lyceum Friday and Saturday under the management of Messrs. Broadhurst and Currie, is continuing the success of last season. The company is most capable, being comprised of such excellent actors as Miss Mabel Dixey and Charles D. Coburn, supported by Hattie Foley, Abigail Marshall, Louis Thiel, Howard Messimer, Ernest Allen and others.

GOOD VOCAL NUMBERS.

Miss Pauline De Vere and the Yorke Comedy Four contribute some fine vocal specialties to the entertainment Campbell's Nightingales are giving at the Metropolitan this week. Miss De Vere is singing Marie Cahill's big song hit in her last season's show, "Moonshine," called "Robinson Crusoe's Isle," and Jack Norworth's "Holding Hands and You Don't Say Nothing at All." The quartet's selections are all well chosen. The Nightingales will give a special matinee for ladies tomorrow, and it is expected that ladies will form a large part of the audience tomorrow evening. No smoking will be permitted at either performance.

"THE GINGERBREAD MAN."

One acknowledged novelty of the present dramatic season is the Fred Rankin-Baldwin Sloane musical comedy fairyesque, "The Gingerbread Man," that comes to the Lyceum next Tuesday and Wednesday. A revival of the old-time ballet, wherein the women must not only all be beautiful of face and figure, but real types of the feminine Amazon, and a ballet dance in a rain storm—real rain, too—are two of its features that will appeal. "The Gingerbread Man" himself is a friend of childhood, and associated with him are a few other friends one is apt to remember, such as Simple Simon, Peter Piper, Margery Daw, Sally Lunn, Kris Kringle and a few others. Thus this delightful musical fantasie suits all generations—those who look back and those who have not to do so.

BUTLER GETS CONTRACT

To Construct a Sanitary Sewer in Virginia for $3,081.

Virginia, Minn., Nov. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—C. C. Butler was awarded the contract to construct a sanitary sewer in district No. 3 F, by the city council, last evening. The amount of his bid was $3,081.90. P. McDonnell was the only other bidder, and his tender was $147 higher.

The city attorney gave as his opinion that Contractor McDonnell could not be paid for the paving of Central avenue until after thirty days had elapsed from the time of official publication of the notice of assessment against the several parcels of property benefited. The publication was made on Oct. 26.

F. B Myers of Biwabik, president of the Mesaba Traction company, was here Monday, in consultation with the city officials.

Hunters who have returned to the city after spending the first few days of the open season in the woods report that deer are plentiful, although the lack of snow makes it a difficult matter to follow them. Quite a number have been killed, however, most of them up the line of the Rainy Lake road.

BIWABIK BONDS SOLD

To Build Waterworks and Electric Light Plants and Sewerage System.

Eveleth, Minn., Nov. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Attorney J. C. McGillvery of this city, who has been drawing up the $25,000 bond issue for the City of Biwabik, has completed his work and the bonds have been sold to a Duluth banking house at par, with accrued interest. With the funds thus obtained, Biwabik will build and operate a waterworks plant, an electric light plant and a sewerage system.

A new lodge of Knights of Pythias was installed at Aurora this week, about thirty members from the Eveleth lodge going over to do the work. Besides those from Eveleth, K. P.'s from Two Harbors and Biwabik were present and also two state officers of the lodge, Grand Chancellor Commander Carl S. Bartram and Grand Keeper of Records and Seal Fred Wheaton. The new lodge has twenty-one members and will be known as Aurora Lodge No. 185.

INCREASING LEAD.

Governor Johnson and the Amendments Still Run Well.

St. Paul, Nov. 14.—The wide-open tax amendment has received 64,659 votes of a total vote of 117,903, cast in forty-six counties that have reported. This puts the amendment about 5,500 votes ahead of the majority necessary, in the counties heard from. The good roads amendment is running very close, and may be lost, but the peddlers' privilege amendment runs strong, getting big majorities everywhere.

Morrison county cast a total of 4,097 votes, of which 2,299 were cast for the tax amendment, and Marshall county reports a total of 2,710 votes, of which 1,396 are for the amendment. It ran a little behind in Blue Earth, getting 2,619 votes out of a total of 5,538, but Todd county comes in strong with 2,122 votes out of 3,697, and Hubbard also shows up strong with 1,094 votes out of 1,688.

Governor Johnson's lead is increased by the complete vote of Marshall county, which gives Cole 711 and Johnson 1,760. Hubbard county's official vote shows it rather close, with 828 for Cole and 757 for Johnson. Johnson's plurality now stands at 70,762.

FARMER KILLED.

Madella, Minn., Nov. 14.—John W. Yager, a farmer living three miles east of town, fell from his wagon while returning from this village last Friday. His feet caught and he was dragged backwards for about a mile. He sustained injuries from which he died Sunday night. Deceased was 50 years of age and is survived by his widow and several children. He came here from State Center, Iowa, last spring.

Tricked By Dyspepsia

The Doctor Couldn't Tell Where the Trouble Lay.

"For the past seven years I have been a victim of dyspepsia and chronic constipation and have consulted the most noted specialists to be found on diseases of this character. None, however, seemed to locate the difficulty or give relief. In addition to this medical treatment, I have resorted to the use of many remedies and have given them faithful trial, but all to no purpose.

Upon the recommendation of a close friend, I purchased a 50c package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and in less than five days noticed that I was receiving more benefit than from any remedy I had used before. I continued to use the tablets after each meal for one month and by that time my stomach was in a healthy condition, capable of digesting anything which my increasing appetite demanded.

"I have not experienced any return of my former trouble, though three months have elapsed since taking your remedy."

We wish that you could see with your own eyes the countless other bona-fide signed letters from grateful men and women all over the land who had suffered years of agony with dyspepsia, tried every known remedy and consulted eminent specialists without result until they gave Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets a trial. Like the doctor above, they couldn't locate the seat of the trouble.

Dyspepsia is a disease which has long baffled physicians. So difficult of location is the disease that cure seems next to miraculous. There is only one way to treat dyspepsia—to supply the elements which nature has ordained to perform this function and to cause them to enter the digestive organs, supplying the fluids which they lack. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets alone fill these requirements, as is shown by the fact that 40,000 physicians in the United States and Canada unite in recommending them to their patients for stomach disorders.

We do not claim or expect Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets to cure anything but disordered conditions of the stomach and other digestive organs, but this they never fail to do. They work upon the inner lining of the stomach and intestines, stimulate the gastric glands and aid in the secretion of juices necessary to digestion.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are for sale by all druggists at 50 cents a box. One box will frequently effect a perfect cure. If in doubt and want more adequate proof send us your name and address and we will gladly mail you a sample package free. F. A. Stuart company, 61 Stuart Bldg. Marshall, Mich.

STOCKPILES CLEANED UP

At All Ely Mines and Shipping Now From Pockets.

Ely, Minn., Nov. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Chandler, Pioneer, Zenith, Sibley and Savoy mines have shipped all the ore from their stockpiles, it being the first time in the history of the mines when all have had their stock-piles cleared up at the same time. All the shipping now for the balance of the season will be from the pockets. The shipments for the summer are the largest ever made in one season.

Big game is very plentiful in the vicinity of Ely. A number of the hunters came back yesterday, all having good luck. Ed Crossman, Louis Larson and Peter Bergleen each bringing in two deer. F. L. Cowen and C. L. Newberry returning with one each.

Axel Larsen, while out rabbit hunting last Sunday, ran across a bull moose about a mile and a half south of Ely.

RUN DOWN BY TRAIN.

Hibbing, Minn., Nov. 14.—A Finnish woman, Amelia Witlin, was run down and probably fatally injured by the Duluth, Minnesota & Northern train near the viaduct, about one-half mile west of town, on Monday afternoon.

FINLANDER KILLED.

Ashland, Wis., Nov. 14.—Alex Anderson, about 40 years old, and a native of Finland, was found badly mangled at Corlu, two miles this side of Highbridge, by the side of the railroad track and it is supposed that he was struck by a Wisconsin Central train. The body was discovered by two Indians.

"First Aid" to the Bowels

WHEN Heartburn, Sour Stomach, Headache, Bad Breath, coated Tongue, Belching of Stomach, Gas, or any of these forerunners of Indigestion appear, Old Dr. Cascaret wants to be right on the spot in your pocket.

Dr. Cascaret guarantees to cure the most obstinate cases of Constipation and Indigestion, without discomfort or inconvenience.

His medicine does not gripe nor purge, but exercises naturally the muscles that line the walls of the Intestines and Bowels.

Want of Exercise weakens and relaxes the Bowel-Muscles, just as it weakens Arm and Leg muscles.

Old Dr. Cascaret goes directly after these Bowel-Muscles. He wakes them up just as a cold bath would wake up a lazy person.

Then he works them (through the nerves) till they get so strong from that Exercise that they don't need any more help to do their duty.

SYSTEM IS REQUIRED

Taxpayers Agitate Question of Township and School District Audit.

New Law Likely to be Drafted by This County.

The fact that there is no system of township or school district audit in St. Louis county, or for that matter, in any of the counties of Minnesota, has led a number of Duluth's prominent citizens and taxpayers to consider seriously the matter of bringing the condition of affairs to the attention of the legislature when it meets, this winter, with a view of getting some legislative relief in the way of protection for the taxpayers.

From the present outlook it is pretty certain that St. Louis county interests who have been giving the matter careful thought and some investigation, will ask the delegation from this part of the country to the state legislature, to frame and present a bill, which shall in some form or other provide for a system of audit of the books and accounts of all township and school district officers.

The state and county officials have their books and accounts regularly audited or checked up by the public examiner, who is really the auditing officer for the state in that particular. He is supposed to find out if the officials are keeping their accounts in the proper condition, to show them how to do so, and then see that they follow his instructins. Below the county officials, however, there is absolutely no check on township or school district officials, except as may be had through grand jury action, and that is claimed to be too erratic to be of any practical good.

As a matter of fact there are many taxpayers who feel convinced in their own minds, or who have some reason to believe that there have been many cases in past years of a perversion of public funds in township and school districts. The records of the district court will bear out a statement to that effect. There are known to be instances where money has been handled through township and school officers on which there was no check, and for the expenditure of which there is not in the records, so much as a scratch of the pen to show what the money was used for. Conceding that the money may have been used for perfectly legitimate purposes, it is claimed that the records should show it. It is not charged that all township or school district officers, or any particular set of them are responsible for the condition of affairs, but it is a matter of common knowledge that new townships and new districts are sometimes formed where the new officers are unfamiliar with the simplest duties of their office, and where their negligance is purely from ignorance, rather than intent. But even in such cases, the taxpayers claim, the state law should offer some form of protection to the people who put up the money to run the town or the district.

In a grand jury investigation where there has been reason to suspect that accounts of township or school district officers have not been kept straight, it is often a difficult matter for uninterested persons to get possession of the books and, by the time the grand jury is ready for action, the accounts may be doctored up so as to appear all right.

It is claimed by the taxpayers interested in the new movement, if there were provision by law for a regularly appointed auditor to go over any township or school district books, on notice, a most efficient check could be had in the matter and, during the passing of years, large sums of money would undoubtedly be saved to taxpayers.

While no definite scheme for this auditing officer has yet been decided on, it has been suggested that the district court should be empowered, at the request of three or more taxpayers, to appoint a competent expert accountant to investigate and report to the court on the books and accounts of any township or school district officer concerning whom the request was made. The necessity of having the auditing officer an appointive rather than an elective officer is obvious, and it is claimed that the court is the proper authority to do the appointing. The system of audit would, of course, mean some expense, and this would probably be chargeable against the township or school district, where the investigation was made.

"There is no question of the necessity of some such action on the part of the legislature," declared one of Duluth's prominent professional men and taxpayers yesterday afternoon. "I know, and so do a great many other taxpayers that there has been instance after instance of petty grafting of township and school district money, even within the limits of St. Louis county. Perhaps the crooked accounts were due sometimes to the ignorance of the officers themselves, but it strikes me that if there had been some adequate method of keeping the officers checked up, as they should be, a great deal of money that has been spent foolishly, or has found its way into the pocket of some grafter, would have been saved. I believe that an auditor appointed by the court, at the request of the taxpayers, would be the most effective check for all grafting or inclination to graft."

The matter has been brought to the attention of many other taxpayers, and all of them have expressed themselves as heartily in favor of a law that would provide for some system of audit, as mentioned.

Persons who are the least qualified are sometimes elected to positions on the township and school district boards, and the proposed system of audit, it is claimed, would in such cases prevent the taxpayers of the township or school district from undergoing a loss or perversion of funds through gross ignorance or carelessness, as any three of them could demand an examination of the officer's books and accounts at any time.

ATTACH THE LAND.

Plaintiffs In Dog Case Bound to Have Security.

L. T. Powell and George I. Schofield have issued an attachment on the southeast quarter of the northeast quarter of the north half of the southeast quarter and lot 7, section 7, 62-13, to secure payment of a judgment should one be rendered in their favor against John B. Bisbee.

The action, which was started some days ago, is for the recovery of a dog that Mr. Powell and Mr. Schofield claimed to have sold Mr. Bisbee for $75 in September 1901. They claim that he paid but $25 of the price agreed on and has ever since refused to pay the remainder. Judgment is asked for $50 with interest from May 1, 1903 and for the interest on $25 from the time of the alleged purchase of the dog until May 1, 1903.

PANTON & WHITE COMPANY. THE GLASS BLOCK STORE.

Laces! Escurial Laces!! All Pure Silk!!!

Bands, Motifs, Galloons, Insertions—Black, Cream, White, Champagne.

Positively the Greatest sale of Silk Laces ever known in the history of Duluth.

DON'T be mistaken—don't underestimate the exceeding importance and magnitude of this sale. If we took a whole page and filled it full of glowing praise for this lot of exquisite laces, we couldn't overdo it one whit.

You have little idea of what a great quantity 60,000 or 70,000 yards of lace is; precious few stores in the entire country ever buy such a quantity in a single transaction—one lot—but we've tackled a lot of things that the ordinary big store doesn't venture upon and we have the confidence of your support in this. Not because we want it just now—but because of the unheard-of values that appeal to you in this sale.

Let's Give You the Facts Briefly—then you'll know the "Why."

We took an importer's entire stock—he wanted to get rid of it badly and let it go so cheap that two hours after we bought it, we had an offer of $1,000 cold cash more than we paid for it to turn it over to a New York wholesaler, without touching it. But we bought it for Duluth and Superior women—and to Duluth and Superior women it goes—and at prices in exact proportion to what we paid for it.

LOT NO. 1.
Laces that cost to import 12½ to 30c a yard—retail regularly at 17 to 45c a yard. In this sale, at the bargain counter, per yard---------- 5c
About one-sixth their value.

Exquisite. You can't imagine how beautiful.

LADIES!
A WORD about the PRICES!
Here are the Actual FACTS—PLAINLY STATED—

EVERY imported price quoted in the separate lots is the actual importer's price. Every retail price quoted in the separate lots is exactly the actual regular retail price—and every women who is familiar with laces—or any lace man in the country—will recognize them as only fair prices at that. We want to say once more—can't be said too often—it's the greatest lot of lace values you—or we—or anybody else—ever saw. Sale Begins Thursday Morning at 8 o'clock—Bargain Counter.

Every Tailored Suit in the House

—Not Ones and Twos—But All—

at Half and LESS!

WE don't ask you to come and buy from our "ones and twos" in this sale—we're beyond that today. We want you to come and take your choice of our entire suit stock—this season's finest and most varied and beautiful showing at the Head of the Lakes—at one of three prices.

We don't fool you with a "Half-Price" cry that means nothing early in the season. We make fair prices to begin with—do a monster business in season by legitimate prices and methods—and you can depend upon a sale like this to be "bona-fide" and "square dealing."

It's the Glass Block's way—as it is no other store's in Duluth, to let you know candidly and honestly just exactly what we're doing—what you're getting. HERE ARE THE THREE LOTS—READ:

$19.50—Your choice of any suit in the house that formerly sold at any price to $37.50—all the styles—in blacks, plain colors and beautiful novelty mixtures. About 40 suits only in the lot. Some of these suits are the equals of others' suits this season at $45 and $50—by actual comparison.

$27.50—Suits of plain and fancy material that include all colors and beautiful plaids, stripes and checks—in every delightful model. Perfect in tailoring, whether plain or braided and strapped—every suit in the house bearing tickets with prices up to $50—is in this lot at $27.50 each.

$49.50—All our finest high-grade Suits of velvet, chiffon broadcloths, imported worsteds and novelty cloths—exquisite models copied from the designs of French and German artists—tailored in the very superlative of high art tailoring—Etons, blouses, military, etc. Regular prices ran from $75 to $100—and all go into this lot at $49.50—less than half in some cases.

No Approvals. No Exchanges. Alterations Charged for at Cost.

BY THE WAY.

Coats and Furs

$19.50, $25.00, $29.50 or $32.50

Will put you in with the "rush" who are picking out these handsome long

Tight-fitting Coats.

They're of broadcloth and Kersey, 50 to 54 inches long and tailored in both plain and fancy strapped and pleated models. There are both velvet inlaid and coat collars, and most of the coats are full satin lined. Look around first if you like and know how much superior are these values to others seen elsewhere

Don't have to know much arithmetic to figure out a positive saving on furs—bought here. A saving of today—but more than that—it's a saving of discontent, worry, dissatisfaction in the future—for these furs give satisfaction now and as long as you care to wear them.

$3.98 Gray Squirrel stock collars, satin lined.

$11.50 Isabella and sable fox, single boa, large bush tails, very fine quality skin—exceptional value.

The Big Book Sale

Now on, ought to help you be a good Santa Claus—if you can give books. Books for children and grown people—gift books, picture books, books on art and science, biography, encyclopedia.

Standard values at way below standard prices. A sale of books.

DEATH REVEALS THEIR SECRET

Brakeman Arrested on Serious Charge—Deceived Woman.

Mitchell, S. D., Nov. 14.—Ten days ago Mrs. H. H. Morris, who lived on the south side of the city and conducted a boarding house for students, was severely burned by the explosion of some kerosene which she threw into a hard coal heating stove to revive a dying fire. Her husband was a brakeman on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road, and worked on the west end of the road. At the time his wife was burned he was out West, and it was several days before he could be found and word sent him of the catastrophe. The woman's mother, who lived at Onawa, Iowa, was sent for immediately, and a day or two after her arrival it was evident there was something wrong between Morris and his wife and nothing could be ascertained from either one until a few days ago, when the physicians announced that the woman could not live. Then it was that she confessed to the fact that she was not married to Morris, but that they had been living as husband and wife and would have continued to live until he was in a position to marry her.

After the confession, Morris acted the part of the ingrate, and on Friday he attempted to run away and leave the girl to her death, as he was aware that she could not recover. Just as the train was pulling out of the depot, Morris was arrested and taken from the train, and the facts relating to his associations with the youn woman, whose correct name was L. Blanche Whitemore of Onawa, Iowa, was learned. He was placed in jail and has been waiting the result of the girl's burns. Sunday the young woman died, and the remains were taken back to Onawa by the parents, the father arriving yesterday morning, for interment.

It now develops that Morris is a married man and has a wife living at Cherokee, Iowa, and from whom he intended to secure a divorce. He was arraigned yesterday on the charge of adultery, and will be tried at the term court, which opens this week. The father of the girl, Mr. Whitemore, says he will prosecute Morris.

Morris became acquainted with Miss Whitemore an drepresented to her at first that he was a single man, and in that way gained control over her affections. Some time after she became suspicious that he was married and, after hearing some reports about him, had decided to give him up. In July she received a letter from a man in Sioux City giving his name as Charles H. Rowley, who gave Morris a good character and refuted what had been said of him by other parties.

Later on Morris persuaded Miss Whitemore to accompany him to Mitchell, and he agreed to marry her just as soon as he could secure a divorce from his present wife. Nothing was done about the divorce proceedings, and they have been living here since early in the fall, none suspecting them to be other than they represented.

The parents used every endeavor to keep their daughter from going with Morris, and were suspicious that he was a married man, but had no proof of it. Morris wired his wife at Cherokee to join him here at once.

LONE ROBBER'S RAID ON BANK

Newton, Kas., Institution Held Up in Boldest Style.

Newton, Kan., Nov. 14.—The Midland Bank of Newton was held up yesterday afternoon by one man and robbed of $1,780 in currency.

The robber presented a letter to Herman Suderman, the cashier, stating who he was and what he wanted, also advising the clerks and bystanders that they would all die together should any effort be made to detain him.

Six or seven persons were in the bank and all were forced to go into the vault and were locked in. The robber then secured what currency was in sight and escaped.

PRINCE IS MADE SENATOR.

Albert of Flanders Sworn in as Member of Belgian Upper House.

Brussels, Nov. 14.—Prince Albert of Flanders, heir apparent to the Belgian throne and nephew of King Leopold, was sworn in yesterday as a member of the Belgian senate. Among those present were several members of the royal family and a number of princes. The entrance of Prince Albert into the senate building was announced by trumpeters, and as he appeared all the senators rose and cheered him with enthusiasm.

Replying to the president of the senate, Prince Albert swore solemnly to observe the Belgian constitution. He also made a short speech, in which he assured the house of his unalterable attachment to the free institutions of Belgium. The Socialist members did not attend.

THE SNOW IS WELCOMED

Hunters Now Flocking Into the Woods After Deer.

Scores Leaving City for Wilds of Northern Minnesota.

The morning trains out of the city carried scores of hunters, who have been waiting for the first fall of snow before venturing into the woods in search of deer. They have had everything in readiness to start at an hour's notice, and when they awoke this morning to see a mantle of white covering the ground, it took only a short time for them to be properly dressed and equipped for the hunt. Teams were also brought into active service, and a number of sportsmen left Duluth in rigs, bound for points north of Duluth.

While snow is not really necessary for deer hunting, a man stands a much better show of getting what he is after if two or three inches of snow covers the ground, particularly so if it has fallen the night before. Not only is he able to follow the animals wherever they may lead him, but he can, by reading the tracks, tell within an aour or two how long since the deer have been in a certain place, and even a novice is enabled to tell by the number of tracks whether he is in a country where there is good hunting. This end is not so easily accomplished before the first fall of snow, and it takes one well versed in the arts of the forest to ascertain for a certainty whether the game is numerous enough in any certain district to make it worth while to remain there.

Another advantage is that with snow the hunter does not make so much noise going through the brush as he does when there is no such carpet to keep his feet from closer contact with the sticks and twigs and dry leaves scattered over the ground. There are always plenty of men who go hunting before there is a fall of snow, but the additional advantages mentioned above usualy resut in a good many more hunters turning out after deer than would otherwise be the case.

From all reports received in the city up to the present time, parties of sportsmen have been meeting with very good success so far. Deer carcasses are beginning to arrive in the city in large numbers, and the shipments in this respect will be on the increase for the next week or two. Some of the animals have been killed near enough the city to be brought in by team, and two made their appearance in town the day the season opened in an automobile.

This happened in the morning, and the matter looked suspicious to a game warden, but he soon became convinced that the speed of the present day auto was good enough explanation of the early arrival in the city of these denizens of the forest. In Wisconsin there is a law saying that no carcasses can be brought out of the woods until five days after the season has opened.

RELIEF MONEYS STOLEN BY GREEDY GRAFT KING

A score of men who came into public life through the recent political upheavals, who were poor in purse, have recently been exhibiting signs of wealth in the way of handsome homes, costly business places and lavish expenditure of money. Heney had declared he had obtained knowledge of how these men's suddenly acquired riches were obtained. It has been openly charged that many saloons, criminal classes, disorderly houses, etc., were severely taxed to be allowed to flourish in peace.

The board of public works has also been accused by taxpayers and newspapers of levying tribute in all directions. This board has almost absolute control of the construction of buildings and it is said has illegally taxed contractors and house owners before allowing the erection of new edifices.

One newspaper has been constantly insisting that $700,000 was paid by a street railway company for certain important privileges and declared that it could furnish proofs to an honest grand jury. This was one of the matters to be presented to the new grand jury.

Abraham Ruef is the acknowledged boss of the politics of San Francisco, and commonly known as "Abe" Ruef. He is a lawyer, and it is he who has been appointed by the acting mayor to the position of district attorney. Ruef is acknowledged to be a man of rare ability, learned in his profession and a skilled politician. He is credited with having become very wealthy within the past few years. When Schmitz was first elected mayor he publicly announced that he attributed much of his success to "his friend Ruef," and ever since has been on acknowledged intimate relations with the political leader.

FAINT AND WEAK.

The Wrong Breakfast Don't Last Till Dinner.

The fact that Grape-Nuts is a concentrated brain and muscle food, and supplies actual nourishment in abundance, places it in a class distinct from a host of cereal foods that simply "taste good," but have not the "body."

A Mich. lady noticed a big difference when she used Grape-Nuts for breakfast. She writes:

"My little boy was so puny and illnourished we feared we would never raise him. He could not digest starchy foods at all until he ate Grape-Nuts which agreed with him perfectly.

"He began to gain so much that people asked me what I had found to make the difference.

"Realizing how much it had done him, I determined to try it myself, for I have always been troubled with indigestion and constipation, taking a pill every night for years, and tonics most of the time.

"Skeptical as I was I finally threw away the pills and began to use Grape-Nuts with eggs, three times a day, and plenty of fruit and whole wheat bread.

"I am perfectly surprised at how much it has helped me, I have gained so much strength and feel like a different person. I am never distressed after eating and am always ready for my next meal—particulary breakfast.

"Formerly, when I ate a hearty breakfast it distressed me so I rarely was ready for dinner, but I have proved the right kind of food will allow me a good breakfast and no trouble.

"For breakfast I now use Grape-Nuts with cream; for dinner as a salad or pudding; supper with fruit; and with other plain food at each meal. For my boy I soak it in hot milk and add cream, and he likes it dry and teases me for it." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville." COUNT BONI LOSES WIFE AND CASH the children out of France without their father's consent.

The court appointed the president of the chamber of notaries to liquidate the affairs of the husband and wife. The judgment was given with costs against the count.

The decree, the reading of which hardly consumed five minutes, was delivered by the judge in a voice so low as to be practically inaudible to the eager crowd filling the court room. Many women climbed the chairs in vain efforts to hear, and when they were aware that a divorce was granted, they seemed actually to resent the loss of a public trial, at which people in high society would be compelled to testify.

Stripped of textual veriblage, the formal counts on which the attorneys of the Countess de Castellane asked for the divorce were:

First—Soon after his marriage, the count began the purchase of furniture at ridiculously exorbitant prices and immediately resold it. When the plaintiff protested, the count abused her in the presence of servants.

Second—On the slightest pretexts, the count created scenes, going to the extent of striking the plaintiff. In the course of one of these at Rochecotte, in the autumn of 1895, the countess was brutally pinched by her husband and the next day, while she was still suffering from his violence, she revealed the fact to an American friend, who was a guest at the chateau.

Third—During the summer of 1898, and notably during a pleasure trip that the count took, he was intimate with a married woman, "Mme. A."

Fourth—The count maintained a correspondence with "Mme. A." fixing dates for rendezvous, through the intermediary of "Mme. X." and "Mme. N." in the Rue de Maubeuge.

Fifth—During the summer of 1895, the count had intimate relations with "Mme. B." and had many meetings with her, principally at the pavilion of St. James.

Sixth—During June, 1905, a lady entered the count's automobile, dined with him at Ville D'Avray, and both later went to the pavilion of St. James, where they spent two hours.

Seventh—During the same year 1905, the count was intimate with a woman who lived in a furnished room house in the Rue Castiglione.

Eighth—In 1905 the count was intimate with "Mme. C." which involved indiscretions, repeated meetings and automobile excursions, and objects forgotten in an automobile and found by the domestics, making almost public scandals. The count went frequently with this woman to an apartment which he maintained at Neuilly.

Ninth—In June, 1905, at the end of a big reception at the mansion on the Avenue Malakoff, the count and "Mme. C." were for an hour alone in the garden and he was compelled to summon aid for the opening of the gate. The servants who responded recognized "Mme. C." who left the mansion hurriedly. In the absence of her husband, and notably in the course of a journey, "Mme C." received the count every day at her residence, and on his arrival gave orders to the servants to turn away further visitors. The Countess de Castellane going one day to the residence of "Mme. C." was told by the servant that "Mme. C." was not at home, although at that time the count was there. While "Mme. C." was at Paris, two maids who were mounting guard to permit Castellane to emerge by the back stairway, in case of the arrival of the husband, did in reality see him so descend. The servants of "Mme. C." were not ignorant that their mistress met Castellane, and one of them frequently, sometimes three times a day, carried her letters to the count. There were frequent scenes between "M. and Mme. C." on the subject of the Count de Castellane.

Tenth—While the Countess de Castellane was absent in America, the count was intimate with "Mme. D." He dined with her in a private room at the Cafe Anglais, and ordered orchids for the decoration of the table.

Eleventh—On May 11, 1904, while the Countess De Castellane was absent, Count De Castellane took "Mme. D." to the Chateau Des Marais, where he passed the afternoon with her.

Twelfth—For several years Count De Castellane rented in Paris a number of places for his rendezvous, in particular No. 26 Rue La Rochefoucould, where he was known under the name of "Pascal;" No. 16 Rue De General-Foy, the pavilion of St. James and No. 5 Rue Cavo, at Neuilly.

The count's demand for an "alimentary allowance of $50,000 annually" was denied on the ground that the guilty party in the divorce loses all the advantages accorded either by a marriage contract or the course of married life, and consequently the court refused to allow not only the count's original claim for $50,000 per annum, but the $30,000 which the countess offered and which it now seems the count claimed to have accepted Oct. 25.

The court also took a precaution against any unreasonable attitude on the part of the count toward allowing his wife to take her children out of France by providing that in case of his refusal judicial authorization could be granted.

Anna Gould, youngest daughter of the late Jay Gould of New York, was married to Count Ernest Boniface de Castellane, the eldest son of the Marquis de Castellane, at the New York home of her brother, George J. Gould, March 4, 1895, the late Archbishop Corrigan officiating. Her dowry was understood to have been $18,000,000, and it was further stated that her income was $600,000 a year. Immediately after the marriage, the couple left the United States for France where the extravagant manner in which they lived attracted world-wide attention.

About five years after the marriage the Count and Countess de Castellane were reported to be financially embarrassed, it being alleged that the count had already spent about $7,000,000 of his wife's money. An adjustment of the affairs of the couple became necessary, and considerable litigation followed, with the result that the Gould family intervened, and the income of the countess was cut down to $200,000.

February 5, 1906, the Countess entered a plea for divorce, the hearing of which began before Judge Ditte, Maitre Cruppi appearing for the countess and Matre Bonnet for the count. Evidence in the shape of correspondence between the count and women was presented, and the case was adjourned until Nov. 7, when the final pleas were made, and the suit adjourned until Nov. 14. On the following day, Nov. 8, the case of the count's creditors was presented to the court, and adjourned for two weeks.

The three children of the Castellanes are George, Boni and Jay, the youngest being the namesake of his mother's father, the late Jay Gould.

Up to the very last, Count Boni wrote long letters protesting love and begging for reconciliation. The countess either ignored these or replied that it was too late. Miss Helen Miller Gould was with her sister during the trial.

CAPT. MICHAEL NORRIS,
From the Only Photograph in Existence, Taken Many Years Ago in Ohio.

Washington, Nov. 14.—Howard Gould, brother of the Countess De Castellane, who is in this city, when informed by the Associated Press that his sister had been granted a divorce from the count, said that while he was grateful for the information, he had no comment to make upon it. The decree of the court with respect to the children not leaving France without the consent of the father, he said, was rather to be expected, as it was in accordance with the French custom.

FARMERS IN FEDERATION OF LABOR ADDING HOSTS TO UNION MOVEMENT

of 1907, after a lively discusssion. The cigarmakers, printers and hatters led the opposition, claiming they had spent much money in advertising thier respective labels, and were deriving much benefit, which would be lost were the federation to adopt a new general label.

President Gompers' plan of creating a political power out of the conbined union strength was endorsed by the convention when it approved the report of First Vice President James Duncan, in which he sanctioned the policy of Mr. Gompers.

The report of Frank Foster and James Williams, fraternal delegates of the American Federation to the thirty-ninth annual convention of the British Trades' Union congress, dealt extensively with the political activities of the British unionists. Their conclusion from their observations was that the movement was in only an experimental stage. They were also of the opinion that outside forces contributed to the election of labor union candidates to parliament at the recent election, and they suggested that the sweeping success of trades' unionism at the polls was in excess of the actual strength of the movement.

REAL HAVANA CIGARS FOR FIVE CENTS.

S. F. Boyce Buys Wadsworth Bros.' Chicos Direct From Maker and Saves Patrons Jobbers' Profit.

The fact that Wadsworth Bros. sell their Chicos direct to the leading retailers, thus saving all middlemen's and jobbers' profits, enables me to buy the Chicos so that I can sell them for 5 cents straight.

The Chico is a fine, rich, aromatic cigar, with a special selection of high-grade Havana filler, and while it costs me more than any other 5 cent cigar in my case, yet I am always glad to recommend it, for I know that a smoker who buys a Chico will come back to my store for more.

The best men in the city, the bankers, lawyers, the merchants, those who can afford to spend ten, fifteen cents or more for a cigar, prefer the Chicos on account of their mildness, and their true Havana fragrance and flavor.

When you can get a real Havana cigar for a nickel what is the use of paying a higher price or smoking a poorer cigar?

Try a Chico and you will agree that it is the best cigar for the money that you have ever smoked.

JOHNSON NO CANDIDATE

tors of congratulation by the hundred as a result of his recent re-election. But of all the letters received, none has proved more amusing or interesting to him than one which arrived yesterday morning from little Theodosia Evans of Tracy, Minn., daughter of D. H. Evans, who campaigned through the state with Governor Johnson part of the time, and who was Democratic candidate for state treasurer.

The letter from the little girl, reads as follows:

"Tracy, Minn., Nov. 8, 1906.

"Dear Gov. Johnson: I am very glad that you were elected and I wish papa was. I am in school now, so you will have to excuse my hurried writing as my class is going to commence. But I can take a few minutes out for my man, Mr. Gov. J. A. Johnson.

"May I say hello to Secretary Day? Tell him I wish papa was elected, and I suppose he does, too. Tell those people up there, please to hurry up and count my papa's votes, because I want to come up there, if he should be elected. I have lived in this town long enough.

"Well, I guess I must close. From the state treasurer's daughter (ntt). Yours truly, THEODOSIA EVANS."

it having been decided, in official circles, to relieve him.

These suspicions are supported by circumstantial evidence. Gen. Rheinbot, at the time the attempt on his life was made, was following an unusual path on foot, through narrow alleys. The bomb exploded in a manner described as highly suspicious. Pieces picked up on the spot show it to have been nothing more than an imitation bomb, without effective covering and perfectly harmless. It failed to explode until it had rolled to the opposite side of the street, and to a safe distance from the prefect. The original theory was that the bomb did not go off because the dynamite in it was frozen. Now the police explain it was a fuse bomb, and the social revolutionists discarded such missiles long ago.

On account of the indignation aroused at the statement that Gen. Rheinbot shot down his assailant while he was being held by two policemen, a statement is issued that the bomb-thrower, when he was killed, was struggling to escape, and that he also fired at the prefect, but the revolver which he is alleged to have used has not been found, and the firing tale is denied.

DROWNED IN ALASKA.

Iowa Civil Engineer Met Death In the Far North.

Mason City, Iowa, Nov. 14.—Arthur Tellier, formerly city engineer of Mason City, was drowned in a lake in Southern Alaska about Oct. 12. The dead man was well known as a civil engineer, having served his city in that capacity as well as others.

The report which reached the city yesterday says that on Oct. 12 Mr. Tellier and a companion crossed a lake to the postoffice, where he mailed two letters to his wife, and that on the return trip the boat was capsized and the occupants drowned. For three weeks the lake bed has been searched for the bodies, but no trace of them can be found. Four years ago Engineer Tellier left this city with his young wife for their new home in Seattle, Wash. Last spring he was offered a position with the government to do some surveying in Alaska, which he accepted. His wife is prominently connected here, and for some time taught in the city schools.

ACCIDENTALLY KILLED.

Hallock, Minn., Nov. 14.—The 4-year-old daughter of Arthur Ferguson of this city was killed by an accidental discharge of a shotgun. The little one was playing about the room in the home of her grandfather and overturned a loaded shotgun, which went off accidentally and blew off the front part of the girl's face.

POLICE COURT ILLEGAL.

Hudson, Wis., Nov. 14.—The police court of New Richmond, Wis., has been declared without standing. This was done in a writ of habeas corpus proceeding before Judge Otto W. Arnquist at Hudson. The effect of the decision is that there is no such thing as a police justice court in the village and that the appointment of S. S. Beebe as police justice by Mayor S. N. Hawkins was null and void.

CAPT. NORRIS IS NO MORE

Pioneer Citizen Dies of Heart Failure at His Home.

Was One of Largest Realty Owners in the City.

Capt. Michael Norris, one of Duluth's pioneer citizens, died about 1:30 this morning at his residence, 112 East Third street.

He had been in poor health for about a year and a half, having been afflicted with heart disease. During the last week or two his illness became acute, and for two or three days his condition was such that little hope was held out for his recovery. He passed away rather suddenly, after a slight rally early this morning.

Capt. Norris was one of the earliest settlers in Duluth and sailed out of this port before there was a ship canal through the Point. He was born in 1845 in Sandusky, Ohio, and was consequently 61 years of age at the time of his death. His early days were spent in Sandusky and he was educated there. When 24 years of age he came to Duluth and for many years after that was engaged in the lake vessel business, acting as captain on several lake boats sailing from Duluth. He sailed the old Manistee for a time, and left that vessel just a short time before she was wrecked. Later he was captain of the Lottie Benard and sailed her for several years. He was captain of the Lottie Benard when that vessel went ashore in a storm on the north shore of Lake Superior. John Williams, a former county commissioner, was then engineer of the same vessel. Several lives were lost in the wreck, and the survivors suffered great hardships.

In 1870 he quit the lakes and settled in Duluth, having realized the future ahead of the city. He then engaged in the hotel and real estate business, and by careful and shrewd investments he made his fortune in the latter. Capt. Norris never lost his faith in Duluth real estate, and while others were selling at panic prices, he was buying and always holding and improving what he secured.

At the time of his death he was one of the largest owners of property in Duluth. He owned several large blocks on Superior street, and numbers of residences and small houses scattered about in all parts of the city.

He also dealt quite extensively in iron and pine lands, and left a fortune estimated well up in the hundreds of thousands.

Capt. Norris leaves a wife and two children. The children, Miss Lottie and George, are living at home. He also had five sisters, all of whom are still living in Ohio. His mother died about two years ago and his father is also dead.

Capt. Norris has always been one of the most prominent figures in Duluth, and in the early days was one of the builders of the young city. The old settlers will remember him as a man who never lost confidence in the future of Duluth and who always did all in his power to advance its prosperity. He had many firm friends among those who knew him best and who recognized a warm heart and a generous nature under a rather gruff and rugged exterior.

The funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

BEES MOURN LOSS OF THEIR KEEPER

They Swarm in Trees Near the Dead Apiarist's Grave.

Des Moines, Iowa, Nov. 14.—A most remarkable demonstration that the honeybee has affections occurred at Wall Street, Iowa, when Oliver J. Seer, a pioneer apiarist, died. It had been his custom to move among the bees without covering his hands or face. The bees followed him about the yard and into his workshop with never an offer to injure him. In the winter when their supply ran low he fed them with sugar, syrup and rye flour. He covered their hives with blankets to keep them warm. From the day of his death there was unrest in the colony of bees. On the day of his funeral the bees swarmed about the hearse and thousands followed it to the cemetery. Several swarms of bees deserted their hives and were found in trees in the cemetery near the grave of their former owner.

SEAT SALE ENORMOUS

Record-Breaking Crowd Will Witness Minnesota-Carlisle Game.

Indians Have Backfield Composed of Ten Second Men.

Even the enormous attendance at the Minnesota-Wisconsin game last year is expected to be surpassed by the game with the Indians next Saturday at Minneapolis.

Manager Reed has had a new temporary set of bleachers installed, which will seat about 1,500 people, and already the reserved seats are sold out, and tickets for the game are selling at a premium.

The rooters in St. Paul and Minneapolis who have not secured their seats, are at the mercy of the scalpers who are charging a premium of from $1 to $2 for the seats already, and are likely to increase this price before Saturday.

Duluth people have blocks of good seats which were held for the rooters who will go from Duluth to see the game.

Duluth will probably send the largest contingent of rooters that ever went from this city to witness a colleges game. Already it is announced that the night trains on Friday will be run in two sections and if the sale of tickets continues they will have to be run in three sections.

The dope on the game is much similar to that on the Chicago game. The Indians have a backfield composed of four ten second men. Every man back of the Indian line has done his 100 yards in flat time. On a fast field they will certainly give the Gophers plenty to think about.

The Indians are always a tricky, fast, and dangerous team. They are probably the most feared of any of the Eastern teams by the three big colleges, and the preparations made by Yale and Harvard for the Indian game are second only to those made for the annual Thanksgiving day contest.

CHICAGO MAY SEND TEAM HERE

North Division High Accepts Challenge Issued by Duluth.

There is still a lingering hope that the local high school football team will have one more big game this year.

The Twin City teams have failed to take up the challenge issued by the locals, but it met the eye of the manager of the North Division high school of Chicago. This school claims the prep school championship of Illinois, and in 1903 it sent a team to Brooklyn and defeated the Easterners by the score of 75 to 0.

It is just possible that a game may be arranged for Thanksgiving, or the Saturday following.

CADETS MUST PAY.

Rate Bill Hits Students at Naval and Military Academies.

Washington, Nov. 14.—As the result of the passage of the railroad rate bill, the cadets of both the military and naval academies, who have heretofore been transported by the railroad companies to the annual football game between these two schools without charge will, in the future, have to pay their own fares. The war department, after a full investigation of the matter, decided that it was illegal for a pass to be tendered or accepted.

Sporting Brevities.

George Memsic (Jimmy Burns), of Chicago, knocked out Charlie Neary, of Milwaukee, in the second round of what was to have been a 20-round go at Los Angeles last night.

W. J. Rowe, of Oshkosh, Wis., has purchased from Hall Brothers, of Versailles, the noted show mare, American Girl, for $5,000. American Girl was the champion Kentucky gaited mare of 1905 and 1906.

The ten round bout between Dave Barry, of California, and Hugo Kelly, of Chicago, at Kalamazoo last night resulted in a draw. Kelly was most active and punished his opponent with jabs to the face and swings to body. Jud Wersmith, of Goblea, Mich., was knocked out in the second round by Jimmy Britt, of Battle Creek, Mich.

Is Aitkin Resident.

Writing from Superior, George M. Deming of Aitkin corrects The Herald on the statement that Safford is a resident of Duluth.

"He is a resident of Aitkin," says Mr. Deming, "and we are all proud of him."

Mr. Deming is correct in his claim, as Safford merely attended the high school here.

A CORNER IN SPORTS

The complacent, self sufficiency of the Eastern football critics sometimes verges on the humorous.

The man who does the sporting stunt for the Buffalo Express is about the most effete of this self complacent crowd, and apparently thinks that nothing good can come out of the West and particularly Minnesota.

Here is the line of talk he hands out:

"The Indians are very fast, but light and probably could not duplicate their victory over Pennsylvania no matter how many more times they tried. This statement is not made to discount the splendid game of the Indians, for they are exceptionally shifty with the new game, but merely to call attention to the fact that they are likely to be beaten by Minnesota. If they are defeated the victory of Minnesota need not be set down as a demonstration of the superiority of the Western brand of football over that which belongs to the East. If Minnesota does win her game, and Michigan should lose to Pennsylvania, this might lead Minnesota adherents to make extraordinary claims."

"The extraordinady claims" probably are that Minnesota is entitled to preference over both Michigan and Pennsylvania. Harrowing thought, isn't it?

And if the Gophers should manage to cross the Indians' line and pile up a bigger score than 5 to 0, these "blasted Westerners," don't you know, might even claim to be superior to the blue blooded sons of old Haw-va-a-rd. Such iconoclasm is not to be tolerated. It is an invasion of the Divine Rights of the Blue and the Crimson to the premier honors of the football world. It is revolutionary.

The same critic places the Minnesota-Carlisle game as the third in importance of those to be played next Saturday, ranking after the Yale-Princeton game and the Michigan-Pennsylvania game. Pennsylvania this year is about on a level with Iowa or Nebraska in the West. The little college of Swarthmore downed the Quakers, and the Indians rubbed it in by burying them under a huge score. Michigan has been playing prep school teams and second class colleges and has been getting scored on at that, and winning her games by the narrowest kind or margins, and yet, forsooth, because the game is to be played east of the Alleghanies, it must outrank the Minnesota-Carlisle contest in spite of the fact that the Indians have trounced the Quakers, and that Minnesota is the acknowledged champion of the West.

Funny, isn't it?

The naive remark that if Minnesota does defeat the Indians, it does not demonstraate the superiority of Western football, also touches the funny bone. The victory would probably conclusively prove the superiority of the Eastern game.

Made Happy for Life.

Great happiness came into the home of S. C. Blair, school superintendent at St. Albans, W. Va., when his little daughter was restored from the dreadful complaint he names. He says: "My little daughter had St. Vitus' Dance, which yielded to no treatment, but grew steadily worse, until, as a last resort, we tried Electric Bitters; and I rejoice to say, three bottles effected a complete cure." Quick, sure cure for nervous complaints, general debility, female weaknesses, impoverished blood and malaria. Guaranteed by all drug stores. Price 50c.

TWO MEN ARE FOUND INSANE

Hayden and Sova Are Committed to the State Hospital.

Thomas Hayden, formerly of Eveleth, was adjudged insane at an examination held in the probate court, yesterday afternoon, and was committed to the state asylum. Hayden is quite violent, and has frequently been arrested for drunkenness of late. A short time ago he was picked up out of the gutter, and was taken to the county jail to await examination for insanity. While in the jail, Hayden attempted to commit suicide. He is about 48 years of age. His mental trouble is believed to be due to the excessive use of alcoholic stimulants.

Alexander Sova was also examined and committed to the state hospital. Sova, who is about 31 years of age imagines that he is being persecuted. His peculiar actions attracted the attention of the police about ten days age, when he was taken into custody.

WIFE SEEKS DIVORCE.

Alice C. Littell Begins Action Against Robert J. Littell.

Alice C. Littell has begun an action for a divorce from Robert J. Littell, an operator in the employ of the North American Telegraph company, on the ground of cruelty and habitual drunkenness.

They were married in Duluth, March 6, 1893, and have two children, aged 4 and 12 years, respectively. Mrs. Littell is 31 and her husband is 39 years of age.

Mrs. Littell claims that about June, 1904, her husband threatened her with personal violence; that he seized and pushed her against the wall and threatened to strike her. She claims that he actually did strike her one day in April last.

It is alleged by Mrs. Littell that her husband has, since 1904, been drinking to excess, and she believes that when he abused her, as alleged, he was under the influence of liquor.

She asks for alimony and the custody of the children.

TIGERS ARE FAVORITES

Are Picked as Winners of Annual Game With Yale.

Contest Will Probably Settle Championship of the East.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 14.—The Yale-Princeton game next Saturday will probably decide the Eastern championship. The Tigers and Elis will come to the big game with a clean record of victories. There is no disguising the fact that Princeton is the favorite over Yale. No team in the country has got so much out of the new style of football as Princeton. The forward pass, the on-side kick and a host of other startling plays have been mastered by the shifty Princeton team in such a manner as to make the Tigers the most dreaded team on the gridiron today.

The 42-0 victory of Princeton over Dartmouth was one of the most sensational of the year, and it was due almost entirely to Princeton's complete surrender to the new style of football. Although Dartmouth, whose team beat Princeton a year ago, 6-0, had a heavier and stronger eleven than the Tigers, it could do absolutely nothing with the great speed arrayed against it.

In Wister and Hoakland, Princeton has two ends who seem made for the forward pass, while Cooney and Herring at tackle can hardly be improved on. The same is true of the guards, Capt. Dillon and Stannard, while Phillips has developed into a splendid center. But it is in the back field where Princeton shines most brightly. One would have to go far to find a better quartet of backs than that made up of E. Dillon at quarterback, Rulon-Miller and Harlan at halfbacks and McCormick at fullback. These men possess great speed and strength and comprise the fastest attacks of any team in the country.

This year Yale is somewhat of an enigma. Physically, the Yale men seem to be inferior to the Princeton bunch. Although they have had an army of about thirty coaches on the field for the last two weeks, the team has failed to respond in the manner expected. The Elis have a great variety of trick plays, but they don't work in games like they do in practice. This is what makes the Elis fearful of the result of the Princeton game. There are only three men on the Yale team who seem to be equals of their Princeton rivals. These are Forbes, the former tackle, who has been shifted to end; Jones, generally admitted to be one of the best quarterbacks in the country, and Capt. Morse, who has been shifted from halfback to fullback on account of the injury to Fullback Reome.

Pennsylvania and Cornell have already been eliminated from the fight for the football championship of the East, which leaves Princeton, Yale and Harvard still in the running. Should Princeton beat Yale and Yale down Harvard the Tigers would have undisputed right to the title. But if Princeton beats Yale and Harvard then downs the Elis the Princeton men might still lay claim to the championship on their season's record, which was much better than that of Harvard's.

KING INVESTED WITH HIGH ORDER

Kaakon of Norway Imposingly Made Knight of the Garter.

London, Nov. 14.—King Edward invested King Haakon of Norway with the order of the Garter, at a special chapter in the throne room of Windsor castle last night. This was the first investiture of the kind since 1855, when Queen Victoria conferred the honor on Napoleon III, and Victor Emanuel, then king of Sardinia. King Edward is the only surviving member of the royal house of Great Britain who participated in that historic event.

Queen Alexandria, as "The Lady of the Order," whose first predecessor lived four centuries ago, was present. The brilliant colors of the gorgeous robes of the knight commanders of the order as well as the richness of the decorations of the historic chamber where the investiture took place, made the scene one of the most brillian and impressive of the present reign. The ceremony was followed by a public banquet.

Peterman's Roachfood.

A BOON TO HOUSEKEEPERS.

As the roaches go to the food, enticed by it at night from their breeding places, it eliminates them, large or small.

It has been sent for 20 years to large institutions throughout the U. S. and abroad, with bills not payable unless it did the work to their entire satisfaction.

PETERMAN'S RATMOUSE FOOD. Ready for Use.

Rats and mice made wild by this noxious food alarm others; they will leave the building and not return.

Peterman's Ant Food, a strong food to kill and drive away ants. Large black beetles may also be destroyed by it in one night.

BED BUGS—"Peterman's Discovery" (quicksilver cream) will kill bedbugs that go over where it is painted on lightly; is also a preventative. It will not rust or harm furniture or bedding.

"Peterman's Liquid Discovery," in flexible can, with spout; pressing sides of can will force it in cracks and kill bedbugs and eggs instantly.

Take no other, as time may be even more important than money.

Originated in 1873. Perfected in 1906 by Wm. Peterman, Mfg. Chemist, 54, 56, 58 West 13th St., New York City.

Sold by the drug trade generally, and at wholesale by the Leithhead Drug Co., general distributors for the Northwest.

TO ABOLISH GUILLOTINE

French Radical Majority Expected to End Capital Punishment.

Salary of the Executioner to Be Stopped, as Beginning.

Paris, Nov. 14.—When the long parliamentary vacations are over and the French chamber meets again, a portentous question will have to be decided once and for all: "Is capital punishment to be abolished in France and the executioner to go?"

There seems little doubt that the Radical majority will answer this question in the affirmative and we may expect that ere long the terrible guillotine—the "widow," as it is facetiously termed in Paris slang—will leave its present quarters in the rue de la Folis-Regnault for a permanent home in the Carnavalet Museum to be gazed at as a relic of bygone times and thrill the blood of lovers of the sensational.

The budget committee has anticipated the vote of parliament by recommending the suppression of M. Anatole Diebler's salary and allowance as public executioner.

The situation created by this recommendation is altogether curious and anomalous. For some time past no execution has been witnesed at Paris, for the simple reason that since La Rouquette prison was pulled down about four years ago and the guillotine has no abiding place in the capital. Every time it is proposed to confer this honor on this or that quarter or square, such a storm of protest is raised by the inhabitants interested that the project drops forthwith. More than one criminal is lying in a Paris prison under sentence of death, and the president of the republic finds himself practically compelled to commute the capital penalty into one of life-long imprisonment. One jovial assassin, who delights in the nickname of Le Frise des Halles (Curly Wig of the Market), vows that he will not be respited. "They have condemned me," he says, "and they shall excecute me!"

Meanwhile, the "widow" has been doing her bloody work in the provinces, and M. Falliéres has been free to exercise the prerogative of mercy strictly on the merits of each case. Now, however, that the budget committee has spoken, the president will, in all probability, feel himself constrained to give provincial criminal the benefit of the doubt until the question is settled. Only the other day the jury of the Bouches-du-Rhone condemned a murderer to the death penalty. It is, to say the least, an embarrassing situation.

After the crimials themselves this question most nearly affects M. Anatole Diebler, the public executioner. M. Anatole—M. de Paris, as he is termed (for Frenchmen will cut a joke at death himself)—is the third member of a famous dynasty. His grandfather was the founder of the line, so to speak. His dexterity was such that he once guillotined eight sailors at Brest at a single stroke of the knife. Louis, who succeed him, died two years ago at the ripe age of 81, after having terminated the existence of forty-seven criminals of both sexes.

The executioner's mantle descended on the shoulders of Anatole, who, as his father's assistant, had already distinguished himself on many tragic occasions by his coolness and resourcefulness. He is a big, powerful man, with blue eyes and a short chestnut beard, and looks in private life anything but an executioner. Since his nomination he has presided at four executions, the last being that of the assassin Pozzi, at Belfort in October, 1905.

The salary and emoluments of the public executioner are anything but contemptible. M. de Paris has a fixed annual income of 6,000 francs ($1,200). t owhich must be added a further sum of 8,000 francs ($1,600), for the upkeep of the guilliotine. He has four assistants, two of whom are paid 4,000 francs ($800), the other two 3,000 francs ($600), per annum. Then an allowance of ten francs ($2), is made to each executioner for every day that the guillotine is in operation. An important perquisite is the sale of new and second hand guillotines to the colonies and to foreign countries, and of "guillotine" cigar cutters, which are much sought after in certain circles. The net annual income of the Diblers may, therefore, be calculated at 30,000 francs $6,000.

M. Dibler lives in a nice little villa in the rue de Billiancourt near the "fortifs" (fortifications). It is a kind of Swiss chalet and in the midst of a garden with a fine acacia overshadowing the gate. You would say, "there lives a philiosopher" and you would add, on seeing the spyhole, "a mistrustful one." As soon as the bell handle of the garden gate is pulled, the blinds are let down as by magic—probably by an automatic arrangement. On a closer inspection, you perceive that the gate is protected, doubtless as a precaution against a sudden attack on the part of those terrible Parisian hoodlums, the Apaches, for M. Diebler, in the nature of things, must have more enemies than friends.

Here, then, lives M. Diebler in the bosom of his family when he is not called away by his official duties. This villa, by the bye, has a history. It was purchased by Louis Diebler after he had guillotined Ravachol, when the terror of anarchist vengeance was such that not a landlord in Paris dared to accept the executioner as a tenant. The purchase price was 25,000 francs ($5,000), part of which was furnished by the state.

Diebler's family consists of madame and a little daughter. Madame was at one time a pretty laundress in the boulevard Exelmans—she is still pretty of cours—and they say it was a love match. There is no accounting for tastes.

Among his friends, M. Diebler is known as "M. Anatole." The initiated can find him at his cafe in the boulevard Exelmans, but it can readily be imagined that he does not court publicity. I do not think M. Diebler will take his execution very much to heart. He may reckon on compensation of some sort or other, but it must not be forgotten that he is not a state functionary. The public executioner is an undertaker, so he will have no legal claim to a pension.

As regards this world's goods, M. Diebler is comfortably off. Like a good bourgeois, he has built a six-story house in the rue de la Convention, which will be let out in flats, the rent of which will ensure him a sufficient income. He has an automobile and a bicycle. What more can he desire?

"There are many worse off than I," he has been understood to say, and most people will agree with him.

Yes, the "widow" is doomed. With her bucket of sawdust she has been resting dear of late. In view of the rarity of executions it has been computed that each time she operates she costs the state 10,000 francs ($2,000).

We owe the young people of this country the best example and teaching that we chance to know. That's good advice. Take Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea. Tea or Tablets, 35 cents. Ask your druggist.

FIX LIMITS ON DIVORCE

Delegates of National Congress Agree as to Seven Causes.

Warm Debate as to Grounds for Annulling Marriages.

Philadelphia, Nov. 14.—The National congress on uniform divorce laws, in session yesterday, adopted about one-third of the proposed uniform bill drafted by the committee appointed at the meeting in Washington, nine months ago. This included seven causes under which annulment of a marriage may be obtained and six causes for absolute divorce.

Delegates from twenty-seven states and the District of Columbia, and representatives of all protestant denominations who attend the international conference on marriage, together with the Catholic prelate, Bishop Shanley of Norh Dakota, attended the sessions which were presided over by Governor Pennypacker.

The important changes in the bill are the striking out of all references to proceedings, and practice, leaving the question for the various legislative bodies to pass upon.

The causes for which divorce can be granted are infelidity, felony, bigamy, desertion, habitual drunkenness, and intolerable cruelty. In the discussion of the various sections, there was little oposition to any of these provisions, but in the list of causes for annulment of marriage, opposition was presented against several.

Governor Pennypacker took exceptions to the clause which provides that if either party unknown to the other was insane at the time of marriage, it should be annulled. This would give a commision appointed by the court a right to begin a suit in the name of an insane party, even if the person not insane did not want a divorce. He argued that marriage was a personal relation, and a third person had no rights in the contract.

Seneca N. Taylor of St. Louis, and G. Larue Munson of Williamsport, Pa., clashed with the governor on the subject. Mr. Taylor said the third party is the public, and it has a right to forbid the propagation of children from the insane. Mr. Munson said the clause was the only protection for an insane person against a designing man or woman. He cited a case where relatives and friends were helpless to protect an imbecile who had married a designing woman. The clause was adopted.

There was also opposition to the clause annulling the marriage of a girl under the age of 16 and a youth under 18. Ernest Merten of Wisconsin, held that a girl under eighteen years was incapable of making a proper marriage contract, and Frank H. Kerr of Ohio, favored the law of his state, which makes the marriage of a boy under twenty-one and a girl under eighteen void. Miss Rachel Siegel of Utah, the only woman speaker, held that sixteen years for a girl was all right. She said: "We women ought to know." The clause was adopted.

Drunkenness a Disease.

Remarkable Results Following the Orrine Treatment.

There are but few families who have not one or more members afflicted with this terrible disease, for such it is. Will power alone cannot cure the drink habit, but the scientific Orrine treatment is a tested and absolute cure. This treatment destroys the desire for liquor, so that the drink is not missed. We seek the worse cases and cure them with Orrine. It can be given secretly. Orrine is sold and guaranteed by F. W. Kugler, 108 West Superior street.

RAILROAD COST DENIED.

Experts Contradict Claims of Burlington as to Missouri Line.

Kansas City, Nov. 14.—In the hearing of the Burlington maximum freight rate case yesterday the state of Missouri introduced the testimony of two Western railroad builders to controvert the assertion of the Burlington that its track in Missouri cost at least $45,000 a mile. W. R. Stubbs, former speaker of the Kansas house, who built part of the Burlington line in Missouri, declared that the total cost of the line could not have exceeded $25,000 a mile. Bernard Corrigan, president of the Metropolitan Street Railway company of this city, and for thiry years one of the leading railroad contractors in the West, put the outside limit of cost of the Burlington main line in Missouri at $30,000 a mile.

E. M. Fisher of St. Paul, the expert accountant employed by Missouri to examine the books of the Burlington, testified that in Missouri the rate for 100 pounds for a 200 mile haul for first class freight was 60 cents, while in Iowa the rate was 40 cents, and in Illinois 39 1-10 cents. Illinois and Iowa, the witness said, had mximum freight rate laws. The Burlington freight rates in Missouri were 20 to 25 per cent higher than on the same road in Illinois.

A NEW FIELD.

Recent elections have shown nothing more interesting or more valuable than the fact that there is an opening in the field of politics for men who are single-minded in their devotion to the public good, and who are not seeking ulterior ends in the guise of "reform."

It has not always been that way. In the days when partisanship held absolute sway, there was little opening for such men. They appeared, and pressed their candidacies and their issues, but the bosses laughed at them, the political machines made a turn or two and ground the heart out of them, and they subsided into discouraged defeat.

But since the rule of partisanship was broken, things are different. Candidates no longer have to deal only with the bosses and their political machines. That condition could exist only when the voters were content to let partisanship be the sole arbiter of elections, and when the party label was enough to settle the issue.

Partisanship came to its downfall through its stupid arrogance and its blind persistence in the abuses that naturally followed in its train. It took time, for people had to realize that they had been selling their birthright when they turned over their votes to the party machines to use as they wished. That gave the full power into the hands of a few people, usually one central figure with its surrounding parasites and hangers-on. If those who thus gained control had used it wisely and well, there would have been no trouble. They used it neither wisely nor well, however. They used it to fatten their own purses and to manufacture special privileges which they sold at high prices.

When the people discovered that this was wrong, their next discovery was that the way to stop such proceedings was to refuse to give their votes into the hands of the bosses. By using this privilege themselves, and by exercising independent judgment, they found a ready and effectual remedy. From that discovery dated the downfall of bossism and machine policies, and the rise of the candidates who sought to work with the people for the common good.

With the people in this wholesomely independent frame of mind, there is a wide field for the endeavors of men who seek no end but the public good, and who, if they seek fame, strive to gain it by fighting the conditions under which the people suffer.

In older days, men said to their younger associates, "Do not go into politics; it is unclean, and you will be defiled."

Now they can say to the young and the ambitious, "Go into politics, and work for your fellow men; there is no field of endeavor where there is so much to do and where the rewards are surer. Politics will be what you make it; if you make it unclean, it will be unclean; but if you aim to make it clean, it will be clean."

A DWINDLING ARMY.

The pension rolls of the United States are decreasing.

This, while it means a reduction in the public expenditures for the relief of deserving veterans and their dependent ones, and therefore a saving in taxes, carries a pathetic note in the intelligence that it also means that these veterans are going away from us, and that from now on the march down the slope into the valley of darkness will be more rapid.

After the number of names on the pensions rolls had exceeded 900,000 for the last fourteen years, the maximum, 1,004,196 was reached on the last day of January, 1905.

By June 30 of this year the rolls had diminished to 985,971, and the commissioner of pensions says that the decrease will be more marked during the current year.

This decrease is coming notwithstanding the fact that the pension laws have been made more and more liberal. The first great pension law, that which came shortly after the Civil war, provided pensions only for those that had been actually injured in the war, and for the dependents of those who came to their death through causes originating in the service.

In 1890 a much wider law was passed, giving pensions to veterans that had since become disabled through other causes, and to their widows. This enlarged the functions of the pension bureau enormously, and brought about a vast increase in the pension rolls.

Then, within two years, an executive order broadened this law still further by giving pensions to all veterans who had reached the age of 60, regardless of their physical condition, and this brought about further large additions to the pension rolls.

Besides, the Spanish-American war has added names to the rolls to take the place of the vanishing army of pensioners growing out of the Civil war.

And yet the rolls are diminishing rapidly. They have reached the maximum, and are going down the hill again. At the close of the last fiscal year there were on the rolls 666,453 survivors of the wars, a decrease for the year of 18,155. The largest increase among the pensioners was of widows, amounting to over 5,000. The records of the old wars show that the widows greatly outnumber the veterans, and also that they are putting in the greatest number of applications. For instance, there are 4,540 survivors of the Mexican war, and 7,653 widows. The number of pensioners of the Spanish war ranks next to that of the Civil war. The total on June 30, 1906, was 22,621, an increase of 2,130 during the year.

As yet the expenses of the pension bureau are not greatly reduced, because as the disabilities increase, the pension ratings are correspondingly increased, and the fewer veterans of this year are drawing nearly as much money as the larger number of a year ago.

A writer in the Prison Mirror, published in Stillwater penitentiary, finds comfort in the fact that there were no Hallowe'en depredations there, and that when he retired in the evening it was with every confidence that he would find his door in its accustomed place next morning. Which is one advantage he had over free people, anyway.

DRAINAGE GOLD MINES.

In view of the wide sentiment that has been aroused in Minnesota in favor of state action in draining the swamp lands of the state, the plans that the state of Florida has prepared for making its great swamp areas into farming lands will be of interest.

Everybody has heard of the Everglades, of course, as an enormous area of worthless territory that probably forms the greatest swamp in the world. It has stood in miasmatic solitude, the home only of noisome reptiles, for thousands of years, but now, if present plans do not miscarry, it is to be changed into a theater of busy industry.

About 500 miles of canal 50 feet wide, and 50 miles 120 feet wide, will have to be built. This the state will do, leaving to the persons owning the land the work of cutting lateral ditches to drain their lands into the state canals. Lake Okeechobee will be lowered four feet, which will make it possible to drain a million acres of circumjacent land into it, while 6,500,000 acres will be drained by the canals already mentioned.

There are 7,500,000 acres of land in the big swamp, and of this the state owns 3,000,000 acres, the balance being owned by syndicates, farmers and others. For the purpose of drainage, the state has authorized a tax of 5 cents per acre upon privately-owned lands, which would raise $125,000. This tax is resisted by nearly all of the owners, but the state is in earnest, and they will be compelled to pay. The state's part of the work will cost about $1,000,000, which is a small price to pay for turning land that is absolutely valueless into land that should be some of the most fertile and most valuable in the South. Besides the gain by reclaiming the lands, the canals will form an important system of interior waterways, and will solve the question of good roads for the farmers who will settle upon the reclaimed lands, by giving them cheap transportation to the market for their products.

Discussing this project the Baltimore Sun says: "Florida will be enabled to produce largely increased crops of early fruits and vegetables for the benefit of the Gulf and Atlantic states, and inasmuch as the drainage area will be proof against drought, and winter frosts seldom go so far South, it ought to be as good as a gold mine."

Minnesota has a gold mine, almost as great as this, ready to be opened whenever she sees fit to open it. The drainage of the swamp lands of Northern Minnesota will open up not only these lands, but thousands of dry acres that the swamps now guard from development.

It will not only develop Northern Minnesota, but by placing more land upon the tax rolls, it will develop the entire state. Furthermore, as the swamp lands belong to the school fund, their sale will bring enormous revenues into that fund, to the great profit of every county in the state.

THE PARENTAGE OF TRUSTS.

Attorney General Moody says it is not the tariff, but the railroad rebate, that is the mother of trusts.

He is partly right. The rebate system has been as powerful as any other influence in building up trusts, because it has enabled them to stifle competition. But if it were not for the tariff, shutting out competition from abroad, not even the rebate could have sustained the trusts.

So while the trusts can hardly be said to have two mothers, at least they have had one mother and a very attentive wet-nurse.

A trust with free competition in trade is an anomaly, of course. To make the trust complete it must abolish competition and stand supreme in its own particular field.

Competition at home must be gotten out of the way, but competition from abroad is equally dangerous, if not more so, and it, too, must be disposed of.

So the trusts have been disposing of competition very effectively, using the tariff against competition from abroad, and using the rebate against competition at home.

The tariff has been perpetuated at a level where it is practically prohibitive, largely because of the excuse that it "protects American labor." That argument is still being used. Yet our immense exports, exceeding by portentous figures our imports, show that the products of American labor are able to compete abroad with the products of the foreign labor that is so greatly feared, and when American-made goods can do this, there ought not to be any grave danger from foreign-made goods in this country.

The rebate is on a par with the bludgeon of the highwayman. The trust magnates who have used the rebate to kill competition are the Dick Turpins of modern times, with none of the dashing courage and romantic glamor of the outlaws whose natures they parallel so closely.

The rebate has been used mercilessly in this country, and it is good to know that at last we are rooting out this evil and taking such a felonious weapon away from the trust brigands.

The use of the rebate has been accompanied by a stealth and treachery that was necessary to its life. Many a manufacturer has suddenly awakened to the knowledge that in some mysterious way a great competitor was underselling him in every market, and that he could not, without ruining himself, sell his products at such prices.

Evidently there was some advantage against him, and he pondered over every detail of manufacture to see if he could not cut down the cost, but without avail. Then, when it was too late, when he had either gone into bankruptcy or sold out to the trust at a price that meant about the same thing, he has learned that the railroads had killed his business by discriminating against them.

They are twin evils, the prohibitive tariff and the rebate, and both should be and must be driven out.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"Musical comedies appear to be just about as popular this season as they ever have been in the past," said H. C. Robey, advance man for "The Gingerbread Man," which will open at the Lyceum next Tuesday night. "A new play of this variety is produced in New York every now and then, and all of the good ones are being well received, and are bringing in nice profits to the managements.

"The popularity of the first-class musical comedy still extends over practically the whole country, and a good business is being enjoyed by good companies. The Gingerbread Man is drawing well, and we have no reason to feel dissatisfied with results. We carry along a pretty extensive outfit in the way of stage settings, company and equipment, and will come into Duluth by a special train, which will consist of two sleepers, two coaches and a baggage car.

"The general prosperity extending over the country has something to do with the excellent patronage being extended different theatrical attractions. When the people have money to spend it means better business for the theaters, and a liberal amount of cash seems to be distributed over a considerable area of the country just now."

Speaking of theatricals, Duluth is getting to be quite a center in this line. Better attractions are being booked for the Lyceum every year, and more men interested in the management of road companies are interested in the town than ever before. Heretofore it has been the custom of the "Sis Hopkins" management to route the show entirely from the New York office, but this year the production was booked only as far as Duluth, and from here further bookings were made by the manager, who was a guest at the Spalding up to a day or two ago.

"Some of the Eastern professors of dancing, if that is what you call them, are trying to bring about a reform in dancing," said M. T. Tuttle of Philadelphia at the Spalding. "The dancing of today has been allowed to work out its own destiny, and therefore it meets with the disfavor of some people. They kick because it is without grace and dignity. Grace and dignity are what the Eastern teachers propose to inject into it.

"The so-called rag dancing, which has but recently made its appearance, will no longer be countenanced at any of the schools in the East. A new style of lancers is proposed, according to newspaper reports, where the wild swinging of partners and general lack of anything resembling order and dignity will have no place. I have noticed a certain difference in the dancing of the East and the West. What one learns back there has to be modified somewhat to meet the dances of the West, and at that I cannot see where the East has any the best of it."

"The progress made by the Dakotas during the last few years is surprising," said D. N. Proctor of Grand Forks, N. D., at the McKay. "Land in North Dakota now sells from $10 to $75 an acre, and a few years ago the same farms could be got for about one-tenth their present value. Farms are being cut up into smaller areas, and farming is done along scientific lines, instead of following out the haphazard fashion of five or ten years ago.

"When I first went to the Dakotas land there was almost unsalable, and that was only fifteen years ago. It was the custom to have farms ranging in size from 5,000 to 6,000 acres, and the wheat crop for the year was all the farmers had to depend upon. If that failed they were up against it, but it was enough for this season. The weather man, however, says there is likely to be more of it tonight and tomorrow, if it does not turn into rain. Last night's lowest temperature was 24 degs. and yesterday's highest was 30 degs.

The sun sets this afternoon at 4:35, and rises tomorrow at 7:12, though the clouds have persisted so that it is necessary to look at the calendar to realize that there is any sun at all.

A year ago today it was gloomy and cold.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Light rain or snow has fallen quite generally throughout the Missouri and Mississippi valleys during the past twenty-four hours, due to the influence of a low pressure area central this morning over Manitaba. A high pressure area off the Washington-Oregon coast has caused a slight fall in temperature throughout the Northwest and Western Canada. Another high is central over the Carolinas and a low over Northern New England. The Manitoba low will probably cause light rain or snow in this locality tonight or Thursday."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: If a girl hasn't any man to write a love letter to, she will write one to another girl.

A woman's idea of a good husband is one who doesn't forget to tell her how pretty she looks whenever he comes home.

We all have an idea that everybody can fool the farmer, but somehow the farmer keeps on getting all the money.

One bad thing for a girl about stopping being engaged and getting married is she stops getting presents from him.

Men have very strong will power to be able to go on thinking they get more real happiness out of being married than they used to.

First Come, First Served.

Harper's Weekly: The bishop of Worcester was once traveling through Banbury by rail, and wishing to try their celebrated cakes, summoned a boy and asked him to procure him one. Learning that their price was three pence, the bishop gave the lad a sixpence, telling him: "And with the other threepence buy a cake for yourself." The lad shortly returned, complacently munching his cake, and handing threepence back to the bishop, exclaimed: "There was only one left, gov'nor."

YOU SHOULD KNOW ALUM'S WORST WORK

Some Mothers, unconscious of the injurious effects of Alum, are daily giving it to their Children by the use of so-called Cheap Baking Powder.

What Mother would do so if she only knew?

Alum's Worst Work is its early harmful influence on the child's digestive organs. Positively Never, should Children of tender years be required to eat it in their food.

Secure your Children against Alum in their food.

THE WEATHER.

A thin sheet of white, just enough to make it necessary to sweep the walks and to guard against slipping while you walked down town on other people's walks that were not yet swept, covered the ground this morning. It wasn't much of a snowfall, but it was enough for this season. The weather man, however, says there is likely to be more of it tonight and tomorrow, if it does not turn into rain. Last night's lowest temperature was 24 degs. and yesterday's highest was 30 degs.

The sun sets this afternoon at 4:35, and rises tomorrow at 7:12, though the clouds have persisted so that it is necessary to look at the calendar to realize that there is any sun at all.

A year ago today it was gloomy and cold.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Light rain or snow has fallen quite generally throughout the Missouri and Mississippi valleys during the past twenty-four hours, due to the influence of a low pressure area central this morning over Manitaba. A high pressure area off the Washington-Oregon coast has caused a slight fall in temperature throughout the Northwest and Western Canada. Another high is central over the Carolinas and a low over Northern New England. The Manitoba low will probably cause light rain or snow in this locality tonight or Thursday."

"OUR NEXT GOVERNOR."

Redwood Reveille (Rep.): This is not a partisan victory and no one realized that fact better than Governor Johnson. It is an emphatic protest against party bessism and corruption and a tribute to the strong personality of the present executive.

Mankato Free Press (Rep.): The Free Press congratulates Governor John A. Johnson on his splendid victory. This paper wanted Mr. Cole elected governor, but the people willed otherwise. We bow humbly to the decision of a big majority and extend our best wishes to Governor Johnson, thankful that a man of his clean and upright character and ability is to be at the helm of the ship of state for the next two years. Governor Johnson is reelected by a majority of which he has just reason to feel proud, and two years hence he will be heard from in the national councils of his party and he should be considered by his party as the logical candidate for the vice presidential nomination.

R. C. Dunn's Princeton Union (Rep.): two years ago Hennipen county defeated the Republican candidate for governor—he carried the state outside of that county. Last June at the Duluth convention that county practically dictated the nomination of Mr. A. L. Cole. Taking these facts into consideration it is not a difficult matter to account for Mr. Johnson's overwhelming victory at the polls.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: As a newspaper man we extend congratulations to Editor John A. Johnson, of the St. Peter Herald—and we are right proud of him. "And he is a jolly good fellow."

Albert Lea Standard (Dem.): It is a mighty big surprise, sure enough, but the voters who voted knew what they wanted and the rest will mostly in good cheer accept the consequences.

Crookston Journal (Rep.): The battle has been fought and fairly won by the people as against corporate dictation. The Journal rejoices that in Minnesota, North Dakota and New York the voters showed their independence and refused to respond to the lashing of the party whip. The best men won out, the men, to state it better, who represented the best principles.

Albert Lea Tribune (Rep.): The landslide to Johnson in this state, while larger than his most enthusiastic adherents had expected, was but an indication of the disapproval of the methods resorted to by certain political influences, and whether it be true or not the idea prevailed that the Republican candidate was nominated by corporation influence. It is time the Republican party cast over some of its Jonahs and squared the ship about for some new leaders in harmony with the present occupant of the White House.

Isanti News (Rep.): The result shows that the independent voter must hereafter be considered in Minnesota. It is well for the people that is is so. Politicians declare that this independence in voting will destroy the party organizations, but this is not the fact. When the politicians learn that voters will not cast their ballots for a candidate for office simply because he happens to be of their political faith, regardless of his qualifications for the position, better men will be nominated, and in this manner we will secure a higher grade of officials than under the plan of voting for every candidate who wears a Republican brand.

Le Sueur News (Rep.): And now that it is all over let us agree that the best man won.

Winona Independent: At a mass meeting of Democrats held at Cooper, Tex., on Saturday night, a boom was launched for Governor John A. Johnson as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the presidency. Resolutions were adopted declaring that Johnson is an honest man, with no blot on his character, and of fine executive ability. All of which would go to show that our governor's fame has already reached some distance from the confines of Minnesota. It will go farther still before the eighteen months intervening between now and the presidential nominations.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: Stand Pat McCleary was defeated for congress by a Democrat in the Second district—the only Democratic congressman elected in the state. McCleary says he stands for a principle, but the people of his district keep right on going.

Northfield News: It may be a trifle unsettling for corporations to obey the law and stop pilfering the people, but when once the fact is understood they will "settle down" to a healthier condition if not a more profitable one.

Grand Rapids Independent: The independent voter has had his innings again. May he have them still again and often.

Walker Pilot (Rep.): The next politician who comes to the Pilot and argues for its support on the grounds that he is a Republican, had better pad his breeches, and then he won't have reason to feel sore.

Bemidji Pioneer (Rep.): North Dakota has elected a Democratic governor. The habit seems to be catching.

Hendrum Review: The election returns are likely to be a strong argument in inducing Roosevelt to again run for president. It looks as though it might be a ticklish job for any one else to tackle.

Marshall News-Messenger (Rep.): We believe him to be the best and truest Republican who makes effort toward reformation within the party, and we believe this is the intent of the thousands of voters who, loyal to the state and congressional tickets, except on the governorship, take this method of registering a warning to party leaders that the will of the people must be heeded, as well in nominating conventions as in congressional and legislative enactments. If the party leaders will heed the warning and get closer to the rank and file, the party will assert itself two years hence, all along the line, and normal conditions and confidence will return; otherwise, it will be but a step to greater and more disastrous losses than the governorship and a single congressman.

Pine City Pine Poker: There is one method by which the Republicans can secure a Republican governor for Minnesota. Let the next legislature elect Governor Johnson to the United States senate, since the Hon. Knute said he would be ashamed to return to Washington if the Democrats won in the campaign just closed. But, then, Knute didn't mean what he said.

Hibbing Tribune (Rep.): There are more people in Minnesota who did not care who was elected and who did not vote at all than there were partizans of either Cole or Johnson—and more shame to the citizenship of Minnesota that it is so.

Anoka Herald: Nobody is so much of a "nobody" as the husband of a prominent woman.

His education's good;
No more infinitives he splits,
Nor ever any wood.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1886.

•••The oyster supper given by the gentlemen of the First M. E. church last evening was a marked success. The following gentlemen in aprons and caps served the supper: C. M. Gray, Thomas Vigars, Charles Estabrook, Thomas Jamieson, J. H. Darling, Frank DeVay, M. J. Davis, C. J. Carey, J. R. Henderson, George Spearm, E. L. Bradley, L. R. Barker and George W. Clarke. No female help was necessary until it came to washing the dishes, when the males gallantly deserted them.

•••The Ladies' Relief society is in a flourishing condition, having over $700 already in the bank, which will no doubt be expended judiciously in aiding the needy during the winter months.

•••Lighthouse Keeper Jefferson's season's work is rapidly drawing to a close and he is glad of it, but scarcely more so than the citizens who live within hearing of the abnominable foghorn. A man who started out last spring to keep a record of the number of times the horn was blown in a season came to an untimely end some time ago. He had reached the number of 'steen million, and as he was getting into the billions his courage failed him and with a gasp he toppled over into the lake, the victim of "blowmania."

•••Mrs. W. G. Willis and daughter arrived in Duluth last evening from an extended visit in Boston. After a short stay here they will depart for their new home at Spokane Falls.

•••John H. Malone and his brother, George H., are in Duluth to spend the winter. The former has charge of the lighthouse at Isle Royale, and the latter will take charge of the Superior illuminator next season.

•••The first grand musical festival was inaugurated last evening at the Grand opera house by an excellent concert. The choruses were well sung, especially Verdi's anvil chorus, which was given with stage effects, including forge fires and ringing anvils. Mr. Fisher gave a cornet solo, and Miss Robbins rendered a peculiar arrangement of "Minerere" on the piano. George N. Loomis was well received in his tenor solo. Brook's band played several selections in exquisite style.

•••J. E. Kennedy purchased a house and lot yesterday on Tenth avenue, between First and Second streets, for $1,600.

•••C. R. Donnell will open an evening school at Rice's Point.

OUR ELECTION ABROAD.

La Crosse, Wis., Leader-Press (Rep.): Governor Johnson, the able Democratic executive of Minnesota, has been retained as almost everybody hoped he would be.

Fargo, N. D., Call (Rep.): Leave a place for Governor Johnson of Minnesota on the next Democratic national committee. He's coming.

Saginaw, Mich., News (Dem.): In Minnesota the Democrats have achieved perhaps the most notable victory of the election, the overwhelming re-election of Johnson being a great tribute to the independence and fair-mindedness of the voters of that state.

Grand Forks, N. D., Herald (Rep.): The re-election of Governor Johnson in Minnesota is a cause for congratulation. It seems to be generally conceded that Cole is a clean man, but the conditions of the case were peculiar. Johnson was elected two years ago by Republican votes as a protest against fraud in state administration, and domination of the Republican party by a machine. He has given a good administration, and the people of the state felt that his excellent service should be recognized in a befitting manner. There was no good reason for opposing him, and the people saw it in that light.

Buffalo Times: Two years ago John A. Johnson, the Democratic candidate for Governor of Minnesota, promised the people that if elected he would do his best to rid the state of the political ills with which it was afflicted.

The people took him at his word and elected him.

Governor Johnson made good.

Under his wise administration numerous reforms in the interest of the people have been accomplished.

His reward was re-election last Tuesday by a largely increased majority.

The time has come when public officials must make good their campaign pledges or be thrust aside by the people.

The lesson furnished by Minnesota should not be lost on the men elected to office in other states in last Tuesday's elections.

St. Joseph Mo., Gazette: Such personal triumphs do not come to men without good reason and they are not usually difficult to find. Examination into the record of Governor Johnson will furnish the reason for his triumph. It is discovered that he is a man of unflinching integrity, positive character and heroic courage. Once in the governor's chair he set his head against every form of graft and greed. In the fight against the insurance trust he took a leading part, being made chairman of a large convention called to act upon insurance evils. The president mentioned his services in a message to congress and in other ways he was brought prominently before the country, always, however, as the result of individual merit.

And the outcome of the entire matter is an overwhelming vote of approval from the people of his state, a state with a substantial Republican majority and always loyal to the policies of Republicanism. What more forceful illustration of the growing independence of the American people could be furnished, what more striking endorsement of one who does his duty, honestly and fearlessly, no matter what the circumstances, could be asked?

Mr. Bryan, I think, has a right to be vext
At the outlook political some,
They'll be running John Johnson for president next,
Just as sure as the days go and come.
He is stronger at home than was ever Van Sant,
By his vote anybody can see;
He is greater than Hearst, he is bigger than Grant;
He's the juiciest prune on the tree.

I believe it is well to keep looking ahead,
Through the gloom and the fog and the mist,
And when all has been done, and when all has been said,
Then, to sum up the case, I insist
That in view of the facts there is no other plan
The Republican voters to cheat:
It will have to be Johnson and some other man
Or another great bourbon defeat.

So I sing of the state where I once used to freeze,
Where I spent the glad days of my youth,
And my praise of John Johnson is borne on the breeze
From Lancaster northeast to Duluth.
If Democracy's hope is not centered in him,
If it thinks without him to win out,
Then its chance in the coming campaign is too slim
To be really worth writing about.
—"DOC" BIXBY in Nebraska State Journal.

Chauffeur in Cactus Country.

Have you seen a whiskered miner,
Whose name is Pocket Mike?
He's burnin' up the desert
In a smelly, four-wheeled bike;
He struck a pocket somewheres
That paid diamonds to the ton,
And he yells: "Bring me an auto—
I have long been needin' one!"

"I'm tired," he says, "of punchin'
Them burro beasts o' mine,
So fetch me a red devil
That can go one-forty-nine;
Don't give me no blamed chuffer,
But let me take the wheel—
I'll play the game one-handed,
So jest watch me make the deal."

He's stampeded seven round-ups
And he's wrecked an ostrich farm,
And I'm Cactus clean to Kyote,
He has left a trail o' harm;
So wife hurrin' with a posse,
For this benzine-crazy cuss,
And he'll see a day of sorrer—
If that thing don't stampede us!
—Denver Republican.

On the Box Again.

Washington Star: Mr. W. J. Bryan need now feel no further hesitation about climbing over to the very foremost seat in the Democratic band wagon.

Oh, Shivers!

Washington Post: It would be interesting to learn whether or not the barber who shaves Mr. Fairbanks feels at times that he cuts some ice.

ELECTION AND THE HERALD.

Hibbing Tribune (Rep.): The Duluth Herald is to be congratulated upon the campaign it has carried on. Not because its candidate was elected governor, but because of the dignity, sanity and ability of its methods. It was a clean campaign, very cleverly conducted, and there are few newspapers that have ever done any better, and none in Minnesota in 1906 that have done as well.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore (Rep.): The Duluth Evening Herald is to be congratulated upon the campaign it made for Governor Johnson. It was clean and honest, and in marked contrast to the work done by its morning contemporary. The Herald did a great service to the man of its choice, and in doing it, treated Mr. Cole and all other Republican candidates with the respect that is always due gentlemen. The Herald has set an example in political campaigning that will add to the fame of Minnesota if followed by the newspapers of the state, and it is to be hoped the precedent has been firmly established.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: The Duluth News Tribune gags over its crow.

Northfield News (Rep.): The influence of the Duluth News Tribune will now take a vacation.

Grand Rapids Independent: If you want to be turned down in an election, get the Duluth News Tribune to support you.

Perham Enterprise (Dem.): The Duluth Herald did effective work for Governor Johnson.

Crookston Times (Rep.): About the happiest newspaper in the state is The Duluth Herald, which conducted a splendid campaign for Governor Johnson—a campaign that involves no regrets along with the satisfaction of success.

Austin Register (Rep.): The Duluth Herald ought to now be in a position to get something pretty handsome from Governor Johnson. The Herald has been a steady and consistent supporter of Governor Johnson for the past two years, and is certainly entitled to something.

POINTED REMARKS.

Philadelphia Press: "The very day I first met him," said Miss Plane, "something told me he would eventually fall in love with me."

"Indeed?" replied Miss Knox, "the something wasn't your mirror, was it?"

Cleveland Plain Dealer: The Examining Officer—How tall are you in your stocking feet?

The Applicant—Dunno, sir. I've got a hole in each heel.

Chicago Record-Herald: "How," asked the dentist, "did you break this tooth, anyhow?"

"Crackin' hickery nuts," replied Uncle Si. "Durn it, my teeth never were were very strong, for some reason."

Washington Star: "Politics," said the patriot, "is becoming a mere trade."

"Never mind," answered Senator Sorghum, "so long as it isn't a trade in which our side gets the worst of it."

Baltimore American: "What kind of sugar does Mrs. Comeup want?" asked the grocer.

"Mrs. Comeup told me to say," answered the servant, "that as how we are now in sassiety, she don't want none but the refined sugar."

Brooklyn Eagle: Hascoyne—Do you mean to tell me that you really could live on $5,000 a year?

Wenthroke—I could live on less than that—if I had it.

Chicago Tribune: Mrs. Chugwater—Josiah, the doctor says Mr. McJones has pleuro-pneumonia. What is "pleuro-pneumonia?"

Mr. Chugwater—You know what pneumonia is, don't you? Well, pleuro is the same as plural. It means more than one. Pleuro-pneumonia is what you have when you've got it in both lungs. Why can't you think those things out for yourself once in a while?

Good and Bad Luck Omens.

Philadelphia Ledger: To sneeze on Friday presages misfortune.

To see a shooting star means all sorts of good luck.

To pick up an opal argues the acceptance of some one's evil fortune.

Finding a piece of jewelry portends the bestowal of wealth.

To put on a stocking wrong side out, and the left shoe first, are both lucky.

Finding an unopened letter means the reception of good news.

To dream of a funeral is an excellent omen.

To chase away a black cat means the throwing away of good luck.

Bad luck will pursue you if you carry the handle of your umbrella down.

Pointed Paragraphs.

Chicago Daily News: It doesn't take the average man long to get short.

Don't expect a soft answer when you call a man hard names.

If a man is a liar, he doesn't get mad when he is called one.

Woman's tears have more effect on a man than her words.

THANKSGIVING

Is not so very far away—just about time to begin thinking and planning for it.

This particular day of the year every good housewife would have her dining room most presentable. This fall of 1906, we show more than twice as many pieces in Dining Room Furniture than ever before—varieties and values that we defy any store to match. And, not only this section, but every part of this great housefurnishing store is filled with unmatchable values.

Dining Chairs at 98c

Here's a regular $1.50 value — all hardwood — royal quarter sawed finish—wood seated — well finished — strong and well made — medium high backs.

Five-Legged Dining Table $5.78

A fine heavy table—made of thoroughly seasoned hardwood — rich royal quarter sawed finish — fine heavy turned legs—6-foot extension —42-inch top—a thoroughly well made article and a splendid value at $5.78.

BEAUTIFUL SIDEBOARD

$9.68

Similar in design to cut—fine large board—solid hardwood—rich golden finish—large linen drawer—two silver drawers and fine large cupboard at base—beveled French plate mirror—neatly carved top — a handsome board for the money.

Dining Chairs $1.98

The Elwell and Hoosier Kitchen Cabinets

With one of these fine cabinets near the stove and sink it is so easy to cook good things compared with what it has been in the past, that cooking in the future will be a pleasure instead of a drudgery and the cook will have more time and inclination to prepare dainty and appetizing dishes.

Most of the time consumed by the housewife in preparing meals is used in assembling and putting back into their places the different articles used in cooking. She has to walk from the pantry—to the table—to the closet—to the cellar — to the stove. The continual rushing from one place to another wears her out and makes the culinary art, which should be a pleasure and an interesting science — a drudgery.

An Elwell or Hoosier will eliminate all step taking.

BIG SHAKE UP OF BAD POLICE

Pittsburg Tries Radical Methods of Checking Crime Epidemic.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 14.—As a result of the numerous crimes in this city, that the police have failed to solve, a wholesale shakeup in the police department was made yesterday, almost every official above the rank of patrolman being transferred.

Miss Mary McCauley, while on her way home, was attacked and strangled at 1 o'clock yesterday morning. She managed to scream for help, and several police in plain clothes chased the assailant, but he escaped.

The police express confidence in having under arrest in Charles Bucini, the slayer of Harry F. Smith, who was killed in his home by a burglar.

The reward for the arrest of the slayers of Smith and James E. McMillen, who was murdered a week ago, have been augumented by one of $5,000 authorized by the city.

THE HOUR OF ADVERSITY.

St. Clair Woman Has More Than Her Share of Trouble.

Mankato, Minn., Nov. 14.—The hardships and troubles of Mrs. Uriah Street of St. Clair reached a terrible state of affairs Monday, when three of her children, Cora, aged 12; Nelson, aged 6, and Ethel, aged 5 years, were committed to the state school for indigent children at Owatonna. Four years ago, Uriah Street abandoned his family, and has not since been heard of. Mrs. Street managed to earn a livelihood for herself and five little children until a few weeks ago, when the children fell ill. The eldest son and her daughter were taken ill with typhoid fever. The son died about a week ago, and the mother went into a nervous collapse, worn out by the care of the sick children, and finally overcome by the shock resulting from the death of her son. She had no friends on whom to depend and was brought to Mankato at the expense of Blue Earth county, and, with her daughter, given room in St. Joseph's hospital. When she is told that her three youngest children have been taken from her and sent to the state charitable institution, she is liable to suffer a relapse, which would be serious.

GOOD ROADS ASSOCIATION.

Annual Meeting of State Society to be Held Dec. 6.

St. Paul, Nov. 14.—The annual meeting of the State Good Roads association will be held in the office of the state engineer, room 3, state capitol, St. Paul, commencing at 2 p. m., on Thursday, Dec. 6.

DOWNED BY SINGLE SHOT

Two Men Mistaken for Deer South of Devil's Track Lake.

Were Abandoned to Their Fate by the Reckless Hunter.

A terrible hunting accident happened in the woods south of Devil's Track lake last Thursday afternoon, when Arthur and Charles Dahl were seriously wounded by a shot fired by a careless hunter.

The Cook County Herald says the boys left the home of their brother-in-law, Julius Peterson, that morning on a trapping expedition, expecting to be out about a week. At about 9 o'clock that morning, at a point nearly four miles from the Peterson home, both were struck down by a bullet from a hunter's rifle. At that moment they were descending a hill, Charles, the younger boy, being in the rear. The bullet passed through Charles' leg, just below the knee, shattering the bone, and then struck Arthur in the thigh. Passing downward without touching the bone it lodged in the front of the leg a little above the knee, being later removed by the doctor. Charles was disabled and could not move from where he fell. Though they yelled for help the person who had fired the shot fled from the scene and left them to their fate.

Peterson's is the nearest house. The trail is extremely difficult to travel. The boys realized that to wait for help meant death for both of them, so after he recovered sufficiently from the first shock and leaving his wounded brother where he fell, Arthur started back. He had to drag himself the most of the way. Thoughts of his brother, more than his own needs, gave him the strength to pull himself through, and he succeeded in reaching Peterson's at about 3 o'clock, being nearly six hours on the way.

Julius Peterson went to the logging camp near by and started a numeber of men to Charles' aid while he came to town for a doctor. It was 7 o'clock before the party reached the wounded boy. He had crawled to the packsack, a few feet away, and secured a blanket, his only protection from the cold and rain during those terible hours. Owing to the darkness it was decided useless to try to take him out before daylight. Everything that was possible for unskilled hands was done for his relief. He was placed under the shelter of temporary windbreakes, warmed by huge fires that were kept burning during the night.

Meantime Dr. Hicks had attended Arthur and leaving him resting comfortably, with a guide he went to Charles' assistance, arriving there at 4 o'clock Friday morning. Such temporary relief as was possible was given him before starting. He was carried through the woods on a stretcher for about three miles and was brought to town in a buggy, arriving at Grand Marais in the afternoon. The wound was operated on and the young man is resting comfortably.

Both victims will recover and neither may be permanently disabled.

Sheriff Carhart, who was at the scene of the acident with the rescuing party, examined the grounds carefully, discovering evidences that led to the conclusion that Iver Anderson and his two younger brothers, who were known to be hunting in that neighborhood that morning, were responsible. When confronted with the charge they confessed. Iver, the oldest one did the shooting. While some sympathy is felt for them, they are severely criticised for running away and leaving their victims in the woods to suffer such terrible experiences until other help was secured.

TRIPLE CRIME BY BAD NEGRO

Two Asheville Officers and Colored Man Shot to Death.

Asheville, N. C., Nov. 14.—Fighting bravely in defense of their police captain, Patrolmen Charles Blackstock and William Bailey of this city were shot to death, last night, by a negro, who also killed one negro and fatally wounded another.

The murderer gave his name as Will Harris of Charlotte, N. C., a desperado, for whom a large reward has been standing for some time. Prior to the killing of the two officers, a negro restaurant keeper, named Ben Allison, was shot dead by Harris without provocation. Another negro, named Tom Neil, lies mortally wounded, he, too, being shot before the officers took a hand in the melee.

When Harris started on his tour from a negro house, he fired into two houses. Police Captain Page and Officers Bailey and Blackstock rushed from police headquarters in pursuit. Capt. Page received a bullet in the arm from the negro's rifle. Page called upon Blackstock to fire, but before that officer could do so, Blackstock fell dead with a bullet in the chest. Bailey fired twice without hitting, and the negro then shot and killed Bailey, afterward escaping.

At 2:30 o'clock yesterday morning the Southern railway dispatched a special train to Tryon, where, forty miles away, they were to secure bloodhounds to aid in running down the negro who, at last reports, had taken refuge in the Biltmore estate.

INSANE MAN

Who Escaped From Asylum at Green Bay, Still Missing.

Green Bay, Wis., Nov. 14.—Searching parties have failed to locate Thomas Gay, aged 40, who escaped from the county insane asylum last Sunday morning. Fears are entertained that he may have fallen into the waters of Green bay, near Kishkeekwantena, a summer resort where, it is said, he was seen. The man has a wife and two children living in this city, but he has not returned to them.

Joseph Barth, a resident of this city for thirty years, died at his home in Milwaukee, where he has lived for the last four years.

Dr. William Beaupre left the city for Sauk Rapids, Minn., to attend the funeral of his brother, Philip, who was 84 years old.

While playing around the house, the 4-year-old son of Philip aVn der Linder of De Pere, caught his fingers in a washing machine, smashing them so badly that it was necessary to amputate the middle fingers on the right hand.

OVERDUE SCHOONER SAFE.

Kineo From Sandwich Islands Turns Up After Seven Months.

Lewes, Del., Nov. 14.—The overdue five-masted schooner, Kineo, from Kahulin, Sandwich islands, April 27 for Philadelphia, for whose safety grave fears had been expressed in shipping circles, was towed into port today by a tug that had picked her up in the Atlantic ocean. All were reported well on board.

DIED IN A FIT.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Nov. 14.—Joseph Young, a young man from Avon, Minn., was seized with an epileptic fit while in bed at the insane hospital here, and, turning over, buried his face in his pillow and suffocated. Coroner was summoned and found death to have been accidental.

We Are Overstocked With Suits and Overcoats

Arrangements Are Finally Closed for Game With Blaine.

North Side and North Division Games Are Off.

After many vicissitudes the Blaine and Duluth Central high school football teams have finally come together, and arrangements have been completed for a meeting between these two teams on Nov. 24.

Barring unforeseen accidents the game will take place on that date.

Supporters of both teams have been clamoring for a meeting, but the teams were kept apart by the difference in the rules governing Minnesota and Wisconsin teams. Under Minnesota rules two of the Superior men would have been ineligible.

It was finally agreed, however, that each school saould play under its own rules. This is probably the only fair basis, although it places the Duluth boys at a disadvantage, and every man on the Duluth team is not only required to be a bona fide student and up to the standard in all of his studies, but he must have been registered in the school for the semester preceding the one in which the game is played.

The announcement was made by Principal Smith this morning that the negotiations for the game had finally come to a successful end and there is joy in the hearts of the rooters on both sides of the bay.

The Blaine game will probably be the only big game of the year. Up to the present time Duluth has met only second rate teams, and there are no other big games in sight. The negotiations with North Side high of Minneapolis are off. Some word was expected from the Minneapolis team yesterday afternoon, but nothing has been heard, and it is not likely that the game will be played.

The plans for a game with North Division high of Chicago are not likely to materialize. The Duluth boys have never considered the game and in the present condition of their finances it might prove too costly an experiment to bring the Chicago team all the way to Duluth.

OIL BRIBERY TALES PROBED

Findlay, O., Grand Jury Questioning Recent Trust Jurymen.

Findlay, Ohio, Nov. 14.—Charges of alleged attempted bribery of a member or members of the jury, in the probate court that tried in September the Standard Oil case, are being investigated, at an adjourned session of the grand jury. All of the members of the jury who sat in the trial, in which a verdict was rendered finding the Standard Oil company guilty of alleged violation of the Valentine anti-trust law, have been summoned, and several of them have been interrogated by the grand jury. While the utmost secrecy is maintained, Prosecutor David stated, yesterday afternoon, that all rumors in connection with the alleged attempted bribery would be gone into thoroughly.

Jewell P. Lightfoot, assistant state attorney general of Texas, received from Attorney General Ellis yesterday many documents in the suits brought in this state against the Standard Oil company.

BEDE IN FAVOR OF RECIPROCITY

Declares That the Whole Northwest Will Demand It Unanimously.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—"Canadian reciprocity" is to be the battle cry with members of congress from the Northwestern country during the coming short session of congress. If President Roosevelt calls the Sixtieth congress into extraordinary session on March 4 next, then the fight for the issue which James J. Hill made so predominant before the Merchants' club Saturday night, will be taken up with renewed energy.

This was the word which Representative J. Adam Bede, from the Eighth Minnesota district, brought to Chicago on his way to Iowa.

"Mr. Hill undoubtedly has sounded the keynote of the situation so far as we in the Northwest look at the matter," said Mr. Bede. "Mr. Hill, if he were to back individuals for political preferment, might come to grief, but when he asserts so reasonably and so ably, the conditions existing in the great Northwest, he has the backing solidly of the entire people.

"There has been those of us," continued Mr. Bede, "who have advocated Canadian reciprocity for many years. The serious drawback which we encounter, and which we shall encounter in the coming winter will be that the Canadians have been steadily growing, and from a province have evolved into a nation. It is very possible, not to say probable, that the same state of mind regarding reciprocity does not exist among the Canadians as prevailed some years ago."

LAUGHED AT FIRST

But Changed His Mind on Investigation.

It often seems ridiculous what a simple thing can do in shaping our lives.

We do certain things because our fathers before us did, and don't stop to think that we might be better for a change.

A man tells how he changed from coffee to Postum Food Coffee, and the remarkable difference it made in him.

"I have been a heavy coffee-drinker for years, got very nervous and my mind seemed dazed. I would go to work every morning with an unsteady hand, and actually endanger my life, as I am a building mechanic.

"I had read of the results that occurred by changing from coffee to Postum, but I was in such a condition mentally and physically that I never thought of it for myself. But I kept growing worse every day, until I was advised to try Postum.

"I laughed at first, but finally tried it, and to my great surprise I was dead sure I had at last found the real trouble, and how to get rid of it.

"While using coffee, among all the other ails I was also troubled with sour stomach and gas, but thanks to Postum and the friend who advised me to use it, my stomach can now stand almost any kind of food. The whole change is a wonder to me." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the book, "The Road to Wellville, in pkgs. "There's a reason."

TRUSTEE IS SUSTAINED

Court Holds That Creditor Got Proper Share of Dividends.

Judge Dibell has decided that the amount of dividends tendered Tibbs, Hutchings & Co., by F. A. Clarkson, trustee for Hans Peterson, is all that the company is entitled to, and has ordered judgement in that amount. The court granted a twenty days' stay of judgement.

In this action, Tibbs, Hutchings & Co. allege that Hans Peterson gave it three promisory notes of $300 each, March 16, 1904, due in two, three and four months, respectively. He also gave the firm collaterals in substantially the amount of the notes.

In April, 1904, Peterson executed and delivered to F. A. Clarkson a trust deed, to which the creditors of Peterson consented, and accepted the provision of the same. Mr. Clarkson proceeded to execute the trust deed, and by Jan. 22, 1905, had reduced the assets to cash and was able to pay dividends to the creditors of 48½ per cent.

Between April, 1904, and Jan., 1905, Tibbs, Hutchings & Co., had realized from the collaterals $250, some of the collaterals not having been converted into cash.

Mr. Clarkson, as trustee, tendered the company $182.63, June 22, 1905, which was the full amount of a 48½ per cent dividend on the difference between the three notes of $200 each and the amount received by the company on the collaterals. The tender was refused by Mr. Clarkson, who retained the money and has at all times been ready to pay it to the plaintiff firm.

Tibbs, Hutchings & Co., claimed that the firm should receive dividends on its $600 debt, and the trustee maintained that the company should only receive dividends on the $600 debt less the amount realized on the collaterals at the time the estate was reduced to cash, and the trustee was in a position to pay the dividends. The court sustains the position taken by the trustee.

RELIGIOUS WAR AS TO BAPTISM

Richmond, Va., Nov. 14.—By resolution, the Baptist convention today broke off all relations with the American Bible society, and refused to use its publications. The trouble grew out of the printing by the Baptists of Bibles for the "Asiatics," in which the Greek word "Baptize" was translated "Dipped." The American society contended for the translation "Sprinkle," and refused to aid in the circulation of the Baptist Bibles.

NEWS FROM WEST DULUTH

GOODSON IS ARRAIGNED

Accused of Stealing Money From Olaf Breiseth Monday.

Re-arrested After Being Released for Lack of Evidence.

Frank Goodson, foreman of a line crew for the Duluth Telephone company, who resides at No. 10 East Fourth street, was arrested, yesterday afternoon in Duluth, accused of robbing Olaf N. Breiseth, at the Split Rock saloon, in West Duluth, Monday morning. When he was arraigned before Judge Cutting, at police court this morning, he pleaded not guilty, and asked for an examination.

Goodson had been arrested on the same charge, Monday afternoon, but owing to lack of evidence against him, he was released. More evidence was secured by Lieut. Briggs and Patrolman Toewe of the West Duluth police department, yesterday afternoon, and Goodson was again arrested.

Breiseth, whose home is at 22 West First street, is a driver for the Duluth Telephone company, and was with a crew of men working at this end of the city, Monday morning. He and Goodson visited the Split Rock saloon several times, and soon Breiseth became more or less intoxicated. While he was in this condition Goodson, it is claimed, relieved him of his money, about $30 in all, telling Breiseth that he would take care of it until he got over his spree. Goodson then took Breiseth into a back room and told him to rets up before going to work again. In the meantime the bartender had become suspicious of Goodson, and summoned Officer Toewe. Upon the appearance of the officer, Goodson hurried into another room and soon returned and demanded that if they suspected him of robbing Breiseth, they could search him. This was done at the West Duluth police station, but the money was not found upon Goodson's person.

A search was made of the room where Goodson had gone just before being searched, but no trace of the money could be found. As there was no proof that Goodson had taken the money, the officers were compelled to release him. Yesterday afternoon, however, Lieut. Briggs made another search of the room, and found the $30 hidden away in a crevice in the wall. The second arrest of Goodson followed, and he will probably be bound over to the grand jury.

PREPARE FOR OFFICERS.

Catholic Foresters of West Duluth Plan Reception Next Month.

At the regular meeting of St. James Court, No. 614, C. O. F., held at Gilley's hall last evening, the committee of the local court to arrange for the reception of the state officers which was appointed at the last meeting, reported that all preparations had been completed, and the members of the court will turn out in large numbers.

The state officials of the order will be in the city in the early part of December, and the meeting at which they will be received, will be held in the hall of the Cathedral of the Sacred Heart court on the evening of Dec. 4. A large class of candidates will be initiated from all the five courts of the city, and it is expected to be one of the largest initiations ever held in Duluth. The Foresters are making every effort to make the affair a noteworthy one in the history of the order.

State Organizer Loskiel of St. Paul, was present at the meeting of St. James court last night, having come to Duluth to further the interests of the local courts. He gave an excellent report to the members of the West Duluth court of the work which has been done by the order throughout the state, and said that all the courts are growing in membership. Mr. Loskiel is also the state auditor of the order, and in that capactiy is looking over the financial affairs of the courts. He will probably be in Duluth on the occasion of the big meeting Dec. 4, and may take part in the ceremonies at that time. This was his first visit to St. James court since his appointment as state organizer, and he gave an interesting talk to the membership on their duties as Catholic Foresters.

TRAIN BLOCKADED.

Freights Were Laid Up at West Duluth All Night.

On account of a slight blockade in the Northern Pacific yards at Duluth, freight trains have been strung out at West Duluth and between Duluth and this part of the city since last evening and at one time there were seven trains near here. Three trains which arrived at West Duluth about 8 o'clock last night were kept at West Duluth all night and could not get in to the main part of the city until 8 o'clock this morning. Three more trains soon took their places in the waiting line at West Duluth and remained a good share of the morning. The trains are mostly grain trains having come in from Staples since last evening.

SCORCHED BY FLAMES

Old St. Louis Mill Threatened by Fire in Yards.

Slab Wood Piles and Part of Tramway Destroyed.

There was a close call from total destruction for the William O'Brien sawmill, formerly the old St. Louis mill, at West Duluth last night, in a fire which started in a cord slab pile in the yards. The mill was saved by the prompt efforts of about seventy-five employes of the Lesure mill which is adjacent to the O'Brien mill.

The slab pile where the fire started is about 200 feet from the mill but the blaze gained considerable headway before it was discovered by the night watchman, George Fellows, who turned in the alarm. The West Duluth fire company was the first to arrive and at that time the flames were shooting high in the air. A second alarm was turned in and the company from the West end responded. Some difficulty was experienced by the firemen in getting the apparatus to the scene on account of the location of the mill, and it was nearly half an hour before the first stream of water was turned on the blaze. The fire burned until nearly midnight but the firemen kept it confined to the slab pile.

The superintendent of the company, J. P. McDonald, was unable to give a positive estimate of the loss this morning but said that it would amount to about $3,000 as part of the old tramway had been burned besides the 500 cords of slabs which were practically all destroyed.

BLOOD POISON SETS IN.

Wound From Rusty Nail May be Serious for Fireman.

Several days ago while working around his home, Joseph Belanger, driver of the hook and ladder team of the West Duluth fire department, in some manner drove a rusty nail through his leg just above the knee. He thought nothing of it at the time, and did not call a physician to treat it and had no trouble with it until last night when blood poisoning set in.

When the alarm was turned from the St. Louis mill about 10 o'clock in the evening, Belanger proceeded with the rest of the department to the scene of the fire, and while there he must have overworked his leg, as it was not long before he was taken ill. He was taken to the Duluth hospital, and a physician examined the limb and found a very bad case of blood poisoning.

The wound from the nail was opened up and cleaned out, but it may develop into a serious case, and the doctor would not predict how soon Belanger could be out again. After the treatment at the hospital he was taken to his home, 22 North Fifty-sixth avenue west.

Entertain Grand Recorder.

Next Friday evening the West Duluth Degree of Honor Lodge No. 85 will entertain the grand recorder of the state, Mrs. Ruell Olson of St. Paul, and a large class of candidates will be taken into the order. The ceremonies will be in charge of Mrs. Olson who will also address the meeting. All members are requested to attend as a fine program has been arranged and refreshments will be served.

Miss Wiseman Entertains.

Miss Mabel Wiseman entertained last evening in honor of Miss Lena Ide at her home, 515 Seventy-first avenue west. The rooms were artistically decorated with fruits, flowers and ferns. Refreshments were served. Among those present were: Misses Anna Fish, Maud Tyner, Dora Lavingue, Linda Wiseman, Alice O'Neil and Mrs. D. Fruct.

Royal League Meets.

A very successful meeting of the Royal league was held last evening in the rooms of the club over the Western State bank. The officers of the club announced that the full set of furniture had been put in at the club rooms and that they were now ready for the members at any time. The piano committee was unable to report.

West Duluth Briefs.

The second revival meeting of the series being held at the Third Swedish Baptish church was very well attended last evening and considerable enthusiasm was shown Rev. Freeman, the blind evangelist, is in charge of the meetings, assisted by his daughter.

The members of the W. C. T. U. of West Duluth will meet tomorrow evening at the home of Mrs. Crosby, 117 South Sixtieth avenue west. The leaders of the meeting will be Mrs. G. W. Smith. The party had secured one deer when Shandler returned, but he stated that, with the snow which fell this morning, they will be able to get several more.

DAIRYMEN IN CONVENTION

Crookston, Minn., Nov. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fourth annual meeting of the Red River Valley Dairymen's association began this morning with the largest attendance in its history. The visitors were welcomed by Mayor McPhee, and President Wilson of the association responded. E. K. Slater of the dairy and food commission, President Sweet and Secretary Morley of the State Dairymen's association, and Dairy and Food Commissioner Flint of North Dakota are among the notables present. "The Hand Separator," by H. L. Flagel of McIntosh, "Breeding Dairy Stock," by J. R. Morley, and the "Pasteurizer," by L. H. Flagel of Erskine were discussed in the morning. This evening the delegates will visit the experimental farm, where a banquet will be served. The convention will be in session two days.

BANQUET FOR COLE.

Akeley, Minn., Nov. 14.—A. L. Cole late Republican nominee for governor, was tendered a public reception Monday evening, about 500 citizens being present. A fine program, including speeches by prominent citizens and music by the band and orchestra and leading vocalists, was carried out. The demonstration was as enthusiastic as if Mr. Cole had returned home victorious.

A MURDEROUS PRACTICE

Spitting in Public Spreads Germs of Consumption.

The bacillus of tuberculosis starts tubercules in the lungs. These casefy, soften and are ejected from the lungs in coughing. A dry cough will spray the air full of these germs, a loose cough will deposit the sputum on the sidewalks where it will dry, be trodden to powder, whirled about in the wind for healthy people to breathe, and so start up new plantations of these bacilli. Dr. Knopf says that an advanced case of consumption will eject about seven billions of these germs every twenty-four hours.

It is a murderous practice to spit where others may bring the infection into the house on shoes or skirts, where it may dry and become a powder to be sent into the air and breathed into the lungs. If the lungs are sore from colds or any other cause, these germs settle on the sore spot and set up what is called a "mixed infection.' This is the starting point of consumption, and prompt treatment is required.

An eminent authority on lung trouble advises the use of the following simple formula, which can be secured from any good prescription druggist at small cost: Half ounce Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), two ounces glycerine and a half pint of good whiskey. Mix and use in teaspoonful doses every four hours.

It is said that the mixture will break up a cold in twenty-four hours and cure any cough that is curable. The ingredients should be pure and to avoid substitution, they should be purchased separately and mixed in the home of the patient. The Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) should be purchased in the original half-ounce vials, put up for druggists to dispense. Each vial is securely sealed in a round wooden case, with the name—"Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure)"—plainly printed thereon.

THE "LID."

"A Tight Roof and a Dry Cellar."

That's what we thought of when we rose from our slumber this morning and saw snow on the ground. "A tight roof" in the parlance of the clothing man is a cap or a hat—often called a "lid," but it has nothing to do with the "tight" condition that calls for tight saloon doors and is also designated as "lid." In that instance it's a case of—beer. When we speak of a "dry cellar," we have in mind the famous Columbia $3.50 Shoe—a couple of little homes for your feet that you should not fail to secure this winter. They are worth more—that's all—and you know what a dry seller means to your house.

Some men wear stiff hats all the year around—they don't like caps and argue that the empty space in the lid is a conductor of the hot air that issues from their heads. Scientific and true, except on a day as we had here a year ago—it'll be just a year two weeks from today.

For hat wearers there is nothing better in Duluth than what can be found in the Columbia Hat Section—Knapp-Felt De-Luxe, $6; Columbia "Special," $4; Columbia $3 Hat and the Columbia "Common," $1.90—every one of them worth every cent of its price.

For cap wearers we have now at the beginning of the season, a "big city stock of at least 3,000 caps, in many different styles and qualities. For winter caps we know of none—East or West—that excel the famous "GORDON CAPS," made right here in Minnesota, so we sell none but "Gordon Caps." Most of them, including the popular Hat-Caps, are provided with invincible protectors, lined with nutria fur or flannel. A new wrinkle is a small storm visor—folding on the inside—which covers the top of the brow just where an icy wind is felt most, as you well know. Cloth Caps are here at 50c, $1, $1.50, $2 and $3. Hat-Caps at $1.50 and $2 and Fur Caps at $2.50 and up to $20.00.

ROADS END STRIKE FEAR

New York, Nov. 14.—That the danger of a strike of railroad employes in the East, has been averted, is generally believed. The New York, New Haven & Hartford, and the New York Central railroads came to an agreement yesterday with committees representing firemen of the two roads affecting the status of the men on the new electric locomotives, and the adjustment committee of the Erie locomotive engineers announced late yesterday, it had reached an agreement with the officials. The firemen's committee will confer further with the New York Central and the New York, New Haven & Hartford officials concerning increased wages and shorter hours.

Carrying out the action taken by the directors of the Pennsylvania company, the directors of the Northern Central, West Jersey, Seashore and Philadelphia, Baltimore & Washington railroads, controlled by the Pensylvania authorized an increase of ten per cent in the wages of all permanent employes receiving less than $200 per month. In the Northern Central 6,924 men out of 7,150 employed are affected. The present monthly wages of the men concerned amount to $369,530. The increase for the year will be $443,436. On the Philadelphia, Baltimore & Washington, 9,611 are affected, and the increase for the year will be $615,264. On the West Jersey & Seashore railroad 3,382 men will receive the increase. Their present monthly wages amount to $179,942, the increase amounting to $215,928 a year.

After the first session of the engineers adjustment committee with Assistant General Manager A. J. Stone at the offices of the Erie railroad, it was announced that a settlement had been reached with the engineers on a milage instead of a per diem basis. As there are eighteen divisions in the systems, and about 300 different rates to be adjusted, the work may occupy at least a month.

It was stated at the offices of the Erie system late yesterday that there would be no trouble in reaching an agreement with the firemen at the proper time, as President Underwood's letter to Chief Hannahan was not a refusal to grant concessions to the dissatisfied men, but simply a request to hold off until settlements could be made with yardmen, swithemen, brakemen, and other employes. It was said that when these adjustments should have been made, the demands of the firemen would be taken up, and those considered reasonable granted.

HEAD OF ALL WORKMEN

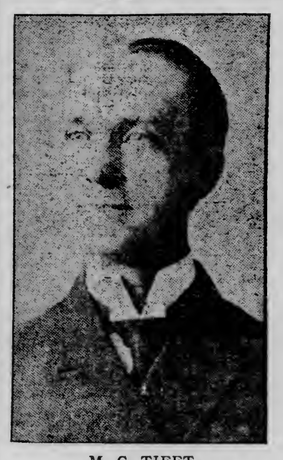

Is Coming to Duluth to Visit the Local Lodges.

Will Initiate Large Class at Joint Meeting Here.

Workmen of Duluth are making big plans for the entertainment of Supreme Master Workman Will M. Narvis of Muscatine, Iowa, who will be in the city tomorrow.

Mr. Narvis is the head of the Ancient Order of United Workmen in America, and is coming to Duluth in company with Grand Master Workman M. C. Tifft of Long Prairie, to visit the local lodges. Mr. Tifft is the head of the order in the state.

Duluth has five lodges of workmen,

M. C. TIFFT,

with a total membership of 1,700, and they will combine to tender a joint reception to the distinguished visitors. The lodges in Duluth are as follows: Duluth, No. 10; Rice's Point, No. 80; Fidelity, No. 105; West Duluth, No. 145; Lakeside, No. 272.

The members will form in line at the Maccabee hall on Thursday evening, and march to the hotel. The visitors

WILL M. NARVIS,
Supreme Master Workman of A. O. U. W.

will then be escorted along Superior street to Second avenue east, up Second avenue east to First street, and along First street to the hall.

Initiation ceremonies will be conducted at the hall, and a large class will be introduced to the mysteries of the order.

Mr. Narvis is one of the most prominent figures in fraternal circles in the country, and is making a tour of the lodges in the Northwest.

REACHES LARGE FIGURE.

Over 1,300 Hunting Licenses Issued in Duluth.

The total number of hunting licenses issued from the county auditor's office up to this noon, were 1,320. While the demand is not quite so brisk as it was the first of the week, there are from a dozen to twenty applications daily. A great many are obtaining licenses who hardly expect to go out after deer, but they wish to be provided with permits if they should be able to get away from the city and be fortunate enough to kill a deer.

Deputy Sheriff Owen Gately, who returned this morning from a range trip, says that the deer are reported so thick on the line of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg road, that the trains are sometimes stopped while the engine crews drive them off the track.

TEN MILLIONS FOR POOR.

Young Mexican Croesus, Once a Peon, Announces Big Charity.

Galveston, Tex., Nov. 14.—Pedro Alvaredo, the owner of Palmillo mine, at Parral, Chihuahua, Mexico, whose wealth is estimated at more than $150,000,000, announces that he will distribute $10,000,000 or more to the poor of Mexico within thirty days.

This young man who, six years ago, was a poor miner, some time ago offered to pay the government debt of Mexico, and the offer was declined. He says that he obtained his vast wealth from the earth, which is a part of Mexico, and he proposes that his poor countrymen shall share his good fortune.

His plan is not to give cash, but to provide homes and lands for the poor and equip them so they can earn a living at trades or on plantations

RAILROADS IN EFFECT THURSDAY

Football Tickets Will be Accepted on Afternoon Trains.

Between 700 and 1,000 Duluthians Will Attend Game.

So great has been the demand for tickets to the Twin Cities on account of the Carlisle-Minnesota football game next Saturday that the Northern Pacific, Great Northern and Omaha roads have announced that tickets will be good on the afternoon trains Thursday, as well as in the evening, Friday and Saturday morning, instead of going into effect Thursday night, as was the original intention.

As the tickets are good returning until Monday night, this will give Duluthians taking advantage of the special rate four nights and three days in the Twin Cities, if they desire to stay the limit. For those who wish to come home Saturday, the Northern Pacific will run a second section to its night train out of Minneapolis for Duluth. The regular leaving time is 10:30 p. m., but the second section will be held for the benefit of the football enthusiasts until 11:25, allowing plenty of time to go to the theaters or otherwise spend the evening.

It is now estimated that between 700 and 1,000 Duluthians will see the game. Tickets to the game are in great demand, and only a few of them are left here. The Great Northern, Omaha and Northern Pacific all have a few left, but in the Twin Cities it is understood none are on sale, except for those in the hands of ticket brokers. The Northern Pacific local office had the largest block of tickets, 250 in all, and by tomorrow these will all have been disposed of. The last fifty are being sold now. The Great Northern and Omaha offices had smaller blocks of seats, but they also will be accommodate a few more comers. A great many Duluthians are depending upon their friends in the Twin Cities to get seats for them.

Milwaukee Sleeping Car.

Next Monday, Nov. 19, the Omaha will establish a sleeping car service between Duluth and Milwaukee. A car will be provided that will carry a passenger all the way from Duluth to the Wisconsin city without change. Heretofore sleeper passengers to Milwaukee have been compelled to sit up until they reached Maryland Junction, Wis., where the Milwaukee Pullman was attached to the train. Leaving here at 5:30 p. m., the car will arrive in Milwaukee at 7:40 a. m.

Change of Time.

A change of time of passenger trains will take effect on the Duluth & Iron Range road tomorrow. Trains will leave the Union depot for Tower, Ely, Eveleth and Virginia and intermediate points at 7:45 a. m. and 4:15 p. m., arriving at Duluth at 1 p. m. and 7:15 p. m. daily, except Sundays. Sunday train for Tower, Ely and intermediate points will leave the union depot at 7:45 a. m., arriving at Duluth at 4:15 p. m.

Still Busy at Docks.

Despite snow and cold weather, work goes merrily on at the ore docks. The officials of the ore roads have no intention of ceasing operations for the season this month, anyway. The night crew is still at work at the Missabe's docks, and all of the docks are being utilized.

FALSE BILLING ORDER REFUSED

Commerce Commission Declines to Compel Railroad Reports.

Washington, Nov. 14.—The interstate commerce commission has declined to issue an order to compel railroads to report all cases of false billing, classification and weighing and misrepresentation of the contents of packages or reports of weight by shippers delivering freight for transportation, in order that the shipper may be prosecuted. The decision is set forth in a letter to the Larkin company, soap manufacturers of Buffalo, N. Y., and Peoria, Ill., which sought the order under the belief that, if granted, the railroads could safely modify the rule in regard to the classifications of boxes of freight containing several articles of different classes. The railroads have agreed after Dec. 31 the shipments will be charged at the rate for the highest class contained in the shipment.

The request of the Larkin company, which also affects every concern offering premiums and shipping them with merchandise sold was for a modification of the rule to provide as follows: "Any package containing articles of more than one class will be charged at the rate of the highest class articles contained therein, provided, that if the actual weight of the articles of each class is shown on the bill of lading, each article will be charged at its weight and class rate, adding the weight of the box, case or crate to the weight of the heaviest article."

TIRED OF EQUAL SUFFRAGE.

No More Colorado Women Will be Given Nominations.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 14.—Leaders of both big political parties announce that no more women will be nominated for office, except possibly state superintendent of schools. They say Colorado voters, time and again, have registered their protest against women holding office. Equal suffrage is dead, they declare.

Four women ran for the house of representatives recently, three of them on the Democratic ticket and the other ran on the Socialist ticket. All were defeated by decisive majorities.

It was during Governor Waite's administration that equal suffrage was granted residents of Colorado. An act, passed Dec. 2, 1893, by a vote of 35,788 to 29,451, accorded women the same voting rights as men.

The legislature of 1895 had three female members of the house, that of 1897 had two, while in 1899 four were elected. In 1903 only one woman was elected to that body, and none since then.

No woman ever has been elected to the state senate.

Smile of Abraham De Kwaak is Always in Evidence.

Ionia, Mich., Nov. 14.—When Abraham De Kwaak was born seventy-eight years ago it was with a smile on his features. That smile has lived with him through more than the allotted three score years and ten and today all Ionia basks in its sunshine and good cheer. Every one in Ionia knows Abraham De Kwaak. Every one knows his smile. Every one knows his history and all, even the children on the streets and the dogs and the horses love this bright, cheery little old Hollander, who, beside all his faith and good cheer, has the courage of his convictions.

It is a pleasant story that Abraham De Kwaak's life yields. When "Father" De Kwaak got religion, he got it thoroughly and nought could change or shake his faith. With one blow he swept all his belongings into the tide of the little creek that flows through Ionia and the few who witnessed that inspiring spectacle will tell you that the same smile expanded his good humored countenance that now shines forth from his portraits in the homes and public places of the city where he is universally loved.

Fifty years ago Abraham De Kwaak, a brewer from the Netherlands, struck Holland, Mich., along with the Steketees who were destined to later become so prominent in Grand Rapids. Next he moved to Grand Rapids, later to Plainfield and then to Ionia, where he bought a tract of land that now faces the Grand Trunk railway tracks and set himself up in the brewery business. That was nearly forty years ago. Mr. De Kwaak had only just begun to prosper. His old country brew was just beginning to be appreciated when there came an evangelist to the Ionia Methodist church. The brewer went to one of the revival meetings. He was interested and went again. Finally he determined to become a Christian. He studied the Bible and became convinced that Christianity and the brewery business could not go hand in hand in a man's life. De Kwaak had faith and courage and hurried home.

Ionia will never forget that night when the brewer threw open the doors of his establishment, rolled out barrel after barrel of his brew, knocked out the heads and gloated and smiled as the beer and ale flowed into the creek. "Go to ——, where you belong," exclaimed De Kwaak, as the last barrel and vat emptied itself.

The brewery buildings were immediately reconstructed and made into greenhouses and structures necessary to the market gardening business. Thenceforth De Kwaak raised and marketed garden truck.

That night Ionia's literal worship of this little Hollander, who, though he can neither read nor write in English, is still an eloquent, forceful and successful preacher of God's word, began to focus. Since then "Father" or "Dad" De Kwaak, as he is lovingly known, has grown into the hearts of everyone who meets him. There have been professional and political celebrities and idols in Ionia, without number. There have been popular men and women. But Abraham De Kwaak has remained in a class by himself.

His devoted wife died twelve years ago, and since then Mr. De Kwaak has lived with his daughter, Mrs. Julia Danforth. In the little home that stands today just where the old brewery was thirty-four years ago. The foundation diggers for the present home ran into an old well under the corner of the dwelling which had been filled with hops from the brewery lofts. The hops had so preserved the timbers of the old well that they seemed like new.

The only other child is John De Kwaak, a devoted son. Not many years ago, an unforeseated frost leveled the whole patch of celery. It was a dismal outlook in the morning, and John, in his despair, called upon his father to witness that the Lord did not care for his followers as He should.

"John," said the old man, "don't say another word like dot. It is the Lord's celery. He can do with it as He likes."

During the day the sun did wonders for the apparently ruined celery. Neither John nor his father looked again that day upon the leveled garden. But the following morning when John went forth the celery was standing again, bright and luxuriant. He gazed in amazement and called his father. They say that the old man only just smiled his smile and preached to his son a tactful little sermon on faith.

This is the story of Abraham De Kwaak, erstwhile brewer and present day steadfast Christian. Is it then any wonder that all who gaze upon his bright old countenance, ask to hear of Ionia's loved character? Is it, then, a wonder that his pictures are treasured in Ionia and in all parts of the country? For few traveling men there are who come regularly to Ionia but have taken one of his pictures home with them that they, too, may be cheered by "that smile."

SIZE OF RELIGIOUS SECTS.

The Roman Catholic council to discuss the new situation created in France by the recent law separating church and state calls attention to the relative numerical importance of the principal forms of religion followed by humanity, says the Grand Magazine. According to the latest estimates, the total population of the world at the present day is 1,693,150,000. Of this total rather more than one-third, exactly 563,000,000, profess Christianity—Catholics, 350,000,000 and Protestants, 213,000,000. Mohammed has 222,000,000 followers; Buddaha, 107,000,000. Of the teeming population of China 283,000,000 practise the cult of ancestry. The Brahmins of the world number 225,000,000, and the Jews but 9,000,000. The Parsees, who play such an important role in India, are but 150,000 all told. So far as mere numbers go, the Roman Catholics are thus seen to be far ahead of any other denomination.

RHEUMATISM

CAN NOT BE RUBBED AWAY

It is perfectly natural to rub the spot that hurts, and when the muscles, nerves, joints and bones are throbbing and twitching with the pains of Rheumatism the sufferer is apt to turn to the liniment bottle, or some other external application, in an effort to get relief from the disease, by producing counter-irritation on the flesh. Such treatment will quiet the pain temporarily, but can have no direct curative effect on the real disease because it does not reach the blood, where the cause is located. Rheumatism is more than skin deep—it is rooted and grounded in the blood and can only be reached by constitutional treatment—IT CANNOT BE RUBBED AWAY. Rheumatism is due to an excess of uric acid in the blood, brought about by the accumulation in the system of refuse matter which the natural avenues of bodily waste, the Bowels and Kidneys, have failed to carry off. This refuse matter, coming in contact with the different acids of the body, forms uric acid which is absorbed into the blood and distributed to all parts of the body, and Rheumatism gets possession of the system. The aches and pains are only symptoms, and though they may be scattered or relieved for a time by surface treatment, they will reappear at the first exposure to cold or dampness, or after an attack of indigestion or other irregularity. Rheumatism can never be permanently cured while the circulation remains saturated with irritating, pain-producing uric acid poison. The disease will shift from muscle to muscle or joint to joint, settling on the nerves, causing inflammation and swelling and such terrible pains that the nervous system is often shattered, the health undermined, and perhaps the patient becomes deformed and crippled for life. S. S. S. thoroughly cleanses the blood and renovates the circulation by neutralizing the acids and expelling all foreign matter from the system. It warms and invigorates the blood so that instead of a weak, sour stream, constantly depositing acrid and corrosive matter in the muscles, nerves, joints and bones, the body is fed and nourished by rich, health-sustaining blood which completely and permanently cures Rheumatism. S. S. S. is composed of both purifying and tonic properties—just what is needed in every case of Rheumatism. It contains no potash, alkali or other mineral ingredient, but is made entirely of purifying, healing extracts and juices of roots, herbs and barks. If you are suffering from Rheumatism do not waste valuable time trying to rub a blood disease away, but begin the use of S. S. S. and write us about your case and our physicians will give you any information or advice desired free of charge and will send our special treatise on Rheumatism.

SCHULTE IN A MAD CHASE

Duluthian Kills Fine Buck But Has Run for It.

A Local Party Out Near Drummond Has Excellent Luck.

Joseph Schulte and Fritz Roth came in last night from the Sargent camp at Drummond, on the Duluth & Iron Range with four very fine deer.

One of the deer in the Schulte collection is a handsome buck, which cost that genial gentleman considerable effort and no little excitement to kill.

It was a grand old fight, but the Schulte forces were overwhelming, and the buck was killed. Mr. Schulte and some other Duluthians have been spending the past few days at Robert Armstrong's homestead at rummDond, to the end of securing a few deer to eat, and to come back and tell about.

Every member of the party had good luck. Mr. Schulte had already killed one of the two deer allowed to one hunter by law when he encountered the large buck which he brought to the city last evening.

The country near Drummond is comprised largely of little knolls, and it was just below one of these that Mr. Schulte encountered this splendid specimen. With rare good aim, he plunked the deer one. It turned just at the moment, and the bullet it received did not cause instantaneous death, but rather filled the animal with an intense desire for revenge.

Consequently, it took after Mr. Schulte with vengeance gleaming from its fading eyes. The genial Schulte was not altogether prepared for an attack, for he had only one bullet left in his gun. However, he paused and handed the buck another lead compliment. Inasmuch as the deer was moving very swiftly, the second bullet did not cause the buck to fall finally, despite Schulte's excellent marksmanship.

When he saw the buck still alive, and, more than that, still coming, Schulte lost no time in meditation. If it was to be an endurance contest, the hunter was determined that he would be the winner.

Just as Bob Armstrong and Jim Wingate of the party came up, the buck had fallen exhausted, and Schulte was ready to take a rest also. But the buck was certainly worth while. It was a dandy, and Mr. Schulte was the recipient of many compliments for securing it.

The two deer which Mr. Roth secured were also good ones.

There are still at the Armstrong camp Harry Hesse, Jim Wingate of Two Harbors and Robert Armstrong.

THE RAILWAY POSTAL CLERKS

Say Salaries Are Practically Same as Ten Years Ago.

Washington, Nov. 14. — Secretary George A. Wood, of the National Association of Railway Postal Clerks, who is also editor of the Railway Postoffice, the official organ of the association, says that the bulletins of the bureau of labor showing that a day's work purchases more today than ever before in the history of the country does not apply to the railway postal clerks. He says that for years and years, while their duties on the train and off have grown heavier by reason of the growth of the country and of the volume of mail, their salaries remain practically the same as they were ten years ago.

"The railway postal clerks never have been paid according to the standard of other government employes. Considering the high order of physical manhood required to stand the strain of the work, the constant dangers to which the men are exposed, and the early age at which they become worn out—the average age of retirement is under 50 years—they ought at least to get as much for their work as the average clerk in Washington. So long as they are compelled to pay their expenses while away from home they assuredly do not. Figured on an average basis the railway postal clerk gets $1,000 a year. Of this he has to pay out at least $100 a year for meals and lodging away from home, and $20 more is required for pencils, forwarding slips, fines levied by the department for missent letters and registered pouches, so that when your clerk finishes up his year's work he has paid out $180 of his salary in expenses not incurred by other government clerks. This leaves him $886 as his net income with which to maintain his home in these times of high prices, and let me tell you that, be he as economical as he may, he has little left. He gets an average of $2.83 per day. Day laborers and street sweepers in many places get almost as much, and the sort of men who are in the mail service command twice as much in the business world today, as a rule. So today while all the rest of the country is enjoying an unprecedented prosperity the railway postal clerk finds himself a victim of the high prices that go with that prosperity and finds himself without any increase in income wherewith to meet the higher prices. I believe that if congress will allow the clerks their expenses while away from home, just as it does all other government employes in the discharge of duty it will be a fair adjustment of the whole matter."

POET OF PASSION A PURITAN MAID

Descendant of the Mothers of Our Own Colonial Days.

London, Nov. 14.—That a Puritan maid should be England's poet of passion is somewhat surprising. Yet it is so. Charlotte Mansfield is her name. She is not poet alone, but artist and author as well. Miss Mansfield is 28, and typically English. On her father's side, she is descended from one of the three oldest families in the west of England. Through her mother comes her claim of Puritan stock, for the American Mathers of Mayflower and witch-burning fame were her maternal ancestors.

Until the Boer war, Miss Mansfield lived the quiet life of the well-to-do country girl. The woes of the strife in South Africa inspired her, and she wrote her first poem, Those Who Wait and Weep. She sent a copy to a friend in town, who in turn sent it to William Waldrof Astor's paper, the Pall Mall Gazette. The poem struck the right chord. It attracted immediate attention. The London Telegraph secured it, and sold it in aid of its war fund. Both Queen Alexandra and the late Queen Victoria received souvenir copies and wrote notes of thanks to the author for her work.

Encouraged, Miss Mansfield began writing in earnest. Her verse, somewhat resembling that of Ella Wheeler Wilcox, began to appear in magazines. The Outlook and the Academy took her up seriously. So it was not surprising when a volume or two of her verse was published, and met with favor. Of these, Flowers of the Wind, is perhaps the most popular.

Fairly established as the English poet of passion, Charlotte Mansfield suddenly deserted the muse and plunged into art. She gave an exhibition of her work in the Bond street galleries, which was attended by royalty, and therefore, according to English measure, was a great success.

She deserted art, however, just as suddenly, and took up politics. In a motor car she toured Hampshire and made speeches, and sought votes for the Tories. When she returned to town, she once more returned to literature, her first love. The Ladies' Imperial club seldom sees her now, for she is devoting all her time to writing poems, and working on a forthcoming novel. Her first one, Torn Lace, shocked many folk, but the critics were kindly, and it was a success. The Girl and the Gods quickly followed. It is Zolaesque in the extreme. When it reaches the United States, Anthony Comstock may pounce on it. Yet it is an uncommonly promising piece of work.

Accidents will happen, but the best-regulated families keep Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil for such contingencies. It subdues the pain and heals the hurts.

SURE THERE MUST.

ACTION FOR DAMAGES

Sister Margaret Walsh Sues Village Marshal and Priest.

Claims There Was No Warrant Issued for Her Detention.

Claiming that she was unlawfully arrested without cause at Mountain Iron on last October 4, and kept in custody for several hours, Sister Margaret Walsh, the proprietor of a hospital at Minocqua, Wis., has started a suit for damages in the United States district court against James B. McGlaughlin, the village marshal of Mountain Iron, who made the arrest, and James Hogan, priest of the Catholic church at Virginia, who she claims was the instigator. For this wrongful arrest and detention, judgment for $21,225 is demanded by Sister Walsh.

As is set forth in the complaint, which has been filed in the office of the clerk of the United States court, Margaret Walsh is a resident of Minocqua, Wis., where she conducts a hospital. She has been in charge of the hospital for the last seven years, during which time she has received all patients, whether they could pay for her services or not. What pay she did receive was greatly insufficient to keep up with the expenses of the hospital, and it was her custom to spend several months each year, soliciting subscriptions for its support.

The complaint says that Sister Walsh has been in the habit of spending the fall months traveling about from town to town in St. Louis county soliciting funds. She has done this for several years and has always been able to secure several hundreds of dollars for the support of the hospital each trip. Her trip this year was commenced about Sept. 1, and she was able to visit several of the towns before her trouble commenced. By the end of September, she had collected something over $400.

A few days later, the complaint alleges, Sister Walsh arrived in Mountain Iron, where she intended to continue her soliciting. But here she was met by an officer of the law who arrested her. John B. McGlaughlin, the village marshal, made the arrest and kept his charge in custody at Mountain Iron for several hours. Sister Walsh claims that he had no warrant for the arrest and that it was made wrongfully and without cause. After she had been detained for a few hours at Mountain Iron, McGlaughlin compelled her to go with him to Virginia, where she was taken before James Hogan, the priest of the Virginia Catholic church.

It is maintained in the complaint that the arrest was made at the instance of Father Hogan, and that there was no warrant. It is alleged that when she appeared before Father Hogan, he intimated to her that it would be best for her to leave the town on the afternoon train and told her that if she ever visited that vicinity again to solicit funds for her hospital, he would have her arrested. The complaint does not state why he objected to her presence or the solicitation, but at any rate she says she was compelled to leave town at 3:30 of the afternoon of the day she was arrested.

Sister Walsh claims that she had intended to spend the remaining part of October and all of November visiting the range towns, and that on account of her wrongful arrest, and Father Hogan's threat she is prevented soliciting hundreds of dollars for the support of her hospital. Through the unlawful arrest and on account of being deprived from securing more money, Sister Walsh claims that she has been damaged to the amount of $21,225, and is suing for this amount.

She is represented in the case by Ross & McKnight, attorneys of Duluth. No answers have been filed by the two defendants.

DISCORD IN THE ONTARIO CABINET

Rumors of Trouble Between Premier Whitney and Minister Beck.

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 14.—Premier P. Whitney is being kept busy denying rumors of discord. Rumor has it that the apple of discord has dropped into the cabinet. Rumor goes farther and gives details, to wit, that Mr. Whitney has fallen out with his power minister, Adam Beck of London. Mr. Whitney says it isn't any such thing, and the public is left to infer that it is all a malicious slander, set on foot by people who don't like the Beck power policy.

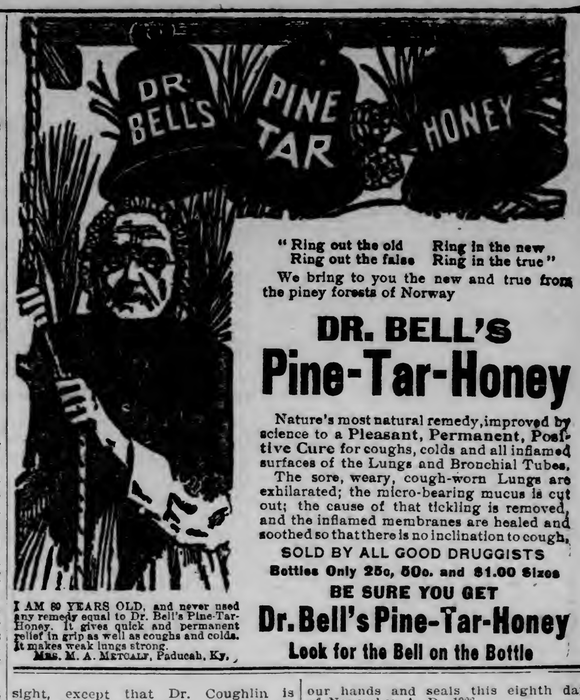

More than once before, since the Conservatives attained the pinnacle in Ontario, there have been wars, or at least rumors of wars, only heretofore they have had to do with the question of patronage, and the distribution thereof. Now Mr. Whitney is issuing denials on a new score, and is at the same time putting up his arm to ward off the bumps of brickbats thown by Orange Conservatives on the same old question of patronage. The Independent Order of Foresters took away the head of the Deaf and Dumb Institute at Belleville. The eye of the premier fell upon Dr. Coughlin of Peterborough. Dr. Coughlin has been appointed. His qualifications are that he combines experience as a practical teacher and as a medical man. But Dr. Coughlin is a Roman Catholic, and Orange Toryism in Ontario is playing the fife and drum to "Boyne Water" variations in protest against the appointment. Premier Whitney repels the attacks with declarations that he is absolutely independent of creed considerations, and will appoint the best men without regard to creed. The end of the struggle is not in sight, except that Dr. Coughlin is likely to hold his job.

Game Wardens are abroad in the woods of Northern Ontario looking for American sportsmen who forget about the laws. These agents of the government have orders to see that the close seasons are rigidly maintained. Up in the Sudbury district, Pittsburg marksmen, who had gone in north of Lake Wahnipitae, have had to pay up for killing deer too soon, and have lost the deer. In another hunting ground American duck shooters broke the laws and were told to appear for trial. Two others hunting moose, near Englehart fired a couple of broadsides at two large objects, which they had descried apparently side by side by a tree. Following their bullets to the spot, the hunters found two dead horses and an angry owner. The man had tied his team to a tree, and had suddenly seen them fall over. The moose hunters handed over $600, which is a good price for a pair of pack horses.

ADVANCES SLIGHTLY

Closing Prices Are Higher in Most of the American Markets.

Flax Has Wide Range and Closes Weaker in Duluth.

Duluth Board of Trade, Nov. 14.—Wheat opened easy in the American markets, on the failure of the foreign markets to fully respond to the sensational advances on this side of the Atlantic yesterday, but with continued light receipts prices advanced steadily here until the close, which was higher than yesterday in all the American markets save Winnipeg, where it was unchanged. The December option was weaker in Minneapolis. Liverpool closed ¼d to ⅜d higher and Berlin and Budapest ½c higher.

The December option closed ¼c higher in Duluth, ⅛c in Chicago, ¼-⅜c lower in Minneapolis, unchanged in New York and Winnipeg, ⅜c higher in St. Louis and ¼-⅝c in Kansas City. The May option closed ⅛c higher in Duluth and Chicago, a shade higher in Minneapolis, ¼-⅜c in New York, ¼c in St. Louis, ⅝c in Kansas City and unchanged in Winnipeg.

December corn closed ¼c higher and was ⅛d to ¼d higher in Liverpool. December oats closed a shade lower in Chicago.

Car receipts at Duluth were 303, against 525 last year and at Minneapolis 255, against 314 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 558, against 739 last year. Chicago received 37, against 120 last year. Winnipeg received 324, against 357 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 1,017,600 bus, last year, 1,436,000 bus. Shipments, 367,000 bus, last year, 607,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 271,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 530,000 bus, last year, 840,000 bus. Shipments, 654,000 bus, last year, 729,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 252,000 bus.

Wheat trading was active most of the session of the Duluth market. December wheat opened ⅛c lower at 76¼c, advanced to 76⅝c by 9:40, declined to 76⅛c by 10:20, rallied to 76⅝c by 11:30 and closed at that price, a gain of ⅛c over yesterday. May wheat opened ¼c lower at 78⅝c advanced to 79¾c declined to 79¼c, rallied to 79⅝c and closed at that price, a gain of ⅛c over yesterday.

Durum wheat closed ½c higher for the November option and ½c higher for December No. 1 and ⅛c higher for December No. 2. Cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 3c over December for No. 1 nopenderra.

Flax was very active from the opening until the close, with a wide range of prices. Prices were off at the close. Cables were ⅛c higher. November flax opened ⅜c higher at $1.23⅛, declined to $1.21⅛, rallied to $1.22⅜, declined to $1.20¾ and closed at that price, a loss of 2c from yesterday.

December flax opened ¼c higher at $1.19, declined to $1.17¼, rallied to $1.18, declined to $1.16½ and rallied by the close to $1.17, a loss of 1¾c from yesterday. May flax opened ½c higher at $1.23, declined to $1.21, rallied to $1.21⅝, declined to $1.20⅝ and rallied by the close to $1.20¾, a loss of 1¾c from yesterday.

The coarse grains were unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard on track, 80¼c; to arrive, No. 1 northern 79⅝c; No. 2 northern 78¼c; on track, No. 1 northern, 79⅝c; No. 2 northern, 78¼c; November, 79⅛c; December, 76⅝c; May, 79¾c; July, 80¼c; November durum No. 1, 76c; No. 2, 65c; December durum No. 1, 64c; No. 2, 61; May durum No. 2, 64½c; durum on track, No. 1, 76c; No. 2, 66c. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Liverpool Checks Bullish Wheat Tendency at the Opening.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—Although prices at Liverpool were somewhat higher today, they failed to reflect fully the strenuous advance of yesterday on the local exchange, and prices of wheat in consequence were somewhat easier at the opening. The Northwestern receipts still continu light and this held the market fairly steady in the face of the situation at Liverpool. The trading was mostly in the May option. December opened a shade to ⅛@¼c lower at 73⅞c to 74c, sold at 74⅛c and declined to 73⅝c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 595 cars against 1,216 cars last week and 339 cars one year ago.

The market became more firm during the last half of the session and December advanced to 74¼c. The close was firm with December up ⅛c at 74⅜@¼c.

The corn market was steady, chiefly because the local receipts were somewhat smaller than had been estimated. December corn opened unchangd to a shade higher at 42¾c to 42¼@43⅛c, sold at 42⅝c and declined to 42¼c. Local receipts were 130 cars with twenty of contract grade.

Prices held firm all day, although trading was very light. The market closed firm with December ¼c higher at 42½c, which was the high point of the day.

Trading in oats was very quiet and the market was steady. December opened a shade higher at 34⅝c and sold at 34½c. Local receipts were 99 cars.

The provisions market was quiet, but prices were firm. January pork opened 5c higher at $14.20. Lard was unchanged to 2½c higher at $8.42½. Ribs were 2½@5c higher at $7.65.

Close: Wheat—December, 74⅜@¼c; May, 79c. Corn—December, 42½c; May, 45⅜c. Oats—December, 34½c; May, 32½c. Pork—January, $14.40; May, $14.55@.60. Lard—January, $8.55; May, $8.50. Minneapolis Flour.

Minneapolis, Nov. 14.—The flour market was higher. Patents were advanced 5c per barrel this morning, and if the wheat market holds, another advance will be made. The upturn in wheat has not increased the demand to the extent millers looked for, but inquiries were good. Shipments, 42,788 barrels. First patents, $4.20@4.35; second patents, $4.10@4.20; first clears, $3.25@3.35; second clears, $2.45@2.60.

Grain Gossip.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—We believe wheat is running into a most healthy speculative situation. There has been some of the fresh speculative and investment buying but this feature of the trade has been cautious. Those who buy wait for soft spots and when they take wheat it is to hold for a long pull. Perhaps nothing else in the situation is as significant as the fact that best authorities in the Northwest are gradually lowering their estimates on the yields of the year, both sides of the Canadian line. It is this situation, coupled with the important falling off in the Northwest receipts for a long period of time, which has caused the cleverest people here and in the Northwest to desert the short selling side, cover their lines and get in position for a bull market. Think conservative people will be good buyers of wheat on any little setback like that of this morniag and this advance which has started so favorably is likely to continue.

Corn—Believe that corn when it begins to move freely and navigation closes, so that corn will pile up in Chicago neuses, will give a natural downturn to this market before buyers will be justified in taking hold.

Copper Gossip.

Gay & Sturgis: Under the lead of St. Paul, which has gone up 15 points in two days, the general market strengthened further and closed buoyant at a material rise. It looks as though another deal was to be consummated, giving another tonic to the market. The last two or three days have not helped it much and we doubt if the effect of this one will be more than transient. There is no change whatever in the situation otherwise.

Locally the market stiffened up well and closed firm with North Butte the feature. The approaching dividend meeting furnishes a speculative opportunity. The local market looks well, but we see no immediate reason to expect any material advance. It will furnish good trading opportunities, however.

• • •

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The directors of the Allouez Mining company, at a meeting this morning, voted to recommend to stockholders the acceptance of a plan whereby a new company is to be formed to take over the Centenial mill, in which new company the Centennial and Allouez companies will be principal owners. The investment by Allouez will not exceed $200,000.

• • •

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Important news on St. Paul and Southern Pacific is expected tomorrow and under the lead of these stocks the whole market had a good rally today. North Butte and Cananea Central were the most active and strong stocks in Boston, but the buying of Copper Range, Shannon, Old Dominion and Butte Coalition looked good. Money was easier. We would advise everyone to remember, however, that this is a trader's market, and we think tomorrow will be a good day to sell stocks. The buying of Arcadian looks good, but we would get out of it as fast as we could.

• • •

Gay & Sturgis: The directors of the Quincy Mining company will meet next week to declare the usual quarterly dividend of $2.50 and take action on a new stock issue to meet the cost of the purchase of the 100 acres of land from the Arcadian company. Some of the directors are in favor of issuing 10,000 shares of new stock to be offered to stockholders at $60 per share in the ratio of one new share for each ten shares now held. On this basis with the stock at $100 a share, its present selling price, stockholders would be given a right worth about $4 per share. From the sale of 10,000 shares of additional stock as above, the company would receive $600,000, which with money drawn from the large surplus account would take care of the payment of about $725,000 to A. C. Burrage.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

But There Were Frequent Relapses When Profits Were Sought.

Close Animated and Buoyant, With Good Rise in St. Paul.

New York, Nov. 14.—First prices of stocks followed London quotations to a higher level. The trading showed considerable animation and gains were substantial. Anaconda rose 4 points, Northwestern 2 and Great Northern preferred 1¼. Reading, Missouri Pacific and Canadian Pacific gained a point each and Southern Pacific Northern Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio, Brooklyn Rapid Transit, United States Steel and Amalgamated Copper large fractions.

Stocks were purchased on a liberal scale, the demand embracing all of the well known railroads and specialties. There was very heavy dealings in St. Paul, Reading and Union Pacific. After these stocks and a number of others had risen between 1 and 2½ points, profit taking sales appeared, and there was a good fractional reaction, followed by a rise to a higher level than before. St. Paul moved up 2½; Reading and Great Northern preferred 2¼; Northern Pacific and Delaware & Hudson 1¾ each; Union Pacific, Louisville & Nashville, Denver & Rio Grande preferred and People's Gas 1½ each; Pressed Steel Car and Locomotive preferred 2¼; Pennsylvania, Copper, Brooklyn Transit, Colorado Fuel, Lead and American Car 1 each; Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha preferred sold at a decline of 3.

Operations for the advance were shifted into the Hill stocks, while the earlier favorites were inclined to react on profit-taking. The volume of business showed a notable shrinkage from that of the first hour. Great Northern preferred rose up 3¾. Northern Pacific 2¾ and Louisville & Nashville, Smelting, Virginia Iron 2 each. Pacific Coast declined 2 and International Power 4. Bonds were steady.

Most of the favorite stocks recovered to the high prices of the morning, but there were frequent relapses when profits were sought. St. Paul and the Pacifics seemed to yield under the selling. Southern railway stocks were in increased demand. Atlantic Coast line going up 1 and Louisville & Nashville 2¾.

Important buying operations were resumed in St. Paul and it it advanced to 179¾, a gain of 3 points. The general market was sluggish, but maintained a firm tone.

The market closed animated and buoyant. St. Paul continued to rise buoyantly an extreme 2¾. The other Pacifics responded with more moderation, but the general list was less affected. Southern Pacific gained 2⅝, Union Pacific 2⅜, Northern Pacific 3⅜, Great Northern preferred 4½, Louisville & Nashville 3¼, Anaconda 7.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Nov. 14.—The cotton market opened firm at an advance of 6@19 points, in response to higher cables and predictions for unsettled weather. After showing a net advance of about 20@22 points on the active months, the market eased off under heavy realizing, but around 10.04 for March, or 11 points over the close of yesterday, the decline was checked by a renewal of covering and buying by Liverpool, New Orleans and local bulls. During the middle of the morning the local market was firm and about 10@17 points net higher.

After selling up to a net advance of 24 to 30 points on covering, the bull support and Southern demand, the market reacted 5 or 6 points under realizing but held steady to firm in tone, owing to the small estimate for tomorrow's receipts of Houston reports of firm Southern spot markets and predictions for unsettled weather. HAPPENINGS IN THE DAKOTAS

NORTH DAKOTA.

Bismarck—When asked yesterday regaring reports that he had resigned, Judge Knauf said:

"I wrote Judge Fisk that I wished to return to my private practice at the earliest possible moment, and suggested that if he would come to Bismarck on Nov. 12 I would resign and would be pleased to swear him in as supreme judge. He replied he could not qualify at that time owing to press of work in his district.

"It is now up to Judge Fisk, as my resignation practically lies in his hands. I understand that Governor Sarles is ready to appoint Judge Fisk whenever the latter is ready."

Nothing is known here as to Judge Engerud's resignation.

The state historical society has been presented with several relics connected with the early history of the state, the most interesting of which is a pair of snowshoes which were worn by Joe Morin Drouillette, while a member of the Minnesota house of representatives, he stole the bill for the removal of the state capital from St. Paul to St. Peter and made his way across the frozen Red river to the then home of Pembina, now in this state, but then a part of Minnesota.

The snowshoes were presented by Robert Macnider, who also donated an old fashioned pistol revolver, forty-three caliber, of the pattern known in early times as a navy revolver.

The pistol is a relic of the Gen. Sibley campaign against the Indians in North Dakota forty-three years ago. The pistol was found hidden in a badger hole at a place where the First Minnesota volunteer infantry had a hard fight with the redskins. It was the property of Sergt. G. W. Reed, who lost his life in the fight.

Williston—While Ralph Raum was driving down hill Monday to the approach leading to the ferry, his four-horse team became frightened, ran away, threw him out and the heavy lumber wagon ran over him, killing him. He was 35 years old and is survived by a widow and stepdaughter.

Fargo—Fargo is to entertain 300 delegates to the state drainage convention, which will be held here Dec. 11 and 12. President Cashel of Grafton is endeavoring to secure President J. J. Hill of the Great Northern for an address. Every county on both sides of the Red river will be represented at the meetings, and it is expected that a bill will be drafted for presentation to the North Dakota legislature to relieve conditions on the North Dakota side of the stream.

John Soder, a homesteader on his way from Hankinson to Tague, who was injured in the Great Northern yards at Larimore, has brought an action against the company in the district court for damages in the sum of $1,999, the suit being started for this amount to preclude a transfer to the federal court. Soder had a car of movables, one end of which had been partitioned off for live stock. An engine shunted the car in the yards at Larimore, and the cattle were thrown through the partition into the part of the car occupied by Soder, who received injuries on the head and face.

Minot—Jerry Osmund, a farmer living two miles east of White Earth, was found dead in a manger yesterday morning, killed by his horse. It is thought that Osmund was pulling hay down from the loft and was struck by the horse. Dr. Windell decided that an inquest was not necessary.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Mitchell—Before an audience of 1,200 people last night the new Gale theater was opened. Tickets sold as high as $10 each, and the first night's performance netted $5,000. "The Mayor of Tokio" was the opening bill. The Gale is modern, with parquet, balcony and gallery, all chairs, except in the gallery, being upholstered in leather. The stage is the largest in the state. The building is fireproof and the theater has an asbestos curtain, is steam-heated and lighted by electricity. There are eight exits and an abundance of fire escapes.

Castlewood—Hans Kingslein, a farmer living near here, had a terrible experience while attempting to rid his farm of a huge boulder. He attempted to bury the stone and had dug a pit, partially undermining the rock, when it toppled over upon him. His leg was caught beneath the stone and broken and he was pinned securely to the ground. He struggled in vain to release himself and his cries of distress brought no assistance. All the afternoon and night he lay under the huge rock, suffering agonies from the pain occasioned by his broken limb and from intense thirst. In the morning, although almost exhausted, he was able finally to free his foot and started to crawl home. A man driving along the road saw the injured man and assisted him to his home. He is in a critical condition.

Sioux Falls—Garfield Hartsell, a former drug clerk of Sioux Falls, who is wanted in this city on the charge of obtaining goods under false pretenses, has been arrested at Monmouth, Ill., and Deputy Sheriff Hirsch of this city is now en route to that place to bring him back.

Dan Alberg, a homesteader from Lyman county, who is wanted in that county on the charge of embezzlement, was met upon the streets of Sioux Falls by Sheriff Pickett of Lyman county, who recognized him and caused his arrest. The sheriff has taken his prisoner back to Lyman county to await trial.

Another big department store is to be established in Sioux Falls, David Jacobson of Greenville, Mich., having decided to establish such a house. On March 1 of next year he will commence business with a $150,000 stock of goods.

BIBLE CLASS.

Boys in West End Organize to Study During Winter.

Last evening the boys' department Y. M. C. A. organized its Bible class in the West end, meeting at the home of Mrs. J. C. Helm. Meridith Helm was elected president; Sydney Berg, vice president; and Carl Cassell, secretary. The class will meet every Tuesday evening from 7:30 to 8 o'clock and will study the travels of Paul, a course especially prepared for boys' Bible study clubs. The class decided to call itself the Excelsior club. Frank Downing will be the teacher.

Last season nearly every member of the class won a diploma in the international examinations. The following boys registered last evening:

William Eckholm, Sydney Berg, George Wallin, Axel Newberg, Arthur Erickson, Morris Olson, Ranson Jeffery, Walter Berkelhorn, Albert Peterson, Meridith Helm, George Merritt, Carl Cassell.

Tonight the boys from Hunter's Park will meet for organization at the home of W. J. McCabe. Other classes will be formed at West Duluth, Duluth Heights, Lakeside, Park Point and Garfield avenue.

FIGURING ON SPEAKERSHIP

St. Paul, Nov. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—An informal caucus on the house speakership may be held within the next week by members-elect of the next legislature. N. F. Hugo, one of the candidates, was here today and met several of the members. He thinks his candidacy has not suffered by reason of late entrances. He admits that he has several Hennepin members on his list.

The three principal candidates are: Ambrose Tighe of St. Paul, N. F. Hugo of Duluth and Lawrence Johnson of Minneapolis, but A. J. Rockne of Goodhue county and W. A. Nolan are strong country aspirants.

Mrs. Jolly, the present capitol postmistress, is a candidate for postmistress. She has opposition in Mrs. Soule, a candidate two years ago. Rev. Edgar K. Copper of Staples is seeking the place of house chaplain.

NOTED DISTILLER DEAD.

Oconomowoc, Wis., Nov. 14.—Henry H. Shufeldt, 72 years old, a multi-millionaire of Oconomowoc and Chicago, died here yesterday at his country residence. He was one of the best known and richest distillers in the country. Three years ago he retired from active business.

FELL INTO A HOLE.

Waterloo, Iowa, Nov. 14.—The attempt to discharge an election bet obligation ended disastrously Monday, when George Root, in endeavoring to roll a peanut around a city block with a toothpick, plunged headlong into an excavation and dislocated his shoulder.

NOTICE IS RECEIVED

St. Cloud Land Office Will be Transferred to Duluth.

Notice has been received at the United States land office in Duluth that, through an order of President Roosevelt, the Marshall land district, with its office at St. Cloud, will be discontinued after Dec. 15, and the business of the district transferred and consolidated with the Duluth land district, the main office to be at Duluth.

This order from the executive has been expected for some months, as the office at St. Cloud has had very little business on its hands, as that district has been nearly all settled up. There is very little land in the district which has not been taken up, but there will be a considerable routine business added to the Duluth office through the transfer.

The change will give to the Duluth district a very large territory, as it will now cover nearly the whole of the southern part of the state. Everything south of a straight line across the state from Duluth to the Dakota line will be under the jurisdiction of the Duluth land office. On account of this large territory, one or two extra clerks will probably be added to the office.

The St. Cloud office will be permanently closed and discontinued at the close of business Saturday, Dec. 15, and its business and archives transferred to Duluth on the following Monday.

The order of the president was made Nov. 10.

STEAMER MISSING ON LAKE SUPERIOR AND FEARS FOR FIFTEEN MEN GROW

Chicago, Nov. 14.—The Canadian steamer Arabian is reported missing on Lake Superior, and underwriters today, were becoming decidedly anxious regarding the safety of the steamer and its crew of fifteen men.

The mising steamer left Fort William last Thursday with 38,000 bushels of wheat bound for Montreal, and should have reached Sault Ste. Marie, within twenty-four hours, but not a word has been received. It had not reached the Soo up to noon today, although the weather has been favorable for the past forty-eight hours.

Lake Superior was swept by severe storms after the Arabian sailed, that of Friday being particularly dangerous.

The missing boat is owned by J. B. Fairgrieve of Hamilton, Ont., and measures 1,073 gross tons. It is of composite steel and wood construction.

LOSE THEIR POSITIONS

After a dreary vigil of nearly two weeks in the corridor of the federal building, the settlers waiting to file on the township opened this morning were beaten out of their positions by a little party of six or seven men, who forced their way in ahead of them and got first chance at the new lands.

The trick was turned about 4 o'clock this morning. The first man in the line was peacefully sleeping on the hard floor, about six feet away from the door to the land office, when the men stole into the building and ensconced themselves in the space between him and the door. When the settlers awoke it was to find all their long weary wait in vain. The newcomers presented a bold front and evidently intended to hold their places. The land office authorities and the police were powerless to prevent the injustice. The land office recognizes no such line, and it is a case of first come first served. The police had no right to interfere except to prevent disorder, and it was a case in which possession was everything. If the newcomers had attempted to secure their positions by force the police would have had a right to prevent them and arrest them for disorderly conduct, but they met with no resistance, and had the other settlers attacked them it would have been the duty of the police to interfere.

The man to secure the first position was Thomas Madden, a West Superior street saloonkeeper, and he made the first entry when the doors were opened this morning.

While the trick greatly incensed the settlers who had been waiting so long to file, it probably did not make much difference to them. The line became disorganized, and there was some pushing and jostling, but the police managed to keep order, and all finally made their entries. Out of the forty-three entries there were very few conflicts, so far as could be ascertained by the land office officials early this afternoon, and it is not likely that any man lost his claim by reason of the trick.

There will be no chance of a repetition of the trick tomorrow. Those in waiting for the third and last of the townships, will move up close to the door at 12 o'clock tonight and stand in line until the doors open.

SHOT HIS SISTER.

Small Boy Sent Bullet Through His Little Sister's Body.

St. Cloud, Minn., Nov. 14.—Theodore, the 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Gottwalt, near Rice, probably fatally shot his 4-year-old sister Leon. The mother of the children had gone to town and the father was out in the field.

The boy put his little sister in the chair and taking a 32-caliber rifle he aimed it at her breast and fired. The bullet passed clear through the body of the little girl, piercing her lungs.

When the boy realized what he had done he picked up the little girl and called his father. The girl is still alive, but her recovery is doubtful.
